U.S. Bombers All Return; Downed 14 ME-109's, Unaided by Own Escort

Fighting French Set For Decisive Action

De Gaulle Says LeClerc's Column Is Ready After Victory in Libyan Desert

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 13.—American Flying Fortresses destroyed thirty-four Axis planes aground and aloft in a raid yesterday on Castel Benito airfield, ten miles south of Tripoli, tearing a considerable hole in the already thin air cover on which Field Marshal Erwin Rommel depends for an effective retreat from Libya into Tunisia, a communique reported today.

In this heaviest assault delivered from the west on the Axis in Tripolitania not an American plane was lost.

The attack topped all other action in the North African theater, where land operations were marked by patrol encounters between Bou Arada and Goubellat in northern Tunisia and along Rommel's route of retreat in Tripolitania.

[General Charles de Gaulle told the French people, in a London broadcast Wednesday night, that the Fighting French forces of Brigadier General Jacques LeClerc, with the conquest of Fezzan in the Libyan desert, now are in position to "fight decisive engagements on the shores of the Mediterranean." The accomplishment of LeClerc's men "constitutes an exploit which is no less than the finest in our history," De Gaulle said.]

Fourteen Shot Down in Air

The Allied communique said fourteen planes were shot down in combat during the Castel Benito raid, and an air force spokesman added that twenty German planes were smashed on the ground. He estimated that at least ten more Nazi craft were damaged in the air- thus bringing the enemy's possible losses to as high as forty-four planes.

The Axis pilots, flying Messerschmitt 109's, apparently were under instruction to get the Fortresses at all costs. Avoiding the American fighter escort, they swooped upon the bombers and were met by blasts which sent plane after plane out of action. Every Fortress reached home safely, although one limped in two hours late on two motors.

[Widespread British raids on Mediterranean targets were reported in a Cairo communique, which said the Libyan ports of Tripoli and Homs were bombed Monday and that Crete, Sicily and near-by Lampedusa Island were attacked Tuesday. Five Axis and two Allied planes were shot down over Libya, where sandstorms hampered land activity. Although the communique spoke only of patrol actions, front dispatches indicated that the British 8th Army was increasing its pressure on Rommel's Afrika Korps.]

Roads Bombed in Tunisia

Allied headquarters announced that British Bisley planes bombed roads behind the Axis positions in Tunisia and that American craft assaulted bridges between Sousse and Sfax, on the Tunisian east coast. The Allied loss in all these actions was a single plane.

Lightning fighters, sweeping roads in the Tripolitania-Tunisia border region, put Axis transport under heavy fire. An air force spokesman estimated fifty trucks, five of them filled with enemy troops, were destroyed.

Marauder bombers hit two bridges, one a highway bridge at Le Hencha and another a railroad bridge at Chaaba, both between Sousse and Sfax.

A German attempt to wipe out a forward American field met with little success. American P-40's shot down one Junkers 88 and a Messerschmitt 109 in the Nazi escort.

Lieutenant John C. Cronkhite, of St. Petersburg, Fla., piloted the Fortress which reached home with two motors. Riddled by anti-aircraft fire and fighter attacks, the Fortress was forced to treetop level over the target, but Cronkhite nursed the ship home instead of making a crash landing. He flew more than four hundred miles and got back to his base after dark. Then he landed the crippled ship with all the crew safe.

Air Blows From Libya

(At the eastern end of the Allied line—in Libya—the British command announced complementary air blows in which five enemy fighters were destroyed in combat; Tripoli and Homs in Libya and targets in Crete, Sicily and on Lampedusa Island were successfully attacked. In these operations two Allied planes were lost.

(The British communication spoke only of a patrol action aground in Libya, but front-line dispatches indicated that the British Eighth Army was increasing its pressure on Rommel.)

Down 14 M-190's In 75-Mile Running Fight High Up

JAN 14 1943

By J. W. Gallagher

[Associated Press Correspondent]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Jan. 13—United States warplanes destroyed thirty-four Nazi aircraft in the air and on the ground in a raid yesterday on Castel Benito airfield, ten miles south of Tripoli, it was announced today.

B-17 Flying Fortresses which led the attack into Tripolitania from the west knocked out twenty planes on the ground and downed fourteen more during a blazing seventy-five-mile running battle high in the air, a spokesman said.

It was the heaviest blow yet struck by Allied forces from the west against Marshal Rommel's defenders of Tripolitania.

An Allied headquarters communique which announced the raid identified the fourteen planes shot down as Messerschmitt 109's.

(This was the deepest reported penetration into Libya by Fortresses based in the west. Other American bombers, B-26 Martin Marauders, made an attack last Saturday against an airdrome ten miles from Tripoli, possibly the same field.)

Germans Avoid Estort

Apparently instructed to stop the Fortresses at any cost, the Germans avoided the escort of P-38 Lockheed Lightnings and raced into the concentrated fire of the big four-engined bombers.

Despite the enemy efforts, all of the American planes returned to their base although one plane came home on only two motors two hours after the others.

Air activity dominated day and night warfare, as reports from the ground fronts indicated only patrolling in the Bou Arada and Goubella areas of northern Tunisia.

Supply Lines Pounded

The RAF's Bisleys attacked the Nazi supply line along the Tunisian east coast near the port of Sousse, ranging over the highways by moonlight and blasting trucks and transports with bombs and machine-gun fire.

The Allied strategy of striking Marshal Rommel from both sides was operating like clockwork.

From the east the RAF and the American air force with the British Eighth Army pounded Rommel's transport and supply lines leading through Tripoli to Tunisia.

Some Carried Troops

Almost at the same time the American Lightnings struck across the Tunisian border into Tripolitania in other attacks.

Sweeping close to the ground above a long line of Axis transport vehicles, some of them crowded with troops, the cannon and heavy machine guns of the swift fighters left a trail of smoke and destruction.

An air force spokesman estimated that at least fifty trucks were destroyed, including five filled with troops.

Seaplane Is Shot Up

On the way back the Lightnings shot up a seaplane near Gabes and battled with Messerschmitt 108's which tried to intercept them.

In those dogfights there ensued the only American plane loss of the day—one P-38 which was shot down. At least one Messerschmitt was damaged.

off the aerial show by scoring a hit on two bridges, one on a highway and the other on a road between Sousse and Sfax.

Giraud and De Gaulle To Meet Soon; More Seized in Darlan Death

'Algiers Personages' Held, Commissioner's Spokesman Reveals

JAN 14 1943

By the Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 13.—Gen. Henri Honore Giraud, new high commissioner of French North and West Africa, and Gen. Charles de Gaulle, leader of the Fighting French, will meet soon, a spokesman for Gen. Giraud said last night as the assassination of Gen. Giraud's predecessor, Admiral Jean Darlan, took on new undertones of mystery.

Gen. Giraud's spokesman, disclosing that additional "personages of Algiers" had been arrested in the case and others arrested earlier had been released, said the investigation of Admiral Darlan's assassination Christmas eve was being prosecuted "without consideration of the prominence of the persons involved, nor their political beliefs."

The investigation, he said, was being made by military authorities. Asked if the Count of Paris, heading a French monarchist group, had figured in the investigation, the spokesman said he could not discuss the trend of the inquiry.

"The murder of Darlan possibly was political," he said, "but the investigation and trial will be conducted merely as that of a criminal for a crime needing punishment."

In Addition to Other Arrests.

A young man described as a Frenchman whose mother lives in Italy already has been executed as the actual assassin in the killing of Admiral Darlan.

The new "personages" arrested, it was pointed out, are in addition to the 12 seized New Year eve as instigators of a plot to kill Robert Murphy, President Roosevelt's personal Minister in North Africa; Gen. Giraud and others.

The spokesman, in announcing the new arrests, said the assassination of Admiral Darlan appeared to have been the "result of a conspiracy reaching in many directions."

Gen. Giraud, disclosing the arrest of the original 12, said that some of them were personal friends and some had assisted in the American occupation of North Africa.

Announcing the forthcoming meeting of Gen. Giraud and Gen. De Gaulle, who has insisted that former supporters of the Vichy government be removed from their posts in North Africa, Gen. Giraud's spokesman said that "many telegrams" have been exchanged between Gen. Giraud and Gen. De Gaulle with a view to reaching an agreement."

Meeting to Be "Soon."

Gen. De Gaulle, he said, wanted a meeting in early January, but this was impossible because Gen. Giraud has been touring the African provinces.

"New telegrams have now been exchanged, and although I don't know exactly when the meeting will occur, it will be soon," he said.

(In London a Fighting French spokesman predicted an "early and complete agreement," and said the meeting is expected to take place almost immediately. After the meeting Gen. De Gaulle will go to Washington to see President Roosevelt, he said.)

A joint committee on "political prisoners and refugees in North and West Africa" has been created, with advisory powers to obtain the release of persons considered worthy, the American Office of Civil Affairs announced.

Members of the committee are empowered to visit places of detention to investigate the cases of persons interned for political reasons. United States Consul General Samuel Wiley and British Consul General Cavell are members of the committee.

PLOT INVOLVES COUNT OF PARIS AND ROYALISTS

French Having Monarchist Leanings Are Arrested in North Africa.

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Jan. 13 (A. P.).—Frenchmen of monarchistic leanings were among several additional persons arrested in the last few days in the continuing investigation of the assassination of Admiral Jean Darlan, it was reported today. The names were not announced officially, but identities were generally known to the Algier population, among whom the arrests caused widespread comment.

Some arrested persons were said to be men who risked their lives to help the original American landings in this area. The status and whereabouts of the Count of Paris, pretender to the non-existent throne of France, who came to Algiers soon after Admiral Darlan's assassination, were the subject of speculation.

It was reported variously that he was critically ill in Algiers and that he had returned to his pig farm in Spanish Morocco. Gen. Henri Honore Giraud, new High Commissioner of French North and West Africa, and Gen. Charles de Gaulle, leader of the Fighting French, will meet soon, a spokesman for Gen. Giraud said.

GERMAN ATTACKS HURLED BACK IN LOWER DON AREA

Stiffened Resistance Met by Red Forces in South, Communique Reveals.

12 VILLAGES SEIZED

Soviet Army Fans Out Along Caucasian Rail Line.

NAZI BATTALION CRUSHED

Entire Force Annihilated, Equipment Captured Near Rostov.

MOSCOW, Thursday, Jan. 14.—(AP) The Red army pushed rapidly north through sagging German forces in the Caucasus yesterday, advancing 50 miles from the Georgievsk-Mineralnye Vody area to Zhuravskoye, it was announced offficially early today.

The offensive also continued to roll forward at a slower pace northwest of Mineralnye Vody, where sharp Nazi counterattacks were beaten off. Altogether the Russians said they seized 12 towns and railway points, killed hundreds of Germans and captured 100.

Nazi Assaults Smashed

To the north, along the lower Don river where the Russians are threatening the Nazis on the approaches to Rostov, the midnight communique said the Russians had smashed a series of heavy Nazi counter-attacks. No specific Russian gains were claimed in this area.

(The Berlin radio said the Soviets had opened another offensive—the fifth for the winter—in the Voronezh sector on the upper Don 300 miles northwest of Stalingrad, but said the Germans were not caught by surprise and repulsed the Russians. The Germans several times have announced Russian major drives ahead of Moscow communiques.)

Zhuravskoye in the Caucasus was the farthest point reached by the Russians in their drive due north from the Mineralyne Vody-Rostov railway. Other towns seized were Sablinskoye, Novoselits-Koye, and Kitaevskoye.

Close to Railhead

Zhuravskoye is 45 miles west of Budennovsk and less than 20 miles south of Blagodarnoye, the railhead of a line running northwest to the Krajotkin-Divnoye line.

The communique indicated the Germans were now stiffening in the Caucasus after being routed for more than 100 miles from the Mozdok-Nalchik areas. The Red army's advance now is along dirt roads and across fields, but once they have reached Blagodarnoye the Russians will have cleared a path west across the Caucasus and north toward the great lake region.

The latter area already has been reached by a Red army column that pushed south from Stalingrad through Elista, provincial capital of the Kalmyck republic.

Fan Out Along Railway

Fanning out along the Caucasian railway the Russians pushed seven miles northwest of Mineralnye Vody yesterday to seize the railway station of Kumagorsky, and also took the settlements of Kangly and Grecheskoye in this sector.

One Soviet unit was said to have wiped out more than 500 Germans during the day, and seized ten German guns, four automatic guns, 28 machine-guns, 67 trucks, 50,000 cartridges, four ammunition dumps, and a herd of cattle.

Nazi Tanks Repulsed

JAN 14 1943

In another sector, the Germans tried a counterattack, the communique said, but Red tank men under Senior Lieut. Dorozhkin destroyed all 14 Nazi tanks thrown into the battle. Soviet troops then hit the Nazis from the flank, and "after a brief engagement the Germans fled, leaving on the field more than 100 bodies."

The Russians gave this as an example of the difficulties facing them along the lower Don river:

"The enemy, who concentrated tank and infantry units in a narrow sector, attempted to break through to the rear of Soviet troops. The latter thwarted the plans of the Hitlerites and repulsed all their counterattacks. The Germans sustained enormous losses without achieving any success."

Enemy Battalion Routed

In another sector of this front that is closest to Rostov the Russians were reported to have annihilated a battalion of enemy infantry, and destroyed four guns, 20 machine-guns, and 24 trucks. Captured material included five guns, 42 machine-guns, one armored car, and other booty, the communique said.

On the central front southwest of captured Velikie Luki, the Russians said they killed 200 Germans in repulsing a Nazi counterattack, and in the same general area knocked out six Nazi tanks and captured other armaments.

In the fighting inside Stalingrad the Russians said their units in one sector of the factory district killed 400 Germans in a successful penetration to the western outskirts of the Volga riven city. Ten guns, 42 machineguns, four trench mortars and other material was captured in this thrust.

Matter of Time

This battling inside Stalingrad is far to the rear of the Russians fighting along the lower Don river, and the Germans entrenched in the Don-Volga river pocket long have been encircled, the Russians say, and it is merely a matter of time until they are liquidated.

In the North Caucasus, where the reoccupation of several additional communities was announced in the mid-day communique of the Soviet command, the Germans appeared to be attempting a delaying stand to cover their troops holding the Maikop oil fields and the strip along the Black Sea to the west.

German counter-attacks along the Mineralnye Vody-Rostov railway were particularly violent, but field dispatches indicated that nowhere had they halted the Soviet advance.

JAN 14 1943

Nazi Break Through

Along the lower Don, however, a German break-through by masses of tanks and infantry was acknowledged momentarily to have threatened an important Russian communication line, but the Soviet command declared that regrouped Soviet forces subsequently threw the enemy back and repaired the breach.

The government newspaper Izvestia reported in supplement that Red army reserves sent to the front line on captured mules—a 40-mile march—had helped restore the position.

The offensive along the lower Don was hampered by the heavy snow and by a wind so cold as to burn the faces and inflame the eyes of infantrymen.

RUSSIANS GIBE NAZIS ON DEFEAT BY 'BOYS'

Reply to German Report of Soviet Troops' Inferiority

MOSCOW, Thursday, Jan. 14 (AP)—The supplement to the midnight communiqué took another occasion to poke fun at the Germans, this time reprinting a German report that "Soviet war prisoners taken by German troops are chiefly 15-year-old boys and old men of 60 and more."

Recalling that the Germans said the same thing a year ago, the communiqué said:

"The question occurs to every one who listens to these Hitlerite ravings. If 15-year-old boys and decrepit old men are fighting in the Red Army ranks, how could such an army inflict grave defeats upon the multimillion Germany Army and hurl the German fascist troops over hundreds of miles westward, liberate about 2,000 populated places in the Stalingrad area, and recapture in the course of stiff engagements Nalchik, Mozdok, Prokhladnaya, Georgievsk, Pyatigorsk, Mineralnye Vodi, Kislovodsk, Essentuki and many other towns?"

"It appears that the German Army has sunk so low that it retreats, abandoning tanks, guns, trucks, and dumps in the face of 15-year-old boys and old men wearing Red Army greatcoats.

"The German Command will keep lying in the future with the same zeal it will soon have to announce 'successes' attained by German troops in fighting against infants."

More Villages Taken By Reds; Intensity Of Battle Increases

By HENRY C. CASSIDY,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

MOSCOW, Jan. 13.—The Germans threw tanks and warplanes into a stiffening stand in the Caucasus today in a desperate attempt to cover their forces holding the Maikop oil fields and the Black Sea coast farther west, but the Russians reported further gains and more villages recaptured.

Red Star, mouthpiece of the Russian Army, said the battle was becoming more violent, particularly along the rail line toward Rostov from recaptured Mineralnye Vody.

Battle-front dispatches said the Russians were maintaining their pressure along a whole 100-mile front from deep in the Caucasus to the lower Kalmyck Steppe, while other forces just to the north bore down on the Nazi Sal River line in preparation for the siege of Salsk, another milestone on the road to Rostov.

Strong German counterattacks were reported on the Lower Don front as well as in the Caucasus.

Threat Is Repulsed

Izvestia the government newspaper, said one such attack in the Lower Don threatened an important Russian line of communications but was repelled by Red Army reserves, which were moved up nearly 40 miles overnight. The Germans were forced to retreat, Izvestia reported.

The Don offensive was hampered by the cold wind which howled across the snow-piled steppes. The progress here was slower than in parts of the Caucasus, but the Russians were reported pressing ahead at a steady enough pace to prevent the enemy from regrouping shattered divisions.

In the close-quarter fighting in Stalingrad the Red Army made an important gain by thrusting forward from a northern factory district to the western outskirts of the city.

Long-range guns on the east bank of the Volga continued to shell German lodgements on the west bank around Stalingrad as the Russians kept up their pressure on the German forces which have been cut off there from retreat to the west.

(The Soviet noon communique said several more populated places fell to the Russian Caucasus army in the night's fighting and added a significant report: That Red Army planes had swept far west to Krasnodar in a series of raids on the airdrome at that key German strongpoint and rail center, 150 miles south of Rostov and only 60 miles east of Novorossisk, on the Black Sea.

(Ten German planes were destroyed on the ground, about 30 were damaged and two planes were brought down in an aerial duel, the communique said. It was broadcast by the Moscow radio and recorded in London by the Soviet Monitor.

(A German tank advance in the lower Don area was thrown back in vicious fighting and several towns were occupied in one sector, the war bulletin said.)

More Points Captured.

The Soviet midnight communique pictured the far-flung central Caucasus advance as moving steadily along both sides of the railway that angles from Baku, oil center on the Caspian, northwestward to Rostov, at the mouth of the Don, near where the river splits to flow into the Sea of Azov 25 miles below the city limits.

The recapture of six more points in the Caucasus, including Essentuki, 12 miles west of Pyatigorsk, was announced. Essentuki's fall carried a Russian column to within 38 miles of the headwaters of the Kuban River.

(The Moscow correspondent of Reuters, British news agency, reported that Russian troops which had speared from Stalingrad down past Elista through the Kalmyck Steppes had joined hands with columns from the North Caucasus at a point between Urozhainoe and Levokumsky, 25 miles east of Budennovsk, which was listed yesterday as recaptured.)

The Soviet command also said that four more towns were captured by the Army that advanced along the railway which travels southwestward from Stalingrad through Kotelnikovski, Zimovniki, Salsk, Kuberle and Tikhoretsk to Krasnodar. Kuberle previously had been reported recaptured, and the taking of Kharkovsky, Mayorsky and Kurmoyarsky in that region both widened the front of advance guards and protected them while other units mopped up German detachments in the rear.

Press Toward Salsk.

The weight of these Red Army columns lay heavy against Salsk, 110 miles southeast of Rostov at the end of a branch line between the main railway and Rostov. The main railway borders the North Caucasus at this point.

(Stockholm reports the Russians in artillery range of Salsk already were battling the Germans who had dug in Northwest of the city.)

The midnight communique told of the occupation of several more unspecified localities in the Lower Don area, but spoke freely of long and bitter fighting against counterattacking Axis troops and reserves attempting, the Russians said, to stem the Soviet advance at all costs.

But the Russians said their fighters wore the enemy out by defensive tactics, followed up with a strong blow, and killed 2,000 men and destroyed 40 tanks.

Vicious Counterattacks.

New, vicious German counterattacks northwest of Velikie Luki also were reported and it was asserted that the Germans withdrew after a day of costly battle.

Berlin Admits Offense

Reports It Directed at Voronezh Area and Repulsed.

CAUCASUS REDS STILL ADVANCING

German Lines Broken in Stalingrad—Russians Reach Western Suburbs.

LONDON, Jan. 13 (AP) — The Red Army fanning out in the Caucasus has captured 12 more settlements, Moscow reported tonight, and a German broadcast said the Russians had begun a new—the fifth—offensive in the Voronezh area of the upper Don river, 300 miles northwest of Stalingrad.

The midnight Soviet communique heard here by the Soviet Monitor did not mention the Voronezh sector, but said the Red Army still was rolling northwestward along the Mineralnye Vody-Rostov railway in the central Caucasus.

Among the towns declared regained by the Red Army, which is spread out along a 100-mile front straddling the railway, were:

Towns Regained

Sablinskoye and Svobodny, about 20 miles north of Mineralnye Vody; Grecheskoye, 18 miles to the northwest; Kangli, 10 miles beyond on the rail line; and Novoblagordarnoye, which apparently is in the same area as Blagordarnoe, 70 miles north of Mineralnye Vody.

The Russians now were believed to have reached a point only 210 miles southeast of Rostov in the drive from the Caucasus Mountains.

To the north along the Don River the Russians still were meeting stern German resistance and repeated Nazi counterattacks.

No Material Gains

The Russians did not claim any material gains in the Don river area and the communique said:

"The Germans concentrated a considerable tank and infantry force in a narrow sector with the aim of breaking through to the rear of the Soviet troops. Our troops frustrated all the enemy's attempts. All the enemy counterattacks were repulsed with huge losses for the Germans."

In another sector of this front where the Germans have been counter-attacking day and night against Soviet units who are only 60 miles east of Rostov, the communique said the Red Army wiped out a Nazi infantry battalion and destroyed four guns, 24 trucks and 20 machine-guns. Four guns, 22 machine-guns, one armored car, and other booty was said to have been captured.

Break Nazi Lines in Stalingrad

Far to the east where German troops still are anchored in the Stalingrad area—and cut off, the Russians say—Soviet shock troops broke through Nazi lines in the factory section of the city to reach the western suburb, killing 400 Germans. The communique added that 10 guns, 43 machine-guns, four mortars and other material was seized.

On the central front southwest of Velikie Luki one Soviet unit was said to have killed 200 Germans in repulsing a Nazi counter-attack, attack, and in another sector the Russians destroyed six tanks, and captured eight heavy machine-guns, three mortars and a great quantity of rifles and ammunition.

Attack on Voronezh

A German broadcast heard by Reuters quoted the DNB news agency as asserting that Soviet tanks had battered the main German line in the Caucasus, and also quoted the Nazi announcer as saying that the Russians had launched a new offensive in the Voronezh area—midway between Stalingrad and Moscow. If this is true it would be the fifth big winter push by the Red Army.

The Russians fighting their way ahead in the Caucasus were said to have killed more than 500 Germans, and to have captured 100 prisoners yesterday. In addition the communique said ten Nazi guns, four automatic guns, 28 machine guns, 67 trucks, 60,000 rounds of ammunition, a herd of cattle and four ammunition dumps were captured by a single Soviet unit.

In another area of the Caucasian front the Russians told of the Germans counter-attacking with 14 tanks followed by infantry. "Our men destroyed all fourteen tanks," the communique said. "At the same time another Soviet unit struck a surprise blow at the German infantry on the flank. After a short engagement the Germans fled."

Berlin Says Reds Repulsed

BERLIN (from German broadcasts) Jan. 13—(AP)—The Russians began an offensive yesterday in the Voronezh region on the upper Don River, but all Soviet attacks "broke down in concentrated fire," Transocean Agency said tonight.

(Voronezh, 300 miles northwest of Stalingrad, is where the Red Army held firmly under the German eastward drive last summer. The Russians have not yet announced offensive operations in this area.)

"On Tuesday the Soviet offensive was extended to the Voronezh region," the German radio said. "The Soviet attacks in this sector however did not come as a surprise, since preparations for the attack had been observed by reconnaissance planes of the German and Allied air forces for some time. All the Soviet attacks therefore broke down in concentrated fire."

Heavy fighting continues all along the eastern front, the broadcast said, "but all strategically important points still are firmly in the hands of the German troops. Thus in the region of Millerovo

London, Jan. 13 (A. P.).—The German High Command announced tonight that the Russians have launched a new offensive in the Voronezh area, the Berlin radio said in a broadcast heard here by Reuters.

This has not been confirmed by the Russians themselves, but Moscow often maintains silence on great operations until they are well along.

Voronezh is the anchor of the entire Russian line, running southward to Stalingrad and the Caucasus. The Germans last summer attempted repeatedly to take the city and sweep beyond it upon Stalingrad from the north, but the Red Army held its ground and the Germans never penetrated beyond that point.

With the exception of the Russian offensive on the central front which regained Velikie Luki, all Russian winter offensives which are pressing against the Germans in the south have started below Voronezh. This latest drive, if confirmed by the Russians, indicates that the Red Army might attempt a sweeping move to the west and southwest into the Ukraine, toward Kursk and Kharkov.

Germans Indicate New Major Drive By Red Forces

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), Jan. 13.—Violent fighting on the Russian front has spread to the sector between Lake Ilmen, Lake Ladoga and Leningrad, German military quarters announced today.

They commented that thus heavy fighting is in progress along almost the entire eastern front. Russian attacks outside Leningrad and south of Lake Ladoga failed, they asserted.

This may indicate that the Russians have opened a new major offensive. Several times in recent months the Germans have been first to report the launching of Red Army drives, with Moscow withholding announcement until they are well under way.

Sloboda Seizure Not Confirmed

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Jan. 13—CBS said today it had heard the British radio reporting that "on the Central front the Soviet armies have captured the town of Sloboda, situated forty kilometers (twenty-five miles) north of Smolensk and southeast of Velikie Luki."

In London, however, the British Broadcasting Corporation and the London bureau of Tass, official Soviet news agency, both said they had not heard the Sloboda report. Confirmation was lacking from other sources.

If the Russians are within twenty-five miles of Smolensk it means an advance of some fifty miles from Bely, the most advanced point in that area hitherto reported in Russian hands.

It was suggested in London, however, that the report might have resulted from a confusion in names with Svoboda on the Caucasus front. Russian dispatches said yesterday that the Russians were driving toward Svoboda, twenty-six miles west of Karamik, due north of the Georgievsk-Mineralnye Vody sector.

Nazis Say Ilmen Fight Flares

New York, Jan. 13—The Associated Press listening post has recorded a Berlin broadcast which reported that violent fighting on the Russian front has spread to the sector between Lake Ilmen, Lake Ladoga and Leningrad.

The broadcast commented that heavy fighting is in progress along almost the entire Eastern front. Russian attacks outside Leningrad and south of Lake Ladoga failed, they asserted.

(This may indicate that the Russians have opened a new major offensive. Several times in recent months the Germans have been first to report the launching of Red Army drives, with Moscow withholding announcement until they are well under way.)

Hitler, Antonescu Confer

German broadcasts also reported that Adolf Hitler conferred Sunday at his headquarters with Premier Marshal Ion Antonescu of Rumania, and the marshal's nephew, Deputy Premier Mihai Antonescu.

An official Nazi statement on the meeting said the conversations "were imbued with the spirit of frienship and tested comradeship in arms of both nations."

"Full agreement was confirmed with regard to the further conduct of the war in the political, military and economic fields," the statement continued.

Reds Attacks "Frustrated"

The Finnish command's daily communique said that "in the area of Lake Ilmen and Lake Ladoga the enemy attacked fiercely but all attacks were frustrated by the stubborn resistance of the German defense with great losses for the enemy."

The communique said that "in the west Caucasus the enemy resumed the local fighting which he had interrupted for some time."

Flag of Lafayette Escadrille Over Tunisia As First Squadron Arrives to Fight Nazis

NOLAND NORGAARD

JAN 14 1943

At a United States Fighter Base in Africa, Jan. 12 (Delayed), (A. P.).—The head of an American Indian war chief—the emblem adopted over a quarter of a century ago for the Lafayette Escadrille—flew over the Tunisian battlefields for the first time today, once more the symbol of the United States and France united in a war on Germany.

The first squadron of the new Lafayette Escadrille, composed of picked French aces who shot down an average of seven to eight planes each in the brief battle of France, flew into this base at dusk yesterday, ready to take up the fight where they left off two and a half years ago.

This squadron, which also calls itself the Lafayette-Storks, got a warm greeting from the ordinarily undemonstrative American pilots and ground crews.

These men, who seldom waste a glance at the sky unless they think enemy raiders are coming, dropped their work to wave heartily as the group which had fought for France in two wars circled the field and came in.

The temper of these French men was shown in virtually the first words they uttered.

Leader Is of Russian Descent.

Escadrille leader Major Kostia Rozanoff, 37-year-old Parisian, whose grandfather was Russian, leaped from the cockpit of his P-40 fighter, saluted, shook hands with Major Robert H. Christman of Port Washington, N. Y., commander of an American squadron, and asked:

"The Focke-Wulf 190, you have fought with him?"

Christman replied with expressive gestures and the few French words at his command—three fingers for the number of his combats with the fast climbing Nazi war plane and a single finger for the one he shot down.

From the sleek P-40s they were flying, down to mess kits and handkerchiefs, the French aces were equipped by the Americans. They spent some time training in the United States with their new planes. All had flown, in 1940 or before, the Curtiss P-36, the granddaddy of their present equipment.

Major Rozanoff wears the ribbon of the Croix de Guerre—green and black instead of the familiar green and red in token of France's mourning over its 1940 downfall—with a leaf and star awarded for his feat of twice shooting down two German planes on a single sortie.

Another of the escadrille's wearers of the Croix de Guerre is Lieut. Legrand, whose eleven triumphs over the Luftwaffe in 1940 make him the leading ace of the French forces in North Africa.

Major Rozanoff told American pilots he was fortunate enough to be assigned to staff duty in Morocco when the United States troops landed, and therefore was not ordered to fight against the Americans.

Major Carries Fight To Nazi Headquarters In Dawn Raid Alone

Looses Single Bomb From P-40 at Close Range on Kairouan

By NOLAND NORGAARD,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

AT A UNITED STATES FORWARD FIGHTER BASE IN TUNISIA, Jan. 10 (Delayed).—It was about breakfast time at German headquarters in Kairouan this morning when a lone United States Curtis P-40 fighter darted out of the sky, headed straight for the building housing the German staff.

The P-40 loosed its single bomb and nosed upward just in time to clear the roof while pieces of masonry flew from the building and the Nazis ran for cover.

This is just a minor chapter in the almost private war that Maj. Philip G. Cochran, 32, of Erie, Pa., and his fighter squadron are waging on the Axis in Southern Tunisia.

As in the case of a lot of other audacious sorties, Maj. Cochran himself conceived the idea of attacking the enemy's headquarters and hardly a half dozen men on this field knew what he was up to when he took off.

Quickly Off on Another Mission.

This youthful daredevil, with a mane of prematurely graying hair—he hasn't been near a barber in many weeks—came wobbling home with his right aileron out of commission, the right tire shot half off, and a bullet lodged in the propeller blade, but that, he insisted, was the result of "just fool carelessness."

This afternoon he was off on another mission with part of his squadron after mechanics worked their heads off to get his battered P-40 in shape again.

Maj. Cochran is a former Ohio State University student who worked his way through school as a singer and then, he says, "I became a flyer because I was such a lousy crooner."

On his way home from the headquarters bombing, when he was 40 miles from Kairouan, he felt something hit his right wing.

"I thought it was a funny place for a flak and looked back. There he was—a Focke-Wulf 190 right on me, Maj. Cochran said.

"I started in to crash land, but suddenly found I could still fly. So I swung her up under the German and gave him a burst.

"Funny thing. He thought he must be up against something really tough because he streaked for home."

Was Fighting in Hour.

Within an hour after arriving at this advanced United States air base in North Africa a month ago Maj. Cochran's squadron had refueled and taken off on its first combat mission.

They do not wait for orders. "We would never get the job done if we just sat down and awaited orders," Maj. Cochran explained.

None is more appreciative of this relentless audacity than the gallant but poorly equipped French Army, which might have been crushed but for the fact that P-40 pilots believe in hitting first.

When the Germans were getting set for a big push in the Dondouck sector recently the P-40s broke up the concentration, burned nine tanks and later destroyed 24 trucks and two more tanks. The Italians hid 100 vehicles in an olive grove, but Maj. Cochran's men found them and put perhaps 80 out of order in one attack."

The squadron has lost only one pilot.

Maj. Cochran is a man of action. The other day he hired a camel train to do a particularly difficult transportation job. There were some official questions when the bill got to headquarters but the job was done. When the squadron arrived he hired mules and even borrowed ancient charcoal-burning trucks from astonished French commanders who were unable to imagine the Americans lacking automobiles.

High Regard for Nazi Pilots.

Here is his estimate of the German air force:

"Their hoopla is all gone and those people are strictly business. They've got the war down to real science and they know how to conserve planes.

"It's better that the folks back home know how damned good they are."

I rode down with Maj. Cochran in his peep from the primitive dugout, which serves both as headquarters and his living quarters, to look over hurried repairs on his P-40.

The squadron leader noticed that somebody had inscribed with chalk on the plane's nose: "Jean Rae, Hancock, Mich."

"Who's Jean Rae? Your girl?" he asked the mechanic, who blushed through dust-incrusted, week-old whiskers.

Maj. Cochran just smiled and we drove off.

Bombers Pound Crete, Sicily And Lampedusa

JAN 14 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Cairo, Jan. 13—Allied bombers of the Middle East Command pounded Axis-held Tripoli and Homs, sixty-five miles farther east, Monday night, and other Allied planes followed up the attack with raids on Axis bases in Crete, Sicily and Lampedusa Island yesterday, a British communique said today.

No new developments were reported from the land battle front in Tripolitania. Aerial fighting over the battleground was carried on despite sandstorms, and five Axis fighters were reported shot down.

2 Allied Planes Lost

Two Allied planes were reported lost in these operations, but the pilots were said to be safe.

Rome Admits Attack

New York, Jan. 13—The Associated Press listening post today recorded a Rome broadcast in which the Italian high command said that Agrigento, on the southern coast of Sicily, was bombed yesterday and seven persons were killed.

The raid was made by daylight.

The high command announced the loss of two torpedo boats "as a result of enemy action." Details were not given.

Allied Base Bombed

From the Libyan coastal front the high command reported reconnaissance activity by ground patrols and said an advanced Allied air base was bombed and machine-gunned with damage to planes and armored vehicles.

"In encounters of the last few days in the Fezzan region, the enemy suffered considerable losses," the war bulletin added. It said that in this operation in the desert south of Tripoli "we took about fifty prisoners, including two officers."

(A Fighting French announcement yesterday said the French desert column moving north from the Lake Chad country had wrested Fezzan from the Axis, capturing the Fezzan capital and the oasis of Sebha, one hundred miles farther north and within 300 miles of Tripoli.)

Tanks Reported Destroyed

"In Tunisia," the communique said, "during fighting which is still in progress, fourteen tanks, two armored cars and numerous vehicles were destroyed."

Italian and German planes were said to have attacked Allied advanced positions.

"Four planes were brought down by Axis planes in duels during the day," the war bulletin said. "Three of our planes did not return."

Sicilian City Bombed

ROME (From Italian Broadcasts), Jan. 13 (AP).—The Italian high command said today that Agrigento, on the southern coast of Sicily, was bombed yesterday and seven persons were killed.

The raid was made by daylight.

U. S. BOMBER CREW SAFE AFTER ORDEAL

JAN 14 1943

Cairo, Jan. 13 (A. P.).—The crew of an American medium bomber arrived here today for a rest after three days at sea in one of the worst Mediterranean storms in years. The first twenty-five hours they spent in a rubber lifeboat and the next two days in a rescue launch which was disabled and almost capsized.

Their plane fell into the sea when its right motor failed on the flight home from a recent raid.

"We plunged right into a wave fifteen feet high and got an awful jolt as we struck," said Second Lieut. Monroe P. Schwartz of Philadelphia, the navigator. "We all managed to get out, however, and get into the rubber boat. We tossed around and never thought we could last it out until we were picked up. That night the air went out of one side of our boat and the valve froze so we could not blow it up again. Then the boat began to leak.

"The next morning a searching plane spotted us and dropped chocolate and a note saying help was coming. It wasn't until that afternoon that the launch found us.

"They pulled us aboard and we fell exhausted on the deck. They wrapped us in blankets, then the storm got worse and the launch tossed about almost as bad as our rubber boat. The rudder was torn off and we drifted helplessly. We all thought the boat would be overturned, but God was good to us and we finally reached shore 200 miles from where we should have put in."

Others in the crew were First Lieutenant John Holmes, of Des Moines, Iowa; Second Lieutenant John Robbins Pittman, N. J., co-pilot; Second Lieutenant Percy B. Watkins, Birmingham, Ala.; Sergt. Harry Dooley, Jr., Youngstown, Ohio, gunner, and Sergt. Trevor M. Anderson, of the Royal Canadian Air Force, Victoria, B. C., radio operator.

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 13 (AP)—Colonel Uzal G. FRENCH HOLD FEZZAN, GEN. DE GAULLE REPORTS

JAN 14 1943

LONDON, Jan. 13 — (AP) — Gen. Charles de Gaulle told the French people in a broadcast tonight that the Fighting French forces of Brig. Gen. Jacques LeClerc have completed the conquest of Italian Fezzan in the Libyan desert and now are in position to "fight decisive engagements on the shores of the Mediterranean."

The accomplishments of General Le Clerc's men "constitutes an exploit which is no less than the finest in our history," General de Gaulle said.

The column of Fighting French led by General Le Clerc, who is fighting today that names to save relatives in France, from Colonial, has swept up from the Lake Chad area of French Equatorial Africa and has overcome Axis resistance in the Fezzan area in fierce fighting.

Fortresses Blast Plants in France

400 Bombers, Fighters Stage Daylight Raids on Industries, Bases.

JAN 14 1943

LONDON, Jan. 14 (AP) Large bomber forces of American and Allied fighters—nearly 400 in all—made one of the greatest series of daylight raids of the war today on occupied France and Holland.

The heaviest attack was delivered by Flying Fortresses which bored through swarms of German fighters to register many direct hits on industrial plants at Lille.

Three Missing

Three Fortresses were missing from the Lille attack and two R. A. F. fighters failed to return from Holland. Three enemy planes were shot down.

The Flying Fortresses and the R. A. F.'s newest and fastest light bombers shuttled across the channel from noon until late afternoon to paste these targets:

Lille—High altitude attacks by the Fortresses on Nazi controlled industrial plants and railways were successful. It was the third heavy raid on Lille and the 17th bombing attack there since it was captured by the Nazis in 1940.

St. Omer—R. A. F. Boston bombers scored many hits on the German-occupied airfield.

Abbeville—Vega Ventura bombers with an escort bombed the airfield from a low level.

Rail Centers Bombed

Northern France—Mosquitoes bombed railway centers from low level and engine sheds and repair shops were hit.

Holland—Transportation and gun positions were blasted.

Fighter pilots who were out during the day included American, British, Canadian, New ealand, Australian, Belgian, Norwegian, Polish, and Fighting French.

The raids were carried out in bright sunshine and the Fortresses loosed their bombs from high altitudes on the industries of Lille, which are making war material for Adolf Hitler, and on the railway yards which make up part of his transportation system.

Ruhr Again Pounded

The daylight attacks followed a night assault by the British on the Ruhr valley of Germany, the seventh time in 10 nights that that important German area had been raided by the R.A.F.

More than 100 American bombers struck Lille last Oct. 9 in one of the greatest raids of the war and on Dec. 6 Fortress and four-motored Liberator planes teamed up for a mighty assault on the Lille locomotive works and the enemy airfield at Abbeville.

A communique issued by the British Air ministry for itself and the headquarters on the European theater of operations of the U. S. Army gave few details of today's heavy assault but declared that the R.A.F., the U. S. Army Air Force, and Dominion and Allied planes "have carried out extensive operations over Northern France today."

"U.S.A.A.F. Flying Fortresses made a high altitude attack upon industrial plants in Lille, France, which are engaged in war production for Germany," the announcement said.

Visibility Good

"Visibility was good and numerous bursts were observed on the target and in railway yards.

"There were a number of encounters with enemy aircraft.

"From this operation three Fortresses are missing."

The communique did not say how many German planes were shot down by the heavily-armed Fortreses, which usually exact a big toll of enemy fighters, but announced that three German fighters were destroyed in the covering operations of the many squadrons of Allied planes.

The Allies kept planes shuttling over the channel all day in the wake of the attack by four-motored British bombers which dropped two-ton bombs on the Ruhr last night.

The smashes by the Flying Fortresses and the R.A.F. Bostons were packed into two hours time. U. S. pilots in Spitfires helped escort the Bostons, and British and Canadian Spitfires protected the returning Fortresses.

Few Nazi Planes

The R.A.F. fliers over St. Omer reported bomb bursts on the airfields and dispersal area, and said the few Nazi fighters in the district kept out of range of their cannon and machine-guns.

Two fighters were lost in sweeps this morning on canal barges and gun positions in Holland, the Air ministry said.

This afternoon Mosquito bombers made low level attacks on railway centers in northern France, scoring hits on engine sheds, locomotive repair shops, and railway yards, a communique said. None of the bombers was lost.

Ground barrages opened up tonight against enemy raiders over two northeast coastal districts. There were no immediate reports of bombs.

Largest Carrier Force

While the R.A.F. and its Allies kept up almost unceasing aerial warfare against the German military machine, the First Lord of the Admiralty, A. V. Alexander, disclosed that the Royal Navy has more aircraft carriers now than at the beginning of the war, even after replacing five carriers lost.

The Air ministry was silent on the strength of the night plane formations sent against the Ruhr and listed only one aircraft as lost, exceptional for such raids.

British Again Smash At Nazis' Ruhr Area In Night Air Assault

One Plane Is Missing; Raider Bombs Town in Southeast England

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—British bombers smashed at the Ruhr again last night, the Air Ministry announced today. It was the seventh attack on the area in 10 nights. One of the attacking planes failed to return, a communique said.

France also was struck by a procession of daylight raiders which took off after midday and flew through bright, springlike skies over the Folkstone area toward Boulogne.

Britons Killed In Dawn Attack

London, Jan. 13 (AP)—A number of persons were reported killed and many injured in a dawn attack today by two German raiders on a town on England's southeast coast. After dropping their bombs, the German raiders machine-gunned the area.

Ambulances from three centers were called to remove the injured to hospitals while rescue squads dug into the debris to release persons buried in the ruins of their homes.

Minesweeping by Air Is Told by British

3-year-old Secret Is Revealed By Air Ministry —Called 'Hazardous and Unpleasant' Work.

JAN 14 1943

By Alfred E. Wa

LONDON, Thursday, Jan. 14 (AP)—The air ministry released a 3-year-old secret today in telling how Wellington bombers helped clear the seas around Britain's coasts of the deadly German magnetic mines which once were Hitler's "secret weapon" and which threatened the supply lines to these islands in the last three months of 1939.

Story Is Revealed

The story of the "hazardous and unpleasant work" was told for the first time in "Coastal Command," a new booklet in the series on the British Air Force, the first of which was "Battle of Britain."

The minesweepers of the air were equipped with a "hoop-shaped casing extending all around them and secured to their nose, wings and tail." The casing held a magnetic coil and the current was supplied by an auxiliary engine of the ordinary Ford V-8 type.

The equipment was designed to set up a magnetic current which would set off the then new type of mine.

"Coastal Command" said that "when the mines exploded the Wellingtons were severely jolted and their crews had no warning to brace themselves, for they could not know the moment when they would pass over a mine."

Minesweeping from the air, it said, continued "some four months, after which it became no longer necessary, the (surface) ships having been fitted with degaussing gear," which nullified the magnetic mines.

"Coastal Command" tells the publishable story of the aerial watchdogs of Britain's coasts and sealanes. It reports they had flown 55 million miles in the first two years of war, escorted 4,947 convoys and made 587 attacks on enemy submarines.

It tells of the intrepid young men in whom are combined the British heritage of nautical skill and the RAF's aeronautical genius and fighting spirit.

American-made Hudsons, Catalinas and later Liberators played a big part in the Coastal Command's invaluable service to the cause of the United Nations, the booklet said.

New Photographs Revealed

Magnificently illustrated, the 144-page publication shows many pictures never before published, including a striking reconnaissance photograph of the German battleship Bismarck in Heltje fjord just before she weighed anchor for her last fateful trip.

Also published for the first time is one of the most daring reconnaissance photographs of the war, obtained by a coastal command plane which slipped out of the clouds and got a sharp, detailed closeup of a Hipper class cruiser in drydock at Brest from an altitude of only 500 feet.

Another new picture shows a one-time "secret weapon"—a large hooplike device fitted to Wellington bombers early in the war for exploding magnetic mines.

The function of the coastal command—"to find the enemy, to strike the enemy, to protect our ships"—has led to the formation of a great organization working in full cooperation with the admiralty although its members wear the RAF uniform instead of naval blues the publication pointed out.

Battle of Atlantic

The coastal command's biggest task is the battle of the Atlantic. Its strenuous efforts are credited with greatly reducing the menace of Focke-Wulf Kondor raiders and its relentless patrols have proved a big hindrance to enemy submarines.

Weather has been a worse foe of the coastal command than the German air force, the booklet declares, but patrols have been maintained over thousands of square miles of sea from icy Greenland to the sweltering tropics of equatorial Africa.

Sea rescues have been an important part of the work. In the first two years of the war about 3000 persons adrift on the sea after U-boat attacks were sighted and helped by coastal command planes.

Rich with anecdotes both humorous and pathetic the booklet tells among other things how a patrol plane in difficulties 200 miles off Iceland on Christmas eve radioed "SOS. Am landing in the sea. Merry Christmas."

That tale had a happy ending, however, for the plane managed to get home on one engine.

Britain Now Has More Carriers Than in 1939

Replacements Exceed Even Heavy Losses, Admiralty Chief Says

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—A. V. Alexander, first lord of the Admiralty, declared today that "although we have had heavy losses in aircraft carriers, we have more now than we had at the beginning of the war after replacing our losses."

(Britain has announced the loss of five aircraft carriers, the Ark Royal, Courageous, Glorious, Hermes and Eagle.

(Since the start of the war she has completed the Indomitable, Formidable, Victorious and Illustrious—and, from Mr. Alexander's statement, apparently also has added the new Indefatigable and Implacable to the fleet. Jane's Fighting Ships listed them as scheduled for completion in 1942.

(This would indicate a total of seven, the only pre-war carrier remaining unsunk being the Furious.)

In connection with his statement, it was recalled that Mr. Alexander told a Sheffield audience last September 20 that the Royal Navy's capital ship, carrier and cruiser losess of the last two and a half years had been replaced.

"We have had in the last three or four months very heavy attacks by U-boats," Mr. Alexander said in a speech today, "and we have taken a very heavy toll of the enemy.

"Our naval losses in this war would constitute a great fleet, yet, in spite of the fact that we have had to replace those ships, today we have a far larger naval strength than in 1939."

This would give her seven since the only pre-war carrier not sunk was the Furious.)

Britain's Admiral James Heads Navy News Office

Post Indicates 'Silent Service' Will Tell More of Exploits

LONDON, Jan. 13 (AP).—Admiral Sir William Milburne James, called "Bubbles" because as a child he posed for Sir John Everett Millais's painting of a little boy blowing soap bubbles, was appointed today to the new post as Chief of Naval Information.

The appointment indicated the Admiralty is further relaxing its traditional position as the "silent service." Official circles said there is a feeling among the people that they ought to be told more about the achievements of the Royal Navy and the merchant marine.

Sir William, the author of several books, became known as a two-fisted fighting man as commander of the Portsmouth Naval Base during the aerial Battle of Britain.

The painting for which he posed is known to all Britons, who have seen it on billboards advertising a soap.

More Women Face Draft

London, Jan. 13 (AP) — King George signed a proclamation today lowering from 20 to 19 the age at which women are liable to be drafted for national service.

Single women born between July 1, 1922, and December 31, 1932, will have the privilege of choosing between work in war industry and the uniformed services, or they may volunteer for nursing before being called up.

The proclamation also extended the operation of the Service Act to men who have reached 18 but are not yet 46.

Britain Limits Distance Calls.

Soldier Accused In Wigwam Murder

JAN 14 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Guilford, England, Jan. 13—A French-Indian private in the Canadian army, August Sangret, 29, heard fellow-soldiers in court today describe his relationship with Joan Pearl Wolfe, 19-year-old "Wigwam Girl," whom he is accused of murdering.

Sangret pleaded innocent.

Built Wigwams

Prosecutor G. R. Paling yesterday asserted that Sangret last summer built two wigwams near Hankley Common, Thursley, Surrey, adjoining the military camp where he was stationed, and lived there with the Wolfe girl.

Her body, the skull battered into twenty pieces, was found October 7, half buried in the sand on Hankley Common.

Chief Inspector Greeno, of Scotland Yard, testified today that Sangret signed a statement on October 16 and afterward declared:

"I guess you've found her. Everything points to me. I guess I'll get the blame."

Wanted To Marry Her

Two Canadian soldiers testified that they found Sangret and the girl, whom he had told his commanding officer he wanted to marry, living together in the wigwams last August. But by October 12, after her body was found, another soldier said Sangret told him they had "had a row" and he no longer wanted to marry her.

"He seemed a little jittery and nervous," the soldier testified.

Meanwhile, Sangret had friends write letters to other women for him, the soldier said, and when asked, "What will Miss Wolfe think?" the half-breed replied:

"She'll never find out."

Hitler and Antonescu Confer as Comrades

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), Jan. 13.—Adolf Hitler conferred Sunday at his headquarters with Premier Marshal Ion Antonescu of Rumania, and the marshal's nephew, Deputy Premier Mihai Antonescu, it was announced today.

An official statement on the meeting said the conversations "were imbued with the spirit of friendship and tested comradeship in arms of both nations."

(There have been reports of rising discontent in Rumania over the country's role in the war against Russia. Rumania is believed to have sent some 30 divisions to the Eastern front and Moscow communiques have reported at least half of these routed or trapped in the fighting on the approaches to Stalingrad.)

The German Fuehrer was accompanied in the conference by Joachim von Ribbentrop, his foreign minister; Dr. Walther Funk, minister of economics; Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the high command, and Gen. Kurt Zeitzler, new army chief of staff. Other Germans were Dr. Karl Clodius, chairman of the German-Rumanian Economic Committee, and Gen. Alfred Jodl.

GERMAN NATIONALS LOSE RIGHTS IN HUNGARY

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 13 — (AP) The newspaper Aftontidningen said today that 29,000 German Nationals living in Hungary had lost their Hungarian citizenship because they joined German armed forces.

The newspaper reported that, in answer to Germany's protests, the Hungarian government cited a law under which Hungarians forfeit citizenship by joining any foreign army.

The Germans were said to have encouraged their Nationals in Hungary to join German forces after Hungary refused to send more of her own troops to the Russian front.

Allied Planes Carry Drive in New Guinea Into Salamaua Area

Jap-Held Coast Strafed; New Gains Are Made by U. S. Ground Forces

By the Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Jan. 13.—Allied ground forces in New Guinea reduced further the Japanese salient extending 1½ miles inland from Sanananda Point on the Papuan Peninsula of New Guinea yesterday as Allied planes carried the triumphant campaign to the Salamaua area of New Guinea, Allied headquarters announced today.

After announcing the destruction of Japanese positions at Sanananda Point in the previous communique, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported today "further gains against the remaining enemy positions."

Allied planes raided the trail leading from Salamaua to Komiatum, 10 miles to the south, and destroyed a bridge, the communique reported. Other planes strafed the Japanese-held coast in the Amboga region.

Nine Japanese bombers yesterday raided Merauke, colonial administrative center on the south coast of Dutch New Guinea, but caused only slight damage, it was said.

Long-range Allied fighters made a low-altitude attack against the airdrome and other installations at Fuilboro, in Portuguese Timor, and set fire to one Japanese fighter plane. Buildings and other installations on the airfield were strafed successfully, the communique said.

FOUR JAP BASES HIT BY BOMBERS

JAN 14 1043

Large Fires Are Started at Lae; Three Zeros Are Shot Down.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Thursday, Jan. 14 — (AP) — Slowed down on the ground by pouring rain that turned the whole Sanananda sector of New Guinea into a swampy bog, Allied commanders broadened their air attack against the Japanese with raids on four bases.

A single Liberator raided Madang and Finschhafen on the nortern New Guinea coast northwest of Lae. Flying Fortresses, supported by medium bombers and fighters, struck at Lae and Salamaua. Over Gasmata, New Britain, a Liberator shot down two and probably got a third out of six Zeros which tried to interrupt its reconnaissance.

In the area of Lae — where the Japs succeeded in landing remnants of reinforcements from a convoy last week but paid for the attempt with 138 planes destroyed or damaged and at least three transports and a warship sunk — large fires were started among barges, stores, and harbor installations. A Japanese fighter was destroyed on the ground at the Malabang inland airstrip adjacent to Lae.

Nine Japanese heavy bombers raided Merauke, on the South coast of Dutch New Guinea for the second day in succession, slightly damaging a jetty.

Lone Jap Raids Guadalcanal

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Jan. 13—A Japanese plane dumping bombs near Henderson Field on Guadalcanal Island in the Solomons killed one man and wounded several others, while American aircraft continued to pound the enemy airfield at Munda, the navy reported today.

The single-plane attack on Henderson Field, in which five bombs were dropped on United States positions southwest of the airfield, was the first bombing there since December 14. Likewise, in that bombing only one plane participated.

All Planes Return

No aerial opposition, the navy said, was encountered by American bombers continuing their regular attacks on the Japanese airfield at Munda, on New Georgia Island. Anti-aircraft batteries were reported active, however. Results of the attacks were not reported. All United States planes returned.

Meanwhile, in ground action on Guadalcanal, small-scale offensives against enemy outposts were continued "satisfactorily," the navy said, with several enemy positions surrounded.

Text Of Communique

The text of Navy Communique No. 250:

"South Pacific (all dates are East Longitude)

"1. On January 11 during the morning, an enemy plane dropped five bombs on United States positions in the area southwest of the airfield on Guadalcanal Island Casuaties were one killed and several wounded.

"2. On January 13 a force of Marauder medium bombers (Martin B-26) with Airacobra (Bell P-39) and Lightning (Lockheed P-38) escort bombed the Japanese airfield at Munda on New Georgia Island. No air opposition was encountered but anti-aircraft batteries were active. Results of the bombing were not reported. All United States planes returned.

"3. Small-scale offensive operations against the enemy outposts on Guadalcanal are progressing satisfactorily and several small enemy positions have been isolated."

By Charles McMurray

[Associated Press Correspondent]

Headquarters Seventh Air Force in the South Pacific, Jan. 13—Brig. Gen. Laverne G. Saunders, who led six bombing raids on Japanese ships and bases in the Solomon Islands, and met fighter opposition in each raid, believes a day and night shelling he underwent at Guadalcanal was the worst experience he had in more than five months in that area.

"I wouldn't want to go through another night like that," said the general, who has just come out of the Solomons for the first time since he entered that battle area in July.

30 Jap Bombers Overhead

"We had just returned from raiding Buka (on the northern tip of Bougainville Island), where we hit two Jap transports. Coming over Guadalcanal, we saw our own destroyers firing their anti-aircraft guns.

"I was afraid they might be mistakenly shooting at us. Then I saw thirty Jap bombers overhead. They dropped a string of bombs but missed the Guadalcanal landing strip, so we landed and they left. This was about 12.30 P. M.

Millimeter Mike Opens Fire

"We thought that would be all for the day, but the Japs came over again. We dove into a bomber crater which was covered by a few palm tree trunks.

"The trunks seemed to be too widely spaced, so we pulled them closer together. The raiders succeeded in damaging the field runway.

"Then wham! At 6 P. M. old Millimeter Mike (a Jap 75-mm. field-gun) started shelling the field and everybody hit the fox holes again. They dumped bombs on us all night and kept at least two bombers overhead at all times.

"At 1 A. M. all hell broke loose! Two enemy battleships and some cruisers began working us over. Let Burroughs tell you about that."

Lieut. Hulbert Burroughs, of Los Angeles, son of the writer Edgar Rice Burroughs, laughed and said, "That night I jumped into the garbage dump."

General Saunders continued the narrative:

"There were two atheists in nearby fox holes. Pretty soon one of them yelled to the other in a fox-hole fifty feet away, 'Brother, do you see the light?'

"'Not yet,' the other atheist shouted back.

"A little later the first man yelled again, "Brother, do you see the light now?'

"Just Stick Your Head Out"

"Then somebody in my fox hole shouted, 'Just stick your head out of this hole and you'll see plenty of light.'

"The shelling continued until dawn. It was a tough night.

"People who read about a shelling don't think much of it, but those who have gone through such a shelling don't want any part of it."

Saunders, star football tackle at West Point, from which he graduated in 1928, and later a plebe and line coach at the school, yesterday wore for the first time the star of a brigadier general.

First To Sight Jap Squadron

His bombing squadron, which he led as a colonel, was the first to sight a Jap force of forty or more ships trying to reinforce Guadalcanal troops, and gave the warning which led to the Japanese rout in the November 13-15 battle off Guadalcanal.

He participated in the November 13 morning aerial bombing raid in which the crippled Kongo-class enemy battleship and other Jap vessels were sent to the bottom.

OUR BOMBERS HIT FOE HARD ON NEW GUINEA

Raid Madang, Finschhafen, Lae and Salamaua

AT UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Thursday, Jan. 14 (AP)—Allied bombers ranged far, raiding Madang, Finschhafen, Lae and Salamaua, General Douglas MacArthur's noon communiqué reported today. All the raided points are in New Guinea.

At Madang, an Allied heavy unit bombed the airdrome and town. Buildings were strafed and bombed at Finschhafen.

At Lae, where the Japanese paid with 138 planes and at least three transports for their attempt to send reinforcements there last week, a series of attacks was made. Heavy and medium bombers and attack planes, covered by fighters, bombed the airdrome, harbor installations, stores and barges. They started large fires. Supply dumps and barges were strafed along the shore.

Attack planes again swept over the trail south from Salamaua to Komiatum.

Attempts to eliminate the last Japanese from the Papuan peninsula at Sanananda were slowed up by heavy rains causing a quagmire.

Marine Takes Wife: Romance In South Seas

Young Pharmacist Twice Saves Girl's Life, so Chief Permits Their Marriage

By Eugene Burns

ON A SOUTH SEAS ATOLL, Jan. 3 (Delayed) (AP).—This small Marine-occupied island close to the Solomons is a place to dream about, as any marine will plainly tell you. Its whereabouts cannot be disclosed, for military reasons and also because the marines wouldn't like to have any fresh-water recruits cut in.

When our Catalina flying boat taxied to the native village half the 130 peanut-brown islanders flocked out in outriggers to help transfer food to shore for the detachment, which arrived here on Nov. 18. First alongside was Roa, the village chief, riding an outrigger built upon a wrecked Japanese plane pontoon.

Next came a marine with a pretty native girl named Misiana. She wanted to climb into the plane with the marine, a pharmacist's mate second class, and when told to return to the village she cried.

The Story

The story of the girl's devotion—how the marine saved her from death and how the king chief permitted their marriage—was told by bearded Lieutenant Emmet N. Carter, twenty-seven years old, of Canton, Okla., in command.

"The natives were friendly at the outset," he said, "but I knew that this very friendliness might provoke trouble and perhaps wholesale murder. The chiefs realized this, too, and within two days gathered for a conference. One of the lesser chiefs translated in missionary-taught English. (There is a Seventh Day Adventist Church with services twice daily and three times on Sunday.)

"The most important point agreed upon was the relations between the marines and the women.

The Rules

"They decided: First, a marine must promise to marry a girl before he can flirt with her and offer her his cigarettes (they all smoke); second, upon her acceptance of his proposal he must get the chiefs' approval; third, he must get her parents' consent; fourth, he must give the parents £5 ($16.50); fifth, no marine can take his wife to the mainland should he decide to return thereto.

"Upon our arrival Misiana had an infected foot, which was terribly swollen, and a high fever. Our pharmacist tended her carefully and cured her infection. As a result, the village took it for granted that they would become man and wife.

"The young marine, in accordance with the chiefs' rulings, immediately got the girl's permission, and then the chiefs', but the girl's parents refused. The village resented their denial, and the chief hid the girl in another village, thinking she would forget her infatuation. Not so. She brewed a poisonous drink and drank it.

"Native doctors were called in. Misiana was placed in a darkened hut, and while she groaned and twisted with pain these native doctors burned her body with the glowing ends of pointed sticks to drive out the evil within her.

The Rescue

"Meanwhile, the pharmacist's mate was told of the girl's illness and he hurried to her and found the native doctors huddled around the girl.

"He asked the chief to command every one to leave the hut and then gave her an emetic of warm soy water. She became better almost immediately after the emetic took effect, and he nursed her back to health.

"The chief thereupon pronounced: 'This girl was dead. You gave her life. She is yours. The parents do not have control over her.'

"The marine, mindful of the parents' wrath which might lead to his murder, sought them out. They consented this time, and he paid them $16.50. There was rejoicing throughout the village."

65,000th Deck Landing

[By the Associated Press]

Somewhere in the South Pacific Jan. 12 (Delayed) — The scout bomber pulled up to a stop on its carrier today, presumably ending just another routine mission, but as the pilot, Lieut. (j. g.) George A. Kiewet, of San Diego, stepped to the deck, he was greeted with loud, long cheers.

Ordered below to clean up and report back to the deck, Kiewet was unaware he had made history. He soon was enlightened, however, for on his return topside he found the carrier's entire complement lined up to present a huge cake to him.

The 65,000th Landing

The gift commemorated the sixty-five thousandth landing made aboard the ship.

The carrier's present skipper made the five thousandth landing, and its executive officer the four thousandth. Sixty-five thousand is believed to be the greatest number of deck landings ever made aboard a carrier of any navy.

Kiewet, a graduate of the Naval Flying School at Jacksonville, Fla., came aboard his present ship last September. The historic landing was his twenty-third on the deck of the carrier.

Pearl Harbor Hero Sets Pace

[By the Associated Press]

Somewhere in New Guinea, Jan. 12 (Delayed) — Capt. Thomas Lynch, of Catasauqua, Pa.—quiet-spoken, smiling and as Irish as his name—is the ace of American fighter pilots in this area.

An air force tabulation today credited Lynch with downing eight Japanese planes, top number for any of the list of flyers who have been striking at the enemy from Australian and New Guinea bases.

Two Zeros Same Day

Lynch added two Zeros to his tally December 27 to outstrip Lieut. George S. Welch, P-40 Warhawk pilot who has shot down seven.

Welch first won fame in Honolulu, his plane there being one of the few fighters to battle the Japs during the Pearl Harbor attack.

Beginner's Luck —And Pluck

[By the Associated Press]

Somewhere in New Guinea, Jan. 12 (Delayed)—There's beginner's luck in airplane warfare, too.

Lieut. Robert White, of Kansas City, shot down the first and second Zeros he ever saw. On the same mission Lieut. Ernest Harris, of Morristown, Tenn., knocked out three Zeros in his first combat with Japanese planes.

"Beginner's luck," commented both White and Harris, but their teammates said it was pluck, not luck.

AUSTRALIA STAND ON FLYNN NAMING

Hull's Reaction Also Sought by Leader of Opposition to Appointment.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 — (AP) Senator Bridges of New Hampshire, spearheading Republican opposition to making Edward J. Flynn the U. S. minister to Australia, declared today that the Senate should determine whether that country was consulted about the appointment—and whether Secretary of State Hull approved it.

The Senate Foreign Relations committee plans to take up, Friday, the nomination of the Democratic chairman, who has described as "purely politics" the opposition to his selection.

"Insult to Australians"

Mr. Bridges, who told the Senate, Monday, that the appointment was an insult to Australians, informed a press conference he would attack Mr. Flynn with new charges tomorrow. The Senate will confirm or reject the $10,000-a year nomination after receiving the recommendation of its Foreign Relations committee.

Mr. Flynn asserted in a statement today that the charges "will be met and met completely by me." He said he did not expect Mr. Bridges to be "capable of weighing plain evidence as against malicious detraction because of his violent dislike of the administration and his desire to embarrass it."

Sample Block

Mr. Bridges said he hoped the committee would call, besides Mr. Hull, the members of a New York grand jury which exonerated Mr. Flynn of charges that he used New York city-owned paving blocks to improve the courtyard of his estate. A Belgian paving block, neatly tied in purple ribbon, was on Mr. Bridges' desk as he spoke. Seated nearby was Sidney Baron, of New York City, secretary of the committee, to reopen the Flynn case.

Mr. Baron said the Belgian block on Mr. Bridges' desk was dug from Mr. Flynn's estate in the hope the Democratic leader would have the digger arrested, thus bringing the case to trial in Republican Putnam county, N. Y.

Mr. [illegible] Bridges wished to determine whether Australia had been consulted in the selection of a diplomatic representative to succeed the retiring minister, Nelson T. Johnson, observed he thought such consulation was the usual procedure.

Flynn Approved By Melbourne Newspaper

[By the Associated Press]

Melbourne, Jan. 13 — The proposed appointment of Edward J. Flynn as United States Minister to Australia drew from the Melbourne Herald today the editorial comment that "Australia is prepared unquestioningly to accept President Roosevelt's nomination."

The editorial said:

"Australians are sufficiently well versed in the ways of domestic political strife not to allow their judgment to be influenced by the clamor raised in some quarters in America over President Roosevelt's nomination of Edward J. Flynn as Ambassador (sic) to Australia.

Accept 'Unquestioningly'

"Australia is prepared unquestioningly to accept President Roosevelt's nomination, knowing his judgment is of the highest worth, and he could not be conceived of making such an appointment from any but the best and most carefully considered motives."

The paper said the only regret Australia could entertain would be if the American "political vendetta" were pressed to such an extent that Flynn came here without the confidence that he had the full support of all parties in his duties as representative of the United States.

Source Yields Many Great Men

"The field from which American Ambassadors are chosen is always a wide one, and some of its greatest Ambassadors come, like Flynn, straight out of the hurly-burly of domestic politics," the Herald said.

"In the tradition of his predecessors, Mr. Roosevelt does not allow himself to be cramped by the timidities characteristic of the older bureaucracies. His ambassadors abroad are men of his own personal choosing, men whose capabilities he knows and trusts, who were selected for the special jobs for which he believes they are eminently suited.

"Australia will greatly benefit to have a man who carries so high a recommendation as the President's personal selection and who stands so close to the ear of the great leader of the nation on which we depend and must continue to depend for so much."

15 Japs For Each Yank

By William Hipple

[Associated Press Correspondent]

On The Western Front Of Guadalcanal, Dec. 30 (Delayed)—American patrols have killed an average of fifteen Japanese to each one of our men lost in the last two weeks in a series of bitter actions in the soggy jungles.

But there is a slow, difficult fight ahead before Guadalcanal is wiped clean of Japanese. This is the inescapable conclusion reached after three days at the fighting fronts five miles west of Henderson Field.

"It is just a question of time," said Maj. Gen. Millard F. Harmon, commanding general of the United States army forces in the South Pacific.

May Take Months

He intimated it may be a matter of months—not days, not years.

"I don't worry about any offensive effort as far as the Japanese on Guadacanal are concerned," the general said. "It is a matter of cleaning them out."

CHINESE WIN BASE IN HONAN PROVINCE

Sinyang, Important Japanese Center Since 1939, Regained in Wide Offensive

OTHER VICTORIES LISTED

British Bombers Range Far Into Burma to Attack Bases, Ships and Trains

CHUNGKING, China, Jan. 13 (AP)—Sinyang, important Japanese base in Southern Honan Province on the Peiping-Hankow railway, has been recaptured by the Chinese, the Chinese High Command announced tonight. This was considered the most significant Chinese victory in months in the Central China war theatre.

Sinyang, a key point in the Japanese defense in Southern Honan, has been a base for their operations since 1939 and a favorite starting point for numerous "mopping-up" expeditions.

JAN 14 1943

The communiqué said the Chinese attacked the city on the evening of Jan. 9, and at dawn the next day one column penetrated the west gate. Severe street fighting ensued.

"Up to the evening of Jan. 10 more than 300 Japanese were killed in the city in addition to 200 in the suburbs," the communiqué added. "The Chinese now are in complete possession of the city and its environs."

Other Victories in Honan

The High Command's communiqué also reported the recapture of Hwangchwan, east of Sinyang, in a battle in which 600 Japanese were slain.

The Chinese High Command said that Kushih, about thirty-six miles northeast of Shangcheng, and other points in Eastern Honan had been recaptured. The recapture of Shangcheng was announced Monday.

The High Command's communiqué said that advancing Chinese were closing in on enemy positions in the direction of Kwangchuan and Kwangshan after successful counter-attacks.

It was also disclosed that more than 6,000 Japanese troops, based at Yitu in Shantung Province, began an attack on Chinese positions Thursday, but met strong resistance.

Japanese troops moving eastward out of Hopeh Province toward Central Anwhei Province continued their advance after fighting Thursday, the communiqué said.

It also reported renewed fighting in Western Yunnan, near the Burma border, where the Japanese attacked Mengma Friday. They encountered Chinese resistance and fighting is continuing.

British Bombers Range Far Into Burma Unchallenged

By the Associated Press.

NEW DELHI, India, Jan. 13.—British bombers ranged far into Burma yesterday without encountering air opposition from the Japanese and attacked railway transportation and river and coastal shipping, a British communique said today.

Two villages on Akyab Island were bombed by fighter-escorted Blenheims, it was reported, and low-flying fighters machine-gunned railway buildings and rolling stock in the Shweho district of Central Burma.

The fighters strafed enemy river craft on the Chindwin and Irrawaddy Rivers and in the Rathedaung area, 25 miles north of Akyab, and sampans carrying supplies near the Burma coast south of Akyab were hit and damaged, the communique said.

New Chinese Envoy to Russia

P. S. Foo, Former Foreign Affairs Vice-Minister, Is Ambassador

CHUNGKING, Jan. 13 (AP)—P. S. Foo, former Vice-Minister of Foreign Affairs, has been appointed Ambassador to Russia, it was announced today. He succeeds Shao Li-tze, who resigned and recently returned to Chungking. Foo was the principal drafter of the Chinese Civil Code.

U-boat Activity Decreasing In Trinidad Area

Naval Blows Effective But Job Still Ahead, Says Admiral.

By Robert N. Sturdevant

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, Dec. 31 (Delayed) (AP)—American naval counter-blows have made enemy submarine operations in this U-boat "hot spot" of the western hemisphere increasingly hazardous, but it is a continuing battle and much remains to be done.

This is the opinion of Rear Admiral J. B. Olendorf, commanding the Trinidad sector of the Caribbean Sea frontier.

"This has been one of the hottest spot for subs in the whole western hemisphere," the admiral said. "But for the last couple of months it has been relatively quiet. It isn't because we've licked the submarines, but they have moved elsewhere, probably operating on shorter lines along the African coast waiting for the ships to come to them."

99-Year Lease

The Port of Spain base is one of the Caribbean bastions acquired on a 99-year lease from the British in the famous 50-destroyer deal of 1941. At that time the Navy obtained 12 square miles on the harbor, where since has risen a sizeable naval opearting base.

There is also an Army establishment here under the command of Major General H. C. Pratt, charged with the defense of the Island of Trinidad and other parts of the sector including St. Lucia and Antigua.

General Pratt and Admiral Olendorf call themselves the "service twins" and they take pride in the cooperation which exists between them.

"If people want to," Admiral Olendorf said, "they can make any kind of a command work."

Olendorf commands both Army and Navy aircraft in any operations exclusive of an attack on the base and island.

The Navy is charged with the supply, repair and support of forces based on this area. It also directs British naval craft for local defense, under the command of Commodore Philip A. Phillips of the Royal Navy.

Picturesque Harbor

The picturesque harbor of Port of Spain, surrounded by the green highland of Trinidad proper and numbers of small islands, is exceedingly well-protected and possesses tremendous anchorage facilities.

Currently the Navy employs between 7,000 and 8,000 native laborers in addition to some American skilled workmen. At one time both the Army and Navy had more than 20,000 working on their establishments. And the work still goes on.

"I think the native population has been very glad to have us here," Olendorf said, adding that in many cases employment by the United States government had meant increased income to them.

On the other hand, the admiral continued, the drain on Trinidad's labor supply, which heretofore had been paid on a lower scale, necessarily had affected the island's economy, particularly the sugar plantations where planters were forced to bid for their labor from a higher-priced market as a result of the government work.

American mines to the United States and Canada.

Admiral Olendorf, 55-year-old native of Riverside, Calif., has commanded the Trinidad sector for the last six months. Previously he had spent four months in Curacao, which, with British and Dutch Guiana, are included in the Trinidad protective area.

Served in World War

Although not a pilot, the naval commander has been interested in aviation since 1911 and was in charge of an air base in France during the first World war. Most of his career he has spent as a sea-going officer.

General Pratt came to Trinidad in January, 1942, from Baltimore where he commanded the 3rd Corps area. He is an airman.

Island's Economy Disturbed

On the other hand the Admiral continued, the drain on Trinidad's labor supply, which heretofore had been paid on a lower scale, necessarily had affected the island's economy, particularly the sugar plantations where planters were forced to bid for their labor from a high-priced market as a result of the government work.

At one time the Trinidad economy was based largely on sugar and cocoa production, but this has given way to oil refining and the production of asphalt from a pitch lake in the island's southern sector. Much bauxite, the ore from which aluminum is produced, also is trans-shipped here from South

Nazis Seeking Release Of Armistice Group

Diplomats and Other Nationals in France Seized as Hostages in Effort to Free Commission in North Africa.

By Wade Werner

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP)—Germany is trying to force the release of its captured Armistice commission in North Africa—by seizing as hostages the American diplomats and other nationals in France.

Under Guard of Storm Troopers

The State Department disclosed this today in announcing "the German government has now assumed complete jurisdiction over the American group and is taking them to Germany under guard of German SS troops."

The Americans—totaling about 140 diplomats, newspaper correspondents, Red Cross workers and others—were caught in France last November by the break of diplomatic relations with Vichy.

The Department said its prompt proposal to exchange French officials held here for the American group detained in France had met with an unfavorable response.

"The answer as reported by the Swiss government," acting as a neutral intermediary, the announcement explained, "was that no consideration would be given to the departure of the American officials from France until information was furnished about the German Armistice Commission in Africa and the German consul in Algiers.

"The requested information is being gathered for transmission through the customary channels. However, the American government does not consider that this information about German nationals has any relation to the question of the exchange of French and American personnel."

It was not specified whether the unfavorable response had come directly from the German government through the Swiss or from the Vichy government, officials later explained the demand for "information" as to the captured Germans came from Vichy.

Vichy Mouthpiece of Berlin

That Vichy was acting as Berlin's mouthpiece was a natural assumption, but it became more obvious when the Germans posted a guard of SS troops around the Americans interned at Lourdes, France, and made preparations to transport them to Germany.

Germany thus has confronted the United States with the choice of releasing the captured armistice commission, the German consul in Algiers, and possibly other Germans in North Africa, or allowing the American group from France to remain indefinitely interned in Germany.

The United States has interned at Hershey, Pa., some of the French officials formerly assigned to the embassy in Washington or to consular posts. Others technically liable to internment were left at liberty when the break came with Vichy, and still others were released after brief internment at Hershey. The latter, the state department disclosed, "have offered their services in the military effort of the United Nations against the Axis."

Thus the United States would not be in a position to trade the whole French group here for the American group seized in France, even if Germany agreed to accept Frenchmen in exchange for Americans; for this would mean surrendering into Axis hands individuals who have come over into the United Nations camp.

The state department did not indicate what attitude it might take if the German government continued to insist, through Vichy, on the exchange of Germans in Africa for Americans seized in France.

The armistice commission comprised German members in North Africa of the body set up by France and Germany in 1940 to carry out the terms of the French-German armistice.

BEDAUX SEIZED IN AFRICA FOR NAZI DEALINGS

The Author of 'Efficiency System' Once Friendly With Duke of Windsor.

CALLED LABOR'S ARCH FOE

Hull Reveals American Engineer's Arrest on a Charge of Trading With the Enemy.

Washington, Jan. 13 (A. P.).—Secretary of State Hull disclosed today that Charles Bedaux, American industrial engineer, known as the author of an "efficiency system" for industrial labor, had been arrested in North Africa on a charge of trading with the enemy.

In answer to press conference questions Mr. Hull said that news of Bedaux's arrest had come to him but that he was not informed of the details.

Bedaux came into news prominence in 1937 when it was disclosed that he was arranging the details of an American tour which the Duke of Windsor was planning to make. Windsor subsequently dropped the idea of the visit.

Leaders of organized labor were especially critical of Bedaux whose system is termed the "stretch-out" in union circles Francis J. Gorman, president of the United Textile Workers, called Bedaux "that archenemy of labor."

In calling off the visit, the Duke said there had been "grave misconceptions" of his motives.

Windsor married his American wife, the former Wallis Warfield, in Bedaux's French home.

His Links Here Severed.

In New York, Albert Raymond, president of the Bedaux company, said that Bedaux had not been associated with the management of the Bedaux companies in the United States and Canada for more than five years.

Mr. Raymond said that when Bedaux left this country for Europe he made an agreement with the American companies surrendering and severing his connection with the operation and management of the American companies.

"We have had no knowledge whatsoever of his activities," Mr. Raymond said. "Mr. Bedaux's financial interests in America are under complete Government control."

His Fame Backhanded.

Charles Bedaux was widely known in industrials circles for many years before his association with the Duke and Duchess of Windsor gave him international fame. It was rather backhanded fame; Mr. Bedaux, merely by being who he was, disrupted plans of the Duke and Duchess to visit the United States in 1937. The Duke and Duchess did not come, explicitly, because the proposed sponsorship by Mr. Bedaux of their trip set American labor's hair on end.

Bedaux was a great friend of the Windsors at that time; they were married at his chauteau in France. Afterward he said he was as good a friend as ever, but on this the Windsors did not publicly comment. Mr. Bedaux also said—in recent years often and with a kind of plaintiveness—that he really wasn't a Fascist, whatever people thought.

He came to the United States from France almost forty years ago, and his first job was as a sandhog in an East River tunnel. He graduated from this almost at once and began the system of labor management which made him a fortune—and led the Baltimore Federation of Labor to sum up what organized labor thought of him by the assertion that he is "the arch-enemy of organized labor."

The Bedaux System.

The Bedaux system, which before the war was being explained internationally by various Bedaux corporations, was intended to increase industrial efficiency. Bedaux engineers went into plants, studied sections and individual operations with stop-watches and set up "B" units for the industry. According to the New Statesman and Nation, which once tried to explain the affair in simple words, a "B" unit is, "in effect, the amount of any given type of work which, according to the Bedaux experts, a worker ought to be able to do in a minute, after allowance has been made for the necessary 'rest,' or discontinuity of effort—an allowance varying with the character of the job."

This "scientific" method, as applied, enraged labor for a variety of reasons, not least because of its tendency to reduce labor to a purely mechanical place in production. There was a provision for excess pay to those who produced more than the average number of "B" units, but this was complicated. Labor felt that the system deprived it of human rights, including the rights to bargain; that it was geared to the early exhaustion and discarding of individual workers; that it destroyed individuality.

These objections by labor, and the many others which arose, kept Bedaux's friends the Windsors from making their projected tour. They did not keep Bedaux from making a very ample fortune, or from building up an enormous international system of companies. The objections did lead, in 1915 when Franklin D. Roosevelt was Assistant Secretary of the Navy, to an order barring from participation in Navy building of any firm using a "speed-up" system which was carefully described to cover the Bedaux system.

After the war started, Bedaux was not frequently in the news. When France was being over-run, the American Embassy for a time occupied the chateau in Monts where the Duke and Duchess were married. Last fall, there was a report that Bedaux was among the 300 American hostages reported seized in Occupied France by the Nazis.

U-Boat Building Exceeds Toll

By John M. Hightower

[Associated Press Correspondent]

Washington, Jan. 13—The German navy, it was learned on high authority today, is turning out submarines faster than the United Nations can destroy them. This despite the heavy bombing of German factories from British and American bases in England.

At the same time, the United Nations are building cargo and transport ships faster than they are being sunk. They also are building escort and patrol vessels—destroyers, corvettes and subchasers.

Navy's "First Enemy"

The number of enemy submarines operating in the Atlantic at any one time is more than one hundred, which represents possibly from one third to one fourth of their actual sub strength.

This was described by qualified authorities as being among the reasons why the U-boat is considered by the navy to be, in the words of Admiral Harold R. Stark, its "first enemy."

Data Kept Secret

The U-boats became a real headache for the American high command just a year ago when they began sinking ships off the American East Coast.

Much of what is officially known about U-boat operations and our own anti-submarine warfare is restricted information—for instance, the amount of shipping tonnage which the Allied nations are now losing each month and the number of enemy submarines which Allied craft are sinking.

Can't Penetrate Shelters

Bombing raids on submarine bases along the German and French coasts are not too successful. The Germans house their subs in concrete shelters with walls and roofs said to be fifteen feet or more thick and the destructive force of explosions simply does not penetrate to the ships.

Lt. Col. James Roosevelt Wins Navy Cross for Makin Isle Raid

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP).—Lieutenant Colonel James Roosevelt, eldest son of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, was among fifteen members of a Marine Corps raider group named by the Navy today as having received the Navy Cross for a successful attack on Makin Island in the Pacific last August.

The declaration, the Navy said, was awarded to Colonel Roosevelt, then a major, by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief of the Pacific Fleet, on Guadacanal Island in the Solomons last October.

[Lieutenant Colonel Elliott Roosevelt, second son of the President, received the Distinguished Flying Cross on Dec. 27. He commands a photographic unit of Major General James H. Doolittle's 12th United States Air Forces in North Africa.]

Others who received the Navy Cross from Admiral Nimitz last month for "extraordinary heroism" in the Makin Island raid, included Sergeant Robert V. Allard, missing in action, son of Mrs. Frieda Allard, 3708 Sixty-eighth Street, Woodside, Queens, N. Y.

Details Of Longest Paratroop Raid Told

JAN 14 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Santa Monica, Cal., Jan. 13 — Cheers from thousands of Douglas Aircraft Company workers followed the reading yesterday of a letter from Lieut. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, in which he told how forty-four Douglas C-47 transport planes whisked paratroops 1,500 miles, from Great Britain to an airdrome thirty-five miles southwest of Tunis, in North Africa, in the longest paratroop attack of the war, with no stopovers.

Their perfectly timed arrival resulted in the capture of the airport, which previously had been bombed and strafed, the letter said. Not a single transport was lost.

Nazis Flew Only 85 Miles

"No parachute attack in history has been made over more than a fraction of this distance," General Arnold wrote, adding, by contrast, that the Nazis had to fly only eighty-five miles from Greece to Crete.

"The dropping of troops had to be timed to the minute with the attacks made by bombers and fighters. Some of these planes, incidentally, had arrived only a short time before from America.

"Today We Are Strong"

"During the past year the army air forces have assumed the offensive everywhere, and in this offensive the C-47s are invaluable. A year ago we were weak, today we are strong.

"The transformation from weakness to strength came as a result of the loyalty and zeal of the men and women on the production lines."

Japs 'Blew Up' In Sea Fight

[By the Associated Press]

San Francisco, Jan. 13—"They just blew up all over the place!"

Those were the words Capt. Willard A. Kitts 3d, used to picture the destruction of a Jap invasion force off the coast of Guadalcanal.

It all happened in about fifteen minutes at about midnight, November 30.

The Japs Captain Kitts declared, lost eight destroyers, two cruisers, and four transports.

Lost His Own Ship

Captain Kitts lost his own ship, the heavy cruiser Northampton, but not until his gunnery crews had contributed to the tremendous destruction handed the enemy. His men got at least two Jap destroyers.

(The navy Monday night disclosed loss of the Northampton, two other cruisers, the aircraft carrier Hornet and seven destroyers in the Solomon area between October 26 and December 1.

"Wonderful Spi. it"

"My most lasting impression was the wonderful spirit of my men," he said. "They are beyond all praise. They are cheerful—witty—you can't get them downhearted."

He said he believed everyone able to leave the ship was saved. Part of this was attributed to the fact that "sharks operate by daylight."

He mentioned, too, the miraculous escape of a wounded seaman when his big ship was flaming to destruction and ammunition was exploding so that the length and breadth of the vessel looked like a great field of fireworks.

The severely wounded seaman (Captain Kitts did not know his name) was in a watch loft high in the mainmast. Shipmates reached him and were able to get him to a slightly lower level. He was given an opiate, but even this helped little.

He demanded of those with him that if the ship was abandoned he be left there, as he couldn't bear the pain of being moved another inch.

Hull Described As Figurehead By Hugh Grant

Ex-Envoy to Thailand Says Welles RunsDepartment, and 'It Needs New Blood'

JAN 14 1943

LOUISVILLE, Jan. 13 (AP).—Terming the State Department "an antiquated organization" with "its blood pressure very low," Hugh Grant, former American Minister to Albania and Thailand, told a Kiwanis Club gathering here today that Under Secretary of State Sumner Welles has "virtually supplanted" Secretary of State Cordell Hull in foreign relations.

Mr. Grant, now an accredited lecturer for the War Department, charged that the State Department is controlled by a "powerful group of foreign-service career officers" under the leadership of Mr. Welles.

"It is a well known fact that Mr. Cordell Hull stands very high in the esteem of the American people," Mr. Grant said, adding: "It is all the more tragic, therefore, that this statesman, through no fault of his own, has no actual control over the organization of which he is the head.

"He has been virtually supplanted by a subordinate career officer, Mr. Sumner Welles, the Under Secretary of State."

Mr. Grant, who served in Thailand during the conflict between that country and French Indo-China, said he had not been invited to make a report to the President since being recalled. He said Secretary Hull was "powerless in the matter."

Mr. Grant said he should have been invited to report to the President through the State Department "especially on this occasion," since he had been an observer of the tense political situation in the Far East and had observed at close hand Japanese Fifth Column activity.

"Some time ago an active campaign was launched by this group (career officers) to eliminate from our foreign service all but a very few of the top-ranking officers who are not career men," he said.

Explaining the State Department's job in war time as that of preparing for the peace that will follow, he said: "The State Department today is an antiquated organization. Its blood pressure is very low. . . . It needs new blood. It is imperative if we are to win the peace after the war."

British Cargo Ship Torpedoed

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 13 (AP)—Striking a small British cargo ship in the Indian Ocean, enemy torpedoes caused the forward half of the vessel to break away and sink, leaving the undamaged stern afloat, survivors related here.

The ship's third officer said the crew was in a lifeboat, "debating whether or not to go back aboard the stern and try to bring her in, when Jerry settled the question for us with another torpedo."

The sinking, which occurred late in October, was announced by the navy today. The entire crew, except one man drowned in abandoning ship, were rescued after six days by a British patrol vessel.

Churchill Asked To Visit Chicago

Chicago, Jan. 18 (AP)—Chicago's Union League Club wants Winston Churchill to visit the mid-West and project his personality "directly to the people of this war production area."

Joseph H. Finn, chairman of the club's special events committee, said today a letter inviting the British Prime Minister to be a guest of the club had been sent by its president, Albion C. Cronkhite.

Hornet Carried Tokyo Raiders, Japs Assert 1943

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Jan. 13—A Japanese broadcast asserted today that the United States aircraft carrier Hornet, identified Monday by the American navy as the aircraft carrier sunk October 26 in the battle of the Santa Cruz Islands, was the vessel which carried the planes that raided Tokyo last April 18.

The broadcast, beamed for Japanese communities in East Asia, said, without giving the authority, that it was "disclosed" that the Hornet "brought the North American bombers during the attack on Japan." The broadcast was reported by Government monitors to the Office of War Information.

"Revenge For Raid"

The sinking of the Hornet was "revenge for the raid," the Tokyo radio said, adding that "our imperial air units have been concentrating on this ship."

OWI commented that Tokyo in this way sought to exploit the Washington announcement of the Hornet's end.

"Can Never Be Forgotten"

Tokyo also gave some indication of how deeply the Tokyo attack, led by Brig. Gen. (now Maj. Gen.) James H. Doolittle, rankles the Japanese, OWI said. The broadcast said the date of April 18 "can never be forgotten by the 100,000,000 Japanese people."

This broadcast was not on any program beamed to the United States, the monitors said.

CANADA REPORTS 7,243 CASUALTIES IN WAR TO DEC. 25

715 Men Are Listed as Killed in Enemy Action.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 13—(AP) Canadian army casualties from the beginning of the war to last Dec. 25 totalled 7,243, it was learned today at the Defense department.

A summary of casualties shows:

Fatal casualties, enemy action, 715.

Deaths, all other causes, overseas, 730.

Deaths, all causes, in Canada, 826.

Missing, 606.

Prisoners of war, including interned, 3,570.

Wounded, non-fatal, enemy action, 787.

The official statement did not break down the casualties to show the numbers which were due to the main actions in which Canadian troops have taken part so far—the defense of Hongkong in December, 1941, and the attack on Dieppe last Aug. 19.

Almost all the casualties in prisoners, killed, and wounded occurred in those two actions, with Dieppe accounting for most of those killed in action.

An unofficial tabulation made from published casualty lists of the Dieppe losses shows 515 killed, 570 wounded, 720 missing and 1,071 prisoners.

To date 1665 men have been reported killed at Hongkong and some 1,600 are known to be prisoners, 87 are listed as missing and 17 as having died of wounds. The total Canadian force at Hongkong was 1,985 officers and men.

Strikes Peril 2/3 Of Canada's Steel

Ottawa, Jan. 13 (AP).—A strike by the CIO United Steel Workers of America that has closed one of Canada's huge steel producing plants and is scheduled to close another tomorrow, threatened to spread tonight to four smaller steel companies at Trenton, N. S.

Five thousand men struck yesterday at the big Dominion Steel and Coal Corp. at Sydney, N. S. and 5,000 more voted to strike at 7 A. M. tomorrow at the Algoma Steel Corp, in Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario. Steel control authorities here estimated these two strikes would cut off nearly two-thirds of Canada's steel production.

The unions are protesting the majority report of the Barlow Steel Commission, which recommended no change in basic wages of 43½ cents an hour at Sydney and 45½ cents at Sault Ste. Marie. The unions demand 55 cents an hour. (Minimum wage in CIO steel contracts in the U. S. is 78 cents an hour.)

GARSON NEW PREMIER OF MANITOBA PROVINCE

WINNIPEG, Jan. 13 — (AP) — Stuart S. Garson, unanimously named leader of the Manitoba coalition government last month, will be sworn in as Premier tomorrow following the resignation of John Bracken, now leader of the Progressive Conservative party, government officials announced today.

Mr. Bracken, Premier since 1922, will leave soon to confer with Progressive Conservative members at Ottawa. He is expected to seek a seat in the House of Commons at an early date.

JAPANESE SUPPLIES GOOD, HOOVER SAYS

In Survey of Home Fronts, the Former President Sees That of Pacific Foe Stronger

BUT OPEN TO SEA ATTACK

JAN 14 1943

He Renews Plea That We Try to Feed Nazi-Occupied Lands of Europe Through Blockade

Following is the third of a series of articles by former President Hoover on home fronts and their effect on global strategy. The series is distributed by The Associated Press.

By HERBERT HOOVER

Japan is an entirely different problem from the European Axis. Her home front at this time is the reverse of the European home fronts, for her civil population is very well supplied with necessities and generally in high spirits. She is still in the ascendant stages of total war.

Japan also differs from our European enemies on the military front. The European Axis is depending mainly upon land war for victory. Japan's ultimate destiny depends mainly upon sea warfare. Germany's conquests are over land, and Japan's are basically conquests over sea.

Japan with Manchuria is normally about self-supporting as to food. Her conquests have given her far more rubber, oil, tin, lead, zinc, copper and hardening metals, rice and vegetable oils than she needs. She has a possible shortage in iron. Her people are far better off in standard of living than before Pearl Harbor.

The spirit of her people, depressed during some years by costly and inconclusive fighting in Asia, has been given a fresh impulse by apparent victory over the white races.

Her Ocean Lines Vulnerable.

Her great weakness is that all her conquests are like beads on a string. And the string is her merchant marine and its air and naval protection. Through that alone can she, for the present, maintain her garrisons and her many supplies to support the home front. If that merchant ship lifeline should be cut by adequately based airplanes, all the southern arms of the octopus would be paralyzed.

The Japanese airplane, ship and tank output is not one-fourth what we can produce. Her ships, planes and men are under steady attrition from the British and ourselves. With every growth of our air and sea power and our advancing bases, this destruction becomes more severe. Merchant shipping is the Achilles heel of her "co-prosperity order" in Asia. And if her sea transport be steadily crippled, she will start degeneration in munitions and raw materials on the home front.

The Axis armies have overrun twelve independent democratic countries and part of Russia. Over 200,000,000 people have been ravished, their men murdered, their women and children starved.

Many of these countries have always lived partly upon food and feed for their animals imported from overseas. As the result of the blockade, they have had to slaughter their animals down to those that could be fed. Their ground crops are decreasing. Their fertilizers have greatly diminished. Their agricultural machinery is run down. Each Winter the food is less and less. Theirs is not food shortage. They are starving

The "normal" ration of meats and fats combined in these countries ranges from two to four pounds per month. Compare this with the American consumption

[illegible] month

I have [illegible] Belgian industrial areas [illegible] shows that 35 per cent of the children are suffering from scurvy, rickets and tuberculosis. Most of the city schools are closed because the children are too weak to do their work. The mortality is appalling. The same stories come from other cities.

He Wants Blockade Opened

During the last eighteen months I have repeatedly insisted that the blockade should be opened to allow an experiment in supplies for their soup kitchens which feed the women, children and unemployed men.

I proposed that the experiment should be conducted by the neutral governments of Europe after agreements with the German that both the imports and the native food should be unmolested and that the whole should be supervised by agents of these neutral nations.

Six months ago, under the pressures of the Turkish, Swedish and Swiss Governments, this plan was adopted for Greece. Greek lives are being saved, although the amounts are insufficient. Our State Department now reports that the Germans do not benefit and our Government encourages support to the Greek committee. The arguments against my proposals have now proved to be wrong by the Greek experience.

Is there now any reason why the Swedes and Swiss should not be allowed also to save the children in Belgium, Holland, Norway and Poland? They are willing to undertake it; they have ships that cannot be placed in Allied war service. They can get food in South America. Most of the invaded countries have financial resources in the hands of their exiled governments to pay for this food.

The Germans can save their people from famine by surrender. These people are helpless.

Food for the small democracies has a bearing on the whole future of freedom. These people are the only centers in Europe of fidelity to democracy. It is not a pleasant prospect if they are to bring up a generation of children stunted in body and embittered in mind. Nor are promises of food after the war of much avail to people in the cemeteries.

Hitherto this has been considered a problem for British decision. But it is now also an American responsibility, and I dislike to contemplate the verdict of history upon our default in that prime foundation of Christianity—compassion.

ROYALIST PLOT FAILURE SEEN

JAN 14 1943

CBS Correspondent Says Darlan Apparently Refused To 'Play Game'

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Jan. 13 — A French Royalist plot to set up a monarchy in North Africa has failed and some French Royalists have been implicated in the Christmas Eve assassination of Admiral Jean Darlan, Charles Collingwood, CBS correspondent, reported tonight in a broadcast from Algiers.

Collingwood said Darlan apparently was killed because he "refused to play the game" with the Royalists.

Count Of Paris Named

He added the Royalists included men in "high places" in North Africa and they apparently hoped to set up the Count of Paris, who has been in Algiers for some time under an assumed name, as king over a French monarchy in North Africa.

However, Collingwood said, something went wrong and the Count was never proclaimed king.

De Gaulle Adherents Released, Davis Says

Washington, Jan. 13 (AP)—Elmer Davis, Director of War Information, said today that the State Department had received information that all North African sympathizers of the Fighting French leader, Gen. Charles de Gaulle, have been released from jail

Davis said this was true "at least of all persons whom we could identify as de Gaullists, and might not include some de Gaullists who were arrested on other charges, such as violating rationing cards."

Axis Sympathizers In Jail

The State Department memorandum to Davis said the only political prisoners known to be still in jail in North Africa were an estimated 200 Axis sympathizers and some other people who had refused to sign promises not to create trouble.

The report said also that Spanish refugees in North Africa—people who opposed General Franco in the Spanish civil war and fled when Franco won the conflict—were living freely, but in restricted areas, and were not interned as some reports had indicated.

LONDON JAN 13-(AP)-THE CREW OF AN AMERICAN PATROL BOMBER SANK A GERMAN SUBMARINE IN AN ATLANTIC CONVOY BATTLE EARLY IN DECEMBER AND DISCLOSED TODAY THAT IT HAPPENED THE FIRST DAY THEY HAD SIGHTED A SUB IN SIX MONTHS OF PATROL. THEY SAID THEY DESTROYED IT WITH A SINGLE WELL-PLACED DEPTH CHARGE.

PILOT LIEUT.(JG) LOWELL DAVIS, 24, OF VINA, ALA., WHO LED THE CREW OF NINE IN THE ATTACK AGAINST THE SUBMARINE'S GUNFIRE TO A DISTANCE ONLY 35 FEET ABOVE IT, WAS AWARDED THE DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSS.

"WHEN ONLY 35 FEET OVER THE SUB WE LET THE BOMB GO. IT EXPLODED THREE OR FOUR FEET BESIDE THE SUB, AND LIFTED HER OUT OF THE WATER BEFORE SHE SANK. FIVE-FOOT BUBBLES CAME UP AND THEN A FILM OF OIL. FOUR (FIVE MEN CAME UP WHO HELD ONTO FLOATS FOR A WHILE, THEN DISAPP RED."

THE CREW HAD BEEN OUT ALTOGETHER 13 HOURS AND 20 MINUTES. DAVIS, AT THE HELM MOST OF THE TIME, GOT NOTHING TO EAT ALL DAY. BUT LATER HE PLOWED INTO A FRIED CHICKEN DINNER, AND SLEPT 15 HOURS.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, JAN.10-(AP)-REMNANTS OF A

SHATTERED JAPANESE TROOP CONVOY HAVE REACHED LAE ON THE NORTH NEW GUINEA COAST, BUT THE REINFORCEMENTS WERE MADE AT THE COST OF 133 AIRCRAFT DESTROYED, PROBABLY DESTROYED OR DAMAGED AND THREE TROOP-LADEN TRANSPORTS SUNK IN A THREE-DAY RUNNING BATTLE WITH ALLIED BOMBERS AND FIGHTERS, IT WAS ANNOUNCED TODAY.

JAN 14 1943

THE SMASHING BLOW DEALT TO THE ENEMY IN STUBBORN EFFORTS TO REINFORCE THEIR LAE GARRISON WAS DESCRIBED IN AN ALLIED AIR FORCE RELEASE AS THE "BIGGEST, MOST REMARKABLE" OF THE NEW GUINEA CAMPAIGN.

GEN.DOUGLAS MACARTHUR COMMENTED THAT "THE ENEMY'S AIR LOSSES OVER THE LAST THREE DAYS IN THIS AREA MAY BE REGARDED AS SERIOUS."

THE FINAL TOLL OF THE JAPANESE FIGHTING PLANES WHICH SWARMED OUT IN RELAYS TO TRY TO PROTECT THE 10-SHIP ENEMY CONVOY WAS PLACED OFFICIALLY AT 85 PLANES DEFINITELY DESTROYED, 29 PROBABLY DESTROYED AND 19 DAMAGED. IN ADDITION TO THE THREE JAPANESE TRANSPORTS SUNK BY AMERICAN BOMBERS, AT LEAST THREE OTHERS WERE DECLARED TO HAVE BEEN BADLY SMASHED.

JAN 14 1943

TWIN-ENGINED LOCKHEED LIGHTNING FIGHTERS, FAST BECOMING THE SCOURGE OF SOUTHWEST PACIFIC SKIES, WERE CREDITED WITH DESTROYING OR PROBABLY DESTROYING AT LEAST 50 JAPANESE ZERO FIGHTERS, WHILE CURTISS KITTYHAWK P-40S PLAYED AN ALMOST EQUAL PART IN PILING UP THE FANTASTIC AERIAL SCORE.

ALLIED AIR LOSSES WERE NOT REVEALED, BUT A SPOKESMAN DESCRIBED THEM AS NEGLIGIBLE COMPARED TO THOSE OF THE ENEMY.

THE AIR BATTLE OVER THE CONVOY REACHED ITS CRESCENDO ON THE THIRD DAY, FRIDAY, WHEN 58 JAPANESE PLANES WERE PUT OUT OF ACTION, 30 DESTROYED OUTRIGHT.

THROUGHOUT THE THREE FURIOUS DAYS, WHILE FIGHTER PLANES WERE LOCKED IN COMBAT IN THE UPPER AIR, AMERICAN HEAVY FLYING FORTRESS AND LIBERATOR BOMBERS AND THE LIGHTER MARAUDERS, BILLY MITCHELLS AND BEAUFORTS SWEPT IN AGAINST THE CONCENTRATED FIRE OF SIX JAPANESE WARSHIPS TO SPEW THEIR EXPLOSIVES ON THE DODGING, TWISTING CONVOY.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, JAN.13-(AP)-THE [illegible]RY WAS READY TO ATTACK. THERE WERE THE JAPS ON THE OTHER SIDE OF THE STREAM, JUST ACROSS THAT LITTLE BRIDGE.

IN NEW GUINEA THERE ARE FEW BRIDGES, AND THE INFANTRY WAS LUCKY TO HAVE ONE TO CROSS OVER ON.

JAN 14 1943

BUT THE BRIDGE LOOKED UNSAFE TO ONE OF GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S STAFF OFFICERS, COLONEL FRANK S.BOWEN, JR., OF SAN FRANCISCO. WHILE THE ATTACK WAITED, COLONEL BOWEN MOVED FORWARD TO RECONNOITER.

BULLETS FROM JAP SMALL ARMS AND AUTOMATICS STUNG THE EARTH ABOUT HIM. THE FIRE WAS MORE INTENSE THE FARTHER HE WENT.

UNDAUNTED, HE REACHED THE BRIDGE. AS HE HAD FEARED, HE FOUND THAT ONE SPAN OF THE STRUCTURE HAD BEEN BLOWN OUT.

HE ORGANIZED AND PERSONALLY LED AN ENGINEERING DETACHMENT TO REPAIR IT IN THE FACE OF CONTINUED HEAVY ENEMY FIRE.

AS A RESULT OF THIS HEROISM LAST DEC.12 NEAR BUNA, COLONEL BOWEN WAS AWARDED THE DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSS.

OTHER ACTS OF HEROISM WON THE D.S.C. FOR LIEUT.JAMES D. DOUGHTIE, ENGINEERS CORPS, FALMOUTH, MASS.; COLONEL JOHN E. GROSE, INSPECTOR GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT, SUTTON, WEST VIRGINIA; AND COLONEL HORACE HARDING, FIELD ARTILLERY, OF (32 BUELL STREET) PITTSFIELD, MASS.

ALL OF THE ACTIONS OCCURRED NEAR BUNA.

LIEUTENANT DOUGHTIE WAS CITED FOR ACTION DEC.23. WHEN A BRIDGE WAS NEEDED TO PROVIDE FOR PASSAGE OF TANKS INTO ENEMY POSITIONS JAN 14 1943 DOUGHTIE LED HIS PLATOON TO THE SITE SELECTED AND REMAINED THERE DIRECTING THE WORK OF HIS MEN UNTIL THE JOB WAS DONE, ALTHOUGH HE WAS ~~HEROUSLY~~ ~~EXEMPLIFIED~~ CALLED "AN INSPIRATION TO DETERMINED EFFORTS PUT FORTH BY HIS MEN."

COLONEL GROSE ON JAN.2 MADE A PERSONAL RECONNAISSANCE OF HIS SECTOR OF THE AMERICAN LINES NEAR BUNA, JUST PRIOR TO THE FINAL AND SUCCDSSFUL ATTACK ON A DEEPLY ENTRENCHED AND IMPORTANT ENEMY POSITION.

B24KX

THE CITATION SAID HIS ROUTE WAS THROUGH OPEN AREAS KNOWN TO BE COVERED BY ENEMY AUTOMATIC AND SNIPER FIRE. LATER, FROM THE FORWARD COMMAND POST OF THE ATTACKING BATTALION, HE GAVE PERSONAL DIRECTION TO THE ATTACK. WHEN THE COMMANDER OF THE BATTALION BECAME A CASUALTY, COLONEL GROSE ASSUMED COMMAND UNTIL THE ACTION WAS FINISHED.

COLONEL HARDING, DISREGARDING HEAVY FIRE BY JAPANESE DETACHMENTS RESISTING AN AMERICAN INFANTRY ASSAULT THAT HAD PINNED THE JAPS AGAINST THE SEA, CLIMBED A TREE TO DIRECT ARTILLERY FIRE.

THE OFFICER OBSERVING THIS FIRE HAD BEEN WOUNDED IN THE SAME TREE A FEW MINUTES BEFORE THE COLONEL TOOK HIS PLACE.

LATER, COLONEL HARDING VOLUNTEERED TO ASSIST THE REGIMENTAL COMMANDER IN COORDINATING THE INFANTRY ATTACK. UNDER HEAVY HOSTILE FIRE, HE THEN PROCEEDED TO THE FORWARD OUTPOST OF ONE OF THE BATTALIONS TO TAKE INSTRUCTIONS IN PERSON, BECAUSE OF FAILING COMMUNICATIONS.

"THROUGHOUT THE ACTION, HE FREQUENTLY RISKED HIS LIFE, EXPOSING HIMSELF TO ENEMY FIRE OF ALL TIMES IN ORDER TO RESTORE COMMUNICATIONS AND KEEP TROOPS MOVING FORWARD," THE CITATION SAID.

"HIS EXAMPLE WAS AN INSPIRATION TO MEN OF THE COMMAND AND MATERIALLY AIDED THE SUCCESS OF THE ATTACK." JAN 14 1943

ON THE WESTERN FRONT OF GUADALCANAL, DEC 30-(DELAYED)-(AP)- ANOTHER STORY OF AMERICAN COURAGE AND SKILL IN COMBAT CAME OUT OF THE GUADALCANAL JUNGLE TODAY WHEN A MARINE PATROL REPORTED IT HAD KILLED 110 JAPANESE, WHILE THE AMERICAN LOSSES WERE ONLY NINE KILLE AND 17 WOUNDED.

LED BY MAJ.EWART SCOTT LAUE, OF SEATTLE, WASH., A LARGE PATROL STARTED OUT ON THE MORNING OF DEC. 26, ITS OBJECT TO CONTACT THE ENEMY ON THE WESTERN SLOPES OF MOUNT AUSTEN, WHICH IS A PROMINENT FEATURE OF THE DOMINATING PART OF THE WESTERN FRONT.

THEY RAN INTO SNIPERS ALL DAY LONG, AND BIVOUACKED OVERNIGHT. EARLY IN THE MORNING THEY PUSHED ON, BUT RAN INTO HEAVY ENEMY OPPOSITION CONSISTING OF MACHINE-GUN NESTS AND RIFLEMEN IN TREES.

THE JAPANESE POSITION WAS ON A RIDGE BEHIND WHICH LAY A LARGE VALLEY. THE JAPANESE UNDOUBTEDLY WERE PROTECTING A LARGE BIVOUAC AREA.

WHEN THE MAJOR REPORTED THE SITUATION, P-39 FIGHTERS BOMBED AND ARTILLERY WORKED OVER THE JAPANESE.

THE MAJOR KNEW IT WOULD BE SUICIDAL TO STORM THE ENEMY AT THE MOMENT, AND WITHDREW HIS PATROL TO THE BIVOUAC OF THE PRECEDING NIGHT.

THE JAPANESE MISTAKENLY THOUGHT THEY HAD ROUTED THE MARINES IN RETREAT. THEY CHARGED AND THE MARINES BLASTED AWAY WITH MACHINE-GUNS, RIFLE FIRE, AND HAND GRENADES. FEW JAPANESE WERE EVER ABLE TO RETURN TO THEIR POSITIONS.

ANOTHER SMALL MARINE PATROL RETURNED TODAY AFTER KILLING 17 JAPANESE, CAPTURING TWO MACHINE-GUNS, FOUR AUTOMATIC RIFLES, AND BLOWING UP A LARGE AMOUNT OF AMMUNITION.

THIS RAID WAS PLANNED AND LED BY LIEUT.HENRY H.CZESWICK, OF INTERNATIONAL FALLS, MINN., WITH LIEUT.CHARLES PUCKETT, SAN DIEGO, CALIF., SECOND IN COMMAND.

JAN 14 1943

CORP.CALHOUN VESTAL OF WHITEWRIGHT, TEX., KILLED SIX OF THE ENEMY WITH HIS TOMMYGUN, AND PRIVATE H.D.T. SLACK OF TRIPOLI, IOWA, ACCOUNTED FOR FOUR.

CORP. ROBERT VOORHEES, CASCADE, MONT., KILLED TWO BEFORE BEING SLIGHTLY WOUNDED. SERGT.GEORGE JOHNSON, SARDIS, MISS., KILLED THREE.

OTHERS GIVING IMPORTANT AID INCLUDED PRIVATE JAMES H.VARANADO, OSYKA, MISS., AND PRIVATE MICHAEL KONTZ, MILWAUKEE.

ALL THE MEN DIDN'T GET CREDIT FOR KILLING AN ENEMY BECAUSE WHEN TWO HAD TO FIRE AT THE SAME TARGET. NO CREDIT WAS GIVEN FOR "HALF A JAPANESE."

THE PATROL HAD ONLY FOUR SLIGHTLY WOUNDED, AND ALL WERE ABLE TO RETURN TO THEIR OWN BASE UNDER THEIR OWN POWER.

BY WILLIAM HIPPLE

GUADALCANAL, JAN 2-(DELAYED)-(AP)-AMERICAN GROUND FORCES ACCOUNTED FOR 186 KNOWN JAPANESE DEAD AND CAPTURED A NUMBER OF GUNS TODAY WHEN THEY OCCUPIED A STRATEGIC HILL AND CLEANED OUT JAPANESE POCKETS AT THE SOUTHWEST CORNER OF THE ISLAND'S WESTERN FRONT.

(THE NAVY DEPARTMENT IN WASHINGTON REPORTED ON JAN.5 THAT THE HILL HAD BEEN OCCUPIED.)

JAN 14 1943

AN AMERICAN COMBAT PATROL ADVANCED UP THE HEAVILY-JUNGLED HILL UNDER FIRE FROM JAPANESE MACHINE-GUNS, MORTARS AND RIFLES. THE JAPANESE WERE LODGED ON THE REVERSE SLOPE.

THE ACTION WAS DAY-LONG BUT THE U.S. PATROL TOOK THE HILL AND THEN ESTABLISHED A SUBSTANTIAL HOLDING FORCE. ARTILLERY AND MORTARS GAVE THE INFANTRY DETACHMENT EFFECTIVE SUPPORT DURING THE ENGAGEMENT.

THE PATROL CAPTURED A SUBSTANTIAL QUANTITY OF MORTARS, AND LIGHT AND HEAVY MACHINE-GUNS IN THE ADVANCE AND MOPPING-UP OPERATIONS.

U.S. MARINE PATROLS ALSO REPORTED SUCCESS IN OTHER AREAS OF THE FRONT IN CLEANING OUT MACHINE-GUN NESTS AND DUGOUTS.

CAPT.ELLIS WRIGHT OF MIAMI,ARIZ., LED THE FLIGHT, IN WHICH LIEUTS.WILLIAM DAY,JR., OF RED LION,PA., AND JOE LITTLETON OF LEESVILLE,LA., ALSO PARTICIPATED.

"EIGHTEEN TO 25 ZEROS ATTACKED US, AND ALTOGETHER WE GOT 13 OF THEM," HARRIS SAID. "WE LOST ONLY ONE PLANE, AND ITS PILOT PARACHUTED OUT.

"I GOT MY THREE WITHOUT MUCH TROUBLE, ONE AFTER ANOTHER. THERE REALLY WASN'T MUCH TO IT."

BY GLENN BABB

THE GERMAN COMMAND APPARENTLY IS PREPARING THE GERMAN PEOPLE FOR THE ABANDONMENT OF A GREAT PART OF THE SPOILS OF LAST SUMMER'S CAMPAIGN IN RUSSIA. DOCTOR GOEBBELS' PROPAGANDA MACHINE IS ADMITTING THAT THE SITUATION IN THE EAST IS SERIOUS; AN EMINENT MILITARY AUTHORITY STRESSES THE RUSSIAN ADVANTAGE IN NUMBERS AND THE FACT THAT THIS WINTER'S RUSSIAN OFFENSIVE IS OF GREATER SCOPE AND MORE

CONCENTRATED THAN THAT OF 1941-42. MEANWHILE THE MAIN OUTLINES OF THE GERMAN STRATEGY ARE BECOMING APPARENT.

THERE IS NO LONGER ANY SERIOUS DOUBT THAT A GENERAL RETREAT IS UNDER WAY IN THE CAUCASUS. THE SPEED OF THE RED ARMY'S ADVANCE UP FROM MOZDOK AND NALCHIK SUGGESTS THAT MOST OF THE FIGHTING CONSISTS OF REARGUARD ACTIONS, TO PERMIT A REASONABLY ORDERLY WITHDRAWAL. THE GERMANS MAY CLAIM WITH SOME JUSTIFICATION THAT THEY ARE SHORTENING THEIR LINES ACCORDING TO PLAN, BUT THE PLAN IS NOT THAT OF WHICH HITLER BOASTED LAST SEPTEMBER WHEN HE SAW GROZNY OIL FIELDS ALMOST IN HIS GRASP. IT HAS BEEN FORCED ON THE NAZI COMMAND BY THE SLASHING BLOWS OF ZHUKOV'S COLUMNS FURTHER NORTH. WHETHER ALL THE CAUCASUS IS TO BE GIVEN UP WILL DEPEND LARGELY ON THE SUCCESS OF THE DESPERATE GERMAN EFFORTS, INTO WHICH STRONG RESERVES ARE BEING THROWN, TO HOLD THE NORTHERN AND EASTERN APPROACHES TO ROSTOV.

IT WILL DEPEND ALSO, OF COURSE, ON THE POWER OF THE REJUVENATED RED ARMY OF THE CAUCASUS. DISPATCHES INDICATE THAT THE COLUMNS WHICH ARE POURING OVER THE WATERSHED BETWEEN THE CASPIAN AND THE BLACK SEA CONSIST LARGELY OF FRESH TROOPS WITH NEW ARMS AND EQUIPMENT NOW THE SITUATION OF THIS ARMY SUGGESTS THAT IT MAY BE THE FIRST CONSIDERABLE RUSSIAN FORCE TO PROFIT IN A BIG WAY FROM AMERICAN LEND LEASE AID. ITS NATURAL AVENUES OF SUPPLY RUN THROUGH THE CASPIAN SEA, AND THE CASPIAN IS THE TERMINUS OF THE LONGEST MAJOR MILITARY SUPPLY ROUTE IN HISTORY, THAT FROM THE UNITED STATES, AROUND THE TIP OF AFRICA, THROUGH THE INDIAN OCEAN AND IRAN. IT WOULD NOT BE SURPRISING TO LEARN THAT UNITED STATES TANKS ARE RUMBLING WITH THE KUBAN COSSACKS AS THEY RIDE TRIUMPHANTLY BACK INTO THEIR HOMELAND THAT AMERICAN PLANES ARE BEING USED FOR SUCH RAIDS AS THAT YESTERDAY ON A GERMAN AIR BASE NEAR KRASNODAR.

THERE IS NO DENYING THAT GERMAN RESISTANCE IS STIFFENING IN THE SECTORS WHERE THE THREAT TO ROSTOV MUST BE HELD BACK IF THE WHOLE NAZI ARMY IN THE CAUCASUS IS NOT TO BE TRAPPED. TODAY'S MOSCOW COMMUNIQUE RECORDS PROGRESS ONLY IN THE CAUCASUS AND ALONG THE LOWER DON AND AT STALINGRAD. FOR SEVERAL DAYS NOW THERE HAS BEEN NO REAL ADVANCE REPORTED FOR THE COLUMNS APPROACHING ROSTOV FROM THE NORTH OR ACROSS THE DON BEND.

THE MISSION OF THE 22 GERMAN AND RUMANIAN DIVISIONS--MANY OF THEM REDUCED TO TATTERED REMNANTS--ENCLOSED ON THE WESTERN APPROACHES TO STALINGRAD BECOMES CLEARER. AS LONG AS THEY HOLD OUT--AND THE EFFORT TO RELIEVE THEM SEEMS TO HAVE BEEN ABANDONED--THE RUSSIAN COMMAND IS SERIOUSLY HANDICAPPED IN THE GIGANTIC TASK OF MOVING MEN AND SUPPLIES FOR THE MULTI-PRONGED DRIVE ON ROSTOV. STALINGRAD IS THE NERVE CENTER OF SOUTH RUSSIA'S COMMUNICATIONS AND UNTIL THOSE 22 DIVISIONS ARE WIPED OUT THE VALUE OF AT LEAST THREE VITAL TRUNK LINES IS GRAVELY IMPAIRED.

THE HEAVY FIGHTING REPORTED BY TODAY'S MOSCOW COMMUNIQUE IN WHICH THE RUSSIANS BROKE THROUGH IN THE FACTORY DISTRICT TO THE WESTERN LIMITS OF STALINGRAD SUGGESTS THAT A MAJOR EFFORT TO REMOVE THIS OBSTACLE MAY BE UNDER WAY. THE CHARACTER OF THE SIEGE OF STALINGRAD, NOW 141 DAYS OLD, HAS BEEN REVERSED COMPLETELY. THE GERMANS THERE DOUBTLESS HAVE ORDERS SIMILAR TO THE "DIE BUT DO NOT SURRENDER" COMMAND UNDER WHICH THE RUSSIANS FOUGHT IN STALINGRAD THROUGH THE LATE SUMMER AND AUTUMN. IT REMAINS TO BE SEEN WHETHER THEY CAN APPROACH THE RUSSIAN ACHIEVEMENT IN LAST STAND BATTLE.

Reds Take 4 More Caucasus Towns; Now Pursuing Foe

Railway Station Is Occupied

Advances Also Made Along Lower Don River

JAN 15 1943

1,000 GERMANS KILLED IN AREA

Twenty-six Enemy Transport Planes Destroyed At Stalingrad.

LONDON, Friday, Jan. 15. (AP)—Russian troops driving ahead on both sides of the Mineralnye Vody-Rostov railway in the Caucasus captured four more towns and a railway station yesterday, Moscow announced in a midnight communique heard here by the Soviet Monitor.

Suvorovskaya, 25 miles west of Mineralnye Vody, and below the railway, fell to the advancing Red Army, the communique said, and also the rail station of the same name. The station is 13 miles from Mineralnye Vody in the direction of Armavir.

Another town reported captured was Sotoikovskoye, as heard here. This apparently is Sotnikovskoye, 65 miles northeast of Mineralnye Vody and 125 miles east of Armavir, an important railway objective of the Soviet drive.

Advances Along Lower Don

Advances also were scored along the Lower Don River where additional points were taken and about 1,000 Germans were killed and 22 tanks disabled, the communique said.

Twenty-six Nazi transport planes were deported destroyed Wednesday in the Stalingrad area far to the east.

The Germans launched "ceaseless counter-attacks" in the Lower Don area where the Russians were last reported only 60 miles east of Rostov, the communique said, but "our infantrymen, artillery, and tank men were beating off the German counter-attacks and destroying their manpower and equipment."

Enemy Planes Set Afire

Nine German planes were set on fire near one populated place, the Russians said, in the drive toward Rostov, capture of which would imperil all the German forces in the Caucasus.

On the central front southwest of Velikie Luki the communique again spoke of repeated Nazi counter-attacks supported by tanks, and said the Red Army repulsed all of them, killing more than 500 Germans yesterday and capturing three guns, machineguns, automatic rifles and other equipment as well as prisoners.

The Russians said of the Caucasus:

Counter-attack Defeated

"Our units, overcoming enemy resistance, are successfully forging ahead and have captured several populated places.

"Our units beat off German counter-attacks in the area of one railway station. After fierce fighting Soviet troops liberated the station from the Hitlerites. The enemy lost 400 officers and men. War materials and prisoners were captured."

In another sector of the same front where the Russians now are more than 50 miles north of captured Minerilyne Vody on the railway to Rostov, and 20 miles to the northwest of the same point, the Russians said Soviet tanks broke into enemy positions and routed a German infantry battalion.

26 TRANSPORTS DOWNED

Moscow Remains Silent on Voronezh Battle Reported by Berlin.

MOSCOW, Friday, Jan. 15—(AP) The Red army rolling northwestward through the Caucasus now has advanced more than 125 miles, reaching Sotnikovskoye near the Kalmyck steppes, and Cossack cavalry and Red tank men are pursuing the still retreating Nazis, it was announced today.

The occupation of Sotnikovskoye, about 65 miles above the Mineralnye Vody-Rostov railway, marked a 26-mile advance yesterday from the Zhuravskoye area to the south. It brought the Caucasus army within 45 miles of the Kalmyck region, where other Red army forces pushing southward from Stalingrad are operating.

Reds Drive Westward

Other Soviet columns operating in the Kalmyck republic were driving steadily westward after crossing the lower Volga river at the beginning of their offensive.

(Earlier in the week Reuters reported that Soviet forces sweeping across the Kalmyck steppes had joined with other Red army units in the Levokumsky area east of Sotnikovskoye).

In their strides yesterday the Red army operating along the Mineralyne Vody-Rostov railway toward Armavir seized Suvorovskaya, 15 miles northwest of Mineralnye Vody, the communique said. They also took the railway station of the same name as well as the settlement of Grazhdansky-Pervy, 20 miles west of Mineralnye Vody.

Beat Off Counterattacks

Along the Don river at the northern end of the Caucasus the Russians were beating off repeated Nazi counterattacks which cost the enemy 1,000 dead and 22 tanks yesterday, the communique said. The Red army is operating only 60 miles east of Rostov, and apparently is meeting its heaviest opposition in this sector because of the obvious threat to that Nazi communications hub.

The Russians did not claim any specific towns in this sector, but again announced they were wearing down the Germans in men and equipment in steady fighting and gaining ground, too.

On the central front, the communique said, 500 more Germans fell in unsuccessful Nazi counterattacks southwest of Velikie Luki which has been the scene of a long exhausting struggle in the snow. Enemy equipment and prisoners also were seized yesterday, the midnight bulletin said.

26 Transports Destroyed

In the Stalingrad area, where the remnants of 22 Nazi divisions still are fighting against a Russian ring thrown around their positions between the Don and Volga rivers, the communique said 26 more Nazi transport planes were destroyed on Wednesday.

The Germans for weeks have been flying in supplies on these battered units.

The widening Russian advance up the Rostov-Baku railway reached a point less than 235 miles southeast of Rostov; troops astride the lower Don were within 60 miles of the gateway city.

Russian communiques and dispatches said nothing of new Red offensives reported by the Germans in the Voronezh sector midway between Stalingrad and Moscow nad in the Lake Ilmen region south of Leningrad. Russian policy has been to conceal news of any new drive until it had achieved considerable success.

(The Germans said that attacks south of Voronezh collapsed and that fighting southeast of Lake Ilmen continued. A Russian drive in the western Caucasus, which only the Germans have reported, was declared repelled, as were 'continuous attacks" between the Caucasus and Don and in the Stalingrad area.)

Reds Straighten Lines

The extreme western advance from Mineralnye Vody carried the Russians to Novo Bladgodarnoye while the northern flank swept past Zhuravskoe. In between, the Russians straightened their lines engulfing some of the best farm lands in the Caucasus. The noon communique reported a number of villages captured overnight.

At one point, the speedy Russian advance enveloped a concentration camp where many prisoners were set free.

The gains were made despite steady rains mixed with a wet snow which made roads and battlefields bogs.

The army newspaper Red Star said tanks and Cossacks, returning triumphant to their homeland, had surrounded a large German force in the Caucasus.

30 Miles from Salsk

Farther north, the Russians moving down the Stalingrad-Tikhoretsk railway continued mopping up the Zimoviniki region and moved closer to the important rail hub of Salsk, about 30 miles away from the vanguards. Two regiments of a SS Viking division were reported defeated.

The advance on the lower Don was resumed after "overcoming stubobrn enemy resistance," the high command said. One unit routed a German infantry battalion, killing 400.

"In another sector our troops by a violent blow broke through the enemy defenses and occupied several populated places," the communique said. "The Hitlerites suffered heavy losses. War materiel and prisoners were captured."

The methodical cleanup continued also in Stalingrad where the Russians said they cleared the enemy from 27 dugouts and blockhouses, and repulsed German counter-attacks.

Violent German attacks apparently had been absorbed on the central front opposite Moscow, where the Russians were operating both northwest and southwest of recaptured Velikie Luki. At one point, a large concentration of Nazi infantry was reported dispersed by Russian artillery and [illegible] wiped out.

"[illegible] of blockhouses and dugouts were destroyed," the communique said, "our troops conducted engagements in the same directions as before."

Soviets Unchecked By Rains and Foe's Attempted Stand

By HENRY C. CASSIDY,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

MOSCOW, Jan. 14.—The Red Army's comeback drive through the Caucasus was reported today fanning out wider on both sides of the Rostov-Baku trunk line as separate spearheads of the assault stabbed on through towns more than 20 miles west and 50 miles north of recaptured Mineralnye Vody.

Despite German attempts at a stand, the Russians were broadening their offensive front in fighting unchecked by steady rains and wet snow which bogged the fertile valley fields with mud and water.

A dozen towns were won back under the Red banner in the continuing drive, officials announced.

German reports that the Russians had launched new offensives against the Leningrad siege line or on the Voronezh front to the north of the Don bend were not confirmed here. Neither communiques nor battlefront dispatches mentioned these sectors.

Tanks Lead Russian Drive.

Dispatches announcing the recapture of Novo Bladgodarnoye placed the Russian advance more than 20 miles west of the spa town of Mineralnye Vody, recaptured early this week.

Another arm of the offensive swept through Kumagorsky and on past Zhuravskoye, 50 miles north of Mineralnye Vody.

In between, on the straightened front, the Russians reported seizing the little towns of Kalaborka, Orbelianovka and Podgaitovskoye in the heart of some of the most intensively farmed land in the Caucasus.

Battle-front accounts said tanks led the Russian advance, breaking up Nazi counterattacks along highways and rail lines of the Kuma River Valley near Kumagorsky.

Red Star, mouthpiece of the Russian Army, said a large German force had been surrounded in one Caucasian settlement and was under the combined attacks of tanks and Cossack cavalry.

Counterattack Repulsed.

In one unspecified sector of the Caucasus battle the early morning Russian communique reported that a German infantry and tank counterattack was repulsed with 14 tanks destroyed and the infantry turned by a flank attack that accounted for 100 German dead.

(The German news agency DNB was quoted by Reuters, British news agency, as conceding last night that Soviet tanks had broken the Axis main line in the Caucasus.)

In the battle to clear the Germans out of Stalingrad, the city's defenders, who had broken through to the western suburbs, consolidated their positions and killed about 400 invaders as they threw back counterattacks, the communique said.

(The Moscow correspondent of Reuters reported in London that high-ranking German officers were leaving the Stalingrad area by plane.)

Punishing blows again were rained on the Germans southwest of Velikie Luki as the Russian troops fought off enemy attacks, the communique noted.

Reds Renew Jibes.

The early Russian communique digressed from operations reports to jibe again at German reports that their troops were taking Soviet prisoners who chiefly were 15-year-old boys and men of 60 or more.

"How then could such an army inflict grave defeats upon the multimillioned German Army and hurl the German Fascist troops over hundreds of kilometers westward, liberate about 2,000 populated places in the Stalingrad area, and recapture in the course of stiff engagements Nalchik, Mozdok, * * * Mineralnye Vody, * * * and many other towns?" the communique asked.

"It appears that the German Army has sunk so low that it retreats, abandoning tanks, guns, trucks and (ammunition) dumps in the face of 15-year-old boys and old men wearing Red Army greatcoats."

A broadcast by the German Transocean Agency asserted the Russians had begun a new offensive in the Voronezh area but that air reconnaissance had prepared the Germans for the attacks, which they broke up with concentrated fire.

Veronezh is 300 miles northwest of Stalingrad. It is one of the anchors of the Russian line. The Germans have not been able to take it. From time to time in recent weeks they have reported such an offensive brewing and have said that their air force attacked troop concentrations in the area.

The Russians have not mentioned any developments in the sector but Russian offensives this winter usually have gotten well under way before an official announcement has been made. An offensive from Voronezh could be directed at Kharkov and Kursk, strongpoints of the German position in the Ukraine.

The Germans also reported renewed activity in the area between Lake Ilmen and Lake Ladoga, the Leningrad front. Military observers in London remarked that Marshal Semeon Timoshenko recently had been transferred to the Leningrad area and said that this presaged new Russian moves there.

British military analysts said that a Russian offensive near Leningrad would aim at dispersing German reserves who have maintained their positions on that quiescent front.

French fliers equipped with American planes.

Also in an area northwest of Kairouan, French troops took an Axis position, capturing 80 Italian prisoners, after having surrounded an Axis group there two days ago. A nearby Morocco division killed 17 Nazis and captured eight in a local skirmish.

(British news dispatches reported that contact had been established between the headquarters of General Giraud, the French commander in Tunisia, and the fighting French force under Brig.-Gen. Jacques LeClerc which is thrusting upward across Libya from equatorial Africa.

(It was added that this liaison—the first between de Gaullists and Giraud in the current phase of the African war—had been accomplished by the arrival at Giraud's headquarters of a courier from LeClerc.

(At the eastern end of the Allied battle line in North Africa, Allied airmen flying in support of the British Eighth army attacked Axis airfields near Misurata along the Libyan coast, machine-gunned motor transport in both western Libya and Tunisia, bombed the Tunisian port of Sousse and damaged a cargo ship off Tunisia. Four German planes were shot down and others damaged. Eight Allied planes were lost.)

Two Strategic Points Captured by French

Nazis Driven From Important Heights Northwest of Kairouan—Bad Weather Hampers Ground and Aerial Offensive On Other Fronts.

JAN 15 1943

By Wes Gallagher

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 14. (AP)—A French attack northwest of Kairouan, the traffic junction below Tunis, drove the Germans from two strategic heights in the mountains, a French spokesman announced today.

Weather Limits Activity

Bad weather limited both Allied air and ground activity over other fronts, and also temporarily checked the aerial offensive from the west against Marshal Rommel's army in Tripolitania.

The heights seized yesterday by the French—Jebel Haoub and Jebel Bou Davouss, about 15 miles northwest of Kairouan—were said by the spokesman to be important gains.

"The Lafayette escadrille went into action for the first time with French forces," he added, referring to the new organization of veteran

Light Air Activity

The day's communique from General Eisenhower's headquarters reported light air activity, adding that one enemy fighter had been shot down without Allied loss and that two enemy bombers were destroyed last night.

(Fighting French in London reported General Le Clerc messaged that his firces had captured more than 700 prisoners and "considerable stores of arms, ammunition and equipment"—including 18 Axis tanks and 40 guns — during their drive across the Fezzan area of the Libyan desert.)

The British navy was officially credited at Algiers with successfully escorting 971 transports, supply ships and other vessels totaling about 7,600,000 tons between Gibraltar Strait and North African ports in the last two months.

These convoys, coming from the United States and Britain, were made up of merchantmen of all the Allied Nations. American, British, Dutch and Norwegian ships predominated.

JAN 15 1943

Most of the supplies landed were utilized by the Allied ground and cannot be identified by name said the enemy had lost many submarines and numerous others were damaged.

British submarines were declared having "no little success" in attacks upon Axis transports and merchantmen moving troops and supplies to Tunisia. Warships of all classes, these sources said, have averaged 24 to 27 days a month at sea in all weather conditions.

Berlin Reports on Fighting.

Berlin (From German Broadcasts), Jan. 14 (A. P.).—The German High Command declared today that Red Army attacks had been repelled along southern sectors of the front, including strong infantry and tank thrusts at Stalingrad, while armies remained locked in combat in the Lake Ilmen-Lake Ladoga regions.

"The enemy, after severe losses suffered on the previous day in the western Caucasus, carried out only single and disconnected attacks which were repelled," the communique said.

French Take 2 Heights In Tunisia

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Jan. 14 (AP)—French troops aided by the new P-40 equipped Lafayette Escadrille blasted the Germans from two strategic heights in the mountains about 15 miles northwest of Kairouan yesterday, it was announced today.

The attack marked the first offensive operation by Lafayette Escadrille fliers in the Tunisian theatre. The first squadron of the organization, composed of French aces who shot down an average of seven or eight planes each in the brief Battle of France, arrived at a U. S. fighter base Monday.

Kairouan is a communications center southwest of Sousse.

A French spokesman described the gains as important. He said the captured heights were Jebel Haouab and Jebel Bou Davouss, which jut from the desert northeastward from Pichon.

American Bags German.

A spokesman for the Royal Air Force announced that an American Spitfire pilot shot down a German plane from a number seeking to attack an advanced air field and that the raiders were driven off.

Bad weather, on the other hand, had halted Allied aerial operations from the West against Marshal Rommel's forces in Libya.

Meanwhile, some indication of the strength the Allies are building up in Africa came in a statement that the British Navy had successfully escorted 971 transports, supply ships and other vessels totaling 7,600,000 tons, between Gibraltar and North African ports in the two months from November 8, when the A. E. F. made its first landings, to January 8.

French Forces in Contact

LONDON, Jan. 14 (AP)—Reuter reported today, in a dispatch from Allied Headquarters in North Africa, that direct contact had been established between headquarters of General Henri Honoré Giraud and the Fighting French column under Brig. Gen. Jacques Leclerc, which is driving northward in Libya from French Equatorial Africa.

General Leclerc has announced that his forces captured more than 700 prisoners and considerable stores of arms and equipment during the advance through the Fezzan area of Libya, the Fighting French said today.

Eighteen tanks, forty guns, a number of trucks, machine guns and smaller arms and ammunition were listed.

AGREEMENT SEEN IN FRENCH AFRICA

Reforms in Territory Won from Axis Predicted by British Minister

JAN 15 1943

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 14 — (AP) Harold MacMillan, British minister for North and West Africa, expressed the belief tonight that Gen. Henri Giraud was "determined to reach an agreement with Gen. de Gaulle," leader of the Fighting French.

He said, moreover, that a settlement was in sight which would result in the disappearance of many objections to Giraud's present administration in North Africa.

Attitude Must Change

Speaking of reforms which must take place in this country which is sick of the Axis, Mr. MacMillan said: "The attitude toward the Jews must be changed because the present attitude never would be acceptable to the British or American peoples. Some things introduced after 1940 must be changed."

Mr. MacMillan made the most frank assertions placed on record by any Allied official so far. He said an agreement between Gen. DeGaulle and Gen. Giraud, high commissioner for North and West Africa, must and will result in certain house-cleanings and the setting up of a de facto and provisional French administration to lead the French war effort.

The Americans and British must make an effort to get in some civilian stores and alleviate civilian needs, he said. He expressed the belief that such goods would be of possibly more use than even tanks and guns in helping the Allied war effort.

Backs Eisenhower

Since his arrival, Mr. MacMillan said he "felt absolutely convinced that Gen. Eisenhower was right originally in dealing with Admiral Darlan."

In answer to a question about the persons arrested in the Christmas Eve assassination of Darlan, who was Giraud's predecessor, he said: "I am convinced that all those arrested now and being held were connected with either the assassination or the events leading up to it."

Macmillan said North African administration problems must be studied closely, because "it is a prototype of things which we hope will take place in 1943 when the Allies move to gradually release Europe."

"If the French are to be allowed to choose their own government, it is up to the Allies to create a situation where the national will can exert itself without interference from the totalitarian parties," he declared.

Macmillan expressed the opinion, which he said was purely personal, that the Darlan murder was the result of unscrupulous persons grabbing for power, rather than the result of any deep political plot.

He dismissed lightly the aspirations of the Count of Paris, pretender to the French throne, and of the royalist group. He said he understood the count is now back in Spanish Morocco, where he has a pig farm.

He said some had been released and cleared and he understood that more would be released soon.

The minister said North African administration problems must be studied closely because "it is a prototype of things which we hope will take place in 1943 when the Allies move to gradually release Europe."

ed in connection with the assassination of Admiral Darlan has simultaneously let it be known that he is pro-Allied and helped the American landings, that he is a monarchist supporting the Count of Paris, pretender to the throne of France, and that he is a follower of Gen. De Gaulle. To top it off, he said he accepted a Vichy appointment in order to get to Africa in the first place, six or seven months ago.

The same is true of dozens of others who try to tie up with as many different factions as possible, seeking support for their personal aims. The truth is: North Africa is suffering from Axis sickness, the result of German and Italian domination. And it is on a small scale compared with what the Allies will have to contend with when Europe is freed.

Civilians and Soldiers Disgusted

Standing out from this struggle is Gen. Giraud, whose sole aim is to defeat the Axis, along with the

Giraud Harassed by Politics On Eve of De Gaulle Meeting

North African Civil Population and French Army Alike Are Disgusted by Factions' Bitter Struggle for Control.

By WES GALLAGHER,

Algiers, Jan. 14 (A. P.).—A political story without names is almost impossible to write—but the political story of French North and West Africa is virtually without names, virtually also without politics; for what has been happening here—the assassination of Admiral Jean Darlan, the subsequent arrests, and international dissension—is not politics as Americans and Britons conceive it.

Gen. Henri Giraud, a military man who loathed politics from the bottom of his heart, is being harassed, on the eve of his negotiations with Gen. Charles de Gaulle, by the bitter struggle of Vichy-appointed and Axis-sanctioned officials to retain their posts against an onslaught of newcomers, many with hands that are none too clean either. The various figures in the tangle have sometimes been glibly called Monarchists, De Gaullists, Rightists, Leftists or pro-Allies, but the picture is not simple as that.

majority of the rank and file of officers and soldiers of his Army who have been laying down their lives in Tunisia with the hope that some day France will again be free. To them only one thing is important. They want internal order preserved so that the prosecution of the war will not be hindered. Paradoxically, while this plays a large part in motivating the military investigation of the Darlan murder, it is also hampering the purge of some Vichy-inclined political figures for fear of internal repercussions that may upset the war effort.

The rank and file of the French population of North Africa, with sons and brothers and husbands in the armed forces, is as disgusted with those seeking power under the cloak of Gen. Giraud or Gen. de Gaulle as are the military men themselves.

This does not mean that there are not honest men who have suffered unjustly for their political beliefs. There has been much talk of men imprisoned for political beliefs before November 8, when the Americans landed. However, an American commission is now looking into this matter.

JAN 15 1943

Another carry-over from the days of Axis domination is the restrictions placed upon Jews, most of which are still in force. Here another problem presents itself. It is easy to order the removal of the restrictions, but not easy to avoid repercussions, for like Palestine, North Africa has an Arab-Jewish problem, and it is feared that any sudden lifting of the restrictions would bring a violent reaction from the 17,000,000 Arabs in both North and West Africa.

At least one Rabbi urged the Darlan Government to proceed slowly with such reforms to avoid any outbreaks of violence by Arabs in outlying districts.

On top of this topsy-turvy North African internal structure has been the position of the American and British armies under Gen. Eisenhower. That some of these factors have not resulted in hindrance to the drive to smash the Germans in Africa has been due in large part to the sheer force of personality and the shrewd bargaining power Gen. Eisenhower inherited perhaps from his peace-loving and tolerant Swiss-American ancestors.

American determination to let the French settle their own problems without interference tied the hands of the military leaders. What has been accomplished toward unity and full-speed prosecution of the war was done by Gen. Eisenhower in long and difficult negotiations with the French leaders, and the hope has been expressed that these will culminate in a full-scale agreement between Gen. Giraud and Gen. de Gaulle to unite all the French outside France, and to give these two leaders a chance to clean up the internal structure.

P-40 PILOTS IN AFRICA SMASH DIVE-BOMBERS

Down or Hit a Third of Nazi Raiders, Chase Others Off

A FORWARD UNITED STATES FIGHTER BASE, in Tunisia, Jan. 13 (Delayed) (AP)—Straight-shooting P-40 pilots, some of whom took off from a field on which bombs were bursting, broke up a Nazi dive-bomb attack on this airdrome yesterday, shot down or damaged a third of the raiding force and sent the remainder fleeing home.

Lieutenant Walter Scholl Jr., of New York, former Cornell University football player, destroyed a Messerschmitt 109 in one of a series of furious dogfights raging over the field during the bombing.

A few minutes later a blast from the .50-caliber guns of Lieutenant Curtis Buttorf of Fort Collins, Col., damaged the right motor of a Junkers '88 dive bomber. An escorting Messerschmitt circled around the damaged plane, endeavoring to protect it, but Lieutenant Carson W. Bounds of Philadelphia, Miss., dived past, fired a burst of bullets into the bomber and sent it crashing. Lieutenant Bounds's ammunition was exhausted then, but the Messerschmitt fled.

RAIL BATTERIES IN SICILY

Italy's Defenses Also Strong, Berlin Radio Says

The Berlin radio broadcast a dispatch from Palermo today, according to The Associated Press, reporting that the defenses of the Italian and Sicilian coasts had been strengthened heavily in protection against invasion.

"The most modern of railway batteries of all calibers are being employed, aside from fortified strongholds, for protecting Sicily's coast against invasion," the broadcast said. "The employment of railway batteries is facilitated by the fact that a railroad line runs ll around the island close to the shore.

"Officers and gun crews of these railway batteries are living in cars attached to the trains. The engine is constantly ready in order to get the train rapidly to any menaced spot. . . .

"In case of an alarm, all traffic for civilians is naturally stopped.

"Protection against invasion of the Italian mainland is similarly organized."

Nazis Admit French Advance

BERLIN (From German broadcasts), Jan. 14 (AP).—The Berlin radio reported today that French formations had advanced along a wide front in fighting in the spurs of the Atlas Mountains in central Tunisia, but said Axis counter-attacks on the north flank drove them back beyond their original positions. It said: "Reports on the final result of fighting on the southern wing are not yet available."

French Make Surprise Raid

LONDON, Jan. 14 (AP).—A surprise raid in eastern Tunisia by French forces in which ten enemy soldiers were killed and others were captured was reported today in a French headquarters communique broadcast by the Morocco radio. The raid was made on the station of Sidi Arat, twelve miles south of Fondouk. Fondouk is seventy-five miles south of Tunis and twenty miles west of Kairouan, a railroad and highway junction town.

U.S.-British Friction In Africa is Denied

British Minister of Information Declares Countries Working Together on de Gaulle-Giraud Situation.

JAN 15 1943

By Relman Morin

LONDON, Jan. 14. (AP)—The British Minister of Information, Brendan Bracken, declared today that the United States and Britain were striving to get Gen. Henri Giraud and Gen. Charles de Gaulle together to dispel French political friction and denied that the two governments, in Washington and London, were working at cross purposes.

Not Backing Candidates

"Neither the British nor American government is backing any particular candidate for leadership of the French," said Bracken, an intimate of Prime Minister Churchill.

"The British foreign office is not backing de Gaulle (leader of the Fighting French) and the Washington state department is not backing Gen. Giraud (high commissioner for North and West Africa.)

"The British government gave power of attorney to (Lieut.-Gen. Dwight D.) Eisenhower, has the greatest possible confidence in him and is backing him to the utmost."

His remarks were made at a conference with American newspapermen at a time when individual British, American and Russian attitudes and policies toward the French African muddle had reached a point at which Allied solidarity was endangered seriously.

Some concrete action to dispel the confusion and mistrust in the public mind may be expected very soon. It may take the form of the creation of a joint political organism to administer the internal affairs of North Africa until the military problem is solved. Or it might cause another visit of Mr. Churchill to Washington for a strong reaffirmation of Allied unity of purpose. Such a trip by the Prime Minister has been rumored for some time.

"Tunisia is the best place to fight the Hun and we are anxious to get on with the job so we can open a second front somewhere on the continent of Europe," Bracken said. "Both our governments realize a second front will require enormous sacrifices of manpower and we are prepared for it."

No Support For Count

He declared the Count of Paris, pretender to the French throne who went to Algeria from Spanish Morocco, "has no support from Whitehall and in my opinion none in Washington."

The British are aware that De Gaulle, leader of the fighting French, has nothing resembling the complete support of all Frenchmen. Hundreds of Frenchmen, even in London, are violently outspoken in their criticism of De Gaulle and have remained pointedly outside his organization.

The appearance of Communist Deputy Ferdinand Grenier after an escape from Paris may alienate others. Grenier has joined De Gaulle's national committee.

French Behind de Gaulle

Grenier said the French were solidly behind De Gaulle and regarded the North African political situation with "stupefaction."

"Any attempt to keep Vichy men will expose the government that tries it to a death blow in the esteem of France," he said, adding that he was unable to speak more frankly because his remarks might jeopardize Allied solidarity. "The people believe De Gaulle has the prestige and qualifications to head the administration and that Giraud could be supreme military commander."

Grenier's adherence to the de Gaullists pointed up the fact that while the United States and Britain have ranking representatives in French Africa, so far as is known the Russians have not ever been invited to send a commissioner.

Meeting Delayed

Giraud's reasons for delaying a meeting with De Gaulle are treated with reserve in some circles here. Giraud, it is believed, wants to proceed directly with the expulsion of the Germans from Tunisia and Libya and is unwilling to lose time discussing political questions with which De Gaulle's pronouncements indicate he is concerned primarily.

The fundamental British and American difference over North Africa is whether "expediency" justifies the collaboration with men connected with the Vichy regime of Laval and Marshal Petain. There also is a question over the ultimate war aims of the two countries.

From its inception, the American handling of the North African problem has puzzled some Britons, annoyed others and outraged many. The retention of the assassinated Admiral Jean Darlan's satellites and the continued confinement of Frenchmen who are political enemies of Vichy contribute to the divergence. One London newspaper said "the State Department (Washington) is unwilling to sever the thin thread of connection with Vichy."

The delay in the campaign against the Germans is causing further uneasiness in the British public mind. Since an American, Eisenhower, is supreme commander, the pause tends to hurt him indirectly.

American censorship is regarded in some British circles as the reason for obscurity in the political and military situation in North Africa.

Finally, there is the question of the postwar picture, because North Africa is a very rich country. At this point 50 words were censored).

air forces in Tunisia and Algeria, but there were also large quantities of provisions for the impoverished peoples.

At the same time it was said that Allied naval forces were making sharp headway against U-boats in the Mediterranean. Sources who cannot be identified by name said the enemy had lost many submarines and numerous others were damaged.

British submarines were declared having "no little success" in attacks upon Axis transports and merchantmen moving troops and supplies to Tunisia. Warships of all classes, these sources said, have averaged 24 to 27 days a month at sea in all weather conditions.

RAIN OF BOMBS EXCEEDS EIGHT TONS A MINUTE

R. A. F. Dumps 100 Tons in Concentrated Attack on Arms Center.

LILLE SEVERELY POUNDED

Flying Fortresses Take Major Part in Great Daylight Attack on France.

JAN 15 1943

London, Jan. 14 (A. P.).—Essen, hard-hit home of the giant Krupp armament works, was battered by 100 tons of explosives and fire bombs last night as the Royal Air Force carried out its third consecutive night attack on the industrial Ruhr Valley, it was announced officially today. The Air Ministry said that four of the bombers that took part in a concentrated downpour of destruction on the repeatedly raided city of Essen were lost. So concentrated was the attack that the planes unloaded all their deadly cargoes over the target in the space of twelve minutes, the Ministry disclosed.

This was at the rate of eight and a half tons a minute.

Eighth Attack in Eleven Nights.

It was the eighth attack on Germany in eleven nights. Other parts of the Ruhr also were hit, but Essen was the main target, the communique said. The ministry further announced the loss of one fighter on operations over France and Holland, and added: "Hudsons of the Coastal Command, without loss, attacked an enemy convoy off the Dutch coast. Two enemy supply ships were hit."

The German High Command, in a bulletin broadcast by the Berlin radio, said that "British aircraft raided western German territory, mainly the city of Essen," and added: "The population suffered losses. Damage was done predominantly to buildings."

German night raiders meanwhile attacked several places on the northwest coast of England, but their activity was said to be light and no casualties were reported.

The Berlin communique said that the Germans set extensive fires in the city of Sunderland and in its shipyards.

Later this afternoon the Rome radio announced that the total casualties in the recent Allied raid on Palermo, Sicily, were 139 persons killed and 329 injured.

Lille Severely Pounded.

The R. A. F. attack on the Ruhr followed a thundersous daylight assault on Occupied France and Holland yesterday in which American Flying Fortresses played a major role. This was described as one of the heaviest ever carried out by daylight. The principal target was the industrial city of Lille, which underwent its third heavy bombing of the war. "Visibility was good and numerous bursts were observed on the target and in railway yards," a communique declared.

Three of the four - motored American planes failed to return from this raid and two R. A. F. fighters were missing after sweeps over Holland, where transportation and gun positions were blasted. Three German planes were reported shot down.

Other targets yesterday included the airdromes at St. Omer, Venturas and Abbeville and various railway centers and repair shops in the north of France.

Swarms of American, British, Canadian, New Zealand, Australian, Belgian, Norwegian, Polish and Fighting French fighter pilots provided cover for the bombers, shuttling back and forth across the Channel from noon until almost dusk.

Sharing attention with all these operations was the Air Ministry's disclosure of a three-year-old war secret—the story of how Wellington bombers helped clear the deadly German magnetic mines from the waters around Britain. In a new booklet, "Coastal Command," the Ministry said that the Wellingtons had been equipped with a device that set off the mines when the bombers flew over them at a low altitude. The device, a hoop-like contrivance extending entirely around the plane, set up a magnetic field with current supplied by an auxiliary engine.

Mine-sweeping from the air, the booklet said, continued "for some four months, after which it became no longer necessary, the ships having been fitted with Degaussing gear" which nullified the magnetic mines.

GREAT FIRES RAGE AFTER ESSEN RAID

100 Tons of Explosives Blast Home of Krupp Works in 12 Minutes.

JAN 15 1943

LONDON, Jan. 14—(AP) Heavy R.A.F. bombers unleashed a veritable cloud-burst of fire and explosives upon much-bombed Essen last night in a super-saturation raid which saw 100 tons of bombs hit the home city of the Krupp works in 12 minutes.

The British said only four bombers were lost after the concentrated attack, the eighth time in eleven nights that the R.A.F. has bombed Germany and the third straight night that the industrial Ruhr has been hit.

Bombs cascaded down at an average of eight and one-third tons every minute.

Returning pilots reported that large fires quickly mushroomed up. They said that the German anti-aircraft fire was as violent as ever and that for the first time in recent nights they encountered Nazi night fighters.

To illustrate just how the R.A.F. has developed the principle of saturating a target with death-dealing missiles, it was recalled that 340 tons of bombs were dropped in three hours, or less than two tons per minute, in the first such raid, which was on Luebeck last March 26.

The Germans acknowledged that the main target of the British last night was Essen and that the population suffered losses.

"Damage was done predominately to buildings," the German high command communique said in its report on the raid. "Night fighters and anti-aircraft artillery of the air force shot down five enemy aircraft."

Northeast England Is Raided

LONDON, Jan. 14 (AP)—The British reported slight enemy activity over the coastal districts of Northeast England last night and said bombs dropped in that area caused little damage and injury to only one person.

JAN 15 1943

For their part, the Germans announced that Nazi bombers yesterday attacked plants on the British southeast coast and raided the city and shipyards of Sunderland during the night.

"Extensive conflagrations were observed," the German communiqué said.

Meanwhile, a Royal Air Force commentator, asked why the Germans were making nuisance raids with a handful of planes on the British coasts, said they had propaganda value enabling the Nazis to claim daily assaults.

Further, he said, they also had a "detachment value" in that raids by fast fighter-bombers forced the British to send up many planes in pursuit, resulting in an appreciable wastage of machines and matériel.

British pilots returning from last night's 100-ton raid on Essen reported that large fires quickly mushroomed up.

"Damage was done predominantly to buildings," the German High Command communiqué said in its report on the raid. "Night fighters and anti-aircraft artillery of the air force shot down five enemy aircraft."

This morning Spitfires attacked railway engines and coastal gun positions in Northern France, while in the afternoon Mustang pilots concentrated on railway engines, freight trains and signal boxes. Two pilots said two engines and a freight train were damaged.

LLOYD GEORGE URGES REVIVAL OF LEAGUE

British Statesman Would Give It Police Backing

LONDON, Friday, Jan. 15 (AP)—David Lloyd George, British Premier in the First World War, declared today that the League of Nations, "a very good idea," should be reconstructed on different lines after the war and should have the backing of an international police force.

JAN 15 1943

Lloyd George, who will celebrate his eightieth birthday Sunday on his quiet Surrey farm, told The London Daily Herald that the "League was ruined first by America's refusal to come in—I am not sure that the failure of the United States to honor her treaty was not responsible for the present war—by the imperialism of France and then by sheer stupidity."

"We dodged our obligations over disarmament," he said. "We refused to check Japan. We abandoned the attempt to rescue Abyssinia. We refused to intervene in Spain. So we drifted into war."

He said he told his views of the present war only to intimate friends, and, although never an optimist, he retained his faith in the British peoples and their mission.

ian and Canadian air personnel have arrived at a British port, it was disclosed today.

W. J. Jordan, New Zealand High Commissioner, welcomed the troops and gave a special word to the Americans, acknowledging kindness shown by the people of the United States to New Zealanders.

Authorities said the convoy's trip was uneventful.

WAR ON U-BOATS GAIN!

London, Jan. 14 (A. P.).—Britain's air patrols against enemy submarines have become so effective that "no U-boat dares show itself on the surface within 30 miles of our shores," the Air Minister, Sir Archibald Sinclair, declared today.

Speaking at a luncheon for the Greater London Wings-for-Victory Week, Sir Archibald warned that London may again suffer heavy raids, but said it would survive the war "with its youth renewed."

12 CZECHS EXECUTED

London, Jan. 14 (A. P.).—The execution of twelve Czechs in Prague was reported by the Czech Information Service here today.

One was Major Antonin Pesl, a soldier charged with organizing resistance against Germany, the announcement said. Others were accused of esponage, communistic activity or illegal trading.

In a broadcast picked up at New York by CBS, the British radio today reported word from Prague that "the Quisling Prime Minister of Slovakia, Dr. Vojtech Tuka, has been relieved of his post as vice-president of the totalitarian Slovak State party."

LONDON, Jan. 14 (AP)—An American soldier in Britain was married today to an American girl in Washington over a two-way radio hookup.

The responses were heard clearly and when the ceremony was over the bride wished her husband a safe and swift return home.

$50,000 U. S. Cigarettes Stolen

LIVERPOOL, England, Jan. 14 (AP)—A truck driver employed by the United States Army and a motor mechanic were arrested today on charges of stealing $50,000 worth of American-owned cigarettes from the United States armed forces. The prosecutor said detectives caught the men unloading cases of cigarettes from trucks. Hundreds of cases were reported missing.

REICH COMBED FOR MORE MEN

Army Seeking 2,000,000 Additional Soldiers.

SHANKE

JAN 15 1943

Stockholm, Jan. 15 (A. P.).—Faced with mounting casualties and growing demands on new fronts, the Germans are making a stern effort to mobilize every available reserve by mustering into the Army men previously rejected for military service, reliable diplomats, said today.

A commission of high German Army officers, these informants declared, is touring the Reich to comb out the last of the nation's man power—men previously pronounced unfit for active service for slight disabilities but who could be used as garrison troops in occupied countries or for desk work, thus releasing more able-bodied men for the front. The Germans were said to be counting on this program to yield another 2,000,000 men for the army.

Observers pointed out that the induction of these men into the armed forces would confront the Labor Dictator, Fritz Sauckel—already hard-pressed to find trained workers for important war industries—with a gigantic task of finding replacements in occupied lands.

According to official German announcements, 700,000 men already have been transported from the Ukraine to work in Germany's factories and on her farms.

Hardships on the Home Front.

Meanwhile reports in German newspapers and dispatches from Swedish correspondents in Berlin indicate that conditions are becoming harder from day to day for the people on the German home front. More and more plants are being converted to the manufacture of war materials. It was reliably reported that last fall only 20 per cent of the nation's industrial capacity was producing peace-time goods. Not even the firm that manufactures Nazi party flags has escaped, but is now making camouflage materials—for which unrelenting British aerial assaults have created a great demand.

Thus, while new clothing ration cards are being issued, the German press has warned the public it will be possible to purchase a new suit only in case of urgent necessity. To save power and raw materials, cloth hereafter will be manufactured only in standard colors—between three and ten shades for men's wear and thirty for women's.

Shoes also have been standardized and are now purchasable only by special permit obtained from rationing boards. Previously unrationed articles of wearing apparel, such as suspenders and garters, have been placed on the point system.

SAY NAZI ADMIRAL WENT TO SEE JAP

JAN 15 1943

Stockholm, Jan. 14 (A. P.).—The Berlin correspondent of the Swedish newspaper Aftonbladet reported today that Admiral Karl Doenitz of the Nazi Navy had made a nineteen-day trip in a submarine around the Cape of Good Hope to keep a rendezvous with Admiral Osami Nagano, chief of the Japanese naval staff board, at sea, off Madagascar.

During its trip, the Germans claimed, the U-boat sank an 8,000-ton American merchant ship off Cape Town.

The subject of the conference was not specified.

Presumably the Japanese naval leader, considered an authority in Japan on American affairs, was able to reach the rendezvous in a surface warship.

The German radio several weeks ago reported that a Japanese submarine had rounded the cape and visited a German submarine base "on the coast of Europe." The Germans also broadcast a report about that time that a German submarine had kept an appointment with a Japanese fleet in the Indian Ocean.

CHINESE REOCCUPY TWO HONAN TOWNS

Recapture Kwangshan and Loshan and Keep Foothold in Sinyang—Gain in Anhwei

TAPIEH DRIVE IS REPULSED

Japanese Assert They Encircle 50,000 in Area—Burma Bombing Kept Up by R. A. F.

CHUNGKING, China, Jan. 14 (AP)—The Chinese High Command tonight announced the reoccupation of the Honan Province towns of Kwangshan and Loshan and declared that Chinese troops fiercely attacking the Japanese within the city of Sinyang and its environs had made progress.

The Chinese communiqué said that Kwangshan was recaptured on Monday and that Loshan was taken the next day. Loshan is twenty-eight miles east of Sinyang, important Japanese base in Southern Honan Province, and Kwangshan is twenty-five miles southeast of Loshan.

A Chinese Army spokesman earlier today amended last night's official announcement that Sinyang had been captured. He said that the Chinese were not in complete possession but are fighting within the city's walls after penetrating the west gate.

The spokesman said the Chinese had occupied two road junction towns above the Yangtze River in Anhwei Province. These were Tungcheng, thirty miles north of Anking, the Japanese-occupied provincial capital, and Tsienshan, an equal distance west of Anking.

The Chinese said "sanguinary fighting" was in progress on the Yunnan-Burma border area, with the Chinese stoutly resisting the Japanese and heavy losses being suffered by both sides.

The Central News Agency reported that Chinese planes last Tuesday strafed Japanese positions on the west bank of the Hsiang River in Hupeh Province. Two Zeros met the force, the agency added. One Japanese plane was shot down in flames and the other was so badly damaged it probably was not able to return to its base, it was reported.

The Chinese spokesman declared that the Japanese campaign in the Tapieh Mountain area along the Anhwei-Hupeh border in East Central China "may be said to have failed." The Chinese, he asserted, have reoccupied nearly all the main centers taken by the enemy in the early stages of the campaign, which opened Dec. 19.

He estimated that the Japanese had used altogether 50,000 to 60,000 troops in the Tapieh campaign and suffered about 3,000 casualties.

Foe Claims Tapieh Victory

Japanese broadcasts recorded in New York yesterday by The Associated Press said Japanese Imperial Headquarters asserted that Japanese forces in the Tapeih Mountain area of Eastern Central China had "dealt the enemy a heavy blow and destroyed the main enemy bases" in a campaign begun late in December.

A communiqué said that about 50,000 Chinese troops commanded by General Li Tsung-jen, one of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-chek's ranking lieutenants, had been encircled. The Chinese, it said, had left behind 6,500 dead and 1,500 prisoners, besides quantities of weapons and stores. Japanese losses, it said, were thirty killed in action.

Italy Renounces Rights To Her Few Chinese Acres

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 14—Italy has sent a note to the Japanese-dominated Nanking "government of China" formally renouncing all Italian concessions and extra-territorial rights in China, the Rome radio announced today.

This was an Axis gesture to match the action of the United States and Britain in concluding treaties with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's government abandoning extraterritoriality and, in the case of Britain, returning concessions.

It also followed the lead of the Oriental Axis member, Japan, in concluding with its Nanking puppet a pact for abandonment of extraterritorial rights.

Italy's only concession in China was one covering a few acres in Tientsin.

Germany lost her concessions and special rights in China when she lost World War I, in which China was one of the Allied powers, as were Japan and Italy also.

War Supplies to China 'Ridiculously' Small

Dr. Yeh Asks More Aid to Permit 'Heavier Crack' at Foe

JAN 15 1943

LONDON, Jan. 14 (AP)—Dr. K. C. George Yeh, London Director of the Chinese Ministry of Information, said today that war supplies reaching China are "ridiculously small."

His statement was made in commenting on President Roosevelt's report to Congress in which he said that "We are flying as much lend-lease material into China as ever traversed the Burma Road, now controlled by the Japanese."

"The Burma Road never reached its maximum capacity owing to various reasons," Dr. Yeh said at a press conference, "but even if it had, the supplies would have been far from enough, and whatever is going into China today is ridiculously small.

"When the road was open there were other channels by which supplies were reaching China—some secret, some official. Heavy equipment did not reach China by the Burma Road, and is not reaching China today."

He said the bulk of all the supplies "came from America, and very little from Britain," and he called for a greater flow of war materials to China "so we can have a heavier crack at the Japanese."

Japan Reports China Victory

TOKIO (from Japanese broadcasts), Jan. 14 (AP). — Imperial headquarters asserted today that Japanese forces in the Tapieh Mountain area of eastern central China had "dealt the enemy a heavy blow and destroyed the main enemy bases" in a campaign begun late in December. A communique said some 50,000 Chinese troops commanded by General Li Tsung-jen (one of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's ranking lieutenants) had been encircled. The Chinese, it said, had left behind 6,500 dead and 1,500 prisoners, besides quantities of weapons and stores. Japanese losses, it said, were thirty killed in action.

R.A.F. Bombers Hammer Japanese Bases in Burma

Akyab Villages, Airport and Shipping Are Attacked

JAN 15 1943

NEW DELHI, India, Jan. 14 (AP).—Royal Air Force planes hammered Japanese positions in the Akyab area in Burma again yesterday, and also attacked targets at Kyauktaw, some forty miles north of that port on the Kaladan River, a British communique announced today.

Bombs were dropped on enemy-occupied villages on Akyab Island for the second day in a row, and anti-aircraft positions at Akyab Airport were machine-gunned by fighters which also attacked shipping in the Mayu River, the announcement said.

"From these and other operations one of our aircraft is missing," the communique added.

NAZI CARRIED ON ESPIONAGE IN JAIL

Cape Town, Union of South Africa, Jan. 14 (A. P.).—A German spy made his Cape Town jail cell his headquarters and was able to start back to Germany from there valuable information he gathered about the movement of British merchant vessels, it was disclosed today. But a woman figured in his downfall. H. G. Lawrence, Minister of the Interior, told the story. He did not identify the prisoner or tell when it happened.

The man was held in Cape Town jail while awaiting removal to a South African internment camp. In the jail, too, were some ships' personnel—crimes unspecified. From them, Mr. Lawrence said, the spy obtained the whereabouts and description in great detail of several British merchant cruisers.

Then he used invisible ink to write his messages in an ordinary school copy book which he tried to get through to friends in Lourenco Marques.

A girl from Durban was arrested in the case and accused of treachery.

Other documents seized, Mr. Lawrence said, carried instructions from Germany to nationals interned here, telling them not to attempt to escape since "it would endanger nationalist aspirations in Africa by leading to the arrest of leaders for assisting in escapes."

Allied Jungle Fighters Kill 116 Japanese

Launch Surprise Foray In Mubo Area in New Guinea.

JAN 15 1943

By Tom Yarbrough

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Friday, Jan. 15. (AP)—Allied jungle fighters counted 116 dead Japanese today and beat the bushes for more bodies after a surprise two-day foray in the Mubo area, inland from Salamaua, and 12 miles to the south, in New Guinea.

It was the first reported land clash in that area in months.

(However, increasing attention has been given trails of the area by strafing planes, according to recent communiques.)

Continuing rainy weather kept fighting down to a minimum on the Sanananda front but the enemy is being nudged back by patrol activity. Sanananda is the only point in all the Papuan peninsula where remnants of a Jap Army which once totaled 15,000 still are holding out.

General Douglas MacArthur's bombers and fighters maintained their daily pressure on Japanese landing strips and bivouac areas, striking along the New Guinea coast from Sanananda to Madang.

The heaviest raid was aimed at Lae, where the Japanese made no attempt to interfere while Mitchell bombers, escorted by Lightnings, started big fuel fires along the shore. Absence of Jap aerial opposition was in sharp contrast with last week when the enemy sent over swarms of planes in an attempt to provide cover for a reinforcing naval convoy and, for their pains, suffered the loss or damage of more than 130 planes.

In the Salamaua sectotr a force of Bostons made sixteen strafing runs over some enemy troops which might have been remnants of a recent attempted landing at Mambare or stragglers from Allied-conquered Gona.

In Portuguese Timor, which the Japanese have been reported for some time to be fortifying as their hold on New Guinea weakened, the oft-attacked Fuiloro airdrome area was given a going over by pag-range fighters which raked ircraft on the ground, anti-aircraft positions and shelters for roops.

Allied Planes Pound New Guinea Bases at Lae and Salamaua

Heavy Rains Slow Drive Against Japs Trapped at Sanananda

By the Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Jan. 14.—Allied planes pounded Japanese bases at Lae, Salamaua, Madang and Finschhafen in Northeastern New Guinea yesterday as heavy rains slowed operations to stamp out the trapped enemy garrison at Sanananda Point on the Papuan Peninsula, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

Lae, which has been blasted relentlessly from the air since the Japanese landed reinforcements there last week from a badly battered convoy, was the target of especially heavy raids.

"In a series of co-ordinated attacks our heavy, medium and attack units with strong fighter cover bombed the airdrome, harbor installations, stores and barges," a communique said.

"Damage was heavy and large fires were started. Supply dumps and barges along the shore were effectively strafed and an enemy fighter caught on the ground at Malaband was destroyed."

At Madang and Finschhafen, farther up the coast, the Allied airmen bombed and strafed enemy airdromes, while in the Salamaua area attack planes hammered enemy communication lines.

An Allied reconnaissance plane also was credited with shooting down two Japanese fighters and possibly a third when intercepted by six enemy aircraft over Gasmata, New Britain.

The communique said nine enemy bombers had raided the wharf area at Merauke, in Dutch New Guinea, but had caused negligible damage.

ARGENTINA DENIES CHILE CONFERENCE

Foreign Minister Declares No Conference of Two Presidents Is Planned.

JAN 15 1943

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Jan. 14.—(AP) Foreign Minister Enrique Ruiz Guinazu in a statement to the Associated Press denied tonight that a meeting between President Castillo of Argentina and President Rios of Chile was in prospect and said there had not been any negotiations for such a meeting.

"Please be sure you credit me with the statement to the effect that no negotiation whatever has been initiated at any time for a meeting of the two presidents," the foreign minister told the Associated Press regarding new rumors published in Buenos Aires newspapers.

Another source almost equally as authoritative as Ruiz Guinazu explained, meanwhile, that there was no likelihood of such a presidential conference because President Castillo "surely would not risk Argentine prestige in a move which has very little chances of improving Argentina's position abroad."

This was interpreted to mean that Argentina already has discounted the probability of a Chilean rupture with the Axis, even though the Santiago government is fully aware that Buenos Aires would rather see the two governments strongly together in neutrality.

Argentina and Chile are the only countries in the western hemisphere still maintainig diplomatic relations with the Axis.

It was admitted here that a Chilean break with the Axis would be a blow to Argentina's hopes.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Jan. 14 (AP)—Foreign Minister Joaquin Fernandez informed the Senate today he would attend its session Jan. 19 to outline Chile's foreign policy.

Political circles expressed the belief he would announce the government to be in favor of breaking off diplomatic relations with the Axis powers.

Japanese Ships Blasted by U. S. Torpedo Boats

2 or 3 Enemy Destroyers Damaged; Force Steaming for Guadalcanal Routed

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Swift motor torpedo boats of the United States Fleet again have engaged a superior Japanese force and returned victorious.

They sped out from Guadalcanal to meet a force of enemy destroyers steaming toward the island on the night of Jan. 10 (Solomons date), presumably with reinforcements for the Japanese trying vainly to regain Henderson Airfield.

Slashing quickly at the much bigger and more heavily armed enemy craft, the torpedo boats—their number was not disclosed—damaged at least two, possibly three, of the Japanese destroyers.

Two torpedoes launched from the speeding craft found their mark in one destroyer. Another went home into another destroyer. Two more, the Navy reported, possibly hit a third.

The enemy fleet, composed, the Navy said, of "a number of destroyers," turned about and sped away to the northwest.

The torpedo boats, hardly bigger than pleasure launches, first gained recognition in forays against the enemy in Philippine waters. There one group of the boats, under command of Lieutenant Commander John Bulkley, played havoc with enemy shipping and scored hits on several Japanese war vessels.

It was boats of that group which later took General Douglas MacArthur from Bataan for his trip to Australia. More recent exploits include two assaults on enemy forces off Guadalcanal—in one the little craft were credited with probably hitting a big cruiser, in another with severely damaging a destroyer.

The Navy communique today air force nevertheless ever and continuing the action in the Solomons, renewing assaults on enemy installations at Rekata Bay, on Santa Isabel Island 135 miles northwest of the Guadalcanal airfield. Results of their bombing expedition on Jan. 13 (island time) were not reported.

"Ground forces on Guadalcanal disclosed that air forces were Island, supported by air forces, continued their advance," the communique added.

Admit U. S. Air Superiority

The Japanese people are being told that the Americans and Australians have at least numerical air superiority in the Solomons and New Guinea, the Berlin radio, as heard by The Associated Press, disclosed yesterday in broadcasting a Tokio dispatch.

A correspondent of the Tokio newspaper "Asahi" wrote that "the Allies have a numerically superior air force at their disposal with which they attempt to destroy Japanese bases and transports." He added, "the Japanese Air Force nevertheless ever and again has scored great successes against advanced enemy strongholds and supply bases."

"Both sides in the Solomons and New Guinea occupy equally strong positions,' he wrote.

Canadian Steel Strike Spreads as 7,500 More Quit Work

12,500 Men Now Are Out; Output Cut by More Than Two-Thirds

JAN 15 1943

By the Associated Press

TORONTO, Jan. 14.—A strike by the United Steel Workers of America (CIO) spread to four other Canadian plants today as 7,500 more employes quit work in support of demands for an increase in their basic wages.

The action brought to approximately 12,500 the total number of men on strike and steel-control authorities at Ottawa estimated the walkout would cut Canada's steel production by more than two-thirds.

Latest to be affected were the giant plant of the Algoma Steel Corp. at Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, and three plants of the Dominion Steel & Coal Corp. at Trenton, Nova Scotia.

Approximately 4,000 men went on strike at Saulte Ste. Marie and 3,500 at Trenton.

5,000 Previously Struck.

Five thousand union men previously had struck at the Dominion Corp.'s big plant at Sydney, Nova Scotia.

The workers are protesting the majority report of the Barlow Steel Commission, which recommended no change in basic wages of 43½ cents an hour at Sydney and 46½ cents at Sault Ste. Marie. The union demands adoption of the minority report, which recommended an hourly scale of 55 cents, which the union has sought for two years.

(The minimum wage in CIO steel contracts in the United States is $6.24 a day for an eight-hour day, or 78 cents an hour.)

Workers Fail to Report.

The strike at the Algoma plant began officially at 7 a.m. today when members of the day shift failed to report for work. Picket lines were set up immediately and it was announced that 300 men had been left in the plant to do maintenance work.

Union officials said last night there also was a possibility of a strike at Canada's only other basic steel-producing plant—the Steel Co. of Canada at Hamilton, Ontario.

The Dominion Corp. plants struck at Trenton were the Trenton Steel Works, Trenton Industries and Eastern Car & Foundry Co.

STRIKE CONCILIATORS BUSY

Canada Acts as New Walkouts in Steel Swell Total

TORONTO, Jan. 14 (AP)—Labor conciliators tonight were seeking a settlement of a strike for higher wages which had halted two-thirds of Canada's steel production and taken 12,500 Canadian steel workers from their jobs. Today 3,500 workers at Trenton, N. S., and 4,000 workers at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., joined 5,000 employes at Sydney, N. S., who had been on strike since Tuesday.

Labor conciliators were sent to Sydney and Sault Ste. Marie and Labor Minister Humphrey Mitchell has asked the "active intervention" of Philip Murray, C. I. O. president.

Mr. Mitchell made it known tonight that the government was willing to meet Saturday with representatives of employers and employes of the steel plants tied up by the strike.

The only basic steel plant remaining in operation in the Dominion is that of the Steel Company of Canada at Hamilton, Ont., and workers there expect to aproach the company shortly regarding negotiation of a contract.

GOP Senators

Hurl Charges Against Flynn

Senate Assured Committee Will Not Act Without Hearings.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 (AP) — A barrage of Republican charges against the record of Edward J. Flynn, retiring Democratic National Chairman, prompted Chairman Connally (D-Tex) to assure the Senate today the Foreign Relations Committee would not act on Flynn's appointment as minister to Australia before holding hearings.

Leading the attack against confirmation, Senator Bridges (R-NH) read four specific charges against Flynn. These ranged from the accusation that Flynn's law firm once represented a man who presented a gift of money to the Japanese government to the allegation that the Democratic chieftain had been cleared in a "paving block scandal" by a grand jury "conducted by a political stooge of Flynn's."

After listening to these charges, Connally arose to remark that the Foreign Relations Committee, scheduled to consider the nomination at a meeting tomorrow morning, "hoped to perform its duty."

"We did not appoint Mr. Flynn, nor have we expressed our views, but we will not let him be confirmed in advance of a hearing," Connally added.

Says Bridges Welcomed

Connally remarked that Bridges would be welcomed at the hearing and could bring along, if he chose, a Belgian paving block to exhibit there. Bridges had previously shown the Senate such a block, tied in a purple ribbon.

"The senator from New Hampshire is welcome to attend the meeting," Connally said. "We'll hear him and look over everything he brings. We have sanitary facilities in the committee room where he can dispose of any bucket of slop he may have."

Obviously angered, Bridges shouted back:

"There won't be any bucket of slop unless Flynn is there in it."

Previously, Bridges had read to the Senate a series of four charges he had outlined at a press conference yesterday. Advised of the accusations, Flynn subsequently issued a statement asserting they were "wanton falsehoods" which he was prepared to disprove fully.

Bridges Charges

Reading from a manuscript, Bridges made these charges against Flynn:

"1. I charge that Edward J. Flynn, through the law firm of Goldwater and Flynn, represented a Mr. Sarge Rubinstein, who at the time of his retainer with Flynn had large Japanese interests and that this Mr. Rubinstein was closely associated with one Guiji Kasai, who was a registered agent of the Japanese government and was in this country until two weeks before Pearl Harbor. Rubinstein also presented a gift of money to the Japanese government at a time when our relations with Japan were clearly strained. x x x

"2. I charge that Edward J. Flynn as chancellor of the city of New York invested public funds in the State Title and Mortgage Company, causing the city to lose over a million dollars. Flynn's law firm subsequently became general counsel to this company and his law partner, Mr. Monroe Goldwater, served as director.

"3. I charge that Edward J. Flynn appointed Dutch Schultz, noted criminal and murderer, a deputy sheriff when Flynn was sheriff of Bronx County. Schultz was appointed by Flynn just a few months after Flynn took office, and Schultz served the full tenure of Flynn's incumbency as sheriff, even though he was a known criminal and a fugitive from justice from many states.

"4. I charge that the grand jury investigation of the paving block scandal was conducted by a political stooge of Flynn's and was improperly handled to the disgust of at least one member of the grand jury, who will appear before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to tell why Flynn was exonerated; and I further charge that the foreman of the jury, Mr. Daniel Daly, received a federal appointment about two months after the Flynn whitewash and is now employed by a federal department in New York city."

The latter charge referred to an investigation by a Bronx borough grand jury of complaints that New York city materials and labor had been used to pave a courtyard at Flynn's Lake Mahopac estate in New York. The grand jury exonerated Flynn of any wrongdoing in this connection.

Navy Pilots Who Sighted Rickenbacker Identified

Lieutenants Forrest and Boyd Are Credited in Rescue

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 (AP).—Navy pilots who located Captain Eddie Rickenbacker and his companions floating on a rubber raft in the Pacific were identified by the Navy today as Lieutenants (j.g.) G. T. Forrest, twenty-five years old, of Oakland, Calif., and J. G. Boyd, twenty-two, of Richmond, Va.

Their sighting of the yellow raft in which Captain Rickenbacker and his companions had floated for twenty-one days after being forced down led directly to the rescue Nov. 11.

Subsequently Lieutenant W. F. Eadie, twenty-nine, of Evanston, Ill., landed his Navy plane beside the raft, removed Captain Rickenbacker and his two companions, and began to taxi toward his base. Ensign J. M. Weeks, twenty-two, of 192 Lark Street, Albany, commanded the motor torpedo boat which arrived a short time later and aided in taking the rescued flyers to the base.

House Naval Committee To Review War at Sea

Inquiry Expected to Provide More War News for Public

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 (AP).—Anxious to give the public all information possible within the bounds of military security, the House Naval Committee decided to undertake today a broad review of American sea warfare since Pearl Harbor.

Chairman Carl Vinson, Democrat, of Georgia, reported that the inquiry would get under way with Vice-Admiral F. H. Horne, Vice-Chief of Naval Operations, called as the first witness. Admiral Horne's testimony was expected to lay a broad foundation for a continuing study which will cover almost every phase of the naval program from the training of Waves to the battleship-versus-carrier argument.

The first session will be held behind closed doors. Representative Vinson said details of naval strategy could not be disclosed for obvious reasons, but that Admiral Horne—after the meeting—would make public a statement covering in general terms as much of his testimony as he deemed safe.

Before the committee will be brought wounded veterans from the Solomon Islands and other engagements, authorities on naval construction and strategy, and technicians familiar with costs, supplies and training.

While much of their testimony will be offered in public, Mr. Vinson said that those who—like Admiral Horne—talked "off the record" would also release as much as possible of their information in the form of statements.

He indicated that one part of the hearing would be devoted to determining what has been done by the Navy toward replacing men with Waves "so that these fighting men now holding down desk jobs can go to sea and do some fighting."

SUBMARINES SINK 2 SHIPS

One British and One Panamanian Vessel Are Torpedoed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 (AP)—A medium-sized British merchant vessel was torpedoed and sunk by an enemy submarine early in November in the Midsouth Atlantic, and a survivor has been landed at Norfolk, Va., the Navy reported today.

It also announced the sinking of a small Panamanian merchant vessel by an enemy submarine in the South Atlantic off the West Coast of Africa about the middle of November. Survivors have been landed at Philadelphia.

12 CHINESE SEIZED IN PLOT TO EVADE SERVING IN ARMY

Leader Accused by FBI of Aiding Countrymen to Escape Draft

JAN 15 1943

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 — (AP) — The Justice department announced today the arrest of 12 Chinese in connection with an alleged conspiracy to evade the draft.

Eleven of those taken into custody by the Federal Bureau of Investigation are to be arraigned in Washington, while the other, Wong Sam, will be arraigned at Richmond, Va., on charge of bribery and attempt to evade military service.

J. Edgar Hoover, FBI director, named Wong Lee, 42, as the leader in the alleged conspiracy, asserting that he had accompanied many Chinese to induction centers and "made himself obnoxious by injecting himself into the examination as an interpreter, stating that the Chinese registrant was unable to speak or understand English."

Mr. Hoover asserted that investigation indicated that Wong Lee had received approximately $20,000 from Chinese who had escaped military service through his help.

The FBI chief said that out of about 90 Chinese who reported for induction at nearby Fort Myer, Va., approximately 70 were rejected on grounds of illiteracy and that others were rejected for "simulated physical disability."

Mr. Hoover asserted that investigation showed that the Chinese had transferred their draft registration from New York and Boston in order to utilize Lee's services.

ICKES OPPOSES PUERTO RICO BILL

Fights Proposal to Set Definite Term of Office for Governor.

JAN 15 1943

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—(AP) Secretary Ickes said at his press conference today that he was not in favor of proposals for a definite term for the governor of Puerto Rico, "especially when its directed to one person."

Bills have been introduced in both House and Senate to end the term of Governor Rexford Guy Tugwell of Puerto Rico and to limit the terms of his successors to two years.

"I don't favor punitive legislation" Secretary Ickes asserted.

The House bill was introduced by Bolivar Pagan, resident commissioner of Puerto Rico, and outspoken critic of Gov. Tugwell. The Senate bill was by Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich).

"Pagan is too damned busy," Secretary Ickes retorted, "trying to remove someone else who is doing a good job."

He added that he hadn't heard of commissioner Pagan introducing anything on a resolution from the Puerto Rican legislature to remove the resident commissioner from his job.

U. S. Dispatch Rider Held Up

Armed Men Search Official Papers Carried by Soldier in Rhode Island.

JAN 15 1943

North Kingstown, R. I., Jan. 14 (A. P.).—Four men held up an unarmed army dispatch rider at gunpoint last night, thumbed through official dispatches carried in the glove compartment of his small truck, then fled without taking anything, State Police Lieut. Joseph Marceau reported.

Lieut. Marceau quoted the soldier, Private Raymond L. Mosher, of Springfield, Mass., as saying that one of the men, after carefully examining the papers, declared:

"It isn't here."

There was no intimation of what the men were looking for.

The men returned the papers to the soldier, told him not to movt, then drove away in a small black sedan, Lieut. Marceau related. He added:

All of the men wore caps. Two had overcoats and two wore mackinaws. Mosher had slowed down at an intersection when one of two men who were visible beside the road asked him if he could direct them to Providence. Hardly had they spoken when another man appeared and pointed a revolver or automatic pistol at the soldier.

The armed man jumped into the seat beside Mosher and ordered him to drive to a secluded lane about a mile away. The others climbed into the back of the truck. In the lonely lane, the men, with a fourth companion, rifled through the papers. As they drove away, Mosher attempted to note the registration number, but he said the license plate apparently had been covered with a coat or cloth. He drove to the toll house of the Jamestown Bridge and telephoned State police of the Wickford barracks, who ordered all roads guarded in that section of southern Rhode Island.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation declined comment, but it was learned from a reliable source that investigators did not believe espionage agents were involved.

GERMAN PRISONER SLAIN BY RANCHER

JAN 15 1943

Two Others Fleeing from New Mexico Camp Are Captured.

ROSWELL, N. M., Jan. 1—(AP) A German prisoner of war was killed, another wounded and a third captured last night by an Artesia rancher who surprised them at his ranch home after their escape from a Roswell internment camp, Col. Murray F. Gibbons, camp commandant, reported today.

Colonel Gibbons identified the trio as "German prisoners of war," in an official statement.

"They attempted to steal a car near Artesia," the statement said. The owner of the car killed one of them, slightly wounded another one. The two living prisoners were taken into custody by the civil authorities at Artesia . . . and they are now in our hands."

Colonel Gibbons permitted disclosure by civil authorities of the identity of the rancher as Mark Fanning.

The officer said he had been informed by civil authorities that Mr. Fanning surprised the men as they were tampering with his car during the night. After sending his wife for help, Mr. Fanning shot when the trio tried to bolt.

Col. Gibbons said the men were caught on the Fanning farm and turned over to the Army authorities. Artesia is about 45 miles south of Roswell.

5 SULLIVANS DIED, SURVIVOR WRITES

Seaman on Cruiser Juneau Says 4 Brothers Sank With Ship, Other Succumbed

JAN 15 1943

LETTER TO THEIR PARENTS

Mate Hopes Lives Were Not Lost in Vain—Wallace Sends His Praise

WATERLOO, Ia., Jan. 14 (AP)—The last slender thread of hope that their five sons, reported lost in the sinking of the Cruiser Juneau, might still be alive, snapped today for Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Sullivan.

A letter sent from Chicago told how George, 29, eldest of the five brothers, had died on a life raft and the other four had gone down with the ship in action in the Solomons last November. The other four were Francis H., 26; Joseph E., 23; Madison A., 22, and Albert L., 20.

Navy officers have called the brothers' loss probably the heaviest suffered by a single family in American naval history, since Navy policy has been to divide members of a family in wartime service. The enlistment of the five Sullivans Jan. 3, 1942, however, had been conditioned on their remaining together.

Mrs. Sullivan is scheduled to christen a Navy tug soon at an Oregon shipyard. The boys were all single except Albert, whose wife and 22-month-old son also live here.

The Sullivans declined to disclose the name of the writer of the letter and said only that he was a Nebraska boy who was writing from Chicago while awaiting assignment.

The letter read in part:

"First, let me introduce myself. I was a sailor on the Juneau with your boys. George was a special friend of mine. I am afraid all hope is gone for your boys.

"George got off but died on the life raft I was on.

"The other boys were below at the time. They went down with the ship and did not suffer.

"It was a sad and pathetic sight to see George looking for his brothers, but all to no avail.

"George and I made several liberties together and always kidded about coming home and going back on the railroad after the war was over.

"I don't know whether a letter of this sort helps you or hurts. But it's the truth. I saw it.

"In the meantime, may I wish you a pleasant trip to Oregon and I trust you to carry on in fine spirit. I truly hope your boys' lives didn't go to no avail.

"I will try to avenge them for you."

Wallace Sends Praise

WATERLOO, Iowa, Jan. 14 (AP)—Vice President Wallace has complimented Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Sullivan of Waterloo for their display of "marvelous spirit" after receiving the news that their five sons, 20 to 29 years old, were listed by the Navy as "missing in action," following the sinking of the U. S. S. Juneau in the Pacific Nov. 14.

Mr. Wallace's telegram, addressed to Mr. Sullivan, said:

"Guy Gillette (Senator from Iowa) and I were talking last night about the marvelous spirit which you and your wife have displayed in facing one of the most extraordinary tragedies which has ever been met by any family in the United States.

"It is the spirit of the Sullivans which will enable the United Nations to gain a complete victory."

From all corners of the country other messages of sympathy came to Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan.

Mrs. Roosevelt Urges World Police Force

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt last night advocated formation of an international police force and universal treatment of economic problems to guarantee a lasting peace.

Mrs. Roosevelt spoke at one of a series of lectures being held by Columbia University's new war information center.

MOSCOW JAN 14-(AP)-ADMIRAL WILLIAM H.STANDLEY, U.S.AMBASSADOR TO RUSSIA, DECLARED TODAY HIS MAJOR IMPRESSION AFTER HIS THREE-MONTH VOYAGE TO THE UNITED STATES AND BACK TO THE SOVIET UNION WAS THE IMPORTANCE OF "UNITY OF EFFORT AND PURPOSE" IN PROSECUTION OF THE WAR

"I INTEND TO INTENSIFY MY EFFORTS TO INCREASE THE EXCHANGE OF INFORMATION BETWEEN THE TWO COUNTRIES MAINTAINING FRIENDLY RELATIONS

30.24-341

AND AN ATTITUDE OF COOPERATION WHICH ARE ESSENTIAL NOT ONLY DURING BUT AFTER THE WAR," THE ADMIRAL SAID AT HIS FIRST PRESS CONFERENCE AFTER HIS RETURN.

"THE ONE BIG IMPRESSION RESULTING FROM MY VOYAGE AND MY RETURN VIRTUALLY ACROSS THREE CONTINENTS AND THE ATLANTIC OCEAN IS THE VITAL IMPORTANCE TO THE WAR EFFORT OF THE UNITY OF EFFORT AND PURPOSE ON THE PART OF THE NATIONS FIGHTING TO PREVENT THE IMPOSITION OF OTHER IDEOLOGIES ON OUR OWN."

OF THE SECOND FRONT, STANDLEY SAID: JAN 15 1943

"I THINK THE AFRICAN CAMPAIGN TOOK THE EDGE OFF THE QUESTION OF A SECOND FRONT BUT THE RUSSIANS HAVE NOT GIVEN UP THE IDEA THERE MUST BE A SECOND FRONT IN EUROPE."

ASKED WHETHER HE HAD NOTICED RUSSIAN ANXIETY AGAIN ARISING OVER THE ABSENCE OF A SECOND FRONT IN EUROPE AND THE LAG IN THE AFRICAN CAMPAIGN, THE ADMIRAL SAID:

"WE ARE ALL A LITTLE BIT APPREHENSIVE OR AT LEAST WONDERING WHAT HAS CAUSED THE SLOWDOWN. I HAVE NOT NOTICED THAT IT IS ANY MORE INTENSIVE AMONG THE RUSSIANS THAN AMONG OTHER PEOPLE.

"THE WHOLE ATTITUDE OF THE AMERICAN PEOPLE IS THAT THERE IS NO QUESTION BUT THAT WE ARE GOING TO WIN THIS WAR. THE ONLY QUESTION IS WEN."

JAN 15 1943

STANDLEY SAID THAT "PEOPLE REALIZE THE GREAT HARDSHIPS AND SACRIFICES THE RUSSIANS ARE MAKING BEHIND THE LINES AND ARE IN COMPLETE SYMPATHY WITH THOSE SACRIFICES."

THE AMBASSADOR PAID A COURTESY CALL YESTERDAY TO FOREIGN COMMISSAR VACHESLAV MOLOTOV AND EXPECTS TO SEE PREMIER STALIN SOON TO DELIVER A "NUMBER OF MESSAGES" FROM PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT.

HE SAID MOLOTOV HAS AN "AIR OF INCREASED CONFIDENCE IN ULTIMATE VICTORY" DURING THEIR TALK FOR MORE THAN AN HOUR IN THE KREMLIN.

MOLOTOV, THE AMBASSADOR ADDED, WAS "VERY MUCH INTERESTED IN THE QUESTIONS OF THE SITUATION AT HOME, THE ATTITUDE OF THE PEOPLE, PRODUCTION NORMS, ETC."

SPEAKING OF SOVIET-AMERICAN COOPERATION GENERALLY, STANDLEY SAID "THERE IS NO QUESTION BUT THAT THE SITUATION IS MUCH IMPROVED."

"THE DELIVERY OF SUPPLIES IS CONSTANTLY ON THE UPGRADE, PRODUCTION HAS IMPROVED AND THAT MEANS INCREASED ASSISTANCE TO RUSSIA, ALTHOUGH TRANSPORTATION IS THE QUESTION MARK," HE DECLARED.

STANDLEY MADE TWO SIDE TRIPS ON HIS RETURN, GOING TO ERITREA AND LATER FLYING FROM TEHERAN VIA TASHKENT TO KUIBYSHEV TO GET WHAT HE CALLED A "BIRD'S-EYE VIEW" OF EASTERN RUSSIA.

THE AMBASSADOR, WHO FIRST VICITED RUSSIA IN 1896 AS MIDSHIPMAN WHEN THE U.S.FLEET PAID A CALL AT VLADIVOSTOK IN CONNECTION WITH THE CORONATION OF THE CZAR, SAID HE NOTICED GROWING RUSSIAN CONFIDENCE DURING EACH OF HIS THREE WAR-TIME ARRIVALS.

JAN 15 1943

WHEN HE CAME TO MOSCOW IN SEPTEMBER, 1941, FOR THE THREE-POWER SUPPLY CONFERENCE, HE SAID THE ATTITUDE WAS ONE OF "GRIM DETERMINATION."

WHEN HE RETURNED LAST MARCH AS AMBASSADOR, HE SAID HE FIRST FELT THE ATMOSPHERE OF CONFIDENCE WHICH HE NOW DESCRIBED AS INCREASED.

THE AMBASSADOR SAID HE PLANS TO SPEND MORE TIME IN MOSCOW THAN BEFORE, WHEN HIS HEADQUARTERS WERE IN KUIBYSHEV. HIS STAFF HAS BEEN INCREASED BY SEVERAL SECRETARIES. LOY HENDERSON, WHO HAS ACTED AS CHARGE D'AFFAIRES DURING HIS ABSENCE, HAS BEEN RECALLED TO THE STATE DEPARTMENT.

HE ALSO SAID THAT "GREAT QUANTITIES OF USED CLOTHING WERE ON THE WAY FROM THE UNITED STATES."

THIS SPOKESMAN ADDED THAT AFTER AN INVESTIGATION IT HAD BEEN DECIDED THAT THE ONLY NEED FOR "FREE" DISTRIBUTION WAS OF MILK. HE SAID THAT THE RED CROSS INVESTIGATORS AND A REPRESENTATIVE OF THE ROCKEFELLER FOUNDATION HAD CONCLUDED THAT ALL OTHER NEEDS COULD BE SUPPLIED THROUGH REGULAR CHANNELS AND SOLD TO THE PUBLIC. HE SAID IT WOULD BE NECESSARY TO ESTABLISH FIXED PRICES FOR GOODS SUCH AS USED CLOTHING SENT FROM THE UNITED STATES TO PREVENT PROFITEERING, AND SAID THE MACHINERY WAS BEING SET UP.

ALGIERS, JAN. 14--(AP)--THE AMERICAN RED CROSS ANNOUNCED TODAY THAT POWDERED MILK FROM THE UNITED STATES IS BEING MADE AVAILABLE FREE FOR ALL CHILDREN FROM ONE TO 14 IN 15 OF THE LARGEST CITIES IN ALGERIA.

NINE DISTRIBUTION CENTERS SERVING 11,000 CHILDREN WERE OPENED IN ALGIERS.

THE MILK DISTRIBUTION SYSTEM IS TO BE EXTENDED TO FRENCH MOROCCO AND FRENCH WEST AFRICA, THE RED CROSS SAID.

TUNISIA (ADD)

THE FIRST BOMBS HIT BEFORE JOE LIEBLING, OF THE NEW YORKER MAGAZINE, AND I, THE ONLY REPORTERS HERE, WERE ABLE TO GRAB OUR HELMETS AND GET TO THE DOOR OF A DUGOUT, WHERE WE CROUCHED JUST IN TIME TO SEE SHELLS FROM A BURST OF FIRE HIT A MESSERSCHMITT. IT DIVED STRAIGHT INTO THE GROUND FAR ACROSS THE FIELD.

TWO MORE STICKS OF BOMBS HIT A FEW HUNDRED YARDS AWAY. THE CONCUSSION ROCKED THE EARTH AND STIRRED UP CLOUDS IN OUR DUGOUT, SENDING TRICKLES OF DIRT DOWN UPON US AS WE HOVERED IN THE ENTRY WAY.

THERE WERE SOME MORE EXPLOSIONS AND THEN A STRANGE SILENCE.

WE CLIMBED OUT AND JOINED THE FIELD OFFICERS, WHO WATCHED WITH BINOCULARS AS THE P-40S CHASED THE REMAINDER OF THE RAIDING PARTY FAR IN THE DISTANCE.

WITH A FRENCH LIAISON OFFICER AT THE WHEEL, WE MADE A WILD AND ROUGH AUTOMOBILE TRIP AROUND THE EDGE OF THE FIELD THEN ACROSS ROUTH FLATLANDS TO THE SMOKING WRECKAGE OF A MESSERSCHMITT.

WRECKAGE WAS SCATTERED OVER A WIDE AREA.

JAN 15 1943

DRIVING BACK TO THE DUGOUT WE SIZED UP THE RESULTS OF THE RAID. NOT A SINGLE AMERICAN PLANE HAD BEEN HIT.

A SECOND JUNKERS (88) WAS DAMAGED BY LIEUT. JAMES H. RADDIN, OF HATTIESBURG, MISS. HE WAS ON PATROL WITH SCHOLL WHEN THE BOMBERS AND THEIR ESCORT SUDDENLY SWEPT DOWN TO THE ATTACK.

"I GOT IN GOOD SHOTS ON THE JUNKERS BUT JUST THEN A MESSERSCHMITT GOT ON MY TAIL AND I WAS IN TROUBLE," RADDIN SAID. "SCHOLL, HOWEVER, TOOK CARE OF THE MESSERSCHMITT FOR ME."

ALL OF US AROUND THIS MOST ADVANCED UNITED STATES AIR BASE SHOULD HAVE KNOWN THE ATTACK WAS COMING BUT WE FAILED TO APPRECIATE THE UNCANNY INTUITION OF MAJOR PHILIP G.COCHRAN, OF ERIE, PENNA., WHOSE P-40 SQUADRON HAS MADE LIFE HELL FOR THE GERMANS AND ITALIANS IN SOUTHERN TUNISIA IN RECENT WEEKS.

TWO HOURS BEFORE HE HAD REMARKED WITH A GRIN, "I FIGURE JERRY IS DUE ABOUT 2:30 TODAY."

THE RAIDERS ARRIVED AT 2:45 P.M.

JAN 15 1943

I WAS IN COCHRAN'S DUGOUT AND HAD JUST BORROWED THE NEWEST NEWSPAPER IN THE WHOLE CAMP, A SIX WEEKS OLD ISSUE OF THE HARTFORD, CONN., COURANT, WHEN I HEARD SOMEONE YELL "THERE ARE A HALF-DOZEN BOMBERS COMING OVER."

WE DIDN'T KNOW IT THEN BUT ABOVE THE JUNKERS WERE AT LEAST THREE MESSERSCHMITTS.

AT A FORWARD U.S. FIGHTER BASE IN TUNISIA, JAN. 13-(DELAYED)-(AP)-MAJ.PHILIP G.COCHRAN OF ERIE, PA., WAS AWARDED THE CROIX DE GUERRE TODAY FOR THE MONTH-LONG PLASTERING OF THE AXIS AIR AND GROUND FORCES IN SOUTHERN TUNISIA BY HIM AND THE AMERICAN P-40 FIGHTER SQUADRON HE LEADS.

HE IS REPORTED TO HAVE DESTROYED THE GERMAN HEADQUARTERS IN KAIROUAN RECENTLY BY A SINGLE BOMB HE CARRIED UNDER HIS FIGHTER.

A CITATION BY GENERAL KOELTZ, FRENCH COMMANDER, CREDITED COCHRAN WITH HIGH EFFECTIVENESS IN SUPPORT OF FRENCH TROOPS. THE MAJOR'S SQUADRON PROTECTED THE FORCES BOTH BY DRIVING OFF GERMAN DIVE-BOMBERS AND BY SHATTERING ARMORED COLUMNS WHICH WERE MASSING TO ATTACK FRENCH POSITIONS.

JAN 15 1943

THE 32-YEAR-OLD FLIER RECEIVED WORD OF THE CITATION ONLY A FEW HOURS AFTER HIS SQUADRON JOINED WITH ANOTHER P-40 SQUADRON TO BREAK UP A DIVE-BOMBING ATTACK ON THIS DESERT AIRDROME. THEY DESTROYED A JUNKERS 88 AND A MESSERSCHMITT 109 AND DAMAGED ANOTHER JUNKERS.

CAIRO, JAN 14-(AP)-WITH GROUND FORCES REPORTED INACTIVE, ALLIED AIR SQUADRONS SWEPT OUT YESTERDAY TO RAIN BOMBS ON THE FORWARD POSITIONS OF MARSHAL ROMMEL'S AFRICA CORPS AND ENGAGED IN AN AERIAL BATTLE THAT SAW AT LEAST FOUR MESSERSCHMITT 109 FIGHTER PLANES DOWNED, A BRITISH COMMUNIQUE SAID TODAY.

EIGHT PLANES FAILED TO RETURN FROM BOMBING MISSIONS THAT BEGAN TUESDAY NIGHT, IT WAS ANNOUNCED.

ENEMEY LANDING GROUNDS AND TARGETS NEAR MISURATA WERE BOMBED TUESDAY NIGHT, AND THERE WERE MACHINE GUN ATTACKS ON TRANSPORT CONVOYS IN TUNISIA AND TRIPOLITANIA. THESE ATTACKS WERE FOLLOWED UP WITH RAIDS ON THE TUNISIAN PORT OF SOUSSE, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID.

A MERCHANT VESSEL ALSO WAS HIT OFF THE TUNISIAN COAST, IT WAS REPORTED.

THE AIR DUEL YESTERDAY DEVELOPED OVER THE TARGET AREA, THE BRITISH REPORTED.

JAN 15 1943

"OUR ESCORTING FIGHTERS, ASSISTED BY RETURN FIRE BOM BOMBERS, SHOT DOWN AT LEAST FOUR MESSERSCHMITT-109S AND DAMAGED OTHERS," THE COMMUNIQUE SAID.

"OUR FIGHTERS ALSO CARRIED OUT A SUCCESSFUL LOW FLYING ATTACK ON A LANDING GROUND."

ENEMY AIR OPERATIONS, IT WAS SAID, WERE PRINCIPALLY DEFENSIVE.

CAIRO-(CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)-THE UNITED STATES ARMY POST OFFICE IN THE MIDDLE EAST HAS TAKEN IN SOME MORE TERRITORY. IT IS FUNCTIONING IN LIBYA NOW, WEST OF BENGASI.

THE POSTMAN MAKES HIS ROUNDS, BY JEEP OR PLANE, WITHIN SOUND AND RANGE OF THE BOMBS AND SHELLS OF BATTLE. THE MAIL ALWAYS GOES THROUGH, AND THE NEW POSTMASTER GENERAL FOR THE MIDDLE EAST, LIEUT. COL. A.J.HARKINS OF HAZLETON, PA., IS DETERMINED THAT IT ALWAYS WILL.

THERE IS A MOBILE POST OFFICE UNIT SET UP WITH EVERY AMERICAN GROUP IN THE FIELD, DOING A REGULAR BUSINESS IN LETTERS, STAMPS, MONEY ORDERS AND EVEN CABLES.

LIEUTENANT JAMES HUDSON OF PHILADELPHIA SET UP THE FRONT-LINE POST OFFICES ON A FLYING TRIP RECENTLY.

DO THE SOLDIERS LIKE IT? WELL, WHEN LIEUTENANT HUDSON RETURNED FROM A WEEK'S TOUR HE HAD A GERMAN AMMUNITION BOX FILLED WITH MONEY AND MONEY ORDERS MADE OUT IN THE MIDST OF A BOMBARDMENT. AN AMERICAN AIR FORCES FIGHTER GROUP ALONE SENT HIM BACK WITH $15,000 FOR THE FOLKS BACK HOME.

"NO MATTER HOW FAR OR HOW FAST THEY GO, WE'RE GOING TO KEEP UP WITH THE BOYS WITH THE MAIL," VOWED COLONEL HARKINS.

Tel-Aviv, Palestine (Correspondence of the Associated Press)—Tel-Aviv, with its street signs in English and Hebrew but where all the languages of the world are more or less legal tender, is a favorite spot for American soldiers on leave.

First Lieut. Harold Caplan, an air force man from Allentown, Pa., who came from Cairo with me, even found that his Lehigh University German, with a strong overtone of Pennsylvania Dutch would get him by all right—just as well, in fact, as did his friend, Second Lieut. W.H.Bentley with his soft San Antonio drawl.

The strange feeling of being not too far from home in a modern city main rumbling [illegible] a New York City subway persisted when we went to the movie, in spite of the fact that French and Hebrew subtitles accompanied the English dialogue. I was accompanied by Capt. Joseph H. Richardson of Norfolk, Va.; Capt. Jay L. Werner of Oklahoma City and Dallas; First Lieutenants Hyslant Cary of Alexandria, Va., and Raymond Bailey of Tallahassee, Fla., and Second Lieutenants Emil Vaughn and Fred Landon of Washington. We sat in the front row, balcony, and Werner said it felt like Dallas.

But all around they were talking French, German, Hebrew, Rumanian and a lot of other languages we couldn't even recognize —for native Tel

HE CLIMBED A TREE AT DUSK ON THE FORWARD LINE OF OUTPOSTS AND REMAINED THEIR ALL NIGHT AND UNTIL THE AFTERNOON OF THE FOLLOWING DAY, EFFECTIVELY DIRECTING THE FIRD. ON ANOTHER OCCASION, HE VOLUNTEERED AS AN OBSERVER AND ADVANCED TO A POINT WITHIN 30 YARDS OF THE TARGET, REMAINING THERE AND DIRECTING FIRE UNTIL THE ENEMY TARGET WAS KNOCKED OUT. HE WAS KILLED IN ACTION DEC.12 WHILE AGAIN DIRECTING MORTAR FIRE ON EMENY POSITIONS.

LIEUTS.BURGER AND CALLAHAN, P-40 PILOTS, EACH SHOT DOWN A ZERO OUT OF A FLIGHT OF EIGHT ZEROS AND 15 JAPANESE DIVEBOMBERS WHICH ATTACKED THEM DURING A PATROL MISSION OVER BUNA, NEW GUINEA, NOV. 22. CALLAHAN WAS A FLIGHT LEADER IN ONE OF THE P-40 FORMATIONS.

LIEUT.JONES SHOT DOWN TWO ZERO FIGHTERS NEAR MOROBE, NEW GUINEA, JUNE 9 AFTER THEY ATTACKED A FORMATION OF AMERICAN BOMBERS ON A RAID AGAINST LAE AND SALAMAUA. JONES LED THE SECOND OF TWO FLIGHTS OF P-40 PLANES ESCORTING BOMBERS.

SERGT.LILLBACK WAS RADIO OPERATOR ON A FORTRESS ON RECONNAISSANCE OVER RABAUL HARBOR AUG. 29. TWO OF FOUR ENEMY FIGHTERS WHICH ATTACKED WERE SHOT DOWN. LILLBACK OPERATED A MACHINE GUN.

CORP.THOMAS WAS A MEMBER OF THE CREW OF A SINGLE FLYING FORTRESS ON RECONNAISSANCE OVER RABAUL OCT. 9, TO PHOTOGRAPH AIR RAID DAMAGE TO NAVAL AND AIR BASES. (KX) WITH AMERICAN TROOPS IN NEW GUINEA,JAN.10-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE VERY CHARACTER OF THE FRONT LAUGHINGLY CALLED THE SANANANDA FRONT ACCOUNTS IN LARGE DEGREE FOR THE SLOW PROGRESS OF ALLIED TROOPS IN CLEANING OUT THE VESTIGE OF ENEMY STRENGTH ON THE PAPUAN PENINSULA.

JAN 15 1943

AN ATTACK IN FORCE IS DUE TO BE LAUNCHED IN TIME, BUT NATURALLY IT WON'T COME UNTIL THE JAP POSITIONS---WELL CONCEALED MACHINEGUN POSTS, LOG GUN EMPLACEMENTS AND PILLBOXES---HAVE BEEN LOCATED AS MUCH AS POSSIBLE BY SMALL PATROLS WHICH CONSTANTLY ARE WORKING THE AREA.

I VISITED THIS "FRONT" TODAY WITH A UNIT OF AMERICAN TROOPS AND HAD OPPORTUNITY TO SURVEY IT CLOSELY WHILE THE MEN RESTED ALONG THE JUNGLE-BORDERED TRAIL LEADING TO SANANANDA POINT ITSELF.

ACTUALLY, THE FRONT IS COMPOSED OF ENTIRELY SIMILAR PATCHES OF JUNGLE SWAMP, IN SOME OF WHICH THERE ARE JAPS, IN OTHERS AMERICANS AND AUSTRALIANS.

BEYOND ONE ALLIED FORCE, THE ENEMY HOLDS A WEDGE-SHAPED POSITION BETWEEN THE MAIN SANANANDA TRACK AND ANOTHER TRAIL BRANCHING OFF TO CAPE KILLERTON. BUT BEYOND THOSE JAPS THERE ARE AMERICANS WHO HAVE CLOSED OFF A PART OF THE ENEMY'S POSSIBLE LINE OF WITHDRAWAL.

AND WITHIN EARSHOT OF THOSE AMERICANS---DRAWN MOSTLY FROM MONTANA, IDAHO, OREGON AND WASHINGTON---THERE IS A JAP FORCE WHOSE OUTPOSTS ARE LESS THAN 50 YARDS AWAY.

JAN 15 1943

IT'S RARE FOR ANYBODY TO SEE ANY OF THE OTHERS---FRIEND OR FOE ---UNLESS THEY STAND UP OR MOVE ABOUT AND THUS EXPOSE THEMSELVES.

THE AMERICANS HERE ARE A FINE LOOKING LOT; HUSKY AND HEALTHY, "BLOODY BIG CHAPS," AS ONE AUSSIE SOLDIER PUT IT.

I HAD A JEEP RIDE TO WITHIN A COUPLE OF HUNDRED YARDS OF THE NEAREST JAP---CLOSE ENOUGH FOR A STARTER---WITH ONE OF THE BIGGEST PVT.LEE RICHARDSON OF HARLOWTOWN,MONT., TO WHOM HANDLING A JEEP IS SMALL STUFF AFTER HIS REGULAR JOB AS A CAT SKINNER---TRACTOR DRIVER TO THE LAYMAN.

I SNAPPED STORIES ABOUT THE STATES (THEY'RE ALL EAGER TO KNOW PROHIBITION HAS BEEN PUT INTO EFFECT) WITH PVTS.H.E.BROWN OF (662 FRENCH) ADA,MICH., AND MAURICE DERDEY,JR., OF (501 NORTH 13TH) FORT SMITH,ARK.

A GREY-HAIRED AMBULANCE DRIVER, PFC.FRANK PIERCE OF BROADUS, MONT., WAS WONDERING HOW HE'D MAKE OUT CARRYING LITTERS INSTEAD OF DRIVING AN AMBULANCE WITH HIS PARTNER, WLATER EFENBECK OF MAXWELL,NEB.

JAN 15 1943

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, JAN.13-(DELAYED)-(AP)-BILLY MITCHELL MEDIUM BOMBERS AND DOUGLAS ~~HAVOC~~ ATTACK PLANES SWEPT LOW OVER ENEMY POSITIONS AT LAE AND SANANANDA POINT TODAY, BUT THE JAPS JUST WOULDN'T COME OUT AND PLAY.

LIGHT ANTIAIRCRAFT FIRE GREENTED THE MITCHELLS, WHICH CENTERED THEIR ATTENTION ON LAE, BUT NO ZEROS ROSE TO INTERCEPT THE RAIDERS AT EITHER PLACE.

AMONG MITCHELL PILOTS WHO MADE SUCCESSFUL BOMBING RUNS OVER THE BIG ENEMY BASE IN NORTHEASTERN NEW GUINEA WERE CAPT. RALPH CHELO, (522 BROADHEAD) BETHLEHEM, PA.; LIEUT. WILLIAM BRANDON, (3040 TRAVIS AVENUE) FORT WORTH, TEX.; LIEUT. FORREST DARBY, (1819 49TH STREET) SACRAMENTO, CALIF., AND LIEUT. JOHN WATKINS, MOUNT IDA, ARK.

WATKINS, WHO HAD LIEUT. JOHN DONEGAN OF PHOENIX, ARIZ., AS CO-PILOT AND LIEUT. LOUIS RITACCO OF (225 IRVIN AVENUE) PORT CHESTER, N.Y., AS NAVIGATOR, SAID HIS PLANE AND OTHERS HIT A WHARF AND BUILDINGS AT LAE.

JAN 15 1943

"THE WEATHER WAS PERFECT AND WE HAD AN UNUSUALLY GOOD RUN," WATKINS SAID. "ONE TARGET WE GOT WAS A BIG BUILDING."

CAPTAIN CHELO SAID HIS BOMBARDIER, LIEUT. VINCENT KAELIN OF LOUISVILLE, KY., DROPPED A LOAD OF BOMBS NEAR THE JETTY AND A BARGE AN OBSERVER ABOARD ONE PLANE, CHELO REPORTED, TOLD OF SEEING A BIG EXPLOSION AMONG BUILDINGS.

AMONG THE PILOTS WHO LEISURELY BOMBED AND STRAFED THE JAPS AT SANANANDA WERE LIEUTS. WILLIAM LANGLEY, BOISE, IDAHO; WILLIAM BECK, PECOS, TEX., AND PAUL KENDRACH, KINGS JUNCTION, OHIO.

JAN 15 1943

LANGLEY FLEW "KENTUCKY RED," A PLANE BELONGING TO LIEUT. JACK TAYLOR OF CANTON, ILL., AND NAMED IN HONOR OF TAYLOR'S WIFE.

THE TALL, BLOND UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO LAW STUDENT SAID "THAT WAS ONE EASY MISSION. WE DROPPED FRAGMENTATION BOMBS ON PREDE-TERMINED TARGETS, THEN SPENT HALF AN HOUR SWOOPING BACK OVER THOSE JAPS. IN THESE PLANES, THE PILOTS ALSO SERVE AS BOMBARDIERS, SO WE ARE QUALIFIED TO REPORT WE GAVE THE JAPS A GOOD BATTERING."

SANTIAGO, CHILE, JAN. 14-(AP)-THE NEWSPAPER EL MERCURIO REPORTED TODAY ON THE BASIS OF "AUTHORIZED INFORMATION" THAT, DESPITE OFFICIAL CHILEAN DENIALS, PRESIDENT JUAN ANTONIO RIOS OF CHILE AND PRESIDENT RAMON S. CASTILLO OF ARGENTINA WOULD MEET SHORTLY AT A POINT NEAR THE FRONTIER.

JAN 15 1943

THE NEWSPAPER SAID ALSO THAT THREE DEPUTIES WERE DELIVERING TO PRESIDENT RIOS A PETITION URGING THAT HE "MAINTAIN NEUTRALITY" AND NOT BREAK OFF DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS

WITH THE AXIS. THE PETITION, IT SAID, HAD BEEN SIGNED BY

MORE THAN 200 RIGHTIST POLITICAL FIGURES.

SANTIAGO, CHILE, JAN.14-(AP)-PRESIDENT JUAN ANTONIO RIOS RECEIVED THE JAPANESE MINISTER, KIYOSHI YAMAGATA, FOR A LONG CONFERENCE TONIGHT AMID REPORTS THAT CHILE WOULD BREAK OFF DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS WITH THE AXIS NEXT WEEK.

JAN 15 1943

NO STATEMENT WAS ISSUED AS TO THE NATURE OF THE JAPANESE MINISTER'S VISIT, BUT FOREIGN MINISTER JOAQUIN FERNANDEZ INFORMED THE SENATE EARLIER TODAY THAT HE WOULD ATTEND ITS SESSION JAN.19 TO OUTLINE CHILE'S FOREIGN POLICY.

POLITICAL CIRCLES EXPRESSED BELIEF FERNANDEZ WOULD ANNOUNCE THE GOVERNMENT'S WISH TO SEVER RELATIONS WITH GERMANY, ITALY AND JAPAN AT THAT TIME, AND THE NEWSPAPER LA OPINION REPORTED THAT OSCAR GAJARDO, MINISTER OF JUSTICE, HAD TOLD IT CHILE DEFINITELY WOULD MAKE A BREAK.

OTTAWA, ONT., JAN.14-(AP)-ANNOUNCEMENT OF A NEW MUTUAL ARRANGEMENT WITH THE UNITED STATES RELAXING THE FORMALITIES INVOLVED IN BORDER CROSSINGS IS EXPECTED TO BE MADE SIMULTANEOUSLY IN OTTAWA AND WASHINGTON "BEFORE THE END OF THE MONTH," AN EXTERNAL AFFAIRS SPOKESMAN SAID TODAY.

JAN 15 1943

DETAILS OF THE NEW ARRANGEMENT HAVE NOT BEEN REVEALED BUT IT IS EXPECTED THE UNITED STATES MAY AGREE TO ABANDON THE PASSPORT REQUIREMENT IMPOSED ON CANADIAN VISITORS SINCE JUNE, 1940, FOR VISITS OF 29 DAYS OR LESS, IT WAS SAID.

CANADA DID NOT PLACE ANY RESTRICTIONS ON AMERICANS ENTERING THIS COUNTRY. ALL THAT VISITORS FROM THE UNITED STATES HAVE BEEN REQUIRED TO CARRY INTO CANADA IS POSITIVE PROOF OF THEIR AMERICAN CITIZENSHIP SO THEY WILL HAVE NO DIFFICULTY RETURNING HOME.

COCO SOLO, CANAL ZONE, JAN 3-(DELAYED)-NOW I KNOW HOW IT FEELS TO BE A TORPEDO.

By. Chandler Diehl

WHEN IT WAS ARRANGED THAT I WAS TO GET A RIDE ON A SUBMARINE, I NEVER IMAGINED THAT I WOULD ALSO ACT AS GUN CAPTAIN AT A "BATTLE SURFACE," A MANEUVER IN WHICH THE FIRST MAN OUT OF THE CONNING TOWER, A GUN CAPTAIN, IS LITERALLY SUCKED OUT ONTO A SEA-WASHED DECK. BUT I WOULDN'T HAVE MISSED IT FOR THE WORLD.

THIS WAS THE FIRST OPPORTUNITY I'D EVER HAD TO GO DOWN IN A SUB. OUT OF ALL I'D HEARD AND READ, ALL I COULD REMEMBER WAS THAT (1) THEY WERE HOT AS BLAZES WHEN SUBMERGED, AND (2) I WOULD JUST BARELY HAVE ROOM TO MOVE AROUND.

THE SUO WAS FAR FROM PRETENTIOUS IN APPEARANCE WITH NO GLEAMING BRASS OR SHINY PAINT VISIBLE. AFTER ALL, I REMINDED MYSELF, THIS BOAT ISN'T RIGGED FOR A NAVY DAY EXHIBITION. WITH THE ARRIVAL OF THE COMMANDING OFFICER, THE DIESEL ENGINES STARTED, MOORING LINES WERE CAS

THIS BOAT ISN'T RIGGED FOR A NAVY DAY EXHIBITION. WITH THE ARRIVAL OF THE COMMANDING OFFICER, THE DIESEL ENGINES STARTED, MOORING LINES WERE CAST OFF, AND WE SLID AWAY FROM THE DOCK.

I WAS LEFT ON DECK WITH THREE OTHER MILITARY PASSENGERS. NONE OF THE THREE HAD EVER BEEN ABOARD A SUB BEFORE. FROM THE CONNING TOWER CAME THE CRY, "RIG FOR DIVE!" THE FOUR OF US SCURRIED--OR SHOUTD I SAY, SQUIRMED--BELOW. A SUBMARINE HATCH DOESN'T

PERMIT MUCH EXCESS POUNDAGE.

I WAS A LITTLE LOST AT FIRST, BUT WHEN I ENTERED THE CONTROL ROOM I FELT RIGHT AT HOME. IT LOOKED JU T LIKE THE ONES I HAD SEEN IN THE MOVIES, WITH WHEELS AND DIALS AND FLASHING LIGHTS AND MYRIAD GADGETS.

JAN 15 1943

THERE WERE LOTS OF OTHER THINGS TO SEE. A JUNIOR OFFICER ACTED AS GUIDE. MUCH OF HIS TECHNICAL LANGUIGE, I MUST CONFESS, I DIDN'T FOLLOW. IF I HAD SAID "I DON'T UNDERSTAND" EVERY TIME I ACTUALLY DIDN', WE'D STILL BE DOWN IN THAT ENGINE ROOM.

I DID, HOWEVER, BEGIN TO APPRECIATE THAT JUST AS THE OFFICERS MUST "DOUBLE IN BRASS," SO EVERYTHING ON A SUB SERVES A DOUBLE PURPOSE. THERE'S NO SUCH THING AS WASTE SPACE OR WASTE MOTION.

COCO SOLO, CANAL ZONE--FIRST ADD HOW IT FEELS TO BE A TORPEDO X X X OR WASTE MOTION.

SURPRISINGLY, THOUGH, THERE WAS PLENTY OF ROOM TO MOVE IN. TRUE, I COULDN'T ALWAYS STAND UPRIGHT AND SOMETIMES I HAD NO CHOICE BUT TO STAND. BUT I HAD PICTURED MYSELF MOVING ABOUT ON HANDS AND KNEES, DRIPPING WITH OIL AND PERSPIRATION.

MY NOTION ABOUT "DRIPPING WITH PERSPIRATION" SOON FADED WHEN I DISCOVERED THAT THE BOAT WAS AIR CONDITIONED. RATHER THAN SUFFERING FROM THE HEAT, THE MEN ABOARD TOLD ME THAT THEY OCCASIONALY WERE CHILLY.

I WENT BACK TO THE CONTROL ROOM FOR I WANTED TO WATCH THE DIVING PROCESS. I WAS SURPRISED TO FIND THAT WE WERE ALREADY 40 FEET BELOW SURFACE. I HADN'T EVEN KNOWN IT! THE RINGING IN MY EARS, WHICH I HAD BEEN WAITING FOR, DIDN'T HAPPEN. FROM THE WAY I FELT I MIGHT AS WELL HAVE BEEN ON THE BIGGEST BATTLESHIP IN THE FLEET.

I GOT A LOOK THROUGH THE PERISCOPE AND TURNED OUT TO BE NO SIMPLE TELESCOPE-WITH-A-BEND-IN-IT. WHAT WITH VARIOUS HANDLES TO MANIPULATE, WAVES MOVING IN FRONT OF IT, AND THE FACT THAT THE SHIP I WAS TRYING TO SEE WOUTDN'T STAND STILL, I CONSIDERED MYSELF LUCKY TO GET TWO FLEETING OLIMPSES OF MY "TARGET" IN ABOUT FIVE MINUTES.

ABANDONING THE PERISCOPE AS NOT INTENDED FOR USE BY A MARINE SERGEANT ANYWAY, I WENT BACK TO THE CREW'S QUIRTERS FOR A CUP OF COFFEE. I WAS DARNED GOOD COFFEE, I MIGHT ADD. I INSPECTED THE LIBRARY WHICH WAS WELL-STOCKED WITH BOOKS AND COPIES OF CURRENT MAGAZINES.

JAN 15 1943

IN THE OFFICERS' WARDROOM, ONE OF MY FELLOW PASSENGERS WAS READING A BOOK ON THE LIFE OF FARRAGUT.

I LEARNED THAT A KLAXON HORN WHICH I HEARD SOUNDING WAS THE SIGNAL TO PREPARE TO SUBMERGE. THERE WAS A SECOND HORN WHICH SIGNALED MEN IN THE ENGINE ROOM TOIALTER THE SPEED OF THE MOTORS.

I WAS PREPARED FOR THOSE, BUT NOT FOR WHAT HAPPENED THE NEXT MINUTE. A SHRILL WHISTLE SCREAMED.

"COLLISION ALARM!" SOMEBODY SHOUTED.

NOW I WAS IIIIIIIIIIIIIICNCC

"NOW I WAS IN FOR IT. MEN RUSHED AROUND ME, BEHIND ME, PRACTICALLY OVER ME. EVERYBODY HAD A JOB, IT SEEMED, BUT THE LONE MARINE.

AFTER A COUPLE OF VERY TENSE MINUTES, IT WAS ALL OVER.

ONLY A TEST. AND ALL THE WHILE, I HAD BEEN TRYING TO REMEMBER THE LAST TIME I'D BEEN SWIMMING.

IN ABOUT AN HOUR, ALL THE LIGHTS WENT OUT. TESTS OF EMERGENCY LIGHTING, I WAS TOLD. A COUPLE OF SCATTERED BULBS--THE EMERGENCIES, FLICKERED ON, CASTING DEEP SHADOWS. I COULD SEE THAT SUBS ARE ALWAYS PREPARED FOR EMERGENCIES.

WHEN WE SUBMERGED AGAIN AFTER LUNCH I WAS CAREFUL TO STAY IN THE CONTROL ROOM. SOON AFTER WE HAD SUBMERGED, AN OFFICER SUGGESTED THAT I MIGHT LIKE TO SEE A "BATTLE SURFACE." THAT'S THE MANEUVER IN WHICH THE SUB COMES UP AND BEGINS FIGHTING ON THE SURFACE WITH HER DECK GUNS. SINCE HE WAS A MAN SHORT, THE GUNNERY OFFICER MADE ME "GUN CAPTAIN."

"OF COURSE, YOU'LL HAVE TO BE CAREFUL," HE WARNED. "THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN PRESSURE INSIDE AND OUTSIDE THE SUB WILL FORCE YOU OUT OF THE HATCH."

GARBED IN SHORTS I MOVED UP INTO THE CONNING TOWER. I HAD BEEN TOLD THAT I WAS TO BE THE FIRST MAN OUT AS I CROUCHED ON THE LADDER, IT LOOKED AS IF THE ENTIRE SUB CREW WAS GOING TO FOLLOW ME OUT.

SOMEBODY REACHED UP BESIDE ME AND UNFASTENED THE CATCH THAT OPENED THE HATCH. AT THAT MOMENT, SEEMINGLY, SOMEBODY REACHED DOWN AND JERKED ME THROUGH SEVERAL HUNDRED GALLONS OF SEAWATER TO THE CONNING TOWER BRIDGE. THE FORCE OF THE PRESSURE WAS SO GREAT THAT I FELT LIKE A TORPEDO BEING BLASTED OUT OF ITS TUBE -- ONLY I WAS HEADING SKYWARD.

I RAN TO THE STARBOARD LADDER, SLID DOWN TO THE GUN DECK.

JAN 15 1943

I SLOSHED FORWARD AND WENT THROUGH THE ROUTINE IN WHICH THE GUNNERY OFFICER HAD INSTRUCTED ME. WE FIRED SOME PRACTICE SHOTS AND IT WAS ALL OVER.

WEALTH AND THE MEANS OF PRODUCING WEALTH. HITLER WILL STOP AT NOTHING IN THIS CAMPAIGN; HE WILL PAUPERIZE ALL EUROPE IF NEED BE TO GET WHAT HE REQUIRE, FOR HIS WAR MACHINE.

JAN 15 1943

THE FUEHRER'S MEETING WITH HIS STOOGE IN CHARGE OF RUMANIA, MARSHAL ANTONESCU, ANNOUNCED BY BERLIN YESTERDAY, WAS PART OF THIS CAMPAIGN. ONE REASON ANTONESCU WAS SUMMONED TO HEADQUARTERS NO DOUBT WAS TO RECEIVE ORDERS TO PUT DOWN THE RISING CLAMOR AGAINST THE SPILLING OF SO MUCH RUMANIAN blood in Russia and to make sure that the flow of Rumanian MANPOWER INTO THE EASTERN FRONT REMAINED STEADY. FOR THAT PURPOSE KEITEL AND ZEITZLER SAT AT THE CONFERENCE TABLE. BUT PROBABLY THE MOST IMPORTANT MEN THERE WERE DOCTORS FUNK AND CLODIUS, WHOSE FUNCTION IS TO SUPPLY THE WEALTH THAT KEEPS THE ARMIES GOING.

JUST WHAT HITLER REQUIRES OF RUMANIA WAS NOT DISCLOSED. PERHAPS MORE OIL OR MORE GRAIN. THAT RETREAT IN THE CAUCASUS, ABANDONING THE BRIGHT HOPES OF 1942 OF GATHERING IN THE OIL OF GROZNY AND BAKU, POSES A GRAVE NEW FUEL PROBLEM. THE ANTICIPATED YIELD FROM THE GRAIN FIELDS OF THE UKRAINE HAS BECOME A BIGGER QUESTION MARK. THE GERMANS MAY NOT EVEN BE IN POSSESSION OF THOSE FIELDS WHEN NEXT HARVEST TIME COMES. HITLER MAY HAVE DEMANDED THAT RUMANIA, ALREADY SORELY BLED FOR THE RUSSIAN WAR, CONTRIBUTE WORKERS FOR THE REICH'S LABOR-HUNGRY INDUSTRIES. WHATEVER HE ASKED IT WAS CONNECTED WITH HIS COLOSSAL ECONOMIC MOBILIZATION.

HITLER'S SEARCH FOR LABOR IS MADE MORE DESPERATE BY THE CLAIMS OF HIS ARMY ON GERMAN MANPOWER. A STOCKHOLM DISPATCH REPORTS TODAY THAT A MILITARY COMMISSION IS TOURING THE REICH TO COMB OUT PERHAPS ONE OR TWO MILLION MEN HITHERTO RATED UNFIT FOR MILITARY SERVICE. HEAVY LOSSES IN RUSSIA MUST BE REPLACED, THE DEMANDS OF THE SECOND FRONT ALREADY OPENED IN THE MEDITERRANEAN AREA AND OF THE PREPARATIONS AGAINST A THIRD FRONT IN THE WEST MUST BE MET. AT THE SAME TIME WAR INDUSTRY MUST BE EXPANDED AND ACCELERATED TO AN UNPRECEDENTED DEGREE IN THE ATTEMPT TO MATCH THE PRODUCTION OF THE UNITED STATES, THE BRITISH EMPIRE AND RUSSIA.

SO FRITZ SAUCKEL, THE FUEHRER'S COMMISSIONER FOR THE DRAFTING OF LABOR, THROWS HIS DRAGNET OVER ALL EUROPE. PIERRE LAVAL'S LATEST SHAMEFUL BARGAIN WITH HITLER IS SAID TO PROVIDE FOR THE SENDING OF 400,000 MORE SKILLED FRENCH WORKERS TO GERMANY. SAUCKEL IS UNDERSTOOD TO HAVE DRAWN SOME 700,000 MEN FROM THE OCCUPIED UKRAINE FOR GERMAN FARMS AND INDUSTRY. ALL THE SATELLITE AND CONQUERED LANDS ARE FEELING INCREASING PRESSURE TO SUPPLY MEN, EITHER AS SOLDIERS OR WORKERS-- BULGARIA, HUNGARY, RUMANIA, CROATIA, SLOVAKIA, EVEN SPAIN, IN ADDITION TO THE HELPLESS CONQUERED LANDS LIKE FRANCE, THE LOW COUNTRIES, DENMARK, NORWAY, POLAND AND CZECHOSLOVAKIA. SAUCKEL, IT HAS BEEN SAID, IS WORKING TOWARD THE GOAL OF 6,000,000 ALIEN WORKERS IN GERMANY AND HE IS STEADILY APPROACHING THAT GOAL.

THIS SYSTEM IS LIABLE TO STRAINS AND FAULTS NOT FOUND IN THE ECONOMY OF FREE LANDS, BUT THE REICH HAS DEVELOPED METHODS FOR DEALING WITH THESE OF AN UNDENIABLE EFFECTIVENESS. IT WOULD BE FOLLY FOR THE UNITED NATIONS NOT TO ANTICIPATE A GREATER GERMAN WAR OUTPUT THIS YEAR THAN EVER BEFORE. U-BOATS STILL ARE BEING PRODUCED FASTER THAN WE CAN DESTROY THEM; THE NAZI AIRCRAFT INDUSTRY CONTINUES TO GIVE THE ALLIES A REAL CONTEST IN THE RACE FOR NEW AND BETTER TYPES; TESTIMONY FROM MANY FRONTS IS THAT THE GERMAN FORCES

RECEIVE A STEADY FLOW OF NEW, POWERFUL, CONSTANTLY IMPROVED WEAPONS. HITLER'S WAR MACHINE NO LONGER ENJOYS THE TERRIBLE PREPONDERANCE IN TRAINED MANPOWER AND WEAPONS IT HELD OVER ALL ADVERSARIES IN 1940-41 BUT THAT IS BECAUSE OF THE RISING MIGHT OF THOSE ADVERSARIES.

Reds Cut Rostov Railway 90 Miles Northeast of City, Continue Gains in Caucasus

MIDDLE DON UNITS INCREASE THREAT TO NAZI KEYPOINT

Gen. Vatutin's Troops Surge Across Kalitva River.

30 TOWNS RECAPTURED

Fighting Breaks Out Anew in Donets River Area.

REDS ADVANCE SLOWLY

Heavy German Counter-attacks Hamper Soviet Troops in South.

JAN 16 1943

MOSCOW, Saturday, Jan. 16—(AP) A Red army surging across the Kalitva river cut the Rostov-Moscow railway yesterday at Glubokaya and reached a point 90 miles northeast of Rostov, Nazi communications center serving southern Russia, it was announced officially early today.

This fresh spurt by Col. Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's middle Don forces came simultaneously with sweeping Russian gains in the Caucasus where the Germans failed to halt the Red tide, and the communique said the enemy there was "in complete rout."

30 Towns Recaptured

Approximately 30 towns and railway points were reported seized by the Russians during the day.

Little had been heard from General Vatutin's forces lately. The break-through in the middle Don bend sector gave Russia's big winter offensive greater momentum and increased the threat to Rostov whose capture would be a severe blow to Germany. Rostov is the communications peg for all the Nazi armies operating in southern Russia.

Battle in Donets Area

The communique mentioned for the first time the fighting in the Donets river area which covers the northern approaches to Rostov.

The Red army apparently had not yet crossed the Donets, but it occupied the region above it between the Kalitva river and the Moscow-Rostov railway.

Crossing the Kalitva around Litvinovka, the Russians pushed 25 miles northwest to Glubokaya station which is only 30 miles south of Millerovo and 14 miles north of Kamensk-Shakhtinsky, both of which still are held by the Germans.

The Russians also struck 12 miles southwest of Litvinovka to Diadin, close to the Donets. The settlements of Grutsinov and Samburov were taken between Litvinovka and Glubokaya.

Diadin, the southernmost point of this push, lies about 90 miles northeast of Rostov, and covers the right flank of Lieut.-Gen. Constantin Rokossovsky's forces operating to the south. General Rokossovsky's troops already have driven still farther toward Rostov to the Sal river.

Reds Make Slow Headway

Gen. Rokossovsky's troops are making only slow headway along the lower Don river because of heavy Nazi counterattacks. But General Yeremenko's forces operating below that river in the Caucasus gave additional support to those Red army units yesterday by capturing 16 towns and railway points in the area between the river and the Stalingrad-Tikhoretsk railway.

Striking down the railway the Russians reached the station of Kurenny, 38 miles southwest of Zimovniki. This is 20 miles beyond Kuberle, the last station taken.

Dvoinaya, between Kuberle and Kurenny, also was occupied as was Orlovskaya, 12 miles southwest of Kuberle. The Russians operating in this area are taking towns as close as 80 miles to Rostov.

The biggest place seized in the northwestward push from the Caucasian foothills was Blagodarnoye, the railhead for a line that winds westward to Kropotkin on the main Mineralnye, Vody-Rostov railway.

Blagodarnoye's capture now brings the Russians into more populated areas after driving the Germans across the trackless plains.

Its capture represented about a 20-mile advance from Sotnikovskoye which was taken Thursday. The Red army pushing northwestward from Blagodarnoye now is threatening a rail network serving the central part of the northern Caucasus.

Another large town seized was Alexandrovskoye, 35 miles north of Mineralnye Vody and about the same distance southwest of Blagodarnoye.

Along the Mineralnye Vody-Rostov railway itself the Russians also reported substantial gains, seizing Nogutskoye, a rail station 25 miles from Mineralnye Vody.

South of the railway other Red army units took Bekeshevskaya.

1,500 Nazis Killed

The communique said that a total of 1,500 Germans fell to Russian guns yesterday in the Caucasus and 400 surrendered. Trainloads of cattle, motor trucks, munitions and other German equipment were abandoned by the Germans whose every attempt at resistance did not last long under Soviet charges.

The Russians said they were using the same tactics so long practiced by the Germans in the days of their gains—sending mobile units to the German flanks and rears and then hitting the enemy from

JAN 16 1943

Armavir is the next big goal for the Russians in this southern sector. It is only 80 miles from the Red army advancing up the main railway in the Nogutskoye sector, and about 110 miles west of the Soviet troops that seized Blagodarnoye.

A 600-yard gain inside Stalingrad also was announced by the Russians while German counterattacks on the central front were repulsed southwest and northwest of Velikie Luki.

The skillful blending of dashing Cossack riders and charging steel tanks had driven the Germans in the Caucasus nearly to the fertile Kuban steppes which the enemy appeared determined to hold. The growing frequency of sharp counterattacks attested to the German resolution, but the Russians said all of these were repelled with heavy losses.

(The German communique, though somewhat reticent, declared "heavy defensive fighting is continuing with unabated fierceness" on all the southern front. The Nazis claimed to have repelled the Russians in the Stalingrad area, at Velikie Luki, southeast of Lake Ilmen and south of Lake Ladoga.

Timoshenko at Leningrad

(Stockholm reports to London said Marshal Semeon Timoshenko, shifted secretly from the south, had launched an offensive to relieve Leningrad—a drive announced by the Germans but not confirmed by the Russians.)

Izvestia said the north Caucasus offensive had reached the broad valleys of the Baksan and Malka west of the Terek, having covered in three days the same distance that the Germans gained in three hot months. At one point a tank shop was captured intact with ten tanks under repair.

Retake 30 Towns, RR Stops

Official Report Says 2,500 Nazis Killed, Captured.

COMPLETE ROUT IN CAUCASUS

In North Donets Area Reds Advance Near to Big City of Kimenak.

JAN 16 1943

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Saturday, Jan. 16—The Red Army striking from three sides at Rostov, Nazi communications hub in southern Russia, made sweeping gains yesterday, capturing approximately 30 towns and railway points and killing or capturing more than 2,500 Germans, a Russian communique said today.

Pushing northwestward in the Caucasus toward Rostov on the heels of an enemy "in complete rout" the communique said the Red Army had captured Blagodarnoe, rail terminus 230 miles below Rostov. Blagodarnoe is approximately sixty miles above the Mineralnye Vody railway where another Red Army column was pushing northwestward.

Great Advances in Caucasus

In the Northern Caucasus the Russians announced in a communique heard here by the Soviet Monitor that the town of Batlayevskaya, 80 miles east of Rostov, had fallen. This was one of fourteen localities and two railway stations that were occupied by the Russians operating along the Stalingrad-Tikhoretsk railway, and between that line and the Lower Don River, the communique said.

Dvoinaya, a railway point 155 miles southwest of Stalingrad, also fell to the Russians striking toward Salsk and Tikhoretsk. Salsk, an intermediate point on this railway where a spur juts northwestward to Rostov, now is only 40 miles from the advancing Russians in this area.

JAN 16 1943

Fourteen Miles From Kamensk

North of Rostov "in the Northern Donets" area the communique announced the capture of Glubokaya. A town of that name on the Rostov-Moscow railway is approximately 100 miles above Rostov, and only 14 miles above the big city of Kamensk on the same railway.

Seven other points were taken, the communique said, in the Northern Donets area where the Russian columns which crossed the Middle Don River to encircle Millerovo, above Glubokaya, apparently were resuming their southward thrust toward Rostov, and also striking westward farther into the Ukraine.

The town of Litvinovka, located on the map as 33 miles inside the Ukraine west of the Rostov-Moscow railway, was reported to have fallen to the Russians.

Other Russian columns striking toward Rostov from the east were operating inside the Don river loop. Although Soviets declared these troops also were gaining, no specific claims were advanced. The Russians in this area last were reported only 60 miles from Rostov, but then the Germans began stiffening and launched night and day counter-attacks to slow the Russians.

Truck Equipment, Stock Taken

The midnight communique telling of the great offensive blows being dealt to the Germans in the Cacasus said that whole trainloads of trucks, cattle, and war equipment were seized by the Red Army.

Blagodarnoe, 60 miles north of Mineralyne Vody, is the beginning of a railway which twists across the Kuban to join the main Rostov-Baku line at Krotpotkin. Two Russian columns have been converging on it—one from the south and one from the southeast through snowstorms and fog.

Armavir, an important point on the Mineralnye Vody-Rostov line, is about 115 miles west of Blagodarnoe. Armavir however, also is being threatened by a main Russian column pushing along the railway. This latter group seized Nogutskaya, about 100 miles from Armavir, yesterday while the town of Bekeshevskaya also fell.

Bekeshevskaya is 25 miles southwest of Nogutskaya in the Caucasian foothill area where the Russians have been rapidly cleaning out the enemy.

Foe Fails to Stem Advance

Of this powerful Caucasian sweep the Soviet communique said: "All the enemy's attempts to stem our advance resulted in the complete rout of enemy troops."

The Russians said they killed 1,500 Germans and captured 400 yesterday, destroyed seven tanks, 10 guns, 12 armored cars and five ammunition dumps, and made a big haul in captured war materiels, including these items:

Nine railyway trains loaded with trucks, cattle, and other supplies; 49 tanks, 10 engines and 200 railway cars, and 1,200 trucks.

The Russians said their advanced units were "penetrating deep into the enemy rear and destroying his lines of communications."

New gains of more than 600 yards were registered inside the northern factory area of Stalingrad itself, where several more streets were cleared of the enemy, 600 Germans were killed, and 10 planes shot down, the communique said.

Resumption of Drive

The Russian reference to the capture of several localities in the "Northern Donets" region indicated a resumption of the Russian drive west of Millerovo in the Ukraine north of Rostov.

On the lower Don where the Russians are operating 60 miles east of Rostov, key Nazi communications base, the communique claimed the capture of several more localities but did not identify them. The Germans have been counter-attacking repeatedly and offering a tenacious resistance generally in this area because of the threat to Rostov.

"In the area of the lower Don, overcoming the enemy's resistance, our troops continue their offensive," the bulletin said of this sector. German counterattacks were said to have been repulsed, 400 Germans killed, and prisoners and booty captured during the day.

On the central front the Russians told of beating off enemy counter-attacks both southwest and northwest of Velikie Luki, 85 miles from the Latvian frontier. The Germans "suffered heavy losses," and more than 500 prisoners were taken, the communique said.

A total of 15 Nazi tanks were reported destroyed on this front.

Russian Forces in Caucasus and Don Continue Pushing Forward.

Reds Gain in South.

Moscow, Jan. 15 (A. P.).—The rapid pace of Russian vanguards in the drive northwestward from the mid-Caucasus brought up the problem of reinforcement and supply today, but dispatches said the winter offensive continued to make progress on both the Caucasus and the Don fronts.

Red Army men occupied several more strong points in the Caucasus and in the lower Don region, overriding strong German resistance, field observers reported.

JAN 16 1943

Having blanketed in three days a vast triangle which the Germans took three months to conquer—the area between Mozdok, Nalchik and Mineralyne Vody—the Red Army now has the job of moving up its main forces to support the men consolidating newly won positions for further thrusts toward Rostov.

Troops Trudge 30 Miles a Day.

A heavy toll has been exacted from Axis contingents aligned along the lower Don valley, it was reported officially.

Red Star said the breaking of the German lines on three main fronts, the Caucasus, the Don and the central region, had spread confusion and uncertainty in the ranks of the invaders and urged the Red Army to press its advantage.

Red Army foot troops are hiking as much as thirty miles daily to catch up with the tanks, cavalry and motorized infantry which has led the advances, the military newspaper said.

German counter-attacks appeared strongest on the central front southwest of Velikie Luki and along the lower Don, where they are using tanks liberally to back up infantrymen.

Red Star said the invaders launched several counter-attacks in recaptured districts west and northwest of Mineralnye Vody, on the Rostov-Baku rail line, but Soviet troops repulsed them with the aid of mobile field guns and drove the survivors across the Kuma River, which flows eastward to the Caspian Sea.

The Caucasus army has put 125 miles behind it to push through Sotnikovskoye, within forty-five miles of the Kalmyck Steppes, in the new gains announced in that region. It was fighting through heavy, wet snows that bogged the roads but it was advancing at a clip that promised to weld the south Russian front into a unit. Tank units and Cossack cavalrymen, jubilant over re-entering their homeland, led the drive.

The recapture of Sotnikovskoye marked a twenty-six-mile push from the Zuhravkoye region in a day's fighting. Farther south, nearer the Mineralnye Vody-Rostov railway, other columns recaptured both the town and the railway station of Suvorovskaya and the village of Grazhedansky Pervy, twenty miles west of Mineralnye Vody, the Russians announced.

Six More Towns Claimed.

On the lower Don front, where the Red Army vanguard last was reported within 60 miles of Rostov, almost at the edge of the marshes and swamps that fill the river basin, the Russians announced they had taken six more populated places in bitter engagements.

They said about 1,000 of the enemy were killed and 22 tanks put out of commission in the battles in one sector and that ceaseless counterattacks were beaten off in another. Nine German planes were burned in a battle near a town, the regular early communique reported.

(The Berlin radio has preached a death-and-duty sermon in a special broadcast intended for German troops on the Stalingrad front, it was disclosed today in a report to the Office of War Information. This came on the heels of a Berlin broadcast intended for European continental consumption, the OYI said, reporting that all Soviet attacks in the Stalingrad area had been "shattered.")

The midday Russian communique said that German counterattacks were smashed along the entire front during last night's fighting, especially in the Caucasus, where a determined Nazi effort was launched to hamper the Red Army advance toward Rostov.

The Russians claimed all Nazi attempts were repulsed. They said the Germans suffered heavy losses and added several settlements to the list of towns recaptured by the Red Army forces.

In capturing populated places on the Lower Don, the Russians reported, 800 Germans were left dead and 19 of their tanks disabled in one exchange of counterblows. One of the villages taken in a Lower Don sector was described as strongly fortified.

Southwest of Velikie Luki German troops with automatic rifles and supported by tank units and soldiers in armored cars attempted to storm a Russian position but were hurled back with heavy losses, the war bulletin said.

Finds Confidence Growing.

Growing Soviet confidence in ultimate victory was noted by Admiral William H. Standley, United States Ambassador to Moscow, who just has returned from conferences in the United States.

Following an hour's visit with Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov, Admiral Standley said in an interview yesterday that Molotov displayed "an air of increased confidence."

"The delivery of (American) supplies is constantly on the upgrade, production has improved and that means improved assistance to Russia, although transportation is the question mark," the Ambassador said.

[From Stockholm came reports that Marshal Semeon Timoshenko is leading a new offensive at Leningrad. The Russians have offered no comment on German claims that new Soviet offensives are in the making either about Leningrad or near Voronezh. A DNB, German news agency, broadcast early today said there was large - scale air activity south of Lake Ladoga and that forty-seven Russian planes had been shot down without any German loss.]

REDS TERM ARMY OF RUMANIA GONE

Moscow, Jan. 15 (A. P.).—Tass declared today that the Rumanian Army had been knocked out as a serious military force.

"As a result of almost nineteen months' participation in the war, Rumania has become a poor, squeezed-out country with a totally disorganized economy and a hungry population," the official Soviet news agency said. "Recent operations on the Soviet front have completed the general debacle of the Rumanian Army, which now can be hardly reckoned with as a serious military force."

Tass added that the aggravation of the internal political situation was caused "by rapid growth of anti-war and anti-German sentiments."

Stalin Thanks Clergy

Replies to Letter Expressing Faith in Victory by Metropolitan Alexiev

MOSCOW, Jan. 15 (AP).—Premier Josef V. Stalin has sent an expression of his gratitude to the Russian orthodox clergy of Leningrad in reply to a communication from the Metropolitan Alexiev, who declared his unshakable faith in an early victory for our righteous cause over the sanguinary insanity of fascism," Tass, the Soviet official news agency, said today.

The metropolitan said the Leningrad diocese, "in conditions of blockade," had raised a fund of 3,182,143 rubles for the Soviet defense fund and was contributing another 500,000 rubles for construction of a tank column.

RAF Bombers In Heavy Raid On Cherbourg

Follow Up Blows at Lorient—Nazis Over England.

JAN 16 1943

By E. C. Dyer

LONDON, Jan. 15 (AP).—The RAF bombed Cherbourg today in a swift follow-up to a heavy night raid on the German submarine base at Lorient, where the British struck a defensive blow in the battle of the Atlantic.

Boston bombers escorted by many squadrons of Spitfires attacked Cherbourg, meeting no fighter opposition. Ground fire was heavy.

Tonight German raiders bombed three inland areas of eastern England, and caused a number of casualties and considerable property damage.

At least three persons were killed in another bombing from low level. One of the bombers was shot down.

Two bombers were lost over Lorient, the former French naval base now devoted almost exclusively to Hitler's estimated 400 submarines preying on supply lines to England, Russia and North Africa. It was Lorient's 58th raid, three of which had been made by daylight precision bombers of the U. S. Air Forces. Crippling of undersea power based there is one way to reduce Allied shipping losses in the Atlantic, which have been heavier than usual recently.

Docks are Hit

Scores of 500-pound bombs were dropped on the Cherbourg docks in crisp bright weather in the 77th raid on that great French port. Cherbourg is used as a refueling and light repair point for German submarine and surface craft. One pilot said he saw several hits in the dock area.

RAF Bombers In Heavy Raid On Cherbourg

While the Bostons bombed Cherbourg, other planes shot up railways and canal shipping in France and the low countries, an Air Ministry communiue said. Three fighters were lost. Four locomotives and several small vessels were damaged.

The bombers were over Lorient for an hour in bright moonlight and encountered heavy anti-aircraft fire, the Air Ministry said. Big fires were set, pilots reported. Heavy clouds were pierced on the trip to the Bay of Biscay port and temperatures dropped so low that some gun turrets froze, ice formed inside the bombers, and icicles hung from oxygen masks.

Ten Fires Sighted

The captain of one Halifax counted ten large fires, one particularly big one near a drydock.

Targets included fuel and torpedo dumps, submarine pens and barracks, power stations, building yards and machinery plants. The Germans were said to have at least 20 thick concrete lairs for the U-boats and have insisted these were immune to the heaviest bombs. They were reported building ten more.

"The great effort involved in keeping up the quick turnabout of large numbers of U-boats means that practically the whole of its (Lorient's) activities in one way or another is devoted to the submarine campaign," the Air Ministry commented.

It was the fourth successive night raid of the RAF and the ninth against the Germans this year. The increased tempo of the attacks emphasized the Allied determination to apply the aerial scourge to Hitler as never before.

Four German planes bombed and machine-gunned a south coast British town this afternoon, inflicting casualties and damage. A school at a southeast coast town was machine-gunned by low-flying Nazi planes and three children and a woman were injured.

Lorient Sub Base Heavily Attacked By British Planes

Bombs Add to Havoc Of Previous Raid By Americans

JAN 16 1943

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The Air Ministry announced today that the submarine base of Lorient, on the Atlantic coast of France, was heavily attacked last night by aircraft of the RAF Bomber Command, two of which failed to return.

Explosives loosed by the raiders added to the havoc wrought by American heavy bombers in daylight December 30 on the port works and U-boat pens of Lorient, which lies about 100 miles south of Brest. Three bombers were lost in that attack.

With a population of about 50,000, Lorient was the site of a French naval arsenal, building yards and machinery plants before it was taken over by the Germans in May, 1940.

The RAF operation last night marked its fourth successive night raid of the week. Others were directed against the industrial Ruhr valley of Germany.

This was the 58th Allied raid on Lorient and was considered evidence of a renewed determination to wipe out Hitler's prized U-boat base.

The Air Ministry commented that "the great effort involved in keeping up the quick turnaround of large numbers of U-boats means that practically the whole of its (Lorient's) activities in one way or another is devoted to the submarine campaign."

It was said that concrete-protected pens at a point near Lorient shelter 20 U-boats. At Lorient itself there are drydocks, stores of weapons, fuel and machinery, barracks for U-boat crews, railway yards, power stations and many other installations.

Lorient has been the target for three daylight precision bombing attacks by the United States air force in Britain.

Four German raiders bombed and machine-gunned an English south coast town in an afternoon attack, which caused considerable damage.

British Submarines Sink 4 Axis Ships

Three More Believed Destroyed in Mediterranean—Southern Shores of Italian Mainland Are Shelled.

JAN 16 1943

By Edward D. Ball

LONDON, Jan. 15—(AP)—Strong and effective attacks along the Mediterranean Sea front by British submarines which sank four Axis ships, and probably three more, and shelled the southern shore of the nervous Italian mainland highlighted the North African campaign today.

Little Action Aground

Attacks by Allied planes on both the Tunisian and Libyan ends of the line were announced Aground, no action of consequence was reported from General Eisenhower's Allied headquarters.

The new successes in the unending Allied war of attrition against Axis shipping were disclosed by the admiralty.

Three small supply and ammunition ships went down under British torpedoes. Three other cargo ships, one of them a large vessel, whose forward part was blown off, were hard hit and believed sunk.

A submarine under the command of Commander B. (Bearded Ben) Bryant, DSC, crippled an Axis minesweeper with gunfire, took off her people as prisoners and then torpedoed and sank her.

Another submarine surfaced and shelled a railway bridge on the southern Italian coast.

Sousse, Sfax Raided

In the air war, Allied North African headquarters announced that American Flying Fortresses attacking the eastern Tunisian supply ports of Sousse and Sfax had left the harbor areas aflame, while marauders attacked railroad lines and highways along the coastal road at Mahares, southwest of Sfax. Two Axis planes were shot down; four Allied craft were lost.

In Libya, it was announced, American and South African RAF bombers assaulted enemy camps, air fields and transport. Particularly hard hit were two enemy airdromes west of the Wadi Zem Zem on the Tripolitanian coast. Eight Axis fighter planes were shot down and 12 others damaged, but the enemy's defenses were strong and 13 Allied pilots were said to be missing.

There was again no report of activity by the British Eighth Army which has been pursuing Marshal Rommel's Africa Corps.

Despite its mounting losses, the Axis was said by military observers here still to be getting strong forces into North Africa. The impression prevailed in some quarters that the next big developments would be in Tripolitania rather than Tunisia, where the opposing land forces have been long weatherbound.

The French in Tunisia reported brisk activity in the region southwest of Pont du Fahs, where both Berlin and Rome claimed the repulse of strong Allied thrusts.

supply ships have probably been destroyed.

"A submarine under the command of Commander B. Bryant, D. S. C., sighted and engaged a minesweeper with gunfire. After a number of prisoners had been taken, she torpedoed and sank the ship.

"The same submarine torpedoed and sank a small supply ship escorted by E-boats and aircraft, scored two torpedo hits on a small northbound supply ship in the Gulf of Gabes off Tunisia, and took prisoners from a small vessel laden with petrol, which she attacked off the coast of Tripolitania.

"A small ship bound for Tripoli fully laden with supplies for the enemy and another small ship thought to have been carrying ammunition were sunk off the Eastern Tunisian coast by a submarine under command of Lieut. H. B. Turner.

"A submarine under command of Lieut. A. C. G. Mars torpedoed a large supply ship near Naples. The forward part of the vessel was blown off and it was considered probable that the ship sank.

"The same submarine bombarded and caused considerable structural damage to a railway bridge on the southern Italian coast. A signal box (railroad signal tower) also was demolished and cables carrying electric power were crippled."

Submarine Shells Railway Along South Coast of Italy

British Craft Damages Bridge, Tower and Electric Installations—Four Axis Ships Are Sunk

JAN 16 1943

London, Jan. 15 (A. P.).—British submarines ranging the Mediterranean have destroyed three more Axis supply ships, have probably sunk three others, and have again brought the sea war to Italy's doorstep by shelling targets on the south Italian coast, the Admiralty announced today.

After torpedoing a large enemy supply ship near Naples and leaving her in a sinking condition, one British submarine broke surface to bombard a railway bridge and to demolish electric installations, the Admiralty said. Considerable structural damage to the bridge was reported.

Following is the text of the announcement:

"His Majesty's submarines in the Mediterranean have destroyed three more enemy ships and one small naval vessel. Three other

WAVELL INSPECTS FRONT IN BURMA

London, Jan. 15 (A. P.).—Reuters reported today that Field Marshal Sir Archibald P. Wavell, Commander in Chief in India, had recently visited British troops in western Burma, arriving by plane at an advance airdrome made of leveled paddyfields in a district recently wrested from the Japanese.

"I have just come to look around the area," Gen. Wavell was quoted as saying. "Clearance of this area or Arakan is useful. It is an advance and will have a good effect on India, and it also is good training for our officers and men. Our British troops are doing well. It is difficult country—probably rather similar to conditions in New Guinea. The problem here is transport."

Gen. Wavell was accompanied by Lieut.-Gen. H. M. Irwin, commanding the British Eastern Army, and now has returned to his headquarters.

The Field Marshal said he did not believe that the North African campaign was affecting operations in his theater of operations from the viewpoint of supplies.

"We have many more planes than before," he declared.

Before departing for New Delhi Gen. Wavell flew farther south to visit another headquarters.

STARK TO RETURN TO EUROPEAN POST

London, Jan. 15 (A. P.).—Admiral Harold R. Stark will return to London soon to resume command of United States Naval Forces in European waters and perhaps to assist in straightening out the political tangle in North Africa, it was indicated here today.

Rear Admiral Alam J. Kirk, his hief of Staff, who has been in command during the latter's absence in the United States, reminded reporters at a press conference that Admiral Stark is already the official representative of the United States with the Fighting French Government here Admiral irk added no details, but the fact that he introduced the subject suggested to some correspondents that Admiral Stark might be discusing the North African situation at Washington and that he might have a prominent part in seeking a solution to the political puzzle after his return.

LONDON, Jan. 15 (AP)—The Vichy radio said tonight that more than 100 persons had been arrested in Lyon for "illegal activities."

The arrests were directed against the underground movement in France, the radio said.

The Lyon municipal council has been removed from office "because it proved itself unable to cope with the present situation," the report added.

More U. S. Troops Arrive in England

LONDON, Jan. 16 (AP)—The arrival at a British port of an American Merchant Marine after an uneventful crossing was announced today. The arrival of another convoy including United States troops was announced yeseerday.

The latest convoy was composed principally of Canadian Army reinforcements and members of the Royal Canadian Airforce.

Spanish Morocco Border Shut

LONDON, Jan. 15 (AP).—The German-controlled Paris radio reported today that the frontier between Spanish and French Morocco in North Africa had been closed.

British Air Parley Reported

LONDON, Jan. 15 (AP)—Reuter British news agency, reported from Allied headquarters in North Africa today that the three high ranking British air officials in the Mediterranean conferred recently in North Africa, presaging a three way aerial attack against Axis forces.

Air Marshal Sir Arthur William Tedder, Vice Chief of Air Staff, met with Air Vice Marshal Sir Keith R. Park, Royal Air Force commander at Malta, and Air Marshal Sir William L. Welsh, Royal Air Force chief in French North Africa, it said.

The Reuter correspondent said that "doubtless their meeting was connected with planning the most effective coordinated action of their forces for striking at Axis lines of communication from three sides."

British to Help Supply Troops in Iceland

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The Board of trade last night announced an agreement with the United States on supplying Iceland. Exports to the North Atlantic island base will be subject to license effective tomorrow.

JAN 16 1943

The United States will supply most of Iceland's needs, but "certain classes of goods" will be sent from the United Kingdom in limited quantities, the board said.

GET PURPLE HEART

London, Jan. 15 (A. P.).—Six officers and fifteen enlisted men of the United States Army Air Force were awarded Purple Hearts today for wounds received in action. Outstanding was First Lieut. Robert P. Riordan of El Paso, Tex., a pilot who on several occasions brought a crippled bomber and wounded crewmen safely back to his base.

Others decorated included: Sergt. Stephen G. Krucher, 5 Westmoreland Road, Merrick, L. I.

New British Destroyer Lost

LONDON, Jan. 15 (AP).—The destroyer Partridge has been lost, the Admiralty announced tonight. The Partridge was a new warship, not listed in "Jane's Fighting Ships." Her commander was Lieutenant Commander W. A. F. Hawkins, holder of the Distinguished Service Order, the Distinguished Service Cross and the Order of the British Empire.

THOUSANDS SEIZED BY WARSAW NAZIS

London, Jan. 15 (A. P.).—Reuters reported in a dispatch from the German frontier today that thousands of persons were arrested today in Warsaw, the Polish capital, in a new mass round-up organized by the German Gestapo. Every district of the city was covered by the round-up, which followed upon the preparation of black lists of Poles during recent weeks, the dispatch said.

Cunningham Says Bizerte Could Have Been Seized

British Admiral Adds Probable Heavy Losses Barred Plan

LONDON, Jan. 16 (Saturday) (AP).—The Allies could have seized the Tunisian port of Bizerte at the beginning of the North African operations but their losses would have been heavy, Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, commander of the Allied North African fleet, was quoted today as saying by "The Daily Mail" correspondent in Algiers.

"I believe it would have been possible to take the port (now a German stronghold), but the plan was rejected on the ground of its probable cost," the admiral told the correspondent.

"We should have had to reckon on the loss of a battleship, several cruisers, and very likely 25 per cent of the merchant vessels.

"It clearly would have been a great advantage if Bizerte could have been secured that way by direct attack, but on consideration it was decided to take the less hazardous course."

Fortress Beats Off Nazis, Co-Pilot Brings Ship Home

Battered Bomber Weathers Great Assault by German Fighters Over Lille

JAN 16 1943

By JAMES WIN HILL

AT A U. S. BOMBER STATION IN ENGLAND, Jan. 15 — (AP) — The acting pilot was killed, three of its crew were wounded and the Flying Fortress "Dry Martini" was given up for lost by its formation, but a gallant young second lieutenant brought the bomber back from the raid Wednesday on Lille, France.

The dead pilot was a substitute sitting for Capt. Allan V. Martini of San Francisco, who was too ill to go on the mission.

Dry Martini's target was a Lille steel factory building. Just after dropping their bombs, the Americans were attacked by Focke-Wulfs.

"At least five of them took a pass at us before we got hit," the second lieutenant co-pilot said.

Pilot Killed

Shells crashed through the cockpit into the pilot's chest, killing him. The back of his chair was shattered and the explosion showered glass splinters that stunned and blinded the co-pilot temporarily.

The plane dived out of control for 2,500 feet. The officer leading the flight thought Dry Martini was finished until it suddenly came out of the dive.

The co-pilot was wounded in the leg by a splinter of plastic but he managed to level off.

"I couldn't see the formation and called tail gunner Sgt. R. F. Willis (of Brockton, Mass.,) on the telephone and he gave me a very good direction from where he could see. All the cockpits were caved in and the plane looked like an abandoned house."

Joins Another Formation

The co-pilot picked out a place for the plane in another formation.

A former cowboy and radioman, Staff Sgt. Oscar E. Ballew of Enola, Penn., left his post as top turret gunner to carry the pilot's body into the nose of the compartment and attempted to revive him.

"There were so many fighters coming at us that it was absolutely futile to call them out to the gunners on the inter-phone," the co-pilot said.

One of the gunners was shot in the side and was suffering great pain but he kept on firing until he was helped out of the turret by Technical Sgt. H. L. Mabry, of Dallas, Texas, the right waist gunner. The left waist gunner was William D. Hise of Pittsburgh.

Dry Martini by now was getting cannon shots in the fuselage, tail and nose, one of which knocked the oxygen masks off the bombardier, Second Lieut. Bruce Gardner, of Flagstaff, Ariz., and the navigator, Second Lieut. R. Nye of Bellevue, Wash., but they managed to grasp spares and stay on the job.

Gunner Stays at Post

One gunner returned to his post although wounded and without an oxygen mask and kept firing at attacking planes for 15 minutes until Sgt. Ballew and Sgt. Mabry helped him down and gave him first aid. Sgt. Mabry then went forward to the pilot's seat and helped the co-pilot manage the plane.

Back in the tail bullets were whizzing at Sgt. Willis. They clipped away both shoulders of his jacket and his parachute pack was riddled with shrapnel.

Nevertheless, Dry Martini rode out the attack. The crew was getting so used to German planes that by the time they reached the channel, the co-pilot said:

"We were feeling pretty pessimistic because we couldn't think the planes we saw coming were anything but Focke-Wulfs. Actually they were protecting squadrons of Spitfires."

The co-pilot, who may not be identified by name, landed the plane safely. He is recovering in a hospital from wounds considered not serious.

I.R.A. HEAD ESCAPES PRISON IN BELFAST

Hugh M'Ateer, Chief of Staff, and 3 Others Break Out With Aid of Rope Ladder

$12,000 REWARD OFFERED

Authorities Say Fugitives Had Outside Aid—Post Guard on Border of Eire

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Jan. 15 (AP)—A $12,000 reward was posted tonight for information leading to the recapture of Hugh McAteer, 25-year-old Chief of Staff of the illegal Irish Republican Army, who with three companions escaped at breakfast time from Belfast prison.

Presumably the fugitives had outside aid. They broke the glass roof of the prison laundry and made their way into the yard, where they used a rope ladder to scale the wall during the breakfast assembly.

Their flight was soon discovered and patrols were posted immediately on all roads out of Belfast. A watch was set on the Eire border.

McAteer was sentenced to fifteen years' imprisonment on Nov. 26, 1942, for treason after a trial in which it was alleged that he had plotted to set up an Irish republic in Northern Ireland. The offense was punishable by death.

The son of a middle class family, he was arrested Oct. 12 in a house near Londonderry, a United States naval base, where explosives and I. R. A. literature were found.

The arrest was made after a long series of bombings near Belfast police stations following an I. R. A. proclamation on Aug. 31 declaring that the presence of United States troops in Northern Ireland was an act of aggression and that the I. R. A. reserved the right to use "whatever measures present themselves" to clear the territory of such forces.

During the bombings the British Home Office Under-Secretary, Osbert Peake, declared in the House of Commons that the I. R. A. was receiving arms and explosives from "countries overseas."

NAZIS PUSH DRIVE ON LAVAL'S FOES

Berne, Jan. 15 (A. P.).—The German Gestapo continues its campaign in France against all suspected of hostility to the Laval regime's policy of collaboration with the Reich and has arrested large numbers of Frenchmen, the Journal de Geneve reported today.

Recent arrests were said to have included Gens. Altemeyer and D'Harcourt and many other high army officers.

The paper said that Paul Reynaud, Premier, and Georges Mandel, Interior Minister, at the time of France's fall, had been taken to Germany.

12 U.S. FIGHTERS LAND IN PORTUGAL; PILOTS INTERNED

Storm Forces Warplanes Down at Airport in Lisbon.

OTHERS CONTINUE TRIP

Great Air Armada Reported Winging Toward Mediterranean War Zone.

LISBON, Portugal, Jan. 15—(AP) Twelve American Airacobra fighter planes, beset by storms lashing the Iberian peninsula, were reported to have landed in Portugal today, 11 at the Lisbon airport, and an armada of 50 others was sighted winging over this neutral country toward the Mediterranean war theater.

The crews of the 11 planes at once surrendered to Portuguese military authorities, who arranged for their internment and the storage of their planes for the duration.

Bomber Continues Flight

A four-motored bomber the planes were escorting flew on to the south.

JAN 16 1943

A 12th [illegible] was said to have landed at Aveiro, in North Portugal.

(A Madrid dispatch said a two-motored British plane crashed on Spanish soil at La Banqueta, near La Linea, across the bay from Gibraltar and that two of its crew members were injured.

(The German radio described the planes as "chasers" and said that they were seized by Portuguese authorities and that the crews were interned. The German account said the aircraft landed about 3 p. m. because of fuel shortage.)

(The German account said 33 airmen were interned.)

Storms Cause Great Damage

The 11 planes landed at Portela Sacavem, the Lisbon airport, six miles up the Tagus river, as severe electrical storms affected a widespread area, causing crop damage and property loss in a score of villages and hamlets in north Portugal.

Madrid dispatches also reported violent storms in the Bay of Biscay and along the Galician coast which forced scores of ships into harbor for safety and delayed the voyages of others. At least three fishing schooners were reported wrecked and many buildings damaged or destroyed.

Naval launches were kept busy sweeping up mines torn loose from their moorings in the war zones to the north, it was said.

Landing of the planes in Portugal may result in their loss to the United Nations for the duration, as under normal procedure belligerent planes and crews are interned when forced down on neutral soil.

The exceptional air activity over Portugal despite unfavorable weather suggested that a large-scale movement of planes and perhaps of troops to North Africa was taking place.

Hayes Pledges Hands-Off in Spain; Denies We Aim to Oust Regime

U. S. Envoy Tells Madrid Officials Our Goal Is to Stop 'Pushing Around' by Axis, and Not to Impose on Other Nations

JAN 16 1943

MADRID, Jan. 15 (AP)—United States Ambassador Carlton J. H. Hayes, addressing a gathering of diplomats and high Spanish officials, declared today that there could be no negotiated peace between the United States and its enemies.

At the same time Mr. Hayes, whose theme was "American War Aims," hit hard at Axis-inspired rumors that an Allied victory would mean the overturn of the present government of Spain.

"If the political and social institutions of this country undergo change or modification in future years," he declared emphatically, "it will be the work of Spaniards within Spain—not of the United States or of Spanish emigrés."

Mr. Hayes remarked that thirteen sovereign States on the American continents were "leagued together in a war of colossal magnitude."

But, he added, the United States neither wishes to impose on any other country nor is it fighting a war for capitalistic stakes.

Far from being materialistic, the Ambassador asserted, the people of the United States "are intensely idealistic—incorrigibly idealistic."

"Americans have in them more of the Spanish than you might guess," he said. "They are in their peculiar way the Don Quixotes of the twentieth century. For one thing, Americans love liberty—liberty for the individual and liberty for nations."

Naturally peace-loving, the Americans "wanted very much to stay out of the present war" and did stay out until they were attacked, Mr. Hayes said. Yet, once aroused, Americans can and will fight, he declared, and what arouses them most is resentment at being pushed around or seeing other people pushed around.

The chief war aim of the United States is to put a stop to "pushing" by the Axis powers, the Ambassador asserted. He described the so-called new order of the Axis as "simply a gigantic pushing around and pushing down of practically all the peoples of the world in the selfish interest of a pair of swashbuckling, would-be superior powers—Nazi Germany and Imperial Japan."

"Even the original third partner now is merely a silent partner—a kind of burned-out satellite helplessly held in its appointed course by the solar Berlin," Mr. Hayes continued.

"Germany and Japan would exploit the world's economy to their own exclusive advantage, thereby impoverishing less-favored nations and in the long run preparing them for communism or other desperate adventures."

The American war aims, Mr. Hayes said, "surely represent the aspirations and yearnings of all peoples who want to be free, decent and self-respecting." He declared the objectives outlined in the Atlantic Charter "accord perfectly with the best and highest traditions of Christian civilization as expressed so clearly and authoritatively in the recent Christmas allocution of the sovereign Pontiff."

Axis Claim 28 Planes.

Rome (From Italian Broadcasts), Jan. 15 (A. P.).—Strong Allied attacks in Tunisia and increased activity on the Libyan front were reported today by the Italian High Command, which said that twenty-eight Allied planes, many of them heavy bombers, were shot down by German fighters.

"In the Fezzan region," the communique added, "our desert elements sustained successful engagements with enemy motorized groups. Strong enemy thrusts were again repulsed in the southern sector of the Tunisian front. The attacking forces sustained heavy losses."

German planes were declared to have hit and damaged two naval units, one of them a warship, in Mediterranean operations. In an Allied air raid on the Tunisian port of Sfax, the communique said, two planes were shot down.

Nazis' Version.

Berlin (From German Broadcasts), Jan 15 (A. P.).—Strong Allied thrusts in southern Tunisia were repulsed with heavy losses to the enemy, the High Command reported today. In fierce aerial combat over Libya German fighters destroyed twenty-eight Allied planes, the communique said.

Fast German fighter-bombers were said to have damaged an enemy destroyer in Bone harbor, Algeria, and to have started extensive fires at an Allied air base.

Nazis Report Fierce Fighting.

Berlin (From German Broadcasts), Jan. 15 (A. P.).—Heavy defensive fighting continues in the southern sector of the Russian front with unabated fierceness, the High Command announced today.

In the Stalingrad area German troops were reported to be defending themselves in bitter combat against continuous heavy Soviet attacks. Seventy-five Russian tanks were reported destroyed in yesterday's fighting, thirty-five of them at Stalingrad.

Soviet attacks at Velikie Luki and southeast of Lake Ilmen and south of Lake Ladoga on the northern end of the front were reported to have been repulsed after severe fighting.

British Subs Sink Three More Enemy Supply Vessels

JAN 16 1943

By the Associated Press.

Flying Fortresses attacked the Eastern Tunisian supply ports of Sousse and Sfax yesterday, leaving the harbor areas aflame from a destructive downpour of explosives, it was announced today at Allied headquarters in North Africa.

Lighter two-motored B-26 Marauders battered rail lines and highways along the coastal road at Mahares, on the Gulf of Gabes 20 miles southwest of Sfax, and American fighters ranged widely over the battle area.

An Allied communique said that "there was no change in the ground situation."

The Allied aerial attack also was kept under way from bases in the east where warplanes battered at Marshal Erwin Rommel's supply lines and air bases along the Tripolitanian coast and into Tunisia. A Cairo communique said 13 Allied pilots were missing after widespread operations in which at least eight Axis fighters were downed.

Three Axis Ships Sunk.

In London, the Admiralty announced that British submarines in the Mediterranean had sunk three more enemy supply ships and a small naval vessel, probably destroyed three other supply ships and shelled a railway bridge on the southern coast of Italy.

Reuters, British news agency, reported from Allied headquarters in North Africa that the three high-ranking British air officials in the Mediterranean conferred recently in North Africa, presaging a three-way aerial attack against Axis forces.

Commentators in London said that if the conference resulted in a unification of the air command, the need for which has been expressed in some quarters, one valuable result would be that flyers could shuttle between eastern and western bases in relay bombings of Axis positions.

It was explained that now flyers are supposed to return to their home base after completing their missions.

JAN 16 1943

Air Activity Increases.

Air Marshal Sir Arthur William Tedder, vice chief of staff of the air forces, met with Sir Keith Park air vice marshal for Malta, and Air Marshal Sir William Welsh commanding the RAF in North Africa, Reuters said.

The Italian high command reported considerably increased air action over the Libyan front and said German fighters intercepted large formations of Allied planes and shot down 28, many of them heavy bombers.

Nazi fighters shot down 18 Allied planes yesterday in North Africa, the German news agency, DNB, said today.

Nazis Claim Repulse of French.

Another German broadcast said 800 French troops were killed and 15 tanks were destroyed in Central Tunisia when a regiment of French launched an attack toward Pont du Fahs but were repulsed.

The alleged victory was not confirmed by Allied sources. The French in North Africa announced yesterday they had driven Axis forces from two strategic heights northwest of Kairouan, which is south of Pont du Fahs, and in another area on that general front had taken an Axis position.

The German-controlled Paris radio reported today that the frontier between Spanish and French Morocco in North Africa had been closed.

The Allied North African communique said:

"There is no change in the ground situation.

"Flying Fortresses attacked the enemy supply ports of Sousse and Sfax. At both places targets on quays were hit and fires were left burning.

"Escorting P-38s shot down one ME-109.

"Objectives at Mahares, 20 miles southwest of Sfax, were attacked by B-26 bombers.

Six Victories in Three Days.

"Sweeps and patrols were carried out by fighters in the forward areas. Spitfires destroyed one enemy fighter.

"In these operations a few of our aircraft were lost, but one pilot is safe.

"Additional reports show that on January 13 two enemy bombers were shot down by our P-40's and another enemy fighter was destroyed by Spitfires."

A forward P-40 outfit, led by Maj. Philip G. Cochran of Erie, Pa., who recently bombed a German headquarters at Kairouan, was credited with six victories in three days.

Maj. Cochran and First Lt. Thomas A. Thomas, jr., of Ada, Okla., shot down a Focke-Wulf 190 on January 11. On the following day the unit shot down three others, credit for them going to Lts. Walter Scholl, New York City, a former Cornell University football star; James H. Radden, Hattiesburg, Miss., and Carson W. Bounds, Philadelphia, Miss. Cochran got another plane January 13, and Lt. E. T. Bent, Pittsford, N. Y., also shot one down.

All told, American airmen bagged 15 planes—nine Junkers 88s, four Messerschmitt 109s and two Focke-Wulf 190s.

Two RAF Spitfire fighters disclosed that now virtually all the aerial fighting in the northern sectors of the Tunisian front is taking place over the enemy's lines.

They said Allied air units are making four sweeps for every one by Axis planes.

NUNS IN TUNISIA WIN HIGH PRAISE

Nursing Sisters Are Called Angels to U. S. Soldiers.

With the United States Forces in Tunisia, Jan. 12 (Delayed) (A. P.).—White-clad nuns who operate a hospital in a small French town along the Central Tunisian front have proved true angels of mercy to many wounded and sick American and British soldiers. When American medical men approached them for permission to use a room in the hospital for diagnosis and emergency treatment, the nuns responded by turning over the entire first floor.

"Their kindness has helped us save lives," said Capt. Gustave Stockness of 1151 Elizabeth avenue, Elizabeth, N. J., commander of the medical unit. "Ordinarily we have had to set up in tents."

The operating room with blacked out windows enables the doctors to handle emergency cases at all hours even when enemy planes fly overhead.

JAN 16 1943

Go 15 Miles for a Shower.

The nuns also provided laundry equipment for the soldiers and paid for them to set up a delousing unit, and soldiers journey fifteen miles or more to the hospital for hot showers, the rarest of luxuries for a front-line fighter.

In the hospital wards are soldiers who have been injured in accidents, wounded in battle and awaiting transportation back to base hospitals, or suffering from dysentery or pneumonia or other illnesses of exposure. Every morning they are visited by a plump little middle-aged nun. Although she knows no English, she passes a word of greeting or joking gesture with each soldier and her smile is a language universal.

Pet of Every Soldier.

"She is the pet of every soldier in the hospital," said Capt. Stockness. "The day doesn't begin for some of those poor fellows until she appears."

The soldiers give little presents of chocolate and candy to the nuns and one who understands a little English has been given several books.

Members of the medical unit put in twelve hours a day or more and remain on call at all hours. The most irrepressible one is Private Ernest C. Kaled of Methuen, Mass. Hospital workers must take turns at kitchen police duty, but Kaled, a medical technician, was released from all obligations after he began serving tea with a hand syringe.

ARRESTS IN AFRICA

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Jan. 15 (A. P.).—Two minor police officials have been arrested in connection with the Christmas Eve assassination of Admiral Jean Darlan, it was authoritatively reported today, and a number of those previously seized were stated to have been members of the French Royalist party. Informed spokesmen, however, discounted street gossip that the assassination was the result of a Royalist plot.

Harold MacMillan, the British Minister, expressed the belief last night that Gen. Henri Giraud, High Commissioner for French North and West Africa, was "determined to reach an agreement with Gen. de Gaulle," leader of the Fighting French. He added that the British and American governments sought to facilitate a meeting that might result in such an agreement, which, he predicted, would result in some house-cleaning and provide for a de facto provisional French administration to direct the French war effort.

5 Suspects in Darlan Death Are Released

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 15. (AP)—Five of the original 12 arrested in connection with the assassination of Admiral Jean Darlan were reported reliably today to have been released. One was rearrested immediately.

Those released were described variously as de Gaullists, Royalists. Darlanists and some who professed loyalty to all simultaneously.

FOUR MOVIE ACTRESSES TO GIVE SHOWS IN AFRICA

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 15.—(AP) Movie actresses Carole Landis, Mitzi Mayfair, Kay Francis and Martha Raye arrived in Algiers today to do a series of shows for Allied troops in North Africa.

They were the first Hollywood stars to arrive under sponsorship of the U.S.O. Camp program. Their tour is expected to take two weeks and go as far east as Constantine and as far west as Oran and Casablanca.

Asked why male stars were not included in the variety program, Martha Raye replied, "What soldier around here wants to look at a man?"

THIS PROVES DUCE HAS FALLEN ARCHES

Cairo, Jan. 15 (A. P.).—Airmen operating over the Libyan desert report that Mussolini is suffering from fallen arches.

There are many junctions along the roads that spread out like spokes from Tripoli, and at these points Il Duce in happier days had triumphal arches built. These highway junctions are now targets of the Allied air forces and the arches are in a sad state.

Rommel's Positions Blasted.

Cairo, Jan. 15 (A. P.).—The United States Air Force and South African light bombers attacked enemy camps, air fields and transport concentrations yesterday in a sweeping follow-up of "very extensive medium-bomber operations" of the night before, it was announced today.

Two landing grounds just behind the enemy's positions west of Wadi Zem Zem, on the Tripolitanian coast, were reported hit especially hard. Eight Axis fighters were shot down attempting to intercept the Allied formations and twelve others were damaged badly, it was disclosed.

The operations of Wednesday night included intruder raids on enemy transport columns between Tripoli and Zuara, along the coastal road to the west, and heavy bomber attacks on road junctions around Tripoli.

Foe Puts Up Stiff Opposition.

Today's British communique said that at least eight Axis planes were shot down and many damaged in yesterday's attacks.

The announcement declared that the Axis airmen had offered strong opposition and that thirteen Allied pilots were missing after these and other aerial operations.

The latter included an attack yesterday on the airdrome on Lampeduca Island, off the east coast of Tunisia, and raids the previous night on targets around Tripoli and Misurata. Motor transport and troop concentrations in the coastal areas of Tunisia and Tripolitania were strafed, and an enemy schooner was shot up off the Tunisian coast, the communique continued, adding: "Apart from local air activity there was nothing to report from our land forces."

R. A. F. Blasts Akyab Area

NEW DELHI, India, Jan. 15 (AP).—Royal Air Force bombers attacked four Japanese-occupied villages in the Akyab area of western Burma yesterday, and followed up with a night assault on Akyab Island, a British communique announced today.

Direct hits were scored on targets in both the day and night forays, from which all British planes returned, the announcement said. The daylight raiders were accompanied by fighters which machine-gunned enemy installations without encountering any aerial opposition, the bulletin added.

RAID ON CALCUTTA SHARPLY REBUFFED

Three Japanese Bombers Are Downed in Four Minutes by a British Night Fighter

Marshal Stresses Difficulty of Jungle—Americans Set Fire to Japanese Supplies

A NIGHT FIGHTER BASE NEAR CALCUTTA, India, Saturday, Jan. 16 (AP)—One British night fighter destroyed three Japanese medium bombers attacking the Calcutta district in only four minutes last night, a record for the area's defenses and possibly a record for such brief combat anywhere.

[A communiqué from British headquarters in India said some bombs were dropped but it was understood that damage was negligible. It added no casualties have been reported thus far.]

Calcutta had been expecting a raid. Fully ten minutes after the alarm sounded British and American soldiers and others stood in the streets staring into the for sight of the Japanese attackers. When they did not come they proceeded in an orderly manner to the nearest shelters.

Sergeant Tells of Victory

The reason the Japanese did not come was because Flight Sergeant Pring's plane shot them down. When Sergeant Pring stepped out of his plane he was beaming like a golfer who had just shot a hole-in-one.

"That's the quickest four minutes I ever had," he declared.

After such an encounter he was very calm.

"The first plane I saw had its navigation lights on, but I wasn't fooled," Sergeant Pring said. "We had been scrambled out of bed for this show, and I knew that bloke was not one of ours. We made a swift pass, shooting him to the ground. Another pass and No. 2 burst into flames. About 200 yards ahead the third Jap plane was trying desperately to get away, but I got him in my sights. He went into the ground shooting flames like the oil gushers Americans tell about."

Prior to this record show Sergeant Pring had shot down three and damaged two enemies.

Americans Bomb Burma Bases

WITH THE UNITED STATES ARMY AIR FORCES IN CHINA, Jan. 14 (DELAYED) (AP)—A flight of United States fighter planes strafed Japanese supply and transport installations at Bhamo, Northern Burma, today, setting fire to a big warehouse filled with gasoline drums. Returning pilots reported that a column of black smoke from the burning building was visible seventy-five miles away.

Two tugs and three barges on the Irrawaddy River also were machine-gunned from a low level and one of the craft was set afire.

Another fighter reconnaisance sweep over Lashio, former terminus of the Burma Road, failed to call out any Japanese opposition. Captain Grant Mahony of Vallejo, Calif., leader of this mission, destroyed a Japanese truck on the Burma Road, leaving several bodies beside it.

The Japanese again are attacking from the northern Shan States of Burma along the southern Yunnan frontier area but have been checked after suffering losses, the Chinese High Command said today.

In one encounter north of the am Lwi River the Japanese were rned back after advancing from ngma, the communiqué said.

JAPS SUFFER LOSSES IN NORTH BURMA ATTACK

CHUNGKING, Jan. 15 — (AP) The Japanese again are attacking from the northern Shan states of Burma along the southern Yunnan frontier area but have been checked after suffering bloody losses, the Chinese high command said today.

In one encounter north of the Namlwo (Lot) river, the Japanese were turned back after advancing from Mongma, the communique said.

In fighting in the Tapieh mountains northeast of Hankow, the Chinese asserted they were making big strides in pursuit of retreating Japanese forces which launched a drive nearly four weeks ago to wipe out potential Chinese bases for a counteroffensive.

reinforcements there last week from the remnants of a badly crippled convoy, Allied medium bombers, escorted by fighters, attacked supply dumps along the shore, starting large fuel fires.

The communique announced that the enemy had made no effort to intercept the raiders—which was taken by observers as an indication that Japanese air strength in this theater had been seriously impaired by losses suffered in their desperate reinforcement attempt.

At least 138 enemy planes had been reported shot down or damaged while trying to protect the convoy from Allied aerial attacks and Gen. MacArthur himself described the Japanese losses as a serious blow.

Allied planes also bombed the Japanese bases at Madang and Finschhafen in Northeastern New Guinea, ranged across the Solomon Sea to attack the airdrome at Gasmata, New Britain, and blasted enemy positions in Timor.

Bad weather continued to delay land operations on the Papuan Peninsula, but Allied headquarters said American and Australian troops were slowly closing in on the remnants of a Japanese force encircled on Sanananda Point.

Three-day Assault in Mubo

Far up the coast at Mubo, which is south and inland from Salamaua, another Allied force concluded a three-day assault in which "heavy" casualties were inflicted and the Japanese area headquarters destroyed. Yesterday's communique listed Jap dead there as totalling at least [illegible]

Bombers meanwhile struck far and wide, blasting targets in the Tanimbar Islands, in the Arafura Sea, harbor installations at Rabaul, New Britain, and supply dumps at Lae, New Guinea.

A Liberator on reconnaissance shot down one of two intercepting fighters over Celebes, in the Dutch East Indies, and near Lae another Liberator knocked down at least two out of six.

Allies Surprise Japs In Salamaua Area; Bomb Papua Bases

Lack of Air Opposition Shows Extent of Loss In Convoy Action

By the Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Jan. 15.—Allied troops, striking a surprise blow at the Japanese in the vicinity of Mubo, some 15 miles southwest of Salamaua, were reported today to have slain 116 of the enemy in the first ground fighting in that area in many weeks.

The action was disclosed in a communique from Gen. MacArthur's headquarters and advices from the front said the Allied troops were combing the bush for more Japanese bodies, indicating the toll inflicted on the enemy might be higher than announced.

(Allied land forces were reported operating around Mubo as long ago as last July, when the Japanese bombed the hamlet after Australian patrols had raided their positions near Salamaua.)

American and Australian airmen, meanwhile, continued to blast Japanese bases at Salamaua and Lae, approximately 25 miles farther north.

Allies Gain Break Through At Sanananda

152 Japanese Killed in Day's Fighting in New Guinea.

By Tom Yarbrough

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Saturday, Jan. 16 (AP)—An Allied break-through at Sanananda, New Guinea, in which at least 152 Japanese were killed in one day's fighting Thursday was reported in today's noon communique by General Douglas MacArthur.

Sanananda, immediately northwest of Buna on the northeast New Guinea coast, is the only spot in all the Papuan Peninsula still held by a fragment of a Jap army which once totalled 15,000. There jungle fortifications plus swampy conditions caused by recent rains had slowed up the cleanup drive.

A spokesman at General MacArthur's headquarters did not amplify the official report which said that arms and equipment were captured after the forward positions were destroyed.

Airmen Blast Lae

Allied Headquarters in Australia, Jan. 15 (A. P.).—American and Australian airmen continued to blast the Japanese bases at both Salamaua and Lae, approximately twenty-five miles further north, a communique said today. At Lae, which has been hammered steadily since the Japanese landed reinforcements there last week from the remnants of a badly crippled convoy, Allied medium bombers escorted by fighters attacked supply dumps along the shore, starting large fuel fires.

The communique announced that the enemy had made no effort to intercept the raiders—which was taken by observers as an indication that Jap air strength in this theater had been seriously impaired by losses suffered in their desperate reinforcement attempt. At least 138 enemy planes had been reported shot down or damaged while trying to protect the convoy from Allied aerial attacks and Gen. Allied planes also bombed the Japanese bases at Madang and Finschhafen in northeastern New Guinea, ranged across the Solomon Sea to attack the airdrome at Gasmata, New Britain, and blasted enemy positions in Timor.

NEW YORK FLYERS GET SILVER STARS

Somewhere in Australia, Jan. 8 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Lieut.-Gen. George C. Kenney, commander of Allied Air Forces in the Southwest Pacific area, today presented Silver Stars to two Army Air Force men from New York for gallantry in action against the Japs. They were First Lieut. George F. Callahan of 128-16 148th street, Ozone Park, Queens, and Staff Sergeant John E. Lillback, 1128 East 34th street, Brooklyn.

Lieut. Callahan, a fighter pilot, shot down a Zero out of a flight of eight Zeros and fifteen Japanese dive bombers which attacked his and another United States plane during a patrol mission over Buna, New Guinea, on November 22. Lieut. Callahan was a flight leader in one of the fighter formations.

Sergt. Lillback was radio operator on a Flying Fortress on reconnaissance over Rabaul Harbor on August 29. Two of four enemy fighters which attacked were shot down. Sergt. Dillback operated a machine gun.

Lieut. Callahan, 27 years old, has been a flying enthusiast since he was a youngster, his mother, Mrs. Anna R. Callahan, said today at their home in South Ozone Park.

"When he was a kid, he and some pals used to sneak off and get a friend who was a pilot to take them up," she said. "I knew he'd been shooting down those Japs, but I didn't know how many," she continued. "He writes home telling me how many, but the censor always blots out the number."

She said her son joined the Air Corps two years ago, and was commissioned in Alabama in October, 1941. He was stationed at Mitchel Field when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor, and sailed for Australia a few weeks later.

Lieut. Callahan was graduated from Jamaica High School in 1933, and worked for the Equitable Life Assurance Society at 393 Seventh avenue before entering the service. His father, George F. Sr., died fourteen years ago. He had been a postal employee for twenty-three years.

Sergt. Lillback, who is 25 years old, returned to America immediately after he was decorated in November, his sister, Miss Elna Lillback, said today. He was home on leave until last week, when he went to the West Coast for reassignment. Miss Lillback said her brother worked at the New York World's Fair before joining the Air Corps. His mother, Mrs. Fanny Lillback, was not at home today. His father is dead.

Allies Attack Near Salamaua

Slay 116 Japs in Surprise Assault Fifteen Miles From Big Enemy Base.

Somewhere in New Guinea, Jan. 15 (A. P.).—Australian troops raided Mubo—Japanese defense outpost for their important base at Salamaua—killing more than 100 of the enemy as Allied forces more than 200 miles to the southeast intensified pressure on the Sanananda pocket and forced the Japanese to attempt an escape toward Gona.

The Japanese occupied Mubo, ten miles from Salamaua, on September 1. On the afternoon of January 11, Australian forces raided a village in the valley from five different ridge-top positions simultaneously. The Japs fought strongly on three ridges but gave way before the mortar and heavy machine gun fire. The Australians' biggest success was on a hill to the west of Mubo, where they took the enemy completely by surprise. Here, 116 Japs were killed. Australian casualties were very light.

Battle Lasts Two Days.

Fighting continued the next two days, January 12 and 13. The Japs sent reinforcements up. A raiding party shelled these reinforcements but they got through, and the Aussies retired early today, having inflicted a number of casualties and having obtained valuable information.

[The attack on this sector of northeast New Guinea, accompanied by recent almost daily air raids there, may represent a shifting of the weight of the Allied offensive from the Buna region of the Papuan Peninsula, where the cleanup of Japanese forces is in its final stage.]

The raid, resembling a hit-and-run operation, was termed highly successful. A novel feature of the Mubo defense were strings of tin cans hanging from wires. The invading party took care, however, not to rattle the cans.

At Sanananda, Australian troops pressing up the road from the south made progress, as did the Americans and Aussies on their left flank.

Fifty Japanese seen moving toward Gona encountered Allied supply forces and took to the jungle after a brief engagement in which they were pursued by regular combatant units.

[Allied land forces were reported operating around Mubo as long ago as last July, when the Japanese bombed the hamlet after Australian patrols had raided their positions near Salamaua.]

BIG GAME HUNTER NOW HUNTS JAPS

With United States Troops in New Guinea, Jan. 14 (Delayed), A. P.).—Sergt. Harold Pointer of Bozeman, Mont., is using his big game hunting experience as a counter-sniper on Sanananda Point. Sergt. Pointer has nineteen Japs to his credit after less than two weeks of action.

He goes out alone in the jungle muck and waist-deep water and waits until he hears a sniper's shot. He creeps closer, then waits for a movement and picks off his man. When he spots a Jap position too strong for him, he leads back mortar and machine-gun crews and directs fire upon it.

ARGENTINE SIDESTEPS UNITED NATIONS PLAN

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 15 — (AP) — The Argentine Foreign office sidestepped the issue today in a reply to a United Nations notification that the Allies will refuse to recognize Nazi-enforced transfers of occupied nations property.

The notification, in effect an invitation to Argentina to declare her solidarity with the United Nations, drew response from Roberto Gache, foreign undersecretary, that Argentina supports the "principles of order and respect for individual rights invariably sustained by this country."

The answer was delivered to R. H. Hadow, British Chargé d'affaires.

JAN 16 1943

Similar notifications were made in a number of other capitals in South America and resulted in a number of unequivocal declarations supporting the United Nations.

The declarations implied that the tions making them were willing share the responsibility of see- that Nazi-seized property is re- ned to its rightful owners.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 15 (AP)—Company and union representatives will confer with the cabinet at Ottawa tomorrow afternoon in an attempt to settle the strike which has left 13,500 Canadian steel workers idle, halting two of Canada's three basic steel-producing plants.

Labor Department officials at Ottawa said that both the Algoma Steel Corporation at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation at Sydney, N. S., would be represented at the meeting. There are 5,000 workers idle at the Algoma plant, 5,000 at Sydney and 3,500 at the Dosco subsidiary plants at Trenton, N. S.

Hearings Are Ordered On Flynn Nomination

Democratic Members of Foreign Relations Committee Refuse Suggestions to Recommend Withdrawal of Appointment.

JAN 16 1943

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15—(AP)—Public hearings on Edward J. Flynn's nomination to be minister to Australia were ordered unanimously by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today after Democratic members had refused to entertain a Republican suggestion that the committee, in the interest of wartime harmony, recommend withdrawal of the appointment.

Start Next Week

Chairman Connally (D. Tex.) announced the hearings would begin next Wednesday or Thursday and would be conducted by the full 23-memper committee. He set the date after communicating with Flynn, who has called a meeting of the Democratic National committee for Monday in Chicago to present his resignation as its chairman.

Today's action was taken at a closed session of the committee which lasted about an hour. Senator Bridges (R. N.H.) who has made charges that Flynn is unfit to hold the diplomatic post, was called in at the outset to present them. He told reporters afterward that he had heard some talk in the committee "about getting President Roosevelt to withdraw the appointment but it didn't get anywhere."

Says Usefulness Impaired

Another senator, who can not be quoted by name, said that this suggestion was advanced by Senator Vandenberg (R. Mich.) He expressed the opinion, it was reported, that irrespective of the truth of any accusations against Flynn his usefulness in a diplomatic post had been impaired by the charge made against him and by the furore over his nomination.

Consequently, Vandenberg was reported to have said, the committee might with propriety recommend that the nomination be withdrawn.

The Democratic members, however, took the attitude that since Bridges had made his charges publicly in the Senate the whole question must be threshed out in hearings affording Flynn opportunity to refute them.

Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, made an informal motion that open hearings be held. There was no dissent.

Connally, talking to reporters after the committee session, made clear that he was determined the witnesses should be limited to persons with personal knowledge of the matters about which they proposed to testify.

Rumors Ruled Out

If "hearsay" and mere expressions of opinion concerning Flynn should be admitted, the hearings might last interminably, the chairman said. Committee members said they anticipated two or three weeks of hearings, at a minimum, but that the committee might not meet every day.

Bridges made several charges, including one that New York City labor and materials were used in paving a courtyard at Flynn's Putnam County, New York, estate. This matter was once investigated by a Bronx County grand jury which exonerated Flynn of any wrong-doing.

Another charge was that Flynn, while sheriff of Bronx County, appointed as a deputy Dutch Shultz, "noted criminal and murderer."

Also present to present charges was Sidney Baron, secretary of the committee to reopen the Flynn case. He was not received by the full committee but Senators Connally, George (D. Ga.) and Vandenberg talked with him after the meeting.

SUBMARINE BAGGED 3 JAPANESE SHIPS

Lieut. Lawson, on Leave, Recounts Exploits of U. S. Raider on Pacific Tour of Duty

JAN 16 1943

HUNTED BY AIR AND SEA

Craft Once Narrowly Missed by Bomb, Eluded Ramming and Survived Mishap to Hatch

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—Bombed by Japanese airplanes, hunted by enemy warships and once endangered by a hatch that was difficult to close, Lieutenant Frank Lawson Jr. of the American Submarine Service, reported today that his undersea raider had accounted for at least three Japanese ships sunk and two or more damaged on a series of extensive operations in the Pacific.

Lieutenant Lawson, whose home address is 417 Southway, Baltimore, Md., is home on leave. His story was told by the Navy Department in a press release.

He was at Manila Bay in the Philippines when the war started and his submarine, with others, took refuge from the first Japanese bombings of Cavite and Manila by lying on the bottom of the shallow bay. Their periscopes protruded above the surface, however, and Lieutenant Lawson said he was able to watch the air attack on the city and harbor.

Revenge for the destruction wrought by the Japanese attack was not long in coming. Lieutenant Lawson's submarine, which was commanded by Commander Kenneth C. Hurd of Flint, Mich., was quickly sent to sea and one night shortly after leaving Manila picked up an enemy ship.

Two torpedoes sent that vessel down in just a few minutes.

After two months of cruising, the submarine put in at a base for reconditioning, and soon afterward the Japanese dropped a 500-pound bomb on the pier only a few hundred yards from the ship. The submarine immediately submerged, but the decks remained awash and gun crews manned the machine guns. They succeeded in driving off an enemy dive bomber before it could inflict any damage.

Among Many Enemy Ships

The first night out from that base the submarine surfaced and found itself in the midst of a large number of enemy ships.

"Fortunately," Lieutenant Lawson said, "we were well protected by foggy weather. The Japs didn't see us, but we could distinctly see the silhouettes of their vessels. So we picked out the two largest, unleashed our torpedoes and dove.

"As we were going down we heard two large explosions and probably a third. We had some difficulty closing our hatch during the emergency dive and took on quite a bit of water. But we got it closed all right and straightened out our rather speedy and steep dive. Our sub was credited with two enemy ships."

In the next few days several Japanese cruisers chased the submarine, but finally gave up their attempts to destroy it.

Some months later, after another trip to the base for reconditioning, the submarine made contact with a large enemy ship.

"We fired two tin fish," Lieutenant Lawson said, "both of which missed. So we made a new approach and fired two more, one of which hit the target, a big merchant ship. She went up in a terrific explosion and flames shot a mile high in the air. We had a good look at her because we surfaced and patrolled around in circles.

"In order to put her away for keeps, we returned to make a new approach. But as we were getting ready to finish her off, we heard another explosion and heard her sink. It turned out later that the second explosion might have been caused by a torpedo from one of our sister subs which was operating in the same area at that time.

"Two months later we were headed in a northerly direction, constantly alert for attacks from enemy aircraft. We picked up frequent contacts in this locality and made approaches on our intended victims, only to find that they were hospital ships.

Attacked Ship in Convoy

"A little later we picked up a small enemy convoy and fired on them. We heard one very loud explosion, but couldn't surface to verify our attack, as the convoy was accompanied by Japanese destroyers.

"Several days later we contacted a coastal vessel and let her have one torpedo. She was badly damaged. She was so near the shore she managed to beach herself. Next day we slipped back to finish off our cripple, but she had disappeared. We couldn't tell whether she finally went down or repaired herself sufficiently to get away to the safety of a near-by port."

On its next patrol, the submarine sighted a big convoy guarded by destroyers. It moved in to attack one of the columns.

"One of the Japanese warships," Lawson related, "which we had apparently failed to pick up with our periscope, spotted us and sped to the attack. One of the cargo ships, probably warned by the destroyer, turned toward us and passed over us, trying to ram us.

"We believe we successfully attacked one or two of the ships in the convoy, as we could hear the explosions.

"After this adventure, I got leave to come home."

GUADALCANAL'S PERIL RELATED

Coast Guardsman Says Japs Might Have Retaken Isle.

JAN 16 1943

Washington, Jan. 16 (A. P.).—James D. Fox, a Coast Guardsman home on leave from the South Pacific, said today that in his opinion the Japanese could have retaken Guadalcanal Island when the American forces first moved in last August.

"But they didn't know it," Fox said, "and we didn't intend to let them know it." Fox, a machinist's mate, first class, whose home is in Uniontown, Pa., had some harrowing experiences in the early landing operations at Guadalcanal.

On one occasion he abandoned his tent for a quick dive into a foxhole when the enemy opened up with an artillery barrage. When the shelling was over, he said he counted seventy-two holes in the tent.

Account of Adventures.

In an account of his adventures and those of his fellows, released by the Navy today, he praised the heroism of his fellow Coast Guardsmen. Among others, he mentioned Albert di Pasquali, fireman, second class, of Highlands, N. J.

Fox said that Di Pasquali single-handedly had manned a tank lighter, successfully doing the work of four men under heavy enemy fire. "Di Pasquali, known as 'the mighty Di Pas,' practically went native," Fox said.

"The mighty Di Pas learned to climb up trees for coconuts with the speed of a native. He walked in his bare feet until they became tough as leather."

Praise for Shipmate.

Another man whose work he praised was Charles H. Barker, machinist's mate, first class, of Orwell, N. Y. Barker was a member of a Coast Guard crew which had to work at top speed for days on end to keep the boats running.

He worked day and night, Fox said, during the first three weeks of the landing operations, then became ill and was removed from the battle area to undergo a surgical operation. Within a month he was back again and hard at work until he was ordered a second time to submit to medical treatment.

Some Coast Guards patrolled off-shore waters in small craft and Fox said that he saw several go down under heavy Japanese fire. "But there was one Coast Guardsman who just wouldn't sink," Fox related.

Japs No Supermen.

"A Chicago boy, Robert Canavan, swam around in the thick of enemy fire for nineteen hours. He was the only one of the crew to get away.

"There hasn't been a Jap born who can come up to those fellows on Guadalcanal." Fox declared that Japanese fighters and pilots failed to impress him as being super-warriors,

He said that such wounded soldiers as were taken prisoner appeared happy to sit out the rest of the war. One Jap surrendered even though unwounded, Fox related, and said that he had been a student at Ohio State University and had no wish to fight Americans.

Senator Wallgren of Washington confirmed that he would introduce a resolution for transfer of supervision over the camps back to the Army from the War Relocation Authority. The Army has control over internment camps which house aliens considered dangerous.

When thousands of Japanese were first settled in ten colonies in various States, Senator Wallgren told reporters, the supervision operated fine under the Army.

JAN 16 1943

Later the camps were taken from Army control and turned over to the WRA, which Senator Johnson of Colorado described as "one of those social experimental agencies." Mr. Johnson and other West Coast Senators said that the Japanese were being pampered, and that there were reports of riotous demonstrations in some of the colonies against the United States, particularly on the anniversary of Pearl Harbor.

Senator Johnson said that gymnasiums, bathhouses, schools and other facilities had been built for the Japanese, who are distributed among colonies in California, Wyoming, Idaho, Colorado, Utah, Arkansas and Arizona. Meanwhile, he said, he had been unable to obtain new schoolhouses and sufficient teachers for the citizens of his own State.

Furthermore, members of the committee said, the Japanese, under an executive ruling, could not be employed to work on the projects for their own welfare.

Senator Chandler of Kentucky, chairman of a sub-committee to investigate camps, said that his group intended to visit the Japanese in colonies after hearing Dillon S. Myer, chief of the WRA, on the situation.

The action, decided on in a closed session of the Military Affairs Committee, resulted from a meeting of congressional delegations from the three West Coast States, Wallgren said.

19 NAVY MEN HONORED

Washington, Jan. 15 (A. P.).—Nineteen enlisted men have received letters of commendation from Navy Secretary Knox for outstanding duty in the Solomon Islands last August.

Robert F. Read, photographer's mate third class, of Sea Breeze, Monroe county, N. Y., was awarded a posthumous letter of commendation for taking photographs of bombs exploding and enemy aircraft crashing near his ship. His widow lives at 218 East Main street, Webster, N. Y. His citation said that although he was killed by bomb explosion, his camera was not destroyed and "the developed photographs are new testimony of his gallant and courageous performance of duty under fire."

Fifteen men received identical citations praising them for removing hot loaded powder cases from an unexploded ammunition locker when their ship was set afire in a Japanese air attack. The ammunition was thrown overboard and the citation said that a most serious threat to the safety of the ship was thereby removed.

Wounded Non-Com Lauds President's Son for Being in Front Line

By the Associated Press.

JAN 16 1943

SEATTLE, Jan. 15.—A wounded marine sergeant related yesterday how the landing for the successful raid on Jap-held Makin Island last August 17 was accomplished from submarines after months of training with inflated rubber boats.

It was the raid in which Lt. Col. James Roosevelt, eldest son of the President, participated actively.

The sergeant, Lawrence A. Lang, 36, a carpenter at Wheeling, W. Va., before he joined the marines 13 years ago, was brought to the Navy hospital last week with a bullet-shattered right elbow.

Serious Business.

"We didn't know where we were going when we started in training," Sergt. Lang explained in an interview, "but we knew it was going to be serious business. We were reasonably sure we were going after Japs if we had to sneak up on 'em in submarines.

"That was the only way we could get in because we were right in the heart of Jap territory.

"We landed under cover of darkness just before daybreak. They didn't spot us when we landed, but the fighting started about half an hour later and it was pretty hot and heavy after that. It was all close-range stuff. The range averaged from 30 to 100 yards.

Rifles, Machine Guns Count.

"There wasn't much hand-to-hand fighting. You usually shoot the other fellow or he shoots you before you get that close. Tanks and planes are all right out in the open but it's just rifles and machine guns that count in the jungle."

Sergt. Lang said he was taken off the island, one of the Gilbert group about 10 at night, after the Japanese detachment had been wiped out.

He described Col. Roosevelt as "a swell fellow."

"A lot of people have said he got his rank because he's the President's son," Sergt. Lang said, "but he's way above the average. He's right up in the front line in action."

SLANG FROM U-BOAT

Kansas City, Jan. 15 (A. P.).—Hearing American slang from a U-boat commander is disconcerting to survivors of a torpedoed ship, says Herschel Lee Jr., 18 years old, a sailor.

The morning after their ship went down the submarine appeared and the commander called,

"Where is your captain?"

"He went down with the ship," one of the sailors lied.

"Who's that fellow with the gold braid?" shouted the Nazi. "What are you doing, kidding me, buddy?"

They asked him about his familiarity with slang.

"I know New York. I was there in '38. How's everything in the old town?"

He sent over medicine and cigarettes and left them, Lee reported.

5 ADMIRALS PUT ON RETIRED LIST

Washington, Jan. 15 (A. P.).—Vice-admiral Russell Wilson has been retired from the post of Deputy Commander in Chief of the Fleet and been assigned to duty as a member of the Joint Strategic Survey Committee, an agency operating under the joint Army-Navy chiefs of staff.

The change, announced today, was one of several in which officers have been placed on the retired list, but continued on active duty, as a result of special physical examinations on their fitness to stand the strain of wartime service, both at sea and ashore. The Navy said the change in status was technical.

Other top ranking officers retired were:

JAN 16 1943

Rear Admiral Robert T. Church, director of the engineering experimental station at Annapolis, who is continuing in that position.

Rear Admiral Ralston S. Holmes, recently commandant of the naval operating base in the Eleventh Naval district at San Diego, Cal., who has been assigned to duty as liaison officer with the National Defense Committee of the California Institute of Technology.

Rear Admiral Andrew C. Pickens, a member of the Navy Department Board of Awards, who is continuing on the board.

Rear Admiral Stanford C. Hooper, general consultant for communications and radio in the office of naval material, Third Naval district, New York city.

Ranking marine officers placed on the retired list were:

Bri.-Gen. Edward A. Ostermann, adjutant and inspector of the Marine Corps, who, it was said, will be promoted to major-general and retired from active service.

Brig.-Gen Samuel M. Harrington, who will continue as director of the Marine Corps schools at Quantico, Va.

Whole Town Mourns the Loss of Five Sullivan Boys

WATERLOO, Ia., Jan. 15.—(AP) Waterloo has a heavy heart.

For Porgie and Frankie and Red and Matty and Al sailed off to war and now it looks like they're not coming home.

The five Sullivan brothers belonged to Waterloo almost as much as they did to those in the big weather-beaten frame house at the corner of Ankeny and Adams streets.

JAN 16 1943

And Waterloo was just as proud of the boys, who enlisted after Pearl Harbor to avenge a pal killed there, as the graying, middle-aged couple who go about their regular work with little hope — but still a hope — that any of their five sons are alive.

The Navy reported to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Sullivan that the boys are "missing as the result of enemy action Nov. 14 in the service of their country."

The boys were on the cruiser Juneau, sunk in a Solomons battle in which the Japanese suffered heavy losses.

Later Mrs. Sullivan received a letter from a rescued shipmate, whom she declined to identify, telling how George, 28, the eldest, had died on a raft, and adding that Francis, 27, Joseph, 24, Madison, 23 and Albert, 20, had gone down with the ship. She still hopes he may have been wrong about the other four.

Navy officials describe the loss as probably the greatest ever suffered by a single family in American naval history, since Navy policy is to separate members of a family in war time. But the Sullivan brothers enlisted with provision they remain together and the urgings of their officers were to no avail.

"If they're gone," said their mother, "it will be some comfort to know they went together—as they wanted."

A wave of humility and sympathy swept over this city of 50,000.

"And now I wonder how the sugar and coffee hoarders feel," commented one young woman.

Sympathy for Family

Messages of condolence poured in on the Sullivan family — from high officials and from the grocer and the mailman. A steady stream of visitors crossed the bare hall of the Sullivan home and many of them sat around the kitchen table to exchange reminiscences about Red or Porgie or Matty.

"It is a deplorable loss," said

Mayor Ralph B. Slippy, who, with his wife, called personally at the house near the railroad tracks to express his sympathy. "I admire Mrs. Sullivan's bravery. She is wonderful."

The Waterloo Courier recalled Abraham Lincoln's famous letter to Mrs. Bixby. "How weak and fruitless must be any word of mine."

A radio station started a war bond drive in honor of the boys and reported an immediate response. There was talk of naming a future veteran's organization the "Sullivan post." Throughout the city people asked "what can we do to help."

Several organizations discussed plans for memorial services, but Mrs. Sullivan preferred that no such ceremony be held until after the death of the boys is confirmed.

The Sullivans considered a request that they go to New York for a radio program.

Go About Regular Work

Despite their grief, the Sullivans are going about their regular work.

Tom, 59, has made his regular trips to Dubuque and back as a local freight conductor. He's winding up 33 years of railroading. Mrs. Sullivan, 49, tried hard to do her washing and ironing, but ringing telephone and door bells took most of her time. Neighbors came in to help.

Genevieve, 25, who is home with an arm fractured several weeks ago, is the only remaining child.

"I'd be in the Navy, too, if I were a man," declared the pretty brunette.

"I'd be in the WAVES if it weren't for leaving Mom and Dad."

Genevieve, like the five boys before they joined the Navy, works for a Waterloo packing firm.

She proudly displayed a new engagement ring, received this week from Sgt. Russell Murphy of Elma, Iowa, who was home on furlough. He's in the air corps.

"But no marriage for me until the war is over," she asserted.

Widow, Son with Sullivans

Sitting quiet and red-eyed at the edge of the family circle was Katherine, Albert's 20-year-old wife and mother of curly-haired, two-year-old Jimmy. They have been living with the Sullivans.

"Katherine and Jimmy will stay with us," said Mother Sullivan, a short, heavy-set woman, whose round, normally cheerful face now is marked by grief." "I told Al they always would have a home."

Katherine and Al were married when both were 17. The other boys were single. Red was engaged to Margaret Jaros of Pittsburgh, whom he met when she saw his picture in a newspaper and friends dared her to write him. She came to Waterloo to console Mrs. Sullivan.

Also at home is Mrs. Sullivan's mother, Mrs. George Abel.

There was nothing especially outstanding about the Sullivan boys except their family loyalty. All were born in Waterloo and they grew up just like average American boys. All were Boy Scouts and George was an assistant scout master.

Irish Catholics, all were religious. They went a year or so to high school and dropped out to go to work. They were good boys. The mother and their teachers agree on that.

George worked a year on the railroad and some of the other boys worked in the ice house. They all had the car bug and Red rode a motorcycle. The two older boys served a four-year hitch in the Navy and got out in the Summer of 1941.

It wasn't surprising that the boys insisted on staying together in the Navy. They were like that all through life. All would go to a dance and take Genevieve along. Like as not Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan would go too.

"Matty was the jitterbug," Mrs. Sullivan recalled with a smile.

"But we all danced—even Grandma."

Buddy Died at Pearl Harbor

They talked about joining the Navy before Pearl Harbor but when their buddy, Bill Ball of Fredericksburg, Ia., was killed in the Jap sneak attack, that settled it.

It's a Navy household, the Sullivans. Scattered about are pictures of the boys in uniform and many more of their buddies. Group pictures hang on the walls.

On one side of the big bay window hangs a service flag with five stars—they may be gold stars now. On the other is another service flag with one star. It is for Patrick Henry Sullivan, the boy's uncle, also in the Navy.

In the middle is an American flag.

Mrs. Sullivan had been invited to christen a Navy tug at an Oregon shipyard soon and she plans to carry out that assignment.

"It will be hard," she said, "but the boys would want me to do it. They always wrote 'Keep your chin up.'

"I'm going to do everything I can to help win this war."

She is keeping her chin up, too, though it may tremble a bit now and then.

She looked into space as if seeing that distant Solomons battle, then smiled:

"But we got 28 Jap ships, didn't we, and aren't the Russians doing swell?"

SURVIVORS OF BRITISH VESSEL LAND IN FLORIDA

NEW YORK, JAN 15-(AP)-THE BERLIN RADIO BROADCAST TODAY A TOKYO REPORT THAT THE JAPANESE HAVE BEGUN THE CONSTRUCTION OF RAFTS MADE OF BAMBOO, WITH A SURFACE AREA OF 10,000 SQUARE METERS, TO TRANSPORT ARMY MATERIALS.

THE BROADCAST SAID THE CONSTRUCTION WAS ORDERED AFTER SUCCESSFUL TESTS HAD BEEN COMPLETED UNDER THE SUPERVISION OF JAPANESE MILITARY AUTHORITIES.

JAN 16 1943

NO MORE CONSTRUCTION DETAILS WERE GIVEN BUT THE FLOATS WERE DECLARED TO BE UNSINKABLE AND WOULD BE READY FOR SERVICE IN FEBRUARY. IT WAS NOT STATED WHERE THEY WOULD BE USED BUT OBVIOUSLY RAFTS OF SUCH SIZE WOULD BE UNWIELDY IN ALL BUT THE SMOOTHEST OF WATERS.

THE BUILDING OF SUCH DEVICES MORE THAN STRONGLY HINTS OF THE SHIPPING LOSSES THAT THE JAPANESE HAVE SUFFERED AT THE HANDS OF THE ALLIES AND THE SERIOUSNESS OF THEIR TRANSPORTATION PROBLEM.

A FLOAT OF 10,000 SQUARE METERS COULD BE 200 METERS LONG AND 50 METERS WIDE, EQUIVALENT TO 656 FEET LONG BY 164 FEET WIDE.

AMID THE CLAMOR OVER THE POLITICAL SITUATION IN THE FRENCH EMPIRE THERE IS DANGER OF OVERLOOKING THE FACT THAT FRENCH FIGHTING MEN, DEDICATED TO THE LIBERATION OF THEIR COUNTRY, ARE GETTING AHEAD VERY WELL WITH THE IMMEDIATE JOB OF EXPELLING THE AXIS FROM AFRICA. IN FACT, DURING THE LAST FEW DAYS, WHILE THE AMERICAN FIFTH AND BRITISH FIRST AND EIGHTH ARMIES HAVE BEEN CONCENTRATING ON THEIR DISPOSITIONS FOR THE KNOCKOUT BLOWS AGAINST NEHRING AND ROMMEL, NEARLY ALL THE ALLIES' AFRICAN SUCCESSES HAVE BEEN SCORED BY FRENCHMEN.

SOME OF THESE FIGHT UNDER THE LORRAINE CROSS OF DE GAULLE AND SOME UNDER THE BANNER OF GIRAUD. A FIGHTING FRENCH COLUMN UNDER GENERAL LECLERC HAS ACCOMPLISHED ONE OF THE BRILLIANT MILITARY FEATS OF THE WAR, A 1,000-MILE ADVANCE FROM THE HEART OF AFRICA TO DRIVE MUSSOLINI'S MINIONS FROM THE FEZZAN REGION OF SOUTHERN

LIBYA. IN CENTRAL AND SOUTHERN TUNISIA GIRAUD'S MEN ARE KEEPING UP A RELENTLESS PRESSURE ON THE ENEMY, SCORING VALUABLE TACTICAL GAINS AND RANGING DEEP INTO THE DESERT NEAR THE TUNISIAN-LIBYAN FRONTIER.

JAN 16 1943

AND WHILE THE POLITICIANS ARE BICKERING OVER THE BEST WAY OF UNIFYING ALL FRENCHMEN IN A POSITION TO FIGHT HITLER, THESE SOLDIERS OF TWO FACTIONS HAVE ESTABLISHED CONTACT ACROSS THE AFRICAN WASTES. JUST HOW IS NOT DISCLOSED; PERHAPS BY PLANE, PERHAPS BY MOTOR OR EVEN CAMEL PATROLS TRAVERSING THE SEVERAL HUNDRED MILES STILL SEPARATING THE MAIN FORCES. BUT AT LEAST THEY HAVE FORMED A LIAISON WITH EVERY PROSPECT THAT IT WILL BE STRENGTHENED UNTIL THERE IS A STRONG FRENCH SECTOR BETWEEN THE AMERICANS AND BRITISH IN TUNISIA AND THE BRITISH IN LIBYA WHICH MAY PROVE ONE OF THE MAIN ELEMENTS OF ALLIED POWER IN THE FINAL PUSH TO FREE AFRICA OF THE AXIS.

ANOTHER HEARTENING INDICATION THAT FRENCHMEN ARE RAPIDLY GETTING READY TO CLAIM MAJOR STATUS IN THE ANTI-HITLER ALLIANCE IS THE APPEARANCE OF THE NEW LAFAYETTE ESCADRILLE ON THE TUNISIAN FRONT. THE ROLES HAVE BEEN REVERSED: WHILE IN 1917 AMERICAN FLIERS FOUGHT IN FRENCH PLANES AND UNDER FRENCH COMMAND, IN 1943 FRENCHMEN FLY AMERICAN PLANES UNDER AMERICAN COMMAND.

ALTOGETHER THERE IS PLENTY OF EVIDENCE THAT THERE ARE HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS OF FRENCH SOLDIERS MORE INTERESTED IN THE REDEMPTION OF THEIR COUNTRY THAN IN THE SQUABBLE FOR POLITICAL POWER. MOREOVER THERE ARE SIGNS THAT THE ELEMENTS OF DISCORD IN THAT TRAGIC TURMOIL IN NORTH AFRICA, WHICH UNDENIABLY CONFRONTS THE UNITED NATIONS WITH ONE OF THE MOST DANGEROUS TESTS OF THEIR UNITY, ARE BEING ISOLATED AND DEALT WITH.

TWO HELPFUL STATEMENTS HAVE JUST BEEN CONTRIBUTED BY BRITISH LEADERS. IN LONDON BRENDAN BRACKEN, MINISTER OF INFORMATION AND CONFIDANT OF WINSTON CHURCHILL, SAYS THAT THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT HAS GIVEN GENERAL EISENHOWER ITS POWER OF ATTORNEY AND IS BACKING HIM TO THE UTMOST AND DENIES THAT LONDON AND WASHINGTON ARE BACKING RIVAL CANDIDATES FOR FRENCH LEADERSHIP. IN ALGIERS HAROLD MACMILLAN, THE BRITISH MINISTER WHO ASSISTS GENERAL EISENHOWER, GIVES ASSURANCE THAT A SETTLEMENT IS IN SIGHT. HE POINTS OUT THAT MUCH CAN BE DONE BY BRINGING IN SUPPLIES TO ALLEVIATE THE NEEDS OF A CIVILIZN POPULATION WHICH HAS SUFFERED TWO AND A HALF YEARS OF

PRIVATION UNDER THE SHADOW OF AXIS DOMINATION. THE RED CROSS GIVES ASSURANCE THAT THIS ALREADY IS BEING DONE: MILK STATIONS FOR CHILDREN HAVE BEEN SET UP IN THE CITIES AND MORE SUPPLIES ARE ON THE WAY.

NEVERTHELESS THE NORTH AFRICAN TANGLE REMAINS A GRAVE CHALLENGE TO ALLIED STATESMANSHIP, AND IT IS ONLY A FORETASTE OF WHAT IS TO BE EXPECTED WHEN THE ALLIED ARMIES LEAP THE MEDITERRANEAN AND BEGIN RECLAIMING THE LANDS NOW UNDER THE HITLER BLIGHT.

MEANWHILE POLITICS IS NOT THE ONLY REASON FOR THE LONG LULL ON THE AFRICAN FRONTS; PERHAPS IT WILL PROVE TO HAVE BEEN ONE OF THE LEAST IMPORTANT. THERE ARE ALSO RAIN AND MUD AND THE NECESSITY OF ACCOMPLISHING COLOSSAL TASKS OF REINFORCEMENT AND SUPPLY. BUT THE WINTER RAINS WILL BE OVER SOON; WE ARE TOLD THAT THE ENGINEERS ARE PERFORMING MIRACLES WITH THESE FOUL TUNISIAN ROADS; THE GERMANS, WHO MAY BE IN A POSITION TO KNOW, SAY THAT GENERAL MONTGOMERY'S EIGHTH

ARMY IS NEARLY READY TO STRIKE AGAIN.

MEANWHILE, IF THE WAIT FOR GOOD NEWS FROM AFRICA SEEMS LONG, TAKE A LOOK AT THAT RAPIDLY CHANGING WAR MAP OF RUSSIA. SOME OF THE FRUITS OF THE AFRICAN ADVENTURE ALREADY ARE BEING HARVESTED THERE BY THE AMAZING RED ARMY. #

JAN 17 1943

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON, Jan. 16 — The Red army has broken through the defenses of the starving, freezing Germans at Stalingrad, who rejected a Russian ultimatum to surrender, and is rapidly mopping up the 70,000 to 80,000 troops left of a force which once numbered 220,000 men, a special Moscow communique said tonight.

In a seven-day battle of annihilation which began Jan. 10 after the Germans had rejected the ultimatum, the Germans have lost 25,000 in dead and their total force has been cut to the 70,000 or 80,000 total, the announcement, heard here by the Soviet Monitor, said

Russians Tighten Trap

Pressing closer their iron girdle about the trapped force which totaled 22 divisions at the beginning of the encirclement on Nov. 19, the Russians said they had captured 30 important strongpoints, villages, towns and railroad stations and advanced from 12 to 22 miles.

Among the captured strongpoints was Marinovka, 30 miles west of Stalingrad on the railroad that runs to the Don river.

The capture of two other places on the railroad, Basargino, 11 miles west of Stalingrad and Karpovskaya a bit farther west appeared to give the Russians control of all or most of the line running to Kalach on the bank of the Don.

The development of this offensive to liquidate the German pocket at Stalingrad was told in the second of two special communiques read from the Moscow radio tonight.

Confirm Opening of New Attack

The first told of the opening of another offensive, the fifth major drive of the winter, along the upper Don in the direction of Kharkov, the vital Ukraine metropolis.

Striking out from just below the Voronezh hinge on the Don, the Russians said they had chalked up advances of 30 to 56 miles and captured 600 towns and villages, including one 120 miles northeast of Kharkov.

Rossosh, 90 miles below Voronezh on the Moscow-Rostov railroad, also was captured, and the communique said the three-day offensive had resulted in 17,000 of the enemy captured and 15,000 killed.

Reds Continue Advance

The regular midnight communique which followed these announcements said the Russian forces were continuing to roll forward in the northern Caucasus, the northern Donets, and below the Don in the Zimovniki sector toward Rostov.

In the latter zone, this announcement said, 700 Nazi elite guards of the Viking division were killed in fighting for the railway station of Dvoinya, 10 miles southwest of Kuberle on the Stalingrad-Tikhoretsk railway.

The Germans retreated "without having time to blow up munitions and food stores which had been mined," the communique said. Twenty railway engines were captured.

The second communique said the Germans trapped at Stalingrad were dying of exhaustion, starvation and freezing and their numbers had been reduced from the original 220,000 to 70,000 or 80,000 men with 500 dying from the cold every day and 1,000 from other causes.

Nazis Being Liquidated

"The liquidation of the German Fascist troops encircled in the Stalingrad area is drawing to a close," the communique declared.

(The German military correspondent, Capt. Ludwig Sartorius, in a Berlin broadcast said a German high command's announcement that its Stalingrad troops were defending themselves from all sides was an admission that "there had been no direct contact by land for some time" with these forces.)

The Jan. 8 ultimatum to the Germans at Stalingrad, the Soviet communique said, advised them that an answer was expected by 10 o'clock Jan. 9, to be brought by a motor car carrying a white flag.

"All hopes for rescue of your troops by a German offensive from the south and southwest have been unjustified."

"German troops which hastened to your assistance have been routed x x x

"German transport planes which have been bringing up starvation rations x x x are frequently compelled to change their airdromes x x x

"German transport aviation is suffering tremendous losses.

Position Desperate

"The position of your encircled troops is desperate. They are experiencing hunger, disease and cold. The terrible Russian winter is only just beginning.

"Severe frost and cold, biting winds and snow storms have yet to come and your men have not been supplied with winter uniforms and are situated in rotten, unsanitary, conditions.

"x x x Your position is hopeless. Further resistance is useless.

"x x x should you reject our proposals for capitulation we warn you that Red army troops and the Red air force will be compelled to carry out operations for the annihilation of the encircled German troops x x x"

The Russian terms, the communique said, promised care of sick and wounded prisoners, adequate food, repatriation after the war, and would have allowed the men to keep their uniforms and insignia and the officers to keep their swords.

But the German commander rejected the terms, the communique said.

"In view of this, on Jan. 10 our troops commenced a general attack against the German Fascist troops encircled near Stalingrad," it concluded.

In seven days of fighting since then the Russians were said to have wiped out 25,000 officers and men, captured 6,896 of the encircled troops, destroyed 1,526 fortified positions and cleared a large area of the enemy.

In the same period 317 planes, 514 tanks and 941 guns were said to have been captured, and 75 planes, 174 tanks and 416 guns destroyed.

The announcement said the encircled troops originally had consisted of 3 tank divisions, three motorized divisions, 15 infantry divisions and a cavalry division, but that at least three of them, the 44th, 376th and 384th, were badly smashed during the process of encirclement.

Rostov Threatened From North

MOSCOW, Jan. 16 (AP).—A new Russian advance in the middle Don sector enveloping twenty-five miles of the east bank of the Donetz River eighty miles north of Rostov posed another threat today to that Nazi base already imperiled from the east and from the North Caucasus.

On the lower Don Red Army forces within sixty miles of Rostov captured more villages, in one place outflanking a formidable Nazi defense zone and disorganizing the enemy, the noon communique said.

The North Caucasus drive took a new turn with the occupation of Bekeshevskaya in the foothills thirty miles west of Pyatigorsk and south of the Rostov-Baku railway. This put the Red Army within twenty-five miles of the important town of Cherkassk on the way to the Maikop oil fields. The capture of Alexandrovskoye, thirty-five miles north of Mineralnye Vody, also smoothed the path of the column thrusting to the north.

Troops under command of General Vatutin reached the Donetz River, chief waterway of the Donetz basin coal fields, in the peak of cold winter weather and appeared massing for a drive across the river. The settlements of Borodinov and Potseluiev were captured on the east bank of the stream and the Russians stood only fourteen miles from the major rail town of Kamensk.

The new advance into the eastern Ukraine threatened the Indus-Likhaya, the junction point of the trans-Don railway from Stalingrad to the Rostov-Moscow line.

The Russians had pushed across the Kalitva River where, the army newspaper, "Red Star," said, the Germans had concentrated large forces and fortified a number of regions for defense. The base of the enemy position was Litinovka, which the Russians captured.

The Russians driving down the Stalingrad - Tikhoretsk railway reached Batlaievskaya, forty miles west of Zimovniki, on the south bank of the Sal River. Some of these forces were operating within eighty miles of Rostov. This offensive is now expanding in two directions, west toward Rostov and southwest toward Salsk.

Battle for Rostov Itself Believed About to Begin

JAN 17 1943

By HENRY C. CASSIDY,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

MOSCOW, Jan. 16—Sweeping through 30 more towns, Red Army forces today battled to the east bank of the Donets River, 20 miles southeast of Kamensk, and to the Sal-Manych Hills overlooking the Manych River southeast of Rostov as they steadily closed in in a semicircle around the big Nazi base at the gateway to the Caucasus.

(These positions would put the Russians some 80 to 90 miles from Rostov to the northeast and southeast. They already had driven within 60 miles of the big port from the east in their smash down both banks of the Lower Don.)

Battlefront dispatches indicated the battle for Rostov itself was about to begin, with the Russians preparing for a smash across the Donets—last natural barrier to the city—despite the difficulties of winter weather at its height.

Advance on 25-Mile Front.

The Soviet Information Bureau announced that the Donets was reached in a Russian advance on a 25-mile front which recaptured the villages of Borodinov and Potseluiev, on the east bank of the river where it loops to the northwest past Kamensk.

Other forces pushing down the Moscow-Rostov rail line from the north were said to have made new gains between encircled Millerovo and Kamensk.

Southeast of Rostov, the Information Bureau said, "Soviet troops reached the ridge of the Sal-Manych Range. Now they face the Manych lowlands with many lakes joined by canals forming the gigantic Manych Canal, which plays an enormous part in irrigation of the arid steppes of the Northern Caucasus."

(The Manych begins in the big Kalmyck Lake between Elista and Salsk, flows just east of Salsk and empties into the Don 30 miles upriver from Rostov.)

Strategic Places Taken.

The forward sweep was important not so much for the number of places taken as for the strategical significance of most of them. Most vital of the towns listed as newly occupied were:

Glubokaya, on the Rostov-Moscow railway 14 miles north of Kamensk-Shakhtinsky.

Litvinovka, where the Middle Don army crossed the Kalitva River in its westward thrust into the Donets Basin.

Diadin, southwest of Litvinovka and close to the shores of the Donets River.

Kurenny, 38 miles southwest of Zimovniki on the Stalingrad-Tikhoretsk railway and little more than 40 miles from Salsk.

Blagodarnoye, at the head of a rail spur which connects with the Divnoe-Kropotkin main line through the Caucasus.

Alexandrovskoye, 35 miles north of Mineralnye Vody and about the same distance southwest of Blagodarnoye.

Nogutskoye, 25 miles west of Mineralnye Vody on the main railway to Rostov.

Bekeshevskaya, south of the main Baku-Rostov railway.

Others Are Captured.

The early Soviet communique, reporting the recapture of all of these cities, also named places taken behind those positions by the Middle Don army of Col. Gen. Nikolai F. Vatutin and by the forces of Col. Gen. Yeremenko which traveled southwest along the railroad from Stalingrad.

It was the first specific news of Gen. Vatutin's troops in days. Between his columns and those of Yeremenko, the army commanded by Col. Gen. Constantin Rokossovsky made slow headway in the Lower Don region about 60 miles from Rostov against intensive counterattacks.

(The Soviet noon communique recited new gains in last night's fighting with more towns reported captured in the North Caucasus and in the Lower Don, but it did not identify them.

(The communique was broadcast from Moscow and recorded in London by the Soviet monitor.

(The offensive also continued in the Northern Donets area, the war bulletin said, without giving any details of the fighting there.)

Heavy Counterattacks.

The early communique also reported heavy German counterattacks were repelled southwest and northwest of Velikie Luki, but was silent on any specific action in the Leningrad area, where, German broadcasts said, an offensive to relieve Leningrad was under way.

(A German broadcast last night also insisted a surrounded German garrison, provisioned by plane, continued to hold Velikie Luki, which the Russians said New Year Day they had captured.)

The Russian position at Glubokaya cuts the Moscow-Rostov railway 30 miles south of encircled Millerovo and gives Gen. Vatutin's army a junction point with that of Lt. Gen. F. I. Golikov, which had advanced down the railway from the north and which also has sent flanking columns westward into the Ukraine.

Glubokaya was taken by troops which crossed the Kalitva, throwing open the entire Donets Basin in that area, and then advanced northwestward to the railroad center.

Rail System Laid Bare.

The capture of Blagodarnoye, representing a 20-mile advance from Sotnikovskoye, taken Thursday, brought the armies of Lt. Gen. Maslennikov out of the sparsely-settled plains region into an area of numerous towns and roads, and laid bare another rail transportation system over which the Germans moved supplies after their successes last summer.

The push to Nogutskoye and to Bekeshevskaya bolstered the southern front campaign against Armavir, a rail and factory center 80 miles northwest of Nogutskoye, and about 110 miles west of Blagodarnoye.

WITH THE RED ARMY, Southeast of Rostov, Jan. 16—The Red Army is advancing over this vast front in amazingly mild weather, disproving any theory that bitter Winter temperatures may have contributed to Adolf Hitler's current Russian disaster.

Right now, as we stand along the wind-swept steppe road, the Germans, according to Lieut. Gen. Rodiony Malinovsky, are showing signs of bewilderment, but there are signs that they may try to make a big stand on the line of the Manych Canal and the Northern Donets.

I came to the Zimovniki region, which is fifty miles or more toward Rostov from Kotelnikov, by train and truck, crossed the Volga and stood on the banks of the Don, and it has sometimes been more of a problem to keep cool than warm.

It is cold, of course, but the wide, flat, monotonous steppe stretches out here tonight beneath a Kalmuck moon. Dressed for sub-zero temperatures, I have stood in streets of retaken towns and Cossack villages and actually shed my overcoat in what the natives say is the warmest Winter since 1924 and what the army commanders say is ideal weather for the Nazi Panzers, which are not doing so well.

At the moment, big guns bang about us off to the flanks. Sometimes there is a whine of shells. The Germans are fighting back very hard and the Red Army officers are frank to tell you so.

We can't tell what is going to happen, but indications are that General Field Marshal Fritz Erich von Mannstein, German commander of this front, may throw in more fresh divisions and tanks to try to halt the Red Army drive that is really rolling.

Down here, this close to blood and bullets, you learn lots of things about this war you didn't know, and you go lots of places you have wanted to go. One of the highlights so far was a long, frank talk with General Malinovsky in a little Cossack village. He opened maps and talked in the warmest spirit of friendship for the United States and Britain.

Incidentally, no commander I have talked with has reported the use of any United States or British tanks or planes in this drive southwest of Stalingrad, but United States-made trucks have played a big role in transport.

Between 80,000 to 100,000 Germans are surrounded in an area of about 216 square miles outside Stalingrad.

"They are just an armed prison camp," General Malinovsky said grimly, "and they haven't a chance."

I have talked with numerous German pilots who have been shot down trying to get supplies to this huge group. They had been landing at a place called Peitomnik. At one time they sent over about 500 planes daily, but this has dropped off to about 100 with the heavy losses.

I have seen enough wrecked German tanks and planes to set up a pretty good army. Great acres of this flat country are strewn with them. In many places the Russians have herded them up and they look like monster junk yards. At one place near Abganerovo, German tanks were littered about the fields almost like automobiles used to be congregated near some race track on a big race day.

Other places you see planes—plenty of them in good condition—abandoned by the Germans as they fled before the Russian onslaught. At one place near Aksay on my way here I saw among the gathered wrecked German tanks one that was marked "Midvale Steel 1918."

I came away from where the guns were booming for a night's sleep with the words of General Malinovsky uppermost in my mind: "We continue our offensive."

RAF REPEATS BOMBING OF LORIENT BASE

Strikes Second Night In Row At U-Boat Pens In French Port

German Railway Lines In Four Countries Also Raid Targets

JAN 17 1943

London, Sunday, Jan. 17 (AP)—A Reuters dispatch from Stockholm quoting the Berlin correspondent of the Svenska Dagbladet said the German capital was raided Saturday night.

He said a very heavy anti-aircraft barrage was heard.

[By the Associated Press]

London, Jan. 16—The RAF returned with a heavy attack last night on Lorient, Hitler's principal submarine base on the Atlantic, setting large fires on the docks and pens in the second raid there in two nights.

Railway targets in western Germany, France and the Low Countries were raided at the same time and pilots reported attacks on fifteen of Germany's badly needed locomotives.

Shift From Ruhr

In all the extensive raids, only two British bombers were lost.

The fifty-ninth raid on Lorient, to which the RAF shifted after eight attacks on the German Ruhr in eleven nights, centered on newly fortified submarine pens. Concrete roofs have been built over the submarine lairs and the RAF apparently has taken up the challenge.

The entire town was illuminated by flares and moonlight—ideal for the bombers. The wing commander of one squadron of Halifaxes reported that fires started in the raid on Thursday night still were burning.

As the British dropped their two-ton block-busters, big fires flamed up, the largest in the dock area. One great blaze appeared to be an oil fire.

Sees Flames On Way Back

The tail gunner of one bomber still could see the flames as his craft crossed the north French coast en route home.

The one-two punch at Lorient indicated a new phase in the vital battle of the Atlantic and the ceaseless fight against enemy submarines.

Reports of the attacks indicated the RAF was employing new bombing tactics. The Evening News said the bomber command obviously realized that new ruthlessness was necessary to knock out the submarine pens and that the RAF apparently was trying to demolish the administrative machinery of the submarine warfare around the port as well as the lairs.

Has Shops And Power Plants

Besides dock facilities, Lorient has machine shops, torpedo and ammunition dumps and food and fuel stores. There also are power plants and barracks for submarine crews. Most of the buildings are near the center of the town and much more vulnerable than the concrete U-boat hangars, said to be capable of absorbing the blasts of the heaviest bombs.

The raid last night was in greater force than the one on Thursday and many Canadian pilots participated. Considerable ground fire was encountered.

Heavy Air Raid Again Made on Lorient Base

British Report Attacks Also on Targets in Western Germany

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—Lorient, German submarine base in Western France, was heavily attacked again last night, the Air Ministry reported today.

Targets in Western Germany also were bombed during the night, and fighter planes swarmed over railway targets in France, Holland and Belgium, the ministry said.

Two bombers failed to return.

Large Fires Seen.

In the attack on Lorient, "the port was well illuminated by flares and moonlight, and after a concentrated attack large fires were seen in the dock area," the Air Ministry said.

The raid was the 59th on Lorient.

Thursday night British bombers took advantage of the bright moonlight to pound the base, leaving large fires.

The United States Air Force based in the British Isles had gone over the port in three daylight precision raids previously in the series of attacks intended to smash the fuel dumps, undersea boat pens power stations and machinery.

England Bombed.

German raiders last night bombed three inland areas in Eastern England, causing considerable property damage and a number of casualties. Only a small number of planes apparently took part in these attacks.

Of the British airmen participating in the raids on enemy territory last night one squadron leader was credited with shooting up two trains near Hazebrouck, making five separate attacks on one. In all 15 railway engines were reported shot up.

Whirlwind bombers also made several attacks on trains and one successfully bombed railway traffic near Ypres, the Air Ministry news service said.

Poland Suffers New Atrocities

Nazis Clear 60-Mile Swath in Silesia in Fear of Russian Break-through.

JAN 17 1943

London, Jan. 16 (A. P.).—The Polish Government in Exile described the new series of executions, arrests and mass deportations reported begun yesterday by the Gestapo in Warsaw and Silesia as the Germans' biggest extermination drive against the Polish people since the start of the war.

A corridor sixty miles wide is being swept through Silesia to clear it of all Poles, and work is being speeded on the "east wall" defenses facing Russia, Deputy Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk said.

Mr. Mikolajczyk said the new moves were a clear indication that the Germans feared a complete Russian break-through on the Soviet front and therefore were attempting to clear the whole area of Poles and put their defenses in shape.

The Gestapo struck early Friday morning. Thousands were arrested in Warsaw, and many more thousands elsewhere were ordered to prepare for immediate departure, the Deputy Premier said.

One Village's Fate.

Fighting broke out, particularly in the country districts. It was said that 1,700 persons were killed in a single village. The Gestapo quickly segregated the population into three groups: Children under six; women, invalids and aged persons and able-bodied men. The children were put aboard train for the Reich, where they will be "Germanized," Mr. Mikolajczyk said, and all the women who weren't killed trying to prevent this were then sent to concentration camps.

The cleared area was reported as being repopulated mainly with Germans, but also with Hollanders, Belgians and Norwegians, who are forced to work on the "east wall."

The first work on the German defense line through Silesia was done by labor battalions of Jews, who were killed as soon as each battalion finished the particular piece of work assigned to it, Mr. Mikolajczyk said.

Irak Joins War On Axis; First Of Arab Nations

Churchill Greets New Ally; Declaration Simplifies Middle East Transport

LONDON, Jan. 16 (AP).—Irak dropped her role of pro-British non-belligerency today to become the first of the independent Arab nations to declare war as an ally of Britain.

Prime Minister Churchill in a message to Premier General Nuri Pasha Es Said declared that the struggle against Germany, Italy and Japan will be hard, "but the end is sure and we rejoice to have you at our side."

JAN 17 1943

He recalled Great Britain's part in helping to create Irak as a new kingdom ten years ago.

The London press did not display the news prominently, and unofficial observers inclined to the view that the step was of value to the Allies only as a means of simplifying transportation of troops, oil and war materials through the nation which lies at the crossroads of the Middle East.

Under a previous agreement, Britain already has the use of airfields and bases, but a belligerent status for Irak will greatly simplify relations.

Announcing the declaration, the Irak Legation said the reasons for the step were the increasing Axis efforts to destroy the legitimate government of Irak, to promote disunity among its 4,500,000 people by disseminating rumors and false news thorugh Axis radio stations, as well as utterances disrespectful to the royal family and calculated to undermine the loyalty of the Irak people.

In 1941 the Germans did their utmost to disturb Anglo-Irak relations when Raschid Ali seized power in a coup d' etat managed by the Nazis, but within a month the revolt was quelled and British forces drove him from the country.

Irak is reported to have a well equipped army of 28,000 men, an air force of one bomber, one fighter and two army co-operation squadrons. Irak broke diplomatic relations with Germany Sept. 11, 1939, with Italy in June, 1941, and with Japan and Vichy in November, 1941.

The declaration that made Irak the thirty-first nation to declare war on the Axis followed a campaign in the Irak press strongly urging that the country join the United Nations.

[The Berlin radio, in a Transocean (German) news agency dispatch, called the step "a gesture by a clique of Irak politicians obeying Britain."]

Iraq Declares War Against Axis Nations

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—The Iraq Legation announced today that Iraq is at war with Germany, Italy and Japan.

(Later it was officially announced at Baghdad that a state of war exists between Iraq and the Axis nations.)

Iraq already had broken relations with the Axis. The rupture of relations with Japan came in November, 1941, and at the same time diplomatic relations with the Vichy government were ended.

Robert Johnson, BBC commentator, said in a broadcast recorded by CBS that it was particularly significant because "it is the first time that an Arab country has joined with Britain in a declaration like this."

British troops moved into Iraq in May, 1941, a few weeks after an Axis-inspired revolt indicated German designs on the nation and its rich oil deposits.

The German radio reported last August that United States troops had been landed in Iraq, but there has been no confirmation of this report. The German broadcast said "the foreign garrison in Iraq is now composed mainly of American troops."

BRITISH RESUME DRIVE ON TRIPOLI

JAN 17 1943

Axis Reports Gen. Montgomery Has Sent Armored Force Into Battle.

LONDON, Jan. 16 — (AP) Axis reports said today that the British Eighth army in Libya had renewed its offensive toward Tripoli with a strong armored attack at Wadi Zem-Zem, 180 miles southeast of the main Tripolitan port.

Intensive air fighting was reported throughout Tunisia in day and night engagements in which 23 enemy planes were destroyed at the cost of eight Allied craft.

Axis Reports Attack

German and Italian reports said Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Libyan army attempted to envelop fortified Axis positions in the dry gulch 40 miles west of Sirte but had been repulsed with the destruction of 35 armored vehicles.

The British communique, reporting action on Friday only, said patrol activity was more extensive, with casualties inflicted in "several sectors," but did not confirm enemy assertions that Gen. Montgomery has started the third renewal of his drive to clear the enemy from all North Africa.

London military circles said, however, that the drive reported by the Axis was not improbable. The Germans were the first to announce the previous two offensives, from El Alamein in Egypt last Oct. 23 and from El Agheila Dec. 14.

For almost three weeks, the Eighth army has been relatively stationary while building up strength near Wadi Zem-Zem. It was considered likely that Gen. Montgomery had gathered sufficient strength to attempt an encirlement to bite off Marshal Rommel's rear guard as he tried to do beyond El Agheila.

Allies Superior in Air

The Americans and British apparently had air superiority over the Axis both in Libya and Tunisia. Air opposition was almost completely absent in Libya as Gen. Montgomery's bombers blasted Marshal Rommel's positions while U. S. bombers started large fires at Tripoli. The harbor and road junctions were attacked.

Other planes struck between Sfax and Gabes on the Tunisian east coast, destroying several fuel trucks north of Gabes.

Maj.-Gen. Carl Spaatz's Tunisian air force shot down seven large transport planes and two escorting fighters from a flight of 50 off the Tunisian coast. During an attack on rail and road communications near Gabes, an enemy fighter was destroyed. Six bombers raiding Allied positions during the night were knocked down and in daylight raids on advanced airfields seven more Axis planes were shot down.

Ground Troops Idle

Of the muddy Tunisian front, an Allied communique said activity was limited to patrols.

The Germans are estimated by the French high commissioner, Gen. Henri Giraud, to have about 70,000 men in Tunisia. Marshal Rommel has probably the same number in Libya and the increasing pace of Allied air activity reflects the determination not to let these forces join.

The Germans are said to have about 200 planes in Tunisia and 700 others based on nearby Sicily, Pantelleria and Sardinia from where they can be sent swiftly into the fight.

Meanwhile, the Algiers radio reported that French forces in the Fezzan area in southern Libya were still continuing their advance.

AIR WAR AT PEAK IN TUNISIA

U. S. and British Flyers Down 23 Axis Planes, Including Seven Transports, in 24 Hours.

London, Jan. 16 (A. P.).—The British Eighth Army was today reported to have struck out again from the east in an effort to sweep around Marshal Rommel's African forces at Wadi Zem Zem, perhaps in a renewed drive toward Tripoli. The German and Italian High Commands both declared that the maneuver was repelled with a loss of thirty-five Allied tanks.

British Headquarters at Cairo, reporting only on yesterday's action, said that patrol activity was more extensive, and that casualties were inflicted on the enemy in "several sectors," but did not confirm the enemy's assertions that Gen. Montgomery had started the third renewal of his drive to clear the Axis from all of North Africa.

London military spokesmen said, however, that the drive reported by the Axis was not improbable, recalling that the Germans were the first to announce the previous two offensives, from El Alamein on October 23 and from El Agheila on December 14.

66-Ship Allied Convoy Arrives In North Africa With Supplies

Some Vessels Are Loaded With Food for Civilians; British Resume Offensive Toward Tripoli; 23 Axis Planes Shot Down in Tunisia.

JAN 17 1943

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Jan. 16.—Admiral Andrew Browne Cunningham, Allied naval commander in North Africa, told a press conference in North Africa that an Allied convoy of sixty-six ships had arrived there, some loaded with food for the local population, the Algiers radio reported tonight.

[British broadcasts reported 36,000 tons of supplies for civilians have been sent to North Africa since the beginning of the Allied campaign. Capt. Martin of Brooklyn Killed Trying to Rescue Two LONDON, Jan. 16 (AP)—Captain Bertram C. Martin of Brooklyn, commander of a United States Army bomber, gave his life in an effort to rescue members of his crew from the burning wreckage of their plane which crashed on a runway during a take-off, it was disclosed today by headquarters of the Eighth Air Force.

An unofficial report by Royal Air Forces personnel said Captain Martin crawled out with other survivors and then went back into the plane in an effort to save the bombardier and navigator who were lying stunned in the nose of the aircraft. Just after he plunged into the flames the fuel tanks exploded and he died with the men he sought to save.

London, Sunday, Jan. 17 (AP)—Attacked by a pack of German U-boats, the British armed merchant ship Duchess of Bedford sank one of the undersea craft with a burst of gunfire and engaged and drove off another, the Admiralty disclosed today without giving either the date or the place of action.

The first submarine was on the surface during the battle, the report said, apparently fighting the merchant ship with its deck guns.

The Duchess of Bedford, a 20,123-ton passenger liner owned by the Canadian Pacific Railway, was on the run between England and Canada before the war.

ELDER STATESMAN MARKS 80TH YEAR

David Lloyd George Takes Vigorous Part in War Effort.

LONDON, Jan. 16—(AP) David Lloyd George, Britain's World war I leader, reaches 80 tomorrow, serenly playing his role of gentleman farmer but still bulking large in the political picture as the nation's foremost elder statesman.

The man who solved the munitions crisis as prime minister in the first World war devotes most of his energy to the active management of his 800 acres at Churt, in Surrey, but he still holds the parliamentary seat from Carnarvon, Wales, that he first won in 1890 and he is a force to be reckoned with when a major debate stirs commons.

The gray mane is thinner than it was in 1914 and his face is deeply lined. There still is the same firm jaw, though, and a wit that remains sharp enough to scourge a political foe.

It was Lloyd George who, angered at Britain's failure to give large scale aid to the Finns in their 1939-40 winter war against Russia, coined a phrase that, revised, has since gained biting circulation among opponents of Britain's war strategy:

"It is always too late or too little of both," he told Commons. "That is the road to disaster."

In similar vein in the second year of the first World war he asserted that Allied forces had "been clogged by the mocking specter of 'too late'."

As recently as last June, when the Churchill government was under attack, he joined in signing a motion of no confidence in the government's conduct of the war. The motion was defeated.

Pressure was placed on Churchill in 1941 to include the veteran leader in a five-man war cabinet, but nothing came of it.

Despite Lloyd George's frequent criticisms of the government, he and Churchill have remained close friends. He was a luncheon guest at 10 Downing street shortly before Christmas.

GEN. PATTON GETS MEDAL

LONDON, Jan. 16—(AP) The Morocco radio said today that Maj. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., has been awarded the Oak Leaves decoration to the Distinguished Service Medal he won in the last war for forming and leading the first American tank unit into battle in France.

The new award was made by Lieut.-Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander-in-chief in North Africa, for Patton's accomplishments in the campaign there.

Anti-Aircraft Batteries Set Up, Large Shelters Built to Protect People.

BERN, Switzerland, Jan. 16—(AP) Bombing attacks such as those carried out against Milan, Naples and other Italian cities in recent months are declared by the Italian press and radio to be "no longer possible" because of improved anti-aircraft defense.

A dispatch from Rome said the anti-aircraft defenses of Naples had been so perfected that a surprise attack no longer was possible and it declared that four out of eight American bombers that attacked the port last week were shot down by interceptor planes and ground fire.

Premier Mussolini's newspaper Popolo D'Italia published a picture of a Colonel Kuberna, described as commander of German anti-aircraft batteries in northern Italy.

Fighter Pilots, However, "Very Decent" About It.

Forced By Storm To Land At Lisbon Airport

JAN 17 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Lisbon, Jan. 16 — The eleven American fighter pilots who created excitement at Lisbon's civil airport yesterday by landing their storm-lashed Airacobras while a big United States bomber circled overhead were a "little mad" at being interned but were well treated and on the whole "very decent" about it, authoritative sources said today.

The flyers landed "only after a long struggle against unusually strong headwinds to reach their destination farther south when their fuel was exhausted," authoritative quarters at the airport said.

A twelfth plane was forced to land at Aveiro in northern Portugal after a severe buffeting by strong winds.

[German broadcasts said thirty-three flyers landed, a report which evidently was incorrect interned and would not be allowed to take off again," they added.

"Naturally, there was some excitement provoked by the unexpected landing of eleven fighting planes on a peaceful civil airfield while a huge bomber circled over it."

Two British airliners which arrived at the same airfield a few minutes later, two hours behind schedule, said heavy winds "almost stopped us in the air."

Nazis Tell of "Heroic Defense

BERLIN (From German broadcasts), Jan. 16 (AP)—The German high command said today that "in the area of Stalingrad our troops who have been engaged there for weeks in heroic defensive battles against the enemy attacking from all sides, repelled further attacks yesterday by strong enemy infantry and tank formations."

[The German radio beamed a broadcast to the trapped troops two days ago appealing to them to hold fast—but home transmissions for the German people said nothing of the plight of the force.]

Enemy attacks with numerically superior forces on the southern front (probably in Caucasus) were repulsed with heavy losses to the Red Army, a communique said.

On the central front German shock troops were said to have destroyed more Russian strong points. The communique said fighting continued in the Velikie Luki sector.

"Southwest of Lake Ilmen," it said, "fighting was only of a local nature. Strong enemy attacks south of Lake Ladoga were repulsed with heavy losses after fierce fighting and the enemy lost ground he had gained on the previous day at the expense of heavy sacrifices."

Nazis Seize Norwegians For Forming Secret Force

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 16.—German occupation authorities in Norway recently arrested many Norwegians, especially in the Kristiansand district, after discovering the existence of a large secret military organization that carried out actual maneuvers and supplied arms to recruits, official reports from Oslo said last night.

The Norwegian group was reported to have received arms dropped from Allied planes. German investigators still are working on the case.

JUNTA IS SAID TO BE MARKING TIME IN REICH

Army Clique Reported Figuring Time It May Denounce Nazis

Stockholm Hears Group Delays Action Until Chaos Is Imminent

[By the Associated Press]

JAN 17 1943

LONDON, Jan. 16—The military junta in Germany feels that if Nazi economic difficulties continue and deepen, the only solution will be for officers to seize control and proclaim a program for possible cooperation with the United Nations, reliable sources today quoted a German state official as saying.

These sources said the officers are quietly and carefully watching developments, and are making no predictions as to when the time for such a step might come.

They are pictured as being convinced the German people will look to them for action as a last hope once a military reverse makes the hopelessness of the situation crystal clear to everyone despite propaganda camouflage.

Plans Reported

Last November London sources received information that the military junta was planning to isolate Hitler gradually and take over authority in Germany.

Reports of such groups hoping to save the situation when chaos appears imminent—although perhaps Axis-inspired in order to observe the Allied reaction—are persistently received in London and Stockholm, which is listening post for both the Allies and the Axis.

All reports mention Field Marshal General Wilhelm Keitel as a main outsider among the higher officers in any such move. Keitel, chief of the high command of the armed forces, was recently reported to have been dismissed.

Comment On Shakeup

Hitler's shakeup among his officers and recent reports of a steady increase in the strength and power of Himmler's SS are significant in the light of reports of the existence of a military junta.

Observers here said they believed such moves might be Hitler's method of endeavoring to squash the opposition without a thoroughgoing purge which might crack the home front wide open.

Today's reports here said the junta has a nine-point program prepared as a possible basis for an understanding with the United Nations.

Points Of Program

It includes removal of the Nazi regime, a return to the old frontiers and concentration of a defensive line against Russia, a return of occupied territory to civil administrations formed of nationals in the respective countries and removal of all measures against Jews.

It also includes a proclamation that Germany has no territorial claims beyond the borders of the old Reich, a plebiscite for Austria, a proclamation that Germany considers a strong Poland necessary, adherence to the Atlantic Charter principle and, lastly, granting of two African colonies to Germany.

BOMBERS SMASH PORT FACILITIES SERVING GERMANS

Flying Fortresses Lead Allied Air Assault in North Africa

By WES GALLAGHER

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 16—(AP) Flying Fortresses striking at General Nehring's and Marshal Rommel's ports in Tunisia have left a ribbon of destruction from Gabes to Bizerte along the water fronts, wrecking an estimated 20 per cent of dock installations in six weeks.

This is shown by air reconnaissance, which makes it apparent that the German's failure to solve the combination of Flying Fortresses escorted by P-38's is becoming a major factor in Marshal Rommel's failure to gather enough strength to hold Tripolitania.

Residences Not Harmed

Despite the almost daily bombings, residential sections in Tunis, Bizerte, Sousse, and Sfax have been scarcely touched by the rain of high explosives. This has been due in part to the remarkable accuracy of the American bombsight, and in part to the Allied airforce policy to risk having some bombs fall in the water rather than on land where they might hit the native French population or Moslems.

Authoritative sources estimate that when the weather permits the Fortresses to operate every day, the Germans' incoming military supplies will be cut from 50 to 75 per cent.

Nazis Use Barges

The Nazis have been forced to use tank-carrying barges which can be run up on the beaches and unloaded, in order to overcome the difficulty of unloading heavy articles when cranes have been destroyed by bombings.

These craft, which can make the run from Sicily in a single night, are difficult to intercept, and almost impossible to bomb by day when they scatter along the beaches.

The American and British air forces, which are squeezing in on Marshal Rommel from the east and west, met this, however, by striking at the weak line of the supply chain—transportation.

R.A.F. Bixleys prowl the roads by moonlight in guerrilla raids, while P-38's rake the motor columns by day with cannon fire, and Bostons, B-25's and B-26's tear up the railroads with high explosives.

The backbone of this aerial siege has been the Fortresses.

Harbor Attacked at Sousse

In the harbor of Sousse, for example, at least three ships have been sunk or are half under water at the docks, the seaplane station has been wiped out, two storage sheds wrecked, docks hit, 75 per cent of the customs house destroyed, one large manufacturing plant along the waterfront 90 per cent destroyed, and a long string of small buildings along the water front wrecked.

Air reconnaissance photographs also disclose that practically no bombs have fallen in the city itself right along the waterfront.

Similar damage has been done at Tunis, Bizerte, and Sfax.

Aerial Activity Is Intense Over Entire Front

JAN 17 1943

By WES GALLAGHER,

Associated Press War Correspondent.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 16.—American and RAF fighters and even bombers battled Axis aircraft in the biggest scale aerial dogfighting of the Tunisian campaign by day and night yesterday, blasting 23 German and Italian planes from the skies, it was announced today.

Aerial activity was intense over the entire Tunisian front.

More than half the toll was taken in two actions. The Germans attempted to bomb advanced Allied airfields and lost seven planes.

Fifty Planes Engaged.

Then P-38 Lightnings and B-25 Billy Mitchell bombers engaged 50 Axis transport planes off the Tunisian coast and shot down seven more.

(On the Tripolitanian front the British told of strongly increased patrol operations in which casualties were inflicted on Marshal Erwin Rommel's forces in several sectors, and the Italian high command reported the outbreak of violent ground fighting.

(A strong armored force of the British 8th Army was declared by the German high command today to have been repulsed in an attempt to envelop the German-Italian tank army from the south in the battle of Libya.

(The Germans said the British were driven off with a loss of 35 tanks. The German description suggests a repetition of the tactics which temporarily cut Marshal Rommel's retreating columns in two west of El Agheila—a swift British drive westward and north via a Wadi to the Mediterranean coast.)

(The Italian report said tank-supported Allied forces were on the attack again from the east suggested that Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's British 8th Army may have launched a new drive to roll Marshal Rommel back to Tripoli from his present holding positions along the Gulf of Sirte.)

JAN 17 1943

Limited Ground Activity.

The Allied communique reporting the Tunisian operations said:

"Ground activity was limited to patroling on both sides.

"In the course of operations off the Tunisian coast by our medium bombers and fighters, a large schooner was bombed and attacks were made on two escorted formations of enemy transport planes.

"Seven transports and two escorting fighters were shot down. Other medium bombers attacked road and rail communications near Gabes. Enemy fighters were encountered. One of them was destroyed.

"Last night six enemy bombers were destroyed. During daylight attacks on our air fields seven enemy aircraft were destroyed.

"From all these operations eight of our aircraft are missing."

(Tripoli was given another blasting by Allied bombers Thursday night, it was said at Cairo, and hits were reported on the railway station and military stores. Large fires were started. Both the Tripoli harbor and road junctions were targets of the attack. The bombers returned yesterday for another "large-scale" attack and one Messerschmitt was reported shot down.)

Two Alerts at Algiers.

Algiers had two alerts during the night and was treated to a display of aerial fireworks as light guns went into action, but no damage was done.

The Lafayette Escadrille of the French fighting force claimed its first enemy planes of the campaign. The squadron's American-built P-40s shot down two Messerschmitt 109s, repelling a raid on an airdrome.

Besides the planes shot down, 14 more were damaged in the past 48 hours, a spokesman said.

He said the biggest single toll yesterday was taken by B-25s and P-38s which twice intercepted and engaged what apparently was the same fighter-guarded flight of 50 transport planes.

These were flying southwest, apparently taking supplies to Marshal Rommel's forces.

Five transports fell in flames in the first attack. Two more and two fighters were shot down in the second.

Among American airmen credited with enemy planes during the day's operations were Major Hasley C. Vaughn, P-38 pilot of Sapulpa, Okla., who shot down one Me-109 and damaged another, and three gunners on B-25's.

They were Sergt. Lester Kitzerow, of Detroit, who got a Focke-Wulf 190; Sergt. Joseph Rabienowitz, of Lyons, Ga., who got two Junkers 52's, and Sergt. Clayton D. Lea, Albuquerque, N. M., who downed a Ju-52.

Among those credited with badly damaging enemy planes were two P-38 pilots, Lieut. Fred J. Wolfe, of Hammond, Ind., and Lieut. Edmund Anderson of Royal Oak, Mich. Wolfe said he poured 600 rounds into a Me-109 and saw it go down, but did not see it crash.

PRISONERS FREED IN NORTH AFRICA

Political Opponents of Vichy Regime Released on Giraud's Orders.

JAN 17 1943

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa, Jan. 16—(AP) Official sources stated today that orders had been issued for the release of all political prisoners arrested under the Vichy regime on charges of favoring the Allies.

The announcement was made as negotiations between Gen. Henri Giraud, high commissioner in North and West Africa, and Gen. Charles De Gaulle, Fighting French leader, were understood to be progressing satisfactorily.

The same sources said Gen. Giraud had issued orders relaxing certain measures against the Jews.

Orders for the release of political prisoners previously had been issued under the regime of the late Admiral Jean Darlan, but their effectiveness had remained a matter of doubt.

Fortress Downs 6 Nazi Planes, Though Lamed

Barely Clears Tunisian Peak as It Limps Back to Base After Bombing Tripoli

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 16 (AP).—A bullet-riddled Flying Fortress, with two engines knocked out and a gunner wounded when his turret gun was damaged, limped its way to a startling victory over six Messerschmitt 109 planes and a safe crash landing at its home field, a headquarters spokesman revealed today.

The Thunderbird, piloted by Lieutenant John L. Cronkhite, of St. Petersburg, Fla., was one of a big flight of bombers which raided Tripoli Tuesday.

Coming back with first one and later two of its four engines out of commission from hits by .30-caliber bullets, the plane cleared a mountain so close that a crew member said if he had been sitting on the wing "I could have scraped it with my foot," to arrive two hours and a half after the other planes had landed.

The plane was hit and one of the engines was knocked out even before the plane dropped bombs on the target with what Lieutenant Cronkhite called "outstanding success." He added:

"We finally got over our airport and shot flares to let them know we were in trouble. Meantime it was dark and we could hardly see, but we landed okay, on our belly."

Crippled Fortress Shoots Down 6 Nazi Planes on Way Home

By the Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 16.—The crew of the battered American Flying Fortress which flew home two hours late and with only two engines operating after the big raid on Tripoli Tuesday shot down six Messerschmitt 109's in combat on the way back to its base, a spokesman announced today.

The bomber was piloted by Lt. John L. Cronkhite of St. Petersburg, Fla.

U. S. Soldier Braves Nazi Fire 15 Times To Rescue Buddies

Infantryman Drove Jeep; Named for Citation With Four Others

By the Associated Press

JAN 17 1943

WITH AMERICAN FORCES IN TUNISIA, Jan. 12 (Delayed).—Corpl. Walter John Will, a 20-year-old infantryman from West Winfield, N. Y., told today how he faced German artillery and machine-gun fire 15 times in a borrowed jeep, returning each time with a wounded American soldier.

Corpl. Will was one of five men recommended for a citation for valor in bringing back wounded from the Christmas battle of "Long Stop" hill near Medjez-el-Bab.

"Our fellows had withdrawn after we were surrounded on three sides by a superior German force, but we knew that 200 of our soldiers still were on top of the hill with no food or water," Will said. "There was a jeep nearby, but the driver had been captured.

"I'm an infantryman, but since someone had to run food, water and ammunition up the hill I volunteered to drive. I made five trips Christmas night and 10 the next night, each time bringing back one wounded man.

"I was under fire during most of the 6-mile round trip. None of the heavy artillery shells hit, but several came too close for comfort. The trouble is you can't hear them while you're driving a jeep, but you sure know when they land close."

Sergt. Ralph Waffle, 23, of New Berlin, N. Y., was recommended for piloting a jeep within 200 yards of the German lines to rescue a wounded soldier. He was accompanied by his hometown buddy, Pvt. Claude E. Webster, 22, who enlisted with him.

"The wounded man lay behind a rock which gave us some shelter while we were loading him in the jeep," Sergt. Waffle said. "I told him 'This may pain you some, but you'll feel much better later if we make it.' We had to drive 100 yards through mortar and machine gun fire.

"The fellow we picked up would have died if he hadn't got to the hospital. It was worth the effort involved."

Others recommended for similar feats were Sergt. Ernest A. Mayer, 25, West Hampton Beach, Long Island; Corpl. Harman J. Weingard, 23, Brooklyn, and Sergt. Wade Davis, jr., 23, South Minneapolis, Minn.

First U.S. Nurses In North Africa 'Good Soldiers'

Girls Pass Off-Duty Hours Studying French, Giving Native Cooks Food Hints

JAN 17 1943

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 15 (Delayed) (AP).—The American Army nurses composing the first group to arrive in this headquarters city are studying French, teaching French cooks to prepare American-style food, trying with limited success to replace the personal things they lost on their way to North Africa and enjoying a limited social life.

Such activities help to while away the off-duty hours for the nurses pending their assignment to regular hospital posts.

Meantime, they are living in quarters which they themselves describe as "luxurious," are eating extremely well and are in good health. Although opportunities for having a good time are limited here, the girls attend dances in the American Red Cross building and are dined and escorted to films—many of them so old they seem almost new again.

In the opinion of First Lieutenant Ethel E. Larsen, of Baltimore, all the nurses are "good soldiers."

"Some of the younger ones," she said, "are bound to feel lonely and homesick once in a while—but they snap out of it quickly."

Lieutenant Larsen said the American nurses really were taking their study of the French language serious

"We've decide at we want to be able to speak h the people of this countr she declared, "not always h to use the services of an interpreter."

One "bright spot" in the lives of the nurses, Lieutenant Larsen said, is their effort to "show some of the cooks here what can be done with the G. I. (general issue) ration. We learn about some things, and they in turn get some eye-openers from us."

"We don't want the people back home to get any idea at all that we're downhearted or in any real need of any essential articles," she continued. "We were very low on clothes when we arrived, but we have since been pretty well supplied with G. I. clothes, some of which are brought by clipper from the United States.

"The little personal things are practically non-existent, however. We simply cannot buy them here."

Those here in addition to Lieutenant Larsen—all second lieutenants—include:

Estelle O. Babbles, of Newark, N. J.; Antonia I. Bunes of Elizabeth, N. J.; Margaret M. Farrell, of Paterson, N. J.; Helen C. Baniak, of Troy, N. Y.; Mary Sholewinski, of Brooklyn; Elizabeth Cook, of Sanquoit, N. Y.; Mildred R. Fletcher, of South Hammond, N. Y.; Louise A. Goark, of Watervliet, N. Y.; Martha C. Gorik, of Binghamton, N. Y.; Doris L. Gressel, of Mohawk, N. Y.; Laura Handler, of Brooklyn; Antoinette Kleinman, of New York; Irene B. Knapp, of Hagaman, N. Y.; Mary S. Leaver, of New York; Agnes C. Tereska, of Tarrytown, N. Y.; Elizabeth Eggiman, of Rochester; Helen Lakergne Loucks, of Hermon, N. Y., and Della Mae Moore, of Norwalk, Conn.

EPICURE'S EDEN IS CAID'S MEAL OF MANY DISHES

Barbecued Boar, Roast Peacock Just a Starter at Arabian Feast.

By RICE YAHNER

MARRAKECH, French Morocco, Dec. 27.—(Delayed)—(AP) For imagination in cooking and practicability in eating, the Arabs have top place in my book.

When you dine with them, they take something of virtually everything they have at the moment cook it tastily with all the spices and some of the perfumes in the village and serve it up in innumerable courses.

JAN 17 1943

You sit on the floor surrounded with cushions and dig in with your fingers.

You eat until you have sense enough to quit, or just roll over.

If you're dining with a Pasha—they rank next to the Sultan—the meal is likely to begin with a whole barbecued wild boar or roasted peacock, then go on through mutton and chicken served several ways.

If you make a hog of yourself on the first courses, you'll never last for honey cakes, mint tea and milk of almonds.

Even the perfume shower and the smoke of burning sandalwood won't revive you.

I've been up to eight courses—any one of which would almost make a main course at home—during a trip into the interior seeing how the French administer fabulous Morocco. And there's one thing sure—there's plenty of good food, even if it isn't prepared in white-tiled kitchens.

Besides, the dishwashing problem is practically non-existent. There's only one big plate or bowl for each course and there aren't any side plates, knives or forks.

As a special favor to a guest trying to manipulate cous cous—mostly farina—with unaccustomed fingers, they sometimes put out tablespoons.

This is an account of one feast I had as a guest of Caid Moulay Ydris, chief of a tribe in the foothills of the snow capped Atlas mountains, home of the Riffs and Berbers. I'm stuffed now, but I'll tell you about the dessert later.

About 100 kilometers from Marrakech, a babbling city in a lush oasis that for centuries was the sultan's capital, you come upon the site of a Souk de Bled—a country market.

It is a bare hillside with only adobe-like buildings and walls. Six days weekly it is practically deserted on caparisoned and prancing the hillside is swarming with thousands of Arabs, droopy-eyed donkeys and camels, and brightly dressed native cavalrymen mounted on caparisoned and prancing Arabian horses.

You are met and welcomed hos-

pitably, and led through crumbling outside walls and through twisting passageways until you finally come out on a sunlit patio abloom with flowers around a bubbling fountain and fruit trees.

When you enter, it's like coming through a barnyard, but now in the Caid's silken furnished rooms which face a colorful garden, it is a veritable fairy-tale picture.

In the largest and most sumptuous room are great platters of viands, each covered with a clean cloth. Brass kettles steam on ornate charcoal braziers, with smaller silver kettles and pitchers here and there.

JAN 17 1943

Now I'll tell you about the fighting courses of the feast.

Here are great honeycakes, resembling pretzels, covered with honey taffy and coriander seeds. Next are flaky butterflies of paper-thin pastry cooked in deep fat and shaped like pithy streaks in orange slices. They are flavored with orange water.

But the piece de resistance is a pie-shaped affair made of many wafer-thin sheets of pastry binding up a kind of mincemeat, the principal flavor of which is almonds.

Into this you dig with your fingers. It is said to require all day to make such a pastille and three hours to bake it, for each thin layer of flour and water is fried separately on a griddle.

It is also said that the early versions of the pastille had 1,000 layers, but there couldn't have been more than 100 in the one I had.

With oranges and mandarins from the Caid's trees, you're through eating—for a while. Servants bring silver pitchers and basins and you wash your hands. The right one needs the most washing, for you do all your eating with that hand. Moslems consider the left hand unclean no matter how much it's been washed.

Once washed, silver shakers of perfumed rose water are passed around and you sprinkle it on your hands and face, your hair, up your cuffs, down your neck and in fact any place you want. The more places, the better. The theory is that you're getting rid of food odors.

Then censers of smoking sandalwood are brought in and you unbutton your blouse and stand over one.

What food you've been unable to eat goes first to lesser tribal men and what they leave reaches the women and children.

Hungry, folks?

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Jan. 16 (AP) — French troops captured "several important points" in fighting twenty miles northwest of Kairouan and won other positions to the south and northeast of Jebel Ousselat, the French high command communique reported today.

R. A. F. SERGEANT DOWNS THREE JAPS

JAN 17 1943

New Delhi, Jan. 16 (A. P.).—Calcutta's anti-aircraft defenses rang up a 100 per cent score last night when three Japanese medium bombers, which attempted to raid the city, were shot out of the sky by a single British fighter—one of several sent aloft to intercept the raiders.

Credit for the remarkable feat, which was officially confirmed today in a British communique, went to Flight Sergt. Maurice Pring, 21 years old, of Birkhamstead, England, who already had three enemy planes to his credit.

The communique said that bombs dropped by the Japanese before they reached the target area had caused little damage and few casualties.

The raid apparently was in retaliation for repeated British attacks on the Japanese-occupied port of Akyab in western Burma, which R. A. F. Blenheims blasted again yesterday.

British planes also attacked shipping on the Chindwin and Irrawaddy rivers yesterday and raided the Magwe airdrome some 120 miles northeast of Akyab last night. No planes were lost in these operations, the communique said.

The bulletin contained the first mention of land activity on the western Burma front in several days, reporting that patrols had repulsed a Japanese attack northwest of Akyab.

Sergt. Pring is a six-footer who was interested in flying at Chelsea College and joined the R. A. F. soon after its outbreak.

Japanese Driven From Base

WITH THE AMERICAN AIR FORCES IN CHINA, Jan. 15 (Delayed) (AP)—A flight of Brig. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's fighters swarmed into Burma Friday and dive-bombed Irrawaddy River craft loaded with Japanese supplies at Bhamo, destroying two big barges, damaging a third and sinking a tug.

Carrying heavy bombs, the fighters delivered the fifth bombing and strafing attack on the enemy supply center, where war material shipped up the Irrawaddy is sent over roads to the Salween River front. The mission, led by Lieutenant James Proctor of Beaumont, Texas, was composed of pilots who practiced dive-bombing in the Caribbean area.

"We got a direct hit dead center between two barges moored opposite the town," Lieutenant Proctor said. "Another direct hit blew up the tug and a bomb made a near miss on a barge slightly downriver.

"Flying low over the town we poured bullets into what was left of the big warehouse, already two-thirds burned from its strafing two days ago.

"We found hardly a building standing in the center of Bhamo, which is badly burned from previous raids by medium bombers. Circling, we saw one automobile pool which had been destroyed. Then, outside the town, we located a dump of gasoline drums and strafed it. Explosions and flames set fire to the surrounding grass and trees.

"There was no evidence of Japanese troops and there was little activity in Bhamo. Persistent raids apparently forced evacuation of the town between sunrise and sunset."

All of the United States planes returned safely.

Chinese Pilots Plane From U.S. to Chengtu

CHUNGKING, Jan. 16 (AP).—Yi Fuen, an officer in the Chinese air force who was trained in the United States, was credited today with being the first Chinese to pilot a plane from the United States to China.

"Ta Kung Pao," Chinese newspaper, said Yi Fuen and a crew of three Fillipinos landed safely at Chengtu after a flight from Los Angeles.

The type of plane and the route were not specified.

GEN. JOSEPH STILWELL WINS D.S.C. IN CHINA

CHUNGKING, Jan. 16 — (AP) Lieut.-Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, chief of staff of the Allied forces in China, received the Distinguished Service Cross today in a surprise ceremony at his hillside home overlooking the Chialing river, his own son pinning the decoration on his breast.

JAN 17 1943

Brig. Col. Joseph R. Stilwell gravely shook hands with his father after Col. William E. Bergin had read the order presenting the medal, which arrived only today from the United States.

General Stilwell had not been warned and muttered "who thought this one up?" as he found a party of his officers and correspondents and photographers drawn up in his compound for the presentation.

After the ceremony, during which he looked proud and pleased, he said "Thank you" gravely to his officers and went into the house.

The celebration then began, with drinks for all hands except the two Stilwells, both teetotalers.

ALLIES ARE CLOSING IN ON FOE AT SANANANDA

Attacking Japanese Triangle in Papua From Two Sides

JAN 17 1943

AT UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Sunday, Jan. 17 (AP)—American and Australian ground forces are pinching in toward Sanananda, New Guinea, from two directions, moving slowly through the rain-soaked jungle with direct support of the air force.

Step by step, they are reducing the Japanese triangle with a base about three miles on the coast and extending about two miles inland. This small sector is the only one still held by the Japanese in the whole Papuan peninsula.

On one side, fighting centered around an American-built roadblock, consisting of cocoanut logs and dirt-filled gasoline drums.

At the same time, Allied patrols remained active in the area of Mubo, slightly south of Salamaua, where during a three-day period earlier in the week more than 100 Japanese were slain and their headquarters destroyed in a surprise attack.

Air activity, as outlined in today's noon communiqué, again spread out over the whole northeastern sector with the heaviest raid aimed at Lae, 175 miles up the coast from the Sanananda fighting. There bombers and fighters started fires among seaside supply dumps and also attacked the airdrome.

A four-motored Liberator on armed reconnaissance found a Japanese cruiser sixty miles south of Cape St. George, New Ireland, attacked it with unreported results and shot down one of four Japanese fighters that tried to intercept.

Allies Destroy Section Of Sanananda Posts; Capture Munitions

152 Japanese Slain At Foe's Last Foothold In Papuan Peninsula

By the Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Jan. 16.—Allied ground forces attacking the last pocket of Japanese resistance on the southeast peninsula of New Guinea have broken through and destroyed a section of enemy forward positions at Sanananda, killing 152 Japanese who attempted to stop the advance, an Allied communique said today.

Quantities of arms and equipment were captured by the Allied troops, the bulletin said, but there was no further amplification of the successful action.

Has Natural Protections.

Sanananda is northwest of the former Japanese stronghold at Buna on the east coast of New Guinea and like Buna is protected by a series of jungle fortifications and swampy country. Recent rains have increased the difficulties of the Allied forces seeking to clear Papua of the remnants of a Japanese army which once totaled 15,000 men.

Some 150 miles to the northwest at Mubo, south and inland from Salamaua in northeast New Guinea, Allied forces have completed a three-day raid on Japanese positions during which an enemy headquarters post, a radio station and supply dumps were destroyed, the communique proceeded.

Heavy casualties have been inflicted on the Japanese there, it was said. At least 116 were reported killed in this raid in yesterday's communique.

Meanwhile, Allied air forces continued to attack the remaining Japanese positions in New Guinea and spread out in a widening circle over Japanese footholds in the Southwest Pacific. The enemy airdromes at Madang and Pinschhafen and a supply dump at Lae were the targets in New Guinea yesterday, the communique reported.

Lone Jap Bomber Attacks.

One Japanese bomber attacked Port Moresby under cover of darkness, but no damage was caused, the bulletin added.

A unit of Allied medium bombers raided another Japanese airfield on Matkus Island of the Tanimbar group north of Darwin, Australia. A heavy bomber on armed reconnaissance shot down one of two Japanese fighters which attacked it over Celebes in the Netherlands Indies.

An enemy merchant ship was bombed at Cape Sena, New Ireland, and harbor installations at the Japanese base of Rabaul, New Britain, were attacked. The airdrome at Gasmata, New Britain, also was bombed.

Japs Supply Guadalcanal With Food by Submarines

Isolated Garrisons Get Rations Floated Ashore on Rafts

JAN 17 1943

By WILLIAM HIPPLE

WITH AMERICAN FORCES ON GUADALCANAL, Jan. 14 (delayed) — (AP) — Expert knowledge of tides and currents around this embattled island, gained through years of pre-war snooping, is enabling the Japanese to keep their otherwise isolated troops on Guadalcanal adequately supplied with food by submarine.

The great majority of Japanese killed in recent fighting appear to be in good physical condition, lean and hard-muscled. American front-line officers agree it is "wishful thinking" to believe that the enemy will be annihilated except in battle.

Float Supplies Ashore

Japanese submarines approach parts of the islands held by their own troops at night and cast loose water-tight oil drums or small rafts loaded with food, and because of their knowledge of tides and currents a good percentage of the food reaches the beaches and is picked up by the Japanese garrison.

American fighter planes and dive-bombers from Henderson field patrol the shoreline daily to shoot up and burn as much of these supplies as possible, but much slips through nevertheless.

Another, though smaller, source of supply for the Japanese troops since their major convoys met disaster in attempts to relieve them is by parachute from flying boats.

One morning 40 foot parachutes were spotted on the ground by American fliers, another time 20.

Field Diet Nutritious

Japanese field rations captured here recently consisted of dry rice, dry soybean sauce to be mixed with water, dried soybean paste and a sort of ersatz hardtack. Each man carries and cooks his own rations. U. S. Army doctors say the diet is fairly nutritious, and a fighting officer voiced full agreement.

"When I see those Japs charging up and down hills and through the jungles day after day I have a hard time believing it," he marveled. "They might not be getting a stomach-full three times a day, but they are not suffering much."

The dead Japanese are found to be lean, but that is a physical trait common to both sides on this island. Nobody remains plump long under the excessive heat and the rigor of hill and jungle fighting.

Malaria is the enemy both of American and Japanese troops, but the percentage of Japanese cases is believed to be much the higher because of the way the enemy's isolated forces live. On the other hand, our doctors report that the Japanese, who have captured most of the world's quinine supply, are carrying excellent quinine preparations.

Navigator Gets Pictures Of New Japanese Plane

By The Associated Press.

AT A NEW GUINEA BASE, Jan. 7 (Delayed)—Lieutenant David Nelson is a quick thinker as well as a good aerial navigator.

The Altadena, Calif., flier was in a plane with Captain Hap Jolly of Auburn, Ala., pilot, and Lieutenant Robertson W. Pearson of Houston, Texas, co-pilot, on a mission against a Japanese convoy off Lae. Their light bomber was attacked by a new type of fighter with squared wingtips and distinctive tailfin.

Nelson, who carried a color movie camera, quickly switched from navigator to photographer. As a result, General Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific may have as much as sixty feet of film showing this new plane in attack manoeuvres.

SHELLS PREVENT ECONOMIC CRASH

Melbourne, Jan. 16 (A. P.).—Sea shells found in a toy department here were credited with saving the native monetary system of an Indonesian district in a part of the Netherlands East Indies still under Dutch control.

The monetary system was based on shells, which were fragile and frequently had to be replaced, found only on a shore which in recent months has been in Japanese hands. The shortage became acute. A breakdown of the local economic system seemed imminent.

Then, one day, an agent found a large number of bags of the shells in a store.

"No more deflation!" he exclaimed, and rushed the shells into circulation.

WRITER DESCRIBES SANANANDA FIGHT

JAN 17 1943

Visits "Huggins Roadblock" Where Allied Lines Lie Close To Enemy

By WILLIAM F. BONI

[Associated Press Correspondent]

With the American Troops on the Sanananda Front, New Guinea, Jan. 14 (Delayed)—This is quite a place—this semi-clearing semi-underbrush dotted with foxholes, machinegun posts, mortar pits, gun emplacements and even small lot stockades. It is known as Huggins' roadblock.

It was established more than a month ago by American troops under the commander from which it drew its name. Australians relieve those American troops, and then the Americans, under command of a West Pointer, a regular army officer, have since expanded it considerably.

Commander Lives In Shelter

It's really an amazing place. The commander and his executive officer live in a shelter protected on all sides by sandbags.

Gun posts, mortars, foxholes dug deep into the ground—that's where the men have been working and sleeping and eating, never moving out of there between dark and daylight because the Japs outside have a nasty habit of pitching in grenades in attempts to pick off anybody foolish enough to expose himself.

Sleep On Rafts

For several days since advance units moved on, it has rained every night, filling the dugouts with at least six inches of water. I asked Lieut. Frank Maxam, of Culbertson, Mont., what he did then.

"You sleep on the water," he replied. "We lined the bottom of our foxhole with empty mortar shell cases. About 3 o'clock one morning we found we were sleeping on a raft."

This is a good day for the Americans, because to the south the Australians, with some American aid, are pushing south, having mopped up almost all the Japs in the roadblock pocket while other enemy forces surprisingly withdrew during the night.

Even so, the enemy was not far away.

NAVY CROSS AWARDED TO DESTROYER CHIEF

39 Enlisted Men Get Silver Stars at South Pacific Base

ABOARD A DESTROYER IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, Jan. 3 (Delayed) (AP)—Rear Admiral Frederick C. Sherman awarded the Navy Cross to Lieut. Comdr. Randolph Burton Boyer, 39, and Silver Star medals to enlisted men on the deck of Commander Boyer's destroyer at an advanced base in the South Pacific today.

Admiral Sherman paid tribute to all destroyers—"the unsung heroes of this war"—asserting that the destroyer "plays the most important role in the new type of task-force warfare in the Pacific."

"It is the carrier's sole protection against submarines and, when the enemy comes by air, it is equally responsible with other units in shooting him down in flames," Admiral Sherman said.

This destroyer—performing this role—has steamed more than 10,000 miles during the past year.

Commander Boyer's citation said that "after enemy bombs and torpedoes had seriously damaged the task-force carrier, resulting in raging fires and a dangerous list, he skillfully brought his ship alongside in a most seamanlike manner to assist in fighting the fires on board with every means at his command. Although driven away by further enemy air attacks, he repeatedly returned to the side of the stricken carrier to continue rendering effective assistance."

In this action Commander Boyer's ship rescued fifty-one survivors. Previously, in the Battle of the Coral Sea and at Midway, he rescued 1,000 from the Lexington and the Yorktown.

Commander Boyer, whose home is in Detroit Lakes, Minn., is an Annapolis graduate, class of '27. His wife, Harriet, lives in Staunton, Va., and his father, John P. Boyer, in Audubon, Minn.

WINS SECOND DECORATION

HONOLULU, Jan. 16 — (AP) Lieut. Com. Frank (Mike) Fenno, Jr., of Westminster, Mass., got his Gold Star today, equivalent to a second Navy Cross, for his second brilliant submarine foray into enemy waters last summer. For security reasons it was described only as a "good patrol."

Cuba to Draft 8,000 in April

HAVANA, Jan. 16 (AP).—Between 8,000 and 10,000 Cubans between the ages of twenty and twenty-five will be drafted in April for military training, it was announced today after a meeting of President Fulgencio Batista with the heads of the armed forces and members of the National Defense Board.

A King May Be Born

JAN 17 1943

Ottawa Hospital Prepares for Arrival of Princess Juliana's Baby.

Ottawa, Jan. 16 (A. P.).—A baby to be born in Ottawa's Civic Hospital within the next few days, if a boy, one day will be King of the Netherlands—the first male heir born to the House of Orange since 1851. Yet hardly ever will a royal birth have been surrounded by less pomp and less fuss.

If the expectant mother, Crown Princess Juliana, had had her way she would have had just a room, like any private patient, and her baby would have been cared for in the ward's infant room.

This is no pose on the part of the Crown Princess, who, with her daughters, Princesses Beatrix and Irene, settled in Canada shortly after the German invasion of Holland. To Princess Juliana simplicity comes natural. She has just moved into a larger house in the Ottawa residential district of Rockcliffe Park in anticipation of the increase in her family. The new house has one guest room, with no special accommodations for herself or the baby.

The Princess wished ordinary care at the hospital, but, as E. Norman Smith, chairman of the hospital's board of trustees, told me: "The trustees were not going to take any risks. We felt the responsibility was too great."

A Little Bit of Holland.

So, part of the corridor in the east wing has been partitioned off for the Princess. Through the swinging doors one enters a room which temporarily is outside the jurisdiction of the Dominion of Canada. It has been proclaimed as extraterritorial by the Dominion Government to ensure that the child, which would in any case receive the Dutch nationality of its parents, owes allegiance exclusively to the Netherlands.

Here in this wing is a room for the mother, a room for the baby, one for the nurse and one for the members of the Netherlands detective force who are assigned to guard the safety of Princess Juliana and the baby.

A cheery sunroom overlooks snow-covered trees and a wintry Canadian landscape. Appropriately enough, the hospital is reached from the center of Ottawa by a street called Holland avenue, which was named, however, after a man rather than for the country.

It May Be the King.

Much of the world interest in the forthcoming birth is centered on the possibility that it will be a boy, and thus heir to the throne after the reigning Queen Wilhelmina and Princess Juliana. If it is a girl it will be the third daughter of Princess Juliana and Prince Bernhard, with little possibility of ever being the Netherlands' monarch.

But Princess Juliana says, simply: "If it is a boy I will be very happy, of course, but if it is a girl I will be very happy, too. It does not matter."

The baby will, in any case, be the first member of the Netherlands royal house to be born outside Holland and the first member of a European royal family to be born on the North American Continent.

R C A F Americans Missing

OTTAWA, Jan. 16 (Canadian Press) — Sergeant Frank Severne Millen, the son of Mrs. R. L. Blanding of North Providence, R. I., is missing and believed killed during air operations overseas, the Royal Canadian Air Force reported in a casualty list today. The R. C. A. F. also reported that Sergeant Ronald Hayes, whose wife lives in Norfolk, Va., was missing after air operations overseas.

DESTROYER FORCE SIGHTED NORTH OF GUADALCANAL ISLE

Seven U. S. Aircraft Lost in Widespread Offensive Operations.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 — (AP) American planes shot down 20 Japanese aircraft and bombed four ships Friday, the Navy announced today, in increasingly severe warfare in the Solomons Islands area. Seven U. S. planes were lost.

Three of the ships bombed were destroyers. One was afire when last observed, a communique said and the other two were believed seriously damaged. The fourth ship, a cargo vessel, was left burning.

14 Enemy Destroyers Sighted

The presence of at least 14 enemy destroyers in waters near Guadalcanal island was disclosed, indicating that the Japanese were expanding their efforts to reinforce and supply their forces on the island.

That some supplies are getting through to Japanese troops on Guadalcanal was suggested by the Navy's report that American land forces met "stiff enemy resistance" in making advances Thursday of 3,000 to 4,000 yards. There had been indications earlier that the Japanese were running short of supplies and that their ability to resist was weakening but a dispatch from Guadalcanal told of submarines bringing supplies which were floated ashore by the tides and currents.

Four major air actions Friday (Solomons time) were reported in today's communique.

In the first, an American Catalina reconnaissance plane observed five destroyers 16 miles northeast of the Russell islands which are about 60 miles northwest of the American airfield on Guadalcanal. The plane scored one direct hit and two near hits on one destroyer, which was left burning.

Planes Attack Japs

Later that morning a force of Dauntless dive bombers and Wildcat and Airacobra fighters attacked nine Japanese destroyers 140 miles northwest of Lunga point on Guadalcanal. They were intercepted by 12 enemy Zeros. In the ensuing air fight, eight of the Zeros and five of the American fighters were shot down. The dive bombers seriously damaged two destroyers. One dive-bomber failed to return.

Ranging some 300 miles from Guadalcanal, a force of Flying Fortresses, with fighter escort, attacked five enemy destroyers near Shortland island in the afternoon. They were beset by twelve Japanese float-type biplanes and shot all of them down without loss to themselves. No hits were seen on the destroyers.

Cargo Ship Is Target

Meantime a group of dive bombers, also with fighter escort, attacked the cargo ship 37 miles northwest of Munda, on New Georgia island, where the Japanese have an airbase. They shot down seven of twelve Zeros which engaged them. One U. S. fighter was lost.

The communique also told of the heaviest Japanese air raid in recent weeks on the American installations on Guadalcanal. This was Thursday, Solomons time. It was the first time since mid-November that there had been any attack other than a nuisance raid by a single plane. The Navy said no damage was done to installations but that the American forces suffered some casualties.

The same day, American planes bombed Sorum village on Buka island 400 miles northwest of Guadalcanal.

In addition to these actions, an American plane shot down three Zeros on Friday while patrolling in the vicinity of Guadalcanal.

'Barter Bags' Sent To Soldiers in Africa

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 — (AP) — The War department disclosed today that "barter bags" have been provided for troops in North Africa.

The bags, the department said, contain beads, scissors, cloths, perfumes, candies, cigarettes and scare foodstuffs to provide "a basis for trading for local products wanted by the soldier."

Yank Drives Jap Flyer To Ground And Captures Him

Washington, Jan. 16 (AP)—An army pilot wasn't satisfied with shooting down his Japanese opponent — he carried the fight to the ground and captured the enemy pilot, the War Department reported today.

The dogfight occurred while Second Lieutenant Wallace L. Dinn, of Corpus Christi, Texas, was on a mission over Guadalcanal.

Dinn's plane and the Zero flown by the Japanese both were damaged and made crash landings.

The American was injured—so was the Japanese. Dinn enlisted the aid of friendly natives and captured his enemy.

Both later were picked up by marines and taken to a Solomons Island base.

Status Effective at Midnight

Washington, Jan. 16 (A. P.).—The Minister of Iraq today handed Secretary of State Hull a communication from his Foreign Affairs Office announcing that Iraq regards itself at war with Germany, Italy and Japan, after midnight tonight.

The German Government "has interfered most openly and in every way in the domestic affairs of Iraq and has been responsible for the instigation and promotion of outright rebellion" against the Iraq Government, the communication stated.

The Italian Government, the statement continued, has "committed the same acts constituting interference in the domestic affairs of Iraq," and the Government of Japan was declared to have been guilty "of the flagrant violation of the neutrality of Iraq by lending assistance to the German and Italian governments."

Recent Doings in Iraq.

British troops moved into Iraq in May, 1941, a few weeks after an Axis inspired revolt indicated German designs on the nation and its rich oil deposits.

The German radio reported last August that United States troops had been landed in Iraq, but there has been no confirmation of this report. The German broadcast said "the foreign garrison in Iraq is now composed mainly of American troops."

Prime Minister Nuri es Sadi of Iraq, an outstanding figure in the Arab world, was associated with the late King Feisal and Lawrence of Arabia in the last world war.

Iraq has a population of approximately 4,500,000.

She was the thirty-first nation to declare war on the Axis.

Robert Johnson, British radio commentator, said in a broadcast recorded by CBS that the declaration was particularly significant because "it is the first time that an Arab country has joined with Britain in a declaration like this."

A Transocean News Agency dispatch broadcast by the Berlin radio discounted the action as "a gesture by a clique of Iraq politicians obeying Britain."

Story Of Planeless Pilots Of Philippine Fight Is Told

27 Of 400 In 27th Bombardment Group Escaped To Australia—19 Still Active, In Air Now

JAN 17 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Jan. 16 — Fighting pilots without planes—that was the Twenty-seventh Bombardment Group in the Philippines.

They had pistols, which were not much good against Jap air attacks. And they manned machine guns and anti-aircraft guns. They supplied a detail to fly P-40's, but there weren't enough P-40's.

They made up the crews for three old transport planes, operated Neilson Field for the Interceptor Command, and drilled with rifles to make themselves useful as ground troops.

Twenty-Seven Escape

Finally, a few—27 out of more than 400—escaped to Australia, expecting to bring back the group's dive-bombers which had arrived "down under." But that wasn't in the cards, either, although they did come back, at last, for a successful and satisfying raid on the Japanese in the islands.

The story of the outfit, the first complete war history of an Army Air Forces group, was made public today by the War Department. It was compiled under the direction of Capt. James B. McAfee, of Charlotte, N. C., intelligence officer of the group, from the diaries and official reports of the handful who reached Australia.

Nineteen Still Active

Only nineteen survivors of the Twenty-seventh are still active. Most of the 400-odd were left in the Philippines and presumably are prisoners. Of the twenty-seven who got away, eight have since been reported killed or missing in action. But the twenty-seven who reached Australia battled the enemy in the air and won more than a score of decorations for gallantry.

The group was created in February, 1940, at Barksdale Field, Louisiana, and its first commanding officer was Col. (later major general) Clarence L. Tinker, who was lost in the battle of Midway.

In October the group moved to Savannah for training in dive-bombing and ground strafing.

Arrive In November

Its operations officer then was Major John H. Davies, of Oakland, Cal., who was a colonel and commanding officer of the group by the time the Twenty-seventh sailed for the Philippines after the 1941 maneuvers in Louisiana.

The men arrived at Manila late in November, but their planes still had not arrived when the Japanese attacked the Philippines, December 8.

"As we had no planes," one of the pilots wrote, "our main action was getting mad at the ack-ack. The guns covering the triangle of Nichols Field, Neilson Field and Fort McKinley got so hot from constant use they had to cease firing in the middle of the raids to cool off.

"Then a telephone call came that our A-24's had arrived and were waiting at the dock. A frantic rush to the docks revealed nothing except that there was probably a fifth columnist or two in Luzon . . . and that they had our telephone number!"

On December 17 some officers of the group were called to headquarters and instructed to collect thirty pounds of personal baggage and report to Nichols Field.

There they were informed their destination was Australia. For transportation they had a C-39 cargo plane and "two dilapidated B-18 bombers," all well ventilated with shrapnel holes.

Group Moves To Field

"Came 3 A. M.," the report continued. "The band moved as one for the field, talking quietly and trying not to notice the stench of dead horses and people buried in the wreckage of the native dwellings. . . .

"They took off from a blacked-out field, from a 2,500-foot bomb-torn runway, overloaded, and with a mechanic at the end of the strip with a flashlight."

But they reached Darwin, where a flying boat picked them up and took them to Brisbane.

Open Training School

The men got their A-24s and opened an operational training school—they dubbed it "Little Randolph"—to instruct young pilots. The first of the planes was flown by Capt. (then Second Lieutenant) Robert G. Ruegg, of Boring, Ore.

The Jap progress on Luzon made it impossible to take the planes to Luzon. But the remnant of the Twenty-seventh did take badly-needed drugs to Americans on Mindanao. They went to Java, and in February sank a cruiser and destroyer.

Toward the end of February they participated in an attack on a huge Japanese invasion fleet off the East coast of Java. They fought over new Guinea and—after being reassigned to a new medium bombardment group—participated in raids on the Philippines, April 12 and 13.

Strafe Japs In A-20's

Now flying A-20s, the surviving members of the Twenty-seventh strafed the Japs along the trails of the Owen Stanley Montains of New Guinea, as Salamaua, Buna and Gasmata.

"For the want of airplanes," says the preface to their story, "the Twenty-seventh group lost its life. However, Tojo, there might not have been enough airplanes in the Philippines for the Twenty-seventh group, but don't you wish you had captured us all? God give us strength."

GREW WARNS OF JAPANESE PEACE TRICK

Former Envoy Likens Expected Move To Jujitsu Method

Says Purpose Would Be To Make Allies Lukewarm In Fighting

JAN 17 1943

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Jan. 16—Emphasizing Japan's "overweening ambition" to conquer the United States, Joseph C. Grew, former Ambassador to Japan, today warned against "deceptive Japanese peace moves" designed to throw the United Nations off guard.

Speaking before the twenty-second annual luncheon of the Women's National Republican Club here, Grew declared:

"The Japanese art of self-defense, jiujitsu, gives us a clue as to what these tactics are likely to be. The essence of this art is that by letting the adversary take the initiative and by giving way and simulating defeat the adversary may be lulled into dropping his guard; then, when the adversary has advanced too far . . . he is destroyed by a quick recovery and a lightning attack where he is weakest."

Wife Of Publisher Speaks

Mrs. Eugene Meyer, wife of the publisher of the Washington Post, another speaker, criticized the desire for a "return to normalcy" and said we should pray "that we shall not be outstripped by our Allies . . . in achieving the moral wakening, the spiritual insight that comes to those who expend themselves wholly in defense of their country."

Letters from Wendell Willkie, Herbert Hoover and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey were read by Mrs. William Henry Hays, club president.

Grew said that at present the Japanese leaders, and even more so the people, are far from convinced that they cannot manage to retain substantially all of their war gains.

JAN 17 1943

May Expect New Tactics

"But when the Allied offensive gains momentum and Japanese self-confidence is shaken by successive reverses and loss of territory then we may look for a development of new tactics," he said.

The former ambassador said he had no fear that American military leaders would be duped, but felt the peoples of the United Nations should be forewarned.

"The Japanese are capable of preparing the ground for such an offensive with elaborate care," he continued. ". . . The military leaders might begin by bringing forth from retirement some former statesman with a liberal label and placing him at the head of a puppet civilian cabinet.

Peace Trickery Possible

"There might be an announcement that Japan was ready to conclude a peace on a fair and just basis. If the United Nations were willing to rise to the bait before awaiting at least the clearing of the Japanese armed forces from the territories that they have seized, so much the better for Japan."

Even the withdrawal of forces as a peace parley prerequisite would not stop the possibility of Jap trickery, he said.

Warm Greeting Awaits Guani of Uruguay

Washington, Jan. 16 (A. P.).—Secretary of State Hull said today that a warm welcome from the people of the United States awaited Foreign Minister Albert Guani of Uruguay, who is expected to arrive in Washington next week end for a state visit. Asked for comment on the visit at his press conference, Mr. Hull said that no high official of any Government would be more welcome to this country than Senor Guani.

The Secretary said that Senor Guani has been one who has stood out in front in helping to lead in all of the important cooperative activities involving hemispheric defense. His leadership and his influence, Hull added, have been powerfully effective.

Let Japs Keep Kiska 'Rat Trap' Now, 'Glacier Priest' Urges

By the Associated Press

CHICO, Calif., Jan. 16.—Dr. Bernard Hubbard, Santa Clara University's "Glacier Priest" newly returned from a special Navy assignment in Alaska and the Aleutians, thinks it would be a mistake to force the Japanese out of Kiska right now.

"We can kick the Japs out at any time that it serves our purpose to do so," Dr. Hubbard said today.

"Right now, it is very wise to use Kiska as a rat trap and keep knocking off Japanese vessels and equipment on arrival. The Japs only keep Kiska to save face and they are getting a lot of whacks in the face and everywhere else in doing it."

He cautioned, however, that "I am not speaking as a military strategist, but merely as one who thoroughly understands the Aleutian Islands from many years of experience."

The explorer, who has spent much time in Alaska and Siberia, came here to visit his brother, John D. Hubbard, rent inspector for OPA.

Woman Was Tail Gunner in Nazi Bomber Downed by American in North Africa

Seattle, Jan. 16 (A. P.).—Downing of a German bomber over North Africa with a woman at the tail gun was reported by a Seattle flyer who also gave a graphic account of the effectiveness of team play.

Lieut. Joe Klaas, former University of Washington journalism student, did not elaborate, in a letter received today by his parents, upon the report of a feminine German gunner, except to say that the plane was shot down and "she was quite dead."

Lieut. Klaas identified his pilot partner as Kurt (Ace) Langberg from the University of Florida.

"My wingmate covers my tail; I cover his," Klaas wrote of another action. "We are stooging along a couple of hundred yards apart and 1,000 feet above the transports we are protecting.

"Suddenly, through the radio, Ace calls, 'Two bogies, Joe, at 3 o'clock, high!' Bogies are unidentified aircraft.

"I throw up a wing to cover the sun. The bogies are enemy so I pass on the good news.

"'They're bandits, Ace! Two Focke-Wulf 190's in the sun. You watch 'em. I'll watch the transports. Tell me when to break.'

"'Here they come!' calls Ace. 'Break starboard—now!'

"I haul back on the stick and jerk my Spit into a blackout turn to the right, hurling headon into the Hun attack. Now it's the Hun's turn to break. He does, breaking upward, giving me one short squirt with my cannons at his mottled belly as he runs back into the sun.

"'Okay, Joe; rejoin formation. There'll be another day tomorrow.' That's Ace's way of reminding me my job is not to leave the carriers unprotected.

"The boys who deserve the credit are those down below who sweat it out in transports with nothing between them and the Luftwaffe but a couple of fighter escorts. We Spitfire boys have guns; all the transport lads have is guts."

Rangoon Casualties Heavy

New York, Jan. 16 (AP)—More than 1,000 Burmese men and women were killed or wounded during an Allied air raid on Rangoon in Burma December 20, a German broadcast of Tokyo dispatches recorded by the Associated Press said tonight. The broadcast said the casualties were announced in a communique issued in Rangoon.

4 New Jap Battleships?

New York, Jan. 16—The Associated Press tonight recorded a German radio broadcast of a Tokyo dispatch that four new Japanese battleships would be in service by March or April.

This perhaps was a new reference to the "certain number of powerful battleships" which a Japanese naval spokesman said December 7 had been placed in commission since the beginning of the war.

Wake Island Fall Shocks Officer, Last To Depart

JAN 17 1943

New York, Jan. 16 (AP)—Lieut. Col. Walter L. Bayler, the last marine to leave Wake Island before the Japanese conquered it, said today that he was "shocked" to learn later that the island had fallen forty hours later after his departure.

"It must have taken a hell of a lot of Japs because the marines had beaten them off before," he said in an interview at the Navy Public Relations Office here.

The Colonel, whose home is in Lebanon, Pa., said he "left a bunch of happy, well-fed marines" on the island on December 21, 1941, when he departed in a navy patrol plane.

WRITER ESCAPED MANY DISASTERS

John Nixon, Resting in New York, Has Been in Thick of Fighting.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Day by day, you read the news of this war being fought the world over, but the dangers and hardships of the reporters who write the accounts seldom are evident. Call it luck or fate, some are wounded, killed or captured; others live to carry on their invaluable work of keeping people informed. Read this vivid story about John Nixon, Reuters naval correspondent, who after many battle experiences is now enroute to the fighting in North Africa.)

By JOHN FERRIS

REUTER'S NAVAL

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—(AP) A splotch of dried blood engaged the eye of John Nixon, naval war correspondent of Reuters, the British news agency, when he boarded the flagship of the squadron convoying a fleet of merchant ships to Malta last March.

On a previous voyage a bomb splinter had ripped through a man standing on the spot.

"This will be my battle station," Nixon said lightly to an officer. "Another man won't be killed on the same spot."

As it turned out, Nixon was lucky, he momentarily forgot his prophetic impulse.

The squadron of light cruisers and destroyers met the Italian battle fleet and undoubtedly would have suffered a terrific defeat had not the admiral, with rare skill and daring, pitched into the enemy.

It was a hot fight. In the excitement, Nixon moved away from the bloodstain. Minutes later a shell from off the starboard bow tore through the bridge and exploded, killing a number of men, the one nearest to Nixon only five feet away. Fragments of the shell whistled over the bloodstain.

Often Close to Death

This, Nixon thinks, is fairly typical of his luck, since on two similar occasions he was on the bridge of warships when men were killed nearby and once was on a ship which was torpedoed with a loss of 150 lives.

On the other hand, Nixon's luck in the matter of transportation, a problem imposed by the shifting battle scene, has been variable. That is why he is in New York today.

A tall, slender Englishman of 32, Nixon was in Alexandria, Egypt, when the London office of Reuters cabled him to get to the Tunisian front, just 1,200 miles from there as quickly as he could.

Sitting in Alexandria, Nixon, who was in the British raid on Tobruk last September when Larry Allen, Associated Press correspondent, was captured by the Italians, contemplated a fairly quick journey to the western Mediterranean by plane or ship.

After all, less than a year ago he had flown from Gibraltar to Alexandria by bomber.

But the Allied invasion of North Africa and the swift concentration of Axis troops in Tunisia had altered situation. A plane was out of the question. There was a ship and Nixon took that and was half way to Malta when a mishap forced him to return to Alexandria.

Long Way Around

That's why he's here now, en route to a battlefront by the devious route of west coast of Africa to New York, England, Gibraltar and Tunisia—some 12,000 miles by plane instead of 1,200.

He's going back to Africa slightly weakened from malaria, contracted in West Africa. Malaria felled him as all the hazards of his job—shells, bombs and torpedoes—had failed to do.

JAN 17 1943

Nixon, a native of Trowbridge, Wiltshire, in the western part of England, joined Reuters eight years ago. He was accredited to the army, navy and air force when the war started and was in the battleship Prince of Wales when British naval units tracked down and sank the German battleship Bismarck in the North Atlantic in the late spring of 1941.

There again he was lucky. He had put his luggage aboard the Prince of Wales. A couple of days before sailing he had had tea with the admiral in his flagship, the Hood, and in the ordinary course of events would have shifted to the Hood. But the ships sailed hurriedly and Nixon stayed in the Prince of Wales.

He was on the bridge when a salvo hit and sank the Hood only 250 yards away. He was still on the bridge when another German shell passed near him and killed several men.

Before that historic sea battle he had gone to Norway on the first British Commando raid on the Lofoten islands.

He was at Gibraltar when the aircraft carrier Ark Royal was torpedoed. Boarding a destroyer, Nixon sped to the scene and gave the world a first hand running account of the ship's last moments. He also took part in the bombardment of Rhodes and in numerous Mediterranean engagements.

"When you're aboard a ship in the Mediterranean you can expect anything," he said. "You sail out of Alexandria or one of the other bases and anything can get you—submarines, other ships, or planes carrying bombs and torpedoes.

"You put on your tin hat and your Mae West life-belt and stand on the bridge from 8 in the morning until 9 at night, living usually on tea and sandwiches. You have rubber plugs in your ears because the guns often fire on the planes before you see them and the blast would break your eardrums. The guns just forward of the bridge are often turned to fire aft. Pointed in that direction, the flame from the muzzles shoots up right past your face."

Nixon's story of the raid on Tobruk brought a special tribute from the British Broadcasting corporation's editorial board which voted it "one of the very best essays in the dangerous art of being a war correspondent that the BBC had received."

Nixon's luck was with him on that assignment.

And this good luck was Allen's bad luck.

"Usually naval correspondents are told to be at a certain point to leave on a trip,' he said. "On this occasion, we were told to go at 8 p. m. to the fleet press office. When we got there we couldn't get any clue from the naval commander in charge of correspondents as to what this expedition was about. The United Press man already had gone off in a motor launch and we didn't know where."

They left the office and were taken to a motor boat where they met an officer who had a piece of paper bearing the names of Allen and Nixon and two destroyers, the Zulu and the Sikh.

"He told us to get into the motor boat," Nixon continued. "The boat was packed with men in khaki and we knew something extraordinary was afoot. The harbor was dark as we moved out. We came alongside the black hulk of a warship and Larry started up the ladder, when a man at the head flashed a torch and said, 'Zulu.'

"I caught hold of Larry's leg and said, 'I think, Larry, the paper said I was to go in the Zulu and you in the Sikh.' Larry said, 'Oh, what difference does it make?' I said, 'we'd better stick to our instructions, though it makes no difference to me.'

"So Larry got back into the launch, I climbed on board the Zulu, and the launch disappeared into the night taking Larry to the Sikh. That was the last time I saw Larry.

"The wardroom of the Zulu was filled with royal marines in battle dress. None of them knew what was going to happen. We sailed early in the morning and later the captain explained the plan to me. The Zulu and the Sikh were to take the marines to Tobruk and land them to smash the shore installations.

"When we neared Tobruk we received a signal saying certain shore batteries had been put out of action by men landed from motor torpedo boats. We went on loading marines into small landing craft we had lashed to the deck. They were put over the side and went off to make for a little place of beach 50 yards wide."

British bombers, meanwhile, had been hammering at munitions dumps and large fires were burning. Then searchlights ashore began sweeping the sea and the shore batteries opened up.

Before long the Sikh was hit.

"The next hour was the most terrifying I have ever experienced," Nixon went on. "With searchlights on us, we edged to the disabled Sikh to take her in tow. And then shells began hitting us. One crashed into the bridge not far from where I was standing and I moved to the other side."

Shot Parted Tow Line

Under the terrific fire the tow line was made fast, and then an almost unbelievable thing happened. A shell parted the tow line. The work of getting a new line aboard was begun and this continued until daylight, the two destroyers sitting only a mile offshore like ducks in the water.

Finally, things got too hot and the Zulu had to leave or meet the fate of the battered Sikh.

Allen was captured either ashore—if he had landed with the marines—or was taken prisoner with the surviving members of the Sikh's crew.

JAN 17 1943

The Zulu's people knew they were in for it now.

Junkers and Stukas appeared around 9 a. m., pursued the ship and kept up the attack in relays for hours with hardly a let-up. The Zulu squirmed and dodged as best she could until Naval help arrived.

THE ALGERIAN PRESS, HOWEVER, HAS NOT YET BEEN PERMITTED TO MENTION THE IMPENDING AGREEMENT OF GEN. HENRI GIRAUD AND GEN. CHARLES DEGAULLE, NOR EVEN THAT THE LEADERS FAVOR SUCH A UNION.

JAN 17 1943

IT ALSO IS UNDERSTOOD THAT THERE HAS BEEN SOME HOUSE-CLEANING OF PRO-AXIS OFFICIALS WITH MORE ON THE WAY, BUT [redacted] THAT SUCH HOUSE-CLEANING ~~X~~ HAD TO BE GRADAL TO AVOID UPSETTING THE [redacted] INTERNAL ADMINISTRATION AND HINDERING THE WAR EFFORT.

AMONG ONE OF THE CHANGES MENTIONED IS THE REPLACEMENT OF YVES CHATEL, GOVERNOR ~~X~~ GENERAL OF ALGERIA, WITH MARCEL PEYROUTIN, VICHY AMBASSADOR TO ARGENTINA, WHO IS REPORTED ON HIS WAY HERE.

WHETHER THIS CHANGE IS OF A TYPE PLEASING TO THE ALLIES IS A MATTER OF CONJECTURE, SINCE BOTH ARE DYED POLITICALLY WITH THE SAME VICHY BRUSH.

JAN 17 1943

AUTHORITATIVE SOURCES ~~XX~~ FLATLY DENIED FOREIGN REPORTS THAT THERE HAD BEEN ANY RIFT BETWEEN AMERICANS AND BRITISH OVER WHO ~~X~~ SHOULD BE TOP MAN IN THE FRENCH ADMINISTRATION, OR THAT THE BRITISH WERE PRESSING FOR DE GAULLE AND WASHINGTON FOR GIRAUD, AS PUT FORTH IN ONE REPORT.

WHO SHALL BE TOP MAN IS UP TO THE TWO LEADERS THEMSELVES, IT IS EMPHASIZED JAN 17 1943

IT ALSO IS POINTED OUT THAT THE FIELD OUTSIDE FRANCE IS "TOO SMALL" TO PICK PERMANENT LEADERS TO DECIDE THE FATE OF THE FRENCH, WHICH ONLY THE 40,000,000 IN FRANCE [redacted] CAN DO.

ONE OF THE FACTORS IN THE FINAL AGREEMENT BETWEEN DE GAULLE AND GIRAUD IS THE ATTITUDE OF GOV. GENERAL PIERRE BOISSON, OF FRENCH WEST AFRICA WHO LIKELY REMEMBERS THE FIGHTING FRENCH ATTACK ON DAKAR, CORRESPONDENTS ~~X~~ WERE TOLD THAT BECAUSE SOME FRENCH OFFICERS ARE FIGHTING IN TUNISIA AGAINST THE AXIS AND HATE THE GERMANS AND VICHY, IT IS NO SIGN THAT THEY FAVOR DE GAULLE, FOR A CONSIDERABLE PERCENTAGE OF OFFICERS IN NORTH AFRICA FOUGHT IN SYRIA AND DAKAR.

JAN 17 1943

ON THE OTHER HAND, WHILE GIRAUD HAS THE LARGE SUPPORT

OF NORTH AFRICA, XX "IT IS RECOGNIZED" THAT IN FRANCE DEGAULLE AS THE SYMBOL OF RESISTANCE TO THE AXIS HAS A LARGE FOLLOWING AMONG THOSE WHO WEAR THE CROSS OF LORRAINE. JAN 17 1943

WITH BRITISH FORCES AT BOU-ARADA, TUNISIA, JAN. 14—(DELAYED)—(AP)—FICKLE WINTER WEATHER HELPED BALK [redacted] THE EFFORTS OF BRITISH INFANTRY AND TANKS

30.24—385

YESTERDAY TO STORM "TWO THREE HILLS", AN IMPORTANT PIECE OF HIGH GROUND IN A [redacted] SOUTH OF DJEBELLAT PLAIN.

IN THE FOURTH DAY OF SHARP FIGHTING FOR CONTROL OF THIS AREA SOUTH OF MEDJEZ-EL-BAB THE WEATHER VEERED FROM A BLOWING RAINSTORM INTERSPERSED WITH HAIL TO BRIGHT CLEAR SUNLIGHT.

DESPITE THE DIFFICULTIES THE TANKS AND HEAVY FIELD GUNS POURED HIGH EXPLOSIVES INTO THE GERMAN POSITIONS AND THE INFANTRY ENDED THE DAY IN AN IMPROVED POSITION. JAN 17 1943

IN THE THREE PRECEDING DAYS OF THE BATTLE THE BRITISH DROVE THE GERMANS FROM POSITIONS WEST OF THE DJEBELLAT ROAD AND THEN FROM A DOUBLE RIDGE EAST OF THE ROAD FROM WHICH THE BRITISH IN TURN LAUNCHED THEIR ATTACK AT DAWN YESTERDAY.

FROM A SCOOPED-OUT HOLE ON THE RIDGE, WHICH WAS AN ALLIED OUTPOST BEFORE THE ATTACK, IT WAS POSSIBLE TO GET A PANORAMIC VIEW OF THE BATTLE WHICH WAS TAKING PLACE A LITTLE LESS THAN TWO MILES AWAY.

WHEN THE ORDERS TO WITHDRAW WERE GIVEN SMOKE SHELLS FROM ADVANCE BATTERIES CUT STREAMERS ACROSS THE SKY AND FELL INTO A POSITION WHERE A STRONG WIND TOOK THE BILLOWING WHITE SMOKE UP THE SLOPE IN TWO ENVELOPING STREAMS.

JAN 17 1943

WHEN THE WITHDRAWAL STARTED THREE GERMAN MORTARS SHOOTING FROM SOMEWHERE ON THE FAR SLOPE PUT THREE SHELLS IN TRIANGULAR BURSTS IN THE TANK AREA, BUT WITHOUT VISIBLY DAMAGING THE TANKS.

WHILE THE SHOW WAS GOING ON RAIN POURED ON ME IN SHEETS AND HAILSTONES THE SIZE OF BB SHOTS BOUNCED OFF MY HELMET.

AT THE FIRST LIGHT THE TANKS, WHICH HAD TO CHOOSE THEIR GROUND WITH THE CARE OF A LADY IN DANCING SLIPPERS, IN ORDER TO AVOID THE DANGER OF BOGGING DOWN, RUMBLED THROUGH THE VALLEY AND UP THE SLOPES HELD BY THE GERMANS. UNDER COVER OF ARTILLERY PREPARATION THE INFANTRY FOLLOWED.

THREE AMERICAN-BUILT GEN. GRANT TANKS WERE GIVEN THE DIFFICULT TASK OF GOING AROUND TO CLIMB THE HILL FROM THE REAR. TWO WERE KNOCKED OUT BY A NAZI 88 MILLIMETER GUN, AND THE THIRD [redacted] WAS HIT AND HAD TO RETIRE. BUT CAREFULLY DIRECTED ARTILLERY FIRE SILENCED THE GUN.

JAN 17 1943

BRITISH VALENTINE TANKS THEN CLIMBED HIGH UP THE HILL AND FIRED FIRE AT THE GERMANS AND STAYED THERE MOST OF THE DAY UNTIL WITHDRAWN UNDER A SMOKE SCREEN. TOWARD THE END OF THE [redacted] AS THE INFANTRY WITHDREW BEHIND BARBED WIRE THE GERMANS WERE STILL SILENT FROM THE EFFECT OF THE ATTACK. SOME BRITISH CASUALTIES WERE CAUSED DURING THE DAY FROM HEAVY MACHINEGUN FIRE.

BY NOLAND NORGAARD

A FORWARD U.S. FIGHTER BASE IN TUNISIA, JAN. 16-(AP)-THE CREAM OF THE LUFTWAFFE--- MESSERSCHMITT FIGHTERS BEARING YELLOW NOSE EMBLEMS OF FAMED GERMAN SQUADRONS AND THE WHITE NOSED FOCKE-WULF 190'S ALMOST EQUALLY FAMOUS-- SLASHED TWICE AT THIS ADVANCED AMERICAN AIR BASE IN TUNISIA YESTERDAY.

THE TWO ATTACKS COMING WITHIN THREE HOURS CLIMAXED A WEEK OF REPEATED BOMBING AND STRAFING RAIDS INTENDED TO KNOCK OUT THE HITTING POWER OF THE AMERICAN P-40 FIGHTER SQUADRON, WHOSE AUDACIOUS FORAYS HAVE TAKEN A HEAVY TOLL OF AXIS AIR AND GROUND FORCES IN SOUTHERN TUNISIA.

JAN 17 1943

EACH TIME THEY WERE BEATEN OFF BY VIGILANT U.S. P-40 PILOTS PACED BY MAJOR PHILIP G.COCHRAN OF ERIE, PENNA., AND THEIR FELLOW WARRIORS OF THE FRENCH LAFAYETTE ESCADRILLE.

THE SECOND AND HEAVIEST ONSLAUGHT CAME ALMOST AS A PARTING SALUTE TO A.J. LIEBLING, CORRESPONDENT OF THE NEW YORKER MAGAZINE, AND MYSELF.

TWO BIG TRANSPORT PLANES HAD ARRIVED DURING THE MORNING, LOADED WITH WELCOME MAIL FROM HOME FOR THE AIRMEN

30.24-387

AND GROUND CREWS RUNNING THIS LONELY OUTPOST OF ALLIED AIR MIGHT, AND WE HAD DECIDED TO LEAVE ON ONE OF THEM. SO WE MOVED OUT WITH OUR BAGGAGE IN A JEEP AND PARKED BETWEEN THE TWO BIG PLANES.

A STIFF WIND WAS KICKING UP HEAVY CLOUDS OF DUST AND OUR FIRST WARNING THAT THE ENEMY HAD COME FOR A SECOND TIME WAS THE JARRING ROAR OF A BOMB EXPLODING A FEW HUNDRED YARDS AWAY AND THE ALMOST SIMULTANEOUS ROAR OF ANTI-AIRCRAFT BATTERIES WHICH RING THE FIELD.

OUR JEEP DRIVER, MAJOR ROBERT H. CHRISTMAN OF (40 WASHINGTON ST) NEW YORK, WAS THE FIRST TO MOVE. HE MUTTERED A SINGLE PROFANE WORD, JUMPED, EX AND RAN FOR ONE OF THE SLIT TRENCHES IN THE NEARBY BRUSH. LIEBLING FOLLOWED HIM.

JAN 17 1943

I PUT LESS TRUST IN MY LEGS AND DIVED UNDER THE JEEP, WHERE I WAS PROMPTLY JOINED BY LIEUT. L.A. CRAWFORD, A TRANSPORT PILOT FROM CLINTON, S. C.

WE WERE JUST IN TIME. WITH A HIGH-PITCHED WHINE A FOCKE-WULF 190 BORE DOWN AT US. CRAWFORD AND I COULD NOT SEE IT FROM UNDER THE JEEP, BUT WE SAW ALL TOO WELL THE PATH OF ITS EXPLOSIVE 16 MM CANNON SHELLS NOW-MARKING A PATCH ALONGSIDE OUR TRANSPORT PLANE ABOUT 30 FEET FROM WHERE WE LAY.

JAN 17 19

IT WAS GONE IN AN INSTANT, BUT TWO MORE RAIDERS SHOT IN, REPEATING THE PERFORMANCE ON EITHER SIDE OF US. I WAS PAINFULLY CONSCIOUS OF THAT PORTION OF MY BODY FROM WAIST DOWN WHICH PROTRUDED FROM BENEATH OUR COVER, AND WAS TRYING MANFULLY TO CRAWL FARTHER UNDER THE JEEP WHEN I REALIZED I WAS ALONE. CRAWFORD HAD UTILIZED A MOMENTARY LULL TO RUN FOR THE SLIT TRENCHES A HUNDRED YARDS AWAY.

I DIDN'T RELISH BEING ALONE SO I SCRAMBLED TO MY FEET AND GALLOPED OFF TO DIVE INTO THE FIRST DUGOUT I SAW. WE BOTH MIGHT AS WELL HAVE SAVED OUR ENERGY, FOR BY THEN AMERICAN AND FRENCH PILOTS IN P-40'S WERE MIXING WITH THE ENEMY RAIDERS IN A HALF DOZEN DOG-FIGHTS.

THE NAZIS QUICKLY BROKE OFF THE ENGAGEMENT NA AND FLED, BUT ONLY AFTER WE WATCHED A P-40 SUDDENLY SPIN TOWARD THE GROUND, pounds number of

SMOKE POURING FROM ITS MOTOR. THE SUDDEN TIGHT FEELING IN MY THROAT EASED WHEN A PARACHUTE BLOSSOMED ABOVE THE DIVING AIRCRAFT, AND ITS PILOT FLOATED SAFELY WITH A GENTLE BREEZE, LANDING MORE THAN A MILE AWAY.

JAN 17 1943

WE WATCHED THE TRANSPORT PILOTS LOOKING OVER THEIR PLANES AND LEARNED WITH RELIEF THAT NEITHER CRAFT HAD SUFFERED BEYOND A FEW BULLET AND CANNON-SHELL FRAGMENT HOLES.

FRENCH PILOTS OF THE LAFAYETTE ESCADRILLE, IN FIGHTING THEIR FIRST MAJOR ENGAGEMENT WITH THE LUFTWAFFE SINCE THE 1940 BATTLE FOR FRANCE, BEAT BACK THE GERMANS' FIRST ATTACK OF THE DAY AT BREAKFAST TIME. STARTING FROM THE GREEN FIELD LIKE ANGRY HORNETS, THE FRENCH P-40 PILOTS BROKE UP AN INCIPIENT STAFING ATTACK.

THEIR INITIAL SUCCESS WAS NOT WITHOUT ITS PRICE, HOWEVER. ONE OF THEIR P-40'S WAS RIDDLED BY GERMAN CANNON SHELL AFTER IT HAD DAMAGED A MESSERSCHMITT 109. IT LANDED NEAR THE FIELD, AND ANOTHER CAME LIMPING BACK, ITS PILOT MAKING A SAFE LANDING. JAN 17 1943

THE TWO ATTACKS CAME AS A FITTING END TO OUR WEEK IN THIS HOTTEST OF TUNISIAN HOT SPOTS. AT DUSK THE EVENING BEFORE, WE HAD WITNESSED ONE OF THE MOST MAGNIFICENT SPECTACLES OF THIS WAR--A SAFE NIGHT LANDING ON THIS UNLIGHTED FIELD BY DAREDEVIL AMERICAN P-40 PILOTS WHO HAD DESTROYED THREE OF THE SIX JUNKERS 88 BOMBERS WHICH MADE A DUSK BOMBING RAID.

PLAYING ONE OF HIS UNCANNY HUNCHES WHICH HAD BECOME HIGHLY RESPECTED AMONG HIS FELLOW PILOTS, MAJOR COCHRAN, PICTURESQUE PILOT WHO ALTERNATES BETWEEN LEADING THE SQUADRONS IN HIS COMMAND IN COMBAT AND DIRECTING OPERATIONS FROM THIS FIELD, HAD TAKEN OFF A FEW MINUTES BEFORE THE RAIDERS ARRIVED, AND IN HIS OWN WORDS "WERE JUST STOOGING AROUND WAITING FOR THE GERMANS BECAUSE I HAD A FEELING THEY WOULD COME."

COCHRAN CHASED ONE OF THE JUNKERS MANY MILES BEFORE IT FELL BEFORE HIS FIRE. LIEUT.JOHN BENT OF PITTSFORD, N.Y., THREW ANOTHER JUNKERS AND SAW IT HIT THE GROUND AND EXPLODE. JAN 17 1943

LIEUT.JOHN A.THOMAS, JR., OF ADA, OKLAHOMA, WHO RECENTLY WON A FRENCH CITATION FOR HIS EFFECTIVE STRAFING OF GERMAN TROOPS AND TANKS, WAS CREDITED WITH THE DESTRUCTION OF A THIRD JUNKERS AFTER HE PURSUED IT OVER 30 MILES AND EXHAUSTED HIS AMMUNITION.

WITH ADVANCE RAF FIGHTERS IN THE WESTERN DESERT OF LIBYA, JAN. 8-(DELAYED)-(AP)-LIFE IN THIS DESERT GHOST TOWN RECALLS THE TALES OLD-TIMERS TELL OF SILVER CITY, NEV., AND OTHER FORSAKEN BOOM TOWNS OF THE OLD AMERICAN WEST WHERE EVERY MAN CARRIED THE LAW ON HIS HIP.

THE MAIN DIFFERENCE IS THAT THE SHOOTING NOW COMES FROM MESSERSCHMITTS AND ANSWERING GROUND FIRE--NOT FROM SAM COLT'S OLD EQUALIZER.

WHEN THE GERMANS COME OVER FOR RECONNAISSANCE OR TO BOMB AND STRAFE US THREE AND FOUR TIMES A DAY, ALL BUT THE ACK-ACK CREWS KNOCK OFF WORK AND DIVE FOR FOXHOLES AND SLIT TRENCHES.

THESE INTERRUPTIONS SOMETIMES HAVE INTERESTING CONSEQUENCES.

WHEN THE JERRIES WERE MAKING THEIR FIRST RAID THIS MORNING, CAPT. WALLACE W.BARR, OF LAKEVILLE, CONN., A DENTIST, WAS JUST GIVING PRIVATE EDWARD HELWIG, OF (6013 70TH AVE.) THE RIDGEWOOD SECTION OF BROOKLYN, A SHOT OF NOVOCAINE.

CAPT.BARR TOLD ME THAT HE SAID, "HELWIG, IF THE SIREN STARTS, DON'T GET IN MAY WAY," AND THAT HELWIG ANSWERED, "I WON'T, SIR."

"JUST THEN THE WARNING CAME," CAPT.BARR SAID, "AND HE WENT OUT THE FRONT DOOR WHILE I WENT OUT BACK TO JUMP INTO A TRENCH. IN ALL, I HAD GIVEN HELWIG (WHO IS A COOK) FOUR SHOTS OF NOVOCAINE BEFORE I COULD GET THAT TOOTH OUT." JAN 17 1943

JUST AS I STARTED TO SPEAK TO HIM, ACK-ACK ALL OVER THE DESERT BROKE OUT IN A DEEP-THROATED BARRAGE AND I DIVED HEAD-FIRST INTO A TRENCH AND BURIED MY HEAD IN THE SAND WHILE THE GROUND SHOOK.

FOR A MOMENT I PEEPED OVER THE TRENCH AT THE COOK'S TENT, BUT NELNIC WASN'T THERE. HE WAS 10 FEET AWAY WITH A BIG GRIN, MANNING A .50-CALIBER MACHINE GUN WHICH WAS SENDING SCORCHING TRACERS AT THE MESSERSCHMITTS.

A FEW MINUTES LATER WHEN THE SHOW WAS OVER HE SAID, "WE HIT THAT ONE."

SHAKING THE DUST OUT OF MY HAIR, EYES, MOUTH AND EARS, I RAN INTO CAPT.CHARLES H.LOGUE, THE CATHOLIC CHAPLAIN, WHOSE HOME IS (2949 EAST DERBYSHIRE ROAD) IN CLEVELAND, OHIO, STANDING CALMLY BY A TRUCK WITH HIS STEEL HELMET DANGLING IN HIS HAND AND NOT A HAIR OUT OF PLACE.

JAN 17 1943

FATHER LOGUE HAS BEEN IN THE ARMY AIR FORCE FOR TWO YEARS. HE ENTERED FROM SAINT COLUMBA (CQ) CHURCH, YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO.

"I LIKE TO WATCH THE WAY THE BOYS REACT TO THESE RAIDS," HE TOLD ME. "SEE THAT BIG FELLOW THERE. THAT'S STAFF SERGEANT JOSEH MEKAILEK, OF (107 SIXTH STREET) FRACKVILLE, PA. SOME TIME AGO, HE PICKED UP A HANDFUL OF CAPTURED CHEVRONS FROM OTHER NON-COMMISSIONED OFFERS IN THE GERMAN ARMY. HE HAS BEEN WEARING THE INSIGNIA ON HIS SLEEVE FOR WEEKS.

"DURING THE RAID JUST NOW I LOOKED UP AND SAW HIM FRANTICALLY RIPPING THE CHEVRONS OFF HIS UNIFORM AND THROWING THEM AWAY. I YELLED AND ASKED HIM WHAT WAS THE MATTER WITH HIM.

"HE YELLED BACK 'FATHER, I NEVER WANT TO WEAR THESE THINGS AGAIN. THEY'RE BAD LUCK. THE BULLETS WERE CUTTING UP DUST ALL AROUND THE TRENCH AND I GOT RID OF THEM JUST IN TIME.'.."

(EDITOR'S NOTE: THE FOLLOWING DELAYED REPORT FROM NORMAN BELL, ASSOCIATED PRESS REPORTER WITH THE FLEET IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, IS A DIRECT ACCOUNT OF THE SHELLING OF THE JAPANESE-HELD MUNDA AIRFIELD BY U.S.NAVAL SURFACE UNITS. THE ACTION OCCURRED JAN.5, AND WAS REPORTED BRIEFLY TWO DAYS LATER BY THE NAVY DEPARTMENT AT WASHINGTON.

BY NORMAN BELL

WITH THE U.S.FLEET IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, JAN.5-(DELAYED)-(AP)-. UNITED STATES WARSHIPS CARRIED THE FIGHT DEFINITELY TO THE JAPS IN THE EARLY HOURS OF THIS MORNING BY THRUSTING 200 MILES NORTHWEST OF BLOODY GUADALCANAL AND SHELLING THE JAPANESE-HELD AIR FIELD AT MUNDA, ON NEW GEORGIA ISLAND.

JAN 17 1943

WITH FLAMES SPURTING AND THE CRASHES OF NAVAL GUNS PUNCTURING THE NIGHT WITH SALVO AFTER SALVO OF DESTRUCTION, THIS ACTION COULD WELL MARK THE BEGINNING OF THE 1943 VICTORY OFFENSIVE PREDICTED BY VICE-ADMIRAL WILLIAM F.HALSEY, COMMANDER OF THE FLEET IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC.

MUNDA, AS A SIMPLE RECKONING FROM THE MAP WILL SHOW, MIGHT LOGICALLY BE THE NEXT STEP BEYOND GUADALCANAL IN PUSHING HIROHITO'S HORDES FROM THEIR FOOTHOLDS IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC.

THE EXTENT OF THE DAMAGE DONE BY THE SHELLING OF MUNDA IS NOT KNOWN, BUT IT WAS BELIEVED THAT ANTI-AIRCRAFT BATTERIES, SET UP BY THE JAPANESE IN AN EFFORT TO WARD OFF REPEATED BOMBER RAIDS BY U.S. ARMY AND NAVY PLANES, HAD BEEN DEMOLISHED.

EVEN AS THE NAVY SHATTERED THE SILENCE OF THE TROPICAL NIGHT WITH ITS BOMBARDMENT, ARMY REINFORCEMENTS FROM THE SOUTH PACIFIC COMMAND POURED ASHORE FROM TRANSPORTS AT GUADALCANAL.

WITH THE COMING OF DAYLIGHT THE JAPANESE AT MUNDA ATTEMPTED TO STRIKE BACK AT THE RETIRING NAVAL FORCE BUT WERE MET BY CARRIER-BASED GRUMMAN WILDCAT FIGHTERS WHICH SHOT DOWN SEVERAL ENEMY DIVE-BOMBERS.

THIS ATTEMPTED COUNTER-BLOW FROM THE AIR FIELD FIZZLED OUT BEFORE IT REACHED OTHER UNITED STATES SURFACE UNITS CRUISING NEAR GUADALCANAL WITH GUNS MANNED AND CREWS PRAYING FOR BATTLE WITH PLANES OR SHIPS--PREFERABLY THE LATTER.

JAN 17 1943

AN OBSERVER EXPRESSED THE GENERAL SENTIMENT IN REPORTING FROM HIS MAST-TOP POST A "CONTACT" BY SAYING: "WE HOPE IT'S A SURFACE FORCE. WE WANT A LITTLE OPPOSITION."

BUT THE CONTACT TURNED OUT TO BE ONLY TWO JAPANESE KAWANAISHI FOUR MOTORED FLYING BOATS WHICH KEPT WELL OUT OF GUN RANGE. THERE WAS NO FURTHER SIGN OF A FOLLOW-UP ACTION.

"THAT AIN'T THE WAY THEY USED TO BE," SAID ONE GUN CREW MEMBER. "MAYBE THEY DON'T LIKE US ANYMORE."

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA, JAN. 16 (AP)—GENERAL MACARTHUR AWARDED THE DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSS TODAY TO CORPORAL HAROLD L.MITCHELL OF ROUTE ONE, ORLEANS, IND., AND CONFERRED THE SAME DECORATION POSTHUMOUSLY ON CAPT.WILLIAM F.BOICE, WHOSE WIDOW, MRS. ZELMA BOICE, RESIDES IN SHIVELY, IND.

HIS CITATION SAID THAT WHEN JAPANESE TROOPS MADE A SURPRISE ATTACK ON HIS COMPANY'S BEACH POSITION HE CARRIED OUT A ONE-MAN BAYONET CHARGE AND SO SURPRISED AND DELAYED THE ENEMY THAT THE AMERICAN TROOPS GAINED SUFFICIENT TIME TO ASSUME BATTLE POSITIONS AND HALT THE ADVANCE.

JAN 17 1943

AMERICAN CASUALTIES UNDOUBTEDLY WOULD HAVE BEEN HEAVY EXCEPT FOR MITCHELL'S PROMPT ACTION, THE CITATION ADDED.

ON ANOTHER OCCASION MITCHELL VOLUNTEERED TO GO OUT IN ADVANCE OF THE FRONT LINES AND CAPTURED A WOUNDED ENEMY SOLDIER SO THAT ESSENTIAL INFORMATION COULD BE OBTAINED FROM THE PRISONER.

NEW YORK, JAN. 16-(AP)-TWO MONTHS OF RUSSIA'S SECOND WINTER COMEBACK DRIVE HAVE PROVED IT AS STEADY A GROUND-GAINER AS THE 1941-42 PUSHBACK FROM THE GATES OF MOSCOW--BUT BATTLES YET TO BE FOUGHT IN THE HOWLING STORMS OF THE NEXT TWO MONTHS STILL MUST DETERMINE WHETHER ITS GAINS ARE TO BE MORE THAN DEFENSIVE.

THE SCOPE OF THE ATTACK, FROM THE LATVIAN FRONTIER FARMLANDS TO THE FOOTHILLS OF THE DEEP CAUCASUS, HAS GIVEN PROMISE. SO, TOO, HAS THE FORCE OF THE ONSLAUGHT WHICH OVERWHELMED THE DEFENSES OF VELIKIE LUKI AND ROLLED THE NAZIS BACK ALONG THE TRUNK RAIL LINES OF THE MIDDLE DON AND CAUCASUS.

BUT THE SUCCESSES WHICH WILL HOLD THE KEY TO THE OUT

NEW YORK-1ST ADD RUSSIAN CAMPAIGN BY [illegible] XXXX AND CAUCASUS.

BUT THE SUCCESSES WHICH WILL HOLD THE KEY TO THE OUTCOME OF THE YEAR'S FIGHTING THAT IS AHEAD ARE TO BE WON MORE PROBABLY AT THE GREAT TESTING POINTS OF THE FRONT: ROSTOV, KHARKOV, KURSK, BRYANSK, SMOLENSK, VYAZMA AND RZHEV.

JAN 17 1943

WHO HOLDS THE MOST OF THESE WILL HOLD THE FORTRESS-GIRDLED CORES OF DEFENSE AND THE RAIL-SUPPLIED SPRINGBOARDS FOR ATTACK.

AND THIS WILL BE IMPORTANT WHETHER ADOLF HITLER EVER AGAIN IS ABLE TO UNLEASH A FULL SCALE OFFENSIVE IN THE EAST OR WILL BE LIMITED TO A HOLDING ACTION THERE BY THE MOUNTING PRESSURE OF THE ALLIED SECOND FRONT.

THE GREAT NAVAL BASE OF LENINGRAD WAS ONE OF SUCH KEY POINTS. THROUGH MONTHS OF SIEGE THE GERMANS FAILED TO BREAK THE DEFENSES WHICH ITS CITIZEN-SOLDIERS BUILT AND MANNED THROUGH THE FIRST FALL AND WINTER OF THE WAR. AND THAT FAILURE LEFT NAZI STRATEGY ASKEW AND SAVED MOSCOW'S NORTHERN FLANK.

JAN 17 1943

VELIKIE LUKI, 90 MILES FROM THE LATVIAN BORDER, WAS ANOTHER SUCH BASE. ITS CAPTURE BY THE RED ARMY A FORTNIGHT AGO GAVE THE RUSSIANS THE FLANKING POSITION WHICH MAY SEAL THE FATE OF RZHEV, VYAZMA AND SMOLENSK ON THE ROAD WHERE HITLER FOLLOWED NAPOLEON'S FOOTSTEPS TO WITHIN SIGHT OF THE SPIRED DOMES OF THE KREMLIN.

VORONEZH, WHERE THE DON TURNS EAST IN ITS GREAT BEND TOWARD THE VOLGA, WAS ANOTHER. THE GERMANS' FAILURE TO BREAK ITS DEFENSES BEFORE STORMING ACROSS THE MIDDLE DON STEPPES TO STALINGRAD LEFT THE RED ARMY IN FLANKING POSITION FOR ITS PRESENT OFFENSIVE.

STALINGRAD, TOO, WAS SUCH A KEY POINT, AND THERE AGAIN THE NAZI WAR MACHINE ROLLED TO A STOP SHORT OF ITS GOAL. BUT THE RUSSIANS WILL NOT HAVE SAFEGUARDED THIS WATCHDOG OF THE LOWER VOLGA UNTIL THEY HAVE WIPED OUT THE LAST OF 22 ENEMY DIVISIONS POCKETED IN THE 300-SQUARE-MILE TRAP BETWEEN THE VOLGA AND THE DON.

THAT IS THE FORCE HITLER HAS OFFERED UP TO THE WAR GODS OF THE REICH AS A SACRIFICE TO THE SLIM HOPE OF HOLDING OUT BEHIND THE RUSSIAN LINES FOR EVENTUAL RENEWAL OF THE GERMAN DRIVE.

THE OTHER KEY POINTS STILL ARE IN GERMAN HANDS. ROSTOV, GATEWAY TO THE CAUCASUS, IS PERHAPS THE MOST SHARPLY MENACED, WITH THE RED ARMY CLOSING IN HARD FROM THE NORTH AND EAST TO WITHIN 60 MILES OF THE BIG PORT WHICH HAS CHANGED HANDS THREE TIMES.

IF ROSTOV SHOULD FALL ONCE MORE TO THE RUSSIANS THEY WOULD HAVE WRESTED BACK OR CUT OFF THE BIGGEST BASE--THOUGH BY NO MEANS ALL OF THE LAND--WHICH THE GERMANS WON ON THE SOUTHERN FLANK IN THEIR MIGHTY SUMMER AND FALL OFFENSIVE LAST YEAR FROM THE DONETS BASIN STEEL CENTER OF KHARKOV.

JAN 17 1943

WHATEVER THE EVENTUAL COMPARISON IN TOTAL GROUND REGAINED, THIS AT LEAST WOULD HAVE ACCOMPLISHED IN THE SOUTH WHAT THE RUSSIANS WERE UNABLE TO DO ON THE CENTRAL FRONT IN THEIR WINTER OFFENSIVE A YEAR

THEN, FOR ALL THAT THEY SAVED MOSCOW AND ROLLED GERMAN SALIENTS BACK 100 TO 150 MILES IN SOME PLACES, THEY FAILED TO WIPE OUT THE NAZI STRONGPOINTS OF RZHEV AND VYAZMA WHICH REMAINED, AND STILL REMAIN, BASES FOR POTENTIAL ATTACK 130 MILES FROM THE SOVIET CAPITAL.

JAN 17 1943

THE OFFICIAL GERMAN EXPLANATION OF THE REVERSES OF THE PAST TWO MONTHS CAN HARDLY BE CONVINCING EVEN WITHIN THE REICH.

BERLIN COMMUNIQUES HAVE TOLD THE GERMAN PEOPLE OF ATTACKS BY NUMERICALLY SUPERIOR RED ARMY FORCES. BUT THIS IS THE RED ARMY WHICH HITLER, IN THE EASY OPTIMISM OF EARLIER SUCCESSES IN THE FIRST YEAR OF HIS WAR WITH RUSSIA, TOLD THE GERMAN PEOPLE HAD BEEN SMASHED BEYOND POWER EVER TO RISE AS A FIRST CLASS FIGHTING FORCE.

GERMAN PROPAGANDISTS ARE SPEAKING OF THE "ELASTIC DEFENSE" IN THE DON AND CAUCASUS COUNTRY. THEY GAVE A SIMILAR DESCRIPTION A YEAR AGO OF THE GERMAN RETREAT FROM THE SEMI-CIRCLE BEFORE MOSCOW. BUT THERE WAS NOTHING ELASTIC ABOUT THAT WITHDRAWAL. IT DID NOT SNAP BACK WHEN SPRING AND SUMMER CAME, AND THE RUSSIANS HELD THEIR GAINS.

FIGURES SOMETIMES LOSE PERSPECTIVE ON A FRONT AS VAST AND DISTANT AS THAT IN RUSSIA. BUT UP TO JAN. 7 THE SOVIET BUREAU OF INFORMATION HAD REPORTED 339,150 AXIS DEAD AND CAPTURED SINCE THE START OF THE COUNTER OFFENSIVE NOV. 19. MORE THOUSANDS HAVE BEEN ADDED SINCE. ALMOST 2,000 TOWNS AND VILLAGES HAVE BEEN REPORTED LIBERATED, WITH MORE LISTED IN EACH SUCCESSIVE COMMUNIQUE.

WHATEVER THE COMPARISON OF THIS TO THE FORCES ENGAGED AND THE TERRITORY INVOLVED, THE GERMANS APPARENTLY ARE BEING STAGGERED ONCE MORE BY THE FURY OF A WINTER OFFENSIVE FOR WHICH THE NAZI FUEHRER PROMISED HIS PEOPLE THAT THIS TIME HE WAS FULLY PREPARED.

THIS IS THE BATTLE LINE FROM WHICH THE FIGHTING OF THE NEXT TWO CRUCIAL MONTHS WILL DEVELOP:

JAN 17 1943

FROM THE GULF OF FINLAND THE RUSSIANS HAVE PUSHED THE SEMI-CIRCLE BACK WELL BEYOND ARTILLERY SHOT OF LENINGRAD, FREEING ALL BUT A SHORT STRETCH OF THE MAIN RAIL LINE TO THE SOUTHEAST THROUGH VOLKHOVO TO KALININ AND MOSCOW.

FROM THE VOLKHOVO REGION THE LINE EXTENDS SOUTH PAST STARAYA RUSSA, STILL IN GERMAN HANDS, TO THE WEDGE WESTWARD PAST VELIKIE LUKI AND NOVOSOKOLNIKI, 70 MILES FROM LATVIA.

MIDWAY BETWEEN VELIKIE LUKI AND RZHEV, WHICH IS 150 MILES ALMOST DUE EAST, ANOTHER RUSSIAN SPEARHEAD HAD STRUCK SOUTH TO BELY, SOME 80 MILES NORTHEAST OF THE BIG NAZI BASE AT SMOLENSK.

ALTHOUGH RZHEV AND VYAZMA, 70 MILES FARTHER SOUTH, STILL ARE NAZI STRONGHOLDS, THE RUSSIANS HAVE THRUST BETWEEN THEM, CUTTING THE RZHEV-VYAZMA RAIL LINE AND LEAVING RZHEV EXPOSED FROM THREE SIDES.

FROM VYAZMA THE LINE SLANTS SOUTHEAST PAST BRYANSK AND OREL, BOTH IN GERMAN HANDS, TO THE VORONEZH AREA. THERE THE RED ARMY HAS PUSHED THE GERMAN LINE BACK FROM THE DON IN A SHALLOW BULGE SOME 150 MILES NORTHEAST OF KHARKOV.

JAN 17 1943

THE LINE CURVES INTO THE CORNER OF THE UKRAINE SOUTH OF ROSSOSH AND WEST OF CHERTKOVO. IT FOLLOWS DOWN THE MOSCOW-ROSTOV TRUNK RAIL LINE, PARTLY ENCIRCLING MILLEROVO AND BENDING EAST TO THE BANK OF THE DONETS RIVER 20 MILES SOUTHEAST OF KAMENSK.

THERE A GERMAN SALIENT STILL JUTS ACROSS THE MIDDLE DON STEPPES TOWARD THE DON BEND. IN ONE PLACE THE RUSSIANS HAVE REPORTED THEIR FORCES WITHIN 30 MILES OF A JUNCTURE THAT WOULD PINCH OFF THIS SALIENT NEAR THE CHIR RIVER. THE SALIENT ALREADY IS CUT OFF FROM THE NAZI FORCES HEMMED IN BEFORE STALINGRAD.

THE SALIENT IS FLANKED ON THE SOUTH BY RUSSIAN FORCES WHICH HAVE PUSHED DOWN BOTH SIDES OF THE LOWER DON TO WITHIN 60 MILES OF ROSTOV. SOUTH OF THE DON THE RUSSIAN LINE BENDS BACK THROUGH ORLOVKA AND KUBERLE, WHERE IT CROSSES THE NORTHERN CAUCASUS RAILWAY, TO THE EASTERN END OF THE BIG WASTELAND LAKE BETWEEN SALSK AND ELISTA IN THE KALMYCK STEPPES.

HERE THE GERMANS STILL HOLD A BULGE TO THE EAST, BUT THE LINE CURVES BACK NORTH OF BUDENNOVSK TO THE ALEKSANDROVSKOE SECTION, THEN SOUTH TO THE ROSTOV-BAKU TRUNK RAILWAY 25 MILES NORTHWEST OF MINERALNYE VODY, AND FROM THERE ON INTO THE NORTH SLOPES OF THE CAUCASUS MOUNTAINS.

IT FOLLOWS THE FOOTHILLS FROM THERE TO THE NORTHWEST, SOUTH OF THE NAZI-HELD MAIKOP OILFIELDS, TO THE COAST OF THE BLACK SEA BETWEEN NOVOROSSISK AND TUAPSE.

GERMANS RETALIATE IN INEFFECTIVE RAID

Fires Caused in Berlin Visible for 100 Miles—One Bomber Lost.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Monday, Jan. 18—(AP)—Hundreds of Britain's heaviest bombers blasted and fired Berlin Saturday night with four-ton block-buster bombs and tens of thousands of incendiaries in an attack rated as the most destructive of the war for the Nazi capital, and Sunday night the German Air Force retaliated with a spectacular but small and ineffective raid on London.

In these raids, the first of any consequence for either capital in more than a year, the RAF brilliantly bested the Luftwaffe, and the anti-aircraft defenses of the respective capitals performed in marked contrast.

Anti-Aircraft Fire Weak

In Berlin the anti-aircraft fire was the weakest seen by many of the experienced British fliers, and only one of an estimated 300 bombers was lost. In London, however, of the hundreds of German bombers sent to the attack only a few ever even got a glimpse of the city, and those which did ran into the heaviest anti-aircraft fire ever put up here.

Four Nazi raiders were shot down.

In Berlin fires were set which were visible 100 miles away, and large areas were laid waste by the 4,000- and 8,000-pound bombs; in London only a few heavy explosive bombs were dropped, and they fell into the suburbs.

British Go Over Again

On Sunday night British bombers apparently returned to Germany and other continental targets, as radio stations went silent over wide areas, and one roundabout report, brought here from Stockholm by Reuters and quoting the newspaper Svenska Dagbladet, said Berlin was struck again.

Military observers stressed the lack of heavy anti-aircraft fire and fighter opposition over Berlin and suggested there were two possible reasons for this: Either that this once strongly-protected area was being weakened to strengthen other places, possibly Italy, or simply that the Germans were caught napping.

Dead and Injured

Berlin announced that 31 persons were known to have been killed and approximately 150 injured, but said the toll might increase "as salvage work has not been completed yet." A Swiss newspaper dispatch was quoted by Reuters as saying that rescue work still was proceeding tonight amid wrecked buildings, and the casualty list was mounting.

Even while London's anti-aircraft guns were putting up the most tremendous barrage ever heard here tonight, the RAF again was striking at the German-held continent. (The FCC and CBS said many German stations had closed down in the afternoon and early tonight, indicating widespread RAF blows).

English coastal residents late tonight heard the rumble of explosions coming from the direction of Calais and Boulogne and the afternoon skies were filled with RAF fighter planes darting across the channel to the Nazi-held coast. Four RAF planes were reported missing in the daylight operations; five German aircraft were reported destroyed over Europe and four more shot down in attacks on Britain.

Three Death Reported

Three persons were reported killed and several injured in the first raid, but these deaths were attributed not to the German attack, but to British anti-aircraft shrapnel. Incendiaries caused two fires in one area near the Thames River, and a large department store and bank caught fire in another area. These blazes soon were under control.

A few bombs were dropped in the London suburbs last October, but London had been almost unmolested since the summer of 1941.

Unofficial estimates were that 300 R. A. F. bombers unloaded on Berlin the four-ton bombs and "tens of thousands of incendiaries." Returning airmen who had participated in previous raids on Berlin, which "used to be the hottest spot in Germany," noted the lack of German ground fire and searchlights. "I saw only one searchlight," one flyer said, "and the flak was negligible compared with previous experiences."

Fires visible 100 miles away were seen mushrooming in Berlin, as the four-motored bombers flew homeward.

The contrast with the raid on London was sharp. Here the Nazi raiders met the strongest defenses they ever had encountered.

Surprisingly Light Barrage

The ministry reported that Berlin, once the most heavily defended city in Germany, put a "a surprisingly light barrage" of anti-aircraft fire. Only one British plane was reported missing.

A pilot said the city was "quiet compared to Essen," the oft-bombed arsenal city in the Ruhr valley, and a veteran gunner called the defense "by far the poorest I had ever seen there."

Wing Commander G. L. Cheshire, who was making his seventh trip over Berlin, and a radio operator who had been there 12 times both noted a shortage of ground defenses.

"It used to be the hottest place in Germany," Cheshire said, "with hundreds of guns and searchlights. Instead of all the anti-aircraft fire, I saw only one searchlight, and the flak was negligible compared with previous experiences."

The commander of one squadron of Lancaster bombers, who circled Berlin for 40 minutes and made three runs over his target to make sure of hitting it, described how the city stood out clearly through the haze and thin clouds.

Many Fires

"There were many fires, with lines of white incendiaries lying among them," he said. "On our final bombing run we dropped our 8,000-pound bomb and saw it burst and settle into a glow in what appeared to be the center of the target."

The Air Ministry announcement, describing Berlin as the "center of German economic life," said the clouds were so heavy during most of the way to the objective that one pilot "started to think he never was going to see the place."

As he approached Berlin in the moonlight, the navigator of a Lancaster said, he saw "many other aircraft going in to the attack. While we were making our bombing run five other Lancasters came in toward our aircraft and made a V-shaped formation with us.

"Below us, clear in the moonlight streaming through a gap in the clouds, was a railway line which we followed into the city. Four sticks of incendiaries were burning in the neighborhood and we saw our bombs burst among them.

"As we came out we sighted three night fighters astern. One Junkers 88 got close to our tail but we dived away and shook him off before he could fire."

Nothing Like Usual Defense

The bombardier of a Halifax said the plane had been under anti-aircraft fire "on and off for 200 miles" from the coast of the continent to Berlin, "but over Berlin itself there was nothing like the usual defenses, and although we were struck by a few shell splinters, these did not worry us.

"We were one of the early arrivals. Flares were going down and the first fires were springing up. A Lancaster hurtled past just underneath us as we went in to bomb. Then, as we turned away for home the tail gunner could see bombs bursting on Berlin with dull red flames."

The bombers began to leave England while it was still daylight and one gunner aboard a Lancaster said there were aircraft on all sides of him all the way.

"The strangest thing," he said, "was that we could see vapor trails sweeping white across the sky from aircraft in front of us but already out of sight.

"When we were approaching Berlin and the sky was beginning to clear, we saw them again. In the moonlight they looked like a network of roads leading into Berlin.

"By the time we reached the target showers of incendiaries had fallen and were blazing on the ground. Only a little flak came up at us at first, but it grew stronger as the attack went on."

German ground and air defenses apparently were caught unprepared, since the air ministry announced that only one plane—a remarkably low cost for such an expedition—was lost.

The loss of the single plane contrasted sharply with casualties of the last previous attack on the Nazi citadel 14 months ago, when bombers from a formation unofficially estimated to total more than 300 failed to return, some of them forced down on the continent by severe icing conditions.

(London officials did not announce the number of planes participating in the raid last night, but it probably was considerably more than that in the attack of Nov. 7, 1941.

Went Through Thick Clouds

In addition to flying over one of the most heavily defended sections of Europe, the British bombers were forced to bore through thick clouds for most of the 1,200-mile round-trip. There was, however, a rift in the clouds over Berlin itself which enabled the bombardiers to spill their explosives accurately.

A German radio broadcast said 31 persons were known to have been killed in Berlin and approximately 150 injured, with the toll likely to increase as salvage work continued.

JAN 18 1943

Explosive and incendiary bombs fell mainly in densely populated areas of the capital, the broadcast said. The Germans declared two of the raiders had been shot down.

The huge Deutschland Halle near the Olympic stadium, in which many of the events of the 1936 world games were held, was set afire by incendiaries and burned until the cupola crashed in, the Berlin announcer reported.

First Time

London observers expressed belief the raid marked the first time that Britain's four-motored bombers had been used in force at Berlin, as well as the first time the German capital had felt the terrifying impact of the RAF's two and four-ton "block-buster" bombs. Two-motored craft predominated in the British attacks earlier in the war.

The raid also put to rest talk about an "unwritten agreement" to spare London and Berlin further air attacks. The last big raid on London was in July, 1941, but since then there have been small hit-run stabs at the British capital.

A brief communique from the air ministry told of the attack.

"Last night a strong force of our heavy bombers attacked Berlin," it said. "There was thick clouds nearly all the way, but over Berlin itself there were considerable patches of clear sky.

"A great weight of heavy explosives and incendiary bombs were dropped and many large fires were seen. One of our aircraft is missing."

Before this there had been a round-about report that Soviet planes had attacked Berlin, but official confirmation was lacking. The Russians have raided the city on 12 occasions, the last time in August.

The Berlin assault climaxed a week of heavy attacks by the RAF and by American and Dominion airmen on continental targets, including a 100-ton, 12-minute raid on the great industrial war center of Essen and repeated blows at Hitler's biggest submarine base at Lorient.

Among the objectives that spread out beneath the RAF's bombsights in Berlin last night were a vast network of railways, munitions and industrial factories and power stations. The sprawling Siemens Works there is one of the biggest electrical plants in the world.

Following up the night attack on Berlin, Allied planes swept across the channel today in large-scale raids on the continent.

Traffic over the Folkestone area on the Kentish coast reached a peak late in the afternoon when big fighter formations came back across the Dover Straits flying at 15,000 and 20,000 feet in clear weather.

German planes raided the Isle of Wight during the afternoon, the Air Ministry reported, causing some damage and a small number of casualties, some fatal. One of the raiding craft was said to have been shot down by RAF fighters.

The Air Ministry news service said a Canadian wing sweeping the continental coast area between Le Treport and Abbeville shot down four Focke Wulf 190s, and a Norwegian squadron bagged another near the Dutch islands. Four freight locomotives were reported damaged by the Allied fighters.

The sweeps cost the Allies four fighters, three of them Canadian-manned.

BOMBERS RAID OUTSKIRTS OF LONDON TWICE

By ERNEST AGNEW

London, Monday, Jan. 18—(AP).—The German air force struck twice at London last night and early today, sending over small formations of planes in retaliation for the big raid on Berlin. They dropped a few bombs in the outskirts in the first attack and appeared to be trying to test the capital's defenses.

The second alarm sounded shortly before 5 A. M. (midnight EWT) and it lasted about an hour. London's anti-aircraft guns pounded furiously at the planes heard overhead, some of them flying low.

30.24—399

but there were no immediate reports of bombs dropped in this second excursion by the Nazi air force.

Enemy planes returned this morning and the sound of gunfire was heavier than in the first attack.

The Nazi attack obviously was designed as a retaliatory attack for the pasting which hundreds of R.A.F. planes gave Berlin Saturday night in what probably was the heaviest raid the German capital has yet suffered.

JAN 18 1943

Blasts Were Light

Enemy planes also were over southeastern England and the Midlands but their blasts were light and their aim described as poor. At least four were known to have been destroyed.

A small force of raiders swept up the Thames river shortly before 9 p.m. (4 p.m., E.W.T.) last night to set off the first alert since Dec. 2. But it was a noisy night because of London's improved defenses which included anti-raid devices in use for the first time.

The British barrage was almost unbroken. Clusters of guns firing from the heart of the city rattled windows. There was a giant display of searchlights roving restlessly after the Nazi planes that kept a high altitude.

There were no reports of British fatalities more than a hour after the all-clear sounded shortly before 10 p. m.

The bombs that were dropped shattered many shop windows and traffic had to be diverted in some streets for a time.

A number of incendiaries caused two fires in the area near the Thames River. A large department store and a bank caught fire in another area. These blazes soon were brought under control.

British night fighters were up in the air soon after the German raiders reported crossing the coast toward London.

When the firing began crowds in the West End scattered quickly and swarmed into hotels and underground shelters. Piccadilly Circus soon was deserted.

American soldiers on leave here took the raid calmly, groups of them standing on street corners to watch "the swell fireworks show."

Now and then they ducked as bits of anti-aircraft shells rained down on nearby buildings.

Flock to Shelters

However, hundreds of thousands of Londoners, who know from experience what a heavy raid can do, and who were expecting one after the RAF smash at Berlin, scampered for underground shelters as soon as the sirens sounded. These were soon packed.

Tonight's attack was a baptism for women fire watchers and service women now employed in the British anti-aircraft system. They faced the test cocoly, reports showed.

The WAAFS at one West End balloon barrage station were heard singing above the thunder of the guns.

During the afternoon German planes also raided the Isle of Wight, causing damage and a number of casualties.

Four enemy planes were destroyed "in raids on England," it was authoritatively stated tonight without mentioning whether any of the London raiders were brought down.

Retaliation Expected

Those who had been rejoicing over the smashing RAF attack on Berlin last night began moving to subway shelters as soon as the sirens screamed. Quick German retaliation for the raid on the Nazi capital had been expected by many Londoners.

A short time later Britain's ground guns began pumping a shrapnel curtain over the city in almost unbroken fire. During the few breaks in the barrage the roar of planes could be heard flying apparently at great height.

London had not been under a severe attack since July 28, 1941, and that Nazi attack was considered a reprisal for an RAR sortie against Berlin a few nights before.

A few German bombs were dropped in London's outskirts last October, however.

New British anti-raid devices were in action for the first time tonight as heavy guns anchored in the middle of the city sprang into action, their salvos jarring the ground and rattling windows.

Clusters of searchlight batteries painted the sky with white ribbons, criss-crossedw with tracer fire.

Subway shelters were jammed in the west end of the city where they are deepest. It was almost impossible to move in those caverns.

Hundreds of persons carried their bedding with them, expecting to spend the night as they did during the heavy raids of 1940 and early 1941.

City Better Prepared

But London is far better prepared to withstand attacks than in those days. Tonight's intense anti-aircraft fire was one visible and audible proof of that.

Huge improved subway shelters also have been built and organized as self-sufficient centers since 1941.

Berlin Raid Described as Nazi Broadcast Lie

LONDON, Jan. 17 (AP)—In an attempt to reassure the German people that the RAF raid on Berlin had been "avenged," the German radio said tonight:

"The luftwaffe tonight replied to Churchill gangsterism by bombing London."

The broadcast did not mention the small extent of the raid on London.

Berlin Looked Like a Giant Blast Furnace, Says Correspondent Who Flew with R.A.F.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Newsmen chosen by lot were allowed to ride British planes bombing Berlin Saturday night for the first time on an offensive flight from Britain. James MacDonald, New York Times correspondent, represented American newsmen and in the following dispatch tells of the extremely heavy attack on Hitler's capital. Representatives of American, British, and Dominion press and broadcast services were on the raid.)

BY JAMES MACDONALD

(Distributed By The Associated Press)

AN R.A.F. BOMBER STATION SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Jan. 17—R.A.F. bombers transformed a large area of Berlin into a particularly hot corner of hell on earth last night.

I know because I was a passenger aboard one of the planes comprising the large force that battered the German capital. I saw a great number of 4,000-pound high explosive bombs and thousands of incendiaries blasting buildings right and left, and starting widespread fires reminiscent of some of the big German raids we have gone through in London. It was an awesome sight and I was glad to be looking at it from the air instead of from the ground.

Long Respite Ended

R.A.F. bombers had given Berlin a respite since Nov. 7, 1941. Last night they started to make up for lost time. If Berlin has had any worse raids than the one I witnessed I'm glad I wasn't a resident of the Herrenvolk's capital city.

I am not permitted to divulge the exact number of planes participating in the raid but I can say it was plenty, including Lancasters, Britain's biggest bombers, Stirlings and Halifaxes. Also I cannot divulge the various targets but I can assure the readers that they were picked out for the specific purpose of crippling Berlin's war effort.

Fires Visible Long Way

The destruction must have been on a gigantic scale because when the Lancaster in which I was a mere "straphanger" was running the gantlet of enemy anti-aircraft fire some 60 or 70 miles away on the homeward stretch of the 1,200-mile flight I could see fires raging behind us, their lurid glow reflected in the sky.

Last night's trip was the culmination of a long struggle by newspapermen, American, British, and Dominion correspondents, to persuade the Ministry of Air officials to permit them to go on a raid.

...y permission came through. ...re drawn to see which or... should win the first ... which the second choice ... on.

...mond Daniell, representing New York Times, drew the ... place for my paper. Next came ... selection of the person who ...ould make the trip. Daniell ...wanted to go so did I. We tossed a coin and I won.

JAN 18 1943

Luck Still Good

Disgusted with his luck, Daniell proposed that we make it two times out of three. My luck held and I won the second time.

He then proposed that we keep on tossing until one of us had won three out of four but I balked at that lest my luck run out.

I later was to experience a momentary regret that I had won.

Six reporters representing American, British, and Dominion press and two radio broadcasters, one American and one British, were finally lined up for the trip and we left London for the various bomber stations some ten days ago, none of us having the remotest idea where we were headed.

Taken to Different Bases

We were taken to different bases. At the one to which I went none of the bomber crews knew why I was amongst them and in strict observance of the security regulations no one asked any questions.

Only one or two higher officials were "in the know" and they would not talk even if we had broken the rules and asked questions.

For over a week I waited at my station. The weather appeared all right for some other raids, Essen for instance, on which some planes left this station during the week. So I thought if the weather had to be better still for the raid I will be seeing there must be something big in the wind.

Equipment Issued

Finally yesterday afternoon I was told to get fitted for flying gear. I was furnished a jacket helmet, oxygen mask, fleece-lined boots, parachute straps, a "Mae West" (life jacket), and was told to report for "briefing at a certain hour after lunch."

The large "briefing room" was jammed with airmen when I entered. At the front of the room was a tall easel on which was a map of Berlin, which the British bomber crews have dubbed "the big city" and which they respect for it is strongly defended by anti-aircraft guns and night fighter planes.

Everyone whistled under their breaths and leaned forward in their seats as a high officer picked up a pointer and began giving instructions for the raid.

"As you can see," said this officer—a wing commander who is a veteran of many R.A.F. raids and who wears the Distinguished Flying Cross — "the target for tonight is the big city."

Detailed Instructions

He went into detailed instructions regarding the route to be followed, what elevations the pilots were to fly, and other matters which cannot be presently divulged. Then he wound up his talk by announcing the time of the take-offs, making everyone synchronize their wrist watches to the exact second with his and said "all right. I want you to prang this target and prang it thoroughly and then bring all your kites home."

("Prang" is R.A.F. argot meaning smash up, and "kite" is an airplane.)

Then the R.A.F. intelligence officer told the men the importance of their mission as it regarded damage to the Nazi war effort.

A young gunnery officer, also a veteran of many raids on Germany and German-occupied territory, issued orders for the air gunners. The civilian meteorologist gave the weather forecast.

The audience then was informed by the wing commander that the station commander had been highly satisfied with the work of the work of the ground crews in preparing the planes for their gruelling flight and on that note the briefing wound up.

One Hour to Go

We had one hour to get ready and everyone scattered to get "operational tea," at which they were given a very special treat of one fried egg, fried slices of bread, plenty of tea and cake.

Tea over, the flying crews hurried to their various hangars, donned their cumbersome flying dress, and waited for motor vehicles to drive them to the starting point at the far end of a long runway.

This one hour interval of waiting between briefing and take-off I found very unsettling to say the least.

I rubbed my chin and wondered if maybe "Pete" Daniell should not have won that toss after all. I looked at the airmen around me, all young men ranging in age from 20 to 30, and I didn't see any signs of similar fidgetyness.

Broken Date

One complained he had made a "date" for last night and had not had any way of informing his girl friend he could not meet her at the appointed place. Two or three others whistled to themselves. Most of us smoked cigarettes and talked about everything except the impending raid.

As we boarded the motor truck that drove us to the far side of the field we saw the ground crews assembling to witness the take-off.

"There's the station commander," I heard someone say.

"There's the adjutant's daughter," said another.

The plane to which I was assigned as a passenger was known as "Dee for Donald." Several hours later the thought occurred to me that it should have been called "Dee for Duck."

Crew of Seven

It was manned by a crew of seven, three of whom were British and whose names cannot under the regulations be published. The others were three Canadians and one Australian.

The Canadians were: Pilot Officer Oakley Cassibault, 25, of Brockville, Ont.; Flying Officer Robert Todd, 24, a wireless operator, of Rosemont, Montreal; and Warrant Officer Clayton Thompson, 20, of Verdun, Que.

"Cassie" Cassibault was a clothing salesman before the war and has made 26 raids since he came to Britain.

"Toddy" Todd formerly worked in a Montreal department store. He has been on 25 raids.

Veteran of 25 Raids

"Junior" Clayton is merely a junior in age. He also is a veteran of 25 raids as aerial navigator.

The real junior of the crew with respect to the number of raids he has been on was 28-year-old Sgt. Stephen Mondel, a farmer from Miranda, New South Wales, with seven operational flights to his credit as a flight engineer.

Our pilot was a strapping flight sergeant who served in France at the beginning of the war with the Coldstream Guards and who was severely wounded at the evacuation of Dunkerque. Known as "the Skipper," this former guardsman switched to the Royal Air Force after he recovered from his wound and he has attacked the enemy from the air 28 times.

Mere Youngsters

The double job of acting as the forward gunner and bomb aimer fell to a 22-year-old Shropshire lad who has made 32 raids and who wears the Distinguished Flying Medal. The mid-upper gunner was a 21-year-old former clerk from Leeds.

Once everyone was aboard the plane and in the appointed places for the take-off, I forgot all about any misgivings. I was too interested watching these youngsters calmly taking their stations and going about their appointed tasks, waiting for the signal to come over our wireless telephone headsets to hop off.

One by one the giant bombers roared away into the thickening dusk. Minutes passed. Still more planes heavily loaded with high explosives and incendiaries went away while we

JAN 18 1943

Faintly from the control room came the voice of the WAAF (Women's Auxiliary Air Force) giving us our signal to go.

Dangerous Cargo

Our four motors, which had been idling all this time, burst into a thunderous roar. Slowly we began to move. We had to take the full length of the runway before we were air-borne because we were carrying one 4,000-pound bomb and a very big cargo of incendiaries and if we let the plane into the air too soon there might be a "prang" that would wipe out the whole station.

Steadily gaining speed the big plane bounced up and down, leaping like a horse whose rider won't give it the bit. Far down the field we slowly climbed into the air.

The trip had finally begun.

Over my inter-communication ear-phones I heard "Junior" Clayton tell the skipper to set the course so many degrees and the guardsman repeated it and said okay." In a matter of seconds the airfield had disappeared from view.

Soon we were out over the sea and had started a long climb to high altitude. As we neared 10,000 feet "Skipper" said to me over his intercommunication "Hey Mac, old son, would you mind going forward into the bomb aimer's compartment in the nose and connecting up your oxygen supply pipe?"

Moving About Difficult

His "would you mind" was merely politeness, pleasantly cloaking a friendly order. I did as I was told. It is some job to crawl along a narrow passage way and down tiny steps into the glass-covered nose of the big bombing plane when you are not accustomed to wearing a big bulky flying suit and are hampered by clumsy flying boots.

My parachute harness caught one of the myriad knobs of the plane's control apparatus and I unconsciously flicked it over and did something to one of our four motors which would have made anyone less patient curse me heartily. Somehow I managed to get into the nose of the plane and sat on the floor and let the forward gunner connect my nose mouth mask with the oxygen supply.

There wasn't any monotony, at least for me, in that overwater leg of the flight. I was fascinated with the "intercom" conversation of the crew.

JAN 18 1943

Five Minutes From Nazi Area

Then in a pause in which there was complete silence I heard the voice of Clayton saying impersonally "we're now five minutes away from the coastline of enemy occupied territory."

I could feel the alertness of everyone aboard.

Then soon after that Clayton informed us we were well over enemy territory. By this time night had closed in but there was a bright moon in the sky and visibility was good. My unpracticed eyes couldn't spot anything untoward even when I heard the forward gunner sing out "enemy night fighter off to starboard."

"Okay," said the skipper. "Keep a sharp lookout."

Hid in Cloudbank

Lying on my stomach and peering through planes nose, I looked and finally saw a tiny black speck moving through the sky. But I caught only a fleeting glimpse. Suddenly that big Lancaster flipped far over on its side and did a steep, almost vertical, dive for what seemed like a thousand feet, then levelled off. We had taken advantage of some cloud below us to hide from our would-be attacker. When you're carrying a two-ton bomb and lots of incendiaries it is not wise to risk being hit by an enemy plane's incendiary bullets. Besides, that load was intended for Berlin and Berlin was quite a distance farther on.

After we eluded the German night fighter we all settled down as the big motors churned us forward to Berlin.

Presently I heard once again the impersonal voice of Clayton saying, "you're now ninety miles from the target."

Flashes Split Sky

Hardly were the words out of his mouth than ground gunners began sending shells up at us, splitting the sky with jagged flashes of light as they exploded. Either their aim was poor or "Skipper's" piloting was excellent. They didn't come near enough for us to hear the explosions above the noise of our motors.

"You are now nearing the target," said Clayton, as if he were reading aloud some newspaper item he considered of general interest.

Deception Failed

Then I saw a sight I had heard about from many of my R.A.F. friends and read about in some publications: Dummy fires lit by Germans on bogus landing fields, imitation freight yards, and flimsy structures disguised as important buildings. These fires on the outskirts of Berlin were intended, of course, to make the raiding airmen think they were over the city and drop bombs on them only to have them fall harmlessly in open fields. We ignored them.

It was only a moment or two later when I saw the real thing. Waves of raiders that had taken off before us back in Britain had found the target and dropped their loads and made way for us new arrivals.

Below and slightly to the right of me were several straight strings of lights going like street lamps. These strings, which seemed to crisscross each other at right angles, were caused by incendiaries that had just burst. Here and there inside of them yellow fires were glimmering in the clear moonlight like clusters of gold nuggets. Here and there also were angry red patches of flame where fires were going full blast, one of them giving off a long curtain of slate-colored smoke.

Colossal Explosion

Looking down I was fascinated as the white lights of fresh incendiaries turned to yellow and then red when suddenly there was a blinding flash, a great cone of light with its point on the ground and its ever widening base reaching to the sky. Some "kite" had released a 4,000-pound bomb. We were flying at too great a height to hear what must have been a colossal explosion.

Immediately after the big bomb numerous small fires merged into one great seething cauldron in which the skeletons of some buildings were clearly distinguishable. The fires were so bright they partially illuminated the bomb aimer's compartment, silhouetting our bomb aimer as he poised himself over his instruments ready to aim.

Plane Leaped Skyward

Presently it was our turn to bomb. Up to this moment we had been zigzagging, diving, climbing, and twisting our way through the enemy's frantic anti-aircraft fire. Uow we levelled off on a straight course directly across the target area. In the middle of it the big Lancaster leaped upward like a surprised animal: we had released our two-ton bomb. We tore on across the conflagration below and none of us saw our bomb burst but crews in the following planes did.

Again we circled for position to run across the target from another direction and drop incendiaries. As we started this second "run" I heard above the din of our motors three dull thuds directly underneath us, thus like heavy weights were being dropped on padded floors. Three anti-aircraft shells had come uncomfortably close, bursting in fragmnets some of which scratched the under parts of our plane but did not do any appreciable damage or harm any one.

Having completed the second "run," the Skipper said over the intercom to the bomb-aimer: "Johnny, there's one fire down there that seems to be dying down. Let's start it up again."

Once again we took aim and streaked across that steadily growing blaze.

JAN 18 1943

Bombs Gone

"Bombs gone," announced Johnny when we had got across.

"Okay," said the Skipper.

Exchanging places with the flight engineer, I sat beside the pilot where I could get a really good view. Over my earphones I heard him say "look at that one down on your right. It's going good."

I told him the right wing of the plane was in my way, whereupon he flipped the machine far over on its side, dipping the right wing out of my line of vision. He was right. The fire was "going good" and I could not help but think of fires I had seen in London during air raids and picture what must be going on below me.

Broad Area Aflame

Unaccustomed to gauging bombs from the air, I cannot estimate how big an area was on fire while I was there, but it looked plenty big. And still more fires were to follow because the raid was only at its half-way mark when we left the scene.

For many miles as we sped away from the Berlin district the Skipper kept the plane diving, leaping upward, and weaving in and out. This is what's called "evasive tactics" designed to prevent the ground spotters from making accurate observations of the plane's course and rendering it almost impossible for the ground gunners to take sure aim. As between that and comparatively smooth sailing I had rather be in a canoe in mid-Atlantic during a gale.

Composure Amazing

As we left Berlin to the rear, Clayton's voice again came over the intercom as calmly as if he had found another newspaper item of casual interest. Set the course so and so, he instructed.

"Okay," said the Skipper.

Blast Furnace in Appearance

Looking back I saw what resembled a blast furnace going in the distance. Inquiring how far away we were I was told 40 miles. On we went.

"How far now?" I asked.

"Sixty miles," said Clayton.

A moment or two later when I still could see the red glow far away the Skipper asked me to take my former place in the nose of the plane and let the flight engineer resume his station.

I'll never forget those few short laborious steps down into the nose of the plane. We were several miles in the air by this time and as soon as I had disconnected my oxygen pipe from the main line I began to gasp for breath as if I had just made a hundred yard sprint. Somehow I managed to get down to my old seat, where the front gunner quickly connected my mask with the main oxygen feed line while I plugged in my ear phones on the intercom system. If I had only remembered instructions I had received I would have carried a portable oxygen bottle with me.

Gasped for Breath

For several minutes I lay there gasping and telling myself that "Pete" Daniell wasn't so unlucky after all when it came to tossing coins.

Once over the sea again we descended to a comparatively low level where oxygen was not necessary and tea was served by the flight engineer.

After narrowly escaping a collision with another home-bound bomber we droned onward and soon landed at the home base.

Only one bomber failed to return to Britain. It was based on an airdrome some miles from ours. The crews at this airfield had carried out the orders of their wing commander: they had "pranged" the target and "pranged it hard and brought all kites home."

IMPORTANT RAIL JUNCTION TAKEN IN DONETS REGION

Several German Garrisons in City Are Annihilated by Reds.

ADVANCE IN NORTH

Continued Success in Velikie Luki Area Reported In Communique.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON, Monday, Jan. 18—The Red army was threatening Kamensk, only 85 miles north of Rostov, today after capturing Millerovo, another important railway junction on the Rostov-Moscow line, and other Russian armies pushed on into the Ukraine toward Kharkov and toward the Maikop oil fields in the Caucasus.

Two communiques broadcast by Moscow and heard here by the Soviet Monitor announced that the Russians had seized 30 towns and railway points in offensives rolling on a 500-mile front in southern Russia from Voronezh to the Caucasus. Dozens of other localities also were captured.

Long Surrounded

Millerovo, virtually surrounded since Dec. 24, is 120 miles north of Rostov, but the Russians also announced the capture of Kalitvenskaya on the Donets river only 12 miles east of Kamensk to the south.

Although the Germans were fighting stubbornly, the Russians announced these results for Sunday's operations in southern Russia:

South of Voronezh: The capture of Alekseyeevka, 118 miles northeast of Kharkov on the Voronezh-Kharkov railway, Korotoyak, 32 miles northeast of Alekseyeevka, also fell.

Northern Donets river front: Millerovo, Kalitvenskaya, and six other towns and railway stations captured. Kalitvenskaya is only 18 miles northeast of Likhaya, where the Moscow-Rostov and Stalingrad-Likhaya railways join above Rostov.

Follow Rail Line

Northern Caucasus: Red army troops pushing down the Stalingrad-Tikhoretsk railway and on both sides of that line took Eimut, only eight miles from Proletarskaya, and 23 miles short of Salsk, 100 miles southeast of Rostov and connected with that city by rail. Other Soviet units operating along the Don river and just below it are reported fighting just 60 miles east of Rostov.

Central Caucasus: Russian units pushing northwestward along the Mineralnye Vody-Rostov railway line captured Kursavka, 35 miles from Mineralnye Vody and 70 miles southeast of Armavir on the Kuban river. Kursavka is about 125 miles east of the Maikop oil fields.

This great Russian drive from three sides toward Rostov obviously was the one of greatest peril for the Germans who have been rolled back from Stalingrad except for the remnants of 22 tranned Nazi divisions just west of Stalingrad.

Continued Success

But the Russians also claimed continued success in the Velikie Luki area northwest of Moscow. German counterattacks southwest of that captured city were beaten off, and the midnight communique said three more heavily-fortified enemy strongpoints were seized, hundreds of Germans killed and 400 captured.

Scores of guns, motor trucks, tanks, and other Nazi equipment fell into Russian hands yesterday, the communique said.

A huge booty was captured in the Caucasus, the communique said, including 27 snowplows, 70 oil tank cars, 80 passenger cars, eight locomotives, 550 railway flat cars, 324 tanks, 382 guns, 422 mortars, over 2,300 trucks and huge stores of spare parts for tanks and motor vehicles.

JAN 18 1943

Violent Battle

Meanwhile, Moscow dispatches reported a violent battle of extermination was still in progress just west of Stalingrad where a Soviet communique last night said the remnants of 220,000 German troops which once comprised 22 divisions were being wiped out.

The dispatches said this force, now reduced to about 50,000, was compressed in a narrow area of about 10 by 20 miles. Soviet generals were quoted as saying the Germans had been driven completely away from the Volga where they once had held about half the city of Stalingrad.

For the first time, too, the Germans by inference admitted the fall of Velikie Luki, far to the north in the central sector, 270 miles northwest of Moscow, which the Russians claimed to have captured Jan. 2. The German communique said the garrison "following orders, has fought its way to the formation attacking in a relief operation."

The regular communique early today also reported continued advances of the Russians south of the Don along the Zimovniki-Tikhoretsk railway toward Rostov and southwest of Velikie Luki.

Garrisons Annihilated

Telling of the capture of Millerovo, the official announcement said "several garrisons of the city, which attempted to break out of encirclement, were almost completely annihilated by our troops."

The Germans had made a formidable hedghog of the town and succeeded in holding up the Russian advance on Rostov for about four weeks.

The Russians had by-passed it, however, cut the railway to Stalingrad on the east, the line to Voroshilovgrad to the southwest, and finally the line to Rostov to the south.

JAN 18 1943

In the latter direction they had captured Glubokaya, 28 miles south of Millerovo, and pressed on to the eastern bank of the northern Donets whence they threatened Kamensk and Likhaya, the next two important points on the railway to the south. Likhaya is the junction with the line from Stalingrad.

Clears Way for Offensive

The capture of Millerovo cleared the way for Col. Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's forces to resume their middle Don offensive to close the Rostov gate from the north.

It enabled him to threaten not only that prime objective, but also Voroshilovgrad, 55 miles to the southwest.

Moreover, the position may eventually permit the Russians to develop a converging drive upon Kharkov, the industrial capital of the Ukraine, from the southeast in conjunction with the forces driving southwest from Voronezh.

This latter column besides capturing Alekseyeevka, took into its bag a number of other populated places including the railway town of Podgornaya, 18 miles north of Rossosh which the Russians reported aking yesterday and Korotoyak, 46 miles south of Voronezh where the trunk highway crosses the Don.

Alekseyeevka is roughly midway of the Red Army front facing Kharkov. Yesterday the Russians reported taking Krasnoe, to the north, 120 miles from Kharkov, and Rovenki to the south, 125 miles west of Kharkov.

Red Army Insignia Revealed

MOSCOW, Jan. 17 (U.P.)—A defense commissariat decree issued today ordered a new Red Army insigna for epaulettes, to be introduced during the first two weeks in February, and established gold oak leaves as the insignia for marshals and green laurel branches for generals.

REDS POSSESS FULL CONFIDENCE, LEADER REVEALS

German Position at Stalingrad Is Hopeless, Says

30.24-401

Gen. Malinouski.

JAN 18 1943

By EDDY GILMORE

WITH THE RED ARMY SOUTHEAST OF ROSTOV, Jan. 17—(AP) Lieut. Gen. Rodion Y. Malinovski, commander of the Soviet troops on this front, is supremely confident of the ability of his armies to carry on successfully with the great winter offensive aimed at Nazi-held Rostov.

The stocky Ukrainian, slumped over a table at headquarters in a tiny Cossack schoolhouse beside the Volga, said today:

"My army is fighting with complete confidence. The Germans are rushing up new divisions and new tanks, but they too will be routed. All this will have great influence on the operations in the Caucasus."

Colonel Lauded

He gave much of the credit for the success of the winter offensive in this sector to Col. Gen. Yeremenko, last reported as in command of Soviet defenses at Stalingrad.

Yeremenko, despite the fact that he is in the hospital, "is still on active operations," Malinovski said.

"He has good brains," Malinovski said. "He is alway able to guess the enemy's moves and direct us along the right lines."

Offering a box of cigars, which he said were "not so good because they're German," he lit up and talked of the offensive.

"We have prepared for this offensive abundantly," he said.

Nazis Almost Gained Advantage

But he disclosed that the Germans had nearly beaten the Russians to the punch at the outset, when they started an offensive of their own on Dec. 12 which carried them across the Aksay river toward beleaguered Stalingrad. But it was smashed.

"Our basic method," he said, "has been encircling movements" which the Germans have not been able to solve.

He described how the right wing of his army had moved along the west bank of the Don while the left drove across the Askay toward Kotelnikovski, 90 miles to the southwest of Stalingrad.

"From the first day," he said, "it was successful."

A second blow toward Kotelnikovski broke the German resistance in that sector and they hastily retreated 35 miles farther to the southwest to Zimovniki.

Nazi Second-Line Strong

"Complications arose in the direction of Tormosin, northwest of Kotelnikovski," Malinovski said. "Here the Germans had a strong second line. We finally routed them and then went on westward and south-westward."

Declaring "we see signs of bewilderment among the Germans," Malinovski said, "further retreat of their reinforcements, rushed up when they felt the threat to Rostov, can be sensed."

"Naturally, we have suffered losses," he said, "but they are not as high as the Germans' and not as high as our high command estimated."

German Position Hopeless

Of the position of the German forces trapped before Stalingrad, Malinovski said with a shrug: "It is hopeless. The front is now 300 to 400 kilometers (180 to 240 miles) from them and we are now shooting their transport planes day and night."

JAN 18 1943

I came to this bleak Cossack town after a trip across the frozen Volga, which has now become an important military highway for the Russian armies, in a seat-less bus which I hailed after my car broke down.

On the trip across, we followed an American truck loaded with ammunition and I was glad to see it even though it was not a comfortable thing to follow. And then, too, a soldier companion in the bus remarked "anything can happen on ice" so that when we lurched up the farther bank I felt like a man when he hears the dentist say, after a painful session, "it's all over now, you can go home."

London Press Stresses Red Army

LONDON, Monday, Jan. 18 (AP)—The smashing R. A. F. attack on Berlin Saturday night did not draw the biggest headlines in London newspapers today. The top position was given to stories detailing the big Red Army strides against the Nazis in Russia.

Vehicles on the roads leading to Sfax were bombed and machine-gunned Friday night by the new British Bixley bombers. Hurricanes struck yesterday at railway sidings midway between Medjez-el-Bab and Tebourba on the fringe of the German defense line before Tunis and Bizerte. Hits were made on the target, the communique said.

Spitfires, Warhawks and Lightnings swept the enemy lines and two German planes seeking to raid an Allied base were downed by ground fire. The absence of loss of Allied aircraft underlined the ascendancy of U. S. and British air power.

Bad weather held up land operations and curtailed flying.

The communique revised the number of German planes destroyed in a raid on a forward Allied base Friday from seven to ten. Four of the Junkers-88's were destroyed by Capt. Carman B. Boone, 23, of Boone Mill, Va. It was Boone's first operational flight, an official spokesman said.

The reports said the flight of Junkers which attacked the field was wiped out entireEly by American and French P40 fighters.

Boone exhausted the ammunition for his 50-caliber machine-gun in scoring his quadruple triumph, then broke off the fight and turned his plane away. His feat has not been equalled on the North African front during this campaign.

Major Mark E. Hubbard, of St. Paul, Minn., got two Junkers 88 planes in the same raid while Lieuts. Robert H. Smith, of Silver Springs, Md., and Earl Biggs, of Christopher, Ill., got one each. The other two Nazi bombers were disposed of by the Lafayette Escadrille which also got another Junkers 88 later in the day.

During the night of Jan. 15-16 Bixley aircraft bombed and machine-gunned enemy vehicles on the roads leading from Sfax.

Yesterday Hurricane bombers attacked railroad sidings midway between Medjez-El-Beb and Tebourba. Hits were made on the target.

Spitfires, P-40s and P-38s made a sweep over the enemy's lines.

Two enemy fighters attempting to raid one of our bases were shot down by anti-aircraft fire. None of our aircraft is missing.

Further reports show that three more enemy bombers were destroyed on Jan. 15 and that the Lafayette Escadrille shot down three JU-88s on that day.

Raid 'Very Successful'

A spokesman for the RAF described the night raid by Bixleys on German transport north of Sfax as "very successful" and said direct hits were scored on enemy vehicles.

In their sweeps over forward areas of the front Allied Spitfires failed to encounter a single enemy plane, he said.

Capt. Boone's feat of shooting down four Axis planes in a single day established a record for this front. Major Mark E. Hubbard of St. Paul, Minn., got two JU-88s in the same raid, while Lieut. Robert H. Smith of Silver Springs, Md., and Lieut. Carl Biggs of Christopher, Ill., shot down one each.

The Italian High Command, in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press, said "assault units of the Italian navy" slipped into Algiers harbor the night of Dec. 11 and torpedoed three large ships and a cruiser. Two of the ships were sunk and the third went aground while the cruiser was damaged, the communique said. Nearly all the Italians were said to have escaped.

The Italians said also that a surprise attack on a small fort in Tunisia was successful. The Allies wer declared to have left 120 dead in a futile attack on the southern sector of Tunisia.

Allies Smash at Axis Communication Lines

Bombers Continue Attacks in East Tunisia—Montgomery Renews Pursuit Of Rommel in Libya.

JAN 18 1943

By Wes Gallagher

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 17—(AP)—Allied bombers and fighters continued their heavy attacks on communication lines linking the Axis divisions in eastern Tunisia with the remnants of the African Corps of German Marshal Erwin Rommel, again in retreat toward Tripoli in Libya a communique said today.

Rommel Flees From British At Zem-Zem

8th Army on Move 130 Miles From Tripoli and 400 From Eisenhower

By The Associated Press

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 17.—General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's British 8th Army again is on the move and in two days has cleared the hurdle of Wadi Zem-Zem and advanced about forty miles all along the line toward Tripoli, the last gem in Premier Benito Mussolini's African empire.

The offensive was resumed by moonlight Friday morning, General Montgomery announced in a communique today, and by yesterday British tanks and troops, protected overhead by dense formations of Royal Air Force and American planes, had cleared the Germans and Italians out of the Buerat-el-Hsun positions and established contact with retreating enemy rear guards in the Sedala-Bir Tala area.

130 Miles to Tripoli

The 8th Army thus slashed the distance between it and Tripoli to about 130 miles and further closed the gap between it and the British and Americans in Tunisia to about 400 miles.

[From Allied headquarters in North Africa it was reported that the general view was that Field Marshal Erwin Rommel now could only retreat as fast as possible toward Tunisia, while Allied air forces struck from the Middle East and North Africa. It was understood at Allied headquarters that Tripoli is indefensible, and the only positions left the Axis before Tunisia were two points where slight delaying actions might be fought.]

Sedala is about thirty-two miles north of the broad, stony valley known as Wadi Zem-Zem, which Field Marshal Erwin Rommel had been preparing to defend, and about sixty-five miles west of the coastal anchor of Buerat-el-Hsun. Bir Tala is twelve miles west and slightly north of Sedala. The latter place is about sixty-five miles south and slightly west of Misurata and 130 airline miles southeast of Tripoli.

Tanks in Battle

The Germans withdrew from some positions in the Wadi Zem-Zem but put up a sharp fight at others and there were many artillery duels and tank battles.

Prisoners and tanks were captured in unspecified numbers as the British drove forward in two parallel thrusts along the coast through Buerat el Hsun from El Gheddahia and farther inland across the El Gheddahia-Bu-Ngent track.

The communique, which said only enemy rearguards retreating to the northwest were being engaged, suggested that Marshal Rommel was headed direct for Tripoli and had no idea of putting up a fight further to the north. Misurata. However, an extensive salt marsh along the coast directly south of Misurata naturally forced a fighting inland.

JAN 18 1943

Although Rommel appeared to have been forced out of the only really good position for a defense short of Tunisia, he had considerable forces between the present battle area and Tripoli, and was reported to have erected some good defense works in the Jebel Nefuza, the green ridge of hills which rises about fifty miles south of Tripoli.

Giving their usual support to the army, the air forces operated over a wide area to the rear of the withdrawing enemy, attacking vehicle concentrations, which usually were small, bombing Tripoli both Friday night and Saturday and setting fires, and raiding air fields in Sicily and Lampedusa.

They even gave a hand to the Allies in Tunisia, attacking the enemy's vehicles on the coastal roads in Tunisia and in western Tripolitania.

[The only ground activity in Tunisia was by the French of Henri Honore Giraud, who reported the capture of "several important points" in the Jebel Bou Dabous region, twenty miles northwest of the Moslem religious center of Kairouan and about fifty-five miles of Tunis. Further south in the Jebel Dufoah area other points were reported occupied.

[Lieutenant General Dwight D. Eisenhower's air forces also were active. British Bixley and Hurricane bombers bombed and machine-gunned Axis supply lines, including trucks on roads around Gabes and railway sidings in the Medjez-el-Bab and Tebourba areas west of Tunis.

[Coincident with General Montgomery's resumed offensive, Marshal Rommel was menaced increasingly from the southern quarter, where the Fighting French announced that their forces under General Ingold, a subordinate of Brigadier General Jacques LeClerc, had reached the Tripolitanian battleground. These forces, marching more than 1,000 miles across the Sahara, already had reported a clean-up of the Fezzan area in southern Libya.]

British Issue Communique

The Germans and Italians in their communiques of the last two days told of the resumption of the British drive, but General Montgomery had kept silence until today's communique, which announced tersely:

"Our offensive operations which started on Jan. 15 have been successful and by yesterday the enemy had withdrawn from the whole of the Buerat-el-Hsun position."

The advance of forty miles in two days appeared to be unusual even in the British general's type of slashing warfare which already had carried him 900 miles from the Egyptian line at Alamein, the starting point, Oct. 23.

The Rommel army, which less than three months ago appeared gravely to threaten Alexandria and Cairo was now squeezed into a coastal strip less than 300 miles wide and shrinking daily east and west. It was just over a month ago that the Axis generalissimo, after a prolonged feint, pulled his forces out of the Agheila line, 250 miles west of his present position, and started a headlong retreat.

That the Axis forces had been expecting the present push was evident for days, reports from Cairo said. The Italians and Germans were said to have been in a state of "complete jitters" two days before the attack, firing wild artillery and machine-gun barrages and lighting the desert all night long with their flares as Montgomery moved up his thousands of tanks, trucks and fighting vehicles for the assault.

Small Bridge Over Medjerda Baffles Nazis

Daily Attacks Fail To Destroy Objective on Tunisian Front.

By Harold Boyle

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN TUNISIA, Jan. 13—(Delayed)—(AP)—One of the most bombed objectives of the North African campaign is a little bridge across the Medjerda river at Medjez-El-Bab, Allied-held French village on the Tunisian front.

The futile attempt by the German air force to knock out this single bridge of the town illustrates the high cost of bombing when the objective is held with determination.

Daily Attacks

Almost daily for weeks, sometimes several times a day, German fliers have rained light and heavy explosives at this one little link in the Allied transportation system, yet only one bomb has found its mark.

It struck a span in the 75-foot structure and destroyed it. Yet 20 minutes later Allied army engineers had the bridge back in service.

The Germans could have built a dozen bridges for less than they have spent in bombs dropped and in planes shot down trying to blast this one.

When I mentioned to the French guard at one end of the bridge that he had a dangerous job, he smiled.

"Not at all," he said. "Whenever we see German planes overhead we run out to the very center of the bridge. Their aim is so bad we feel perfectly safe there."

Italians Report Algiers Sea Raid

LONDON, Jan. 17 (AP).—The Italian high command said today that assault units of the Italian Navy had forced an entry into the harbor at Algiers by night and torpedoed one cruiser and three large ships, a Rome broadcast reported. Two of the ships were certainly sunk and a third forced to go aground.

High Italians Reported Ousted

The Morocco radio in a broadcast to French Africa last night said it had learned from "well-informed sources" in Geneva, Switzerland, that "the commanders of several Italian garrisons, on islands in the Mediterranean as well as Italian naval bases, have been dismissed at the demand of General Field Marshal Karl von Rundstedt because of bad defense organization." United States Government monitors overseas recorded the broadcast, the Office of War Information reported.

stepped out of a li... a foxhole clad only in ... wear while a friend photogra... him.

Leaped Into Trench

"I'll send this home just to show the folks how we drop everything when the Jerries come," Captain Crosnick was saying. Before he had time to get back in the tent to get his clothes, anti-aircraft guns opened up all over the desert and he had to leap back into a trench still wearing his white drawers.

The only difference this time was that he grabbed a steel helmet as he sailed past the door.

While the raid was going on, Sergt. Robert F. Smith of Batavia, N. Y., sat on the side-lines, coolly gazing into the sun through a red and black artillery periscope captured from the Italians at El Alamein.

"I found this in a German dugout after we broke through the Alamein line," he said. "It was lying on a chair and it's just the thing to stare at the sun with. The Germans almost always attack from the sun and it's hard to spot them until they are almost on top of you. But with this, I can spot them a long way off."

JAN 18 1943

Heat Sketches Drawing

While Sergeant Smith gazed through his periscope, his pal, Corp. Sol Collins of Detroit, was busy with a pad and pencil sketching the gunbursts, planes, and men in various positions on the field. He's the map man for the outfit with a quick eye for pen and ink work and his tent is littered with wartime sketches.

After the raid I walked into a big tent off to one side and found a familiar figure sleeping on a blanket in the sand. It was First Lieut. William N. Pace of Guthrie, Ky., who went through a harrowing experience with me off the Gold Coast when our plane ran into a storm and was blown 100 miles out to sea.

Tossed Like a Leaf

On that occasion, Lieutenant Pace, First Lieut. Charles F. Hale of Ware, Mass., and I were trying to get to Kharkoum and we spent more than four hours in the big ship which shuddered like a maple leaf and swung in blind circles trying to climb out of a storm. Visibility was zero.

We finally were caught in an icy downpull and fell 5,000 feet. We pulled out of it only 500 feet above the ocean and this force of the pull-out was so great you could feel the blood drain away from the head.

When it was over Lieutenant Pace let out a long, low whistle and said "I hate to admit it, but I was worried. I never thought we'd get out of it."

Neither did I, but we did and here we were, weeks later, thousands of miles away in the western desert. Lieutenant Pace is a fighter pilot and was the second man on the ground when the American group came in.

He said Lieutenant Hale had suffered a sudden attack of appendicitis four nights previous, but was in good condition.

Make Cracks About Censors

Later we walked over to the tent where Capt. Carl Nelson of Los Angeles and Capt. James Lynch of Boston were busy censoring letters.

"It's a good thing I'm not sensitive," Captain Lynch said. "The boys have started taking cracks at the censors to their sweethearts. Listen to this: 'Sweetheart, there used to be only two of us, but now there's a third party in our lives.'"

Then in brackets were the words, "Hello, Nosey."

Another lad had enclosed two Egyptian banknotes worth 45 cents in his letter and attached a note to them saying, "put it back, censor."

Crullers a Treat

But the real surprise in this camp came in the mess tent where Corp. John R. Maschels, Abilene, Tex., and Staff Sergt. Henry E. Johnson, the Bronx, N. Y., provided the boys with honest-to-goodness American doughnuts.

Sergeant Johnson was cutting them with the top of a baking powder tin and Corporal Maschels was dropping them into a vat of boiling grease. The word spread quickly and a line formed to the right, fully 15 minutes early.

Both boys were greatly pleased with their surprise, but not half so pleased as the hungry crew, waiting for the handout.

"If you think this is something come back tomorrow," said Corporal Maschels, who was clearly the hero of the moment. "Tomorrow I'm going to make hot biscuits."

WITH ADVANCE R.A.F. FIGHTERS IN THE WESTERN DESERT OF LIBYA, Jan. 8—(Delayed)—(AP) Life in this desert ghost town recalls the tales old-timers tell of Silver City, Nev., and other forsaken boom towns of the old American west where every man carried the law on his hip.

The main difference is that the shooting now comes from Messerschmitts and answering ground fire—not from Sam Colt's old equalizer.

When the Germans come over for reconnaissance or to bomb and strafe us three and four times a day, all but the ack-ack crews knock off work and dive for foxholes and slit trenches.

These interruptions sometimes have interesting consequences.

Lakeville Dentist in Camp

When the Jerries were making their first raid this morning, Capt. Wallace W. Barr, of Lakeville, Conn., a dentist, was just giving Private Edward Helwig, of Brooklyn, a shot of novocaine.

Capt. Barr told me that he said, "Helwig, if the siren starts, don't get in my way," and that Helwig answered, "I won't, sir."

"Just then the warning came," Capt. Barr said, "and he went out the front door while I went out back to jump into a trench. In all, I had given Helwig (who is a cook) four shots of novocaine before I could get that tooth out."

The cook's tent was not 20 feet from where we were talking and I looked up and saw a big, stocky dark-haired kid standing there with swollen jaw.

Just as I started to speak to him, ack-ack all over the desert broke out in a deep-throated barrage and I dived head-first into a trench and buried my head in the sand while the ground shook.

For a moment I peeped over the trench at the cook's tent, but Helwig wasn't there. He was 10 feet away with a big grin, manning a .50-caliber machine gun which was sending scorching tracers at the Messerschmitts.

A few minutes later when the show was over he said, "We hit that one."

WITH THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY ON THE ROAD TO TRIPOLI, Jan. 15—(Delayed)—(AP) Britain's Eighth Army under Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery rolled forward today in a final powerful move to wipe out Mussolini's African empire and to tighten the p...cers on Marshal Erwin Rommel's retreating Africa corps.

As this final phase of one of the longest advances in military history—more than a thousand miles across the sands of North Africa—got under way, there were indications of hard fighting ahead but little more of the rearguard actions which have been fought in this running struggle since General Montgomery's forces broke through the Axis line at Alamein Oct. 24.

JAN 18 1943

Two Weeks of Preparations

For more than two weeks, General Montgomery has been drawing up forces for this thrust. Tanks, armored cars, guns and supply vehicles poured across the desert to get into position for the move.

And now the move is under way.

In the desert with a British armored formation, I watched American-made Boston bombers roar overhead with a fighter escort as the R.A.F. and the American airforce softened up the enemy for the blows to come by land.

18 Departed, 18 Returned

We counted three, six, twelve, eighteen of them soaring majestically toward the enemy, and be... they came back—eighteen of them.

...nkmen, gunners and drivers, hands cupped over their eyes to shade them from the sun, watched the bombers. Those we saw over our sector were only a part of the air power loosed against the Germans only a few miles ahead of us.

Out in the wind-swept waste land, in mid-afternoon, troops gathered about their vehicles and stood as their officers addressed them.

No Demonstrations

There were no cheers or demonstrations from the men. They listened in silence. One would never think that these men were on the eve of a historic phase of the battle of Africa.

When they had heard the address they returned to their vehicles and gathered in little knots to discuss what was ahead.

JAN 18 1943

At dusk, the control vehicle moved ahead a short distance and other armor moved in behind them in a tight column with tanks and armored cars guarding the flanks.

A pale half-moon cast bright light over the desert. We were told to be ready to move at midnight toward the enemy—a moonlight ride with the shadowy caravan throwing up thick clouds of dust. Every soldier knew what was ahead, for the officers had carefully explained the possibilities.

Cold Wind Swept Desert

A cold wind swept over the desert when the sun's rays faded. The men huddled in little groups, talking. Music came softly from a radio in an armored car. Cigarettes glowed like fireflies.

One might have expected the men to be grim and silent on the eve of the advance. Instead they laughed and talked of trivial things, only occasionally speculating about what "Jerry" might do.

On the stroke of midnight the columns, led by a jeep carrying the navigator, came to life and began to move forward with the roar of many motors.

There were no lights. Each car followed the dim outline of the one ahead. We drove through the desert sands until the moonlight faded and then halted for the remaining hours of darkness.

I am writing this in the dim light of a blacked-out car. Outside the first flush of dawn is showing, and unless the Germans decide to withdraw, there will be a battle before the sun sets again.

15-hour Day Nothing Unusual to George VI

British King Has Busy War-time Routine—Starts at 9 A. M. and Often Continues Until Past Midnight.

JAN 18 1943

By Lewis Hawkins

LONDON, Jan. 17—(AP)—If your mental picture of a king is that of a red-robed monarch lounging on his throne while his subjects wait upon his every need, just spend a day with George VI.

Starts Day at 9

The stroke of 9 finds Britain's nominal ruler in his study, ready to begin a long and work-filled wartime day that may not end until midnight.

Seated behind a desk bearing two ever-jangling telephones, he receives his principal private secretary, Sir Alexander Hardinge, and his two assistant private secretaries, Sir Eric Mieville and Sir Alan Lascelles.

After this conference, he is likely to turn to some of the mass of official documentary business requiring his attention daily. All cabinet documents go to him, and parliamentary papers also are studied.

This done, he plunges into the reports from commanders in all theatres of war, which are sent to him as soon as they are received. Further, he supplements this official reading with careful examination of many daily newspapers, setting aside time for this each day in the belief that only by reading as much as possible can he keep abreast of current affairs in every aspect of his people's life.

Sees Prime Minister

At least once a week, he sees the prime minister, as well as other cabinet members. Like his father, he doesn't hesitate to make his personal addition to his list of callers, and many of his visitors are men whose names are not on the court circular.

When he is interested in a subject he likes to discuss it with authorities. Typical of his practice of searching for the facts was his recent appointment with Sir William Beveridge, who was called to the royal presence even though the king already had made a thorough study of the Beveridge report calling for sweeping social changes.

Those who have audiences with the king sometimes stay to lunch with him, which may mean that he has no opportunity to eat that meal with the queen or to see his children at that time.

In addition to his palace duties, he frequently goes abroad in his island realm, usually with the Queen, to study various phases of the nation's war effort and talk with those engaged in it—all the way from general officers to privates and from industrialists to grease-smeared men and women mechanics at work on airplane engines in drafty hangars.

Often his days are so full of official tasks that he barely is able to find the few minutes necessary to take a short, brisk walk which he sets as a daily health "must" for himself. Similarly, his royal duties often keep him from attending to his personal correspondence until evening.

Answers Personal Mail

Since the King is one of the empire's most meticulous correspondents and answers all his personal mail himself, this means that he must give up many of his evenings to writing.

Only on week-ends does he have opportunity to relax with his family or to engage in the sports which he loves. He has given up tennis and golf for the time being—although he was passably good at both—but he still rides and shoots as much as he can.

King George V was rated as one of the finest sporting shots in the country,, and his son is almost as good.

No birds have been preseryed on any of the King's estates since the war began, but he is content to take his gun and dogs and go out on all-day hikes alone seeking whatever he might turn up. It is seldom that he returns empty-handed.

Despite his strenuous job, he is fit and doesn't look his 47 years.

A close friend recently said of him:

"The cares and responsibilities of war have matured him, not strained him. The qualities which made his brothers so often turn to him for advice have developed."

Air Duel Indicated

A duel between American air forces on Guadalcanal and the enemy's forces at Munda, in the central Solomons only 18 miles to the northwest, is indicated.

A Navy communique reported today that for the third time in two days a group of enemy aircraft had bombed American positions on Guadalcanal Friday evening (Solomons time) causing "minor material damage" and some casualties. The two previous raids, which were the enemy's first multi-plane attacks on the island since mid-November, were made Thursday morning.

The latest American blow at Munda, on New Georgia Island, was delivered Saturday by Marauder medium bombers strongly escorted by Airacobra and Warhawk fighters. "A number of hits were scored in the target area," the communique said.

Munda Often Raided

Munda has been under aerial bombardment since late November, yet in recent weeks the Japs appear to have used it as a base of operations. From it they can send bombers against Guadalcanal and employ fighters either to intercept American aerial expeditions northbound or to protect their own air and surface thrusts at Guadalcanal.

Neither yesterday's nor today's communiques specifically stated that the enemy bombers came from Munda but a naval spokesman said it was reasonable to assume that they did since that base is only about half as far away as the other Japanese fields in the Solomons.

Evidence that the enemy has gone into the initial maneuvers of a new effort to drive American forces out of strategic Guadalcanal was found by naval authorities in official reports leading up to today's communique.

Destroyers Intercepted

On Thursday the Navy reported that a force of enemy destroyers had been intercepted by motor torpedo boats in Guadalcanal waters earlier in the week. Their obvious purpose was to reinforce and supply the long-beleaguered Japanese troops on the northern hump of the island. Whether they succeeded was not stated.

In yesterday's communique the Navy disclosed that American planes had attacked one group of five and another of nine destroyers which apparently were trying to reach the enemy-held portion of Guadalcanal with supplies and reinforcements. Damage was inflicted on both groups but whether they were thwarted in their purpose also was not stated.

U. S. Gains in Land Fighting

On the island land fighting continued favorably for American forces. Today as yesterday the Navy announced that our troops were advancing slowly against strong Japanese resistance. The objective of the American advance is presumably to wear down the enemy while at the same time denying him positions from which he can threaten or damage the airfield and its installations.

Since a Navy-Marine amphibious expedition established a beachhead on Guadalcanal August 8 (Solomons time) the Japanese have made numerous attempts to oust them and have paid to date a price of at least 765 planes lost in combat action alone and 57 ships sunk, six probably sunk and 93 damaged.

Their usual straegy has been to follow up a series of destroyer-borne supply expeditions and heavy air attacks with a large naval and transport force.

These attempts have resulted in some of the most hotly fought sea and air battles of the war, including the August 23-25 action east of the Solomons, the battle of Cape Esperance Oct. 11-12, the battle of the Santa Cruz Islands Oct. 26, the battle of Guadalcanal Nov. 13-15 and a lesser encounter off Guadalcanal Nov. 30.

Guadalcanal-Munda Duel Seen

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (AP)—A duel between American Air Forces on Guadalcanal and the Japanese forces at Munda, in the Central Solomons to the northwest, was indicated by the reports in today's Navy Department communiqué.

Munda has been under American aerial bombardment since late November, yet in recent weeks the Japanese appear to have used it as a base of operations. From it they can send bombers against Guadalcanal and employ fighters either to intercept American aerial expeditions northbound or to protect their own air and surface thrusts at Guadalcanal.

Neither yesterday's nor today's Navy communiques specifically stated that the enemy bombers came from Munda, but a naval spokesman said it was reasonable to assume that they did, since that base was only about half as far away as the other Japanese fields in the Solomons.

The usual Japanese tactics in their counter-attacks since last August on the American position at Guadalcanal have been to follow up a series of destroyer-borne supply expeditions and heavy air attacks with a large naval and transport force.

American Fliers, Outnumbered 3 to 1, May Have Downed 5 Others.

WITH THE U. S. ARMY AIR FORCES IN CHINA Jan. 16. (Delayed) (AP)—The Japanese lost at least seven planes and possibly 12 today when they raided an American airdrome in western Yunnan Province and three nearby Chinese villages from their base in Burma.

American medium bombers, in quick retaliation, again dropped tons of bombs on the Japanese base at Lashio, terminus of the Burma road, keeping up the strong air offensive against key enemy points in Burma launched by Brig. Gen. Claire L. Chennault, commander of the U. S. Army air forces in China.

One United tSates fighter pilot was missing after an air battle in which the Americans, outnumbered more than three to one, engaged 18 enemy bombers and 20 fighters.

Airdrome Damage Slight

Col. Herbert Morgan of Freedom, Penn., Gen. Chennault's operations chief, said the damage to the airdrome was minor and the only casualties were two mechanics, slightly wounded by bomb fragments.

All planes got off the airdrome before the attack. The fighters closed in on the Japanese northwest of the field and two Zeros, protecting the bombers, were shot down quickly. They crashed near the airport.

The Japanese then turned southward and American pilots gave chase down the valley, picking off Zero after Zero and probably downing one bomber. The running battle lasted about 20 minutes.

Lieut. James Little of Fincastle, Ky., destroyed two Zeros and Capt. John Lombard of Ionia, Mich., brought his confirmed total to six by shooting down one Zero. Capt. Robert Smith of Cincinnati shot down another and claimed a bomber as probably destroyed.

Other victors were Lieut. Robert O'Neill of Allentown, Penn., Lieut. Melvin Kimball of Providence, R. I., and Lieut. Aaron Liepe of Dubuque, Iowa, each with one Zero, and Lieut. George Barnes of Blythe, Calif., and Lieut. Robert Liles of Jefferson City, Mo., each with two Zeros probably destroyed.

Japs Eager For Fight

"The Zeros were eager to fight for a change," Capt. Lombard said. "I don't think they had met our fighters before. They seemed pretty good pilots and apaprently were flying new equipment."

The medium bombers attacking Lashio were led by Capt. Everett Holstrom of Tacoma, Wash. Bombs dropped through clouds and the results could not be observed.

Allies Push Mop-up Drive in New Guinea

JAN 18 1943

By Vern Haugland

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, Jan. 17—(AP)—By land and air Allied forces continued their unremitting pressure today on Japanese holdings in New Guinea and New Britain.

Positions Captured

An Australian unit mopping up recently captured positions along the perimeter of the enemy's last-stand center of resistance on Sanananda Point in northeastern New Guinea, killed seven of a large party of Japanese encountered south of Gona, which the Allies already control. The rest of the enemy troops fled into the jungle.

West of Amboga a 12-man Australian patrol came upon 30 Japs killed three and wounded three others.

In the area where an American-built roadblock barricades the main route leading inland from Sanananda Point, U. S. forces were active against enemy pillboxes and dugouts, cleaning them out one by one.

One Japanese medium bomber raided Port Moresby, the Allied base on the southeast coast of New Guinea, by moonlight last night. Searchlights picked up the plane, which was flying at high altitude. Observers heard the scream of one bomb and saw its explosion on a mountaintop some distance away. Other bombs also fell in the mountains, all entirely without damage.

Minor Allied Raids

The Allies made several minor aerial raids, with four-motored Liberator bombers most active. One Liberator on reconnaissance bombed an enemy cruiser south of St. George's channel between New Guinea and New Britain. Results were not reported. Four Zeros made 10 passes at the raider, and one of the intercepting planes was shot down. The Liberator returned safely to its base but bearing a number of bullet holes to mark the encounter.

Liberators also bombed Finschhafen, up the northern New Guinea coast from Sanananda; Gasmata on New Britain and the Cape Gloucester airdrome at the western tip of the latter island.

Billy Mitchell medium bombers attacked supply dumps and installations at Lae, the enemy's principal remaining base in New Guinea. Bomb explosions started a large fire among four buildings.

The bombers fought through strong anti-aircraft and searchlight defenses, hitting the airdromes as well as the harbor installations. All came back.

Japs Raid Milne Bay

Just after noon yesterday, the Japanese raided Milne Bay with 24 medium bombers and 20 Zeros, causing some damage to the airdrome area.

That was Milne Bay's first raid in several weeks and the heaviest the Japanese have made anywhere on the northern Papuan coast in months. Our fighters went up but the Japanese avoided combat and escaped.

United Nations bombers again were active over the New Guinea coastal war area but nowhere in strength approaching that the Japanese sent against Milne Bay.

Allied ground forces, with air support, made further progress at Sanananda point, cutting the main road behind the Japanese lines and killing at least 122 in the process. The move was made by an encircling force from the west.

Jap Transport Attacked

Far to the north, in the vicinity of the Admiralty Islands, Allied heavy bombers attacked a Japanese transport. Results were not observed.

An attack by medium bombers on the Japanese supply dump along the coast at Lae, caused large explosions and numerous fires. Wharf areas were pounded by heavy bombers both at Madang and Finschhafen. A similar unit bombed the airdrome at Malahang in New Guinea and at Gasmata, New Britain.

ships and installations at Cape Esperance and Kokumbuno on Guadalcanal. They shot down eight giant four-motored Kawanishi 97 scout bombers.

Extremely Few Casualties

There were extremely few casualties in those 10 weeks.

On the first day out of port the pilots flew from a land base to join their carrier. One scout bomber developed engine trouble, was forced to crash land on the ocean. The radioman was killed. The pilot launched a lifeboat—but never could be located despite a careful search by both planes and destroyers throughout the afternoon and the next morning.

The Hornet's aviation personnel, upwards of 100 pilots and some 50 radiomen-gunners, was a veteran, well knit outfit.

"Best in the World"

"The best in the world," Captain (now Rear Admiral) Charles P. Mason of Pensacola, Fla., and other officers called them.

Many had been decorated with Distinguished Flying Crosses for their part in the battles of the Coral sea or Midway. More have been awarded D.F.C.'s for the damage they helped wreak on the Japs at Santa Cruz—two Jap carriers, a battleship, and several cruisers heavily damaged.

Mike Sanchez—Lt. Cmdr. Henry Gabriel Sanchez, 34, of Staten Island, N. Y.—was fighter squadron leader. It was his boys who shot down those eight big Kawanishis. It was his boys who sent Humphrey, Neb., — was bomber squadron leader. Gus led his bombers everywhere—through rain and fog and clouds and A.A. fire—and led them back every time but once. That once, on Oct. 26, he was shot down; first time in 3,400 hours of flying anyone ever so much as interrupted his flight. But Gus himself shot down two Jap Zeros before he was hit and his bomber section laid six big eggs on a Jap carrier.

Certain It Sank

"That carrier, a big Zuikaki type ship, surely sank but we didn't see it go down, so we have to say it was heavily damaged," Gus reported.

Gus and his radioman-gunner George D. Stokeley, drifted 56 hours in a rubber lifeboat until rescued by a PBY—"just when we were all set to pick out a nice South Seas island and enjoy life."

It'll be tough if the salt water ruined Gus' badly worn old shoes. Gus had two good luck pieces and never went into action without them. One was that pair of old shoes. The other was a couple of $50 bills.

"I lost those fifties several times in poker games—but I always made the winner promise to sell them back. And I always got them back. See that guy? He's had them twice—but he owes me now."

Bill Laconic

In sharp contrast to the jovial Gus and the flashing-eyed Mike was the torpedo squadron leader, T.E.B. (Bill) Parker of Tulsa, Okla. Just to make it a threesome he too is 34. Bill always was serious, Gus and Mike always ready for a laugh. Bill would describe his part in any raid in the fewest words possible; Gus and Mike would talk at length, slipping in wisecracks to liven up things.

The reason for Bill's reticence came out many days after the battle of Santa Cruz. He was ill but wouldn't tell anyone. He had a job to do and was determined to see it through.

On Oct. 25, when everyone on the Hornet knew a carrier battle was the order of the day for Oct. 26, Bill called his torpedo pilots together for a pep talk. There was a lot of talk on board just then about Torpedo Eight—the squadron whose carrier group lost every man except Ensign Gay at Midway. There was a lot of talk about the great danger torpedo pilots faced because they had to go in so close to get off their tin fish. Fighter and bomber pilots openly rejoiced that they weren't in the torpedo squadron. Torpedo men probably thought a lot but not one said a word.

Couldn't Refuse

Bill looked as though he might have experienced such thoughts himself. He was a fighter pilot at Midway—got a D.F.C. for it—and once wished aloud that he still was. He had been asked to lead the torpedo squadron and couldn't refuse.

JAN 18 1943

Bill gave his squadron a brief but pointed talk — a combination pep and plan-of-ack-ack speech. He concluded:

"No matter what we run into—no matter whether we lose our fighter escort—no matter how hot the Japs' A.A.—we're going in and get that carrier. I'll lead the way."

Bill led and the other torpedo men followed but rain squalls altered their plans a little. They searched over a wide area but never could find that carrier. Finally, gas running low, Bill had to settle for a heavy cruiser he'd passed up as less valuable than a carrier.

Three Torpedoes Hit

"We put three torpedoes in her. She went down," Bill reported. He gave no details — didn't mention that he conducted most of that search without fighter escort because the fighters dropped off to engage some Zeros; didn't mention the barrage of A.A. his section encountered.

Several days later, doctors noticed Bill appeared ill. Examination showed half a dozen things wrong, including nerves and kidneys. They sent Bill home to Tulsa for treatment and a rest but Bill's last words were "I'll be back."

Gus went to the mainland, too—to organize another bomber squadron to come out on a new carrier.

Mike Still on Job

Mike still is in the South Pacific—newly decorated with a D.F.C.

Even in that torrid battle of Santa Cruz the Hornet fliers managed somehow to set a great safety record. Only eight men were lost—four fighter pilots, one bomber pilot and his radioman-gunner, and one torpedo pilot and his radioman gunner.

That despite the fact they flew through Zero and A.A. fire to damage severely nearly a dozen Jap ships. And 115 Jap planes were shot down that day.

Five Jap Ships Hammered In Rabaul Harbor

All Badly Damaged Or Sunk by Flying Fortresses.

By Tom Yarbrough

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Monday, Jan. 18—(AP)—Five Japanese merchant ships in the harbor at Rabaul, New Britain, were badly damaged or sunk in a three-wave three-hour raid by Flying Fortresses Saturday night.

Results of the raid were reported today in a communique which said the total tonnage of the ships hit amounted to 25,000 tons.

was the first mission for Pilot ...ah. Other planes taking part in the raid were piloted by Lieuts. Roy Grover of Salt Lake City, Williston Cox of Knoxville, Tenn., the flight leader; Charles Gusworth of Philadelphia, M. K. Smith of Adams Basin, N. Y., Garrett Middlebrook of Springtown, Tex., Forrest Darby of Sacramento, Calif., John Watkins, Little Rock, Ark., and Willmore Pavlich, Port Jervis, N. Y.

In still other aerial sorties, Boston attack planes bombed and strafed Sanananda point and the mouth of the Kumusi river, shooting up two lifeboats, and Australian Beaufighters machinegunned the Lae area.

Among the Boston pilots were Lieuts. Jarret Roan of Shreveport, La., John Conn, Louisville, Ky., and Turner Williamson, Anniston, Ala.

Amazing Safety Record Set by Hornet's Fliers

Only Eight Men Lost in 10 Weeks of Furious Combat.

JAN 18 1943

By CHARLES H. M'MURTRY

HONOLULU, Jan. 12—(Delayed)—(AP) The Hornet's fliers—fighters, bombers, and torpedo pilots—had probably the best safety record of any carrier in the world for the 10 weeks preceding that ship's sinking off Santa Cruz island.

In those 10 weeks Hornet fliers searched the Pacific almost daily for enemy ships, submarines, planes. They raided Buin airbase on Bougainville island and Tonolei harbor on the same island. They blasted enemy ships at Faisi on Shortland island. They raided Rekata Isabel and they blasted enemy at least 15 Jap bomber and torpedo planes plummeting into the ocean on Oct. 26 before they could reach the Hornet. It was more of his boys, led by Mike himself, who escorted Hornet bombers and torpedo planes to the enemy carrier force, shooting down Zero fighters sent out to stop them. Mike got at least one of those Zeros. The Navy hasn't announced the total number of Zeros shot down by the Sanchez-led fighters on that raid.

Little But Scrappy

Mike is a little guy but all fight when there are Japs around. After the Japs knocked out the Hornet in their morning raid, Mike's fighter pilots landed on another United States carrier, refueled and rearmed, and went back into action.

Chile and Argentina are the only American republics which maintain diplomatic relations with the Axis powers.

U. S. Fighters Shoot Down at Least Seven Japanese After Raid on Field in China

NEW DELHI, India, Jan. 17 (AP)—British and American air squadrons, ranging from near the Tibet border to the Andaman Sea, blasted Japanese bases and ships Friday and Saturday and returned without the loss of a plane, Allied communiqués said today.

Japanese raiders striking at a United Nations airfield near Chittagong on the Bay of Bengal were reported driven off with the loss of one plane and damage to several others, while one of the defenders was shot down.

Smashing at an escorted convoy far south of Rangoon Friday, heavy bombers of the 10th United States Air Force left a 7,000-ton Japanese cargo vessel sinking and apparently damaged a 5,000-ton ship by near misses, a United States communiqué said.

Japanese positions in Burma were pounded by British and American fliers. United States fighter planes, using bombs as well as guns, attacked Japanese headquarters at Maingkwan, in Western Burma near the Tibet border, and a footbridge at Taiphaga.

British Blenheim bombers, cooperating with ground troops in the Mayu Peninsula of Burma, "successfully attacked" targets at the Japanese base on Akyab Is-

Wide offensive sweeps also hit at a variety of objectives, including river craft, trains, enemy-held buildings and coastal shipping, and "considerable success" was declared achieved.

Navy Cross Given Gatch, Battleship Commander

His Craft Downed 32 Planes in Santa Cruz Battle

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (AP).—The Navy Cross has been awarded to Captain Thomas L. Gatch, whose battleship shot down thirty-two Japanese planes while it was protecting an aircraft carrier in the Battle of the Santa Cruz Islands in the Southwest Pacific.

The Navy citation, announced today, said Captain Gatch "boldly maneuvered his ship close to a United States aircraft carrier in order to carry out more effectively his mission in the defense of the carrier; and so continued until he was so seriously wounded from the explosion of an enemy bomb as to have to turn over his command."

Captain Gatch, fifty-two years old, has his home at Annapolis, Md. The Navy Cross was awarded to him by Admiral William F. Halsey jr., commander in the South Pacific.

Rehabilitation Seen As Post-war Problem

Business Men Are Looking Into Future

Wonder If Governent Will Turn Economy Back to Private Enterprise.

By Claude A. Jagger

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (AP)—Says a business leader, "I am not fighting for a quart of milk for every Hottentot or for a TVA on the Danube, or for governmental handouts of free Utopia."

Says a prominent industrialist, "when peace comes, half the world will be hungry, homeless and under-nourished, if not starving. And America will not hesitate. As she has been the arsenal of Democracy in the war, she will be the Good Samaritan in peace."

Made by Same Person

Are these two quotations cited to show diametrically opposing views of the isolationist and the internationalist? Well, hardly. They were made by the same man.

The first is from a speech by William P. Witherow, as president of the National Association of Manufacturers, in New York, Dec. 2, last. The second is from an address by Witherow, now chairman of the board of NAM, in Chicago, only last Wednesday.

Nor can one conclude that Witherow has sharply changed his ground between Dec. 2 and Jan. 13. What business men like Witherow are wondering about is whether the government, geared up to hundred-billion-a-year spending in wartime, is going to turn the economy back to private enterprise after the war. The question is, who is going to do the job of post-war rehabilitation?

What Witherow was driving at with his widely quoted comment about milk-for-every-Hottentot and a TVA-on-the-Danube, was something in the nature of a gigantic and endless international relief and public works undertakings with taxpayers' money.

"If private capital is permitted to do the job, it can be done to the benefit of our foreign friends, and with a margin of profit to our own citizens that will help bring world-wide prosperity. x x x

"If government undertakes a share-the-wealth plan on an international scale, it may benefit those in foreign lands, but only by the impoverishment of the American people."

But Witherow does not rule out the government in this. In his Chicago speech he said particularly with respect to supplying food and medicines, "government must do this immediate post-war rescue job and in the doing of it, government will have the wholehearted cooperation of industry."

Furthermore, he said the general job of economic rehabilitation, while a job for free enterprise, is one to be done "under government guidance."

It is no secret in NAM circles that the Hottentot and TVA-on-the-Danube remarks, while a very small part of the Dec. 2 speech, met with unfavorable response from several quarters.

Wants Business to Do Job

Perhaps with that in mind, Witherow said in his Chicago address: "I would have electric power plants built all over the world wherever they are needed; I would have automobiles for every one who can afford to own and drive one; I would have a refrigerator and a radio in every home, but I want to see all of these things built and supplied by the operation of free enterprise."

He said further:

"Governmental economic rehabilitation is merely another tag for the dole and a nation on the dole cannot be expected to develop and prosper. Secretary Hull, I believe, had this in mind when, in promising the stricken nations emancipation and self-determination, he added they must help to earn their own liberties. No man nor no nation should be denied the right and responsibility of working out its own destiny."

He said because the government could not do the post-war job effectively on a public-finance and taxation basis, what was needed was encouragement of savings in productive enterprise, instead of discouragement by unwise taxation or any other policy. He spoke of China, saying the nation "could develop her productive power three fold in a dozen years, if given a chance as we know it. Her coal reserves are estimated at 250 billion tons. Her iron reserves will last 600 years."

Flynn, Roosevelt Close Friends Nearly 20 Years

JAN 18 1943

Bronx Leader, Now Under Fire in Senate, Is Known as a Fighter.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 — (AP) Eighteen years ago an obscure New York politician paid a courtesy call on a man who had given up politics for the insurance business.

They had met before, yes, but then and there a really firm friendship began.

The insurance man was Franklin D. Roosevelt, then recovering from infantile paralysis; the politician was Edward J. Flynn, now retiring as Democratic national chairman, whose nomination to a diplomatic post in Australia has lathered the Republicans—and some Democrats—into a fine political fury.

Flynn, as Bronx county leader, thought it would be a friendly gesture to call on the man who a few years earlier had been the party's unsuccessful vice presidential candidate.

Other visits followed. The men's friendship grew, and in 1928 when Alfred E. Smith sought the presidency, Tammany leaders decided to run Roosevelt for governor to strengthen the party state ticket. Flynn was the intermediary between Roosevelt and Smith.

The beginning of the story of Flynn's appointment to a diplomatic post is a bit confusing. President Roosevelt usually announces his own appointments. Then the man so honored starts talking. This time the reverse was true.

Flynn called a press conference in New York on Jan. 8 and proudly told reporters of his new and important task in the Far Pacific as minister to Australia. The White House was never more silent for four days.

Then on Monday, Mr. Roosevelt sent to the Senate Flynn's nomination, and made public a letter which he had written to "Dear Eddie" on Friday.

"It was just a comedy of errors on both sides," said Flynn.

Ed Flynn is a strapping, six-foot Irishman who rose to political success by teaming with a winner still in the making—Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Remember Him "When"

Even now there are reporters in the Bronx who say they can remember Flynn when he was a lawyer and so desperately poor he use to smoke their cigarettes because he didn't have any of his own.

That, of course, was years ago and in definite contrast to the Flynn of today with a home on Spuyten Duyvil parkway and a country place at Lake Mahopac, Putnam county, New York. It was the simple matter of paving a Belgian courtyard at his country home that has caused him the most trouble.

Early in 1942 Paul J. Kern, deposed president of the Municipal Civil Service commission, charged that Flynn had used some 8,000 city-owned granite paving blocks to surface his courtyard, and that city employes had done the work.

Flynn, vacationing in Florida, declared, "I am afraid Kern is suffering from a delusion of self-importance and self-righteousness which has unbalanced his mind. I had no knowledge of, or responsibility for the situation he is trying to capitalize."

While several investigations were in progress, Flynn reimbursed the city, and later a Bronx county grand jury exonerated him. Flynn sold the estate in July, but his present ambitions are being buffeted about by some senators. Senator Bridges (R.-N.H.) already has called him "Paving Block Flynn."

Bridges Opposed

In the Senate Bridges demanded that the Foreign Relations committee investigate various charges against Flynn. A hearing is slated for the coming week.

He declared that Flynn, through the law firm of Goldwater and Flynn, "represented a Mr. Serge Rubinstein, who at the time of his retainer with Flynn had large Japanese interests and that this Mr. Rubinstein was closely associated with this country until two weeks before Pearl Harbor." Rubinstein, Bridges added, also "presented a gift of money to the Japanese government at a time when our relations with Japan were clearly strained."

The senator also charged that Flynn, as chancellor of the City of New York, invested public funds in the State Title and Mortagage Co., causing the city to lose over $1,000,000.

"Flynn's law firm subsequently became general counsel to this company and his law partner, Mr. Monroe Goldwater, served as a director," he said.

Bridges charged also that Flynn appointed "Dutch" Schultz, notorious racketeer, a deputy sheriff when Flynn was Bronx county sheriff, and that Schultz served throughout Flynn's term although the sheriff knew he was a criminal.

Finally he charged that the Bronx county grand jury investigation of the paving block scandal "was conducted by a political stooge of Flynn's and was improperly handled to the disgust of at least one member of the grand jury."

Juror to Appear

That juror, Bridges said, would appear before the committee to "tell why Flynn was exonerated."

Flynn, aware beforehand of the nature of the charges likely to be made, had already denied them.

In his letter this week to Senator Connally, Flynn said he would welcome the chance to defend himself against baseless charges.

"I believe that the air should be thoroughly cleared of inuendo, hearsay and gossip with reference to these year old charges against me."

But to return to the early days when lawyer Flynn was scratching in the thin soil of minor Bronx courts for the little pay dirt he could find.

JAN 18 1943

It was not long after he was graduated from Fordham University Law school that he began to dabble in the Democratic party affairs of his home borough, and in 1917 when he was 25, he was elected to the State Assembly.

Next he was sheriff of the Bronx, a job not without possibilities for an ambitious man who wanted to build his own political organization.

Tireless Organizer

Flynn was tireless. He had a good pattern for organization before him in the then firmly bedded Tammany Hall. He didn't deviate from an old Tammany rule that a political boss doesn't just grow by chance but by steady plugging 365 days a year.

That he did, year after year, meanwhile serving as Secretary of State when Roosevelt was governor.

He has dominated Democratic affairs in the Bronx for a score of years, and after Tammany broke with Roosevelt to support Alfred E. Smith in 1932 much of the fich dish of patronage which is served to deserving Democrats in this city of seven million people was his to portion out as he saw fit.

By 1936, Flynn was the Democratic National committeeman for New York, and in 1940 he became the national chairman, when James A. Farley quit. He also was one of that select and secretive group led by Harry Hopkins which ran the essential affairs of the Democratic national convention in Chicago from a suite in the Blackstone hotel when President Roosevelt was nominated for a third term.

Flynn is not an ordinary politician.

He is pleasant and quiet (but a fighter nevertheless) and his slightly nasal voice always is nicely modulated.

Frequently he speaks slowly, and seems to be weighing words, with the care of a man who doesn't want to make a slip. His friends think that might be a good trait for a potential diplomat.

For the most part he dresses conservatively, but he has a penchant for gaudy and flamboyant ties—stripes and bold contrasting designs.

He chain-smokes cigarettes.

Active at 52

At 52, he is vigorous and active, and enjoys golf, horseback riding and other outdoor sports. He weighs about 200 pounds, has thinning gray hair which is on the verge of becoming sparse, a freckled forehead and gray, bushy eyebrows.

Flynn is married—his wife is dark-haired and attractive—and has two sons and one daughter. He has a tremendous interest in his family, and spends every spare moment possible with them.

The President's esteem for him was indicated in the letter addressed to "Dear Eddie" which, in part:

JAN 18 1943

"In addition to the appointment as minister to Australia) I am appointing you my personal representative with the rank of ambassador. I do so because, in the very large area of the South Pacific, I want to feel free to avail myself of your services in various other forms of activities, over and above your duties as minister."

U.S. WILL ATTAIN '43 SHIPPING GOAL, ADMIRAL PREDICTS

19 Million Tons Would Equal Third of World's Tonnage.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 — (AP) America's merchant shipping goal of 19 million tons for 1943—approximately a third of all the world's tonnage estimated to be in existence last summer—will be met, provided necessary materials are made available as required, it was said here today by Rear Admiral Howard L. Vickery of the Maritime commission.

In a "Wake up America" radio forum broadcast over the Blue network this afternoon, Admiral Vickery said that difficulties in connection with manpower, transportation, and housing still lie ahead. He added: "Eight million tons of shipping were not built last year without encountering and overcoming many discouraging problems."

Dynamic Start

"Last year, 1942, was the year of getting started," he said, "but American shipyards delivered more steel merchant tonnage than any nation had ever before built in any two years.

"Victory and the time of victory depend on merchant ships," Sir Arthur Salter, of the British embassy, declared on the same broadcast.

U-Boats Still Hold Edge

"U-boats are still being built more quickly than they are being destroyed, and the enemy's attack is keeping pace with our protective measures," he said.

"In making the best use of ships, many can help—those who control ships, those who man them, those who load and unload them, those who give up the use of food and materials that have to be imported," declared Sir Salter.

Labor Representation Urged

George Wright, vice-president of the Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America, C.I.O., the third speaker on the forum, declared that shipbuilding is not being done as efficiently as it could be done, and urged that organized labor be "called into consultation with government agencies and employers, to develop a real program for maximum efficiency in the construction and repair of ships."

"From what I have been advised by the men who build and man the ships," Mr. Wright said, "too much publicity entirely has been given to the launchings, while very little effort has been made to bring together the men who build and sail the ships with the government and the employers in the planning of the most efficient production techniques and maximum utilization of available bottoms."

FIVE MORE SINKINGS BY U-BOATS REPORTED

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The first anniversary of the sinking by U-boats in the present war of ships off the Atlantic coast was noted last Thursday, and during the week loss of two more neutral and three United Nations ships by submarine action was announced.

One other United Nations ship was sunk in a collision in the Caribbean.

The sinking by enemy action raised to 593 the announced total of Allied and neutral losses in the Western Atlantic since Pearl Harbor, as listed by the Associated Press. Of this total, 198 were sunk off the United States, 50 off Canada, 178 in the Caribbean, 46 in the Gulf of Mexico and 122 off South America and in the South Atlantic.

First Arab Land Joins the Allies

By CARL C. CRANMER

Iraq joined the United Nations Saturday and thereby became the first Arab land to join the world-wide coalition that is fighting the would-be world dictatorship of Berlin-Rome-Tokyo.

JAN 18 1943

This little Middle East country's arrival into the United Nations family ordinarily would not arouse much attention in days when force is supreme. Iraq is said to have an army of about 28,000 men and an air force of about four squadrons. These are not hefty weights to cast into the greatest war of history.

Moreover, in a strategic sense Iraq has but two assets to offer her 30 Allies. They are her rich oil fields at Mosul and her Persian gulf ports for dispatch of supplies to Russia—and the Allies already had full access to both of these.

Nevertheless, there may be considerable significance to Iraq's taking the plunge into a belligerent camp right at this moment after months of hesitation.

First of all, the announcement was made at a time when Hitler obviously is turning considerable attention to the eastern Mediterranean, the Balkans and the Middle East.

It was made on the very day when Berlin and Rome were disclosing a resumption of the British Eighth army's push through Libya toward Tripoli.

The Paris radio also noted a number of British and American troop movements in the Medjez-el-Bab and Pont-du-Fahs areas of Tunisia.

But more intriguing than these hints of a flare-up of violent activity in the middle Mediterranean was the Berlin broadcast of the military correspondent, Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, who said increased concentrations of Allied forces "in Syria, Cyprus and the Nile delta" had been observed.

"It is possible to surmise a connection," he said, between these concentrations and the possibility that the "Allies contemplate an eventual surprise attack on the southeast flank of the European fortress before the projected union" of British and American armies in Libya and Tunisia.

This German expert concluded that the plan "hardly appears plausible" now because the Allies would have to bring the supplies for a very large force all the way around Africa.

Nevertheless Hitler is worried by the state of his defenses in the Balkans, Crete and the islands of the Aegean and has the Bulgarian war minister at his headquarters, possibly to urge that more Bulgarian troops be brought into the service of the Axis for defense in the Balkan and Greek area.

The British radio said the Iraq premier, Gen. Nuri Pasha Es Said, broadcast from Cairo the announcement that the Iraq parliament had "approved the advice of the ministers to adhere to the declaration of the United Nations." At Cairo he probably would be informed of Allied military developments.

Iraq at the present stage appears to be remote form military projects affecting Crete, the Balkans and North Africa.

Even a large-scale movement of war supplies to Russia by way of the Persian gulf—Secretary Ickes reported last week that President Roosevelt had given Russia preference on supplies — would seem to be affected in only a minor way by Iraq's new status as a belligerent.

It is the moral factor—the first adherence of an Arab nation to the Allied cause—that makes Iraq's action important. Iraq's role may have some effect among the more than 200,000,000 Moslems of the world, including 44,000,000 in Africa. About 14,000,000 of them are in Tunisia, Algeria and Morocco where they are a huge factor in the present French political tangle.

For this reason Wendell Willkie made a stop in Bagdad on his world tour and dined with the premier.

Probably of decisive influence in swinging Iraq to the Allied cause was the American landing in North Africa last November. At that time the premier sent an unusually long and friendly letter to President Roosevelt praising that "lightning blow to Axis pretenses in the Mediterranean" which he said "constitutes a threat to the weakest link in the Axis chain."

"All the friends of the United Nations and particularly the Arab races of North Africa and the Near East are full of rejoicing," he said.

This veteran statesman and soldier long had made no secret of his sympathies, however. Prime Minister of Iraq six times, he early became associated with the British in the Middle Eastern political tangle after and during the first World war. He was a close friend of Feisal, the late king of Iraq, and Lawrence of Arabia.

As long ago as last August he was quoted as saying Iraq would fight for the Allies if the Germans pierced the Russian Caucasus.

Since about that time Gen. Sir Henry Maitland "Jumbo" Wilson has been in command of an independent British army there.

The Berlin radio was quick to see significance in Iraq's action, and poured forth a flow of criticism of the premier who in 1941 succeeded Rashid Ali al Gailani who led a Nazi-inspired movement to oust British troops.

In an effort to discourage the Moslem world from following in her footsteps, Berlin said Iraq's fate had been determined by a political clique and that Nuri Es Said was being misled by dreams of an Arab economic bloc in the post-war world.

GERMAN POSITION ON FOOD HELD GOOD

Situation Far From Critical, OWI Says on Basis of Data Reaching Government

LOOTING SYSTEM HELPS

Occupied Countries and Axis Satellites Compelled to Send Supplies to Reich

JAN 18 1943

With the Germans conducting an intensive production drive throughout Europe and milking the occupied countries of their produce, the present German food position is far from critical, the Office of War Information reported yesterday on the basis of data reaching the Board of Economic Warfare and other government agencies.

Although the German food position is much better than it was in the last war, the present German diet—coarse, monotonous and lacking in such edible foods as meat, animal fats and white bread—is far below the diet of wartime America.

Food production in Axis-held Europe in the 1942-43 crop year will fall short of ordinary civilian requirements, but it is not expected in itself to impair seriously the German war effort, the OWI said. Through a larger consumption of potatoes and other vegetables, the Germans are substituting less valuable vegetable protein for scarce animal protein, but the substitution is not expected to diminish by a considerable amount the physical powers of the German people this year.

It is indicated by the United States Government data that the German diet this year will be only slightly worse than it was last year. Shortages of fats and livestock products remain the sore spots in the Axis' food economy. Both the European grain and fruit crops were cut last year as a consequence of bad weather and the fish catch—affected by the blockade, shortage of ships and danger of mines—is still below normal. But practically every country in Europe last year reported an increased potato crop.

Sugar Stocks Little Impaired

Axis sugar stocks are considered only slightly less than those of the pre-war years, while German vegetable production and vegetable imports rose sufficiently in 1942 to enable Germany to increase her per capita vegetable consumption by more than 50 per cent.

As long as the Germans control Europe, they can overcome German deficiencies in a number of foods by taking whatever food products Germany needs from the occupied countries and from her allies, even though this means shortages and starvation for them.

German food rations are much greater than those not only of the occupied countries but of Italy and Finland. Italy is in a far worse food position than Germany and Italians are reported to be complaining constantly about the shipping of Italian fresh vegetables and fruits to Germany. The Finnish food situation, which was considered very bad a few months ago, has improved slightly as a result of German shipments made after strong demands by the Finns.

Germany's comparatively favorable food position is made possible by a policy of systematic loot, modified only by the necessity of allowing the conquered people to retain enough of their own food supply to enable them to contribute to the Axis war effort. In 1941, it is reported, the Netherlands exported 420,000 metric tons of vegetables to Germany, while Italy exported about 150,000 tons. The figures for 1942 are thought to be higher.

Other Countries' Situations

Except for the inhabitants of such farming regions as the tobacco area of Greece, the rural population in the occupied countries, on the whole, manages to get food, even though it is less than that to which it is accustomed. Those who suffer principally from the lack of food are the lower-income groups in the cities.

The starvation in the cities of occupied Russia is probably more extensive than anywhere else in Europe. Otherwise, the situation is believed to be most acute in Greece, where starvation conditions prevail in the cities. Even such former surplus products as olive oil, fruits and vegetables are scarce and the bread ration is only 1,300 grams a week.

The food situation in Belgium and Finland is also reported to be serious. In Belgium the bread ration is somewhat higher than in Greece, but it is only 70 per cent of the German ration. The average Belgian also gets only about half the average German's meat ration and about one-third his fat ration.

In Poland a sharp distinction is made in rationing between Germans, on the one hand, and Poles and Jews (of whatever nationality) on the other. Germans get about the same rations as in the Reich, while Poles and Jews theoretically get half as much. Actually, many Poles and Jews are being starved as part of a deliberate and consistent German policy.

HITLER MAY USE GAS, GERARD SAYS

Allies Have Chemicals More Deadly Than Germany's, Former Envoy Asserts

INVASION OF BRITAIN SEEN

Possibility of Japanese Attack on Alaskan or U. S. Coasts Is Also Envisaged

JAN 18 1943

The time is approaching when Reichsfuehrer Hitler, hard-pressed by the Russians and facing an increasingly more difficult situation elsewhere, "will take desperate chances" in an effort to escape defeat and may try to use poison gas, James W. Gerard, United States Ambassador to Germany during the First World War, declared last night.

"But the United Nations possess new gases more deadly than anything ever invented by German chemists," Mr. Gerard said.

Speaking over Station WINS, Mr. Gerard predicted that Herr Hitler might try an invasion of England, at least by shock units, in an endeavor to scare the British into keeping a great force at home.

"He may demand his pound of flesh from France, in the shape of an attack on Gibraltar, an attack from Spanish Morocco on the rear of the American forces in North Africa and control of Ceuta and, in any event, his submarines will be more active than ever in their attacks on the supply lines for North Africa and Russia," Mr. Gerard said. "The most fantastic moves will be made by Hitler and his miserable puppets to force poor France into war with the United Nations."

Mr. Gerard agreed with Joseph C. Grew, Ambassador to Tokyo until the break between the United States and Japan, that "sooner or later the Japanese will try a desperate invasion of the coasts of the United States or Alaska.

"Our splendid landing in Africa has given new hope to the French," Mr. Gerard said. "It is there that the patriotism of France will have a free outlet. It is there that the star of hope rises for the broken people of France.

"International bankers make me sick. I heard one say that we need, after the war, a happy and prosperous Germany. After the last war we kissed the good, kind Germans, gave them food and good American money, and they repaid us by a gangster war to control the world and started a persecution of a peaceful people which has no parallel even in the Middle Ages."

Mr. Gerard predicted that "we and the United Nations will police Germany in the interest of world security and in the interest of the Germans themselves, who otherwise will be torn to pieces by the revenges of the outraged peoples of Europe."

Mr. Gerard was confident that "Generals Giraud and de Gaulle, both men of high character and great patriotism, will find a common basis of policy and agreement."

STALINGRAD

BY EDDY GILMORE

WITH THE RED ARMY WEST OF STALINGRAD, JAN 12-(DELAYED)-(AP)-MAJ. GEN. PIOTR VASILEVICH KOTELKOV, 43-YEAR-OLD COSSACK, PUT HIS ROUGH FOREFINGER ON THE BIG MAP AND GRINNED.

"THERE IS THE ENCIRCLED GERMAN ARMY," HE SAID. "THEY'RE HELPLESS. THEY'RE EATING ONLY 150 GRAMS (ABOUT 5 1/4 OUNCES) OF FOOD DAILY.

"WE WILL SMASH THEM IF THEY DON'T SURRENDER."

"LOOK FOR YOURSELF," HE CONTINUED, POINTING TO THE MAP AGAIN.

AS HE TRACED THE LINES, THE ENCIRCLED GROUP IS BOUNDED BY KARPOVSKAYA ON THE WEST, BY BOLSHOI AND ROSSOSHKA ON THE NORTH, PRESCHANKA ON THE SOUTH, WITH BOTH THE LATTER PLACES IN RUSSIAN HANDS, AND BY STALINGRAD ON THE EAST.

JAN 18 1943

"NOWHERE ARE THE GERMANS NOW ON THE VOLGA," SAID THE GENERAL.

THE GENERAL SAID THE AREA IS ROUGHLY ABOUT 48 MILES BY 36 AND GETTING SMALLER DAILY.

30.24-409

(THE RUSSIAN SPECIAL COMMUNIQUE SATURDAY NIGHT REPORTED THE CAPTURE OF BASARGINO, ONLY 11 MILES WEST OF STALINGRAD, AND MOSCOW DISPATCHES SUNDAY SAID THE AREA HAD BEEN REDUCED TO ABOUT 200 SQUARE MILES--ABOUT 20 MILES LONG AND 10 MILES WIDE.)

JAN 18 1943

"THERE ARE ABOUT 22 TO 23 DIVISIONS THERE," HE CONTINUED. "THERE ALSO ARE ABOUT 50,000 TO 60,000 RUSSIAN CIVILIANS WITHIN THIS AREA."

THEN HE ADDED SUCCINCTLY, "THESE ARE SOVIET CITIZENS WHO COULDN'T GET AWAY--OR PREFERRED TO REMAIN FOR OTHER WORK."

THEN HE TURNED TO ANOTHER PHASE OF HIS WORK.

"DID YOU HEAR THOSE MOTORS OVER YOUR HOUSE LAST NIGHT?" HE ASKED.

I SURELY DID, FOR THEY BUZZED LIKE MOSQUITOES ON A HOT NIGHT.

"THOSE WERE GERMAN TRANSPORTS," HE SAID. "THEY ARE NOT FLYING MUCH IN THE DAYTIME NOW FOR THEY GET SHOT DOWN TOO QUICKLY. WE GOT THREE OF THEM LAST NIGHT."

KOTELKOV TURNED HIS WEATHER-ROUGHENED FACE TOWARD THE WINDOW, PUTTING HIS SQUARE JAW IN PROFILE.

"DO YOU WANT TO TALK TO SOME OF THESE LUFTWAFFE PILOTS WE HAVE BEEN SHOOTING DOWN?" HE ASKED.

I JUMPED AT THE CHANCE AND HE NODDED TO AN OFFICER.

UNTIL THE PRISONER WAS BROUGHT IN WE TALKED OF HOW THESE JUNKERS TRANSPORTS USED TO FLY OVER IN GROUPS AS HIGH AS 500 DAILY, BUT NOW COME ONLY AT THE RATE OF ABOUT 100.

THE FIRST PRISONER WAS SIGFRIED PECK, 21, A NON-COMMISSIONED OFFICE IN THE GERMAN AIR FORCE, TWO YEARS A MACHINE-GUNNER.

HE SAID THIS WAS HIS SECOND FLIGHT TO THE ENCIRCLED GROUP FROM SALSK. ON HIS FIRST TRIP HE HAD LANDED AT PEITOMNIK AND STAYED ABOUT HALF AN HOUR. HE SAID HE DID NOT KNOW 22 OR 23 DIVISIONS WERE SURROUNDED.

"I KNEW THERE WERE SOME TROOPS, THEY TOLD US IT WAS ABOUT A DIVISION," HE SAID.

ON THIS, HIS FIRST FLIGHT, HE SAID, HE TOOK BACK EIGHT WOUNDED NAZIS FROM THE ENCIRCLED FORCE.

THE NEXT PRISONER EDWARD DISENBERG, 29, A FIRST LIEUTENANT AND PILOT IN THE LUFTWAFFE FOR SEVEN YEARS, SAID HE PARACHUTED WHEN HIS PLANE WAS BOWNED BY NIGHT FIGHTERS.

JAN 18 1943

HE ADMITTED ON CLOSE QUESTIONING THAT HE HAD BEEN TOLD ABOUT 100,000 GERMANS WERE GETTING SUPPLIES OUTSIDE STALINGRAD ONLY BY TRANSPORT PLANE. HE TOO CAME TO THE SALSK AREA EIGHT DAYS AGO FROM THE GERMAN REAR.

"THIS SURROUNDING WENT ON LAST YEAR, TOO," HE SAID BELLIGERENTLY. "IT WON'T MEAN MUCH. THEY'LL EITHER GET OUT OR WE'LL GET IN."

BY HENRY C.CASSIDY JAN 18 1943

MOSCOW, JAN.17-(AP)-THE RUSSIANS SURGED FORWARD TODAY TO WITHIN 125 MILES OF KHARKOV, ANCIENT CAPITAL OF THE UKRAINE AND GREAT STEEL CENTER, IN THE SIXTH OF A SERIES OF DEVASTATING WINTER OFFENSIVES THAT HAVE KNOCKED THE GERMANS BACK FROM THE DON.

A VIOLENT BATTLE WAS REPORTED UNDERWAY WEST OF THE CAPTURED HEDGEHOG OF ROSSOSH, LARGEST TOWN TAKEN IN THE NEW DRIVE SOUTH OF VORONEZH, AS THE RED ARMY PRESSED ON PAST ROVENKI, 28 MILES TO THE SOUTHWEST.

SIMULTANEOUSLY, THE RUSSIANS PRESSED THEIR CAMPAIGN OF EXTERMINATION AGAINST THE 50,000 SURVIVORS COMPRESSED IN A 200-SQUARE-MILE TRAP WEST

OF STALINGRAD. ALREADY 170,000 HAVE BEEN KILLED OR CAPTURED IN THE TRAP.

SOME 1,800 MORE GERMANS OF THE 22 DOOMED DIVISIONS WERE KILLED OVERNIGHT AND 298 WERE CAPTURED ALONG WITH LARGE AMOUNTS OF EQUIPMENT INCLUDING 28 TANKS AND 60 GUNS, THE GOVERNMENT SAID.

CONTINUED ADVANCES WERE REPORTED IN THE NOON COMMUNIQUE IN THE ZIMOVNIKI AREA ON THE STALINGRAD-TIKHORETSK RAILWAY; ON THE NORTHERN DONETS; IN THE NORTHERN CAUCASUS; ON THE LOWER DON; AND SOUTHWEST OF VELIKIE LUKI ON THE CENTRAL FRONT OPPOSITE MOSCOW.

IN ALL SOME 4,000 GERMANS WERE KILLED OVERNIGHT AND ANOTHER 1,200 WERE CAPTURED IN THE SURGING BATTLES OF ATTRITION.

JAN 18 1943

(THE GERMANS FINALLY ADMITTED BY IMPLICATION THE FALL OF VELIKIE LUKI WHICH THE RUSSIANS SAID THEY RECAPTURED JAN.2. THE GERMANS USED THE PHRASE "FLEXIBLE DEFENSE"--TO EXPLAIN THEIR DIFFICULTY IN THE SOUTH, WHERE THEY SAID STRONG RUSSIAN ATTACKS WERE REPELLED. HEAVY DEFENSIVE FIGHTING "AGAINST SOVIET MASS ATTACKS" WAS REPORTED IN THE STALINGRAD AREA.)

THE STARVED AND SHIVERING SURVIVORS OF THE STALINGRAD DEBACLE WERE REPORTED DRIVEN BACK FROM THE WEST BANK OF THE VOLGA AND SQUEEZED OUT OF THE WESTERN HALF OF THEIR ORIGINAL CIRCLE ABOUT THE CITY. FRONTLINE DISPATCHES SAID THEY WERE NOW MASSED FOR SLAUGHTER IN A CONTRACTING TRIANGLE WITH ITS BASE ALONG THE WESTERN SUBURBS. THE LIMITS OF THEIR PEN WERE BOUNDED BY THE TOWNS OF PESHANKA, JUST SOUTHWEST OF STALINGRAD AND ORLOVKA JUST NORTHWEST, WITH THE SIDES OF THE TRIANGLE MEETING AT ZAPADNOVKA 30 MILES WEST OF STALINGRAD.

ALTHOUGH THE SPECIAL COMMUNIQUE LAST NIGHT SAID 70,000 TO 80,000 OF THE ORIGINAL 220,000 WERE STILL ALIVE, LATER DISPATCHES TODAY SAID NO MORE THAN 50,000 REMAINED UNDER THE REDUCING BLASTS OF RED ARMY ARTILLERY AND BOMBS.

THE WINTER CAMPAIGN WHICH STARTED NOV.19 WITH THE STALINGRAD DRIVE NOW HAS REACHED ITS HEIGHT.

LONG LINES OF RED ARMY TANKS, TRUCKS, AND MOTOR-DRIVEN SNOW SLEDGES ROLLED INTO THE LATEST DRIVE ON THE VORONEZH FRONT WEST OF THE DON TOWARD BOTH KHARKOV AND KURSK.

JAN 18 1943

COL.GEN.ALEXANDER MIKHAILOVICH VASILEVSKY, WHO ASSISTED GEN. GREGORY K.ZHUKOV IN THE EARLIER BATTLE OF STALINGRAD, HAS RISEN RAPIDLY TO THE TOP FLIGHT OF RED ARMY OFFICERS IN SUPERVISING THE VORONEZH OFFENSIVE. THE NEW DRIVE WAS EXECUTED BY TROOPS UNDER THE DIRECT COMMAND OF COL.GEN.NIKOLAI F.VATUTIN AND LIEUT.GEN.F.I.GOLOKOV.

THE RUSSIANS, WHO ALREADY HAD A FOOTHOLD ON THE WEST BANK OF THE DON SOUTH OF VORONEZH, BROKE THROUGH AN ELABORATE SYSTEM OF GERMAN FORTIFICATIONS INCLUDING DEEP TRENCHES, MINEFIELDS AND BARBED WIRE ENTANGLEMENTS SPREAD ACROSS THE JAGGED TERRAIN.

FOR SIX MONTHS THE GERMANS HAD LABORIOUSLY ERECTED THIS MAZE OF DEFENSE POSITIONS WHICH WERE GONE IN A MATTER OF A FEW HOURS, THE NOON COMMUNIQUE SAID. DISPATCHES SAID THAT THE RED ADVANCE WAS SO SWIFT THAT LOADED GERMAN FIELD GUNS WERE CAPTURED BEFORE THEY COULD BE FIRED.

AS ON OTHER BATTLEFIELDS WHERE THE RED ARMY ALREADY HAS STRUCK, COLUMNS OF THOUSANDS OF GERMANS AND THEIR MERCENARIES STUMBLED EAST TO PRISON CAMPS UNDER THE ESCORT OF SOVIET TROOPS. THE PRISONERS PASSED LONG COLUMNS OF RUSSIANS MOVING UP TO THE ATTACK.

JAN 18 1943

THE VORONEZH OFFENSIVE PROCEEDED ALONG A 100-MILE FRONT.

THE MOST ADVANCED POINT SHOWN IN SPECIAL MAPS PUBLISHED WITH LAST NIGHT'S SPECIAL COMMUNIQUE WAS ROVENKI, 28 MILES SOUTHWEST OF ROSSOSH,

WHICH IS ON THE MOSCOW-ROSTOV RAILWAY 90 MILES BELOW VORONEZH. OTHER OCCUPIED TOWNS LAY ALONG THE RAILROAD BETWEEN SELIAVNOYE AND KANTEMIROVKA AND IN THE DON STEPPES TO THE WEST.

JAN 18 1943

THE CULMINATING ATTACK ON THE ENCIRCLED GERMANS IN THE STALINGRAD ZONE STARTED AT 8:05 A.M. ON JAN.10 AFTER THE GERMANS REJECTED AN ULTIMATUM TO SURRENDER. COLONEL GENERAL VORONOV'S BIG GUNS POURED SHELLS INTO THE ENEMY FOR 55 MINUTES AND THEN THE TANKS CHARGED FROM SEVERAL SIDES. INFANTRY FOLLOWED THE TANKS INTO THE THICKLY FORTIFIED GERMAN ZONE WHILE RUSSIAN BOMBERS ROARED OVERHEAD DROPPING THEIR MISSILES OF DEATH. THE RUSSIANS SAID THEY HAD COMPLETE AIR SUPERIORITY.

THE GERMANS STUBBORNLY ATTEMPTED A COMEBACK, DISPATCHES SAID, BUT WERE DRIVEN BACK VILLAGE BY VILLAGE AND COMPRESSED FROM THE NORTH, NORTHWEST AND SOUTHWEST.

MARINOVKA AND KARPOVKA, STRONG DEFENSE BASES ON THE TRANS-DON RAILWAY WEST OF STALINGRAD, WERE ATTACKED ON THE FIRST DAY OF THE OFFENSIVE. DISPATCHES SAID THE RED ARMY TOOK HILLS DOMINATING THE TOWNS, WHICH WERE IN RUINS FROM THE GERMAN SUMMER DRIVE. THEY WERE RECAPTURED SWIFTLY.

A14

THE MAIN WESTERN RIM OF THE GERMAN POCKET COLLAPSED SOON AFTERWARDS. IT RAN THROUGH BABURKIN, KARPOVKA AND BERESLAVSKY WITH THE TIP EXTENDING FURTHER WEST THROUGH DMITRIEVKA AND ATAMANSKY.

"THE SHOW STARTED ABOUT 8:30 AND WE WERE SITTING ON TOP ESCORTING THE BOMBERS. I WAS FLYING IN THE TAIL POSITION.

"WE PENETRATED THE ENEMY LINES NEARLY 300 MILES AND THE BOMBERS LAID THEIR EGGS. ALL THIS TIME WE HADN'T SEEN A SIGN OF OPPOSITION. JUST AS WE TURNED AND HEADED FOR HOME WE WERE JUMPED BY MORE THAN 20 MESSERSCHMITT-109'S.

"SUDDENLY AN ME-109 GOT IN A BURST ON ME AND BULLETS STRUCK ABOVE MY HEAD. THEN HE GOT IN ANOTHER BURST AND HIT MY ENGINE.

JAN 18 1943

"I WAS TRAVELLING ABOUT 300 MILES AN HOUR AT ABOUT 5,000 FEET ELEVATION AND I TURNED THE NOSE OF THE PLANE TOWARD OUR LINES HOPING TO MAKE A LANDING ON OUR SIDE — BUT SUDDENLY THE ENGINE CAUGHT FIRE AND I HAD TO BAIL OUT.

"I CAME DOWN JUST BEHIND THE GERMAN LINES IN A SALT MARSH AND GOT A FEW BRUISES AND A SHAKING UP, BUT NO INJURIES. I OPENED MY KIT AND TOOK OUT THE RATION AND BURIED THE CHUTE TO DELAY PURSUIT THEN I WALKED ABOUT HALF A MILE AWAY TO A CLUMP OF BUSHES AND LAY DOWN AND RESTED RESTED ABOUT FOUR HOURS.

"THEN I BEGAN WALKING TOWARD THE SEA AND TOWARD OUR LINES. I WALKED UNTIL ABOUT 6 O'CLOCK IN THE EVENING WITHOUT SEEING A SOUL.

"SUDDENLY BEFORE I KNEW IT I CAME OUT BY THE SEA. I TOPPED A LONG RISE AND THERE IT WAS, AS BLUE AS EVER. I WALKED A FEW MINUTES AND SAW THREE MEN STANDING ON A LITTLE HILL. THEY KEPT PASSING THE GLASSES TO EACH OTHER AND STUDYING ME AND FINALLY ONE PICKED UP A RIFLE AND THE OTHERS DREW THEIR REVOLVERS AND THEY MADE THEIR WAY TOWARD ME.

JAN 18 1943

"WHEN THEY CAME TO WITHIN 50 YARDS ONE CALLED OUT AND ASKED I WAS AND WHAT I WAS DOING THERE.

"WHEN I HEARD THEM SPEAK ENGLISH I KNEW I WAS OUT OF THE WOODS. THEY TURNED OUT TO BE A GROUP ON RECONNAISSANCE. THEY TOOK ME TO THEIR CAMP WHERE I HAD A GOOD MEAL AND SPENT THE NIGHT.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA,JAN.16-(DELAYED)-(AP)-LIEUT.GENERAL E.F.HERRING, COMMANDER OF ALLIED GROUND FORCES IN NEW GUCNEA, TODAY DESCRIBED THE CAPTURE OF BUNA AS A MAGNIFICENT EXPLOIT AND PRAISED AUSTRALIAN AND AMERICAN FRONT LINE COOPERATION UNDER THE LEADERSHIP OF LIEUT.GENERAL ROBERT EICHELBERGER.

GENERAL HERRING, AUSTRALIAN VETERAN OF MIDDLE EAST FIGHTING, SAID IN A PRESS INTERVIEW:

"IT WAS A MAGNIFICENT EXPLOIT TO TAKE BUNA MISSION WITHOUT THE AID OF TANKS. THE ALLIED SOLDIERS WENT IN UNDER A QUITE SUBSTAN-

IAL FIRE BUT WEREN'T TO BE DENIED.

GENERAL EICHELBERGER TOLD ME IT WAS THE PROUDEST MOMENT OF HIS LIFE WHEN THE TROOPS ENTERED BUNA. FOR SHEER GUTS AND ENDURANCE THE AUSTRALIANS HAVE GREAT RESPECT FOR THE AMERICAN SOLDIERS. THE AMERICANF IN TURN HAVE GREAT RESPECT FOG THE AUSTRALIANS. THERE'S A MUTKAL COMRADESHIP AMONG THESE MEN WHO DESPITE CONSIDERABLE CASUALTIES, GREAT DIFFICULTIES AND PERSONAL HARDSHIPS WHICH TESTED THEIR MANHOOD, NEVER HAVE LOOKED LIKE THEY WOULD WILT."

JAN 18 1943

HERRING SAID GENERAL EICHELBERGER, AMERICAN CORPS COMMANDER ON THE BUNA FRONT, "HAS DONE SOMETHING WITH THE AMERICANS WHICH NOT MANY COULD DO. AN INEXPERIENCED DIVISION BUMPED UP AGAINST SOMETHING EVER SO MUCH TOUGHER THAN HE EXPECTED.

"EICHELBERGER BOLSTERED MORALE BY HIS OUTSTANDING EXAMPLE. WHY HE WASN'T KILLED GOD ONLY KNOWS. I THINK GOD LOOKED AFTEG HIM."

HERRING STRESSED THE ROLE OF INFANTRY IN WARFARE.

"WELL-TRAINED INFANTRY WILL ALWAYS DEFEAT THE JAPS," HE SAID.

THE BLUE-EYED, TRIM-MUSTACHED GENERAL SAID THE ALLIED SOLDIERS HAD LEARNED TO REGARD THE JAPANESE AS BEAST OR VERMIN.

"HOW ELSE CAN YOU REGARD A CREATURE THAT BITES THE HAND THAT DRESSE HIS WOUND?" HE ASKED.

H GENERAL HERRING SAID HE WOULD REGARD THE PAPUAN CAMPAIGN AS FINISHED ONLY WITH SANANANDA TAKEN. DISCREETLY, HE DECLINED TO ESTIMATE WHEN THAT WOULD BE.

WITH THE AMERICAN TROOPS IN NEW GUINEA, JAN 15-(DELAYED)-(AP)-"YOU MIGHT TELL THE FOLKS BACK HOME THAT THIS IS THE BEST DAMN MORTAR UNIT IN THE WHOLE AMERICAN ARMY," SAID LIEUT.ANTON DASINGER AS HE POINTED TO MORTAR PITS HE COMMANDS IN THE HUGGINS ROAD BLOCK ON THE SANANANDA FRONT IN NEW GUINEA.

DASINGER IS A CHEERFUL YOUNGSTER FROM SIDNEY, MONTANA.

OF COURSE HIS STATEMENT WILL BE OPEN TO ARGUMENT FROM MORTAR UNITS IN AFRICA, THE SOLOMON ISLANDS AND ELSEWHERE--PROBABLY EVEN FROM SOME WHO HAVEN'T YET LEFT TRAINING CAMP.

BUT DASINGER HAS A COUPLE OF ARGUMENTS WHICH CARRY ALL THE WEIGHT OF THE 81 AND 60 MILLIMETER MORTAR SHELLS HIS CREWS FIRE.

"AS A UNIT WE LAID DOWN A BARRAGE PRECEDING EVERY ATTACK THIS OUTFIT HAS MADE," DASINGER SAID.

"NOW, TAKE THIS BUNCH OF BOYS (POINTING DOWN INTO A THREE-FOOT-DEEP PIT SURROUNDED BY SANDBAGS WITH A SHELTER HALF STRETCHED OVER THE TOP TO KEEP OUT SOME OF THE RAIN. THIS DAY IT WAS OPEN PART WAY TO LET RARE SUNSHINE STREAM IN TO DRY OUT WATER LOGGED CLOTHES AND OTHER GEAR.) THEIR MORTAR KNOCKED OUT AT LEAST ONE JAP MACHINE GUN NEST WAY OVER TO THE WEST NEAR KILLERTON TRACK AFTER PART OF OUR FORCE HAD TAKEN A POSITION THERE."

JAN 18 19

DASINGER POINTED OUT THE MEMBERS OF HIS UNIT ONE BY ONE. IN THE PIT CLEANING THE MORTAR AND GETTING IT READY FOR ITS NEXT ROUNDS WERE PFC. ED TEETER OF LIVERMORE, CALIF., WHO LAYS THE SIGHTS AND SETS THE GUN ON ITS TARGET, AND PVT. CLEM SLIZASKE OF DEKALB, ILL., WHO DROPS SHELLS DOWN THE BARREL AND ASSISTS TEETER. WANDERING OVER TO FIND OUT WHAT WAS GOING ON WERE PFC. JOE BELL FROM HAYS, MONT., WHO CHECKS AMMUNITION, AND CORP. LESTER NIELSON OF OGDEN, UTAH, WHO IS IN CHARGE OF THE GUN.

JAN 18 1943

THIS IS THE 81 MM. CREW.

FROM THERE WE WENT OVER TO A SIMILAR BUT SLIGHTLY SMALLER PIT--IN WHICH THE MEN ALSO WORK, EAT AND SLEEP DAY AND NIGHT. AT THE MOMENT IT WAS INHABITED BY PFC. CHARLES AHLSTROM OF GRANDY, MONT., THE GUNNER. PFC. ED BIEHL OF MILES CITY, MONT., NUMBER TWO MAN, WAS RESTING IN AN ADJOINING FOXHOLE, WHILE SITTING ON A PILE OF SANDBAGS WAS THE AMMUNITION CHECKER, PVT. ED SOKOLOWSKI, HAMTRAMCK, MICH.

JAN 18 1943

"YOU'VE HEARD OF 'HAMTRAMCK MOMMA,'" BIEHL SAID WITH A GRIN. "WELL, THAT'S HAMTRAMCK POPPA."

THIS CREW IS IN CHARGE OF CORP. JOHN TEBAY OF WHITEHALL, MONT.

WHILE I WAS STANDING THERE CHATTING WITH THE BOYS, A BAREFOOTED, BLOND YOUNG MAN CAME UP AND STOOD LISTENING, RUNNING HIS TOES THROUGH THE WARM SAND AND SEEMING TO ENJOY THE SENSATION AS MUCH AS A YOUNGSTER BACK HOME WHO HAD TAKEN OFF HIS SHOES AND IS GOING BAREFOOT FOR THE FIRST TIME OF THE SUMMER.

"THIS IS CAPT. JOHN SPONENBURGH, OUR COMPANY COMMANDER," LIEUTENANT DASINGER SAID. "HE'S FROM OLYMPIA, WASH."

"BUT DON'T SAY ANYTHING ABOUT ME UNLESS IT'S GOOD," SPONENBURGH BROKE IN. "THIS IS THE FIRST CHANCE I'VE HAD FOR DAYS TO DRY MY FEET."

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, JAN 16-(DELAYED)-(AP)-A WEEK AFTER AN AMERICAN BOMBER WAS SHOT DOWN OFF THE NEW GUINEA COAST THE LAST OF THREE SURVIVORS OF ITS CREW HAS REACHED AN ALLIED BASE AND NOW IS ENROUTE TO AUSTRALIA FOR A REST.

JAN 18 1943

HE IS LIEUT. JACK CHILDERS OF CLARINDA, IA., THE CO-PILOT, WHO SAW TWO OF HIS COMPANIONS DROWN WHEN THE PLANE CRASHED A MILE OFFSHORE, SAW ANOTHER DIE TWO HOURS AFTER BEING CARRIED ASHORE AND A FOURTH SHOT AND KILLED FROM AMBUSH AS THE SURVIVORS WALKED DOWN A BEACH.

THE OTHERS WHO REACHED SAFETY AND PRECEDED CHILDERS TO AUSTRALIA WERE LIEUT. LEONARDO NICHOLSON OF PRESCOTT, ARIZ., THE PILOT, AND CORP. R.L.MOFFETT, WHOSE HOME ADDRESS WAS NOT LEARNED.

THEIR PLANE HAD ITS LEFT ENGINE SHOT OUT AND THE RIGHT ENGINE DAMAGED BY ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE WHILE BOMBING A JAPANESE CONVOY BETWEEN NEW GUINEA AND NEW BRITAIN ON JAN. 7. THE RADIO OPERATOR AND THE BOMBARDIER WERE DROWNED IN THE ENSUING CRASH. MOFFETT SWAM ASHORE AND MET A FRIENDLY NATIVE WHO LED HIM TO AN ALLIED CAMP.

NICHOLSON, CHILDERS AND A STAFF SERGEANT GUNNER SWAM ASHORE TOGETHER, ASSISTING THE NAVIGATOR, WHO HAD ONE LEG ALMOST SHOT AWAY.

I BREAKFASTED TODAY WITH CHILDERS AT THE OFFICERS' MESS JUST BEFORE HE CAUGHT A PLANE FOR AUSTRALIA. THE RED-BEARDED IOWAN SAID THAT AFTER THE NAVIGATOR DIED HE AND HIS COMPANIONS COVERED THE BODY WITH LEAVES AND SET OFF DOWN THE BEACH.

JAN 18 1943

"WE WERE FEARFUL OF MEETING JAPS AT ANY MOMENT," HE SAID. "WE CRASHED ON THURSDAY. THE NEXT DAY AN AUSTRALIAN BEAUFIGHTER FLEW OVER US AND DROPPED FOOD AND A MAP SHOWING OUR POSITION AND THAT OF A NEARBY ENEMY PATROL.

"SATURDAY AFTERNOON WE WERE WALKING ALONG THE BEACH WHEN TWO SHOTS RANG OUT AND THE STAFF SERGEANT DROPPED. I DROPPED MY FOOD AND EVERYTHING ELSE EXCEPT MY RUSTED GUN AND RAN INTO THE JUNGLE. NICHOLSON ALSO RAN INTO THE NEAREST BUSHES AND WE WERE QUICKLY SEPARATED. I CALLED TO HIM ONCE, BUT WE NEVER GOT TOGETHER AGAIN.

"SUNDAY ANOTHER BEAUFIGHTER CAME OVER AND I WROTE IN THE SAND: 'FOOD, MATCHES, TWO PAIRS FLYING BOOTS, COVERALL, MAP.' I SPENT TWO DAYS ALONE IN AN ABANDONED NATIVE VILLAGE. FINALLY I SAW A NATIVE ACROSS THE RIVER AND MADE SIGNS TO SHOW I WAS FRIENDLY.

JAN 18 1943

"WHEN THE NATIVE UNDERSTOOD THAT I WAS AN AMERICAN HE WAS EAGER TO HELP. HE TOOK ME WITH HIS ENTIRE FAMILY UPRIVER, SHOWING ME OFF AT EACH VILLAGE ENROUTE, UNTIL I FINALLY FOUND AN AUSTRALIAN SERGEANT. HE GAVE ME A GOOD MEAL AND A BED WITH MOSQUITO NETTING AND ENGAGED A NATIVE POLICEMAN TO TAKE ME TO THE NEAREST ALLIED LANDING FIELD.

"THE AUSTRALIAN TOLD ME THAT NICHOLSON HAD ARRIVED AND GONE ON A DAY AHEAD OF ME. HE HAD BEEN PICKED UP BY TWO NATIVES CARRYING JAPANESE RIFLES. ONE MARCHED IN FRONT OF NICHOLSON AND THE OTHER BEHIND, HE SAID, MAKING HIM SO NERVOUS THAT NICHOLSON FINALLY TOLD THEM IF THEY WERE TAKING HIM TO THE JAPANESE TO HURRY AND GET IT OVER WITH.

"NICHOLSON SAID HE PARTICULARLY HATED TO LEAVE THE STAFF SERGEANT BEHIND, EVEN THOUGH HE WAS DEAD, BECAUSE HE HAD SAVED NICK'S LIFE ONCE WHEN WE WERE CROSSING A RIVER TOGETHER."

SYDNEY, AUSTRALIA, JAN.17-(AP)-GEN. SIR THOMAS BLAMEY, COMMANDER OF ALLIED GROUND TROOPS UNDER GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR, TOLD AUSTRALIANS IN A BROADCAST TONIGHT THAT JAPAN'S PAPUAN ARMY IN NEW GUINEA HAD BEEN "NOT ONLY DEFEATED BUT PRACTICALLY EXTERMINATED, BUT WARNED "DON'T FOR ONE MOMENT THINK WE ARE OUT OF THE WOODS WITH THE JAPANESE."

JAN 18 1943

REVIEWING THE ALLIED DRIVE THAT BEGAN LAST SEPTEMBER NEAR PORT MORESBY AND NOW IS DRAWING TO A CLOSE AT SANANANDA ON THE OPPOSITE SIDE OF THE OWEN STANLEY MOUNTAINS WHERE A SMALL POCKET OF JAPANESE REMAINS TO BE CLEANED OUT, THE GENERAL SAID:

"ALLIED TROOPS WHO MET HIM (THE JAPANESE) IN THE FIELD HAVE SHOWN THIS PROUD ASIATIC HE IS AN INFERIOR CREATURE TO THE PRODUCT OF WESTERN CIVILIZATION. THEY OUTMARCHED AND OUTFOUGHT HIM.

"OUR TOTAL BATTLE LOSSES ARE MANY THOUSANDS LESS THAN THE ENEMY LOST IN LAND FIGHTING ALONE. IN ADDITION THE AIR FORCE HELD A RING FOR US AND MOST SUCCESSFULLY DEFEATED EVERY ATTEMPT THE JAPANESE MADE TO REINFORCE THESE WRETCHES WHICH HE SEEMS FINALLY TO HAVE ABANDONED. (GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS ESTIMATED RECENTLY THAT 15,000 JAPANESE HAD FORMED THE ENEMY'S PAPUAN FORCE).

"THE ENEMY'S LOSSES AT SEA IN PERSONNEL ALONE EXCEEDED THE ALLIED LOSSES IN BATTLE AND A SHARP BLOW WAS STRUCK AT HIS SHIPPING.

"TROPICAL DISEASES SUCH AS SCRUB TYPHUS AND MALARIA WERE EVEN MORE DEADLY THAN THE JAPS.

JAN 18 1943

"WE SAW THE AUSTRALIAN AND AMERICAN AT HIS BEST. AUSTRALIA OWES MUCH TO GENERAL MACARTHUR FOR HIS MAGNIFICENT UNDERSTANDING OF US. SHE OWES MUCH TO AMERICAN FORCES FAR FROM HOME WHO HAVE COME TO HELP US."

GENERAL BLAMEY RAISED AMERICAN AND AUSTRALIAN COMMANDERS WHO CONDUCTED OPERATIONS "IN ALMOST UNBELIEVABLE DIFFICULTY" AND TOLD HOW AN AERIAL AND SEA SUPPLY AND REINFORCEMENT SERVICES WERE ESTABLISHED IN ORDER TO SMASH THE JAPANESE IN THEIR STRONGLY ENTRENCHED POSITIONS ON THE NORTHEASTERN PAPUAN COAST.

A204

WITH ENORMOUS TERRAIN PROBLEMS INVOLVED IN THE PUSH ACROSS THE

OWEN STANLEY MOUNTAINS ON THE KOKODA TRACK, HE SAID, THE ALLIED LEADERS FINALLY HIT ON THE IDEA OF TRYING TO FERRY MEN AND SUPPLIES BY PLANE. THIS WAS DONE, THE AMERICAN AND AUSTRALIAN TROOPS BEING FLOWN 100 MILES FROM MILNE BAY IN SOUTHEASTERN PAPUA NORTHWEST TO WANIGELA, WHICH IS BELOW BUNA. JAN 18 1943

THE ALLIED TROOPS THEN MOVED FORWARD OVERLAND THROUGH SWAMP AND JUNGLE TO SMASH THE JAPANESE.

BUENOS AIRES, ARGENTINA, JAN. 17--(AP)--ALBERTO GUANI, URUGUAYAN FOREIGN MINISTER AND VICE PRESIDENT-ELECT, SAID TONIGHT THAT HE HOPED DURING HIS FORTHCOMING TRIP TO THE UNITED STATES TO OBTAIN A LOAN OF 100,000,000 URUGUAYAN PESOS (ROUGHLY $50,000,000) FOR PUBLIC WORKS TO ABSORB SOME 100,000 MEN THREATENED WITH UNEMPLOYMENT IN URUGUAY BECAUSE OF THE WAR.

HE ALSO SAID HE WAS LOOKING FORWARD TO AN EXCHANGE OF VIEW WITH MAXIM LITVINOFF, SOVIET AMBASSADOR TO THE UNITED STATES. THE SIX FOREIGN MINISTERS PRAISED THE RUSSIAN ARMY AND HE SAID URUGUAY WAS A "NORMAL SITUATION" TO RESUME DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS WITH RUSSIA AND [illegible] BROKEN FIVE YEARS AGO.

HE SAID THERE WERE A FEW MISUNDERSTANDINGS REGARDING THIS BUT THEY WERE BEING SOLVED RAPIDLY BY ACTION OF GOVERNMENT AUTHORITIES.

THE MEXICAN BANKER SAID HIS MAIN PURPOSE IN VISITING LOS ANGELES WAS TO AID IN SETTING UP ACCOUNTING METHODS WHEREBY 10 PER CENT OF THE LABORERS' EARNINGS WILL BE SAVED FOR THEM IN MEXICO UNTIL THEY RETURN AFTER THE WAR. JAN 18 1943

Eight Miles of Nazi Lines Smashed in Break of Leningrad Ring

Russians Cross Donets Below Kamensk on Way to Rostov —Push On in Caucasus

By The Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Jan. 18—The historic siege that Leningrad, Russia's second largest city, has undergone for seventeen months was broken today by a Red Army offensive south of Lake Ladoga that shattered the German ring around the city, it was announced officially tonight.

The ancient fortress city of Schluesselburg, on Lake Ladoga east of Leningrad, where the Germans closed their ring in August, 1941, was recapttured by Russian forces under Marshals Gregory Zhukoff and Klementi Voroshiloff, the communiqué said.

This news was greeted with rejoicing throughout the country as other Russian troops operating in Southern Russia steadily smashed ahead toward Kharkov, in the Ukraine; Rostov, at the mouth of the Don River, and the Maikop oil fields in the Caucasus.

Moscow residents hearing the announcement shouted with joy and hugged each other. Workers in Russian arms factories, toiling day and night to supply the armies engaged in seven great offensives o nthe snow-swept plains and swamps, head the news over loudspeakers and kept on working.

The Russians battered their way through almost nine miles of tremendous German fortifications and crossed the Neva River to end Leningrad's blockade. In a week of bitter fighting, the Russians announced, the Germans left 13,000 dead on the battlefield and four German divisions and remnants of other detachments were routed. More than 1,260 prisoners were taken.

Zhukoff Promoted for His Work

Marshal Zhukoff, the hero who led the Red Army that rolled back the Germans from the gates of Moscow last Winter, has his present rank for his work at Leningrad. Marshal Voroshiloff commanded Leningrad's hard-fighting garrison during the first months of the city's siege, when the Germans threw hundreds of thousands of men against the strategic city, but failed to crack it.

Leningrad is a vital lever in the defense of Northwestern Russia because of its proximity to the Gulf of Finland and the Baltic States. Ever since its envelopment the Germans had repeatedly maintained that it was doomed.

Further striking Russian victories were announced from the Voronezh, Stalingrad, Middle Don and Caucasian fronts.

The Fourth Italian Army Corps was reported to have been smashed as the Russians fought their way into Kamensk, eighty-five miles above Rostov. The Red Army spilled across the Donets River in this area, and Likhaya, about fifteen miles south of Kamensk on the important railway to Rostov, apparently was its next goal.

JAN 19 1943

Reds Cross the Manych River

In the Caucasus the Russians crossed the Manych River to capture Divnoe, the railhead for a line running westward to the Rostov-Baku railway. Farther south the Russians captured Cherkessk, on the way west from Pyatigorsk toward the Maikop oil fields.

At all these points the latest successes meant not only the occupation of vitally important points but also the breaking of the main German defense lines, opening the way for further advances.

In some sectors the Axis troops were reported to be in hasty flight. German troops re-formed at every possible point where the terrain offered some defense advantages, only to be sent fleeing again by the massed weight of Soviet tanks, tommy-gunners and cavalry, front reports said.

Hit repeatedly on all sides, the German Army seemed unable to cope with the staggering succession of offensives.

The Leningrad blow was the seventh major Russian move this Winter, one that meant the relief of the city from suffering unsurpassed by any in this war, even at Odessa, Sevastopol and Stalingrad. Less than half the original population of the city, lived through last Winter under siebe, supplied only across the frozen Lake Ladoga. Last month they still were being shelled by German siege guns. Now the isolation has ended.

The news of the relief of Leningrad was given in a special communiqué broadcast at 11 o'clock tonight and relayed over the public loud-speaker systems in streets and squares in every city and town.

The Germans still clung around Leningrad on its west and south sides, but their line had been pierced on the east side and their grip was being shaken loose.

Russians End 17-Month Vise On Leningrad

Smash 8 Miles Through Nazi Defenses, Rout 4 Divisions, Link 2 Forces

Recapture Fortress Of Schluesselburg

Fight Way Into Kamensk, Cross Donets in Rostov and Kharkov Offensives

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Jan. 18.—The seventeen-month siege of Leningrad, Russia's second largest city, was lifted today by Red Army forces which blasted a way through eight miles of Nazi defenses, killed 13,000 Germans and routed four divisions, a special Soviet communique announced tonight.

Breaking the blockade of Leningrad brings relief to 3,000,000 persons and releases the Nazi grip on the flow of Soviet armaments and other industrial facilities in the big city on the Gulf of Finland. Observers foresaw a new turn in the war, because Leningrad could be a springboard for reconquest of the Baltic states.

The news, announced in a Moscow broadcast heard here by the Soviet monitor, is a further damaging blow to German morale, because Leningrad had been in a powerful Nazi vise since Aug. 21, 1941.

JAN 19 1943

"After seven days' fighting the troops of the Volkhov and Leningrad fronts united on Jan. 18 and so broke the blockade of Leningrad," said the communique.

Russians Enter Kamensk

Moscow announced important gains along the snow-covered front from the north to the Caucasus. Other Red armies gained in the advance on Kharkov, steel city in the Ukraine, with Russian vanguards less than 118 miles from that city.

Russian troops were fighting in Kamensk, a railway point eighty-five miles north of Rostov, and others poured across the Donets River below that city on the route toward Rostov, whose capture would bag the Nazi armies in the Caucasus.

In the Caucasus the Russians crossed the Manych River and seized Divnoye, rail terminal of a line that winds across the central area to Kropotkin, on the Rostov-Baku railway.

The enemy-occupied fortress town of Schluesselburg, on the south shore of Lake Ladoga twenty-five miles east of Leningrad, was among a dozen localities stormed and captured by Russia's winter-hardened troops.

Strike From Two Directions

The Russians hit it from two directions, fighting their way through fourteen kilometers (8.6 miles) of mine fields, barbed wire, steel and concrete pillboxes. One column fought eastward from Leningrad along the west bank of the Neva River and another struck west along Lake Ladoga after crossing the Volkhov River.

Schluesselburg had been under sporadic Red Army attack since the fall of 1941. By capturing it the Russians regained a part of a railway running from Leningrad through Schluesselburg to connect with a line to Moscow and with another to Murmansk, in the far north. Murmansk is the chief Arctic port for Allied supplies to Russia.

In their long, unsuccessful effort to take Leningrad the Germans have lost scores of thousands of men, the Russians said. Fuehrer Adolf Hitler ordered the city taken by storm in August, 1941, and the Germans hurled 300,000 men against the city. The Nazi waves broke under stoic resistance directed by Marshal Klementi E. Voroshilov, but the siege had continued.

The Russians have managed to fly supplies into the city and also opened communications across Lake Ladoga—small boat convoys in the summer and railway tracks laid across the ice in the winter.

"It is necessary to bear in mind," the Russian communique said, 'that during many months of blockade of Leningrad the Germans converted their positions on the approaches to the town into a mighty fortified area with a network system of solidly constructed concrete and other erections with large numbers of anti-tank and anti-infantry obstacles.'

30.24—423

Capture 1,260 Prisoners

Breaking through this bristling enemy belt, the Russians said they captured more than 1,260 prisoners and routed the 294th, 96th 170th and 6[illegible] Rifle Infantry Divisions as well as three regiments of other divisions.

In this week of fighting in piercing cold the Russians said their artillery demolished 470 enemy-fortified centers and dugouts and twenty-five strongly defended observation posts and silenced 172 artillery and mortar batteries. Among booty captured were 222 guns, 178 mortars, 512 machine guns, 5,020 rifles, twenty-six tanks, 17,300 grenades, seventy-two radio transmitting stations, 1,050 horses, 880 carts, forty various supply dumps, 36,000 mines, 150 trucks, 22,000 shells and 2,200,000 cartridges.

The break-through was carried out by Leningrad forces commanded by Colonel General Leonid Govorov, who was elevated to his present rank a few days ago, and Volkhov front troops commanded by General Kirkill A. Meretskov.

Co-ordination of operations on both fronts was credited to Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov and Marshal Voroshilov. Zhukov commanded the victorious central front Red Army that fought west of Moscow a year ago and also was in charge of operations during the early days of the Stalingrad offensive still gaining in southern Russia. He was made a marshal coincident with tonight's announcement on Leningrad.

Marshal Voroshilov commanded Leningrad's troops during the German seige until December, 1941, when he was made commander of Soviet Far Eastern forces.

The troops of Lieutenant General Romanovsky and Major General Dukanov distinguished themselves in the fighting that lifted the siege, the communique said.

Another Soviet general, N. N. Voronov, was made a marshal tonight along with Zhukov, the announcement said. Voronov, an artillery specialist, has played a leading part in Russia's [illegible] southwestern drive.

Situation on Other Sectors

The situation on other sectors of the Russian front as announced by Moscow tonight was:

South of Voronezh: Russian troops fighting along the Voronezh-Kharkov railway have blockaded the town of Ostrogorzhsk, twenty-five miles northeast of captured Alekseyevka. The number of prisoners on this front now has increased to 31,000, of which 22,000 are Hungarians, 7,000 Italians and 2,000 Germans. The Red Army was said to have routed the 4th Italian Army Corps in capturing the rail station of Kamenka, northeast of Millerovo.

Middle Don front: The Red Army captured the railway station of Kamensk and has fought its way into the streets of the town. Other units crossed the Donets to menace Likhaya, eighteen miles to the south and a junction of the Rostov-Moscow line with a spur line leading east to Stalingrad.

North central Caucasus: Crossing the Manych River in the Kalmuck Republic, the Russians occupied Divnoye. Other Russian units operating beyond Blagodornoye, fifty-five miles to the south are pushing northwestward toward Petrovsk, a junction on the line of which Divnoye is the eastern end. A parallel column below Blagodornoye is pushing along the Mineralnye Vody-Rostov line toward Armavir.

The midnight Russian communique told of the rout of Axis troops in some sectors. South of Voronezh between Olkhovatka and Shelyakino Russian troops captured more than 1,000 trucks on a road from captured Rossosh to Alekseyevka, west of the Don River.

"The enemy is retreating, abandoning technical equipment and large quantities of army property," the communique added.

Twenty-six towns and railway stations were occupied yesterday, the Russians said, and dozens of smaller places were freed.

At least 2,000 Nazis were killed and 400 captured before Stalingrad, where the Soviet troops "continued to close in the ring of encirclement around the German Fascist troops."

More than 1,850 Germans were captured in Rossosh, the Russians said, along with 10 tanks, 79 guns, 560 trucks, 33 motorcycles, 1,000,000 cartridges and other material.

The Red Army in the Ukraine was reported forty miles deep in that territory after crossing the north-south, Moscow-Rostov railway, Novo-Pskov and Dontsovka were reported occupied.

The German high command told of defensive fighting south of Lake Ladoga in which 229 Soviet tanks were declared to have been put out of action since Jan. 12. German forces encompassed before Stalingrad "under the most difficult conditions withstood further strong attacks," it said.

"During the night," the Berlin bulletin said, "German bombers raided enemy supply lines northeast of Moscow. Ten transport trains were destroyed."

LENINGRAD SIEGE REPORTED LIFTED BY RUSSIAN FORCE

JAN 19 1943

Moscow Also Declares That Schluesselburg Is Recaptured.

London, Jan. 18 (A. P.).—A Reuters dispatch from Moscow tonight said that the Russians have recaptured the city of Schluesselburg, in the Leningrad area, and quoted a special Soviet announcement as saying that the siege of Leningrad had been lifted.

The fortified city of Schluesselburg, east of Leningrad near Lake Ladoga, was held by the Germans for much of the period since the siege of Leningrad was established on August 21, 1941.

Southward, the northern Donets and the Manych rivers were declared to have been crossed, while on the Voronezh front the number of prisoners in that regional offensive has risen to 31,000, the Russians were quoted as saying. The announcement also said that breaking through the enemy defenses in the Leningrad sector, the Russian troops had crossed the Neva and advanced to a depth of eighty kilometers (about forty-five miles).

Broke Down Blockade.

"A few days ago our troops situated to the south of Lake Ladoga launched an offensive against the German Fascist troops blockading the town of Leningrad. Our troops had the task of demolishing the enemy defense and thereby breaking down the blockade of Leningrad.

The announcement said that four German divisions had been routed, 13,000 Germans killed, and 1,260 prisoners taken. It continued:

"In this connection it is necessary to bear in mind that during the many months of blockade of Leningrad the Germans converted their positions on the approaches to the town into a mighty fortified area with a network system of solidly constructed concrete and other erections, with a large number of anti-tank and anti-infantry obstacles.

"The offensive of our troops took place from two directions, from the west bank of the River Neva from the southwest of the town of Schlusselberg and from the east from the area south of Lake Ladoga."

said several garrisons of the city were annihilated by Russian troops.

Kamensk in Pincers.

Several dozen communities in the bend of the north Donets were reported captured, including several large places, one of which was Kalitvenskaya, directly on the river.

A Moscow broadcast said the river had been crossed, presumably in the neighborhood of Kalitvenskaya, only twelve miles east of Kamensk, like Millerovo, an important railway center on the Moscow-Rostov line. Kamensk itself is threatened from three sides.

The broadcast said the German's fought bitterly to [illegible] their positions in the Donets bend. The Russian advance in this region threatens the flank of the German troops trying to hold off Soviet forces poised along the lower Don only sixty miles east of Rostov.

Reds' New Offensive Rolls

Another Big Town Retaken in Caucasus—Stalingrad Nazis Face Annihilation—Russians Speed Toward Salsk.

London, Jan. 18 (A. P.).—The Red Army was reported pouring across the Donets River a few miles east of Kamensk today in a southward drive on Rostov eighty-five miles away which was closely co-ordinated with a multi-headed Soviet assault grinding at all Germany's summer gains in south Russia and approaching within 118 miles of Kharkov, great steel center of the Ukraine.

A special communique and the regular midnight communique as recorded from Moscow broadcasts by the Soviet monitor told of mighty strides taken by the Russian troops on a front which enveloped southern Russia from Voronezh to the Caucasus foothills.

Millerovo, by-passed last month on the Russian drive along the Moscow-Rostov railway, was recaptured. The special communique announcing its fall down the rail line to Rostov past recaptured Millerovo reached the north bank of the Donets, creating a sharp threat to Kamensk.

(A Moscow broadcast heard in London said that Russian forces were pouring across the river, presumably in a sector twelve miles southeast of Kamensk, to which the Russians advanced across the Middle Don steppes from the northeast.)

Gain Rail Control

The fall of Alekseevska yesterday gave the Russians control of a fifty-mile stretch of railroad southwest from Shchuche, one of the jumping-off points of their powerful new offensive, and carried their advance guard within eighty miles of Kupyansk.

A new hold was taken on the Moscow-Rostov railroad by the occupation of Podgornoye, forty-five miles southeast of Alekseevska and twenty miles north of Rossosh, which previously had been reported captured.

Just above the junction of the Moscow-Rostov and the Svoboda-Kupyansk railroads, the Red army expanded its grip on the west bank of the Don by taking Korotozhak, thirty miles northeast of Alekseevska.

Korotozhak, captured after fierce fighting yesterday, was one of the Germans' principal strong points in the sector. It was surrounded by mortar batteries and machine-gun nests.

JAN 19 1943

The Red army swept on to Korotozhak from Selyavnoye, ten miles to the north. A battalion of ski troops captured house after house along the highway, crushed a garrison which attempted to hold a church and reached the center of the city.

The Germans tried to withdraw to the west and south, dispatches said, but the remnants were surrounded and taken prisoners. Material captured at Korotozhak was said to have included twenty planes, thirty-eight tanks and ninety-three machine guns.

(A Berlin broadcast, heard in London today, reported that the German air force raided the Moscow region last night.)

While the Reds were making gains on the right flank and the center of the Voronezh front, no further specific progress was reported on the left flank, where the Russians were attacking in the Kantemirovka sector.

Dispatches said the Germans had rushed tanks and troops from their reserve to their new line west of Kantemirovka, which is fortified to a depth of seven and a half miles.

The ravines and steep hills and snow-covered fields are lined with pillboxes, dugouts, barbed wire, mines and trenches, the whole covered by a system of flanking fire. A midday assault, launched when the Germans were off guard, was reported, however, to have made a gap two miles wide and three miles deep in this formidable defense zone.

Artillery Blasts Nazis

Accompanying the assault, Russian artillery blasted the enemy lines so heavily that prisoners were quoted as saying that half of their front-line losses were being caused by shells.

Many German batteries were reported to have been silenced early in the offensive by the Soviets' long-range artillery, which limited enemy reply to individual guns.

[By the Associated Press]

Moscow, Jan. 18 — The Red army's new offensive on the Voronezh front, most northerly of the series of winter blows against the whole Axis position in the southwest, was making new progress today fifty miles west of the Don

Russian guns also shattered several German divisional and regimental headquarters, disrupting enemy communications.

As a result, dispatches said, lines of enemy trucks were seen still coming up to the front line long after the German troops who originally had been there had retreated west.

Rossosh Stormed

The same Russian forces which took Mitrofanovka early in the current winter offensive continued on twenty miles directly north to storm Rossosh.

Tanks broke into the city and the occupation was completed after an all-night battle.

The converging Russian attacks northwest and southwest from the flanks are designed to cut the enemy's lines of retreat and to encircle and exterminate the Germans' manpower.

JAN 19 1943

Many Towns Captured

The Soviet midday communique reported the recapture of three more populated places in the upper Donets region and several others in the north Caucasus.

It reported that in the North Caucasus, Russian forces had smashed through German fortifications guarding a large place, and said fighting was taking place in the streets. (The town was not identified by name.)

In overnight fighting south of Voronezh almost the entire garrison of another fortified center of resistance was reported wiped out and in another sector of the same general battlefront 1,255 Germans were said to have been captured.

1,000 Nazis Killed

The war bulletin said that in the Stalingrad trap, more than 1,000 Germans were killed and 850 captured as the Russians closed in with hard new blows.

The communique said the Germans had massed large forces for an effort to recover Velikie Luki, ninety miles from the Latvian frontier, but asserted that all attacks had been beaten off with heavy losses.

Velikie Luki's Capture Caused German Panic

Reds Say Nazis Made False Claims to Holding City

LONDON, Jan. 18 (AP).—The Russian midday communique, broadcast by Moscow today, said the capture of Velikie Luki Jan. 1 had caused "panic and alarm" among the Germans and that the German high command had made false announcements saying the town was still in German hands since Jan. 3.

In the mean time, the communique said, larger German shock formations were concentrated southwest and northwest.

"The German plan was simple—to deny its capture by the Red Army and meanwhile, disregarding all losses, to break through to the town and regain it," the Soviet communique said.

The Soviet command, it was said, "took the necessary measures in good time. Our troops exhausted the enemy by continuous blows and inflicted heavy losses on him. The German offensive was broken and failed."

Germans' Siege Of Leningrad Broke Record

Longest in History for So Big a City; Nazis Never Had It Entirely Cut Off

The siege of Leningrad was not only the longest of the war, but was the first in history which so large a city had been compelled to endure for so long, The Associated Press notes.

Among the other important sieges of the war were those of Sebastopol, which lasted eight months before the fortress fell, and Tobruk, Libya, which held out from April 12 to Dec. 10, 1941, when the British lifted the siege. Stalingrad was besieged for three months before the beginning of the Russian winter offensive.

Named for V. I. Lenin, founder of the Soviet Union, Leningrad came under attack from virtually all sides nearly a year and five months ago. Since Aug. 21, 1941, its 3,000,000 people—the normal population—and its thousands of Red army, sailor, peasant and worker defenders had endured privation and almost daily shelling and bombing.

The siege has been incompletely documented, for while it lasted the Russians never wished the Germans to know conditions in the Soviet Union's second largest city. Occasional news stories from there said the people were carrying on their usual pursuits as much as possible—libraries were crowded, newspapers were still published, museums were open, theaters played to large crowds.

From the Axis came an opposite propaganda picture—piles of dead littered the streets, the people were reduced to gnawing the bark from trees, emaciated and starving creatures stalked the parks.

But the city never was cut off completely from outside resources. Months after the siege had begun the Russians boasted that they were still getting aluminum for their airplane factories from Leningrad's big aluminum plant.

In the most desperate hour the people rallied to urgent calls to act in the spirit of Lenin and Stalin. Sailors went into the front trenches. Men and women from the factories shouldered spades and marched out to dig trenches and man the guns.

The city originally was named St. Petersburg because it was founded in 1703 by Peter the Great, who had it built on piles driven into the marshes at the mouth of the Neva River. It gained the reputation of a city constructed on bones because so many laborers died during its building.

Peter had selected the site because of its proximity to western Europe, not because it was physically suitable. As St. Petersburg it was the capital of Czarist Russia. Practically the only convenient port in northern Russia, it developed vast industries, a large worker population and a huge trade.

Leningrad became the center of the proletarian struggle and eventually the cradle of the Bolshevik revolution. It was these traditions which probably did much to enable it to resist through the siege.

Leningrad A Record

(By Associated Press)

The siege of Troy lasted nine years, that of Leningrad 515 days. But seldom in history has so large a city been compelled to endure for so long. In any case, Leningrad easily holds the record for length of siege in this war.

Here is a list of some of the most important sieges of World War II:

	Siege Began	Siege Ended
Warsaw	Sept. 8, 1939	Sept. 27, 1939
Odessa	Aug. 19, 1941	Oct. 17, 1941

TIMOSHENKO SENT ON NEW MISSION, LOCATION SECRET

JAN 19 1943

Mystery of Missing Marshal, Russia's Top Leader, Arouses Speculation.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The whereabouts of Marshal Semeon K. Timoshenko, one of the Soviet Union's top generals, has become a leading military mystery to the outside world since the issuance of the Soviet special communique disclosing that the Leningrad offensive was under the master-minding of Marshals Gregory Zhukov and Klementi Voroshilov.

The Germans had broadcast only ten days ago that Timoshenko was in charge on the Leningrad front, and this had seemed plausible, because on Jan. 1 the Russians officially disclosed that he had been replaced on the southwest front by Marshal Zhukov. His whereabouts were not officially disclosed, but Moscow dispatches said he was believed to have assumed another important command.

With Marshal Zhukov and not Marshal Timoshenko announced as in charge of the great Stalingrad offensive, the German announcement a few days later placing Marshal Timoshenko in the Lake Ilmen region outside Leningrad seemed logical.

Not At Leningrad

But the special communique on Leningrad stated that coordination of operations of the vast Soviet offensive against the Germans was under Marshal Voroshilov and Zhukov, and the actual breakthrough at the long-besieged city was carried out by Col. Gen. Leonid Govorov and Gen. Kirkill A. Meretskov.

Thus the present occupation of Marshal Timoshenko, a former defense minister rated high both as a general in the field and as a directing strategist, is again open to speculation.

The Soviet Union is a vast country and as a nation at war its military tasks are countless. There are many missions which the unlocateable marshal might be undertaking in secret, at any one of a hundred places.

May Be In Siberia

Despite the fact that Russia's big battle at present is in the west against Germany, and that there are many duties he could be performing there, it may be that Marshal Timoshenko has been sent to the Far East to superintend Siberia's guard against possible attack by Japan.

Marshal Voroshilov was sent out to the Far East a year ago last month to do just this job. Then last August he turned up in Moscow during the Churchill-Stalin conferences. Now he is battling Germany, and Marshal Timoshenko is missing.

Men of the stature of Marshal Voroshilov and Marshal Timoshenko are not many, and the switch could well have been made.

Wherever Marshal Timoshenko is, it can be taken for granted that Moscow will not disclose his whereabouts until it is ready to do so.

And also it may be taken for granted that Berlin will not hesitate to "announce" where he is whether it knows or not.

Kotelnikovski's Rehabilitation Is Speeded

By Eddy Gilmore

[Associated Press Correspondent]

With the Red Army at Kotelnikovski, Jan. 18—This city of 14,000 people on the edge of the Kalmyck steepe, from which the Germans launched their ill-starred campaign to take Stalingrad, is rapidly picking itself up and setting its house in order.

(The capture of Kotelnikovski, an important railway town ninety miles southwest of Stalingrad, was announced by the Russians December 30. It was the first big prize of the Russian winter offensive.)

It is a strange little place, this town whose name rang round the world daily as Hitler last summer threw great legions of men and machines in a smashing drive for the Volga.

Nazi Damage Slight

The Germans failed to do much damage in Kotelnivokski, a fact explained by Andrei Terekhov, chairman of the Regional Executive Committee of the Communist party, as due to the haste with which the Germans had to flee before the onrushing Red army.

Choked With Freight

But the postoffice, the library, a school, the movie theater, five stores and many other schools in near-by villages were burned, and the railroad station, around which terrific fighting raged when the Germans took the town, was razed.

The railroad yards were found choked with German freight cars, virtually all in good condition, and a number of German passenger coaches.

One of the oddest sights of the town is a concrete building, sitting alone in an acre of ground. It is a men's room, and a German sign says "For Officers Only."

Widen Rail Gauge

In Kotelnikovski and up and down the railwa, which runs from Stalingrad southward to Tikhoretskaya in the Caucasus, Russian workmen are making fine progress in widening the gauge of the railway which the Germans had narrowed to fit their own equipment brought up for the Stalingrad drive.

While there is snow on the ground, it is not cold here. I have gone around all morning without an overcoat as I took in the odd street scenes.

In front of the place where I eat there was a wrecked German motorcycle, an old Rumanian helmet and a rifle apparently thrown down in a great hurry.

A little farther up the street there was another wrecked motorcycle and three German helmets. The Russians never pick up helmets for souvenirs.

Cattle Big Problem

"We're sick of everything German," one old woman said. "I wouldn't have one of those helmets in my house."

Terekhov told of German bombardment of the town on July 28 and 29, 1942, and the final order for Russian evacuation on August 2.

One of the biggest jobs, he said, was evacuation of cattle across the Kalmyck steppe, with the Germans bombing the herd and killing many animals after it had been driven to the Volga.

Terekhov said about 300 citizens of the town had been forcefully removed by the Germans when they evacuated the city in December.

The townsmen seemed [illegible] dazed at the renown their [illegible] achieved in the headlines [illegible] world.

"Wasn't Worth [illegible]

"Do you mean the [illegible] wond the waters have [illegible] little city?" asked an old man who has lived here more than fifty years. "It still wasn't worth it," he grinned.

20 Go With Nazis

Terekhov said that when the Germans left, about twenty of the 11,000 remaining in the city had gone along with them of their own free will.

JAN 19 1943

"We know them, of course," he said, "and some day we may meet again."

Other than the extensive railroad yards, Kotelnikovski is mostly an agricultural town, with a mixed population, the majority of whom are Russians, along with Ukrianians, Cossacks and Kalmycks.

The food situation seems excellent. Terekhov said most of the people had plenty to eat, but that community kitchens had been set up for those who had lost everything.

Unearth Treasures

Digging has become one of the city's principal occupations and there are holes in many yards, front and back, as the citizens unearth treasures buried when the invaders arrived.

All kinds of things are being pulled out of the ground, including samovars, dishes, cradles, clothes and boots. In one place I saw a little girl recovering a doll.

A. P. Correspondent With Russian Army Tells How Reds Live and Fight at Front

Soviet Troops Found Warmly Dressed and Well Fed—Feel Out Nazi Lines First and Then Strike Hard.

By EDDY GILMORE.

JAN 19 1943

With the Red Army Southeast of Rostov (Via Moscow), Jan. 17 (A. P.).—The young but strong Russian Army fighting back so fiercely and confidently, driving the best of the German troops before it, is an army that has learned much—and, oddly, learned a lot from its enemy. At the moment all along this front the operation is one of beautifully timed encirclements.

There is no secret about the Red Army tactics which have put the Germans on the run. The Russians scout and then begin their encirclements with fast-moving units which include airplanes, air sledges which can go better than 100 miles an hour, cavalry and motorized infantry. When artillery is needed to blast the Germans from their positions they have plenty of it—and it is plenty big. Throughout the whole drive here the artillery has been the real backbone.

Soviet mobile units have achieved great skill in cutting up the enemy's front. Their tanks, on which tommy-gunners ride, strike with great effect. The Russians assert that their medium tank, called the 34, is the best medium tank in the world. You certainly see few of them standing about the battlefield down here.

They also have sleds, the horse-drawn variety, by the thousands. When the snow gets deep they are vital to battle operations. But I have yet to see the Germans using any of them.

The commanders one talks with impress one with their great confidence in victory. This was apparent when I visited the front last winter as the Russians then had the Germans on the run—but it definitely was not on this scale.

They are not laughing at the Germans, however. They still pay them considerable tribute as fighters. But the commanders all say Hitler won't come bounding back next summer. The present weather, they assert, should be ideal for the German armored forces and motorized units.

Well-dressed Soldiers.

My soldier and officer I talked with possessed a deep, almost religious faith, in Premier Stalin's direction of the war. They gave him full credit of everything.

The fighters are finely equipped in clothes. Soldiers generally wear the famous Russian valinki—a felt boot that comes to the knee, or above, if wanted. Their uniforms are thick and so is their underwear. Most of them prefer a fur-lined hat to a steel helmet in winter weather. Their gloves are deep, fur-lined and equipped with trigger fingers.

Their tommygun is a neat, easily handled, light little weapon. They also carry a very ugly looking knife.

The Red Army front line fighter gets 100 grams (three and a half ounces) of Vodka daily which, if you downed it all at once, wouldn't give you a "belt." I have never yet seen a bottle on a Russian soldier or any soldier drinking.

In his daily diet the fighter gets 800 grams of bread—that is, two loaves. There are three meals, which include 130 grams (four and a half ounces) of meat and forty grams of butter.

Up here at the front we have been eating well—far better than we eat in Moscow.

It also gives an American a thrill up here to know that most of the food for the Red Army is hauled up over great distances by United States made trucks.

Lots should be said for the Russian truck driver. I think he's about the most reckless driver I have ever ridden with, but the point is that he gets there and gets there fast even if the cost is a couple of fenders. The drivers are their own mechanics, and they take a fanatical pride in their machines.

The Officer

By EDDY GILMORE,
Associated Press Writer.

WITH THE RED ARMY SOUTHEAST OF ROSTOV (Delayed).—The German flier came into the little house on the front dressed in a natty but soiled sky-blue uniform with his head high. He bowed with mock politeness and sat down stiffly.

He was a perfect Hollywood type of the Nazi officer—piercing blue eyes with great white spaces around them, skin drawn tightly over his sharp face bones, sharp chin and a thin pointed nose.

He admitted he belonged to a Nazi party organization.

I asked him what effect he thought the United States is having on the outcome of the war.

"None!" he shot back. "The African operation doesn't mean anything. Rommel has lost a little, but in this war you have to lose a little. He'll come back."

'Underestimated Russians.'

I asked him why the Germans are retreating.

"We underestimated the Russian strength," he said, "but all will be well next summer."

I quoted some United States and British production figures on war materials.

"Exaggerations!" he leered.

I suggested the United States is getting into full production and soon will throw it all against Germany and her allies.

"You'll never get your stuff to Europe," he said, and all but laughed. "Then soon you will get tired."

'You Can Shoot Me.'

When someone asked if he realized that in Germany a prisoner like himself might be shot, he said:

"You can shoot me."

I asked him what he thought would happen to Germany when he lost the war.

"Germany can't lose," he sneered.

I asked him if officers are ched on their answers to ques-ing. He said:

"Of course not."

He was told that he could go e bowed and all but gave the Nazi salute.

"Tough guy!" someone said.

"Wait a minute," said another Russian officer who had questioned Nazi party members before, "bring in another."

The Same Pattern.

He fitted right into the portrait of the officer we had just dismissed.

We asked him what effect he thought the United States is having on the war.

"None!" he shot back. "The African operation does not mean anything. Rommel has lost a little, but in this war you have to lose a little. He will come back."

We asked him, too, if officers are coached on their answers to questions.

"Of course not," he said.

We told him he could go. He rose, bowed with great formality, and almost gave the Nazi salute.

4-TON BOMBS RAINED ON GERMAN CAPITAL

JAN 19 1943

100,000 Incendiaries Add to Havoc—Germans Retaliate With Two Weak Raids on London.

London, Jan. 18 (A. P.).—Hundreds of four-ton bombs, the largest explosives the world has ever known, and probably 100,000 fire bombs were hurled on Berlin for the second consecutive night last night, and fires were left burning over great areas of the German capital.

The Royal Air Force, however, lost twenty-two planes as compared with only one on the previous night.

Retaliating, German bombers subjected London to two attacks last night, but their blows were on nothing like the scale of the assaults on Berlin, and they paid a prohibitive price as London's elaborate defenses brought down ten of an estimated sixty raiders. However, at least twelve persons were killed in London last night, when a row of two-story workers' apartments was demolished. The body of a baby was hurled 250 yards to the top of a three-story house.

Again tonight London had a brief air raid alarm, but there were no reports of bombs being dropped within the city.

Tonight's Attack Brief.

Tonight, just before dusk, a strong force of Allied planes roared out over the Dover Strait, beneath low clouds, in the direction of Boulogne, and heavy explosions sounded for some time along the French coast. Some of the blasts were so powerful that they shook buildings on the English side of the channel. Anti-aircraft gunfire also was heard at Folkestone.

"Berlin was again attacked by a strong force of our heavy bombers last night," the Air Ministry communique said. "A great load of bombs was dropped and, by the end of the attack, large fires were burning."

The bombers flew in bright moonlight on most of the 1,200-mile round trip, but encountered some clouds over the target area. In contrast to the light opposition Saturday night, the Air Ministry said there were many combats with enemy fighters. One of these was reported shot down.

The Air Ministry said that twenty-two bombers failed to return.

The German High Command, in a communique broadcast from Berlin, said that Nazi night fighters and anti-aircraft guns shot down twenty-five, most of them four-motored types, and that seven other Allied aircraft were destroyed in operations over western Europe and the North Sea. The German figure for Nazi plane losses was six.

The Berlin radio also declared that the German Air Force also raided the Moscow area last night, and referring to the attack on London, the High Command said the German raiders "caused extensive destruction, particularly in the district west of the large Thames Bend."

Hitler's officers did not comment on the damage wrought by Sunday night's raid on the German capital, but a subsequent Berlin broadcast said that fire losses from the "terror attack" were heavy.

In addition to the new bombing of Berlin, the R. A. F. sent fighters against freight trains, barges and trucks serving the Germans in France, Belgium and Holland. The forays lasted thirteen hours.

The Air Ministry said that of the enemy bombers which struck at London few of them penetrated the outer defenses.

"Bombs were dropped at a number of places in Greater London and elsewhere in southeast England," it reported. "Some damage was done, but it was nowhere on a large scale and mainly was confined to houses. The number of casualties so far reported is not large."

Among the ten German raiders shot down was a Dornier 217, a two-motored utility craft which the Germans use for purposes ranging from reconnaissance to dive-bombing.

Aim for Bullseyes.

Instead of trying to drive the bombers away from vital objectives and into the path of night fighters, the gunners aimed for bullseyes directly on the attacking bombers. The night's bag brought to more than 4,000 the number of aircraft destroyed over Britain since the start of the war.

Several Persons Killed.

The barrage showered London rooftops with shell fragments and several persons were killed or wounded by shells which exploded only after striking the ground. The firing, which ceased only after the last of the raiders departed, combined with new secret anti-aircraft devices to make a spectacular show.

London's anti-aircraft gunners meanwhile threw Nazi raiders into confusion by the fierceness of their barrage during two assaults last night and early today when the attackers lost ten of perhaps sixty planes.

Curtain Of Steel.

German efforts at retaliation for the mighty attack which apparently caught Berlin defenses napping Saturday night were relatively mild. London's ground guns threw up a curtain of steel and fire more thunderous and powerful than anything Londoners ever heard before.

Instead of trying to drive the bombers away from vital objectives and into the path of night fighters, the gunners aimed for bull's-eyes directly on the attacking bombers. The night's bag brought to more than 4,000 the number of enemy aircraft destroyed over Britain since the start of the war.

Rooftops Showered

The barrage showered London rooftops with shell fragments and several persons were killed or wounded by shells which exploded only after striking the ground. The firing, which ceased only after the last of the raiders departed, combined with new secret anti-aircraft devices to make a spectacular show.

"Berlin was again attacked by a strong force of our heavy bombers last night," the Air Ministry com-

...nique said. "A great load of ...bs was dropped and by the end ...the attack large fires were burning."

JAN 19 1943

The Air Ministry news service credited four of the bombers destroyed to a Beaufighter squadron, saying that this established a new night-fighting record. Wing Commander C. M. Wight-Boycott was the leader. Delighted that Berlin at last was being repaid heavily for the scourging of their beloved city, Londoners nevertheless were wondering whether the London-Berlin duel meant a return of 1940-41 experiences. The Rome radio said that Adolf Hitler's Government was threatening full reprisals.

A DNB dispatch broadcast from Berlin said a strong German force made the early morning raid on London, and thousands of explosive and incendiary bombs were dropped. However, London spokesmen estimated that not more than thirty bombers participated in each raid—both last night and this morning. They said no important public buildings were hit and industrial damage was slight.

High Explosives Dropped.

High explosive bombs extensively damaged twenty houses on one London road and seven in another during the morning attack. Several casualties were reported and rescue squads searched the debris for other victims.

A stick of bombs dropped in one London district during the first raid wrecked a block of shops, a big department store and many houses. A firewatcher and a woman were killed there, several persons were injured and others were trapped.

The quick exchange of blows demonstrated simultaneously Britain's confidence in her growing air might and the increased strength of her home defenses, which limited the damage inflicted in the London area to a fraction of the havoc created in Berlin. In the raid last night the R. A. F. poured more explosives and incendiaries on the ruins left in Hitler's capital by four-ton "blockbusters" the previous night.

The Saturday night assault was the first on the German capital since the night of November 7, 1941, and was characterized as the heaviest to which the city ever had been subjected by British raiders.

Flyers who had participated in raid said they had set fires visible 100 miles away and reported that large areas in Berlin had been laid waste by 4,000 and 8,000 pound bombs and thousands of incendiaries.

Fliers who had participated in previous raids on Berlin — once known to British airmen as "the hottest spot in Germany"—said that Saturday night the anti-aircraft fire was the weakest they had ever encountered over the city.

"I saw only one searchlight," declared one airman, "and the flak was negligible compared with previous experiences."

The Germans themselves said they shot down only two British bombers Saturday night.

Admit Toll May Rise.

The Berlin radio, which usually attempts to minimize damage caused by raids on German soil, reported that thirty-one persons had been killed and about 150 injured, but indicated that the toll was likely to prove larger when the debris had been cleared away.

The broadcast said that high explosives and incendiaries had fallen in densely populated areas and reported that the huge Deutschland Halle near the Olympic Stadium, in which many events of the 1936 Olympic games were held, had been virtually destroyed.

So far as known it was the first time that Britain's four-motored bombers had been used to make the 1,200-mile trip to Berlin and back and the first time the German capital had felt the destructive force of the "block-busters," which have been used frequently over western German industrial centers in the past year.

The raid also marked the first time that British and American press and radio representatives, chosen by lot, were permitted to accompany the R. A. F. on a night raid on the Continent.

James MacDonald of the New York Times, who made the flight representing American newsmen, said that destruction in Berlin "must have been on a gigantic scale."

"If Berlin has ever had any worse raids than the one I witnessed I am glad I was not a resident of the herrenvolk's (master race) capital city," he cabled home.

[Stanley Richardson of NBC, who also made the trip, in a broadcast last night from London said that "Berlin presented an awesome picture of fire under the pummeling of scores of tons of bombs. As we lined up for the run over the target whole blocks of flaming buildings were visible below. Those conflagrations left no doubt that the very heart of Berlin had been hit, and hit hard." The Brazzaville radio, in a French language broadcast, said yesterday that Berlin was also bombed Saturday night by Russian planes, the Office of War Information reported.]

JAN 19 1943

U. S. Troops "Watch" Raid.

Many American soldiers in the British capital got their baptism of fire. While experienced Londoners dived for air raid shelters—much improved in the last year—the soldiers were inclined to stand around to see the show, until fragments of anti-aircraft shells began to rattle down around them.

London has not been under heavy attack since July 28, 1941, although a few German bombs dropped in the outskirts of the city last October.

LONDON, Jan. 18 (AP)—Berlin was battered for the second successive time last night by a strong RAF force which dropped hundreds of tons of the biggest bombs the world ever has known and set great fires in Hitler's capital with perhaps 100,000 incendiaries.

The loss of 22 big bombers, compared with only one the night before, was a heavy price to pay for any raid but British observers said it was not prohibitive in view of the large number of aircraft attacking the very nerve center of the German war machine.

"A great load of bombs was dropped and, by the end of the attack, large fires were burning," the Air Ministry said.

A brief night alert sounded again in London tonight when a few Axis planes crossed the coast and headed up the Thames. Some were driven back quickly and those which approached the capital environs caused only "trifling" damage. Crowds scurried to the shelters, however, and stayed there after the all-clear, expecting another alert. Slight gunfire was heard.

The Berlin radio said 82 persons were killed in Berlin in the two RAF raids, 50 of them prisoners of war.

One southern England town was dive-bombed in the clear moonlight and suffered considerable damage.

Some speculated that the devastating one-two stab at Berlin was part of a softening process behind the Nazi lines for the opening this year of a second front on the continent.

German night fighters which had been concentrated in the Ruhr to combat persistent British attacks there apparently were shifted hastily back to Berlin and accounted for the heavier price the RAF paid.

While the explosives and fire bombs were chewing up the Reich capital, the Germans flew over London in two comparatively weak retaliatory raids.

"Some damage was done," but it was nowhere on a large scale and mainly was confined to houses," a communique said. Ten of some 60 raiders were destroyed, four by one night fighter squadron which set a new record.

London's millions were relieved to realize that the power of the Luftwaffe in western Europe had withered appreciably since the harrowing days of 1940-41.

At least 12 were killed in London, the hardest-hit area being a row of two-story workers' apartments. One victim was a baby whose body was hurled 250 yards to the top of a three-story house.

Under a low cloud cover a strong force of allied planes roared out over the channel shortly before dusk today in the direction of Boulogne.

Heavy explosions were heard from France for some time afterward by watchers at Folkestone. Some buildings there shook.

British pilots said the ground fire at Berlin apparently was no heavier than on Saturday night but that the German defenses, particularly night fighters, were helped by bright moonlight and a clear sky. The bombers had approached Berlin through clouds all across Europe the night before.

German accounts insisted that "disaster" befell the British planes and asserted that few reached the capital. The Berlin radio admitted, however, that fire damage was heavy and, significantly, termed the attack "a terror raid."

Berlin Reports 82 Killed

LONDON, Jan. 18 (AP).—The Berlin radio said tonight that eighty-two persons were killed in the British air raids on Berlin Saturday and Sunday nights and that the casualties included fifty prisoners of war.

German accounts insisted that "disaster" befell the British planes Sunday night and asserted that few reached the German capital. The Berlin radio admitted that fire damage was heavy and, significantly, termed the attack "a terror raid."

Under a low cloud cover, a strong force of Allied planes roared out over the Channel not long before dusk today in the direction of Boulogne. Explosions were heard from France for some time afterward by watchers at Folkstone. Some buildings there shook.

Sweden Warned Of Attack

London, Jan. 18 (AP).—Prime Minister Per Albin Hansson of Sweden, in a curiously specific manner, warned his country today against the possibility of attack and declared it was Sweden's "unshakable" will to fight if invaded.

The Prime Minister of the only country in northern Europe that has remained neutral and unmolested addressed the Swedish Parliament as active war again came to the shores of the Baltic with the Red army's relief of Leningrad.

Per Albin Hansson

The part of the Prime Minister's speech which lifted it beyond similar formal declarations of neutral national leaders in a time of threat, was a passage in which he warned against believing false radio instructions to cease resistance.

"Beyond any doubt we will defend ourselves," this passage read. "This has already been explained in orders to all subordinate military commanders.

"In addition it is the duty of every citizen to inform himself of these orders and to remember that every order which might be distributed that defense is to cease is false."

This precaution recalled the employment of such ruses in the German invasion of Norway nearly three years ago when Norwegian garrisons surrendered and failed to offer resistance for reasons which seemed unaccountable until it was learned that they had received false orders from fifth columnists.

Sweden has been an an uneasy position amidst belligerents for four years, beginning with the Finnish-Russian war of 1939-40 when the Allies wanted to go to the relief of the Finns through Norway and Sweden.

JAN 19 1943

The German occupation of Norway in April, 1940, and the drawing of Finland into Germany's war on Russia in the Summer of 1941 left her an island in Nazi-dominated territory.

The relief of Leningrad, however, opens the possibility of a new northern campaign, not only by the Red army but also by Russia's allies, with the objective of improving the supply connections.

An Allied invasion of Norway played a prominent part in second front speculation last Summer.

The Swedes long have been conscious that such an invasion would bring the danger of a demand for passage of Nazi troops through their country.

Nazis Rate Raids High

Stockholm, Jan. 18 (AP).—The Berlin newspaper Nachtausgabe said tonight that Berlin after two heavy RAF raids presented "the same view" as heavily battered Cologne, Bremen, Emden, Duesseldorf, Essen and Wilhelmshaven, "but on a smaller scale." The cities mentioned are the most heavily bombed in all Germany.

British Sink Axis Supply Ship

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 18.—British light naval forces sank a medium-sized Axis supply ship 100 miles Northwest of Tripoli on Saturday, the Admirality announced today.

The vessel was sailing under escort and the escorting ship, which was not identified as to type, was reported damaged.

The British warships suffered neither casualties nor damage, the Admirality said.

SUBMARINE SHELLS FREIGHT TRAIN

London, Jan. 18 (A. P.).—British surface craft and submarines have blasted five supply ships out of the Axis shipping lanes in the Mediterranean and submarine deck guns have again shelled the Italian shore, the Admiralty announced today.

In addition to the sinking or fatal grounding of the five vessels under fire of British guns and torpedoes, an escort ship was reported damaged. Communiques said that light naval forces sank two of the ships and damaged the escort vessel, and that submarines accounted for the others.

The submarines' victims were described as a large supply vessel that was driven ashore in the Gulf of Genoa with two torpedo wounds; a fully laden medium-sized craft sunk off Sardinia and another medium-sized ship that broke in two under shellfire and torpedo hits that were scored "in spite of the intervention of shore batteries."

The Admiralty said an Italian freight train was repeatedly hit and set afire in a bombardment near Paola, on the west coast of Italy.

JERSEYMAN CITED AS FORTRESS HERO

London, Jan. 18 (A. P.).—A wounded co-pilot's successful struggle to save his battered Flying Fortress during the recent American attacks on the captive French steel works at Lille evoked high praise today from his commanding General.

Recovering from gashes of the face and a leg, Second Lieut. Joseph B. Boyle of Teaneck, N. J., was visited by Brig.-Gen. H. S. Hansell Jr., who was in the lead ship of the attack when Lieut. Boyle's pilot was killed. Gen. Hansell said he was still amazed that Lieut. Boyle, despite the difficult conditions, had enough stamina to land the plane safely at the base."

Major Tom H. Taylor of Eugene, Ore., pilot of the Dry Martini, was killed in battle with Nazi fighters after the Fortress had dropped its bombs. "I thought the cocktail kids were done for," Gen. Hansell said.

Following the bomber downward, a German fighter's shells wounded in the legs Staff Sergt. William Beach of Lordsburg, N. M., and Staff Sergt. J. F. Hill of Valhalla, N. Y. Despite his wounds, Sergt. Beach, helped by the radio operator, Sergt. Oscar Ballew of Enola, Pa., carried the pilot's body into the nose of the ship, and Sergt. Hill kept firing from the tail turret.

JAN 19 1943

The official commendation for Lieut. Boyle and the crew said: "Lieut. Boyle's courage, level-headedness and ability in bringing his aircraft back safely saved not only his crew but also the aircraft. All the crew acted heroically under great difficulties and intense enemy fire."

"He and the crew deserve the highest credit," Hansell said.

Unscathed were the waist gunner, Sgt. W. D. Hise of Pittsburgh, who alternated at two guns, and the tail gunner, Sgt. Richard F. Willis of Brockton, Mass., whose flying suit was ripped by a shell burst.

Awards Given Wounded Flyers

London, Jan. 18 (AP)—Thirteen officers and six non-commissioned officers of the United States Army's Eighth Air Force were awarded Purple Hearts today for wounds suffered during daylight raids over German-occupied Europe.

Those decorated included:

Capt. William R. Calhoun, Birmingham, Ala.; Second Lieutenant Joseph M. Strickland, Liberty, Miss., and Sergts. James O. Carter, Jr., Yazoo City, Miss.; Joe Bowles, Roanoke, Va.; Joseph A. Morris, Greenville Sound, Wilmington, N. C., and Conrad Kicklighter, Alma, Georgia.

NAZI-SWISS PACT ENDS

Berne, Jan. 18 (A. P.).—Negotiations between Switzerland and Germany for a new trade treaty ended without an agreement today after several months of discussions. Future economic exchanges will be on the basis of individual transactions.

Remaining unchanged will be present import and export regulations, including privileges of "navicerts" required because of the United Nations blockade. The previous agreement, signed in July, 1941, carried with it a Swiss credit to Germany of 50,000,000 francs ($11,500,000 by the last quotation in 1941 of the Swiss franc). This credit and a brief renewal also died in the failure of negotiations.

4 Yanks, 3 Britons Take Command Amid Panic as Destroyers Attack

VALLETTA, Malta, Jan. 18 (AP)—The harrowing confinement of four American and three British prisoners of war in the torpedo room of an Italian submarine and their dramatic rescue when the submersible was blasted by a British plane in the Mediterranean was disclosed today—one of the oddest incidents of the war to date.

The seven Allied prisoners had a close call, because when the submarine was bombed the Italians gave way to panic and scrambled for the conning tower and air in an every-man-for-himself dash.

The four Americans were 2d Lt. E. S. Millechamp, 24, of Lake Wales, Fla.; 2d Lt. J. C. Lentz, 25, Paris, Texas; Lt. R. D. Burley, Port Huron, Mich., and 2d Lt. Don Bryant of Montana.

They told their story on their arrival here along with flying Officer J. N. Cartwright, pilot of a British bomber which sighted and bombed their prison submarine. All the Americans and Britons are recovering rapidly from their experience. Burley and Bryant received treatment for exposure and glass cuts. The Americans were airmen who had been forced down in Axis-held territory and were being taken to Italy.

"We were put aboard the submarine at Tripoli, Jan. 13," said Lt. Millechamp. "Without life preservers they put us in the forward torpedo compartment with a loaf of bread. We had two Italian soldiers as guards, but they never had been to sea before and got seasick. We had to take care of them.

"At 1:35 P. M. the following day there was a terrific bang which wrecked the inside of the submarine and blew out the lights. The Italians were panicked. They screamed and bumped into one another in a mad dash for the conning tower which was protruding above water though the deck was awash."

"All but three Italians got out on deck, then shut the hatch, locking the remaining three and ourselves in the sub. We stumbled in the dark to the officers' mess which had begun to fill with chlorine gas. There was a leak and the submarine began to sink. So the Italians on deck opened the hatch again to send down mechanics to stop the leak. We charged through that hatch in such a fury that the mechanics never got down."

One of the Britons, a major, had a pair of binoculars and saw a destroyer which he identified as British. He saw a flash which he first thought was a heliograph signal, but as the shell whizzed overhead he and the others quickly realized it was a gun aimed at the target.

The Italians next hoisted a white flag on the conning tower, but the Americans and British taking over from the excited crewmen made them take it down. They also had the two deck cannon dismantled and thrown overboard as a further sign of surrender.

But the shells kept coming, and then the Italians jumped into the sea.

The submarine was sinking slowly and the Americans had to leave the deck also. Millechamp, clinging to the conning tower, was the last to jump into the water.

IN WATER TWO HOURS

The Americans and Britons were in the water nearly two hours without life jackets. The Italians who had life preservers still were yelling and screaming and alternately praying, the Americans related.

But the British destroyer finally hove to and rescued all the men struggling in the water. Lentz was so exhausted he had to be pulled aboard.

But Burley had the narrowest escape. British seamen gave him artificial respiration for one hour and 30 minutes before they restored him to consciousness.

All the men were given hot baths, wrapped in blankets, and placed in bunks aboard the pitching destroyer. The roll was so severe that two British sailors sat on Lentz to keep him in his bunk.

After a time the men were given hot tea, soup, bread, and marmalade. An hour later they were served a chicken dinner.

"It was the best food we ever had," said Millechamp.

Captives Escape From Bombed Axis Submarine

U. S. and British Prisoners Force Way From Torpedo Room of Sinking Craft

CAIRO, Jan. 18 (AP).—Locked inside the torpedo compartment of an Italian submarine when it was blasted by depth charges from a British plane in the Mediterranean, a group of British and American war prisoners escaped and lived to tell about it.

British destroyers, summoned to the scene by the pilot of the attacking plane, picked up the survivors after they had been in the water two hours and landed them at Malta. One of the rescued men was an observer on an American bombing plane which had made a forced landing in Tripolitania and been captured by the Italians.

"We were locked in the forward torpedo room with some Italian soldiers as guards," the American observer said. "I was lying on a bunk, when suddenly there was an ear-splitting crash and the lights went out.

"The Italian soldiers already were on the floor, being seasick, and the Italian sailors walked over them to get to the conning-tower hatch. They went through the hatch and locked it behind them.

"We were down there in the dark with no lifejackets. There was a British major, and he took charge of our party and reconnoitered our prospects of reaching the conning-tower hatch. The submarine had stopped now—they had been forced to cut their engines because of the depth-charge damage—and we were rolling heavily.

JAN 19 1943

"We were not feeling any too good, for we could hear water trickling into our torpedo compartment. We felt worse in a few minutes when we suddenly heard air hissing through the submarine. It got louder, and we thought: 'Well, anything can happen at any moment.' But it was only the submarine blowing (emptying) her tanks.

"When the air stopped hissing, the hatch leading into our compartment was opened by an Italian soldier. We just brushed him aside and beat it to the conning tower.

"We forced our way in and saw the British aircraft. The Italians already were in a panic. They tried to run up an Italian flag, but we stopped them."

Meanwhile, British destroyers came up and began shelling the stricken submarine. The Italians became more and more frenzied, and many dived overboard.

Two hours after the submarine went down the destroyers nosed in and picked up the survivors.

There were four Americans and three Britons on the submarine. The Americans were Second Lieutenant E. S. Millechamp, twenty-four years old, of Lake Wales, Fla., navigator on a Flying Fortress forced down in Tripolitania; Second Lieutenant J. C. Lentz, twenty-three years old, of Paris, Tex., who was flying a P-38 fighter in Tunisia which ran out of fuel after an encounter with three Messerschmitts; Lieutenant R. D. Burley, of Port Huron, Mich., and Second Lieutenant Don Bryant, of Montana.

Montgomery Spurs Drive for a Rendezvous With Eisenhower in Tunisia

By The Associated Press

CAIRO, Jan. 18.—The British 8th Army in Libya, driving German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's forces westward along a seventy-mile front stretching inland from the coast, stood tonight less than 100 miles from Tripoli, the main colonial port left to Italy in Africa, but a port now so scarred by Allied bombing that it no longer is considered a major enemy base.

General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's renewed offensive, having rolled about a hundred miles since the destruction of Rommel's main line Friday and Saturday at Buerat el Hsun, was going forward along the coast and from the vicinity of Beni Ulid inland. On his left, Montgomery was cutting straight across the Tripolitanian hump toward Tripoli, and before him the Allied air force was beating at the retreating Axis forces with powerful effect. Squadrons were being moved up rapidly as airfield after airfield fell into British hands in Montgomery's long march toward Tunisia and a rendezvous with Lieutenant General Dwight D. Eisenhower's North African forces.

Rain Stalls Tunisia Battle

[Ground action in Tunisia again was virtually at a standstill because of rain, and also air activity was light. Allied headquarters announced that small Allied bomber forces had attacked road and railway transport moving from Axis-held supply ports in Tunisia, and reported destruction of three German planes and loss of two Allied aircraft.

[Recapitulating action from the beginning of the Tunisian campaign through Jan. 15, the United States Army 12th Air Force announced that 194 German and Italian planes had been smashed by American flyers in that period, as against a loss of ninety-seven American planes.

[British light naval forces and submarines scored new successes along the Axis sea lanes in the Mediterranean, sinking or forcing aground five merchant ships and damaging an escort ship, the Admiralty announced at London. In addition, one submarine shelled a train near Paola, near the toe of the Italian mainland, and left it aflame.

[Two of the ships were sunk by submarines near Sardinia and another was hit by submarine torpedoes and forced aground near Genoa. Two other ships were sunk Saturday and Saturday night by light naval forces northwest of Tripoli and east of Tunisia and an escort ship was damaged.]

8th Army Speeds Ahead

General Montgomery's rapid advance in the last section of Tripolitania held by the Axis was overrunning resistance which in some areas was fairly strong—pockets of artillery batteries, machine-gun nests and mine fields. Moreover, he had put behind him one of the major obstacles in the field of his offensive, the Wadi Sofeggin (Valley of Bad Lands).

British headquarters at Cairo disclosed that the Allied air force attached to the 8th Army had gone into the Tunisian theater to support the Allied operations there, in addition to keeping Rommel's retreat under fire. It was announced that two enemy ships were successfully attacked by planes off eastern Tunisia and that Axis transport on the road westward from Tripoli to the Tunisian port of Sfax had been effectively raided.

A new bombing attack on Tripoli was reported, while enemy raids on Tobruk cost the Axis four of the six bombers sent into the attack.

In all the widespread Allied air operations reported today by the Cairo command, only five planes were lost.

[An Italian high command communique asserted that British land attacks in Tripolitania had been contained and about twenty British tanks knocked out. Repulse of local Allied attacks in Tunisia was reported.

[The German high command, in speaking of Libya, told of "strong enemy infantry and tank attacks" which, it asserted, had been repulsed "with extremely heavy losses inflicted on the enemy."]

Eighth Army Sweeps Eighty Miles Cross-country in New Offensive.

TWO GROUPS CHASE ROMMEL

Allied Heavy Bombers in Action in Both Theaters of War in Africa.

S. BARBER

CAIRO, Jan. 18 (A. P.).—The British Eighth Army, sweeping across Libya after cracking Marshal Rommel's defenses at Buerat el Hsun, was reported within 100 miles of Tripoli today in a thrust apparently designed to by-pass Misurata and other points along the African coast.

A communique from Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's headquarters, announcing that the British vanguard had reached the vicinity of Beni Ulid indicated that his forces were taking a straight line across the Tripolitanian Hump in an effort to get to Tripoli by the shortest possible route.

Beni Ulid is roughly 100 miles from the coast and about the same distance from Tripoli.

Advances Eighty Miles.

Gen. Montgomery's announcement said that his forces were in contact with the enemy last evening in the area between Beni Ulid and the coastal villages of Tauorga and Bir Dufan after advancing a total of more than eighty miles.

[The Italian High Command, in a communique broadcast from Rome, declared that at least twenty Allied tanks had been left immobilized in lively engagements in eastern Libya, that the Allied attacks were repelled, and that two Allied planes were shot down while Axis planes scored direct hits on two Allied merchant ships in North African harbors and left one in a sinking condition.]

Battle Line 70 Miles Long.

Gen. Montgomery's communique indicated that the Libyan battlefront was more than seventy miles long, stretching from the area of Tauorga, twenty-five miles south of Misurata, and Bir Dufan, eight miles further south on the coastal road, to Beni Ulid, which is on the highway leading cross-country to Tripoli. Beni Ulid and Bir Rufan are connected by a desert track.

The advance reported today meant that the Eighth Army have crossed Wadi Sofeggin, the last of three gulches in which it had been thought that Rommel might attempt to stand. British observers said that Gen. Montgomery was trying hard to bring Rommel to battle, but that the wily German was doing his best to avoid a major engagement by fighting small-scale delaying actions by day and retreating by night.

By cutting out across the desert and by-passing Misurata, the British forces will avoid some rugged country along the coast which Rommel would have found favorable for defense. However, if the British should at the same time continue their drive along the coastal road, they would soon be in country under cultivation and with plentiful water all the way into Tripoli.

Tripoli Is Twice Bombed.

Allied bombers, meanwhile, continued their assault on Rommel's base of supplies with two attacks on Tripoli yesterday.

In the push to Beni Ulid, some prisoners were taken, the communique declared, and added: "The Allied air forces pressed home a continuous offensive over the battle area, and our fighter-bombers and fighters found many good targets on enemy transports withdrawing to the west. Considerable damage was inflicted."

In addition to bombing Tripoli, Allied airmen yesterday successfully attacked two enemy vessels off the Tunisian coast and blasted the airdrome on Lampedusa Island, the communique continued. Other attacks were made on the coastal road east of Tripoli, between Tuorga and Misurata, and on the highway leading westward to the Tunisian port of Sfax. Considerable damage was inflicted in these assaults, the communique said.

The only enemy air activity reported was a raid on Tobruk, in which four of six attacking Axis bombers were shot down. The British reported a loss of five planes in the extensive Allied air operations.

400 Miles from Junction.

The Eighth Army's advance cut to about 400 miles the distance separating it from the Allied forces in Tunisia. Whether Rommel would attempt another stand short of Tripoli or flee on into Tunisia to join forces with the Nazi Army defending Tunis and Bizerte was the question of the moment. Tripoli itself, so badly battered from the air that its dock facilities were reported almost unusable, is generally regarded as indefensible. It was considered possible, however, that Rommel might try to fight another delaying action in the Gebel Nefuza, ridge of hills about fifty miless outh of Tripoli where he is said to have erected defense works.

The Eighth Army's new drive was launched by moonlight early on Friday morning, both tanks and infantry participating. The Germans offered sharp resistance at some points but withdrew from others without showing much fight.

U.S. FLIERS SMASH AT GERMAN BASES

NORGAARD

Bag of Axis Planes in Africa Now at 194; Rain Holds Up Land Operations.

JAN 19 1943

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Jan. 18.—(AP)—United States fighters and bombers pressed their aerial onslaught against German land and air communications today while repeated showers kept ground operations at a virtual standstill.

The 12th U. S. Air Force reported the destruction of 194 Germen and Italian planes from the beginning of the North African campaign last Nov. 8 through Friday, Jan. 15, against the loss of 97 American aircraft.

Lockheed Lightning P-38's shot down a pair of Junkers 52 transports returning to Sicily from Tunisia yesterday and a Junkers 88 bomber which was heading for Tunisia, it was announced.

At the same time B-25 light bombers, the North American Billy Mitchells, hammered the railroad junction at Graiba, 30 miles southwest of Sfax, with an escort of P-38's. Bombs were seen to hit the target.

In the Lightning sweep out over the Mediterranean, Lieut. Herman W. Visscher of Kalamazoo, Mich., and Capt. William B. Peterson of Omaha, Neb., each shot down a Junkers 52, and Capt. William W. Wittleff of Port Huron, Mich., accounted for the Junkers 88.

The Royal Air Force, on the other hand, reported that light Bixley bombers machine-gunned and bombed German transports moving supplies and troops from forts at Sfax and Tunis toward the battle front on Saturday night. British Spitfires on patrol yesterday encountered a few enemy fighters. One Spitfire failed to return.

Meanwhile today the Twelfth United States Air Force reported the destruction of 194 German and Italian planes from the beginning of the North African campaign on November 8 through Friday, January 15, against a loss of ninety-seven American aircraft. During the week ended January 15 American planes destroyed forty-six German and Italian aircraft and damaged thirty-two others against a loss of sixteen, a spokesman added.

The only ground activity on the Tunisian front was reported by the French, who said that their forces had captured several important points in the Gebel Bou Dabous sector, twenty miles northwest of Kairouan, and in the Gebel Dufoad area, further south.

The Fighting French announced that Gen. Jacques le Clerc's troops, cleaning up the Fezzan, in southern Libya, had marched more than 1,000 miles across the Sahara to reach the Tripolitanian battleground, thus adding to the menace facing Rommel's retreating forces.

Tunisia Seen Likely Last Rommel Stand

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 18 (AP)—It seemed here tonight that Field Marshal Rommel might turn his back completely on the East, making his supreme North African stand in Tunisia.

It was speculated that he still has a fighting army of possibly 110,000 men. The strategy of this, of course, would be to attempt to create the strongest possible bridgehead in Tunisia, to prevent if possible, the Allies from using North Africa as the springboard against the European continent.

Governor of Tunisia is Major General Jurion. He was a brigadier general in Tunisia when the Allied landings were made. Gathering a considerable force of his men, he broke through positions established by the Germans, joined Giraud and turned his forces immediately against the Nazis.

Cairo, Jan. 17 (AP)—A single plane of the "Groupe Bretagne," flyers with Gen. Jacques Leclerc's Central African army now moving to the aid of the Allies in North Africa, captured 140 Italian troops.

Its pilot who saw the garrison of Italian-held Fort Murzuch, 2,500 air miles southeast of Tripoli, evacuating their stronghold, machine-gunned them until his ammunition was exhausted.

Then he dropped a note threatening to open fire with his cannon unless they surrendered.

They did.

He had no cannon.

Five Jap Ships Hit at Rabaul

Flying Fortresses Sink or Heavily Damage Vessels in New Britain Harbor

JAN 19 1943

Melbourne, Australia, Jan. 18 (A. P.).—United States bombers sank or badly damaged five Japanese merchant ships in the harbor of Rabaul, New Britain, during a three-hour raid Saturday night and Allied airmen blasted Japanese footholds over a wide area in the southwest Pacific over the week end, an Allied communique said today.

Three waves of Flying Fortresses attacked ships and harbor installations at Raboul, fighting their way through heavy anti-aircraft fire to get over the targets. The five ships hit in the attack had a total tonnage of 25,000 tons, the communique said. Airdromes at Raboul also were bombed and fires were visible for fifty miles afterward, it was said. All the Fortresses returned safely to their base.

The Japanese retaliated yesterday with an attack by twenty-four medium bombers and twenty Zero fighters on the Allied base at Milne Bay in New Guinea, but the communique reported that damage was not important and there were no casualties. It was the heaviest raid the Japanese have made on the northern Papuan coast in months. The Zeros avoided combat with Allied fighters.

Jap Bases Raided.

Allied bombers again hit Japanese supply dumps at Lae, New Guinea, and the docks at Madang and Finschhafen and the air drome at Malabang were also attacked. An enemy transport was bombed near Admiralty Island but the results were not observed.

On the ground Allied forces cut the main road in the Japanese rear at Sanananda yesterday, the communique said, and 120 Japanese dead were counted.

Gen. Sir Thomas Blamey, Australian commander of Allied Ground Troops under Gen. Douglas MacArthur, told the Australians in a broadcast last night that Japan's forces in Papua have been practically exterminated as well as defeated.

Warns of Hard Fight Ahead.

"Don't for one moment think that we are out of the woods with the Japanese," he warned, however. "His self belief is colossal and his resources are great. Because we have driven him from the point of immediate menace don't imagine that all the menace is past by any means."

The total Allied battle losses in the campaign now nearing its end at Sanananda are many thousands less than the enemy lost in land fighting alone, Gen. Blamey said. Allied land forces dealt thoroughly with the enemy. The enemy's losses at sea in personnel alone exceeded the Allied battle losses and a sharp blow was struck at his (Japanese) shipping, he said.

WM HIPPLE

Guadalcanal, Jan. 5 (Delayed), (A. P.).—Their ammunition gone after shooting down four Japanese dive bombers and leaving three others smoking, four United States Marine fighter pilots were attacked today by a large formation of Zeros—and how they bluffed their way out of this hot spot is one of the big stories of the new year from Guadalcanal.

The four flyers — outnumbered three to one—outsmarted the Japs by turning their planes directly into the Zeros, pretending thus to be delivering an attack, though their guns were without a sting. They got away uninjured but their planes were full of holes and they chafe now that they're living on borrowed time.

The pilots are Capt. Gregg Loesch, 23 years old, of Montrose, Col.; Lieut. William P. Marontate, 23, of Seattle, Wash.; Lieut. Frank H. (Skeezik) Presley, 22, of Encinitas, Cal., and Lieut. Jack B. Gifford, 23, of Cleveland, Ohio.

Flying Grumman Wildcats, they were patrolling west of Guadalcanal when they saw eight to ten Jap dive bombers attacking American warships. The warships had shelled the Jap airdrome at Munda, New Guinea, in the early morning darkness and were speeding southward when attacked. The ships threw up anti-aircraft fire and the dive bombers failed to hit them.

"We couldn't get there in time to stop the ship attack but we sure piled into them in a hurry after that," Lieut. Marontate said. "The dive bombers spread out and tried to head for home. We each picked a target and dived. We came close to their tails and let them have it.

Marontate Bags Two.

"The tail gunner of my quarry was firing back at me, but I soon got him—saw his arms flop outstretched over the side of the cockpit. I kept firing and pretty soon the forward cockpit was aflame. The dive bomber hit the water and exploded. Then I got onto another one.

Lieut. Marontate got that one too. Capt. Loesch shot down one and another that he attacked was smoking when last seen. Lieut. Presley also shot down one and had another smoking. Lieut. Gifford got one smoker.

Capt. Loesch, the flight leader, saw that all the American planes' ammunition was gone and signaled for the join up for the homeward journey.

"About fifteen miles from the ships we ran in this pack of about twelve Zeros, which were of the new type two, somewhat larger and faster than the old ones," he said. "Marontate saw them first as he was on the end of the formation. He just about broke my eardrums yelling the news over the radio.

"Well, there we were—no ammunition and outnumbered three to one. We pulled into a line abreast, with about 300 feet between planes. The Zeros made individual runs, roaring down one at a time.

"There wasn't much we could do but bluff and fake attacks. When a Zero started to dive on one of us, the guy in the next plane along the line would pull up and turn into the oncoming Jap. The Jap wouldn't like a Grumman's nose staring him in the face and he'd pull away. This would throw them off until the next dive and save us a chance to gain a bit of distance toward home.

"Boy, we were high-tailing it wide open. I guess the Japs didn't know we were out of ammunition. From straight on you can't see tracers and they thought they were being fired on.

Members of Foss's Circus.

"We went through this business all the way home, the Zeros following us to within two miles of Henderson Field. You can quote me as saying I'm glad to be back."

"Me, too!" said Lieut. Gifford.

"I counted twenty bullet holes in my plane."

Lieut. Marontate now has shot down a total of twelve Japanese planes, Loesch, eight, and Presley, three. Today's encounter was Lieut. Gifford's first contact with the enemy. These boys are members of the fabulous outfit headed by Capt. Joe Foss of Sioux Falls, S. D., who alone has downed twenty-three Japanese planes.

"Hollywood Joe Foss's Flying Circus," as it is called, has shot down a total of sixty-two planes since it arrived October 9, a period which included one month out of the active area.

The whole Marine squadron of which these boys are members now has a bag of 132 Jap planes.

Supplies In Attack

JAN 19 1943

By Olen Clements
(Associated Press Correspondent)

Guadalcanal, Jan. 12 (Delayed). A Flying Fortress crew today braved heavy Japanese fire to take food, water and ammunition to 200 American infantrymen who captured an important hill on Guadalcanal so far ahead of schedule they had outdistanced their supplies.

The men had been without food and water for two days.

They were scheduled to take the hill in eight days, but they went in with machine guns blazing and after two and a half days of bitter fighting had the objective in hand. But they were surrounded by Japs.

Crew Volunteers

The only way supplies could be sent to the Americans by land was by an uncertain two-day trip through the jungle.

In desperation the infantry commander went to Capt. W. H. Rathbun of Waterloo, Iowa, the Fortress pilot, and asked if he would undertake a dangerous mission.

Rathbun's crew was due to leave in a few minutes for a rest after days of flying in the Guadalcanal area, but they volunteered to deliver the supplies to the surrounded infantrymen first.

Fly At 150 Feet

It was only a five-mile flight to the American position, but the bomber had to go directly over the Japs at 150 feet and then fly almost uphill to drop the supplies beyond the reach of the enemy.

Parachute specialists rigged up food, water and ammunition in baskets with chutes attached. Capt. Rathbun's crew then loaded the supplies in the ship's bomb bay and took off.

It was only a five-mile flight to the American position, but the bomber had to go directly over the Japs at 150 feet and then fly almost uphill to drop the supplies beyond the reach of the enemy.

The first time over, the bomber zoomed low and away, and almost instantaneously the pilot and co-pilot, Lieut. C. H. McConnell, Glendale, Cal., saw the Americans standing on top of the hill waving their hats.

Jap bullets whizzed all around the bomber as it skimmed the tree tops.

Sergt. A. E. Caird of Deer River, N. Y., the bombardier, sighted and dropped the baskets just as he would bombs. In the words of Lieut. E. C. Hecley, De Kalb, Tex., the navigator, "he put them right in their laps."

Four Seconds to Act.

Other crew members standing by the side of hatches and doors were heaving foodstuffs over sides as fast as possible, for at the rate the bomber was going they only had four seconds over the hill.

Backward and forward the plane zoomed until the load was dumped. Then it returned to Henderson Field to load up again and repeat the performance three more times until enough supplies for several days had been delivered to the hilltop.

On the second trip, some baskets fell in a ravine near the Japs and the hilltop commander sent a patrol after it. They encountered Japanese in the ravine and the infantry commander ordered artillery to shell the spot.

Capt. Rathbun's bomber flew through that barrage just as it did through the heavy fire of the Japs. The bomber's crew returned safely. None was wounded and there were few holes in the ship.

Other members of the bomber crew were Sergts. L. J. Arsenault of Chelsea, Mass.; Albert Newman of El Dorado, Ark.; Albert Luciana of Candor, N. Y., Charles Manahan of Maplewood, Mo., and Corporal L. A. Nye of Wareham, Mass.

Men Outdistanced

An Exciting Day At Sanananda

By William F. Boni
(Associated Press Correspondent)

With American Troops in New Guinea, Jan. 18 (Delayed)—It was an exciting day for American troops on the Sanananda front today, but the excitement started many hours earlier for at least three.

They were Privates Jimmy Spears, of Ogden, Utah; Charles Hume, of Billings, Mont., and John D. Campbell, Los Angeles.

Spears had been on guard a half hour last night while jeeps were bringing in supplies and ammunition when he saw a figure with a rifle pointed downward coming along the main road. Spears called out for an identification, but the figure kept coming—close enough finally for the soldiers to see he was a Jap.

JAN 19 1943

Jap Moves To Shoot

Spears held his fire. Suddenly he saw the Jap's hand start fumbling with the riflebolt. Then he tackled the stranger, downed him and called for help.

Hume bobbed out of the foxhole and Campbell from another, Campbell helping to hold the prisoner while Hume searched him. They questioned the Jap a little and found he spoke some English—"probably more than he let on," Campbell remarked.

Several times, Spears said, the Jap "made hand signs of firing a rifle and then pointed to himself, apparently asking me to shoot him."

Then A Grenade

The Americans replied by motioning their prisoner to go to sleep, and after a time he lay down near some ammunition supplies and quietly dozed off.

Several hours later he had to be moved to make room for more ammunition. His captors stood him up and saw suddenly that he had a grenade in his fist. Campbell slapped it away.

Airmen Visit Jungle Forces

With American Troops in New Guinea, Jan. 16 (Delayed) (AP)—Two men from the United States Army Air Force's service depot in the Port Moresby area arrived at Huggins roadblock late this afternoon on a busman's holiday.

Sergt. Maston H. Clay, Jr., of Shamrock, Texas, and Corporal R. K. Lightbody, of Freeport, Pa., having a few days' leave, decided to see the land-fighting front.

They had two regrets. "We seem to be dressed in the wrong clothes," said Clay, of their sweaty suntans, conspicous in the midst of jungle green. "Also, the plane we came over the mountains in had engine trouble just after the takeoff and had to return; so we missed the big 9 o'clock push—but perhaps they'll have another tomorrow," said Lightbody.

'Unhinging Japs' Aim: Harmon

JAN 19 1943

[By the Associated Press]

At a South Pacific Base, Jan. 13 (Delayed) — Looking beyond the American foothold on Guadalcanal Maj. Gen. Millard F. Harmon, commander of the army air and ground forces in the South Pacific, declared today it was the aim of the Allies to "unhinge the Japanese from New Guinea, the Bismarck archipelago and the Solomon Islands."

"We're not thinking in terms only of Guadalcanal," Gen. Harmon said in reply to a question as to whether further American conquests in the Solomons would be necessary to hold Guadalcanal.

Munda Raid Effective

Harmon said that air reconnaissance from Guadalcanal has disclosed that the navy bombardment of the Japanese airdrome at Munda, on New Georgia Island January 5, was "very, very effective."

He said he did not expect the Japanese would attempt to build a new air field on their part of Guadalcanal, but probably would continue their development of Munda and fields in the northern Solomons.

Calls Japs Weaker

He said there was evidence that Japan was weaker in both planes and pilots, and pointed out that the "over-all obligations" of Japanese flyers now extend to the Aleutian Islands and to Burma. He declined to comment on a question concerning the length of time needed to complete the occupation of Guadalcanal.

He said the ground forces were doing well and had taken Mount Aestern and other positions "which had been a thorn in the side for months." Asserting that more planes and equipment were needed on Guadalcanal, he said it was amazing what already had been moved there in the face of many difficulties.

Tribute To Troops

He paid tribute to the United States troops and said that, unlike the Japanese, they had no fanatical desire to die.

"The fear of being killed," he added, "is not keeping them from going forward. . . . We are after the Japanese hides and ships, his Tokyo, his all, including his face."

U.S. BOMBERS HIT SHORTLAND AREA IN TWO-DAY RAID

JAN 19 1943

Guadalcanal Forces Kill 150 More Japs; Enemy Shipping Blasted at Rabaul.

Washington, Jan. 18. — (AP) — American bombers heavily pounded Ballale Island in the enemy-held Shortland Island area of the Solomons Friday night and Saturday, starting fires, the Navy announced today, while ground forces on Guadalcanad accounted for 150 more Japanese troops killed and a number of prisoners taken as mopping up operations continued.

The Navy communique also said that on Jan. 15 (Solomons time), "during the evening Flying Fortress heavy bombers dropped bombs in the Japanese held Kahili area on Bougainville Island. Two large fires were observed after the attack. Later the same night, Catalina patrol bombers followed up the attack on Kahili and additional fires were started.

"During the same night Catalinas attacked enemy positions at Munda, on New Georgia Island."

Objective Not Revealed

The objective of the two attacks on tiny Ballale Island was not disclosed and a naval spokesman said the nature of the Japanese installations was unknown to him.

Ballale is about one mile in diameter and lies three miles off the northeast coast of Shortland Island.

Shortland, in turn, lies 13 miles south of Buin, where is located the Japanese Kahili airport on the southeastern tip of Bougainville, largest northwestern island in the Solomons.

The reports of the new aerial activity came as renewed Japanese attempts to dislodge the American forces from Guadalcanal appeared in the offing. Previous Japanese attempts have proved very costly to the enemy.

Three air attacks against American positions, reported by the Navy over the week-end, indicated the enemy is launching a new bout for Guadalcanal, operating from the Japanese base on Munda, only 180 miles to the northwest.

In a blow designed to smash Japanese preparations to send a force against the Solomons, United States bombers, striking at the often-hit harbor of Rabaul, New Britain, sunk or badly damaged five Japanese merchant ships during a three-hour raid Saturday night and Allied airmen blasted Japanese footholds over a wide area in the Southwest Pacific over the week-end.

Some casualties and "minor material damage" were inflicted by Japanese bombers last Friday, the Navy reported yesterday in telling of the third enemy raid in two days on Guadalcanal. The previous day the Japanese sent two air assaults against American positions, the first multi-plane attacks on Guadalcanal since last November.

"Number of Hits" Scored

Yesterday's communique said that the latest American blow at Munda, on New Georgia Island, occurred Saturday and that "a number of hits were scored in the target area."

The communiques telling of the Japanese raids of Thursday and Friday did not mention Munda as the Japanese taking-off place, but a naval spokesman said the enemy probably used that base inasmuch as it was far closer to Guadalcanal than other enemy air fields in the Solomons.

Two days ago the Navy reported that United States planes attacked one group of five and another contingent of nine destroyers which presumably were attempting to land supplies and troops for the Japanese-held positions on Guadalcanal. Both groups were damaged, but whether they accomplished their mission was not disclosed.

Last Thursday the Navy said American torpedo boats had intercepted a group of Japanese destroyers in waters near Guadalcanal.

Maymyo, Japanese Rail Point Smashed Up in 3 Raids as R. A. F. Strikes to South

BATTLE ON IN AKYAB ZONE

From China Stilwell's Planes Punish Lashio After Blocking

Raid Foe in Yunnan

JAN 19 1943

NEW DELHI, India, Jan. 18 (AP) —Railroad yards, shops, mainline trackage and rolling stock in Japanese service at Maymyo, Burma, thirty-five miles northeast of Mandalay, were hard hit in a series of three week-end raids by United States medium bombers, an American communiqué said today. No American planes were lost.

The persistent thrusts at Japanese communications in that area follow the recent destruction of a span of the Myitnge bridge across the Irrawaddy River at Mandalay, which was reported to have severed traffic arteries between North and South Burma.

Royal Air Force planes made three separate attacks yesterday on Japanese positions near Rathedaung, twenty-five miles northwest of Akyab in Western Burma, inflicting considerable damage with bombs and machine-gun fire, a British communiqué announced.

The British also reported that Wellington bombers had raided the Japanese airdrome at Toungoo, Burma, on Saturday night, scoring hits on the runway and dispersal areas. No R. A. F. planes were lost in these forays, the communiqué said.

A few Japanese planes made a brief raid last night on the Chittagong area of the coast of India, adjoining the Burma border, causing slight damage and a few casualties.

The American Raids at Maymyo

In the first attack Saturday of the three raids carried out by the Tenth United States Air Force, direct hits were scored on the rail junctions and locomotive shops at Maymyo.

"A concentration of rolling stock at Maymyo was the target of a second formation of mediums," the American communiqué said. "Many hits were reported."

"Yesterday, Jan. 17, medium bombers again bombed rolling stock and installations at Maymyo. Many additional freight cars were destroyed and damaged and a section of the main line was cratered."

Following up an attack Friday upon a Japanese convoy that left a 7,000-ton vessel sinking and a 5,000-tonner apparently damaged, heavy bombers cruised over the sea south of Rangoon on Saturday, but with indifferent results.

"An attack was made on a 150-foot vessel, but no hits were reported," the communiqué said.

At Caungking, China, Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters announced that Bhamo, an advanced Japanese storage base in Burma, had been rendered practically untenable by bombing and gunning by his fliers that destroyed or badly damaged warehouses, gasoline dumps, munitions and shipping.

In addition, on Saturday, Curtiss Warhawk fighters took the air over an American base in Western Yunnan Province, Southwestern China, to best a large attacking force of Japanese planes.

General Stilwell's communiqué said four Zeros were shot down, four other enemy fighters were probably destroyed and one Japanese bomber was believed destroyed. Unofficial reports said the toll possibly was three higher. One defending plane was reported missing and on the ground there was very little damage caused by the Japanese bombs.

In quick retaliation, American medium bombers showered tons of bombs on the Japanese base at Lashio, Burma.

Two Jap Transports Bombed.

A United States Bomber Base in Eastern India, Jan. 16 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Employing a new bombing technic, United States heavy bombers almost certainly destroyed two Japanese transports totaling 12,000 tons far south of Rangoon yesterday in one of the most successful quick raids in this theater. Returning pilots reported they had left one 7,000-ton vessel overturned and had damaged another, though the transports dodged frantically in efforts to escape. T. WIANT

The airmen ignored an escorting submarine chaser to concentrate on the merchant vessels, and one bomber was said to have scored six direct hits on the larger of the two.

In the crew of this plane were Lieut. Dewery Busch, 25 years old, of Wallace, Idaho, pilot; Lieut. Earl Healzer, 24, Alexander, Kan., co-pilot; Lieut. Hugo R. Franz, 25, Saranac Lake, N. Y., navigator; Lieut. J. F. Charnell, 28, Scranton, Pa., bombardier; Sergt. Richard Johnson, 25, Hayward, Cal., tailgunner; Sergt. Gerald Peels, 23, Rockland, Idaho, sidegunner; Sergt. Sidney S. Tronic, 29, Worcester, Mass., tunnel gunner; Sergt. Albert Ciavano, 21, Meriden, Conn., sidegunner, and Sergt. Gordrom Grims, 28, Boise, Idaho, engineer.

Pilot Busch, a former Bonzaga University student, said he saw many men jumping into the sea after one of the ships was struck.

"They swarmed over the sides like bees around a beehive," he declared, "and I'm certain scores drowned. The Japs must be short of fighters. As a matter of fact, bombing is becoming monotonous because we never have competitors."

Princess Juliana in Hospital

OTTAWA, Jan. 18 (AP).—Crown Princess Juliana of the Netherlands, who is expecting her third child later this month, entered Ottawa Civic Hospital today. The Aneta News Agency quoted authorities as saying her removal to the hospital was a precautionary measure because of weather conditions.

RUML TELLS HIS PLAN TO CANADA

Praises Pay-as-you-go Method Used There.

JAN 19 1943

Toronto, Jan. 18 (A. P.).—Beardsley Ruml, chairman of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and treasurer of R. H. Macy & Co., told the Canadian Club today a pay-as-you-go income tax plan such as he sponsors would bring relief to millions of persons who would one day be in distress unless present taxing methods were changed.

Describing the pay-as-you-go method employed in Canada as gratifying and extremely helpful, Mr. Ruml said that such a plan in the United States would bring three-fold rewards if adopted. He described them as:

"First of all it is a plan that will relieve thousands of citizens from hardship and distress arising from income-tax debt, and that will bring peace of mind to millions more who are in income-tax danger.

"Second, it is the method for clearing the decks for an all-out war-financing program. If we can all be free of income-tax debt on the first of next year, we can start on a pay-as-you-go basis and stay there. If we need high withholding taxes we can have them; if we need to supplement voluntary savings with compulsory savings we can do that, too. But whatever is called for, it would be paid out of the current year's income as an assessment on the same year's income. We would not be paying for dead horses while we are fighting a war.

"In the third place, the pay-as-you-go income-tax plan is the best kind of financial planning for the post-war period. We will not be trying to collect income taxes from people who are unemployed; we will not be debating whether we should collect taxes on 1941 incomes of men demobilized from the armed forces. We will not have a spending spree on the first little boomlet, financed by unpaid taxes and then a tax-debt headache if income should drop off for a year or so."

URUGUAYAN FLIES TO U. S.

Dr. Alberto Guani Hopes to Obtain Work Relief Loan

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Jan. 18 (AP) — Dr. Alberto Guani, Uruguayan Vice President, took the east coast plane for the United States at 8 A. M. today on a trip during which, he said, he hoped to obtain a loan of 100,000,000 Uruguayan pesos [the peso was quoted in New York yesterday at 53.50 cents], for public works to relieve threatened unemployment.

Ambassador Norman Armour of the United States and Uruguayan Ambassador Eugenio Martinez saw him off. Señor Guani was accompanied by five aides.

Señor Guani said in an interview here yesterday that widespread unemployment was threatened in Uruguay because of the war. He said the proposed public works, including road building, schools, model homes, airports and other projects not requiring iron or steel, would absorb 100,000 unemployed men.

Nazis Yield to Argentina, Will Withdraw Attache

Diplomat Was Accused of Espionage in Sinkings

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 18 (AP).—Germany notified Argentina today that Captain Dietrich Niebuhr, German Naval and Air Attache who had been accused of espionage resulting in the sinking of several merchant ships in the Atlantic, would be withdrawn in compliance with an Argentine request.

The action followed a refusal by Germany to waive diplomatic immunity so the attache could be brought to trial before the Argentine Supreme Court.

Otto Meynen, German Charge d'Affaires, notified the Foreign

Office of Berlin's decision, and said Niebuhr would leave on the first Spanish vessel available. He said the attache would need papers from both the British and American governments insuring him that he would not be seized at sea.

Attack in House On Roosevelt's Sons Assailed

JAN 19 1943

Gore Says Lambertson Hit 'Below Belt' in Criticizing Withdrawal From Front

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18 (AP).—A repeated insinuation by Representative William P. Lambertson, Republican, of Kansas, that President Roosevelt had "jerked" two of his sons from battle fronts was termed by Representative Albert Gore, Democrat, of Tennessee, today "the cheapest, nastiest below-the-belt remark ever uttered in the House."

Mr. Lambertson said "a distinguished American" told him that the President "lifted" Lieutenant Colonel James Roosevelt from Guadalcanal.

The Kansan elaborated before the House on a question he asked last Thursday—whether the Commander in Chief had ordered James Roosevelt and Franklin D. Roosevelt jr. from the fighting lines.

Mr. Gore read a news dispatch quoting a military companion of James Roosevelt as saying the President's son "was right up in the front line of action" at Guadalcanal.

The Tennesseean called upon Mr. Lambertson for an apology declaring he had reflected "on the very integrity of the armed forces" in a way that tended to undermine morale.

"I do not say he (Lambertson) is unpatriotic," Mr. Gore said. "He has allowed his stark, rank prejudice to overbalance his equilibrium."

Mr. Lambertson told the House that some of the Republican leaders desired that he postpone "indefinitely" further remarks about the Roosevelt sons, but said: "I am impelled to make a further statement on this subject now, because I feel that I am distinctly on the spot." Denying he was attacking "the military record of the Roosevelt boys," Mr. Lambertson said:

"They had nothing to do with their sudden departure from the battlefields, and I am not intimating that it was their desire. On the contrary, I think they were humiliated with the orders that brought them out.

"This is what happened the last week in November. I came upon a group of seven or eight men talking. There was one distinguished American who was being talked to principally and who was doing most of the talking. I said to him: 'Do you have any idea that it was the Commander in Chief of the Army that lifted James from Guadalcanal?' His reply was: 'There isn't any question about it. The Commander in Chief told me he ordered him out. He said: "When I heard that the marines and James were in Guadalcanal, I ordered him out."' I said to my distinguished friend: 'Are you really sure of that?' He said: 'I heard the President say it and he made no bones about it'."

Mr. Lambertson did not name the person quoted.

Mr. Gore said James Roosevelt was ordered from Guadalcanal by his superior officer to return to this country for an assignment teaching marines the kind of warfare waged on the Southern Pacific fronts.

In his Thursday speech, Mr. Lambertson said "a second son, Franklin, left the battle front of North Africa and spent four days in a Philadelphia hospital with a slight cold."

SENATE GROUP FOR OUSTING TUGWELL

Washington, Jan. 18 (A. P.).—Senator Vandenberg said today that the Senate Territories Committee had voted 9 to 3 in favor of his bill to terminate the tenure of Rexford Guy Tugwell as Governor of Puerto Rico and limit the terms of future Governors to four years.

The committee also approved, Mr. Vandenberg said, a resolution by Senator Chavez, Democrat, of New Mexico, to continue the life of a special committee, headed by Mr. Chavez, to investigate economic and social conditions in Puerto Rico. Expenditures would be limited to $25,000 under the resolution, which also must be approved by the audit committee before being submitted to the Senate.

The Vandenberg resolution, introduced by the Michigan Senator after he had criticized Mr. Tugwell's administration of affairs in Puerto Rico, would terminate Gov. Tugwell's term in office on enactment of the measure by Congress and its approval by the President.

In the past, the Governors of Puerto Rico had held office at the discretion of the President, without a limitation on length of their terms. Mr. Vandenberg claimed this was contrary to conditions in other territories. As introduced Mr. Vandenberg's bill called for a term of two years, but he said the committee decided to change this to four years to conform with the organic acts of Hawaii, Alaska and the Virgin islands.

JAN 19 1943

The Puerto Rican Governor would continue to be appointed by the President, with the consent of the Senate.

Knox Cites Col. Biddle For Training of Marines

Lauds His Tireless Teaching of Hand-to-Hand Combat

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18 (AP).—Frank Knox, Secretary of the Navy, formally commended Colonel Anthony J. Drexel Biddle (retired), of Philadelphia, today for his outstanding service in training officers and enlisted men of the Marine Corps "in the use of bayonet and dagger and the art of jujutsu." Colonel Biddle has been on almost continuous active duty since the outbreak of the war and previously had been commended by Lieutenant General Thomas Holcomb, commandant of the Marine Corps. Secretary Knox wrote Colonel Biddle in part:

"Beginning with the first world war and continuing almost unbrokenly to the present time, you have contributed in an outstanding degree to the training of Marine Corps personnel in hand-to-hand combat. This was made possible, first, through the perfection in that art which you yourself attained through years of constant study and application; second, an unusual ability to impart to others the benefit of your expert knowledge and experience; and third, a most generous giving of your time and energies, without expense to the government, and without regard to the personal sacrifice and the long hours of exertion involved.

"It is a pleasure to commend you for this meritorious service and place on record the department's recognition of its unusual character and effectiveness."

BROWN CONFIRMED AS PRICE DICTATOR

Washington, Jan. 18 (A. P.).—The Senate confirmed today President Roosevelt's nomination of Prentiss M. Brown of Michigan to be Price Administrator. Mr. Brown's appointment was approved after Minority Leader McNary of Oregon waived the rule which would have required the nomination to lie over one day following its report by the Senate Banking Committee.

In reporting the matter, Chairman Wagner, Democrat, of New York, said that the committee had approved the nomination unanimously last week. Senator McNary said that Senator Ferguson, Republican, of Michigan, who defeated Mr. Brown in last November's Senate race, had no objection to the confirmation.

Mr. Brown, 53-year-old native of St. Ignace, Mich., is expected to take over immediately the reins of the Price Control Administration being relinquished by Leon Henderson. Mr. Henderson resigned last month because of ill health, his resignation to take effect on the confirmation of his successor.

In a statement after his confirmation, Mr. Brown asserted that he did not fear the job before him, which President Roosevelt had described in a letter to Mr. Henderson as a thankless task.

Price control and rationing are not impositions on the people, but a protection to them," Mr. Brown observed. He said that he intended to "devote my entire time and energy to the task of preserving our domestic economy."

"I will consult with my superior and associates, with consumers, producers and business men to get a full comprehension of the task and do my utmost to be just between the various interests to be served and to alleviate, so far as I am able, the hardships we all must suffer," the statement said.

MORGENTHAU ILL, LEAVES FOR CUBA

Washington, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, who has been ill with a throat ailment for the past two weeks, has gone to Havana, Cuba, to recuperate. Treasury officials said the secretary left for Havana over the week-end on doctor's orders and was accompanied by Mrs. Morgenthau. The secretary paid a brief visit to his office on Saturday, his first in over a week.

Hull Won't Engage In Clash With Grant

Washington, Jan. 18 (A. P.).—Criticism of the State Department by Hugh Grant, former United States Minister to Thailand, drew from Secretary Hull today the observation that he was not in the habit of engaging in controversy with those who once served in the department but who, for satisfactory reasons, no longer are included among its personnel.

This was Mr. Hull's response to a press conference request for comment on a speech in which Grant said in Louisville, Ky., that the State Department was an antiquated institution badly in need of new blood.

Unions Seek Voice In Peace Treaty

JAN 19 1943

By the Associated Press

Miami, Fla., Jan. 18—British and American labor leaders will start planning a campaign here next week aimed at having the peace treaty which ends the Second World War guarantee workers in all countries the right to organize.

Labor representation at the peace conference is the principal aim of the Anglo-American Labor Committee, which will convene for the first time while the executive council of the American Federation of Labor is in session at Miami.

Formed As Compromise

Sir Walter Citrine, secretary of the British Trades Union Congress, will lead the English delegation, while William Green, president of the AFL, is to head the United States representatives.

The international group was formed last August as a compromise to a proposed committee representing trade unions of the United States, Great Britain and Russia.

Unification of labor policies of Great Britain and the United States to further the war effort is the immediate goal, and the committee will look forward to the post-war development of some world-wide social-security program.

AFL To Consider Pact

The committee will begin its sessions next Monday.

Meanwhile, the AFL, opening its quarterly meeting today, will consider another phase of its long battle with the Congress of Industrial Organizations. Up for ratification is the proposed "no-raiding" pact which would provide arbitration for jurisdictional disputes.

The CIO executive council already has accepted the treaty drawn by a committee representing both organizations, but a fight is in prospect in the closed sessions here.

Feel CIO Broke Faith

Some AFL leaders are reported to feel that the CIO already has broken faith by asking representation elections in shipyards under contract with AFL unions.

The National Labor Relations Board also is likely to come under fire during the discussions for calling public hearings on the CIO demand for elections in the Henry J. Kaiser shipyards at Portland, Oregon.

4 DIE IN PLANE CRASH

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 18 (A. P.).—The death of Joe Douglas Smith, aviation radioman, third class, United States Navy, of Fayetteville, Tenn., early today increased to four the number of fatalities caused by the crash of a Navy patrol plane at Elizabeth City, N. C., yesterday.

The Navy said that Smith died in a naval dispensary at Elizabeth City at 2 A. M. today.

The patrol plane cracked up in a take-off for a routine operational flight. A fifth man, not identified here, was injured.

The men killed yesterday were:

Lieut. (J. G.) William Baxter Waldrop of Bradenton, Fla., the patrol plane commander; Ensign Edgar Penford Arnold of Bagley, Minn., second pilot, and William James Casey, aviation machinist's mate, second class, of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Egyptian Vessel Sunk East of South America

Two Dead, 40 Saved After Cargo-Boat Torpedoing

The Navy announced yesterday that a small Egyptian merchant ship had been torpedoed and sunk by a submarine off the east coast of South America about the middle of December. One man was lost when the ship sank. Another died after reaching a South American port. The other forty have been landed in Miami, Fla.

One of the lifeboats took eight days to reach land and the other, ten days. Captain Harry Griffith, master of the vessel said, according to The Associated Press, that more water should be stowed in lifeboats, even at the sacrifice of food.

"You lose your appetite after a couple of days," he said, "but not your thirst."

SHIP LOSS TOLL IS NOW AT 593

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sinking of two more neutral and three United Nations ships, disclosed last week, increased to 593 the total of officially announced Allied and neutral losses in the western Atlantic since Pearl Harbor as recorded by the Associated Press.

Another United Nations vessel was sunk in a collision in the Caribbean and was included in the figure.

Of the total number of ships announced as sunk up to last Thursday, the first anniversary of U-boat sinkings of ships off the Atlantic coast in the present war, 198 were sent to the bottom off the United States, 50 off Canada, 177 in the Caribbean, 46 in the Gulf of Mexico and 122 in the South Atlantic.

MME. CHIANG GETS TREATMENT HERE

JAN 19 1943

Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, wife of the Chinese generalissimo, has been undergoing treatment at a New York hospital for the past seven weeks.

A White House announcement on November 27 disclosed that she was in this country to receive treatment for injuries resulting from an automobile accident five years ago. Last month the Chinese embassy stated that it had been found that she has no serious organic trouble. When she is more completely recovered she will be the guest of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt at the White House.

An entire floor of the hospital the name of which was withheld has been occupied by Mme. Chiang and her staff. Agents of the FBI and secret service guard the floor day and night.

A hairdresser and a beautician visit China's First Lady each day, but the treatment she is undergoing does not permit her to receive any of the numerous friends she has in the city.

in the debris of these two buildings for a missing eight year old girl, reported the death toll in these apartments was already 12, with a number injured.

COPYRIGHT, 1943, BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

A BRITISH AIR BASE, Jan 18--I HAVE RETURNED TO THIS RAF BASE WITHOUT WRITING THE STORY I SHOULD HAVE WRITTEN, BUT YOU CAN CHARGE IT UP TO THE GREMLINS THAT RODE THE STARBOARD WING OF THE LANCASTER IN WHICH I WAS A PASSENGER. I WAS GOING TO BERLIN BUT THEY WOULDN'T LET ME.

IN A GIANT BOMBER WITH A BELLYFULL OF INCENDIARIES I LEFT THIS AIRDROME AFTER A NINE-DAY WAIT BOUND FOR THE "BIG CITY" WITH PILOT SGT.CHARLES MCDONALD OF TORONTO AS SKIPPER FROM THE RCAF, AND SEVEN OTHER CREW MEMBERS FROM VARIOUS PARTS OF THE BRITISH ISLES. ALL WE SAW WAS A BIT OF FLAK TOSSED UP FROM DENMARK, A LOT OF OUR OWN AIRCRAFT AND THE EXPLOSION OF OUR OWN INCENDIARIES WHEN I DUMPED THEM INTO THE NORTH SEA.

JAN 19 1943

THE GREMLINS FIXED US. WE WERE DOING NICELY CROSSING DENMARK WHEN THE INNER STARBOARD ENGINE "PACKED UP." IT CAME BACK IN SPASMS AFTER THE OUTER ENGINE ON THE SAME WING DIED, BUT MAC WAS UNWILLING TO TAKE US IN OVER THE TARGET, DESPITE OUR WILLINGNESS TO GO, WITH ONLY TWO ENGINES RELIABLE ON THE PORT WING, A CONDITION THAT WOULD HAVE MADE IT EXTREMELY DIFFICULT TO TAKE EVASIVE ACTION AND WOULD HAVE NECESSITATED OUR GOING IN AT ABOUT 5,000 FEET, A DANGEROUSLY LOW ALTITUDE OVER A "HOT" TARGET.

I WAS THE ONLY CANADIAN IN A GROUP OF NEWSPAPERMEN DRAWN BY LOT TO GO WITH THE EXPEDITION AND MAC, THE ONLY CANADIAN IN THE CREW, WAS AS DISAPPOINTED AS I IN NOT GETTING TO THE NAZI CAPITAL. NEITHER OF US HAD BEEN THERE BEFORE.

WE HAD THOUSANDS OF INCENDIARIES ABOARD AND, AFTER HAVING THE GERMANS DUMP THEM DOWN ON ME DURING THE LONDON BLITZ, I WAS ANXIOUS TO SEE THE COMPLIMENT RETURNED.

30.24-435

IT WAS STILL LIGHT WHEN WE LEFT HERE AND HEADED AWAY FROM THE ENGLISH COAST. WE CLIMBED ABOVE THE CLOUDS AND SETTLED DOWN TO KID OVER THE INTERCOM ON THE LONG RIDE TO GERMANY.

JAN 19 1943

OUR LANCASTER WAS NAMED "MISS TORONTO;" "M FOR MOTHER" WAS HER CALL NUMBER, AND SHE WAS MANNED BY A SWELL CREW. THEY WERE ALL SERGEANTS EXCEPT THE REAR GUNNER, JOHNNY. JOHNNY IS CALLED GREMLIN, BUT HE'S A GOOD GREMLIN AND WHAT HAPPENED TO US WASN'T HIS FAULT.

THE CREW MEMBERS ARE ALL YOUNG, EXCEPT FRANKIE, THE FLIGHT ENGINEER WHO IS 47, A VETERAN OF THE FIRST GREAT WAR WHO SAW SERVICE AS A GROUNDSMAN WITH THE ROYAL NAVAL AIR SERVICE AND PROBABLY IS THE OLDEST OPERATIONAL AIRMAN IN THE RAF.

JOHNNY WARNED ME ON THE OUTWARD TRIP THAT IF I HEARD THE "WHOOSH OF A CHOPPER" TO SHAKE MY HEAD. IF IT WAS STILL THERE, HE SAID, I COULD CONSIDER MYSELF ALL RIGHT.

WE SAW THE BLUE SKY ABOVE US AND THE COTTON-WOOL CLOUDS BELOW AND THE SWARMS OF OTHER BOMBERS HEADED IN OUR DIRECTION AND THAT WAS ALL UNTIL WE HIT THE COAST OF DENMARK. NO AXIS FIGHTERS GREETED US, ALTHOUGH THE GUNNER KEPT ALERT FOR THEM. SOME BURSTS OF ANTI-AIRCRAFT SHELLS WERE VISIBLE AROUND US, BUT AT TOO GREAT A DISTANCE TO WORRY US.

JAN 19 1943

THERE WAS ONE MOMENT WHEN I SAW A FLAMING OBJECT THROUGH THE CLOUDS. IT LOOKED AS IT MIGHT HAVE BEEN A BOMBER GOING DOWN IN FLAMES. I HAD SEEN A GERMAN BOMBER FALL IN BRITAIN THE NIGHT BEFORE WITH ALL THE CREW LOST. AN RAF NIGHT FIGHTER GOT IT. BUT I DIDN'T SEEM TO FEEL THE QUEASY SENSE I HAD EXPERIENCED FOR A MOMENT WHEN THE BRIEFING OFFICER TOLD US WHERE WE WERE GOING.

THEN IT SRARTED TO HAPPEN. THE FIRST ENGINE BEGAN TO UNPACK. I THOUGHT: "OH, OH. WE'VE HAD IT." MAC SWORE AND FRANKIE STARTED TRYING TO FIX IT. IT WAS NO GO.

MAC ASKED IF WE WERE WILLING TO CONTINUE ON THREE, SAID WE COULD MAKE IT, ALTHOUGH IT WOULD BE TOUGHER THAN IF WE WERE FULLY POWERED. WE ALL SAID OKAY.

JAN 19 1943

THEN THE OTHER ENGINE ON THE STARBOARD WING CONKED. FRANKIE COULD NOT GET IT GOING AGAIN, ALTHOUGH THE FIRST ONE WOULD WORK IN SPURTS SO THAT WE, IN EFFECT, HAD 2 1/2 ENGINES LEFT. MAC ASKED US IF WE WERE STILL WILLING TO GO IN. WE ALL SAID YES, AGAIN.

HE FLEW ON FOR A FEW MINUTES, FEELING THE AIRCRAFT, THEN SAID DISCONSOLATELY TO THE NAVIGATOR OVER THE INTERCOM: "IV NUNN, GIVE ME THE COURSE FOR HOME, PLEASE."

"GEE, LOU, I'M SORRY," HE CALLED TO ME, "I'LL GO ON IF YOU LIKE, BUT WE'LL HAVE TO GO IN AT ABOUT 5,000 FEET."

THAT'S NO GOOD IF YOU KNOW THE REPUTATION OF BERLIN'S GROUND DEFENSES (ALTHOUGH RETURNING PILOTS WHO HAD BEEN OVER THE TARGET SAID THEY WERE ASTONISHINGLY WEAK SATURDAY NIGHT).

WE AGREED RELUCTANTLY THAT MAC'S JUDGMENT WAS RIGHT, PARTICULARLY AS HE HAD TO DECIDE WHETHER TO SACRIFICE THE LIVES OF EIGHT MEN ON WHAT MIGHT EASILY PROVE A FUTILE MISSION.

SO WE TURNED AROUND AND WENT HOME AND MAC SET MISS TORONTO DOWN NICE AND EASILY ON THE FIELD.

I'D LIKE TO TRY AGAIN WITH THE SAME CREW. I THINK THEY'D MAKE IT--WITHOUT THOSE GREMLINS.

BERN, JAN.18-(AP)-THE PREVALENCE OF TYPHOID IN NORTHERN ITALY WAS DISCLOSED TODAY WITH ISSUANCE OF A WARNING BY THE DISTRICT COUNCIL OF CHIASSO, ON THE SWISS-ITALIAN BORDER, TELLING THE SWISS TO TAKE MORE THAN ORDINARY PRECAUTIONS.

BY EDDY GILMORE

WITH THE RED ARMY ON THE STALINGRAD FRONT-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE RED ARMY PUTS ON SOME INTERESTING TRAVEL TOURS DOWN THIS WAY, AND TODAY'S LITTLE EXCURSION WITHIN SIGHT OF STALINGRAD ON THE VOLGA CERTAINLY WAS WORTH THE RIDE, THE DISCOMFORT AND THE COLD.

WE PILED INTO A BUS UP TOWARDS THE FRONT, RUMBLED OVER A ROUGH ROAD FOR 20 MINUTES TO A BROAD SPACIOUS AIRDROME. OUR PLANE, A BIG DOUGLAS, WAS WAITING.

THE PLANE WAS THE KIND USED FOR PARACHUTISTS AND TO CARRY THE WOUNDED. IN ORDER TO LOOK OUT OF THE WINDOWS WE HAD TO GET ON OUR KNEES AND REST OUR ELBOWS ON THE THIN PORTABLE WOODEN SEATS.

THE PLANE FLEW LOW OVER THE RAILWAY WHICH HAS BEEN SO MUCH IN THE NEWS SINCE THE GERMANS STARTED THEIR CAMPAIGN AGAINST STALINGRAD.

JAN 19 1943

OVER MANY MILES OF IT WE COULD SEE RUSSIAN WORKERS CHANGING THE GAUGE FROM THE STANDARD GERMAN TRACK BACK TO THEIR OWN WIDER GAUGE.

WE REACHED THE ABGANEROVO SECTOR AND GOT THE FINEST SIGHT YET OF A SOVIET-GERMAN BATTLEFIELD AFTER THE SMOKE HAD DIED AWAY.

TANKS, SILENT, FROZEN, WRECKED, HALF WRECKED AND BURNED, WERE SCATTERED OUT LITERALLY FOR MILES. THEY POINTED IN ALL DIRECTIONS, GIVING US AN IDEA OF WHAT A TERRIFIC BATTLE MUST HAVE GONE ON HERE.

EVERY SO OFTEN WE SOARED OVER A SMASHED AIRPLANE.

THERE WAS A GHOSTLY ASPECT ABOUT THESE ACRES OF SILENT TANKS. SNOW HAD FALLEN AND A LIGHT COVERING DECORATED THE TANKS AND THEIR BLACK GUNS STUCK OUT IN SHARP SILHOUETTE. THERE WAS NO LIVING SOUL AMONG THESE WRECKS.

JAN 19 1943

NUMEROUS BIG, MEDIUM AND SMALL CANNON WERE LYING ABOUT.

SOMETIMES WE SWOOPED LOW OVER PILLBOXES GAPING SKYWARD, THEIR MOUTHS SMASHED TO SPLINTERS BY THE FORCE OF THE SOVIET ADVANCE.

WE KNEW WE WERE APPROACHING THE SOUTHERN AREA AND THE SURROUNDED GERMAN DIVISIONS AND THIS ADDED TO THE EXCITEMENT OF THE RIDE.

PAUL HOLT, OF THE LONDON DAILY EXPRESS, WHO WAS KNEELING BESIDE ME GOT OUT A MAP. WE FIGURED THAT THE WINDING SLATE GRAY STREAM OFF TO THE NORTH MUST BE THE DON RIVER. I SHALL NEVER KNOW IF IT WAS BUT IT WAS A THRILLING THOUGHT ANYWAY.

JAN 19 1943

WE LOOKED AND LOOKED AND IT PAINS ME TO REPORT I COULD NOT SEE ANY OF THE 22 TO 23 DIVISIONS ON WHICH THE SOVIETS ARE CLOSING IN.

LATER WE LEARNED THAT HAD IT BEEN AN EXTRA CLEAR DAY WE COULD HAVE SEEN THE GERMANS IN THE DISTANCE, PERHAPS.

WE SAILED ON AND SOON WE KNEW WE WERE IN THE VICINITY OF STALINGRAD.

AND SHORTLY THERE WAS THE CITY ITSELF.

IT WAS A LARGE GRAY MASS ON THE BANK OF THE VOLGA AWAY OFF TO THE NORTH. THE AIRMEN SAID IT WAS ABOUT FIVE MILES AWAY. IT ALSO PAINS ME TO REPORT THAT I CANNOT GIVE ANY DETAILS OF HOW IT LOOKS BECAUSE I COULDN'T MAKE OUT MANY OBJECTS.

JAN 19 1943

WE DID SEE. HOWEVER. SOME SMOKESTACKS STICKING INTO THE SKY.

WE THEN ROARED LOW OVER THE VOLGA. I REMEMBERED THE LAST TIME I SAW THIS PART OF THE VOLGA. IT WAS WHEN I WAS COMING BACK FROM A ROUND TRIP BOAT RIDE TO ASTRAKHAN LAST SUMMER.

I HAD GONE SWIMMING ONE DAY DOWN IN THIS SECTOR AND HAD LOAFED SEVERAL HOURS AWAY IN STALINGRAD'S CENTRAL PARK.

JUST THEN THE LEGS OF ONE OF OUR MACHINE GUNNERS STIFFENED.

"WHAM! WHAM! WHAM!" WENT HIS GUN.

"THIS IS IT," I GASPED, READY FOR ANYTHING.

THEN OUR GUNNER CLIMBED DOWN OUT OF HIS PERCH SMILING.

"A MESSERSCHMITT?" SOMEONE ASKED.

"NO," HE ANSWERED. "I CAUGHT MY BELT IN THE TRIGGER."

THE OUTSTANDING FEATURE OF THE RIDE, WHEN WE CAME TO REFLECT ON IT, WAS THE FACT THAT THE RUSSIANS CAN SO BOLDLY FLY A TRANSPORT PLANE THIS CLOSE TO STALINGRAD, INDICATING THEY HAVE THE AIR SITUATION VERY WELL IN HAND.

NIGHT LEAD POLITICAL

BY WES GALLAGHER

JAN 19 1943

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NORTH AFRICA, JAN.18-(AP)-MARCEL PEYROUTON, A FORMER VICHY COLLABORATIONIST, WAS REPORTED TODAY TO HAVE ARRIVED ON THE NORTH AFRICAN POLITICAL SCENE, A DEVELOPMENT WHICH CONSIDERABLY COMPLICATED AN ALREADY INTRICATE SITUATION.

ON THE OTHER HAND, THE APPOINTMENT OF A CAREER SOLDIER, MAJ. GEN. JURION, AS ACTING GOVERNOR GENERAL OF TUNISIA, BY GEN. HENRI GIRAUD WAS ANNOUNCED, A SELECTION THAT APPEARED LIKELY TO PLEASE ALL THE ALLIES.

MEANWHILE, THE MILITARY INVESTIGATION OF THE ASSASSINATION OF ADMIRAL JEAN DARLAN, FRENCH HIGH COMMISSIONER, REMAINED CLOAKED IN SILENCE.

JAN 19 1943

IT WAS LEARNED, HOWEVER, THAT ONE PERSON NAMED TO A POST UNDER DARLAN BY JEAN RIGAUD, HIS POLITICAL MINISTER, HAD BEEN TAKEN INTO CUSTODY.

JURION, WHO IS A SOLDIER THROUGH AND THROUGH AFTER GIRAUD'S OWN HEART, IS NO POLITICIAN AND ALREADY HAS PROVED HIS HATRED OF THE GERMANS. AS A BRIGADIER GENERAL IN COMMAND OF FRENCH FORCES IN ONE SECTOR IN SOUTHERN TUNISIA WHEN THE ALLIED FORCES LANDED IN NORTH AFRICA, HE IS SAID TO HAVE ACTED WITH PROMPT VIGOR AND COURAGE.

ASSEMBLING ALL AVAILABLE FORCES, HE AT ONCE UNDERTOOK OPERATIONS AGAINST THE GERMANS, LED HIS FORCE THROUGH THE ENEMY'S LINES AND JOINED GIRAUD. THEN HE TURNED TO ATTACKING THE ENEMY.

(APPARENTLY HE WAS NAMED AS A RIVAL OF ADMIRAL JEAN ESTEVA, VICHY-APPOINTED RESIDENT GENERAL OF TUNISIA. PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, THROUGH ESTEVA, APPEALED TO THE BEY OF TUNIS FOR FREE PASSAGE OF ALLIED TROOPS. BUT ON JAN.3 ESTEVA WAS QUOTED AS MESSAGING MARSHAL PETAIN THAT THE PEOPLE OF TUNISIA WERE LOYAL TO VICHY.)

SIMULTANEOUSLY WITH THE ARRIVAL OF PEYROUTON, A FORMER FRENCH AMBASSADOR TO ARGENTINA, ANOTHER FRENCH SOUTH AMERICAN DIPLOMAT PUT IN HIS APPEARANCE. THIS WAS A SECOND SECRETARY OF THE EMBASSY IN CHILE, BUT HIS ARRIVAL WAS NOT REGARDED AS OF POLITICAL SIGNIFICA

PEYROUTON WAS REPORTED TO HAVE PLACED HIMSELF AT THE DISPOSAL OF JACQUES TARBE DE SAINT-HARDOUIN, A CAREER DIPLOMAT WHO HOLDS THE POST OF SECRETARY OF FOREIGN AFFAIRS IN GEN. GIRAUD'S COMMISSARIAT.

BECAUSE OF PEYROUTON'S REPUTATION AS AN ASTUTE POLITICIAN THIS ARRANGEMENT MAY NOT LAST LONG, BUT ONE INDICATION THAT TARBE DE SAINT-HARDOUIN MAY WEATHER THE POLITICAL STORM WAS SEEN IN THE ANNOUNCEMENT THAT HE HAD BEEN ELEVATED BY THE FOREIGN OFFICE IN THE CIVIL SERVICE TO THE RANK OF MINISTER.

JAN 19 1943

AT THE OUTBREAK OF THE WAR HE WAS COUNSELLOR IN THE FRENCH EMBASSY IN BERLIN. HE SERVED ON THE FRENCH ARMISTICE COMMISSION, AND ALSO AS SECRETARY GENERAL TO GEN. MAXIME WEYGAND WHEN THE LATTER WAS IN FULL CHARGE IN ALL NORTH AFRICA.

WHILE PEYROUTON HAS CERTAIN SUPPORTERS AMONG THE ALLIES THERE WAS DOUBT WHETHER HIS INCLUSION IN THE GIRAUD GOVERNMENT WOULD AROUSE WIDESPREAD APPROVAL.

MEANWHILE THE OFFICIAL GOVERNMENT GAZETTE, PUBLISHED FOR THE FIRST TIME IN NORTH AFRICA, CARRIED THE COMPLETE LIST OF MEN APPOINTED BY DARLAN TO OFFICES IN THE COMMISSARIAT.

VIRTUALLY ALL WERE VICHY-APPOINTED MEN WHO HELD THEIR JOBS WHEN DARLAN CAME TO AFRICA. THEY INCLUDED GEN. JEAN MARIE BERGERET, ASSISTANT HIGH COMMISSIONER, FORMER AIR CHIEF AT VICHY; ALFRED POSE, DIRECTOR GENERAL OF ECONOMICS; TARBE DE SAINT-HARDOUIN, FOREIGN SECRETARY; JEAN RIGAUD, POLITICAL AFFAIRS; SECRETARY OF PRODUCTION AND DISTRIBUTION, FERNAND BLONDEL; DIRECTOR OF BLOCKADE, DE LA NEZIERE; FINANCE SECRETARY, LUDOVIC TRON; GOVERNOR OF THE COLONY OF NIGERIA, TOBY; GOVERNOR OF THE FRENCH SUDAN, CALVEL; GOVERNOR OF SENEGAL, DESCHAMPS.

JAN 19 1943

THE CONTROVERSY OVER PEYROUTON CONCERNS A SOMEWHAT CONTRADICTORY RECORD.

A FORMER RESIDENT GENERAL OF TUNISIA, FORMER RESIDENT GENERAL OF MOROCCO AND A FORMER GOVERNOR-GENERAL OF COLONIES, PEYROUTON'S EXPERIENCE MAY HAVE CAUSED HIM TO BE INVITED TO NORTH AFRICA.

IN 1936, WHILE RESIDENT GENERAL OF MOROCCO, HE CAME UNDER THE CRITICISM OF FRENCH COMMUNISTS WHO CHARGED HIM WITH PLOTTING A RIGHTIST UPRISING IN MOROCCO, APPARENTLY SOMEWHAT AFTER THE PATTERN OF THE SPANISH NATIONALIST UPRISING THAT ORIGINATED THE SAME YEAR IN SPANISH MOROCCO AND SPREAD INTO THE SPANISH CIVIL WAR.

JAN 19 1943

A134

SOON AFTERWARD HE WAS REMOVED BY THE POPULAR FRONT GOVERNMENT OF LEON BLUM.

AFTER THE FRENCH ARMISTICE WITH GERMANY HE WENT TO RUMANIA AS VICHY'S AMBASSADOR, AND THEN WAS APPOINTED MINISTER OF THE INTERIOR IN THE PETAIN CABINET IN SEPT, 1940.

ALTHOUGH A COLLABORATIONIST AT THAT PERIOD OF HIS CAREER, HE WAS NOT A FOLLOWER OF PIERRE LAVAL'S POLICIES. HIS ACCUSATIONS THAT LAVAL WAS SCHEMING TO SET HIMSELF UP AS A DICTATOR, LED TO THE SPECTACULAR OUSTING OF LAVAL FROM THE GOVERNMENT BY PETAIN IN DECEMBER, 1940.

THE GERMANS WERE REPORTED TO HAVE DEMANDED PEYROUTON'S OUSTER, BUT PETAIN REJECTED THE DEMAND. HE CAME IN FOR A GREAT DEAL OF VITUPERATION FROM THE RADIO IN GERMAN-HELD PARIS.

AFTER LAVAL CAME BACK TO POWER, PEYROUTON RESIGNED LAST APRIL 18, EXPLAINING THAT HE REGARDED IT IMPORTANT TO MAINTAIN GOOD RELATIONS

30.24-A39

BETWEEN FRANCE AND AMERICA.

AFTER THE ALLIED LANDINGS IN NORTH AFRICA HE ANNOUNCED HE WAS JOINING ADMIRAL DARLAN. FIGHTING FRENCH IN LONDON SAID HE, LIKE ADMIRAL DARLAN, WAS "A PERSONAL ENEMY OF PIERRE LAVAL."

IN INDIRECT EFFORTS TO CONTACT THE FIGHTING FRENCH, THESE SOURCES SAID, HE HAD BEEN "FROZEN OFF."

JAN 19 1943

WHEN PEYROUTON LEFT BUENOS AIRES DEC.29, HIS FRIENDS SAID HE WAS "DESTINED FOR AN IMPORTANT POST IN THE FORMATION OF A NEW FRENCH GOVERNMENT" IN NORTH AFRICA.

WITH NIGHT LEAD MEDITERRANEAN

BY RUSSELL LANDSTROM

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, JAN 18-(AP)-IT SEEMED HERE TONIGHT THAT FIELD MARSHAL ROMMEL MIGHT TURN HIS BACK COMPLETELY ON THE EAST, MAKING HIS SUPREME NORTH AFRICAN STAND IN TUNISIA.

IT WAS SPECULATED THAT HE STILL HAS A FIGHTING ARMY OF POSSIBLY 110,000 MEN WHO MIGHT MAKE A LAST STAND AGAINST THE LIBYAN FORCES OF THE BRITISH GENERAL SIR BERNARD L.MONTGOMERY AND THE TROOPS OF THE ALLIED COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF, GENERAL DWIGHT EISENHOWER, AT THE BOUNDARY OF TUNISIA AND TRIPOLITANIA.

THE WHOLE STRATEGY OF THIS, OF COURSE, WOULD BE TO ATTEMPT TO CREATE THE STRONGEST POSSIBLE BRIDGEHEAD IN TUNISIA, THUS, IF POSSIBLE, PREVENTING THE ALLIES FROM USING NORTH AFRICA AS THE SPRINGBOARD AGAINST THE EUROPEAN CONTINENT.

JAN 19 1943

ROMMEL'S IDEA, IT APPEARED, MIGHT BE TO TRY TO HOLD SUCH A VITAL BRIDGEHEAD UNTIL THE END OF SUMMER, THEREBY CIRCUMVENTING IMPORTANT ASPECTS OF THE UNITED NATIONS' EARLY 1943 OFFENSIVE OPERATIONS.

PART OF SUCH A SCHEME TO ATTEMPT TO HOLD AN ANGULAR STRIP OF NORTH AFRICA WOULD BE TO ESTABLISH STRONG AXIS AIR DEFENSES IN TUNISIA, SICILY AND ITALY. ALLIED ABILITY TO COPE WITH THIS, IT WAS POINTED OUT, WOULD DEPEND ON THE FAMILIAR PROBLEM OF SUPPLY.

"THE ENGINEERING ABILITY OF GERMANY IS DOUBTLESS STRENGTHENING SICILY, SARDINIA AND TUNISIA TO MAKE SURE WE'LL NOT LAND OFFENSIVELY WITHOUT A BIG LOSS," ONE SOURCE REMARKED. "WE OURSELVES MUST DO NOTHING TO FRITTER AWAY OUR STRENGTH. YOU MUST ORGANIZE BEFORE YOU ATTACK."

SOME SOURCES STRESSED THE IMPORTANCE OF ANY ALLIED NORTH AFRICA OPERATIONS UPON OPINION IN SPAIN AND TURKEY AT THE VITAL FLANKS OF THE MEDITERRANEAN.

SOME P-38 FIGHTER PILOTS WHO MAKE SWIFT FLIGHTS INTO AXIS-HELD PARTS OF TUNISIA BATHED YESTERDAY IN WHAT THEY CALLED "THE WALLOWS" BUT WHAT IN REALITY ARE ANCIENT ROMAN BATHS.

THE BATTLE FOR TUNISIA IS MAKING THOUSANDS OF AMERICAN SOLDIERS WISH THEY HAD DUG HARDER INTO LATIN AND ANCIENT HISTORY, FOR IT IS DIFFICULT TO GET ANYWHERE NEAR THE FRONT LINES WITHOUT RUNNING ACROSS RELICS OF THE GREAT EMPIRE WHICH SPREAD OVER THIS PORTION OF NORTH AFRICA CENTURIES UPON CENTURIES AGO. ONLY A FEW OF THE MORE ERUDITE KNEW BEFORE THIS CAMPAIGN THAT ANCIENT CARTHAGE LAY IN TUNISIA.

TROOPS VISITING THE LITTLE FRENCH AND ARAB TOWN OF TEBESSA, NEAR THE TUNISIAN FRONTIER, LEARN WITH ASTONISHMENT THAT IT WAS THE SITE OF THE IMPORTANT ROMAN CITY OF THEVESTE WHICH FLOURISHED FROM 60 B.C. TO 1200 A.D.

THE MAN HAPPIEST ABOUT ALL THIS SUPER-ABUNDANCE OF OLD RUINS OF TEMPLES, WALLS AND TOWNS IS CAPT. HALLAM MOVIUS OF SUDBURY, MASS., A MEMBER OF THE 12TH AIR FORCE. HE WAS ASSISTANT CURATOR OF ARCHAEOLOGY AT HARVARD'S PEABODY MUSEUM BEFORE JOINING THE SERVICE.

"AS SOON AS THIS WAR IS OVER I AM COMING BACK HERE WITH A PICK AND SHOVEL AND A BUNCH OF STRONG-BACKED YOUNG MEN," HE SAID. "YOU CAN'T DIG EVEN A SLIT TRENCH AROUND HERE WITHOUT UNCOVERING SOME KIND OF RELIC."

JAN 19 1943

TROOPS GAZING OVER THE BARREN OPEN SPACES OF THIS SEMI-DESERT FIND IT HARD TO BELIEVE WHEN MOVIUS TELLS THEM THAT THE ROMANS ONCE USED ELEPHANTS WITH TREMENDOUS HAY-BURNING CAPACITY AS BEATS OF BURDEN HERE.

AMONG HIS FELLOW PILOTS LIEUT. JOHN BENT OF BLOOMSBURG, PA., ENJOYS THE DISTINCTION OF BEING THE FIRST AMERICAN TO HAVE AN ANCIENT TUNISIAN CITY NAMED FOR HIM.

BENT REPEATEDLY REPORTED SEEING THE OUTLINES OF STREETS AND BUILDING SITES OF AN EXTENSIVE TOWN WHILE HE WAS ON PATROLS IN HIS P-40 FIGHTER. OTHER PILOTS STARTED TO GUY HIM ABOUT "BENT CITY," BUT SOON THEY AND OTHERS LIKEWISE NOTICED TRACES VISIBLE FROM THE AIR WHEN THE SUN WAS AT CERTAIN POINTS IN THE SKY, YET INVISIBLE TO ANYONE WALKING OVER THE SAME AREA.

ONE OF THE EARLIEST EXPLOITS OF THE PACIFIC WAR, THE BOMBING OF THE JAPANESE BATTLESHIP HARUNA NEAR APARRI IN THE PHILIPPINES DEC. 10, 1941, WAS ECHOED IN THE AWARD OF THE OAK LEAF CLUSTER TO LEVIN, BOMBARDIER ON THE FLYING FORTRESS THAT SANK THE BATTLESHIP.

DESPITE INTENSE ANTIAIRCRAFT FIRE HE "PLACED THE ENTIRE BOMB LOAD ON OR NEAR THE BATTLESHIP, SCORING TWO DIRECT HITS AND A NEAR MISS AND CAUSING A TERRIFIC EXPLOSION WITHIN THE SHIP, WHICH LISTED AND SANK." HIS PLANE WAS INTERCEPTED BY ENEMY FIGHTERS IMMEDIATELY AFTER THE BOMBING RUN, AND LEVIN CONTINUED FIRING THE FORWARD GUNS EVEN AFTER THE PLANE HAD CAUGHT FIRE AND WAS FALLING HELPLESSLY OUT OF CONTROL.

SERGEANT HOUCHINS WAS BOMBARDIER ON A FLYING FORTRESS IN A NINE-PLANE FORMATION ON A BOMBING MISSION OVER MALANG, JAVA, TO KENDARI, CELEBES. TWELVE ZEROS INTERCEPTED THE BOMBERS, AND

ONE FIRED INTO THE REAR SECTION OF HOUCHINS' PLANE, CAUSING IT TO GO INTO A SPIN SOON AFTERWARD WHEN ROUGH WEATHER WAS ENCOUNTERED. HE LEFT HIS POST AT THE START OF THE SPIN AND ABLY ASSISTED THE PILOT IN REGAINING CONTROL AND RETURNING SAFELY TO THE HOME BASE.

THE DECORATION WILL GO TO HIS MOTHER, MRS. W.M.HOUCHINS, COEBURN, VA. JAN 19 1943

SERGEANT SNYDER WAS BOMBARDIER ON A FLYING FORTRESS THAT BOMBED A CONVOY ESCORTED BY FIVE WARSHIPS IN MILNE BAY, NEW GUINEA, AUG.26, 1942. THE SHIPS PUT UP HEAVY AND ACCURATE ANTIAIRCRAFT FIRE, AND SNYDER WAS HIT. THOUGH FATALLY WOUNDED, HE RELEASED FOUR 500-POUND BOMBS BEFORE BEING OVERCOME.

THE DECORATION WILL GO TO HIS FATHER, STANLEY SNYDER, (97 MADISON ST.,) WILKES-BARRE, PA.

LIEUTENANT STRIPLING, WHO WON THE OAK LEAF CLUSTER, WAS ON THE SAME RAID WITH SERGEANT SNYDER. BECAUSE OF A NIGHT TAKE-OFF AND BAD WEATHER, LIEUTENANT STRIPLING, PILOT, WAS UNABLE TO JOIN HIS FLIGHT, BUT HE PROCEEDED TO THE TARGET AREA ALONE AND SCORED THREE NEAR MISSES FROM EXTREMELY LOW ALTITUDE ON A WARSHIP WHOSE ANTIAIRCRAFT FIRE HE HAD SEEN BRING DOWN ANOTHER AMERICAN PLANE.

CORPORAL FRITZ WAS THE REAR GUNNER ON A FLYING FORTRESS ON A RECONNAISSANCE MISSION OVER RABAUL, NEW BRITAIN, OCT.9, 1942, TO DETERMINE THE DAMAGE INFLICTED ON ENEMY AIR AND NAVAL BASES BY PREVIOUS RAIDS. AFTER PHOTOGRAPHS WERE TAKEN, FOUR ZEROS ATTACKED HIS PLANE AND A RUNNING AERIAL BATTLE LASTED AN HOUR, DURING WHICH FRITZ WAS INSTRUMENTAL IN DESTROYING TWO OF THE ENEMY FIGHTERS, ENABLING HIS OWN PLANE TO RETURN TO BASE THOUGH BADLY DAMAGED. JAN 19 1943

THE AWARD WILL GO TO HIS FATHER, RALPH FRITZ, (1442 CAMPBELL), DETROIT. JAN 19 1943

CORPORAL THOMAS WAS WITH FRITZ ON THAT MISSION---THOMAS WAS ASSISTANT ENGINEER AND SIDE GUNNER ON A FLYING FORTRESS.

ANOTHER RECONNAISSANCE MISSION OVER RABAUL A FEW DAYS EARLIER, AUG. 29, 1942, RESULTED IN AWARDS FOR SERGEANT POIRIER, CAPTAIN EATON AND SERGEANT STILES. IT WAS A FLYING FORTRESS MISSION. FIVE ZEROS WERE SEEN TAKING OFF FROM RABAUL, AND TEN MINUTES LATER FOUR OF THEM ATTACKED THE PLANE, AND TWO WERE SHOT DOWN.

LIEUTENANT REID WAS CO-PILOT OF A FLYING FORTRESS IN A FORMATION ON THE FIRST AMERICAN BOMBING MISSION FROM AUSTRALIA TO THE ENEMY-HELD BASE AT RABAUL, FEB. 23. A DAWN ATTACK WAS CARRIED OUT AS SCHEDULED. ENROUTE HOME, THE FORMATION WAS INTERCEPTED AND FOUGHT OFF HEAVY ATTACKS BY FIVE ZEROS.

LIEUTENANT SNITKIN WAS BOMBARDIER IN A FLYING FORTRESS THAT RAIDED RABAUL AUG. 7, 1942. A STRONG FORCE OF ENEMY FIGHTERS INTERCEPTED THE RAIDERS WHILE ON THE BOMBING RUN, AND SNITKIN MANNED THE FORWARD GUN, REPEATEDLY WARDING OFF FRONTAL ATTACKS. HE RETURNED TO HIS BOMBSIGHT AND SCORED DIRECT HITS ON THE AIRDROME RUNWAY, THEN WENT BACK TO HIS GUN AND CONTINUED THE BATTLE, IN WHICH SEVEN ENEMY PLANES WERE SHOT DOWN.

LIEUTENANT WILLIAMS PILOTED A FLYING FORTRESS THAT TOOK PART IN BOMBING THE JAPANESE FLEET THAT ATTACKED MIDWAY ISLAND ON JUNE 3. ABOUT 300 MILES NORTHWEST OF MIDWAY, THE ENEMY FLEET, CONSISTING OF TWO AIRCRAFT CARRIERS AND EIGHT DESTROYERS, WAS DISCOVERED. DURING THE BOMBING RUN, THE BOMBS IN LIEUTENANT WILLIAMS' PLANE FAILED TO RELEASE AT FIRST, BUT HE REMAINED ABOVE THE WARSHIPS UNTIL THE BOMBS WERE DROPPED.

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA, JAN.12-(DELAYED)-(AP)-SEVEN OFFICERS AND ENLISTED MEN OF THE UNITED STATES AIR CORPS WERE AWARDED THE SILVER STAR TODAY, WITH ONE OFFICER RECEIVING AN OAK LEAF CLUSTER IN LIEU OF A SECOND SILVER STAR. ALL ARE LISTED AS MISSING IN ACTION.

AMONG THOSE TO WHOM LIEUT. GEN. GEORGE C. KENNEY, COMMANDER OF THE ALLIED AIR FORCES, SOUTHWEST PACIFIC AREA, PRESENTED AWARDS. WERE: 1ST LIEUT. HENRY A. KEEL, UMATILLA, FLA., AND SECOND LIEUT. SIDNEY W. JACOBSON, (1112 EVERETT ST.) SHREVEPORT, LA.

JAN 19 1943

LIEUTENANT KEEL WAS AWARDED FOR GALLANTRY IN ACTION OVER LAE, NEW GUINEA, ON MAY 23. HE PILOTED A B25 BOMBER ON A MISSION AGAINST ENEMY INSTALLATIONS AT LAE. IN THE FACE OF STRONG OPPOSITION FROM ZERO FIGHTERS AND HEAVY ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE, HE MADE A RUN OVER THE AIRDROME AND RELEASED HIS BOMBS. HIS PLANE WAS DAMAGED BY GROUND FIRE DURING THE RUN AND WAS THEN HARASSED BY SEVERAL FIGHTERS. IT WAS LAST SEEN OVER THE OCEAN, LOSING ALTITUDE RAPIDLY.

"LIEUTENANT KEEL'S COURAGE AND DETERMINATION ON THIS AND PREVIOUS BOMBING AND RECONNAISSANCE MISSIONS ARE IN ACCORD WITH THE FINEST TRADITIONS OF THE SERVICE," THE CITATION SAID.

LIEUTENANT JACOBSON WAS AWARDED THE WILVER STAR FOR GALLANTRY IN ACTION WHILE ACTING AS A CO-PILOT ON A B25 BOMBER OVER LAE, MAY 25. THE FORMATION OF BOMBERS WAS ATTACKED BY APPROXIMATELY 20 ENEMY ZERO FIGHTERS, AND IN THE ENSUING BATTLE LIEUTENANT JACOBSON'S PLANE ZAS HIT BY ENEMY FIRE AND WAS LAST SEEN IN FLAMES AND LOSING ALTITUDE RAPIDLY.

"HIS COURAGE AND DETERMINATION TO CARRY OUT HIS MISSION IN THE FACE OF ENEMY FIRE" WERE LAUDED IN THE CITATION.

GUADALCANAL,JAN.11-(DELAYED)-(AP)-AMERICAN MARAUDER MEDIUM BOMBERS POUNDED MUNDA POINT AND REKATA BAY, TWO JAPANESE STRONGHOLDS IN THE NORTHERN SOLOMONS, FROM EXTREMELY LOW LEVELS TODAY AND CAUSED HEAVY DAMAGE.

(THIS PARTICULAR ATTACK ON THESE FREQUENTLY RAIDED ENEMY BASES WAS REPORTED PREVIOUSLY IN NAVY COMMUNIQUES JANUARY 12 AND 13, BUT WITHOUT DETAILS OF RESULTS.)

JAN 19 1943

LARGE FIRES WERE SEEN AMONG SHORE INSTALLATIONS AT BOTH PLACES, AND SOME BOMBS HIT THE AIRFIELD AAT MUNDA POINT, WHERE THE JAPS ARE BELIEVED TO BE GATHERING A LARGE FORCE OF PLANES. RETURNING FLIERS SAID BOTH RAIDS WERE SUCCESSFUL.

THE BOMBERS FLEW THROUGH HEAVY ANTIAIRCRAFT FIRE, AND THREE PLANES FAILED TO REACH HOME. THE CREW WAS ONE WAS RESCUED.

DURING THE NIGHT A FORCE OF JAPANESE DESTROYERS SNEAKED TO THE NORTHERN (ENEMY-OCCUPIED) TIP OF GUADALCANAL ISLAND. NAVY DIVE BOMBERS FOUND EIGHT JAP DESTROYERS HEADED NORTH FROM THE AREA, AND SCORED SEVERAL HITS ON THEM.

NAVY FIGHTER PLANES TODAY ENGAGED 14 JAP ZEROS BETWEEN SANTA ISABEL ISLAND AND THE NEW GEORGIA GROUP IN THE CENTRAL SOLOMONS. EIGHT ZEROS WERE SHOT DOWN BY THE NAVY PILOTS.

(THE NAVY, REPORTING JANUARY 14 ON THE PRESENCE OF ENEMY DESTROYERS OFF GUADALCANAL THE NIGHT OF JANUARY 10-11, CREDITED TORPEDO BOATS WITH SCORING HITS ON TWO AND POSSIBLY THREE OF THE VESSELS BUT SAID NOTHING OF AN ATTACK UPON THEM BY DIVE BOMBERS. OF THE NEW GEORGIA AIR BATTLE, THE OFFICIAL REPORT SAID 12 ZEROS ATTACKED THE AMERICAN PLANES, AND FOUR OF THE ENEMY WERE SHOT DOWN.

WITH TWO OTHERS POSSIBLY DESTROYED.)

FIGHTING ON GUADALCANAL CONTNUES, THE AMERICANS HOLDING THE OFFENSIVE AGAINST JAP TROOPS DISPERSED IN MOUNTAINOUS JUNGLES. THE LAND WARFARE IS LARGELY OF GUERRILLA NATURE. ADVANCES HAVE BEEN MADE IN SEVERAL SECTORS BY THE AMERICAN TROOPS, AND ENEMY CASUALTIES HAVE BEEN COMPARATIVELY HEAVY.

GUADALCANAL, JAN 5-(DELAYED)-(AP)-SERGEANT CLIFFORD L.AIKENS OF CHICAGO DOESN'T BELIEVE A LITTLE THING LIKE A HEAVILY FORTIFIED JAPANESE PILLBOX SHOULD HOLD UP THE ADVANCE OF HIS COMPANY.

AIKENS WAS LEADING A GROUP THROUGH THE JUNGLE NEAR MOUNT AESTEN ON THE WEST FRONT WHEN HE RAN AGAINST AN ENEMY POSITION WHICH HAD BEEN CLEVERLY CAMOUFLAGED AND HAD A GOOD FIELD OF FIRE THROUGH A JUNGLE CLEARING.

IT APPEARED IMPOSSIBLE TO KNOCK OUT THE PILLBOX AND PROCEED, BUT AIKENS, SURVEYING THE SITUATION, SAW A BLINDSPOT AND HAD A QUICK IDEA.

THE BLINDSPOT WAS A LARGE TREE 20 YARDS FROM THE PILL-BOX. AIKENS CRAWLED BEHIND THE TREE, DRAGGING A LIGHT MACHINE-GUN, AND THEN POURED FIRE INTO THE PILLBOX, KEEPING THE JAPANESE DOWN IN THEIR HOLE.

JAN 19 1943

UNABLE TO GET HIM WITH THEIR MACHINE-GUNS, THE JAPANESE TRIED HAND GRENADES AND ONE HIT THREE YARDS IN FRONT OF HIM--BUT FAILED TO HARM HIM.

WHILE AIKENS COVERED THE PILLBOX WITH HIS FIRE, PRIVATES CARL PARKER, A MISSOURIAN, AND WAYNE NOLL OF WATERMAN, ILL., SET UP MACHINE-GUNS AND STARTED A CROSS-FIRE.

OTHER MEN BROUGHT UP DYNAMITE AND AIKENS GRABBED A PIECE AND THREW IT INTO THE PILLBOX. PILLBOX, JAPANESE AND GUNS WERE BLASTED, AND AIKENS' COMPANY CONTINUED TO ADVANCE.

NEW DELHI, JAN 18-(AP)-RAF PLANES MADE THREE SEPARATE ATTACKS YESTERDAY ON JAPANESE POSITIONS NEAR RATHEDAUNG, 25 MILES NORTHWEST OF AKYAB IN WESTERN BURMA, INFLICTING CONSIDERABLE DAMAGE WITH BOMBS AND MACHINEGUN FIRE, A BRITISH COMMUNIQUE ANNOUNCED TODAY.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT ALSO REPORTED THAT WELLINGTON BOMBERS HAD RAIDED THE JAPANESE AIRDROME AT TOUNGOO, BURMA, SATURDAY NIGHT, SCORING HITS ON THE RUNWAY AND DISPERSAL AREAS. NO PLANES WERE LOST IN THESE FORAYS, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID.

JAN 19 1943

A FEW JAPANESE PLANES MADE A BRIEF RAID ON THE CHITTAGONG AREA LAST NIGHT, CAUSING SLIGHT DAMAGE AND A FEW CASUALTIES, THE BULLETIN ADDED.

RMS INTERPRETIVE

BY GLENN BABB

THE MIDWINTER LULL WHICH HAS RULED FOR WEEKS ON MOST OF THE MAJOR WAR FRONTS WAS SAVAGELY SHATTERED OVER THE WEEKEND. BERLIN'S 14-MONTHS RESPITE FROM AIR ATTACK WAS ENDED BY THE RAF'S SMASHING ONE-TWO PUNCH AND BERLINERS MADE THEIR FIRST ACQUAINTANCE WITH THE BLOCK-BUSTERS, SO MUCH MORE DEVASTATING THAN ANYTHING GOERING HAS BEEN ABLE TO DELIVER OVER LONDON. IN AFRICAN GENERAL MONTGOMERY SET HIS EIGHTH ARMY IN MOTION AGAIN. AND IN RUSSIA, WHERE THERE HAS BEEN NO LULL, TO HITLER'S SORROW, THE RESURGENT RED ARMY GAVE NEW EVIDENCE OF ITS

50-24-447

TREMENDOUS RESERVE POWER BY ADDING ANOTHER OFFENSIVE TO THE HALF DOZEN ALREADY ROLLING FORWARD, MEANWHILE CONTINUING THE RELENTLESS DESTRUCTION OF THE22 TRAPPED DIVISIONS BEFORE STALINGRAD.

JAN 19 1943

EVERYWHERE THE INITIATIVE WAS WITH THE ALLIES; NOWHERE WAS THE ENEMY, GERMAN, ITALIAN OR JAPANESE, PERMITTED TO CHOOSE THE NEW BATTLEFIELDS. HIS RESPONSE WAS LIMITED TO FEEBLE RETALIATION, AS IN THE AIR WAR OVER EUROPE, DESPERATE DEFENSIVE FIGHTING IN RUSSIA, HEADLONG RETREAT IN LIBYA.

OF THE NEW CAMPAIGNS THAT IN NORTH AFRICA PROMISES THE EARLIEST MAJOR SUCCESS. NOWHERE THROUGHOUT THE WORLD HAVE AXIS FORTUNES FALLEN MORE DISASTROUSLY THAN IN THIS CAMPAIGN OF PURSUIT ACROSS LIBYA, WHICH ILLUSTRATES MORE VIVIDLY THAN ANY OTHER PHASE OF THE CONFLICT THE WAY THE INITIATIVE HAS BEEN SNATCHED FROM HITLER AND HIS FELLOWS. ONLY THREE MONTHS AGO ROMMEL WAS STILL A THREAT TO ALEXANDRIA, THE SUEZ CANAL AND THE WHOLE POSITION OF THE UNITED NATIONS IN THE MIDDLE EAST. NOW, MORE THAN 1,000 MILES TO THE WEST OF EL ALAMEIN, WHERE THE ONETIME WIZARD OF THE DESERT WARS MET HIS MASTER, ROMMEL AGAIN IS IN RAPID RETREAT.

APPARENTLY THAT BEATING HE RECEIVED AT EL ALAMEIN ROBBED ROMMEL NOT ONLY OF THE INITIATIVE BUT OF THE CAPACITY TO OFFER EFFECTIVE RESISTANCE. TWICE NOW, AT EL AGHEILA AND LAST WEEK AT BUERAT EL HSUN, HE HAS ABANDONED NATURALLY STRONG POSITIONS AND FLED AS SOON AS HIS CONQUEROR, MONTGOMERY, WAS READY TO RESUME THE ADVANCE. IN THE LATTER CASE ROMMEL HAD THE ADDITIONAL ADVANTAGES OF COMMUNICATIONS LINES ONLY A FRACTION OF THOSE WHICH SUPPLIED THE EIGHTH ARMY. THE STRONG IMPLICATION IS THAT THE AXIS HIGH COMMAND HAS DECIDED TO ABANDON LIBYA AND COMBINE FORCES IN TUNISIA FOR A LAST STAND IN AFRICA.

TODAY'S COMMUNIQUE SUGGESTS THAT THE BRITISH COMMANDER HAS LOOSED AN ATTACK THAT HE INTENDS TO MAKE THE COUP DE GRACE FOR THE AXIS IN LIBYA. HIS ADVANCE COLUMNS ARE LESS THAN 100 MILES FROM TRIPOLI, DRIVING STRAIGHT AT THAT OBJECTIVE BY INLAND, SEMI-DESERT TRAILS, SCORNING THE LONGER AND PROBABLY SAFER COASTAL ROUTE THAT LEADS THROUGH MISURATA AND HOMS. BENI ULID, MENTIONED IN THE CAIRO BULLETIN, IS WELL TO THE WEST OF BOTH THOSE COASTAL CITIES, NEARLY 100 MILES FROM THE COAST AND ABOUT THE SAME DISTANCE SOUTHEAST OF TRIPOLI. THE ROUTE OF THIS THRUST INDICATES THAT MONTGOMERY'S LEFT WING WAS ON THE MOVE IN A WIDE INLAND SWEEP DAYS BEFORE THE BRITISH ANNOUNCED THE RESUMPTION OF THE DRIVE AND THAT THE JITTERY AXIS REPORTS OF THE EIGHTH ARMY'S MOVEMENTS LATE LAST WEEK WERE BASED ON ACCURATE PREMONITIONS OF DISASTER IMPENDING.

JAN 19 1943

THE DISTANCE BETWEEN MONTGOMERY'S VANGUARD AND THE ALLIED FORCE OF BRITONS, AMERICANS AND FRENCHMEN IN TUNISIA HAS BEEN NARROWED TO LESS THAN 400 MILES. THE GAP BETWEEN THE EIGHTH ARMY AND THE FIGHTING FRENCH COLUMN WHICH HAS COME UP FROM EQUATORIAL AFRICA IS EVEN LESS. IT MAY BE ONLY A MATTER OF DAYS UNTIL ALL THREE FORCES ARE IN EFFECTIVE MILITARY CONTACT AND THE ENCIRCLEMENT OF THE ROMMEL-NEHRING COMBINATION--IF THAT COMBINATION CAN BE ACCOMPLISHED--IS MADE COMPLETE. ALSO IT MAY BE ONLY A FEW DAYS UNTIL THE LAST OF MUSSOLINI'S AFRICAN EMPIRE IS LOST.

RAIL JUNCTION SEIZED

Drive on Rostov Continues from North with Capture of Kamensk.

AXIS FORCES CRACKING

27,500 Hungarians, 22,000 Italians Among New Batch of Prisoners.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MOSCOW, Jan. 19—The Red army has reached a point only 79 miles from Kharkov, big Ukraine industrial city, in a continuing westward sweep that has resulted in the capture of 52,000 Axis prisoners in one week, it was announced officially tonight in a special communique circulated by the Soviet news agency Tass.

Kamensk, 85 miles north of Rostov, strategic Nazi base at the northwestern corner of the Caucasus, also fell to the advancing Russians, the special communique said, and field reports placed the Russian vanguards within 75 miles of that vital enemy communications hub.

Stand on 1941 Invasion Mark

Valuiki and Urazovo fell to the Russians driving on Kharkov, and the Red army now has hurled back the Germans to their 1941 invasion mark.

Valuiki, an important railway junction for three lines, is 82 miles east of Kharkov, and Urazovo is 79 miles from the steel city.

Of the 52,000 prisoners taken since last Wednesday the Russians said 27,500 were Hungarians, 22,000 Italians, and 2,500 Germans.

Axis troops fighting under Germany's helm were showing marked signs of war weariness and readiness to give up without a hard fight, and the Russians were encircling and crushing them just as they had done to the Rumanian force at Stalingrad.

Italian Trucks Captured

(The midnight Soviet communique heard in London told how the Russians took 700 trucks from the Italians on the Voronezh front, and used them to continue their pursuit of a fleeing enemy.

(This bulletin that followed the special communique also said that in offensive engagements south of Lake Ladoga where the Red army has driven a relief corridor through to Leningrad the Russians captured four more enemy food and ammunition dumps.

(The Russians also were reported to have killed 800 more Germans during the day in their steady whittling down of the remnants of 22 Nazi divisions trapped before Stalingrad. More than 300 prisoners were taken in this pocket as well as nine planes, 12 tanks, several hundred trucks and other booty).

In the fighting from Jan. 13 to Jan. 18, the Russians said their troops on the Voronezh front had captured 170 tanks, 1,700 guns, 2,800 machine guns, 4,000 mortars, 6,000 trucks, 1,500 horses, 55,000 rifles, about 10,000,000 cartridges, approximately 600,000 shells, and more than 150 various supply dumps.

The capture of Valuiki and Urazovo apparently was made by the Red army that two days ago took Aleksyeevka, 40 miles to the northeast on the railway leading back to Voronezh. Aleksyeevka was reported captured Sunday.

This Valuiki spearhead is the northern arm of the Russian attempt to envelop Kharkov. The southern arm is operating in the area of Novo-Pskov, 112 miles southeast of Kharkov.

Enemy Troops Encircled

In between these two forces "enemy troops east of the Kamenka-Rossosh railway line are completely encircled and are being wiped out by our troops," the communique said.

The Germans reached Valuiki in the fall of 1941. They were pushed back slightly toward Kharkov later by the Russians, but it was from the same general area that the Nazis began last summer's drive that carried to Stalingrad, and deep into the Caucasus to the south.

By seizing Valuiki the Russians denied the Germans the use of the north-south railway which the Nazis had been using to supply their forces on the middle Don front. Most of the Voronezh-Rostov railway to the east already had been taken by the Russians with the capture of Rossosh, Millerovo, and now Kamensk.

Drive into Ukraine

In this middle Don area the Russians also were pushing westward into the Ukraine while other columns drove straight southward toward Rostov whose capture would trap huge German armies in the Caucasus.

Kamensk is on the Donets river about 15 miles north of Likhaya where the trans-Don railway from Stalingrad meets the Voronezh-Rostov railway. Russian troops operating east of Kamensk, where the Donets turns southward to flow into the Don, captured Byelaya Kalitva yesterday. That development gives the Russians control of nearly all of the Stalingrad-Likhaya railway.

Russians Cross Donets

But other Russian units, Moscow dispatches said, have crossed the Donets to reach a point 75 miles above Rostov and still are advancing on a route considered the most disadvantageous for the Nazi defenders.

There are at least four other main Russian armies, however, that are directly or indirectly menacing Rostov. One is operating along the lower Don river 60 miles east of Rostov which is at the Don's mouth. Another is nearing Nazi-held Salsk, a rail and air base 100 miles southeast of Rostov. A third took Petrovskoye on the north central Caucasian railway 190 miles southeast of Rostov, and the fourth is driving northwestward toward Armavir from the Caucasian foothills.

The latter two armies apparently intend to join at Armavir since Petrovskoye is about 80 miles east of that junction on the Rostov-Baku line.

On all fronts from Lake Ladoga to the Caucasus, the Russians held the initiative firmly and were driving wedges into German lines with such swiftness and power that the Nazis were unable to check the advance or even anticipate where the next stab would be.

The noon communique told of the killing or capturing of 3,000 Axis troops overnight, including nearly 1,000 in the trap west of Stalingrad where fewer than 50,000 Germans hopelessly await their doom.

An important advance southwest of Velikie Luki was reported. There the Russians said they took six settlements, which may be in White Russia. The German fortifications were reported unusually strong in this sector and the advance was curling in a direction behind the strong central German hedgehogs of Smolensk, Rzhev and Vyazma.

An important central front advance southwest of Velikie Luki was reported. There the Russian said they took six settlements which may be in White Russia. The German fortifications were reported unusually strong in this sector.

Civilians in Moscow eagerly seized newspapers to read of yesterday's Leningrad victory. The government newspaper, "Izvestia," declared 250,000 Germans had died attempting to capture Leningrad.

As in other major Soviet victories, skillful use of artillery blasted out the victory through the strongest concrete fortifications. The opening barrage on Jan. 12 lasted for 2 hours and 20 minutes, splintering the frozen ground and concrete fire-points. Then the infantry charged, crossing the Neva River in seven to ten minutes.

Russian losses were declared "insignificant" compared to the 15,000 Germans killed and captured. The Communist party paper, "Pravda," said the Red Army troops were so enthusiastic that many wounded fighters continued to charge into battle. In many places heavy artillery was pushed across the frozen river by hand and nudged up the high banks with the help of icy tow ropes. These snow-covered slopes were sown with land mines which sappers were forced to blow up because they were frozen too tight to remove.

The people of Leningrad wept openly in the thronged streets and kissed one another when the news came that the blockade was broken, said one front dispatch.

Russians Report Further Gains On Wide Front

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Jan. 19.—Russian troops fought to widen their 5-mile relief corridor to Leningrad today after smashing through nearly 9 miles of Nazi fortifications to lift the epic 17-month siege of that big industrial city—a feat that sent Soviet spirits soaring and lent greater momentum to Red Armies on other fronts.

Izvestia, government newspaper, reported Leningrad was now in direct land communication with the rest of the nation after nearly a year and a half in which its 1,000,000 war-time inhabitants had been supplied by air transports and by roads and a railroad over the winter ice of Lake Ladoga.

While the Russians continued to batter at the once-encircling German armies around Russia's second city other Soviet forces moved farther in the direction of the Latvian border southwest of Velikie Luki, threatened Salsk, German supply center for its entrapped southern armies, tightened the vise in the Stalingrad area and made further progress in the direction of the steel city of Kharkov, the Pittsburgh of the Ukraine.

Workers Are Joyous.

Workers changing shifts in Russia's armament and other war industries shouted and hugged each other after the public loudspeaker systems announced the lifting of Leningrad's siege late last night. The news was flashed to all parts of the Soviet Union, to every square and meeting place.

Dispatches related that the Leningrad offensive began at 9 a.m. January 12 with a hurricane of artillery fire on the German positions on the elevated left bank of the Neva River.

So terrific was the barrage, Pravda reported, that it plowed up the frozen soil and splintered concrete pillboxes as though they were matchwood. The pounding lasted 2 hours and 20 minutes.

Izvestia said the German Army has lost 250,000 men in the unsuccessful attempt to take Leningrad.

The city which the Russian people got out of the breaking of the blockade of the city, named for their revolutionary leader and considered the home of the revolution itself, bolstered army morale and lent new momentum to the series of drives against the Axis armies all along the 1,200-mile front.

Six Places Captured.

Southwest of Velikie Luki, where German resistance has been exceptionally strong, a Russian advance captured six populated places and added to the growing toll of Axis prisoners.

London military quarters pointed out that Hitler's satellite armies had taken a particularly heavy drubbing in the winter drive, calculating that six of nine Hungarian divisions on the eastern front had been badly mauled, seven of 10 Italian divisions had been knocked out and that 16 of 20 Rumanian divisions had been liquidated as casualties and prisoners.)

The army moving southwest from Veronezh in the sixth and newest of the Red offensives in the south was reported within 108 miles of Kharkov after the capture of Aranasievka, 20 miles north of the railway connecting Svoboda and Kupyansk.

As the line of advance was straightened in this sector, Russian forces were reported to be encountering "excessively stubborn resistance" from German and Hungarian troops in many cases.

More Prisoners Taken.

As the squeeze on the trapped force of 50,000 Germans at Stalingrad tightened an increasing number of prisoners was taken, indicating the Nazis were taking heed of the Russian ultimatum to surrender or die.

The plight of the Germans in this area was heightened by the crossing of the Manynch River and Canal, announced yesterday. This endangered the supply base and airfield at Salsk from which material has been flown in to the surrounded divisions. The Russians already had reported the capture of the last usable landing field in the vicinity of the trap.

Work of Two Columns.

The week-long smash which resulted in piercing the German ring around Leningrad that had existed since August, 1941, was the work of two Russian columns. One striking eastward from Leningrad was commanded by Col. Gen. Leonid Govorov, and the other striking westward from the Volkhov River was led by Gen. Kirkill A. Meretskov.

The two groups, supported by powerful forces of artillery and tanks, caught the ancient Nazi-held fortress of Schluesselburg in a nutcracker and smashed it, killing 13,000 Germans, routing four divisions, taking prisoner more than 1,260, and capturing huge quantities of armament, the Russians announced.

Marshals Gregory K. Zhukov and Klementi Voroshilov were the master minds behind the co-ordinated operations which apparently had cut about a 5-mile-wide corridor to Leningrad on the south shore of Lake Ladoga.

Fortifications Reduced.

In announcing this gain the Russians told of the tremendous belt of Nazi fortifications that had to be reduced—470 enemy strongpoints were demolished and 172 artillery batteries silenced—and it was assumed that the corridor was firmly held or the announcement of the siege's lifting never would have been made.

30.24—449

Leningrad's residents had endured incredible hardships. Their suffering was even greater than that undergone by the besieged at Odessa, Sevastapol and Stalingrad.

But they fought on and never surrendered, and the news that relief now is being sent to them caused a greater uplift to Russian morale than any of the great strides made by the Russians in Southern Russia.

Moscow, Jan. 19 (A. P.).—All Russia thrilled to the news of great accomplishments of the Red Army today as the fire of enthusiasm was stoked by word of Soviet smashes into sagging German forces all the way from ice-bound Lake Ladoga outside newly reopened Leningrad to the high Caucasus in the south.

Izvestia, Government newspaper, reported Leningrad was now in direct land communication with the rest of the nation after nearly a year and a half in which its 1,000,000 wartime inhabitants had been supplied by air transports and by roads and a railroad over the winter ice of Lake Ladoga.

While the Red Army continued to batter at the once-encircling German armies around Russia's second city to widen a five-mile corridor through which the 17-month siege was broken, other Soviet forces moved further in the direction of the Latvian border southwest of Velikie Luki, threatened Salsk, German supply center for its entrapped southern armies, tightened the vise in the Stalingrad area and made further progress in the direction of the steel city of Kharkov, the Pittsburgh of the Ukraine.

Russians Gleeful.

Workers coming off their shifts in Moscow shouted the news about Leningrad and pounded each other on the back, and newsdealers in the capital were swamped with the citizens' insatiable appetite for fresh tidings of the widening triumphs of the winter offensive.

Dispatches related that the Leningrad offensive began on January 12 at 9 o'clock in the morning with a hurricane of artillery fire upon the German positions on the elevated left bank of the Neva River. So terrific was the barrage, Pravda reported, that it plowed up the frozen soil and splintered concrete pillboxes as though they were matchwood. The pounding lasted two hours and twenty minutes.

Then Soviet infantry which had stood in their trenches impatiently awaiting the attack signal rushed across the frozen Neva toward the Germans, Pravda said. Good organization and speed in the crossing operation kept losses insignificant, the dispatch said. The enthusiasm of the Russian troops was so great that many of the wounded insisted on continuing in the battle.

In many places heavy Russian artillery was pushed across the frozen river by hand and nudged up the high banks with the help of icy tow ropes. These snow-covered slopes were heavily sown with land mines which sappers were forced to blow up because they were frozen too tight to remove.

The people of Leningrad wept openly in the thronged streets and kissed one another when the news that the blockade was broken came, said a dispatch from the front. At the hospitals wounded defenders of the city cried with joy. Workers, who during the long siege stayed at their machines often until they dropped of fatigue, held thanksgiving meetings in the factories.

The lift which the Russian people got out of the breaking of the blockade of the city, named for their revolutionary leader and considered the home of the revolution itself, bolstered army morale and lent new momentum to the series of drives against the Axis armies all along the 1,200-mile front.

Reds Gain Near Velikie Luki.

Southwest of Velikie Luki, where German resistance has been exceptionally strong, a Russian advance captured six populated places and added to the growing toll of Axis prisoners.

The Army moving southwest from Voronezh in the sixth and newest of the Red offensives in the south was reported within 108 miles of Kharkov after the capture of Afanasievka, twenty miles north of the railway connecting Svoboda and Kupyansk.

Stalingrad Noose Tightens.

As the squeeze on the trapped force of 50,000 Germans at Stalingrad tightened, an increasing number of prisoners was taken, indicating the Nazis were taking heed of the Russian ultimatum to surrender or die.

[The High Command said that in Stalingrad, in the course of heavy battles Nazi troops defended themselves stubbornly against every new attack. The Transocean account, however, said that in the Stalingrad trap "German troops had to withdraw from some advanced posts, and that other penetrations were sealed off."]

The plight of the Germans in this area was heightened by the crossing of the Manych River and Canal, announced yesterday. This endangered the supply base and air field at Salsk from which material has been flown in to the surrounding divisions. The Russians already had reported the capture of the last usable landing field in the vicinity of the trap.

MOSCOW REVEALS STAND OF ISLAND FORTRESS

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 — (AP) The British radio said today that with the recapture of the fortress town of Schluesselburg it was revealed in Moscow that although the Germans took the town in the summer of 1941 they never succeeded in taking one small nearby island fortress of the same name.

"In this citadel (on a small island in Lake Ladoga) Soviet marines have been holding out the whole time, supplied precariously by small boats at night," said the British broadcasts, recorded here by CBS.

The recovery of the main city by the Red army meant the breaking of the 17-months blockade of Leningrad, according to Moscow announcements.

Nazi Replies To Captors Are Coached

JAN 20 1943

With the Red Army Southeast of Rostov (Delayed). — The German flier came into the little house on the front dressed in a natty but soiled sky blue uniform with his head high. He bowed with mock politeness and sat down stiffly.

He was a perfect Hollywood type of the Nazi officer—piercing blue eyes with great white spaces around them, skin drawn tightly over his sharp face bones, sharp chin and a thin pointed nose.

I asked the Russians what we could ask him.

"Whatever you want," their colonel answered.

I asked him what effect he thought the United States is having on the outcome of the war.

"None!" he shot back. "The African operation doesn't mean anything. Rommel has lost a little, but in this war you have to lose a little. He'll come back."

I asked him why the Germans are retreating.

"We underestimated the Russian strength," he said, "but all will be well next summer."

Called Exaggerations

I quoted some United States and British production figures on war materials.

"Exaggerations!" he leered.

I suggested the United States is getting into full production and soon will throw it all against Germany and her allies.

"You'll never get your stuff to Europe," he said, and all but laughed. "Then soon you will get tired."

When someone asked if he realized that in Germany a prisoner like himself might be shot, he said:

"You can shoot me."

I asked him what he thought would happen to Germany when she lost the war.

"Germany can't lose," he sneered.

I asked him if officers are coached on their answers to questioning. He said:

"Of course not."

He was told that he could go. He bowed and all but gave the Nazi salute.

"Tough guy!" someone said.

Answers the Same

"Wait a minute," said another officer who had questioned Nazi party members before, "bring in another."

He fitted right into the portrait of the officer we had just dismissed.

We asked him what effect he thought the United States is having on the war.

"None!" he shot back. "The African operation doesn't mean anything. Rommel has lost a little, but in this war you have to lose a little. He'll come back."

We asked him, too, if officers are coached on their answers to questions.

"Of course not," he said.

We told him he could go. He rose, bowed with great formality, and almost gave the Nazi salute.

Gay Party--with Girls, Music Lifts Spirits on Russian Front

By EDDY GILMORE

WITH THE RED ARMY SOMEWHERE BETWEEN STALINGRAD AND ROSTOV—(Delayed)—(AP) Mix Soviet soldiers, some Ukrainian girls, an old guitar and some American and British newspaper men and you have the makings of a good party any place in the world.

The Russian soldiers were conducting us over the front. The girls were cooking and serving the meals at our headquarters house. The guitar was a seven-stringed affair minus three strings. But we said, "Nitchevo!" (A Russian expression denoting indifference) and went ahead merrily.

It began softly. A soldier with a beautiful high tenor sang us folk songs. Then the girls joined him.

Outside the bright moon hung in a clear sky. Occasionally some kind of plane would hum overhead.

"Can't we get up a dance?" asked one who is given to terpsichore, be it in a British ballroom or on a Russian steppe.

Someone pushed the guitar at me and I began to do things to it. Had it been human or an animal, it would have bitten me.

A newspaper man who used to write stolid editorials on economics grabbed one of the girls and swung her around the room to the wailing, tortured tones of the Basin Street Blues.

"We gotta have druma," someone shouted, presumably, I thought, on the premise that they might drown out the guitar.

A newspaper man who once was one of Fleet street's more dignified theater critics offered his services. One of the Russians brought out a pair of knives. Thus equipped the ex-critic beat it out on the hard board table.

From Basin street we went to "Deep in the Heart of Texas" and to just about everything else we could think of.

A Russian sentry stuck his head in the door.

"Anybody hurt in here?" he asked.

"No," someone said. "It's just the maestro moaning."

The super-dignified journalist got to his feet.

"Blast it," he shouted, "but this does promote international good fellowship."

"You want to dance?" One of the girls demanded. "Because if you don't please get out of the way."

And the party went on.

BALKAN COUNTRIES SEEK RELEASE OF TROOPS IN RUSSIA

Croat Legion Home, Other Units Suffer Heavy Losses.

JAN 20 1943

AT THE GERMAN FRONTIER, Jan. 19.—(AP) The homecoming of the Croat "volunteer" legion from the Russian front, where it had fought beside the German armies, gave renewed impetus today to reports that Germany's Balkan satellites were exerting strong pressure for repatriation of their forces, severely mauled in the Russian winter offensive.

The newly returned Croatian legions and a special contingent of Macedonian troops from Bulgaria are to leave shortly for Yugoslavia as a further step in Germany's effort to quell rising dissidence in the Balkans, reports reaching here indicated.

Demand Return of Troops

Reliable dispatches pictured both Hungary and Rumania as demanding the return of what was left of their eastern front troops, "many of which have been surrounded or captured bythe Russians."

(British military quarters estimated that of nine Hungarian divisions on the eastern front, six have been severely mauled; of ten Italian divisions seven have been knocked out and of 20 Rumanian divisions 16 have been liquidated as casualties or prisoners.)

The Hungarian war cabinet met last week, it was reported, immediately after the return from Germany of Defense Minister Wilhelm von Nagy, who reported to regent Admiral Nicholas Horthy and Premier Nicholas Kallay the critical situation created by the latest Russian successes around Stalingrad.

The official Croatia news agency, Berlin controlled, said troops from that country had been brought home "to take up the battle in their own country against the same enemy" described as the Communists.

Private advices from Bulgaria said German authorities had given Ante Pavelic, chief of the Croat state, until May 1 to clean up opposition in the country or face complete German occupation.

Peyrouton Gets Top Post In Algeria

Elevation Taken as Sign of Ousting Of Pro-Vichyites

JAN 20 1943

By Wes Gallagher

Associated Press Staff Writer

Allied Headquarters, North Africa, Jan. 19.—The appointment of Marcel Peyrouton as governor general of Algeria was announced today and his elevation was taken by observers here as a sign that there would be a thorough house-cleaning of pro-Vichyites by the deadly political enemy of Pierre Laval.

Among the pro-Vichyites in Algeria most likely to go at the insistence of Peyrouton, known as a ruthless administrator, is Charles Temple, Laval-appointed prefect of Algiers, a post second in importance only to the governor generalship.

[Peyrouton, former French Ambassador to Argentina, replaced Yves Chatel.

[A dispatch from Allied headquarters said it was understood Peyrouton had called on Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower to present his views and state his position.

[While some of the Allies do not see eye to eye on Peyrouton's political record, it seemed agreed he is able.

[Peyrouton formerly was minister of the interior in the Vichy government and [illegible], ordered the arrest of Pierre Laval when Marshal Petain dismissed Laval in 1940.)

It was understood that Chatel is leaving with his wife for Lisbon. One of the objections to him, it is reported, is that he had been in touch with Vichy since the Allied landings in North Africa.

Peyrouton's selection appears based on a policy of picking the best available administrators regardless of past leanings. It is expected his elevation will be only the first of a series of appointments to clear up inefficiency and lack of enthusiasm for the Allies among office holders here.

Known as Harsh Ruler

Peyrouton is a lawyer by profession, and his early political career was in the French colonial service. In 1930 he was Secretary General for Algeria and in 1933 Resident General of Tunisia, where he built up a reputation notable for harshness toward the natives and toward trade unions. Persons of liberal views were deported to France.

The Resident General established internment camps in the desert for natives who opposed his policies. In 1935 he visited Marshal Italo Balbo in Libya and in a public address paid tribute to the "creative spirit of Fascism."

His next colonial post was Resident General of Morocco in 1936. With the advent of the Popular Front government he was replaced by General August Nogues.

As Secretary General to the police administration in France in 1940, Peyrouton sponsored many of the anti-Jewish laws, and was active in suppression of the Communists as members of a party outlawed by Marshal Petain.

According to the French political commentator Pertinax (Andre Geraud), Peyrouton in the summer of 1940 was responsible for preventing Algeria, Tunisia and Morocco from rallying to the British cause.

Commenting on Peyrouton's emergence as a controversial political figure in North Africa, Walter Lippmann in his column "Today and Tomorrow" in yesterday's New York Herald Tribune charged that "the authorities in North Africa are on the verge of an action which, if it is carried through, may make a difficult problem almost insoluble."

"I refer," he wrote, "to the importation into North Africa from the Argentine of a M. Peyrouton, a figure little known to Americans, but very well known and fiercely distrusted because of his past record by French Republicans of all parties and factions. This has raised the imminent prospect that General Giraud will, with the consent of General Eisenhower and Mr. Murphy, set up M. Peyrouton where he can dominate the French police and the internal administration.

"Now, however expedient it may have been to deal with the Vichy French already in North Africa when we landed, the deliberate summoning of M. Peyrouton from the Argentine is a horse of a wholly different color. When I say that this action is deplored even by Americans who have fully supported the State Department's Vichy policy, I am understating the position. When I say that it is opposed as undersirable and in the highest degree unwise even by Frenchmen who served Marshal Petain to the bitter end, I am stating a fact which will not be challenged because it could be quickly substantiated."

PEYROUTON MADE ALGERIA GOVERNOR

The Federal Communications Commission today picked up an Algiers broadcast saying that Marcel Peyrouton, former French Ambassador to Argentina, has been appointed Governor-General of Algeria, succeeding Yves Chatel, who becomes Vice-Governor General.

M. Peyrouton was formerly Minister of the Interior in the Vichy Government and as such, ordered the arrest of Pierre Laval when Marshal Petain dismissed Laval in 1940.

A dispatch received in London from Allied Headquarters in North Africa said it was understood that Mr. Peyrouton had called on Lieut.-Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower to present his views and state his position. While some of the Allies do not see eye to eye on his political record, it seemed agreed that he is an able administrator, the Associated Press added tonight.

ernor General in Algeria.

LONDON, Jan. 19 — (AP) The rapid telescoping of the Tunisian and Libyan fronts is hastening the day when the highest American and British authorities must decide on an Allied supreme commander for the final showdown with the Axis in North Africa, qualified military observers believe.

Meanwhile a further shuffling of the political picture was reported in North Africa where the Morocco radio announced that Marcel Peyrouton, a former Vichy collaborationist, had been appointed governor general of Algeria, replacing Yves Chatel.

The question of who will direct the military effort in the event Marshal Erwin Rommel flees Tripoli with all his forces into Tunisia was regarded as one calling for a decision by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill.

Discussions Underway

Since the question concerns the rapidity with which the Allies are able to clean up North Africa in preparation for their operations in Europe, observers believed that preliminary discussions already are under way.

Tunisia is the theater of U. S. Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. The two national leaders might believe the command should be joined under Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, however, if the latter's British Eighth army chases Rommel clear into Tunisia and begins operations there in conjunction with the British First army and the American Fifth army.

Some observers, on the other hand, think that Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, British commander in the Middle East and Gen. Montgomery's superior, might be invited to take over.

Some sources pointed out unofficially that London is unlikely to suggest a change in the command in Tunisia even though the British Eighth army moves in and the British outnumber the Americans.

Murphy Under Fire

The appointment of Peyrouton, former Vichy minister of the interior and former ambassador to Argentina, coincided with a statement tonight by a Fighting French spokesman who turned his fire upon Robert Murphy, President Roosevelt's diplomatic representative in North Africa.

The spokesman said he had received a letter from a "prominent political personage" in Algiers whose identity he would not disclose, saying that Mr. Murphy refuses to listen to French republicans and is surrounded by former collaborationist advisers.

Fascists who were imprisoned during the Allied landings have been returned to positions of importance, the writer of the letter said, the communications system has been left in the hands of personnel selected by the German armistice commission and trade union leaders are being hunted by police.

Opposed to Laval

Peyrouton's long experience as a top administrator in North Africa, together with his personal antipathy to Pierre Laval were believed to have been controlling reasons for his selection for a key post in the political set up.

The attitude of the Fighting French toward his collaborationist record was indicated tonight by a Fighting French spokesman, however, who said:

"It is impossible to estimate how many thousand French patriots were sent to prison and tortured by Peyrouton during his tenure of office as chief of Vichy police and anti-Jewish legislation into the French legislature, Peyrouton has the distinction of having opened the first concentration camp on French soil—at Bordj le Boeuf in Tunisia in 1936."

ROMMEL'S TROOPS DASH ALONG COAST UNDER HEAVY FIRE

Inland Wing of Imperial Force Seeks to Cut Line of Retreat.

AXIS AIRPORT BOMBED

French Soldiers in Tunisia Pushed Back by German Tanks.

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 19—(AP) The left wing of the British Eighth army had swept across the Tripolitanian hump tonight to within 50 miles or less of Tripoli in an inland dash apparently intended to cut in ahead of Marshal Rommel's fleeing forces along the coast. The advance had carried more than 40 miles within 24 hours.

(The Cairo radio, in a broadcast heard in London by Reuters, reported the British had driven to within 30 miles of Tripoli.)

Tripoli in Peril

The British right, driving along the coastal road, had reached a point beyond the settlement of Zliten in an area 80-odd miles short of Tripoli and it appeared more and more likely that that great port, once the key to Italy's colonial empire, would be indefensible, even assuming that a serious Axis defense were offered.

(The British communique announcing the extraordinarily rapid movement of General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's army, said his southern columns had driven the enemy from the Beni Ulid area in hot, brief tank fighting, and were in contact as early as last night with the Axis "towards Tarhuna," a town only 40 miles southeast of Tripoli.

There was every indication that the swift momentum of this pursuit was rising rather than falling, and thus that the approaches to Tripoli were now in British hands in the long march that had brought Sir Bernard forward more than 1,300 miles since he broke Marshal Rommel's El Alamein line in Egypt.

Enemy Fleeing Westward

Air reconnaissance showed enemy columns streaming westward toward the Tunisian frontier with the Eighth army in relentless pursuit.

(If Marshal Rommel had the intention of taking refuge behind the Tunisian Mareth line, however, he was racing toward a position which already was threatened by the flanking movement of a force of Fighting French and Allied French of Gen. Henri Giraud, who had joined hands in the Sahara.

(A French spokesman at North African Allied headquarters said these forces were threatening Gadames from all sides after cleaning the Italians out of the Sahara and capturing Gat, Serdeles and Ubari.)

Among front line troops leading the cleanup of the last shred of Mussolini's "Roman empire" were the British armored units, artillery and infantry and New Zealand infantry.

Most clashes of the advancing army were not with Italian defenders of the empire but with the Germans. Marshal Rommel already had sent most of the Italian elements on ahead.

It was considered likely that he would leave a large part of the Italian civil population behind. This was considerable for at the start of the war 35,000 Italians were living in Tripoli and many more were in agricultural colonies. Some of these have left for Italy but other Italians have come from Cirenaica ahead of the British.

May Abandon Civilians

Marshal Rommel, it was thought, will leave most of these to confront the British with a new feeding problem.

The problems of water supply no longer were acute, and Marshal Rommel was faced with the imminent decision as to whether to try to stand at Tripoli—which in Allied hands would provide an excellent base for bombing Tunisia—or to attempt a general withdrawal at once on westward into Tunisia itself.

Axis Airdrome Blasted

New Allied air attacks on the enemy airdrome at Castel Benito near Tripoli also were announced by the Cairo command, which said that 30 fires had been set off among dispersed planes. Along with raids on Tripoli itself, there were destructive assaults on an enemy traffic junction southeast of Tripoli, and attacks on enemy transport moving between the Tunisian ports of Sfax and Gabes along the line Marshal Rommel would have to use to retreat into Tunisia.

In all these operations—in which bombers of the Ninth U. S. Air Force took a major part—not an Allied plane was lost.

(A second, and overlapping, pounding of Castel Benito airdrome from the west was reported from [illegible] headquarters in North Africa, which said that heavy American bombers had scored many hits. In this engagement, one Axis fighter was destroyed by the American bombers and two by the American escort.

(In other Allied activity reported from the Tunisian front, Axis targets were hit near Pont du Fahs and enemy railroad and highway communications were bombed. In all these attacks, five Allied planes were lost).

London, Jan. 19 (A. P.), —The Cairo radio stated tonight that the British Eighth Army was now only thirty miles from Tripoli in its pursuit of the fleeing Nazi Africa Corps.

8th Army Drive Route Axis Force From Beni Ulid

By the Associated Press.

CAIRO, Jan. 19.—The British 8th Army's drive across Libya carried one of two attacking columns today to within 50 miles or less of Tripoli—closer than Marshal Erwin Rommel came to Alexandria last summer.

With Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery pressing home the attack, the Axis had only a matter of hours in which to check the onslaught for an attempted stand, or to quit the city in a withdrawal toward the Tunisian border 100 miles to the west.

Gen. Montgomery's most advanced column was operating inland, and a communique said it had driven Axis foces from Beni Ulid and was in contact with the enemy toward Tarhuna, which is only 40 miles southeast of Tripoli. Tarhuna is some 60 miles beyond Beni Ulid, where the Axis suffered heavily in a tank battle with the British.

The second British column speeding along the coastal road, passing through Misurata and Garibaldi and reaching the Zliten area 90 miles east of Tripoli, the last stronghold of Premier Mussolini's one-time African empire.

May Converge for Attack.

Observers said the British strategy might be to bring the columns together for a converging attack on Tripoli, or to attack the city with the coastal column and by-pass it to the south with the inland column.

There were indications that Marshal Rommel had decided, or had been ordered, to yield Tripoli and attempt to get as many of his men as possible into Tunisia to join Gen. Walther Nehring in a stand against Allied assault from both sides.

It was noted that the 8th Army swept unchecked through the fertile green oasis of Misurata which had been described as the strongest potential defense point between El Aghelia and Tripoli.

Farther Advance Seen.

Observers said there was reason to believe that Gen. Montgomery's army had pushed steadily on beyond the positions reported in the communique, which would cover gains through yesterday.

(The Italian communique reported that in ground fighting in Tripolitania, Italian and German troops were offering "fierce resistance to persistent enemy pressure" and inflicting serious losses to the British. Axis forces in Tunisia were declared to have gained ground in successful thrusts and to have taken dozens of prisoners.

(Axis fighters shot down nine Allied planes yesterday, the Italians claimed, while German bombers were credited with having sunk two merchant ships and set fire to three others in a raid on Bone in Algeria.)

Allied fighter bombers ranged over the churning Tripolitanian battleground to strafe the withdrawing enemy and bomb concentrations of troops and vehicles.

Aircraft of the Middle East command also moved into Tunisia to attack enemy vehicles on the road between Sfax and Gabes, the route Marshal Rommel's army must take to reach the Tunis-Bizerte area.

Fighter bombers attacked targets on Lampedusa Island, midway between Malta and the Tunisian mainland, and in Southern Sicily, the communique said.

Americans Batter Tripoli.

Meanwhile today it was announced that B-24 Liberators of the Ninth American Air Force attacked the harbor of Tripoli by daylight yesterday, dropping their heavy bombs within the town and along the water front.

"Hits by heavy caliber bombs were observed near the base of Karamanli mole and military targets within the town. A number of enemy fighters attacked our formation but failed to press their attacks home," the communique said.

Axis Tanks Repulsed In Tunisia, but Foe Gains Near Pont du Fahs

JAN 20 1943

By the Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 19.—Axis tank and infantry forces attacking northwest of Bou Arada on the Central Tunisian front were repulsed twice yesterday, but the enemy gained some ground southwest of Pont du Fahs, it was announced today.

As operations on the land front accelerated, Allied airplanes carried the fight to the enemy and Flying Fortresses struck a new blow at the Castel Benito Airfield near Tripoli.

Tripoli itself also was under heavy air attack.

A Cairo communique announced that B-24 Liberators of the 9th United States Army Air Force attacked the big port by daylight yesterday and said "hits by heavy-caliber bombs were observed near the base of Karamanli mole and military targets within the town."

(The Italian high command said "repeated raids over Tripoli caused heavy damage to civilian buildings and several casualties among the Libyan population.")

Allies Counterattack.

"Infantry and armored engagements took place in the area of Bou Arada-Gougellat," a communique issued here said. "The enemy gained some ground southwest of Pont du Fahs."

This is along a battlefield south of Medjez-El-Bab and 30 to 45 miles southwest of Tunis.

A spokesman said that early yesterday two companies of Axis troops, supported by two other companies, attacked northwest of Bou Arada. An Allied unit counterattacked, destroying two companies and regaining all ground, he declared.

Two hours later a German tank-led force coming from the east was reported destroyed, mostly by artillery fire.

The action slacked off after noon.

An Allied infantry force sent out for a sweep of the area took prisoners and made certain that the enemy had not moved up any further in this sector.

Enemy Tanks Score Gains.

The enemy gains southwest of Pont du Fahs were described as a tank penetration. French forces fighting in this sector have been bolstered by additional Allied equipment, the spokesman said.

(The German communique said German troops broke through Allied positions in several sectors in Tunisia and "stormed defended heights.")

P-38 Lightnings escorted the Flying Fortresses on the new raid on Castel Benito airfield. It is about 13 miles south of Tripoli.

The bomber crews reported seeing bomb bursts on the target. Three enemy fighters which challenged the big bombers were shot down by the guns of the Fortresses, and two others by the Lightnings, the communique said.

Five Allied aircraft were reported lost in the entire day's operations, which included air fights over Tunisia and bomber raids on rail and road communications behind the Axis lines.

Tanks Dent French Line

Near Tunis

By Russell Landstrom

Associated Press Staff Writer

Allied Headquarters, North Africa, Jan. 19.—Enemy tanks and infantry, in sharp actions believed related to the headlong retreat of Marshal Erwin Rommel in Tripolitania, have renewed their attacks 40 to 45 miles southwest of Tunis and have made a slight penetration of French lines, Allied headquarters reported today.

Allied air forces, however, continued their operations on a considerable scale. Flying Fortresses made a destructive attack on the Tripoli area in coordination with two other attacks by Liberators of the American air force in Libya.

The heavier than usual ground action began yesterday morning when four companies of Axis troops attacked northwest of Bou Arada, about 22 miles south of Medjez-el-Bab, apparently to hold open the coastal road connection with Marshal Rommel.

Many military observers believed that Marshal Rommel's retreat showed he was conserving his strength to the utmost for a final showdown in Tunisia.

Allied tanks went into action, however, destroyed two of the enemy companies and regained all lost ground.

Two hours later the Germans sent tanks to the support of their infantry in a renewed attack. These were knocked out, mostly by well-placed artillery fire, and the Axis forces were completely repulsed.

However, in a third attack farther to the south, in the area southwest of Pont-du-Fahs, German tanks penetrated into positions held by the French.

Headquarters spokesmen said that these French forces had been bolstered by additional Allied equipment.

AT AN ADVANCE AMERICAN AIR BASE IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 14 (Delayed) (AP).—A French anti-aircraft emplacement from which guns often bark at raiding Axis planes was constructed of old Roman building stones richly inscribed with Latin phrases or bearing the face of a Roman god or emperor.

Some P-38 fighter pilots bathed yesterday in what they call "The Wallows"—in reality ancient Roman baths.

The battle for Tunisia is making many an American soldier wish he had dug harder into Latin and ancient history, for it is difficult to go anywhere near the front lines without running across relics of the great empire which spread over this portion of North Africa centuries upon centuries ago.

Only a few of the more erudite knew, before this campaign, that ancient Carthage lay in Tunisia.

Troops visiting the little French and Arab town of Tebessa, near the Tunisian frontier, learn with astonishment that it was the site of the important Roman city of Theveste, which flourished from 60 B. C. to 1200 A. D.

The man happiest about all this superabundance of ruins of temples, walls and towns is Captain Hallam Movius, of Sudbury, Mass., a member of the 12th Air Force. He was assistant curator of archeology at Haryard's Peabody Museum before joining the service.

"As soon as this war is over I am coming back here with a pick and shovel and a bunch of strong-backed young men," he said. "You can't dig even a slit trench around here without uncovering some kind of relic."

FIGHTER SQUADRON WITH FEW PLANES WINS TOP HONORS

JAN 20 1943

Four Pilots in Tunisia Down Eight German Bombers Raiding Airdrome.

By NOLAND NORGAARD

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 19.—(AP) A United States Warhawk fighter squadron with only a few serviceable planes destroyed twice their number of the best German fighters and bombers over Tunisia in four days.

The squadron thus became probably the top-scoring outfit among all Allied fighter groups for the first half of January.

The squadron commanded by Major Mark Hubbard, 29, of St. Paul, Minn., had its big day Jan. 15 when four pilots shot down eight of ten Junkers-88 bombers raiding their Tunisian airdrome.

French fliers of the Lafayette escadrille shot down the other two Junkers to complete the destruction of the raiding party. This was appropriate because the Escadrille was flying P-40 Warhawks which originally belonde to the United States squadron.

When the escadrille was first formed at Casablanca there were no spare Warhawks for them to fly. They were equipped largely with planes from Major Hubbard's squadron which subsequently came to the front with more pilots than planes.

Undisturbed, Major Hubbard and his men went to work with the few planes available, shooting up Axis ground forces battling enemy planes and carrying out almost daily patrols.

The squadron's first big day was on Jan. 12 when Lieut. James H. Raddin of Hattiesburg, Miss., shot down a Junkers-88 and Lieut. Walter Scholl of New York city, a former Cornell football player, destroyed a Messerschmitt-109 which was attacking Raddin.

In the battle three days later, Capt. Carman B. Boone, 23, of Boone Mill, Va., who had been grounded for lack of planes, finally got into the air. Alone he destroyed four Junkers. Major Hubbard brought down two. Lieut. Robert H. Smith, 23, of Silver Springs, Md., and Lieut. Carl Biggs, 21, of Christopher, Ill., each got one.

The rest of the boys are wondering what will happen when Major Hubbard's squadron will have planes.

Camel Corps Clears Axis From Desert Area

Allied Headquarters, North Africa, Jan. 19 (AP).—A spokesman for Gen. Henri Giraud announced today that a French Camel Corps had captured Gat and Serdeles, 500 miles south of Tripoli, and had wiped out Axis forces in the Sahara Desert except at Gadames, now threatened from all sides.

Gadames is the Italian Fort in Tripolitania just across the border from the Fort Saint Anchor of the Mareth fortified line in Tunisia, behind which Marshal Rommel may attempt to take refuge.

Capture of Gadames, however, would seriously threaten the turning of that line even before it is occupied.

WAAC'S STORY OF TORPEDOING

Tells of Party on Bridge of Stricken Vessel.

By CAPT. ALENE DREZMAL.

[Capt. Alene Drezmal of St. Paul, Minn., was one of the first five WAACS sent overseas. The other four were Mattie A. Pinette of Fort Kent, Me.; Ruth M. Briggs, Westerly, R. I.; Martha E. Rogers, Jackson, Miss., and Louise Anderson, Denver, Col. The five, together with a contingent of nurses, were en route from England to North Africa when their ship was torpedoed. Here Capt. Drezmal gives a first hand account.]

Allied Force Headquarters in North Africa, Jan. 6 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Along with four other WAACS and some thirty American and British nurses I was aboard a ship torpedoed about seventy miles off the coast.

Our ship was carrying mainly English troops, with English and American officers. Before the torpedo smashed through the stern of the boat that night, we had been torpedo conscious. There had been submarine reports the day before, and we had done a lot of zigzagging. Some of the girls already were packed. I had stayed up quite late making preparations. My clothes were there ready to be jumped into as if I were a fireman.

The torpedo struck when all were asleep. Three of us awoke at once. One slept through it. The other heard the crash, but didn't think we had been hit and wanted to go back to sleep.

No Place to Sit.

However, we all fell into our clothes and got to our boat station with our tin hats, bags and purses. Three WAACS found places in a lifeboat, but Louise Anderson and I could not find a vacant seat and for a time it looked as if we and an English nurse were the only three women left on board. Later, though, we learned that two English nurses had been down below taking care of their patients.

Louise and I and some America officers kept circulating about the deck. The officers said it was a good thing to have women still aboard for it perked up morale of the men.

JAN 26 1943

Rescued by Destroyers.

For a while we thought the ship would go down in about an hour. Then word got around that the officers thought it might be possible to keep it afloat. Finally a destroyer towed us and the lifeboats. We still were far from comfortable, as the vessel limped along at five knots—a fine target. We felt better when we picked up an escort of destroyers at dawn. We were taken off the ship early in the day, and shortly afterward it started burning.

On the destroyer British officers shared cigarettes and chocolate drinks with the American girls who had been picked up in the lifeboats. The girls had had hard going. They had helped pull men out of the water, had nursed the injured and had bailed out the lifeboats with their tin hats.

We arrived at Oran late in the afternoon of December 21. We were put up for the night. Officers arranged every possible convenience for us.

Adventure in Retrospect.

Looking back upon the adventure, I would say that perhaps most of us had moments of individual fright, but there never was a sign of panic. It was hard to realize we had actually been torpedoed.

In fact, I hardly can [illegible] that only a short time a[illegible] serving at tea parties, [illegible] soft gowns and walking o[illegible] and hearing only peaceful [illegible] of nature.

Now shoe polish or a bar [illegible] soap are more important than a corsage, a box of candy or a dance record. We can't get face cream, so we are using men's brushless shaving cream instead. We have learned to do without a lot of things.

Nurses Aboard Listed.

An Associated Press dispatch on December 24 listed the following American nurses as having been in the first contingent to reach North Africa. They were aboard the torpedoed transport:

First Lieut. Ethel E. Larsen of Kimballton, Iowa; Second Lieuts. Laura Handler, Brooklyn; Helen Baniak, Troy, N. Y.; Florence Crissman, Kresgeville, Pa.; Doris Gressell, Herkimer, N. Y.; Edith Gaeckle, Kulm, N. D. Elizabeth Hazen, Drexel Hill, Pa.; Estelle Babbles, Newark, N. J.; Mildred Fletcher, South Hammond, N. Y.; Irene Knapp, Hagaman, N. Y.; Agnes Teresak, Tarrytown, N. Y.; Louise Goark, Troy, N. Y.; Edith Harquail, New Brunswick, N. J.; Margaret Farrell, Paterson, N. J.; Helen McNamara, Mill Valley, Cal.; Helen Jeffreys, Scranton, Pa.; Della Mae Moore, Norwalk, Conn.; May Leaver, Media, Pa.; Florence Christman, Binghamton, N. Y.; Adele Kutchinson, St. Clair, Pa.; Betty Eggiman, Rochester, N. Y.; June Eilertsen, Champaign, Ill.; Helen Hinickley, Bradford, Pa.; Antoinette Kleinda, New York city, and Laverne Laucks Russes, New York.

Attlee Voices Faith In Eisenhower and French Leaders

Tells Commons Britain Can Look Forward to '43 With Confidence

JAN 20 1943

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Clement R. Attlee, Deputy Prime Minister, told the opening session of Parliament today that Great Britain could "look forward to 1943 with justifiable confidence," and that the successes scored by the Allied Nations last year were to be viewed with "sober satisfaction."

In a brief statement on the war situation pending an anticipated complete review by Prime Minister Churchill within the next few days, Mr. Attlee lauded the "wonderful achievements" of the Russian Army and said "it looks as if none of the great force (before Stalingrad) will escape from the trap."

Describing the Allied objective in North Africa as total destruction of enemy forces, he told Commons that bad weather in Tunisia had restricted movement of motorized forces and had "seriously affected the provision of airfields."

"We have every confidence in Gen. Eisenhower and Gen. Anderson and the men of the Allied forces," he said.

Cites Co-operation in Africa.

Referring to reports of differences between the British and Americans over the political line-up in North Africa, Mr. Attlee declared it was only natural that French affairs should not appear in the same light to the two Allied nations, but added that "such variations of outlook * * * ought not be exaggerated."

"Every one there is co-operating," he asserted. "French civil authorities are co-operating fully with the Allied forces, just as French troops are fighting alongside ours in Tunisia."

No secondary or personal consideration should prevent a union of French factions, Mr. Attlee continued. He said he welcomed the appointment of Gen. Henri Honore Giraud as high commissioner of French North and West Africa and at the same time he acknowledged a "great debt" to Gen. Charles de Gaulle, leader of the Fighting French.

Turning to the war in the Southwest Pacific, the deputy leader said the government "is conscious there is an accumulation of Japanese forces at Rabaul (on New Britain Island) and every step is being taken to deal with that menace."

Referring to the recent destructive raids on Berlin, Essen and Lorient he declared the Allies would "continue to press" with these bomber attacks.

The Germans' campaign of extermination of the civil population in occupied countries, particularly in Poland, was described by Mr. Attlee as the "surest possible sign of a state of nerves." He declared the Allies would strike vigorously everywhere possible in 1943.

Capt. Oliver Lyttelton, Production Minister, told Commons 1943 would be the peak year of British war production and the total labor force employed in munitions would considerably exceed the 1942 figure.

Further concentration of industry, further withdrawals of labor from less essential industries and a further mobilization of women would be required, he said.

The plan for 1943 provides for increased emphasis on the manufacture of ships, aircraft, anti-submarine devices, tanks and certain specialized types of army equipment, with the result that there will be transfers of labor within the munitions industries themselves, Capt. Lyttelton said.

BOGART IS HERO TO MOVIE FANS

ACROSS OCEAN

BY GLADWIN HILL

LONDON, Jan. 16.—(AP) Humphrey Bogart is probably a better known American ambassador to England than John W. Winant, who gets paid for it.

The English still like to think of the United States as a land with a gangster just around every corner, the way Broadwayites dream of Indians west of the Hudson even though they know it's not true, and Bogart as the latest apotheosis of the American tough guy has attained the status of an adopted English hero.

Crooked or honest, "The Big Shot" or "Across the Pacific," the picture makes no difference. He could come to the local "cinema" in "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" as long as he talked out of the side of his mouth and the gentry and peasantry would still turn out en masse, likewise talking gleefully out of the sides of their mouths for the evening.

English reactions to American pictures are often different from what you might expect, and it might be a constructive exercise in Anglo-American understanding to review the impressions made on our London cousins by movies you've been seeing yourself lately.

"Dandy" Appreciated

Pictures with grass-roots American subjects oddly enough don't necessarily lay eggs in England. "Yankee Doodle Dandy" was only mildly appreciated, the English public being completely ignorant of George M. Cohan and hardly in a position to appreciate the kick of a Fourth of July celebration in Providence, R. I., any more than a Kansan would thrill to Guy Fawkes day in Manchester.

Yet "My Gal Sal," full of banks-of-the-Wabash, Yankee medicine shows and Tin Pan Alley, was a smash hit, held over four weeks—possibly because Rita Hayworth and Victor Mature mean the same thing in any language.

"The Little Foxes" was criticized as lacking social significance, the critics missing its subtle treatment of a phase of southern reconstruction days.

But "Pride of the Yankees" was cordially received simply on its merits as a moving love story in spite of the fact that the English know as little about baseball as an Eskimo does about bathing suits.

"Mrs. Miniver," that epic of British staunchness in wartime, was fairly well received on its home grounds but failed to arouse the furor of tears and cheers it did in America.

The class-conscious English quickly identified the Minivers as upper middle class, and as such representatives of only one narrow layer of England's courageous coping with the war. They didn't think the other groups should have been left out.

Four U. S. Flyers Killed In Crash on British Field

R. A. F. Plane, Out of Control, Smashes Into Bomber

LONDON, Jan. 19 (AP).—Four American flyers were killed at a military airport near here on Saturday when a Royal Air Force plane went out of control while taking off and crashed head-on into an American bomber.

The victims were Captain Bertram C. Martin, of Butte, Mont., pilot of the bomber; First Lieutenant Everett E. Haskell, of Chillicothe, Ohio; Second Lieutenant Joseph H. Bagley, of Suffolk, Va., and Sergeant James R. Lowery, of Philadelphia.

JAN 20 1943

Martin died in a heroic effort to save his companions trapped in the burning bomber had previously been revealed, but the names of the other three were not disclosed until today.

Bagley and Haskell, bombardier and navigator of the bomber, were pinned in the glass nose of the ship. Martin climbed from the burning wreckage and assisted several members of his crew to safety, including Lowery. But when he went back for Bagley and Haskell, the fuel tanks exploded, killing Martin and the two crewmen. Lowery died later from his injuries.

Army records showed Capt. Martin's family to be living in Ridgewood, N. Y.

French Trains Attacked.

London, Jan. 19 (A. P.).—Light British patrol bombers last night hit three enemy supply ships in the course of an attack on a convoy off the Dutch coast, the Air Ministry announced today.

Meanwhile the Royal Air Force Bomber Command did not raid Europe in force but laid mines in enemy waters, while aircraft of the Fighter Command, on offensive patrol, attacked freight trains and locomotives in northern France, and the night's operations were carried out without the loss of a single British plane, the communique declared.

On the other hand, the Berlin radio reported that a formation of German bombers attacked a south of England seaport during the night and returned without a loss despite a heavy anti-aircraft fire and a strong fighter defense. The German-controlled Paris radio meanwhile told its listeners that the German air force carried out a "very big raid" on London and started large fires.

The suspension of large-scale bombing activities on the part of the R. A. F. presumably was because of unfavorable weather. In view of the suspension, informed spokesmen were unable to explain the air raid alarms sounded at Berne and Basle just before midnight. The Swiss radio broadcast an official report that four waves of planes flew over Switzerland.

Americans Bombed Berlin.

At an R. A. F. Bomber Base Somewhere in England, Jan. 19 (A. P.).—Several Americans were among the men who carried destruction to Berlin over the week end, a visit here disclosed today.

The pilot of one Lancaster bomber on Saturday night's raid was tall, slender, red-mustached Flight Sergt. Terry Goodwin, 22, who left his home in Wyncote, Pa., two years ago to join the Royal Canadian Air Force. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Goodwin Jr., he went from William Penn Charter School to the University of Pennsylvania but decided that the rest of his schooling would have to take a back seat for the war.

His plane arrived over the target within one minute of the estimated arrival time, sowed hundreds of fire bombs over the city, dropped a two-ton explosive bomb and rode back home unscathed—still within one minute of schedule.

All Are Youngsters.

The average age of the crew was just 21, although none of the men had been in the air force for less than a year and a half and all were veterans of five or more trips.

"Our target was the center of Berlin, just as the Germans' target used to be the center of London, and we laid our big bomb right there," Sergt. Goodwin said.

"No, we are quite sure we were not fooled by false buildings and dummy fires. They actually helped us find some targets because we had been told to expect them, recognized them in places where it was said they would be and used them to check our bearings in the real targets. We were all sorry we couldn't go out again on Sunday night but the kite (airplane) we had is rather old and needed working on before it will be ready to go again."

200 American Cigarettes.

Another American R. C. A. F. member on the Saturday raid was Warrant Officer Earl (Tiny) English of Little Rock, Ark. He was navigator on a plane. A truck driver and lumberjack in civilian life, he has been on thirty-seven raids over Europe.

A British flight lieutenant who flew a Lancaster on both Saturday and Sunday nights was more anxious to discuss American hospitality than the raids.

"We couldn't get down at home and had to land at an American base," he said. "They hadn't had a chance to look over a Lancaster and they were delighted to have early morning callers. They showed us a wonderful time and look: 200 American cigarettes they gave me!"

HOSTAGES EXECUTED

London, Jan. 19 (A. P.).—Twenty Belgian hostages were executed by the Germans during December in reprisal for the killings of three German soldiers in Belgium and attacks on Belgian collaborators, the Free Belgian news agency said today.

It also reported that the Germans were offering rewards totaling $65,000 for the arrest of the killers of two German soldiers in Brussels recently.

Can't Explain Swiss Alerts

LONDON, Jan. 19 (AP).—Informed sources said they were unable to explain air-raid alerts sounded at Bern and Basel, Switzerland, about midnight last night.

The cities mentioned are the most heavily bombed in all Germany. They have been hit repeatedly, however, while Berlin has only been struck twice—on Saturday night and again on Sunday night—after a fourteen-month interval. In view of this, Nachtausgabe's comparison was significant as to the damage done Berlin.

Reich Drafts New Law Code

German Parents Must Educate Their Children in Nazi Spirit

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 19 (AP).—A new Nazi national law code, intended to apply only to Germans within the Reich and not to citizens of foreign blood, is nearing completion, the Berlin correspondent of the "Svenska Dagbladet" telegraphed today.

Two of the precepts of the code declare that parents must educate their children in accordance with the Nazi spirit so they can serve the nation, and that judges are not to be subjected to guidance but will make decisions "according to their free convictions in agreement with the National Socialist Weltanschauung (world outlook)."

Citizens of non-German blood must submit to "international law recognized by Germany" when the new code is applied, the correspondent said.

Parliament Is Cautioned Against False Orders As in Case of Norway

Berlin Severely Battered

Nazis Admit R. A. F. Made Capital Look Like Essen, Though on Smaller Scale.

Stockholm, Jan. 19 (A. P.).—The Berlin newspaper Nachtausgabe was today quoted by the Dagens Nyheter as declaring that Berlin after two heavy raids by British bombers presented the same view as the heavily battered German cities of Cologne, Bremen, Emden, Duesseldorf, Essen and Wilhelmshaven, though "on a smaller scale."

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 19.—Prime Minister Per Albin Hansson's warning of a possible attack on Sweden and his demand for the "utmost defense" in such an eventuality was made against a "background most serious," the influential newspaper Dagens Nyheter said today.

The Prime Minister warned the Swedish Parliament yesterday of the possibility of an attack and said "beyond any doubt we will defend ourselves."

He cautioned against the possibility of false orders being issued, as happened in Norway, and said that if an attack came every one would have to join in defending the country, the only remaining neutral nation in Northern Europe.

The Dagens Nyheter said the country "must be ready to meet blitz attacks, especially by enemy air forces," and added that "Swedes have enough common sense, even the Hansson emphasized that precautions had been taken against fifth columnists, but said there was a possibility the conflict would spread rapidly and that the danger for Sweden had not passed.

Robert Taylor Interned by Spain, Berlin Reports

By the Associated Press

A Berlin broadcast recorded by the Associated Press said tonight that Robert Taylor, American film actor, had been interned by Spanish authorities after a U. S. bomber in which he was flying had been forced down in Spanish Morocco.

"He and other members of the crew of this machine were taken prisoner near their own machine," the radio said.

Last Friday 12 U. S. fighter planes were forced down in Portugal by bad weather, on their way from England to North Africa.

[The German Transocean News Agency, in a Berlin broadcast heard by the Associated Press, said today that heavy Russian attacks had broken through German positions south of Lake Ladoga. This is in the Schluesselburg sector. The Berlin broadcast of the German High Command's communique, as heard in London, said of this same action: "South of Lake Ladoga the repeatedly attacked with ...ong artillery support but was repelled with heavy losses."]

Five Jap Ships Sunk by U. S. Submarines; Allies Seize Sanananda Village and Point

Toll in Pacific Includes Destroyer — Two Other Vessels Damaged.

LOCATIONS NOT DISCLOSED

U. S. Undersea Craft Maintain High Rate of Torpedoings in Enemy Waters.

Washington, Jan. 19 (A. P.).—The Navy announced today that American submarines had sunk an enemy destroyer and four other ships—two cargo ships, one transport and a patrol vessel—in the Pacific.

A complete list of the ships, as mentioned in a Navy communique, follows:

1. One destroyer sunk.
2. One large cargo ship sunk.
3. One medium-sized transport sunk.
4. One medium-sized cargo ship sunk.
5. One small patrol vessel sunk.
6. One large tanker damaged.
7. One small cargo ship damaged.

A naval spokesman declined to identify specifically any of the areas in which the successful undersea raids were made, but said in response to questions that if sinkings of Jap ships in the Solomon Islands by American submarines had been accomplished in the period covered by this communique they would be included.

The last previous communique on American submarine action was issued January at which time it was reported that seven enemy ships had been sunk and one damaged.

Today's report of five sunk and two damaged maintained the Navy's average of reporting six to eight enemy vessels hit by American submersibles about every two-and-a-half weeks.

U. S. SUBMARINES SINK 5 JAP SHIPS

Destroyer Among Vessels Blasted, Two Other Craft Damaged.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 — (AP) Five Japanese ships, including a destroyer, were sunk by American submarines in the Pacific during recent operations, the Navy announced today, and two other craft were damaged.

In addition to the destroyer, the ships sunk were a small patrol vessel, a medium-sized transport and one large and one medium-sized cargo ship. A large tanker and a small cargo ship were damaged.

These attacks by American undersea raiders raised the total of Japanese ships which have been blasted by submarines to 117 sunk, 22 probably sunk and 31 damaged—a total of 170, as reported in Navy communiques.

The last previous report by the Navy on American operations against Japanese seaborne supply lines was issued on Jan. 2 and stated that seven enemy vessels had been sunk and one damaged.

Japs Reduced To 3 Pockets At Sanananda

By Yates McDaniel
Associated Press Staff Writer

Allide Headquarters in Australia, Jan. 19.—American and Australian infantrymen have stormed and taken the last two important Japanese positions on the Papuan Peninsula of New Guinea, Sanananda Point and Sanananda Village, and the surviving enemy is now holed up in three small pockets just inland from the coast.

This successful conclusion of the next-to-last phase in the campaign to drive the Japanese off the peninsula, which left General MacArthur's troops with only a mopping-up operation to be undertaken, was thus described today in the headquarters announcement

"In a continuation of the aggressive action which started Sunday, January 17, Sanananda Village and Sanananda Point were captured yesterday and our forward elements reached Giruwa.

"On the coast the enemy is restricted in a small pocket 500 yards northwest of the motor road terminal in the area between Giruwa and Tarakena. Inland, two enemy pockets are under attack."

Allied air action continues heavy. It was announced that bombers had sunk an 8000-ton Japanese cargo ship in the Bismarck Sea; that Rabaul harbor and Gasmata on New Britain Island had been attacked, and that fires had been set off at the big enemy base of Lae in upper New Guinea.

Allies Tighten Ring After Taking Point and Village, Inflict Heavy Casualties

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA (Wednesday), Jan. 20 (AP).—American and Australian troops tightened their lines around four pockets of Japanese in the Sanananda sector of New Guinea yesterday after taking the village and point Monday, a communique announced today.

Japanese were pocketed on the coast on both sides of Sanananda Point and in two places along the swampy Sanananda road which leads to the beach. Enemy casualties were described as heavy, but no figures were given. Twenty-seven were captured, an unusually large number. Some Japanese escaped from dugouts and were wandering at large.

Eighteen Japanese bombers raided the Sanananda area in an attempt to aid their beleaguered forces, but the communique said the attempt was unsuccessful.

The first disclosure of the presence of any enemy submarine in Australian waters in several months came with the announcement that a small Allied vessel had been torpedoed and sunk. There were two casualties.

Four Japanese bombers raided Milne Bay "without effect" Monday night, following up a much bigger raid Sunday.

Australian and U. S. Infantry Take Sanananda Stronghold

Jap Forces in Papuan Area Now Enveloped in Three Small Pockets

By the Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Jan. 19.—Allied ground forces captured Sanananda Point and Sanananda village yesterday, according to Associated Press reports from the advanced operational base in New Guinea.

The Allied occupation of the coastal end of the Japanese-held Papuan corridor left the remnants of Lt. Gen. Tomitaro Horii's Northeastern New Guinea army enveloped by Australian and American infantrymen in three restricted pockets lying a half to two miles inland. All three are located along the main trail.

The Australian capture of Sanananda Point and the adjacent village at noon yesterday climaxed a series of co-ordinated attacks by two American and three Australian infantry units.

Later the fall of the two Japanese positions was announced officially at a special press conference called at headquarters.

Mopping-up Under Way.

"In a continuation of the aggressive action which started Sunday, January 17, Sanananda Village and Sanananda Point were captured yesterday, and our forward elements reached Giruwa," the announcement said.

"On the coast the enemy is restricted in a small pocket 500 yards northwest of the motor road terminal in the area between Giruwa and Tarakena. Inland, two enemy pockets are under attack."

Sananda Point, lying between previously captured Gona and Buna, was the last remaining Japanese strong point in Northeastern New Guinea. With it gone, there appeared little likelihood the enemy could hold out in strength, an action against the three pockets took on the character of a mopup operation.

Associated Press Correspondent Vern Haugland reported from New Guinea that "Australian troops which the previous day had forced their way across the Sanananda track a mile and a half from the coast—thus splitting the Japanese force deployed along the trail—yesterday pushed a half mile nearer the coast. There they were halted by enemy machine-gun nests.

Meanwhile, a second Australian infantry unit, which earlier had captured Cape Killerton, a mile and a half west of Sanananda, drove southeast along the shore to within a mile of Sanananda Village before being held up by a strong enemy position.

The third Australian force struck boldly across swamps separating the two other Aussie units to capture Sanananda Village just before noon.

The Aussies took the village after a short, sharp fight. Apparently the Japs had relied on strong outlying defenses which the Allied troops had by-passed.

The Australians then drove eastward along the coast to Sanananda Point and on to Giruwa, where they encountered powerful defenses.

Meanwhile, the Americans on the main track, leaving some men behind to contain a stubbornly held enemy pocket nearly 2 miles inland, pushed down the road toward the beach and established themselves at a road junction in support of the forward Australian units.

JAN 20 1943

Jap Cargo Ship Sunk.

Another American force, pressing in from the east, captured a group of well-defended pockets which had been impeding the Allied advance for days.

On the aerial front Allied bombers sank an 8,000-ton Japanese cargo ship in the Bismarck Sea and blasted enemy airports and installations over a wide area of the Southwest Pacific yesterday, an Allied communique said today.

Allied planes again visited New Britain Island, attacking Japanese shipping in the Rabaul Harbor and bombing the airport at Gasmata. Medium bombers and long-range fighters attacked Japanese supply dumps and installations at Lae, New Guinea, setting fire to two buildings and destroying a Japanese fighter plane on the ground.

Meanwhile, land patrols in the area of Mubo, near Salamaua, skirmished with Japanese troops and accounted for 40 more Japanese, the communique said.

Report Officially Confirmed.

Later the fall of the two Jap positions was announced officially at a special press conference called at headquarters.

"In a continuation of the aggressive action which started Sunday, January 17, Sanananda Village and Sanananda Point were captured yesterday, and our forward elements reached Giruwa," the announcement said. "On the coast the enemy is restricted in a small pocket 500 yards northwest of the motor road terminal in the area [illegible] Giruwa and Tarakena. Inland, two enemy pockets are under attack."

Japs Lose Heavily At Sanananda

Allied Headquarters in Australia, Wednesday, Jan. 20 (AP). — Heavy casualties were inflicted and 27 Japs were taken prisoner by Allied ground troops which seized Sanananda Village and Sanananda Point in New Guinea, it was announced here today.

In reducing the Papuan Peninsula campaign to the status of mopping-up operations, the Allies pinched the Japs into three isolated pockets and thwarted attempts of enemy bombers to support their critically situated ground troops.

The noon communication also reported that a small Allied vessel was torpedoed and sunk in Australian waters. All but two on the ship were rescued.

Allied air raids were reported on the Gasmata airdrome in New Britain, supply dumps at Lae, buildings in Portuguese Timor and a town in the Kai Islands.

11 U. S. Fighter Pilots Are Aces, Downing At Least 5 Jap Planes

Capt. A. J. Reynolds Leads In Pacific Area With 10 Victories to Credit

SCHEDLER

By the Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Jan. 19.—Eleven American fighter pilots have become "aces" on being credited officially with the destruction of at least five enemy aircraft by Lt. Gen. George Kenney, commander of Allied air forces in the Southwest Pacific area.

Capt. Andrew J. Reynolds of Seminole, Okla., is the leading ace of the Southwest Pacific command, according to the official record, with 10 victories. Capt. Reynolds' squadron also is credited with the greatest number of victories of any American squadron with 45 enemy planes destroyed.

8 Credited to Buzz Wagner.

Second ranking ace on the roster is Capt. George Kisen of Somerset, Ky., with nine enemy planes shot down. His squadron, with 41 victories over the Japanese, is the third ranking squadron.

Capt. Thomas J. Lynch of Catasauqua, Pa., was ranked third for having shot down eight enemy planes in combat. His squadron, with 39 planes, stood fourth.

The late Lt. Col. Boyd E. (Buzz) Wagner of Johnstown, Pa., also was credited with having shot down eight enemy planes before he returned to the United States.

Score of Other Pilots.

Credited with seven planes each were:

Capt. William J. Hennon of Mound, Minn.; Capt. James B. Morehead of Washington, Okla.; First Lt. George S. Welch of Wilmington, Del., and Second Lt. Kenneth C. Sparks of Blackwell, Okla.

First Lt. Hoyt A. Eason of Eclectic, Ala., and First Lt. John Landers of Joshua, Tex., each were credited with shooting down six Japanese planes.

First Lt. Jack Donalson of Tulsa, Okla., with five victories, ranked as the 11th ace of the fighter pilots.

The "cumulative official box score" being compiled by the 5th Air Force headquarters is concerned with the victories only of American fighter pilots and does not include enemy planes shot down by bomber crews in this area.

13 WIN AWARDS IN SOUTH SEA

Larchmont Flyer One of 9 to Get Silver Star.

Somewhere in Australia, Jan. 12 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Lieut.-Gen. George C. Kenney, commander of the Allied air forces, Southwest Pacific area, awarded nine officers the Silver Star for gallantry in action against the Japanese in this area, and the Purple Heart to one officer and three enlisted men.

Among those receiving the Silver Star were First Lieuts. Clarence M. Wilmarth of Glens Falls, N. Y., and Rob Roy Carruthers of 225 Rockingstone avenue, Larchmont, N. Y., and Second Lieut. Albert J. Progar of Augusta, Ga.

Those receiving the Purple Heart included First Lieut. Gilbert S. Portmore of Framingham, Mass.

Lieut. Progar was co-pilot on a B-17 in a mass daylight attack on the Vunakanau airdrome near Rabaul, New Britain, on August 7. He is credited with assisting in destroying in the air seven of more than twenty-five intercepting Japanese Zeros. In addition to shooting down the seven enemy planes, the bomber formation warded off repeated head-on attacks made by the Zeros. It dropped its bombs accurately on the airdrome, causing considerable damage.

Carruther's Feat.

Lieut. Wilmarth won his Silver Star for participation in an attack by P-39s on seventeen Jap bombers over New Guinea on July 11. He severely damaged a Japanese heavy bomber.

Lieut. Carruthers of Larchmont was the navigator of a Flying Fortress on a photographic reconnaissance mission at Milne Bay and Faisi Harbor on September 1. The plane was attacked by three fighters. During the forty-five-minute engagement, Lieut. Carruthers manned the forward gun and helped repel about twenty attacks, scoring several hits on the Jap planes. Throughout the engagement he continued to give the pilot courses to cloud formations, which helped the plane escape.

Lieut. Portmore was presented the Purple Heart for wounds received in action at Darwin, Australia, on July 20.

The Silver Star was also awarded to First Lieut. Arnold R. Johnson of 572 Kenwood Place, Teaneck, N. J. Lieut. Johnson distinguished himself while piloting a lone Flying Fortress on October 5 on a reconnaissance mission to determine the damage our forces inflicted at Rabaul. After photographs were taken his plane was attacked by four enemy fighters. During the hour-long running battle two Japanese aircraft were destroyed and the remaining attacking planes were dispersed. Johnson returned to his base with his badly battered Fortress.

2 JAP SHIPS SUNK WITHIN 2 WEEKS BY BOMBER CREW

Cargo Vessel Blasted Near New Britain, Destroyed in Eight Minutes.

JAN 20 1943

By VERN HAUGLAND

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, Jan. 18. — (Delayed) — (AP) Lieut. Henry Chovanec, a lanky Texan from Fayetteville, figures his Liberator bomber crew is doing its share to defeat the Axis.

Pilot Chovanec and his men sank a large Japanese merchant vessel at noon today—the second Jap ship they have finished off within two weeks. They have accounted also for possibly three enemy planes in that period.

Lieut. Chovanec's plane had four bombs left after completing a mission over Madang, in enemy-held northern New Guinea. On the way home his men sighted an 8,000-ton transport northwest of New Britain between that island and New Guinea and sank it within eight minutes — "only it apparently wasn't being used as a transport but as a cargo vessel," the pilot said.

"We didn't see any troops aboard, and after she sank, explosions and smoke kept coming from the wreckage under water for half an hour," he continued. "She must have had plenty of explosives aboard."

(A Jan. 19 Allied headquarters communique from Australia, reporting this sinking, fixed its location as in the Bismarck sea.)

Lieut. Chovanec, of Czech extraction, pronounces his name "Kiwanis," was under a shower when I interviewed him.

Lieut. Henry Clay Hansen of Placerville, Calif., was the bombardier who sent destruction screaming down upon the Japanese ship. The success was doubly sweet because yesterday the crew of this same Liberator sighted a transport off Rabaul but failed to hit it. Lieut. Hansen's bombs straddled the ship despite heavy fire from a cruiser, scoring near misses.

"It was exciting to see the bombs land on the target this time," Lieut. Hansen said. "Two were direct hits: One landed right smack in the center of the vessel."

BURMESE VILLAGE SEIZED BY BRITISH

JAN 20 1943

New Delhi, Jan. 19 (A. P.).—British troops in northern Burma have seized the village of Kyauktaw on the Kaladan River, about forty miles northeast of Akyab, a British communique said today. Very little opposition was offered by the Japanese. British troops also made a small advance yesterday in the Dondaik area on the Mayu Peninsula while the forces operating against Rathedaung secured a foothold north of that village, the communique said.

Large fires started in Rathedaung by Allied bombers Sunday were still burning last night. R. A. F. Blenheims yesterday continued their attacks in the Mayu River area.

In the Chinhills area farther north, Indian troops have contacted the enemy, it was reported, and there have been occasional fights.

Water transport on the Chindwin and Irrawaddy rivers was attacked by Allied aircraft which also ranged down the Burmese coast south of Akyab. No enemy aircraft were encountered on these flights, it was reported.

Japanese airdromes near Toungoo and Meiktila and the town of Akyab were bombed Sunday night with good results, it was stated.

The communique reported that Japanese planes bombed the Allied operational area in southeastern Bengal on Sunday night, but caused no casualties and only minor damage.

DRIVE ON U-BOATS GAINS HEADWAY, REPORTS BRAZILIAN

Allies Are Winning Fierce Battle Against Nazis in South Atlantic.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 19—(AP) Brazilian and U. S. naval and air forces are slowly winning a fierce battle against Nazi submarines in the South Atlantic, United Nations officials said today.

They commented after Air Minister Joaquim Salgado, Jr., had announced at Recife that one Brazilian patrol plane had been shot down off the coast of the state of Uarahya by "a submarine or fifth columnist," and that the Brazilian airforce had been credited with sinking five submarines in recent months.

The three crewmen of the patrol bomber were dead, and the plane was riddled by shells "not of a type used by Brazilian forces," Salgado said.

Makes Tour of Bases

The Air minister is making an inspection trip of northeast airbases from which Brazilian and U. S. planes operate against submarines.

Sources here said the Germans had sent waves of submarines into South Atlantic shipping lanes after the occupation of North Africa in order to cut Allied communications at all costs, and that a bitter struggle had been waged in recent months, with both sides suffering heavy losses.

The submarines are operating in packs, but are meeting growing resistance from the Brazilian and U. S. naval units conducting convoys and aerial patrols of both nations.

Pilots have told of flying at low level into machine-gun fire from the submarines before they were able to bomb the undersea ships.

Mystery Shot Fells Brazilian Warplane

Recife, Brazil, Jan. 19 (AP).—A Brazilian air force plane has been shot down on the coast of the State of Parahyba, either "by a submarine or fifth columnists," Air Minister Joaquim Salgado, jr., said today.

Parahyba is north of this city on the "bulge."

SPLIT WITH AXIS VOTED IN CHILE

Senate Reports President Rios, 30 to 10, in Private Session.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Jan. 19—(AP) The Chilean Senate, in a private session voted 30 to 10 tonight in favor of President Juan Antonio Rios' decision to break diplomatic relations with the Axis, informed political sources said. There were two abstentions.

The move would leave Argentina as the single American republic still maintaining relations with Germany, Italy, and Japan.

Reports to President Rios

After weeks of wrangling over the issue, Foreign Minister Joaquin Fernandez presented the motion to the Senate, then went to President Rios' residence to inform him of that body's vote. A public statement is expected soon.

These sources said it was understood all the leading political parties—Conservative, Liberal, Radical Socialist, Democratic, and Communist—voted in favor of the motion.

A majority of the cabinet members accompanied Foreign Minister Joaquin Fernandez to the Senate, where he spent more than an hour detailing the government's position. Members of the Chamber of Deputies also attended the Senate debate.

When Fernandez finished, the Senate began voting on a motion putting it on record as supporting the President's action, to make Chile the 20th American republic to break with the Axis.

Chile, which alone with Argentina of all American nations had been maintaining relations with the Axis powers, has been debating the step for many weeks. The Senate was ready to vote in December, but at the request of President Rios postponed action awaiting a report of Interior Minister Raul Morales on a trip he had made to the United States.

The Chamber of Deputies was not consulted by the government. In the action, the Constitution provides only that the president may ask the opinion of the Senate but even that step is not required.

CHILEAN SOLDIERS IN GERMAN ZONES

Santiago, Chile, Jan. 19 (A. P.).—Strategic ports, mining centers and districts of southern Chile settled by German colonists were under the control of Chile's armed forces today under a presidential decree declaring them "zones of emergency."

The decree, issued by President Juan Antonio Rios last night, was interpreted as indicating the possibility that relations with the Axis would be broken shortly.

The Government's views on the issue of breaking relations were to be presented to the Senate in a private session later today. As of last night, political informants said that some thirty-four of the total of forty-five Senators were expected to recommend that the Government end relations with Germany, Italy and Japan.

Demonstrators for and against such a break clashed in the streets of Santiago last night.

PLAN FOR PUERTO RICO

San Juan, Puerto Rico, Jan. 19 (A. P.).—The field offices of the National Resorces Planning Board, releasing the results of studies since April, 1942, estimated today that at least 75 per cent of the population of Puerto Rico is currently existing at below minimum standards for decent living.

The report said that for the ge Puerto Rican family of persons the cost of minimum requirements in food, clothing and shelter for health and decency would be $840 a year, while the average family income in 1941 was only $350.

"We must plan to more than double the amount of goods and services available to these low income groups," the report said.

Honolulu Has Brief Air Raid Alarm

Honolulu, Jan. 19 (A. P.).—An air raid alarm was sounded here at 12:48 A. M. (6:18 A. M. Eastern war time) today, followed by an all-clear at 1:05 A. M. Pacific headquarters said that the alarm was due to the presence of unidentified elements which later were reported as friendly.

OTTAWA PLAN PUT TO STEEL STRIKERS

But Union's Delegates Are Cool to 7-Point Program Set Out by Mackenzie King

THEY ASK BIGGER PAY RISE

Cabinet Proposal Is 55-Cent Rate, With Appeal Provided

1943

30.24—455

to National Labor Board

OTTAWA, Jan. 19 (AP)—Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King in a statement today outlined a government plan providing for making the steel industry a national one in an effort to settle strikes at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and at Sydney and Trenton, N. S.

But labor delegates to the steel strike conference here announced they had advised the government that the steel workers were "not likely to accept" the program. Spokesmen for the United Steel Workers of America said the decision whether to accept the proposals rested with the striking union locals. About 13,500 men are idle.

The seven-point plan would place the wage dispute under the National War Labor Board, instead of regional boards, and promised passage of an immediate Order in Council establishing a basic wage rate of 55 cents an hour, including existing cost of living bonuses, in the Sydney and Sault Ste. Marie plants and for basic steel operations at Trenton.

The government also would take steps to have the National War Labor Board give prompt consideration to any application by the steel workers for higher wages.

THIRD DAUGHTER BORN TO JULIANA

Netherlands Crown Princess in Ottawa, Reported 'Doing Well.'

JAN 20 1943

OTTAWA, Jan. 19 (AP) A third daughter was born tonight to Crown Princess Juliana of the Netherlands, and the line of succession to the throne, for which a male heir has not been born since 1852, remained unchanged.

The 33-year-old crown princess and her third child are "doing well," said the attending physician, Dr. John F. Puddicombe.

A son would have become automatically heir to the throne after the reigning Queen Wilhelmina and Princess Juliana.

The little princess, who weighed 7 pounds 12 ounces, is the first member of the royal House of Orange to be born outside Netherlands territory, and the first member of any European royal family to be born in North America.

Her father, Prince Bernhard, had flown from Britain recently to be here for the event.

Her sisters are Princess Beatrix, who will be 5 on Jan. 31, and Princess Irene, 3. As matters now stand Princess Beatrix, as the oldest of the daughters, is heiress to the throne after the Crown Princess Juliana, who will succeed Queen Wilhelmina.

News of the birth will be broadcast to German-occupied Holland, the Japanese-ridden Netherlands East Indies, and the Netherlands West Indies.

But the father, Prince Bernhard, recently broadcast to Holland asking that the Dutch forego any celebrations in order to avoid reprisals by German occupation authorities.

Mrs. Roosevelt in Canada, Urges More Aid for Reds

Speaks at Montreal Drive to Raise $1,000,000

JAN 20 1943

MONTREAL, Jan. 19 (CP).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt appealed to an audience of 12,000 persons here tonight to send to the Russians the help they need "to lighten the load they carry and to strengthen their valiant campaign."

Mrs. Roosevelt made a special trip to Montreal to join in the campaign to raise $1,000,000 to aid the Russian people with food, medicine and clothing.

"We can rejoice with the Russians that at last the time has come when they can turn the tide of battle and again begin to reconquer their land," said Mrs. Roosevelt.

"We do not know how long this war will last, but we know that as long as it does last the Russian people will endure hardship. . . . Many of their people will be hungry.

Mrs. Roosevelt was the main speaker at the rally, held in the Forum. She was introduced by Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King.

AXIS RADIO TALKS GIVE SOMBER TONE TO WAR PICTURE

Commentators Say Nazis Are Engaged in Desperate Defensive Fighting.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

In a series of sober broadcasts, Axis radio commentators yesterday told their people that the Russian winter offensive still was mounting in fury and admitted that Axis troops were engaged in desperate defensive fighting on the long eastern front.

Lieut. Gen. Kurt Dietmar, one of the top Nazi military commentators, was heard by U. S. government monitors telling the German people that "the fight against the Soviets is a fight against numerical and material superiority," and that the so-called German strongpoints facing the various Russian drives "might have to fight a delaying battle without hope of reinforcements." A recording of this broadcast was made available by OWI.

The Frankfurt radio, also covered by OWI, drew an omninous picture of the fighting in Russia:

Withdrawal Admitted

"Our army has been engaged in bitter defensive fighting under aggravating conditions of winter," it told the German people. "Where it appeared expedient, our troops evaded the enemy to avoid losses."

The broadcast communique of the German high command spoke only of defensive fighting as the Red army attacked in "undiminished strength," out the German transocean news agency acknowledged that the Russians had succeeded in breaking through in the area south of Lake Ladoga. That would be at Leningrad, though the broadcast scrupulously avoided mention of the city of Schluesselburg, the nearby fortress town which the Russians announced they had captured Monday and thereby lifted the siege of Leningrad.

Battle Bitter, Italians Say

An Italian spokesman pulled few punches as he warned the Fascist nation that "This is one of the most bitter battles of the war and there is nothing to indicate that the edge of the Russian attack has worn off. On the contrary, they are attacking with increased ferocity."

Another Italian commentator heard by CBS muttered: "Russia is not a country. She is a barracks and a military arsenal."

A broadcast from Budapest declared that the new Russian offensive in the Voronezh sector, which is being opposed largely by Hungarian troops, deserves to rank with the biggest yet launched by the Soviets.

"Although the fighting continues very heavy, it is hoped that our strong and flexible defense will halt the assault of the Russians," concluded the broadcast recorded by the Associated Press.

Nazis Growing Anxious

Dispatches from Germany in the Swedish press reflected the growing anxiety of the Nazis.

Dr. Otto Dietrich, Hitler's press chief, was quoted as having told a meeting of German editors that "the task of the press is to awaken real spirit on the home front, to buoy the masses and the whole nation."

JAN 20 1943

The Nazi labor front leader, Dr. Robert Ley, was quoted in a recent address at a mass meeting: "It is easy to have faith as long as one is winning, but when the fighting enters a critical stage then one sees who is really inspired by faith."

Japanese Diet Will Vote On New Powers for Tojo

2 Bills Would Place Premier Above Other Ministers

The position of the Premier in Japan's government will be greatly strengthened by two bills the government will introduce when the Diet (Parliament) reconvenes tomorrow, the Berlin radio, heard by The Associated Press reported yesterday in broadcasting a Tokio dispatch.

One bill makes the Premier the superior of other members of the Cabinet, with power to direct them in the conduct of their ministries. The second empowers him to direct all activities connected with expansion of war production.

Under the constitution adopted about fifty years ago, the Premier has been little more than chairman of a group of ministers of equal standing.

Premier General Hideki Tojo, who is also Minister of War, already holds powers greater than those of most of his predecessors, and has the mandate of the all-powerful military element to direct the political affairs of the nation. Apparently, however, it was found necessary to provide a legal basis for his assumption of unprecedented authority.

Government introduction of bills insures their passage by Parliament. The newspaper "Asahi" commented that "the reorganization of the national administration made necessary by the war may be regarded as completed."

Other bills designed to increase the power of the Army-dominated government would abolish elections of Mayors and make them appointive by the Home Minister in large cities and by Prefectural Governors in smaller ones, and reduce sharply the membership of municipal legislative councils. The Tokio City Assembly, for instance, would be cut from 300 members to 100.

Japanese Resigns Berlin Post

The Berlin radio, heard by The Associated Press, reported yesterday that Lieutenant General Banzai, military attache to the Japanese Embassy in Berlin, had resigned and had been succeeded by Major General Mitsuhiko Komatsu. No explanation of the change was offered.

Navy Lists 24 New Yorkers As Dead and 32 Wounded

Twenty-eight Missing—New Roster Includes New Jersey and Connecticut in 1219 Identified Casualties.

JAN 20 1943

Washington, Jan. 19 (A. P.).—The Navy Department reported today 1,219 casualties whose next of kin were notified between December 16 and 31. They included twenty-four dead, thirty-two wounded and twenty-eight missing from New York. Casualties in list No. 20 are subdivided into 418 dead, 403 wounded and 398 missing. They include personnel of the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard. New Jersey casualties were eighteen dead, eight wounded and five missing.

Most of the casualties resulted from direct action with the enemy, but the total included men lost in accidents at sea and in the air, on duty directly connected with wartime operations.

The Navy Department said that some of the missing may have been rescued at sea and landed at isolated spots or otherwise made their way to safety at places from which they have had no way to communicate with authorities.

The list, which brings total casualties for the three services to 21,497 between December 7, 1941, and December 31, 1942, covers all States, the District of Columbia, Alaska and Hawaii.

Hull Sharply Rejects Murphy Recall Idea

JAN 22 1943

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19 (A. P.)—Secretary of State Hull today sharply rejected published suggestions that Robert Murphy, political adviser to Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and President Roosevelt's personal representative in North Africa, has bungled his assignment and should be replaced.

Hull told his press conference he thought Murphy was mighty well able to take care of himself, and that his record in French Africa would speak for itself.

He suggested it would be well for Americans just now to keep their minds a little more on the prosecution of the war, especially on the pivotal battle for Tunisia.

Paved Way for Invasion.

More than a year before the American occupation of French North Africa, Murphy, then Counsellor of Embassy at Vichy, was sent to Algiers to pave the way among French officials. After last November's operations, he was decorated for his share in the American venture.

Lately, some commentators have questioned Murphy's judgment.

PEPPER RALLIES TO FLYNN'S AID

Says Witnesses Are Eager to Contradict Bridges.

Washington, Jan. 19 (A. P.).—Urging his colleagues to withhold judgment on the appointment of Edward J. Flynn as Minister to Australia, Senator Pepper, Democrat, of Florida, said today that he was informed several persons named as potential witnesses were eager to contradict charges made against Mr. Flynn by Senator Bridges, Republican, of New Hampshire.

Senator Pepper said that he had been in communication with Serge Rubinstein and the latter had expressed a desire to appear with records to meet Senator Bridges's charges that Mr. Rubinstein, once represented by Mr. Flynn's law firm, had "presented a gift of money to the Japanese Government at a time when our relations with Japan were clearly strained."

NAVY REWARDS BATTERED HERO

Raider's Victim Describes Battle in Atlantic.

Washington, Jan. 19 (A. P.).—Jennings Jack Bennett, coxswain of the gun crew on an American tanker sunk by an enemy surface raider in the South Atlantic last July, was commended by Secretary Knox today for the heroic resistance put up by himself and his crew until their gun was hit.

Announcing the commendation, the Navy issued Bennett's account of the brief furious engagement in which he was wounded many times, finally took to the sea in a life jacket and thought that he was about to be hit by two torpedoes from the enemy vessel.

"They seemed to be coming straight at me, one after the other, and I could have touched them as they passed," he said. "But they did pass and after that I felt I could get through anything. I got to the life raft and they pulled me aboard. I remember being transferred to a life boat and then I passed out."

A native of Chehalis, Wash., Bennett is 23 years old and the Navy said his father presently has a job in a Tacoma shipyard. The young man has been in the Navy since July, 1939, and served as captain of a gun crew from December, 1941, on.

Now in Navy Hospital.

At present he is in a naval hospital at Bainbridge, Md., JAN 22 1943 of which was a left leg injury. Bennett said he hoped they would heal sufficiently so that he could "go back in the armed guard service."

He related that it was about 9 P. M. in mid-July when the tanker was attacked.

"I had come off watch, taken off my shoes and was going over the pay accounts for my crew when the first shell hit us. I didn't take time to put my shoes on but ran to the gun station immediately. We couldn't see the raider in the dark, but we estimated that she was about 2,000 yards off.

"The two men on watch had the gun trained and our first shot went through the raider's bow. I don't know what damage we did, although after that she gave us everything she had. She fired star shells and lit us up like a church. Before I could fire a second time I had been hit in the right heel, right leg, left leg and left elbow, and the third finger of my left hand was mangled.

Gets Out Life Jackets.

"Our second and third shots went the same place as our first. As we fired the third, a shell disabled the gun and that was that. From the box at the side of the gun deck I got life jackets for four men of the gun crew, took one myself and threw the rest overboard—about a dozen.

"I got to my room amidships, right under the bridge, put all the confidential papers in a weighted bag and threw them overboard. I was lucky that time. I just got out of the room when a shell struck the bridge and the ceiling of the room caved in.

"A member of the ship's crew and one of my boys were trying to lower the port life boat aft and I went to help them. We were just getting going when a shell struck between the davits and we went flying. I found I couldn't get off the deck and discovered that a piece of shrapnel had gone through my left arm, come out the other side and was imbedded two inches in the deck, pinning me there. That was when I got shrapnel in the left knee and above it, in the stomach and in my left arm.

"But my luck held. Another shell hit the engine room hatches and jarred the boat deck and I was loose. The first shell had killed the member of the gun crew with me. The other seaman said he was too badly hurt to move and told me to bet going. Then I rolled over and dropped 20 feet into the water at the stern."

Bennett was first pulled up on a life raft and then transferred to a life boat where nine hours later he awoke. Seven days after the attack, the life boat survivors were picked up by a Norwegian ship and three days later they were put ashore at a base.

PRESIDENT COMMANDS MINERS TO GO BACK

Will Act to 'Protect Security of Nation' if They Don't Obey in 48 Hours—6000 Resume Work; 12,000 Still Out.

JAN 20 1943

Washington, Jan. 19 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt, as commander in chief of the armed forces, directed all striking anthracite coal miners today to go back to work at once.

He said that if they failed to comply with his directive in forty-eight hours, the Government would take the necessary steps to protect the security of the nation against a strike which comes at a time of a shortage of fuel in the midst of war.

[Some 6,000 striking miners returned to their jobs in Pennsylvania's anthracite field today in the largest back-to-work movement since the wildcat walkout began three weeks ago.

[However, more than 12,000 insurgents continued the work stoppage. These included 1,600 employees of the No. 7 colliery of the Susquehanna Collieries Company, some of whom voted on the back-to-work question after the President's order was announced. Three other large collieries, employing a total of 3,700 men also are balloting on the question today and tonight.]

The President issued his order in telegrams to officials of the United Mine Workers of America, national and local. The parent body has emphasized that the strike is unauthorized.

The President's Telegram.

The telegram said:

"On Friday, January 15, 1943, the National War Labor Board issued a directive order calling upon all miners on strike in the anthracite field to return to work immediately. I have been informed that several thousand miners refused to obey the order of the War Labor Board and are still out on strike.

3.24-457

"In the interest of the war effort, all directive orders of the National War Labor Board must be complied with by all employers and all employees.

"Therefore, as commander in chief of the armed forces, I direct all miners in the anthracite coal fields who are now out on strike to return at once to their job of producing vitally needed coal for their country. If this order is not complied with in forty-eight hours, your Government will take the necessary steps to protect the security of the nation against a strike which is doing serious injury to the war effort."

JAN 20 1943

Army Has Intervened Twice.

The President used the armed forces in two previous cases of labor defiance and the military intervention in both cases had the effect of ending the strikes without violence. The first was in the North American Aviation case in California early in 1941. Last year the military was assigned to the General Cable Company strike at Bayonne, N. J. Workers went back to their jobs almost immediately.

Some members of the War Labor Board expressed the belief that the same pattern could be used effectively in the anthracite situation if normal production is not resumed in the next forty-eight hours, but would not venture a prediction.

Union Leaders' Reaction.

Informed of the President's action, William Salinsky, president of the Woodward local of the Glen Alden Coal Company, one of the largest involved in the strike, said at Edwardsville, Pa., that he would submit the order to his men as soon as Mr. Roosevelt's telegram was received.

Another union official, who asked that his name be not used, declared: "The men won't work under the Army and they won't work under John L. Lewis; but they are willing for the Government to take over the management of the mines for the duration. They feel that if the Government does that and thoroughly investigates conditions in the mines, they will get a square deal. I have been in the mines seventeen years and I know those are the sentiments of the men."

Miners Are Unappeased.

Individual miners talked freely with the understanding that their names would not be used.

"They can't mine coal with bayonets," one declared, obviously referring to the possibility that troops might be used to enforce the President's demands. What's the use of sending a disgruntled man back to work. We only want some assurance that we'll get a square deal instead of the run-around."

Another said the miners at a meeting of the Woodward local last night were "damned determined" to stay out. "We feel we can't be any worse off under the Government than we are now," he said. "We have to sign our lives away to get a piece of meat. What's the use . . . what's the use . . ."

The twenty-day-old strike in the Pennsylvania hard coal fields has involved members of some twenty-five local unions. They have been demanding a $2 a day wage increase and cancellation of a 50-cents a month increase in union rues from $1.

WLB's Report on Case.

The President's order for the strikers to return to their jobs followed the War Labor Board's action yesterday in bringing to the White House a report on its efforts to end the strike. The board suggested that Mr. Roosevelt "proceed with such action as you deem proper."

The WLB, in its report to the President, confined itself largely to a recitation of a history of the strike, which it said violated a labor-industry no-strike agreement. It observed that the strike began early this month, "has reached serious proportions by January 6," and three days later approximately 20,000 miners were on strike.

The strike, the board noted, was not authorized by the United Mine Workers and the strikers gave as their reason for leaving work an increase in their union dues, an increase authorized by the U. M. W. convention in October. As the strike went on, the board said, demands arose for the wage increase, although the union contract with the operators does not expire until the end of April.

Certified by Labor Secretary.

Labor Secretary Perkins certified the case to the WLB on January 12 and the agency sent a telegram ordering resumption of work. When this was ignored the board said, it held a public hearing last Friday and a general strike which had been threatened in anthracite mines for January 15 was averted.

Again the board ordered striking miners to resume operations immediately and settle their grievances by arbitration. While this order was accepted by U. M. W. and local leaders, the board said that a large proportion of the miners voted not to resume operations.

Consequently, the board said, it voted unanimously yesterday to notify the President of the serious situation existing and to suggest that he take proper action.

The President's telegram ordering striking miners back into the collieries went to John L. Lewis, U. M. W. president, and to other U. M. W. officials and presidents of locals at Wilkes-Barre, Kingston, Ashley, Olyphant, Peckville, Dickson City, Nanticoke, Plymouth, Hazleton, Swoyerville, Nesquehoning, and Pittston, Pa.

The decoration was awarded by President Penaranda for Colonel Porter's "valuable assistance" as chief of the first United States military aviation mission to Bolivia.

SENDS US MORE SUGAR

Washington, Jan. 19 (A. P.).—Secretary of the Interior Ickes reported today that exports of sugar from Puerto Rico to the United States in 1942 exceeded 1941 exports, despite ship shortages and the submarine menace. The 1942 movement totaled 899,656 tons, 2,772 tons more than in 1941.

Mr. Ickes said the 1942 movement was made possible through co-ordination of all Federal agencies concerned with shipping, including the Army and Navy. He added that the department's division of territories and island possessions gave full credit for the heavy sugar movement last year to Gov. Rexford G. Tugwell.

"Earlier in the year sugar exports had been running well behind the 1941 average," Mr. Ickes said. "By pressing every available ship into service the Governor and the shipping authorities were able to close the gap until by the last week in December, the 1942 total actually exceeded 1941 shipments."

He said the shipments made it possible to clear warehouses and make way for the new crop.

Wallace Studies Russian

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP).—Vice-President Henry A. Wallace and Senator Albert B. Chandler, Democrat, of Kentucky, are studying Russian. Asked about a Russian grammar on his desk, Senator Chandler told reporters that he and Mr. Wallace are pupils of a former Russian soldier of the first world war who now is with the United States Maritime Commission. There has been some talk of President Roosevelt sending the Vice-President on a mission to Moscow and while Mr. Chandler declined to comment, friends said his study of the language was an indication that he would like to go along, as a member of the Senate Military Affairs Committee.

ON WAY TO ALASKA

Washington, Jan. 19 (A. P.).—Attorney-General Biddle announced today that he had requested Mathias F. Correa, United States Attorney for the Southern New York district, to make "a complete survey of United States attorneys, marshals and jails, and to look into other matters" in Alaska.

Mr. Correa has taken a leave of absence from his district and already is en route to Alaska, where he will remain about a month, the Department of Justice said.

The survey will include an investigation of "specific complaints which have been made to the department in connection with its operations and facilities in Alaska," Mr. Biddle said.

Howard F. Corcoran, chief assistant to Mr. Correa, has been designated Acting United States Attorney in the Southern district of New York.

VESSEL DESTROYED BY TWO TORPEDOES

British Ship Blown to Bits, 66 Crewmen Lost in Atlantic

JAN 20 1943

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 19—(AP) A medium-sized British merchant ship was literally blown to bits by two torpedo explosions in the Atlantic in mid-December and sank in less than a minute with 66 of its 81-man crew.

Those who survived leaped overboard, and one was washed to safety as the ship plunged down. He was Sidney Lewis, the ship's carpenter, who was the senior survivor.

"A column of debris and water rose 300 feet above the ship," said R. B. Montgomery of Glasgo, a seaman-gunner. "The decks blew out, the bridge simply disappeared. One of our Lascar crewmen went down with the ship and was blown to the surface by the last air bubble."

The 15 men who survived credited the chief steward, a man named Wilkinson, from Liverpool, with their safety. Wilkinson cut two liferafts loose, but lost his own life. The others swam to the rafts.

These two rafts held seven men each. Another raft floated free, and a single Lascar climbed aboard it. Brazilian fishermen found them after eight days, during which they drifted 360 miles, and towed them to land.

All the ship's officers were lost. In addition to Lewis and Montgomery, W. J. Smith of Southampton and J. B. Whelan of Warrington, Eng., and eleven Lascars reached safety. They came to Miami from South America.

FIVE IN NAVY PLANE MISSING OFF FLORIDA

Elmhurst, L. I., Officer Among Group Believed Lost

JAN 20 1943

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 19 (AP)—Three Naval Reserve flying officers and two petty officers have been missing from a navigational flight since Saturday night, officials of the Jacksonville naval air station said today.

Parts of the big patrol plane, a PBY, have been located at sea off Brunswick, Ga., but no trace has been found of the occupants. Next of kin have been notified, but the search is being continued.

The men included Ensign John J. Sullivan, 22, of Elmhurst, L. I., and Ensign Philip S. Walsh, 26, of Watkins Glen, N. Y.

Ensign Sullivan was president of his class at Fordham University when he was graduated with a B. S. degree in 1941. He joined the Naval Air Forces Feb. 12, 1942, with a group of other Fordham men known as the "Flying Rams."

Awaiting news of Ensign Sullivan at his Elmhurst home yesterday were his father and mother, Michael and Helen Sullivan, and his fiancée, Miss Mary Fitzpatrick, of 37-49 Ninety-first Street, Elmhurst. Mr. Sullivan has two brothers, James and Michael, and two sisters, Catherine Sullivan and Mrs. Helen Reed.

AMERICAN TROOPS MUST FIGHT FOE, SAYS PATTERSON

Undersecretary Tells West Point Class U.S. Will Bear Full Role in Battle.

JAN 20 1943

WEST POINT, N. Y., Jan. 19—(AP) Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson asserted today that America's superior resources, mechanical ability and industrial system left no doubt of our ability to produce arms for those fighting with us and at the same time to take our full part in the fighting.

"We cannot leave the hard work of fighting to the British, the Russians and the Chinese," he told 409 graduates in the first "streamlined" war class at the United States Military academy.

Must Have Adequate Force

Declaring that "a war like this one cannot be fought without an army and a navy of size adequate to the task," Mr. Patterson said:

"It would seem self evident, that the size of the armed forces that are necessary to win the war is a military problem and that the solution of it must be left to military leaders."

An army of 7,500,000, together with the other service branches, would call for a total force of 10,000,000 under arms, he said.

Asserting that one year's training should be figured in the case of most combat troops and that "a strong force must be maintained in this country for purposes of surprise, for defense and for strategic reserves," Mr. Patterson said, "no one expects to ship 7,500,000 men overseas in 1943." In general, he said, divisions raised this year "will be prepared for transport overseas in 1944."

The undersecretary advised the 164 cadets who have earned their wings and will be commissioned directly into the air corps for the first time in the academy's history that "it is not enough that West Point merely fill a quota of flying officers."

The United States, he said, would "build the most powerful striking force from the air that the world has ever known." Newly designed planes already on the production lines with heavier hammering power would be more than a match for new Nazi planes, he added.

SOCIAL SECURITY EXPANSION SOUGHT BY MISS PERKINS

Labor Secretary Drafts Program Costing 10 Per Cent of Income.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—(AP) A broadened Social Security plan, providing new and greater benefits, has been developed by the Federal Department of Labor and will be presented to President Roosevelt soon, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins revealed today.

Premiums under the proposed plan would increase progressively to an amount equal to 10 per cent of paychecks, Miss Perkins declared at a Town Hall meeting.

(Present Social Security premiums call for contributions of one per cent each by employe and employer with contributions increased to 2 per cent each next Jan. 1. The larger contribution originally was scheduled to become effective this last Jan. 1 but was postponed by Congress.)

Greater Benefits Proposed

Benefits under the projected plan would include greater old age pensions, payments during all interruptions of employment regardless of cause, and maternity and funeral costs, Miss Perkins said.

The Labor secretary explained that during the first 10 years of operation there would be no need for the government to contribute to the fund because receipts would exceed disbursements.

When the total cost began to exceed 10 per cent, because of a building-up of old age retirement benefit rights, "the government could well pay for the excess until eventually there would be equal triparte distribution of the cost," she said.

Would Include More Workers

Under the contemplated proposal, which has not yet reached official hands, there would be inclusion of farm workers, domestics and workers in concerns of less than eight employes.

"The demobilization of those now employed in wartime industries and their reassignment to peacetime production would be cushioned against the doubt and dread, fear and uncertainty with which today so many persons view that period," Miss Perkins declared in outlining the plan.

STOCKHOLM, JAN. 18 (AP)—NAZI ANXIETY CONCERNING MORALE ON THE HOME FRONT IS REFLECTED IN TWO RECENT SPEECHES BY GERMAN LEADERS REPORTED IN DISPATCHES TO THE SWEDISH PRESS.

DR. OTTO DIETRICH, FRESH FROM A VISIT TO THE FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS, TOLD A MEETING OF GERMAN EDITORS THAT "THE TASK OF THE PRESS IS TO AWAKEN REAL SPIRIT ON THE HOME FRONT, TO [redacted]-BUOY THE MASSES AND THE WHOLE NATION."

DR. ROBERT LEY, NAZI LABOR FRONT LEADER, SAID IN A MASS MEETING SPEECH:

JAN 20 1943

"IT IS EASY TO HAVE FAITH AS LONG AS ONE IS WISHING, BUT WHEN THE FIGHTING ENTERS A CRITICAL STAGE THEN ONE SEES WHO IS REALLY INSPIRED BY FAITH. IT IS NECESSARY FOR EVERY GERMAN TO GIVE UP ALL PRIVATE WISHES."

U.S.NAVAL CORRESPONDENT WITH THE BRITISH HOME FLEET
(DISTRIBUTED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)

JAN 20 1943

WITH THE BRITISH HOME FLEET AT A NORTHERN BASE-(DELAYED)-FIRST LORD OF THE ADMIRALTY A.V.ALEXANDER TOLD THE MEN OF THE ROYAL NAVY TODAY THAT 1943 WILL BE A CRUCIAL YEAR, WITH BRITAIN FACING THE "GREATEST ATTACKS ON OUR SEA COMMUNICATIONS" IN HISTORY.

WINDING UP A THREE-DAY VISIT WITH THE HOME FLEET, ALEXANDER DECLARED:

"THIS IS THE CRUCIAL YEAR IN WHICH THE ENEMY HAS MADE UP HIS MIND TO HAVE A LAST THROW IN THE BATTLE OF THE SEAS. THE ENEMY IS NOW USING NEW U-BOATS IN LARGER PACKS AND WITH NEW TACTICS.

"THE U-BOATS NOW ARE EVEN MORE CONCENTRATED THAN BEFORE. THEY ARE NOW LYING, NOT IN SINGLE PACKS, BUT IF I MAY USE A MILITARY EXPRESSION, IN ECHELONS OF PACKS.

JAN 20 1943

"IT IS THE MERCY OF GOD AND YOUR DEVOTION TO DUTY THAT HAVE BROUGHT US THROUGH SO FAR. THERE WILL BE A GREAT CHALLENGE TO OUR SEA POWER IN 1943, BUT I LOOK WITH CONFIDENCE, BECAUSE OF YOUR SERVICE AND YOUR GREAT RECORD, TO COMING SUCCESSFULLY THROUGH.

"I AM QUITE SURE THAT YOU WILL RENDER A GREAT AND SUCCESSFUL ACCOUNT OF YOURSELVES. GOD WILLING, WE WILL WIN SUCH A VICTORY THAT THIS MENACE TO OUR WAY OF LIFE SHALL NOT RECUR WITHIN THE LIFETIME OF OUR CHILDREN OR OUR CHILDREN'S CHILDREN."

ALEXANDER SPOKE TO THE MASSED SHIP'S COMPANIES AFTER VISITING FOUR DESTROYERS, INCLUDING TWO POLISH SHIPS. HE STOOD ON A POM-POM GUN PLATFORM WHILE THE MEN PERCHED ON GUNS, VENTILATORS, CRANES, LADDERS, BRIDGES AND MASTS.

MANY OF HIS AUDIENCE HAD JUST RETURNED FROM THE NEW YEAR'S EVE BATTLE IN THE ARCTIC OCEAN, IN WHICH BRITISH WARSHIPS SANK A DESTROYER AND CRIPPLED A CRUISER IN BEATING OFF AN ASSAULT BY A STRONG GERMAN

NAVAL FORCE ON A RUSSIAN-BOUND CONVOY.

IN HIS TALK TODAY, ALEXANDER PAID SPECIAL TRIBUTE TO BRITAIN'S DESTROYER FLOTILLAS, ONE OF WHICH STOOD OFF FOUR SUCCESSIVE ATTACKS B THE VASTLY-SUPERIOR GERMAN FORCE BEFORE THE LARGER SHIPS CAME TO ITS RESCUE.

"WE IN THE ADMIRALTY ARE VERY GRATEFUL FOR THE GRAND SERVICE WHICH HAS BEEN GIVEN IN THE WAR BY OUR DESTROYER FLOTILLAS," HE SAID.

"THERE HAS BEEN NO PERIOD IN NAVAL HISTORY IN WHICH THESE SMALL SHIPS HAVE BEEN MORE NEEDED OR WHERE THE TASKS THEY HAVE BEEN GIVEN HAVE BEEN MORE VARIED AND MORE TESTING IN RELATION TO THE SMALL NUMBERS AVAILABLE.

"WE HAVE COME THROUGH THE GREAT STRESS AND STRAIN OF THE PAST THREE YEARS BECAUSE OF THE MANNER IN WHICH THE COMMANDERS-IN-CHIEF USED THE SMALL RESOURCES AVAILABLE AND THE MANNER IN WHICH THE SHIPS' COMPANIES CONTINUED THEIR DEVOTION TO DUTY AND MAINTAINED TRADITION.

"NO SECTION OF THE NAVY HAS DONE SUCH A HIGH PERCENTAGE OF FIGHTIN AS THE FLOTILLAS. THERE HAVE BEEN GREAT CASUALTIES IN SHIPS AND MEN, BUT IT IS SOMETHING OF A MIRACLE THAT, IN RELATION TO THE NUMBER OF CASUALTIES, WE HAVE BEEN ABLE TO REPLACE THEM WITH THE MOST MODERN SHIPS...

"NOW, AS ALWAYS, THE LINCHPIN IN OUR DEFENSE AND OUR OFFENSE IS THE MAINTENANCE OF SEA COMMUNICATIONS. YOU ARE IT. I AM RELYING ON YOU."

JAN 20 1943

ALEXANDER SAID THE ROYAL NAVY'S TASK IN 1943 WAS THREE-FOLD:

1--"WE MUST ASSURE BRITAIN OF AN INDISPENSABLE MINIMUM OF IMPORTS O FOOD, RAW MATERIAL AND MUNITIONS."

2--"OUR RUSSIAN ALLIES HAVE BEEN DOING US A GREAT SERVICE BY KILLIN HUNS BY THE THOUSANDS AND WE MUST DO OUR LEVEL BEST TO SEE THAT THEY HAVE THE WEAPONS TO GO ON KILLING THEM."

3--"WE HAVE TO PLAY OUR PART WITH OUR AMERICAN ALLIES IN CARRYING THE WAR TO THE ENEMY, WHO THROUGHOUT THE WAR HAS HAD THE IMMENSE TACTICAL ADVANTAGE OF INTERIOR LINES OF COMMUNICATIONS."

THE COMMANDING OFFICER OF ONE BATTLESHIP QUOTED ALEXANDER:

JAN 20 1943

"IF THE FIRST LORD AND THE ADMIRALTY CAN ENTICE THE ENEMY INTO WATERS WHERE WE CAN GET AT THEM, WE SHALL DO OUR LEVEL BEST TO CLEAN UP THE MESS."

MEDITERRANEAN

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, JAN 19-(AP)-FIELD MARSHAL ERWIN ROMMEL WITH A FIGHTING ARMY OF POSSIBLY 110,000 MEN, NOW FALLING BACK LESS THAN 100 MILES SOUTHEAST OF TRIPOLI BEFORE THE NEW OFFENSIVE OF THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY, MAY PULL UP IN TUNISIA FOR A FINAL, DESPERATE EFFORT TO KEEP A FOOTHOLD IN AFRICA, IT APPEARED TODAY.

(DISPATCHES FROM CAIRO SAID ROMMEL'S FORCES WERE FALLING BACK RAPIDLY TO THE HILLS ON THE APPROACHES TO TRIPOLI AND THAT ALONG THE COAST THE FALL OF MISURATA, ABOUT 120 MILES EAST OF TRIPOLI, WAS EXPECTED AT ANY TIME. TRIPOLI IS 100 MILES EAST OF THE TUNISIAN BORDER.)

ROMMEL'S HOPE IN THE MILITARY SITUATION NOW ARISING, IT WAS SPECULATED, WOULD BE TO ESTABLISH THE STRONGEST POSSIBLE BRIDGEHEAD IN TUNISIA TO AFFORD SOME CONTROL OVER THE SICILIAN CHANNEL BOTTLENECK IN THE MEDITERRANEAN AND DISRUPT ANY ALLIED PLANS TO USE NORTH AFRICA AS A BASE FOR AN ATTACK ON EUROPE.

JAN 20 1943

FRENCH FORCES OF GEN. HENRI HONORE GIRAUD ALREADY HAVE CROSSED FROM ALGERIA INTO LIBYA SOME 500 MILES SOUTH OF THE MEDITERRANEAN TO

MOP UP THE FEW REMAINING ITALIAN OUTPOSTS IN THE DESERT, A FRENCH COMMUNIQUE ANNOUNCED LAST NIGHT. THESE FORCES HAVE CAPTURED SERDELES, 100 MILES INSIDE LIBYA, AND ARE CONTINUING TOWARD UBARI, 125 MILES TO THE EAST, IT WAS REPORTED.

JAN 20 1943

THUS THE ISLAND OF AXIS-HELD TERRITORY IN TUNISIA AND TRIPOLITANIA WAS BEING ATTACKED FROM THREE SIDES.

FACED WITH THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY EAST OF TRIPOLI, LIEUT. GEN. DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER'S ALLIED BRITISH, AMERICAN AND FRENCH ARMIES IN TUNISIA ON THE WEST AND OTHER FRENCH FORCES IN THE SOUTH, IT APPEARED THAT ROMMEL MIGHT ATTEMPT TO HOLD HIS BRIDGEHEAD IN TUNISIA UNTIL THE END OF THE SUMMER.

IN THIS WAY, HE MIGHT HOPE TO DELAY AND DISRUPT ANY ALLIED OFFENSIVE OPERATIONS PLANNED FOR EARLY 1943.

"THE ENGINEERING ABILITY OF THE GERMAN IS DOUBTLESS STRENGTHENING SICILY, SARDINIA AND TUNISIA TO MAKE SURE WE'LL NOT LAND OFFENSIVELY WITHOUT A BIG LOSS," ONE SOURCE REMARKED. "WE OURSELVES MUST DO NOTHING TO FRITTER AWAY OUR STRENGTH. YOU MUST ORGANIZE BEFORE YOU ATTACK."

419

PART OF ROMMEL'S PLAN, IT WAS SAID, WOULD BE TO BUILD UP POWERFUL AIR BASES IN TUNISIA, SICILY AND ITALY TO BLAST ALLIED BASES IN AFRICA AND TO DEFEND THE CONTINENT AGAINST THE COMING ALLIED ATTACK.

THESE SOURCES STRESSED THE IMPORTANCE OF ALLIED OPERATIONS IN THE MEDITERRANEAN ON PUBLIC OPINION IN SPAIN AND TURKEY ON THE VITAL FLANKS OF THE ALLIED ARMIES IN NORTH AFRICA.

With the British First Army at Bou Arada, Tunisia,

Jan 18-(Delayed)-(AP)-The [illegible] Tunisian front flared into action today with British artillery, tanks and infantry hammering back Nazi attacks and counter-attacking in fierce engagements raging around Bou Arada and on the plains and hills to the north.

From a building in this town 40 miles southwest of Tunis and from a front line dugout, I watched the battle all day.

The magnificent work of the British gunners was the feature of the first actions. German tanks struck down the plain toward Bou Arada at 7:10 a.m. and the gunners plastered them.

By 10:30, I saw scattered groups of Nazi tanks withdrawing after coming within a mile of my dugout.

JAN 20 1943

The hulks of seven destroyed tanks were [illegible] on the plain a mile north of here. Five others probably were put out of action.

Until mid-afternoon I watched Nazi tanks deploying cautiously east of here. They were constantly harried by the gunners every time they came within range. The concentrated artillery fire sent hundreds of shells bursting among the tanks and broke up the attack.

JAN 22 1943

The German infantry attempted to attack British positions in the hills north of here and stout-hearted gunners and infantrymen threw them back. All day the guns hammered at Nazi-held ground. The hills were misty with the smoke of bursting shells. British tanks moved up but there were no major tank engagements although I saw one squadron firing at the enemy tanks at extreme range.

JAN 20 1943

I have been in and out of the dugouts all day avoiding German bombers, fighters and shells. The Nazis sent four planes at a time over Bou Arada and the town rocked with [illegible] gun fire as anti-aircraft batteries clattered. The guns kept firing until their barrels were hot.

Five bombers attempted to attack British tanks from 300 feet and two were shot down by anti-aircraft fire. A German fighter was destroyed late in the afternoon by Spitfires whistling overhead.

From dawn until dusk, the battle has been roaring within a few miles of here. Every hour has seen attacks and counterattacks. In the middle of the plain outside the town where the main German tank thrust was hurled back, a herd of cattle grazed through it all. Arab carts moved slowly along the side roads.

JAN 20 1943

Bou Arada has a lot spot and air attacks kept me popping from one dugout to another. There have been three or four rainless days and the ground is drying up but there are still muddy spots. The German tanks destroyed up the road from here were caught in the mud as well as smashed by the guns.

Apart from the bombing, the tensest moment this morning came when I watched the German tanks attacking over the plains. They progressed jerkily with the grey-black smoke of bursting shells clouding them. A regular barrage was thrown down when they were a mile off and they withdrew beyond such accurate fire.

JAN 20 1943

German crews in the hit tanks jumped out and attempted to get in other tanks but they were caught in the shellfire.

Calcutta, Jan. 19-(AP)-The Japanese raidd Calcutta for the seventh time tonight but most of the millions in the British empire's second city saw and heard nothing.

A British communique said a small number of bombers attacked the Calcutta area at 9 p.m. and were intercepted by night fighters which forced the raiders to release their bombs and flee.

"Severe damage was inflicted on at least one enemy aircraft," the communique said, "Damage was negigible. One or two small fires were started which were quickly brought under control. JAN 20 1943

No casualties so far have been reported."

New Delhi, Jan. [redacted] 19-(AP)-A small number of Japanese planes raided the Calcutta area early tonight causing negligible damage, a British communique said. Several bombs were dropped which started two fires which were controlled swiftly.

"Our fighters contacted the raiders," the communique said, "No casualties so far are reported and damage is negligible."

OTTAWA, JAN 19-(AP)-THE CANADIAN GOVERNMENT TODAY PROPOSED A SEVEN-POINT PLAN TO SETTLE STRIKES INVOLVING 13,500 MEN AT THREE MAJOR STEEL PLANTS, BUT OFFICIALS OF THE UNITED STEEL WORKERS OF AMERICA SAID WORKERS WERE "NOT LIKELY" TO ACCEPT THEM. JAN 20 1943

30.24-467

THE FINAL DECISION, ONE UNION SPOKESMAN SAID, WILL REST WITH THE UNION LOCALS AT SAULT STE. MARIE, ONT., SYDNEY AND TRENTON, N.S., WHERE THE STRIKES HAVE CUT OFF AN ESTIMATED TWO-THIRDS OF CANADA'S WARTIME STEEL PRODUCTION.

C.H.MILLARD, U.S.W.A. NATIONAL DIRECTOR, SAID THE UNION WAS "ANXIOUS THAT THE MATTER BE FULLY RECONSIDERED WITHOUT DELAY," BUT DECLARED THAT THE GOVERNMENT'S PROPOSAL MADE ONLY SMALL ADJUSTMENTS IN THE BASIC WAGE RATES.

THE GOVERNMENT HAD OFFERED TO ESTABLISH MINIMUM WAGE RATES OF 55 CENTS AN HOUR, INCLUDING COST OF LIVING BONUS. THE UNION HAD ASKED FOR 55 CENTS AN HOUR PLUS BONUS, COMPARED WITH PRESENT MINIMUM RATES OF 45 1/2 CENTS PLUS FIVE CENT BONUS AT THE ALGOMA STEEL CORP. AT SAULT STE.MARIE, AND 43 1/2 CENTS PLUS NINE CENT BONUS AT THE SYDNEY PLANT OF DOMINION STEEL AND COAL CORP.

THE GOVERNMENT'S PROPOSAL THUS WOULD MEAN A RAISE OF ONLY 2 1/2 CENTS AN HOUR AT SYDNEY, AND 4 1/2 CENTS AN HOUR AT SAULT STE.MARIE.

ANOTHER MAJOR POINT IN THE GOVERNMENT'S PROPOSAL WAS TO DECLARE EMPLOYES IN THE BASIC STEEL INDUSTRY "NATIONAL EMPLOYES," BRINGING THEM UNDER JURISDICTION OF THE NATIONAL WAR LABOR BOARD AND PERMITTING THEM TO MAKE A NEW WAGE REVISION APPLICATION TO THE NATIONAL BOARD.

LABOR MINISTER HUMPHREY MITCHELL ASKED TO BE RELIEVED OF HIS DUTIES AS NATIONAL BOARD CHAIRMAN SO ANY NEW APPLICATION COULD BE CONSIDERED BY A NEW CHAIRMAN. JAN 20 1943

"WE CAN REJOICE WITH THE RUSSIANS," SHE SAID, "THAT AT LAST THE TIME HAS COME WHEN THEY CAN TURN THE TIDE OF BATTLE AND AGAIN BEGIN TO RECONQUER THEIR LAND."

JAN 20 1943

MRS.ROOSEVELT MADE A SPECIAL TRIP TO JOIN IN THE APPEAL FOR FUNDS TO SEND FOOD, MEDICINE, AND CLOTHING TO RUSSIA.

MRS.ROOSEVELT SAID THAT "THE PEOPLE OF GREAT BRITAIN REALIZE THAT GERMANY CEASED SENDING THE WHOLE WEIGHT OF HER AIRFORCE OVER BRITAIN THE DAY THE RUSSIAN CAMPAIGN BEGAN. XXX."

AS FOR THE FUTURE, "WE AND OUR CANADIAN NEIGHBORS MUST DRAW CLOSER TO ALL THE OTHER MEMBERS OF THE UNITED NATIONS FOR A REALIZATION OF WHAT OUR ULTIMATE VICTORY WILL MEAN IN STRENGTH FOR BUILDING A LASTING PEACE."

PRIME MINISTER MACKENZIE KING ASSERTED THAT "IN THIS GREAT WAR WE OF THE UNITED NATIONS ARE ALL DEBTORS OF ONE ANOTHER. WE NEED THE HELP OF RUSSIA. AND RUSSIA NEEDS OUR HELP."

MONTREAL JAN 19-(AP)-MRS.FRANKLIN D.ROOSEVELT TOLD A LITTLE STORY TODAY--ON PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL'S AUTHORITY--OF HOW WOMEN CAN KEEP WAR SECRETS.

SHE HAD DINNER WITH THE CHURCHILLS, DURING HER VISIT TO ENGLAND, ON THE NIGHT AFTER IT HAD HAPPENED.

AFTER DINNER WITH HIS FAMILY THE NIGHT BEFORE, PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL HAD LEANED BACK IN HIS CHAIR AND SAID:

"WELL, MY DEARS, THERE'S SOMETHING I FEEL I CAN NOW TELL YOU. IN A FEW MINUTES IF YOU TURN ON THE WIRELESS YOU WILL HEAR THAT AMERICAN SOLDIERS HAVE LANDED IN AFRICA."

JAN 20 1943

"I KNEW THAT WEEKS AGO," SAID SARAH CHURCHILL, HIS SECOND DAUGHTER, WHO SERVES IN THE W.A.A.F. "I HANDLED THE INTELLIGENCE BETWEEN THE RAF AND THE AMERICAN AIR FORCE."

"WHY ON EARTH DIDN'T YOU TELL ME?" CHURCHILL DEMANDED.

"WHY, FATHER, I DIDN'T KNOW HOW MUCH YOU KNEW!"

BY GLENN BABB

JAN 20 1943

THE TIDE OF ALLIED SUCCESS IN RUSSIA AND AFRICA CONTINUES IN FULL FLOOD. EACH DAY'S DISPATCHES SEEM TO SWELL, AT AN ACCELERATING PACE, THE TALE OF DISASTER FOR HITLER ON THE TWO ACTIVE FRONTS WHERE HIS MAJOR FORTUNES ARE AT STAKE. THE TEMPTATION TO OVEROPTIMISM IS STRONG; HENCE IT IS WELL TO RECALL THAT IN BOTH THESE CAMPAIGNS THE VICTORIES NOW BEING WON ARE ONLY PREPARATORY.

IN AFRICA THE ALLIES ARE MERELY GETTING AHEAD WITH THE JOB OF CLEARING THE SPRINGBOARD FOR THE INVASION OF SOUTHERN EUROPE. IN RUSSIA THE ENEMY STILL IS HUNDREDS OF MILES DEEP ON SOVIET SOIL.

ROMMEL'S FLIGHT AND MONTGOMERY'S PURSUIT CONTINUE AT ALMOST HEADLONG PACE. ANOTHER DAY'S ADVANCE AT THE RATE OF THE LAST TWO OR THREE WILL BRING THE VICTORIOUS EIGHTH ARMY TO THE GATES OF TRIPOLI ITSELF. EVEN TOMORROW WE MAY HAVE THE ANSWER TO THE QUESTION WHETHER ROMMEL INTENDS TO FIGHT FOR MUSSOLINI'S LAST COLONIAL CAPITAL. THIS IS THE SAME ROMMEL WHO ONLY A FEW MONTHS AGO SEEMED TO HAVE IT WITHIN HIS POWER TO DRIVE THE BRITISH FROM EGYPT AND SHATTER THE WHOLE ALLIED POSITION IN THE MIDDLE EAST.

JAN 20 1943

STILL MORE INSPIRING IS THE NEWS FROM THE RUSSIAN FRONT. MOSCOW ANNOUNCES THAT THE 17-MONTHS BLOCKADE OF LENINGRAD HAS BEEN BROKEN BY THE STORMING OF SCHLUESSELBURG (LITERALLY, THE KEY CITY) AND THE JUNCTION OF THE ARMIES OF LENINGRAD AND THE VOLKHOV. LENINGRAD AND STALINGRAD, THE CITIES WHICH BEAR THE NAMES OF THE TWO MEN WHO CREATED MODERN RUSSIA. DOUBTLESS THE SENTIMENTAL VALUES WHICH ATTACH TO THE MERE NAMES HAD SOMETHING TO DO WITH MAKING THESE CITIES THE SITES OF THE GREATEST DEFENSIVE STANDS OF THIS WAR, TWO OF THE EPIC SIEGES OF HISTORY. THEY WERE SYMBOLS ALIKE FOR THE RUSSIANS AND FOR HITLER; THE NAZI LEADER RECKONED THAT BY TAKING THEM HE COULD BREAK THE SPIRIT OF THE RUSSIAN PEOPLE AS WELL AS DESTROY TWO GREAT BULWARKS OF THE SOVIET MILITARY POSITION.

LENINGRAD IS NOT YET ENTIRELY FREE; THE GERMANS AND FINNS STILL

HOLD SIEGE LINES ON THREE SIDES; MUCH BITTERLY CONTESTED TERRITORY REMAINS TO BE WON BEFORE THE RAILWAYS THAT LINK IT TO MOSCOW AND THE NORTH ARE FREED. BUT THE KEY FORTRESS THAT LOCKED THE RING ON THE EAST HAS BEEN TAKEN, A CORRIDOR ALONG THE SOUTHERN SHORE OF LAKE LADOGA HAS BEEN OPENED; CONTACT HAS BEEN ESTABLISHED BETWEEN THE DEFENDERS AND THE ARMIES OF RELIEF.

LENINGRAD'S SIEGE HAS LASTED THREE TIMES AS LONG AS STALINGRAD'S BUT IN A SENSE THE LATTER HAS CAPTURED THE WORLD'S IMAGINATION TO THE GREATER DEGREE. BY THE TIME HITLER'S ARMIES HAD REACHED THE VOLGA LAST AUGUST THE REALIZATION HAD GRIPPED ALL THE UNITED NATIONS THAT THE FUTURE OF CIVILIZATION WAS AT STAKE IN THE CARNAGE ALONG THAT FAMOUS RIVER. HAD HITLER BROKEN THE RUSSIANS THERE THE WHOLE COURSE OF THE WAR PROBABLY WOULD HAVE BEEN DIFFERENT. HENCE STALINGRAD WAS WATCHED ANXIOUSLY DAY BY DAY BY ALL PEOPLES, AND WHEN THE TIDE TURNED THERE THE RELIEF WAS SHARED BY ALL THE ENEMIES OF THE AXIS. SO OF COURSE IS THE REJOICING OVER LENINGRAD, ALTHOUGH THAT VICTORY SOMEHOW SEEMS LESS UNIVERSAL IN ITS IMPORTANCE.

MEANWHILE THERE STILL IS A SIEGE AT STALINGRAD, BUT IT IS NOT THE RUSSIANS WHO WAIT FOR THE RELIEF THAT DOES NOT COME. THERE STILL ARE GERMANS WITHIN STALINGRAD BUT THEY ARE DOOMED MEN, PART OF THE NEARLY A QUARTER OF A MILLION SACRIFICED TO THE INSENSATE PRIDE OF THE MAN WHO BOASTED HE WOULD TAKE AND HOLD STALINGRAD AND WAS NOT BIG ENOUGH TO ADMIT FAILURE WHEN IT FACED HIM.

ELSEWHERE THE RUSSIAN TIDE SURGES WESTWARD. THE DANGER TO ROSTOV GROWS DAILY. MOSCOW NOW ANNOUNCES THAT BOTH THE DONETS AND THE MANYCH HAVE BEEN CROSSED. THESE ARE THE LAST TWO MAJOR TRIBUTARIES, FROM THE NORTH AND SOUTH, RESPECTIVELY, OF THE DON BEFORE IT REACHES THE SEA NEAR ROSTOV. THAT CITY ALREABY HAS CHANGED HANDS THREE TIMES IN THIS WAR LARGELY BECAUSE THE TERRAIN IMMEDIATELY SURROUNDING IT, ONCE THE RIVERS HAVE BEEN CROSSED, PRESENTS FEW DEFENSIBLE BARRIERS. THE FOURTH FALL OF ROSTOV MAY BE NEARER THAN ANY ONE EXPECTED A FEW WEEKS AGO.

BY CARL C.CRANMER

THE RUSSIAN COUNTEROFFENSIVE WHICH BEGAN AT STALINGRAD ON NOV.19, NEARLY TWO MONTHS AGO, ON A COMPARATIVELY MODEST AND NARROW FRONT, HAS WIDENED LIKE AN AVALANCHE UNTIL NOW IT COVERS MOST OF THE 1,200-MILE FRONT.

JAN 20 1943

IT APPEARS TO BE GATHERING MOMENTUM AS JOSEPH STALIN, WITH CONSUMMATE DRAMA, PILES UP OFFENSIVE UPON OFFENSIVE.

WHEREVER THE RED ARMY STRIKES THE GERMAN LINES CRACK OPEN, ALLOWING A GROWING LIST OF ENCOURAGING AND EVEN SIGNIFICANT GAINS.

THIS IS THE FRONT ON WHICH HITLER BRAGGED IN 1941 HE COULD WAGE WAR ALL AT ONCE.

NOW IT IS THE RUSSIANS WHO WAGE WAR ON SEVEN FRONTS AT ONCE, FROM LENINGRAD TO THE CAUCASUS. ONLY THE SECTOR SOUTH OF MOSCOW AND NORTH OF VORONEZH IS QUIET--AND A NEW OFFENSIVE MAY BE IMPENDING THERE WHEN THE REALLY SERIOUS DRIVE TO TAKE KHARKOV GETS UNDER WAY.

THE GERMANS MAY SOON BE DRIVEN FROM THEIR REMAINING ANCHORS IN FRONT OF LENINGRAD, AND SO PERMIT THE RED ARMY TO BEGIN A SOUTHWARD DRIVE TO SMASH THE GERMAN LINES LEADING TO SMOLENSK AND THE CENTRAL FRONT.

THE ROSTOV GATE, NOW HELD OPEN FOR THE HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS OF GERMANS IN THE CAUCASUS, APPARENTLY IS ABOUT TO BE SNAPPED SHUT.

ALL OF THIS SOUNDS ENCOURAGING.

SINCE SEPTEMBER, 1939, THE ALLIES HAVE FOUGHT IN BELEAGUERED, BESIEGED PLACES--AT KUTNO, RADOM AND WARSAW IN POLAND, AT DUNKERQUE, A TOBRUK AND MALTA, AT LENINGRAD, ODESSA, SEVASTOPOL AND STALINGRAD IN RUSSIA, AT BATAAN AND CORREGIDOR IN THE PHILIPPINES, HONGKONG AND SINGAPORE.

JAN 20 1943

NOW IT IS THE OTHER SIDE THAT FIGHTS IN BELEAGUERED, ESTIMATED BY THE RUSSIANS AT 220,000 MEN IN 22 DIVISIONS, DID NOT BUDGE. THE SURVIVORS ARE STILL THERE, STICKING IT OUT AS THE RUSSIANS SLOWLY CUT THEM TO PIECES.

THIS IS THE BIGGEST CHUNK OF THE GERMAN ARMY THAT THE RUSSIANS HAVE EVER BEEN ABLE TO SURROUND, BUT A BIGGER PIECE PROBABLY WILL BE CAUGHT IN THE CAUCASUS FOR THERE ARE NO SIGNS YET THAT THE GERMANS THERE ARE ATTEMPTING TO ESCAPE THE THREATENED TRAP.

A118

ANOTHER SIZEABLE PORTION OF THE GERMAN ARMY HAS BEEN SURROUNDED, THE RUSSIANS REPORT, TO THE SOUTH OF VORONEZH.

THE GARRISON AT MILLEROVO, ALTHOUGH COMPLETELY SURROUNDED, DID NOT SURRENDER AND WAS ALMOST COMPLETELY ANNIHILATED, THE RUSSIANS ANNOUNCED.

Upper Donetz Drive Is Flanking Rostov

Army Is 45 Miles Above Voroshilovgrad, May Smash to Sea of Azov

JAN 21 1943

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, Jan. 20.—The Red Army, driving deeply into the Ukraine, gained seventeen miles in the sweep toward Kharkov, and farther south reached a point only forty-five miles above Voroshilovgrad, Donetz River industrial center, a special communique announced tonight.

The Russians now have rolled back the Germans to an area where the resilient Red Army itself had retreated last summer when the big Nazi drive began.

[The midnight Soviet communique heard by the Soviet monitor in London said the Russians had captured Mityakinskaya, twenty-two airline miles east of Voroshilovgrad, a junction on a network of railways that winds down to Rostov. Thus, the Russians not only were closing in on the important Nazi base of Rostov from three sides, but might aim to sweep around it to anchor their flying columns on the Sea of Azov behind it.

[British military observers said the Russians in two months had rendered ineffective a total of eighty-nine Axis divisions, sixty of them German, representing the demoralization of some 1,335,000 enemy troops if they were at full divisional strength.]

JAN 21 1943

Drive Toward Kharkov

The southern arm of the Russian sweep toward Kharkov captured Byelokurakina, 115 miles southeast of the industrial center. A northern army is fighting within seventy-nine miles of the city from the east.

Byelokurakina was taken by Soviet troops advancing seventeen miles from Novo-Pskov. Farther south another column took Byelovodsk, forty-five miles above Voroshilovgrad. Other Russian units were threatening Voroshilovgrad in a drive down the railway from Millerovo.

The northern arm is fighting beyond the Urazovo area on the Voronezh-Kupyansk-Kharkov railway.

Seventy miles northeast of this Russian spearhead the Red Army finally smashed a two-day Axis stand in encircled Ostrogozhsk. Two railway trains loaded with motor vehicles and other equipment fell along with the city.

Twenty-three Miles From Salsk

In the Caucasus the Red Army overran Proletarskaya, about twenty-three miles from Nazi-held Salsk, a key rail and air base 100 miles southeast of Rostov. It is from Salsk that the Germans have been flying in supplies to the twenty-two Nazi divisions slowly being throttled in the trap before Stalingrad.

Below Proletarskaya the Russians cleared out the enemy [illegible] the entire northern bank of Manych Canal. The canal lies between the lake area of the [illegible] Caucasus and the Manych River that flows northward into the Don east of Rostov.

Deeper in the Caucasus the Russians advancing northwestward along the Mineralnye Vody-Armavir-Rostov railway captured Nevinnomysk, only fifty miles from Armavir on the approaches to the Nazi-held Maikop oil fields.

Thus the Russians slowly were tightening an almost-completed noose around the Nazi armies in the Caucasus, forcing them to fall back on Rostov, which is menaced from the north and east by Russian armies operating as close as sixty or seventy miles.

Nevinnomysk, 200 miles southeast of Rostov, is the lower end of this irregular loop, and the western end is the Black Sea.

The noon communique said the Russians already had crossed the Manych River, which is north of the Salsk-Proletarskaya area. These troops and those operating along the lower Don River are meeting determined Axis resistance because of their nearness to Rostov, whose capture would cut off the retreat of the Nazi forces deep in the Caucasus.

Soviet troops crossing the Donetz River below Kamensk, eighty-five miles north of Rostov, also were threatening to close this ring that developed from a triple Russian offensive sprung from Stalingrad, the Middle Don and the Caucasian Mountain foothills. This Red Army column last was reported only seventy-five miles from Rostov.

Two other Soviet operations are under way on an irregular front stretching 1,200 miles across Russia. On the central front southwest of Velikie Luki, ninety miles from the Latvian frontier, the noon communique said five more towns were added to the Red Army's list.

On the Leningrad front, Moscow dispatches said, the Russians were storming two major German positions in an attempt to widen the relief corridor to that city that underwent a seventeen-month siege. One of the Nazi strongpoints was described as the enemy's main bastion in the Volkhov area southeast of Leningrad.

Storm 2 Major Nazi Posts About Leningrad

JAN 21 1943

Moscow, Jan. 20 (AP).—The Russians were storming two major German positions about Leningrad tonight in an effort to widen the corridor of relief to that city.

Meanwhile the Soviet forces of the south smashed on toward Kharkov and strengthened the envelopment of a group of enemy divisions cut off beyond Voronezh.

The Caucasus offensive likewise still was rolling on, the midday communique of the Soviet command reporting the recapture of several additional settlements there.

Hit Main Volkhov Stronghold

The Leningrad-Volkhov river armies, whose juncture some days ago had lifted the Leningrad siege, were assaulting two powerful Nazi garrison points, one of which was described in field dispatches as the enemy's main stronghold in the Volkhov area to the southeast of the city.

A third fortified center of enemy resistance had fallen to the Leningrad offensive, and with it a series of blockhouses and dugouts.

The Voronezh offensive which earlier had carried to within seventy-nin emiles of Kharkov was said by the Soviet command to have overrun a number of towns and to have "tightened the ring" about an Axis force of many thousands.

The campaign to cut down the last of the trapped Nazi forces about Stalingrad went forward with the slow destruction of enemy strong points, and the offensive west of Moscow rolled over five more populated points southwest of Velikie Luki.

Nowhere, from the Neva river near Leningrad south to the Kuban in the Caucasus, were the Germans able to halt the Red advance.

The invaders' most stubborn resistance was on the Leningrad-Volkhov front, where he still had in hand numerous fine fortifications and an abundance of munitions, weapons and troops.

Foe Sags On Voronezh Front

The Voronezh front appeared perhaps his weakest; it was there that the Italians, Hungarians and Germans were sagging perceptibly.

[The German communique claimed the repulse of "local Soviet attacks" in the Caucasus and between the Caucasus and the Don. Along the Don, it said "German troops assisted by the Luftwaffe checked enemy attacks partly." As to Stalingrad, the Nazi command asserted that the Nazis "despite serious privation stubbornly defended themselves against all Soviet attacks."]

The day brought a description by the Government newspaper Izvestia of the first meeting between units of the Leningrad and Volkhov armies.

GERMAN DEFENSE WEAKENS

Moscow Reports Foe Is Unable to Make Successful Stand Anywhere on Front.

JAN 21 1943

Moscow, Jan. 20 (AP).—The Red Army pressed ahead today with mounting force on its two newest offensive fronts, toward Kharkov in the Ukraine and along the newly opened corridor to Leningrad, and the Russians declared that the Germans had been unable to hold a successful defense anywhere along the battle line.

In their push southwest of Voronezh, where the Russians were within seventy-nine miles of the big German base at Kharkov, Red Star reported a large enemy force encircled and said the pace of the Russian advance was increasing.

In the north the Army newspaper declared that two powerfully fortified Nazi garrisons were under heavy Russian attack—one described as the main stronghold in the Volkhov sector south of Leningrad, and the other on the Leningrad front. They were not otherwise identified.

[British Military sources said in London that in the Russian offenses so far sixty German divisions had been badly mauled and twenty-nine of their Satellite divisions practically knocked out. It was said that although these divisions were not entirely destroyed they had been hit so hard they could no longer be considered fighting units. These eighty-nine divisions would represent some 1,335,000 men.]

The Russians announced that Lieut.-Gen. Filip Ivanovich Golikov, commander on the new Voronezh front, had been promoted to colonel-general.

Reds Seize Kamensk.

The advance on Kharkov, stemming from the Voronezh sector, had pushed fifty miles through Valuiki, junction point of three railroads east of Kharkov, and into Urazovo. The Red Army here stood directly east of the Ukrainian capital, often called the "Pittsburgh of the Ukraine" because of its industrial importance.

The occupation of Valuiki enabled the Russians to cut for the first time the rail line which runs north to Kastornoye, between Voronezh and Kursk, paralleling the main Moscow-Rostov line. The penetration to Urazovo put the Soviet Army within thirty miles of Kupiansk, one of the first cities taken by the Germans in their offensive on the Kharkov front last summer.

A special communique claimed the capture of Kamensk after hard street fighting. This at once consolidated the Red Army's bridgehead on the south bank of the Donets River and put a main body at a point eighty-five miles north of Rostov on the main Moscow-Rostov railway. Some advance guards are ten miles nearer Rostov.

Key Caucasus Town Taken.

The recapture of Petrovskoe, in the northern Caucasus, was hailed as another major success in the special communique. It lies at a junction of railroads from Divnoe and Blagodarnoe, forming a line that runs southwest to Stavropol. These roads lead toward Armavir, the Maikop oil fields and the strong point effected by the Germans at Kropotkin.

[Russian troops are now reported to be within twenty miles of Voroshilovsk, the grain center on the loop railway, joining the Rostov-Baku line, the British radio said today. CBS in New York recorded the broadcast. The town of Proletarskaya, on the network running south to the Maikop oil zone, is already being hammered by Soviet guns, while in the Velikie Luki sector, the Russians are now driving hard for Nevel, an important railway town, BBC reported today in another broadcast heard by CBS.]

The Russian troops in the lower Caucasus were also reported to have crossed the Kuban River after occupying Cherkessk in the face of stubborn enemy resistance.

[In London, British military observers noting German radio admissions that there had been "considerable Soviet gains in the western Caucasus" said that this meant that the Red Army may have another drive or two up its sleeve—with the freeing of Krasnodar and Novorossisk as the objective. The

GERMANS TOLD OF DISASTER

Axis Press Reveals Nazi Reverses in Russia.

JAN 21 1943

Berne, Jan. 20 (A. P.).—The Nazi press in endeavoring to explain the German reverses on the eastern front is admitting the superiority of Russian resources and material.

The Berlin correspondent of the Neue Zuercher Zeitung quoted the Voelkischer Beobachter, Adolf Hitler's newspaper, as telling the Germans at home that they "should see how difficult is the fighting on the eastern front." The Russians, the newspaper said, have "more soldiers, more guns and more tanks than a year ago."

Under the heading "The Tragedy of Stalingrad," the Basler Nachrichten said the show in that sector might have a few more scenes but it was the last act.

"The tragic outcome for the Germans can no longer be doubted," it said.

Losses More Serious to Nazis.

Sketching the battle of Stalingrad, the newspaper said the Germans now must reckon with the loss of more than twenty divisions and with a defeat greater than any suffered in this war. They will recover from this defeat, it said, as their adversaries have from their defeats, but it will cost them more.

The newspaper explained that in fighting men as well as materials the Allies have greater reserves than the Axis nations. Russian man power, it said, is more than twice Germany's, and therefore the loss of twenty divisions by the Germans "is twice as serious as it would be for the Russians."

Relazioni Internationale, Italian weekly, told Italians that the war of rapid movement had ended and now entered a new phase in which the element of time "ceased to be a factor unfavorable to the tripartite Powers (Germany, Italy and Japan)."

Slower Warfare Predicted.

Both Allied and Axis camps, it said, dominate large spaces adequate to sustain their war effort.

"The need today," it said, is to use these areas to maximum capacity to meet the productive war no less than the strategic war with the greatest effort. 'Lightning war has been replaced by a war which will be tenaciously fought meter by meter and working hour by working hour on both the military and home fronts."

The Berlin correspondent of Il Giornale d'Italia said that fresh troops were used by the Russians in the Stalingrad area and in the region south of Lake Ladoga and that they had a better fighting spirit than forces used in preceding battles.

These new forces, he said, are better armed, better trained and better equipped and this especially is true of the motorized corps thrown against Rzhev. Soviet troops, he added, possessed great fire power and have great mobility.

NAZIS CLAIM STIFF DEFENSE

The German High Command asserted yesterday that the Nazi "defenders of the area of Stalingrad," though suffering "serious privation," continued to "defend themselves stubbornly against all Soviet attacks." These are the remnants of twenty-two divisions that Moscow has reported trapped before Stalingrad.

The communiqué, recorded by The Associated Press, devoted this passage to the situation near Leningrad, where the Russians have reported the long siege lifted:

"Strong enemy attacks south of Lake Ladoga collapsed in the course of enemy fighting. Local breaks in the German line were dealt with or led to the cutting off of enemy groups."

In the western part of the Caucasus, the communiqué said, German, Rumanian and Slovak troops repulsed local Soviet attacks.

Southeast of Lake Ilmen, the bulletin reported, an encircled "enemy combat group" was annihilated. Another Soviet group was driven from its positions and prevented from relieving the encircled Russians, the announcement said.

Raid Smashes London School, Shoppers Are Machine-Gunned

60 to 93 Pupils Die at Lunch, 16 More Killed Elsewhere in City as Six Nazi Planes Break Past Defenses; 13 Enemy Craft Downed

Associated Press Staff Writer

JAN 21 1943

London, Jan. 20.—German rooftop raiders killed at least 30 school children and buried 30 to 63 more and three teachers under tons of debris in a swift small-scale attack on London at noon today.

[illegible] was the worst [illegible] ow suffered by London schools [illegible]e the Blitz attacks began. The highest previous death toll in bombed schools was twenty-four.

Six Raiders Over London

Only six raiders eluded London's defenses and the school, in the heart of a residential secion, was smashed into rubble.

From thirty to sixty-three children and their teachers still are buried in the ruins without scant hope that any are alive, but 200 rescue workers kept digging for them.

Only eleven children and one teacher in the building emerged alive. The bodies of thirty children from 6 to 14 years of age had been recovered.

Victims Elsewhere

The known victims besides the children in the one building were ten children and six women killed by a bomb which smashed three London houses, and six children and three women killed when a bomb passed through the top of a cafe and across a street into a row of houses.

In southern England, where the raiders also delivered destruction, one elderly man died of shock in a southeast coastal town where forty to sixty planes appeared in two waves, but dropped no bombs.

Probably thirty heavily escorted raiders were bound for London and, in all, at least thirteen Focke-Wulf 190s and Messerschmitt 109 fighter-bombers were shot down by RAF fighters.

Theater Party Planned

Twice the usual number of children had remained at the school cafeteria instead of going home, for immediately after luncheon they were going on a theater party.

Residents said three planes flew low over the district and dropped bombs.

JAN 21 1943

Some of the explosives wrecked an entire block of buildings near by. Children on a playground escaped machine-gun fire from the planes, but three persons half a block away were wounded.

Fire broke out in the school. It was extinguished after a two-hour fight.

Children Of War Workers

The majority of the mothers and fathers of the children work in war factories and did not learn until tonight that their sons and daughters had been killed.

Most of the 400 pupils attending the school had returned to London from evacuation areas a year ago, and the school was reopened for them. It had been hit by a bomb in 1940 and five persons were killed.

Although the raid was relatively small, it resulted in the biggest dogfights over England since the dark days of the Battle of Britain.

100 Fighters In Escort

Escorted by up to one hundred fighters, some twenty-five German fighter-bombers approached the coast at Beachyhead, fanned out and headed straight for London at top speed.

Some half dozen got through the RAF and Royal Canadian Air Force fighters, who heavily engaged the force and damaged many others in addition to shooting down the thirteen.

Here is the joint communique of the Air and Home Security ministries on the day's aerial action:

"Early this morning there was some activity over the Strait of Dover and one of our fighter patrols destroyed an enemy aircraft.

Spread Over Wide Area

"Shortly after midday some twenty-five enemy fighter-bombers crossed the southeast coast and spread over a wide area of Kent and Sussex and some half a dozen penetrated to the London area.

"Bombs were dropped at scattered points. Damage was not extensive, but there were a number of casualties, particularly at an elementary school, where a number of children were killed.

"Meanwhile, other enemy fighters were on operations over the Channel and bombs also were dropped on the Isle of Wight, where several houses were damaged and one casualty was reported.

"RAF and RCAF fighters heavily engaged the enemy at all points, destroying eleven of his aircraft and damaging many others.

Thirteenth Fighter Downed

"Later in the afternoon the thirteenth enemy fighter was destroyed by our patrols off the Kent coast.

"Two of our fighters were lost, but the pilot of one is safe."

The raiders slipping through to London wrecked several houses in at least four districts, damaged shops and a train, and machine-gunned shoppers in the streets.

Sweeping over rooftops to evade the great number of anti-aircraft guns in the London area, the raiders let go their bombs and raked everything in sight and then turned for home.

Villages Are Attacked

Some of the escort and other fighter-bombers attacked villages in south England. A typical attack was made by four hedge-hopping fighters machine-gunning two villages on the London outskirts. Their fire at one place was turned on a race-horse owner and trainer and eight horses. Two horses were killed.

Other fighter-bombers flew over rooftops of a southeastern town, dropping high explosives among houses and shops.

The RAF carried out intruder raids on occupied Europe last night, having slacked off operations since the Saturday and Sunday night raids on Berlin.

Threatens Rome Bombing

In the House of Commons Anthony Eden, Foreign Secretary, said Rome would not be spared from bombings if such attacks were necessary to the war effort.

The Air Ministry later announced an enemy fighter was destroyed during the afternoon by fighters on a sweep in which the RAF damaged railway locomotives in northern France and Belgium and factories at Hengelo, Holland. No British planes were reported lost.

Southeast Coast Raided

LONDON, Jan. 20 (AP)—Night raiders dropped incendiaries tonight in a residential area of a southeast coastal town and started a small number of fires, which were quickly put out.

No casualties were reported but there was considerable property damage. One man died of shock during a raid earlier in the day.

At another part of the southeast coast planes flew inland and heavy gunfire was heard.

These attacks today followed up overnight operations in which Royal Air Force fighters ranged over the Continent on intruder patrols, attacking railway targets in Northern France, Belgium and the Netherlands. The Air Ministry said the forays were carried out without loss.

One German fighter was shot down early this morning by British fighters off the southeast coast of England.

The account of the noontime raid on London, as given by D. N. B., the official German news agency, would have surprised many Londoners who scanned the skies in vain for a sight of a German plane.

D. N. B. reported that the center of the capital was "blitzed" by "waves of fighter-bombers accompanied by 100 fighters."

This formidable fleet, according to the D. N. B. version for the German people, "appeared over the great Thames bend, swooped down on districts east and northeast of Greenwich Park," dropped bombs at rooftop height on Trafalgar Road, and shot down seven barrage balloons.

The German people were not told that only twenty-five fighter-bombers crossed the coast and only six reached London.

London, Jan. 20 (AP)—Two air-raid alarms sounded in London tonight, the second coming at about 11 P. M. No gunfire or planes were heard during the first brief alert.

Night raiders dropped incendiaries in a residential area of a southeast costal town and started a small number of fires which were quickly put out. No casualties were reported, but there was considerable prop[illegible] damage.

JAN 21 1943

Attackers Fire on Holiday Crowds and Train—13 Raiding Planes Are Shot Down.

London, Jan. 20 (A. P.).—London was bombed and machine-gunned today in the largest German daylight raid since the battle of Britain, and preliminary reports indicated that at least thirteen of the attacking planes were shot down by British fighters alone.

The raiders dealt the heaviest blow of the war to London's school children. From the wreckage of an elementary school in the heart of a residential district the bodies of thirty boys and girls from 6 to 14 years old were recovered by nightfall.

Two hundred men dug into the debris for thirty to sixty more children—no one knew exactly how many were there—and at least three teachers. But almost no hope was held that any of them would be found alive.

Only eleven children and one teacher emerged from the bombed building alive, and some of them were injured critically.

Ten children and six women were killed in one London district when a single bomb destroyed three houses, while in another section six children and three women were killed when a bomb passed through the top of a cafe and burst in a row of houses.

These brought the total of London's deaths to at least fifty-five.

Two sections of the city were bombed and some homes were destroyed.

The Germans attacked under cover of fifty to 100 fighters who patroled the channel. It was estimated that twenty-five to thirty fighter bombers struck inland across Kent and Sussex. They were engaged by R. A. F. fighters and only a few reached London.

Street Crowds Machine-gunned.

The planes attacked during the lunch hour, machine-gunning streets and buildings after sweeping in over southern England in greater force than in any daylight raid in two years.

Pedestrians, shoppers and a train approaching London were machine-gunned. Despite the severity of the attack, many persons remained in the streets to watch the biggest aerial fight over the city since the battle of Britain in 1940.

It was a small-scale repetition of any of a score of days during the early aerial battle of Britain when the Luftwaffe frequently struck by daylight. It was the first daytime alert for the British capital since last October 26 and the first daytime bombing since last July 17.

Heavy and light anti-aircraft batteries in some sections fired almost constantly for ten minutes. British fighters also engaged the raiders in aerial battles.

Continent Raided Overnight.

The attacks today followed up overnight operations in which the R. A. F. ranged over the Continent on intruder patrols, attacking railway targets in northern France, Belgium and the Netherlands. The Air Ministry said the forays were carried out without loss.

One German fighter was shot down early this morning by British fighters off the southeast coast of England.

In London planes machine-gunned pedestrians and shoppers and men working in vegetable plots. The barrage balloons were destroyed, one in flames. A train approaching London was machine-gunned, but no casualties were reported.

Murder Trial Suspended.

A number of spectators at a murder trial took shelter in the cells of Old Bailey when the trial was suspended during the alert. But many persons remained in the streets to watch the biggest aerial battle over the city since the battle of Britain.

One force of raiders heading for London was turned back outside the city by British fighters, and jettisoned its bombs. Fighters and ground defenses turned back another twenty German planes over the southeast coast.

14 Axis Ships Are 3-Day Bag In Mediterranean

Twin Columns Of British Army Push Within Forty And Sixty Miles Of Burning Libyan Capital

[By the Associated Press]

London Jan. 20—The British tonight announced the sinking of fourteen enemy ships in the central Mediterranean in the most extensive sweep of those waters in months.

The blow apparently was timed to support the renewed British drive on Tripoli which has carried the Eighth Army to within forty and sixty miles of the bombed and burning city.

Twin British columns were surging down upon Tripoli amidst strong indications that the Axis defense of the capital of Mussolini's tottering Libya would be only a delaying action.

Greek Craft In Pack

A communique by the Admiralty tonight disclosed that a pack of destroyers, six British and one Greek, sank these vessels on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday nights without damage or loss:

A 3,000-ton supply ship, apparently carrying ammunition, which blew up south of Sardinia.

Ten ships of varying sizes, off Tunisia.

A motor launch, also off Tunisia.

A small naval vessel carrying gasoline to the island of Lampedusa.

A British submarine chased an enemy supply ship for five hours and sent her down off the Tunisian coast. This same submersible also drove ashore two small supply ships, both burning.

23 Bagged This Year

The destruction of these ships swept Mussolini's mare nostrum virtually clean from the Tunisian coast to Sardinia as the Eighth Army steadily drew nearer to Tripoli.

The navy has announced the destruction of twenty-three surface craft in the central Mediterranean since the first of the year.

The absence of opposition at sea was taken here to indicate there was little probability of the Axis attempting to evacuate its forces from Tripolitania and Tunisia. Thus these would be squeezed between the advancing Eighth Army and the Allied forces in Tunisia.

Some Well West Of Tripoli

A broadcast of the Morocco radio recorded here said that part of Marshal Erwin Rommel's retreating Axis forces already is well to the west of Tripoli and moving rapidly toward the Tunisian frontier.

To the northwest, in Tunisia, the Axis tank forces pushed forward seven miles into French-held positions southwest of Pont Du Fahs in an apparent move to take some of the pressure off Marshal Rommel's route of retreat from Tripolitania.

Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's troops advanced yesterday more than twenty-five miles along the coastal road to the Homs area, sixty miles east of Tripoli, while a companion spearhead of the Eighth Army swept in on Tarhuna, forty miles from Tripoli.

In Suburbs, Axis Reports

Reuters reported that the Axis radio station broadcasting under the false name of "Radio Brazzaville" had announced that British troops were in the suburbs of Tripoli, but there was no confirmation of this from any Allied source.

London quarters said they had no information to show the British were even as close as thirty miles to Tripoli, as reported in a Cairo broadcast last night.

That Rommel was not defending Tarhuna was clearly indicated, it was said, by the volume of transport moving to the west at that place.

Fighting French Advance

Brig. Gen. Jaques LeClerc, the Fighting French leader who has swept up from the Lake Chad area, announced that his troops under command of Colonel Ingold "are attacking on the left flank of the British Eighth Army and have advanced northward."

This indicated that the Fighting French may have made contact with the Eighth Army.

The Eighth Army menacing Tripoli itself has gathered such momentum that observers here believed it would sweep through the city before Rommel could organize a real defense, then rush on to Tunisia to launch a simultaneous, all-out attack with the First Army.

Enemy Transport Blasted

United States pilots with the Allied forces in Tunisia, who have blasted the enemy motor transport column along the coastal road west of Tripoli, observed Axis columns were moving in both east and west, indicating that Rommel was shuttling vehicles to speed removel of equipment, supplies and troops from Tripoli into Tunisia.

Reports from Allied headquarters in North Africa said military sources considered it likely that Rommel intended a retreat into Tunisia to establish himself behind the Mareth line, a strip of fortified highlands just inside southern Tunisia.

In the Pont Du Fahs area of Tunisia the German tank column, under its new commander, Gen. von Arnim, shoved forward along the road from Pont Du Fahs southwest toward Robaa, about twenty-eight miles away.

High Ground Held

To the north of Pont Du Fahs, a spokesman at Allied headquarters in North Africa said, "Every Axis soldier who has advanced to the west side of the road running between Bou Arada and Goubellat" has been cleared out.

We hold the high ground to the southwest of Bou Arada," he said, "and our artillery by continuous shelling is denying (enemy) use of the road running almost due west from Pont Du Fahs."

It was reported from Cairo that Malta-based bombers raider Tripoli Sunday night and statred fires and explosions near the power house and main railway station. It was the fourth successive night that medium bombers from the island had made an attack.

Tunisian Roads Swept

Other planes on the same night swept Tunisian raids with cannon and machine-gun fire.

During daylight yesterday, it was reported, Malta's fighters and fighter-bombers swept the area around Porto Empedocle, Sicily, and scored bomb hits on harbor installations, roads and railways. One small ship entering the harbor was shot up.

In the afternoon, it was added, a train traveling from Ragusa to Syracuse was attacked by RAF fighter-bombers which destroyed the locomotive and straddled the length of the train with bombs.

Nazi Tanks Advance in Tunisia, Smashing Ahead for Seven Miles Into French Positions Below Pont du Fahs.

NORGAARD JAN 21 1943

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Jan. 20 (A. P.).—Axis tank forces, in an apparent attempt to divert pressure on Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's army retreat corridor to southern Tunisia, have smashed seven miles into the French-held Allied positions southwest of Pont du Fahs.

Simultaneous with this disclosure by the Allied headquarters communique, an official French announcement said that German parachutists had been dropped in Algeria, presumably near the capital city of Algiers. Official offers of cash and clothing coupon rewards for their capture were published in the Algerian press.

The German tank column under Gen. von Arnim slashed through the French Tunisian positions in a drive along the road from Pont du Fahs, southwest toward Robaa, about twenty-eight miles away. To the north of Pont du Fahs, an Allied headquarters spokesman said, "Every Axis soldier who has advanced to the west side of the road running between Bou Arada and Goubellat" has been cleared out.

"We hold the high ground to the southeast of Bou Arada," the spokesman said, "and our artillery by continuous shelling is denying (enemy) use of the road running almost due west from Pont du Fahs."

It appeared evident that Gen. von Arnim's column was bending every effort to prevent an Allied assault on the narrow corridor south of the Pont du Fahs area, which is his sole land communication with Marshal Rommel's Africa Corps. Communication lines between Tunisia and Marshal Rommel's retreating columns were under further pressure from the air as United States fighter planes launched widespread attacks on roads all the way from Tripolitania to Tunis.

U. S. Air Force Strikes.

A squadron of Lightning P-38s struck a big Axis transport column on the highway between Zhara, in Tripolitania, and Ben Gardane, on the Tunisian side of the border. The fighters destroyed at least twenty vehicles with cannon and machine-gun fire, and one P-38 was missing after the operation. Pilots reported that many transport columns were moving in both directions along this road, which Marshal Rommel would be compelled to use to effect a junction with Gen. von Arnim's forces.

Military quarters here said they had definite information that Gen. von Arnim had succeeded Gen. Walther Nehring as commander of Axis forces in Tunisia. An Allied headquarters spokesman said that Gen. von Arnim was known as a tank expert who always had been on "the edge of the spotlight," but this was the first time he had been trusted with such an important command.

Hurricane and Spitfire fighters of the Royal Air Force operated in close support of the British and French ground forces resisting the tank push below Pont du Fahs, sweeping down on a column of vehicles and between 300 and 400 marching men. Many direct hits were seen on the road, the spokesman said.

Flying Fortresses Raid Sousse.

Announcement of the reward for the Axis parachutists at Algiers revealed that some already had been rounded up and that others in flight were about to be arrested. Allied headquarters also reported that Flying Fortresses had dropped bombs in the coastal area of Sousse, where "hits were made on industrial buildings and railway yards." The Fortresses all returned safely, the announcement said.

In addition to the heavy bombers, United States medium bombers and fighters ranged over most of the Tunisian front, from the capital area in the north to points near the Tunisian-Libyan border in the south.

Three B-25 Mitchell medium bombers bombed targets at Medenine, in the far south, the communique said; P-38 Lightning fighters attacked a column of enemy vehicles near the frontier, destroying about twenty of them, and on Monday night Allied medium bombers attacked roads and railways in the Tunis-Sousse area, destroying a train and scoring hits on motor transport.

The communique reported one enemy bomber destroyed on Monday and concluded, "From all these operations, two of our aircraft are missing.

British Gunners Blast Nazi Tanks.

With Allied Forces at Bou Arada, Tunisia, Jan. 18 (Delayed) (A. P.),—The Nazis left at least eight smoking tank hulks on the plain northeast of here today in an abortive attempt to regain important high ground lost to attacking British tanks and infantry last week. The battle for control of the Bou Arada area reopened at dawn, when the Germans sent their tanks crashing westward toward the arterial north-south Goubellat road.

At the same time, infantry attacked "Grandstand Ridge"—hills east of the road which the Allies captured eight days ago. Some tanks reached the road in an effort to envelop infantry positions on the hills, but at least a third of the striking force was knocked out by artillery. NM B.KING

Concealed British gunners held their fire until the tanks were in easy range, then blasted away with devastating effect. Some infantry and tanks attacking our fixed positions also succeeded in overrunning the ridge.

Irish Troops in Action.

They were cleared off in short order, however, by a crack Irish regiment. An afternoon counter-attack improved the British position even further.

The fight which in its early stages was little more than that of a patrol in extra strong force appeared to be developing into a major battle. Both the Axis and Allies are using strong tank forces despite the fact that routes have to be mapped meticulously to avoid marshy ground.

Gen. von Arnim, the German commander, apparently considers the hills northeast and northwest of Bou Arada vital to the defense of Axis holdings in coastal and southern Tunisia. The heights command the whole of the Goubellat plain, in addition to the valley extending to Pont du Fahs.

Peyrouton Expected To Oust Pro-Laval Officials in Algeria

New Governor General Known as Outstanding French Administrator

JAN 21 1943

By the Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 20.—As Marshal Erwin Rommel's retreating Axis army was reported streaming into a three-way Allied squeeze in Tunisia today confused North Africans watched for the first move of the new Algerian Governor General, Marcel Peyrouton, long-time foe of Pierre Laval.

M. Peyrouton was named yesterday to replace Yves Chatel in what observers here regarded as a move to install a firm and expert administration and at the same time rid Algeria of Laval sympathizers. M. Peyrouton's experience as a former governor general of Tunisia also was expected to be invaluable in the clash which the retreat of Rommel's forces was bringing closer hourly.

Italians Out of Sahara.

A French spokesman reported that the Italians had been driven out of the Sahara Desert, except at Gadames, an Italian fort in Tripolitania across the Tunisian border from Fort Saint Anchor. He said that there were "no important Axis strongholds between the French in the Sahara and Tripoli." Gadames, he said, was being approached from all sides.

Gov. Peyrouton, a former Minister of the Interior in the Vichy Government and later Ambassador to Argentina, is known as an outstanding administrator. Informed sources were confident today that his appointment meant a thorough house-cleaning of minor pro-Laval political figures in Algeria.

(The Fighting French in London were immediately critical of the Peyrouton appointment and a spokesman said "it is impossible to estimate how many thousand French patriots were sent to prison and tortured by Peyrouton during his tenure of office as chief of Vichy police and Minister of the Interior." He was described by the Fighting French as a former Fascist sympathizer.

(The London Daily Herald, laborite newspaper, said the appointment was a "political blunder of the first water" and added: "Peyrouton is distrusted by Frenchmen of all parties, detested by the Arab population and loathed by De Gaulle and his colleagues. A worse choice could not have been made.")

It was understood that all new appointments in North Africa are first scrutinized and approved by representatives of the United States and British governments. Peyrouton's supporters pointed out that while he was Minister of Interior at Vichy he often went out of his way to help American interests despite German pressure.

Robert Murphy, President Roosevelt's diplomatic representative in North Africa, was attacked by a Fighting French spokesman in London yesterday. The spokesman said he had a letter from "a prominent political personage" in Algiers, saying that Mr. Murphy refused to listen to French republicans and is surrounded by former collaborationist advisers.

Rommel Stand Expected At Mareth Line in Tunisia

Allies Predict He Will Fall Back on Position Built by French

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 20 (AP).—Military sources said today it was likely that Field Marshal Erwin Rommel intends to retreat into Tunisia and then establish himself behind the Mareth Line, a strip of highlands inside southern Tunisia which the French fortified as a defense against invasion from Tripolitania.

The Mareth Line, which is likened in military circles to the Halfaya Pass near the Egyptian-Libyan frontier, was built in three strips consisting mostly of well placed concrete pillboxes and gun emplacements without continuous structures.

It was constructed in the late 1930's, but the Italians in 1940 moved in and reversed the guns to point west instead of east. It was considered certain here that the Germans could within a very short time again reverse the guns and make this line a powerful bulwark against further attack from the east, provided Rommel is able to move this army more or less intact into Tunisia.

U. S. AIRCRAFT ARE PRAISED

Workmanship Credited With Saving Lives Of Scores Of American Men

Good Planes And Daring Pilots Called Match For Veterans Of Luftwaffe

JAN 21 1943

By NOLAND NORGAARD

[Associated Press Correspondent]

American Army Headquarters, North Africa (Delayed) — The sound workmanship and engineering skill of the United States aircraft industry are saving the lives of scores of American pilots, while the endurance and daring of these pilots make relatively inexperienced American squadrons a match for the Luftwaffe's veterans on the American front.

I have just returned from a forward air base in Tunisia where green American flyers arrived one day six weeks ago, landed to refuel their planes and then took off almost immediately to attack land forces and battle the Germans in the skies.

Operations Difficult

They have been doing it ever since under operational conditions which impose almost unheard-of hardships on both men and machines.

Pilots who have been on probational missions nearly every day during these six weeks, sometimes flying as many as three sorties in a single day, were setting out for renewed attacks in planes with motors that had gone through many hours of the toughest kind of flying without an overhaul of any kind.

Far more important was the fact that those planes frequently brought their pilots back safely after they had suffered damage which seemingly should have caused them to crash instantly.

Five-Week Record

This point is illustrated by the five-week record of one squadron. It flew well over 1,000 operational hours from that desert air base, battling the latest-model German Messerschmitt 109s and Focke-Wulf [illegible] over German-held territory, where the advantage lay [illegible] team.

The squadron's number of serviceable planes diminished because there was neither time nor facilities to repair the most badly damaged. Finally it was impossible for all of the squadron pilots to take to the air at any given time.

Despite all this, the squadron lost only two pilots in those five weeks, and one of these is believed to have been taken prisoner after he landed the battered remnants of his P-40 after an encounter with several Messerschmitts.

JAN 21 1943

More Planes, Pilots Ready

The squadron has since received more planes and, thanks to the sturdiness of their predecessors, there are battle-seasoned pilots to fly them.

The sturdy construction of their planes is only one reason why the P-40 pilots came through those strenuous early weeks with relatively slight losses. The pilots found that the latest German fighters could do some things the P-40 was unable to match, but, conversely, the P-40 had qualities the German planes lacked. They simply learned to use such advantages as they possessed.

No one was more impressed with the way the American planes stood up than Lieut. Col. William W. Momyer, of Seattle, commander of the P-40 group in Tunisia.

Trains RAF Group

Momyer spent several months preceding Pearl Harbor—training RAF pilots in the Libyan desert to fly the P-40 and, while he was so doing, scored his first victory by shooting down a Junkers 87 dive bomber which attacked a field where he was stationed. In Tunisia he destroyed a Messerschmitt 109 and a Junkers 88 and damaged another Junkers 88.

"We found the average life of the engine in the fighter planes in Libya less than here," he explained. "Here we got a lot of P-40s which got 100 and more hours of combat time, and the way we've been pushing them that's a hell of a lot of flying. But they're standing up."

British Advance on Tripoli.

Cairo, Jan. 20 (A. P.).—The British Eighth Army, closing in on Tripoli, reached the crest of Nefusa ridge today for its last downgrade sweep of less than fifty miles against the bombed and burning Libyan capital, which American bombers kept blasting daily. Two of Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's columns were advancing upon Tarhuna and Homs, forty and sixty miles respectively from Tripoli.

[A communique from the Fighting French headquarters of Gen le Clerc announced that "our troops under command of Col. Ingold are attacking on the left flank of the British Eighth Army and have advanced northward." The wording of the communique suggested that the Fighting French, moving up from the South, might be in contact with the Eighth Army. If so this would seal the ring around the Axis positions. The Fighting French already had been reported in contact with Allied forces in southern Tunisia.]

[The Dakar radio this afternoon quoted an unconfirmed report as saying that "a British column had entered the suburbs of Tripoli, which is in flames." The broadcast, recorded in New York by the Columbia listening post, also said that the column of the British Eighth Army which followed the coast had taken Homs.]

Nefusa Ridge, which begins near Tarhupa, is linked into a semi-circle of rugged hills guarding Tripoli from the east and south and sloping like a saucer down to the Jefara plain between Tripoli and the Tunisian frontier. B-24 Liberators blazed the way for the attack, with continued heavy blows by daylight yesterday against the Libyan capital, and extended their raids westward to the Tunisian supply port of Sousse, where a merchant vessel was hit and bombs burst along the docks and quays.

Americans Raid Airdrome.

An American headquarters communique said: "At Tripoli, cloud conditions obscured most of the bursts, but all the bombs hit within the target area." American medium bombers raided Castel Benito airdrome, thirteen miles south of Tripoli, again starting fires.

Forced to resort to other airfields further in the rear, the German Air Force was able to maintain aerial activity, but failed to prevent continued, relentless Allied attacks on German columns reported moving west of Tripoli on roads to Tunisia.

[The chief obstacle to the Eighth Army's advance on Tripoli is an anti-tank ditch prepared by Marshal Rommel in the narrow coastal strip between the Djebel Hills and the [illegible], the British radio's Cairo correspondent reported today.]

Sweeping the Axis forces northwestward toward Tripoli, the Eighth Army gathered prisoners, guns and vehicles as it moved forward. The northern wing of Gen. Montgomery's army, reported at Zliten yesterday, moved forward during the day and by evening was closing in on Homs, along the coastal road.

JAN 21 1943

The southern wing, moving toward Tripoli along an inland road, was on the approaches to Tarhuna at [illegible] the same time.

Allied aerial squadrons, operating from advanced air bases, pounded Marshal Rommel's retreating army as it moved away from the overwhelming power of the Eighth Army.

[The Berlin radio said today that British parachutists were being dropped behind Marshal Rommel's lines to harass communications.]

For the last twenty-four hours, the communique said, fighter-bombers and bombers have maintained a continuous pressure on the columns retreating westward from Tarhuna. The fact that these Axis columns were moving westward, instead of northwestward toward Tripoli, might indicate that the southern flank of Marshal Rommel's army planned to by-pass Tripoli completely.

Blank

London, Jan. 20 (AP)—The Fighting French columns which conquered the Italian Fezzan have established contact with the British Eighth Army and have joined in the advance on Tripoli, a communique from Brigadier General Le Clerc's headquarters announced tonight.

The communique, as broadcast by the Fighting French radio at Brazzaville, said:

"The Fighting French forces of Colonel Ingold (the field commander) have established contact with the British Eighth Army and are taking part with their British allies in the advance on Tripoli. They are attacking on the left of the Eighth Army moving northward."

London, Jan. 20.—Obviously stirred by Marcel Peyrouton's appointment as Governor-General of Algeria, the French National Committee met in a special session today, and Fighting French headquarters declared the appointment would shock the French people as much or more than did the agreement with the late Admiral Jean Darlan.

Fighting French circles scoffed at what they termed an Algiers propaganda campaign seeking to build up the Peyrouton appointment as a step toward an agreement between Gen. Henri Giraud and Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

The appointment has further pushed into the background the possibility of a meeting soon of the two French leaders, one reliable source said.

Mr. Eden made no reply to questions concerning the appointment of Marcel Peyrouton as Governor-General of Algeria and North African politics generally. The Foreign Secretary assured Commons that both Britain and the United States lost no opportunities to impress upon the French authorities that all North African prisoners, held because of sympathy to the Allied cause, should be released speedily.

He said he felt that the Vatican joined in the Allied nations' condemnation of Axis atrocities against the Jews in the sense that Pope Pius XII in his Christmas Eve broadcast condemned persecutions generally. He made no reply when asked if there was a chance to obtain from the Vatican something more specific on Jewish persecution.

Mr. Eden said many North African political prisoners already had been released, and a mixed commission set up under the joint chairmanship of the United States and British consuls-general in Algiers was investigating all those whose status was not clear. Releases were being made as fast as possible, he said. Members of the International Brigade and other Spanish republicans are among those to be given speedy consideration by the commission, he added.

The Foreign Secretary said United States authorities reported at the end of December that all French nationals detained for having helped the Allied cause had been ordered freed and the commission would verify that these orders were excuted. He declared that as far as was known no persons were imprisoned merely because they were Jews.

After Mr. Eden had spoken the House went into secret session for a debate on man power.

ALLIES TO PLAN PEACE ECONOMY

Eden Says United Nations Prepare to Co-operate.

JAN 21 1943

London, Jan. 20 (A. P.).—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told Commons today the British Government intended to prepare a common program of postwar economic co-operation in consultation with the United States, Soviet Russia and the other United Nations and said considerable progress had been made in preparatory work.

Asked by a member whether this meant there was no truth to a rumor that the British Government and the U. S. S. R. were at loggerheads, Mr. Eden replied: "I think I can reassure him completely on that point."

CUNNINGHAM IS HONORED

Briton Made Admiral of Fleet—

Other Navy Promotions

LONDON, Jan. 20 (AP)—Britain announced tonight several promotions among her naval leaders, including the elevation of Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, who commanded the naval forces that supported the American-British landings in North Africa, to the rank of Admiral of the Fleet.

The following were made admirals: Sir Guy Charles Cecil Royle who since 1941 has been lent to the Australian Government as a naval member of the Commonwealth Naval Board; Sir John Cronin Tovey commander in chief of the British Home Fleet, and Sir Frederick Edward Collins, vice admiral commanding in the North Atlanti cand admiral superintendent at Gibraltar since 1941.

Rear Admiral Arthur Lumley St. George Lyster, who commanded aircraft carriers that covered the North African landings, and Rear Admiral Sir Harold Martin Burrough, commander of one of the three main naval forces participating in the landings, were promoted to vice admiral.

Cunningham Made Admiral Of Fleet

London, Jan. 20 (AP)—Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, who directed naval operations in connection with the American-British landings in North Africa, was promoted today to the rank of admiral of the fleet.

His advancement was a result of completion of a five-year term in that rank by the Earl of Cork and Orrery.

Briton Wants New Flying Boats From U. S.

London, Jan. 20 (A. P.).—Sir Archibald Sinclair, the Air Minister, was urged in the Commons today to ask the United States to allot several new flying boats to be operated by the British Overseas Aircraft Corporation, to replace old British craft.

The plea came from Oliver E. Simmonds, a Member of Parliament, who said that evidence of a crash at Lisbon January 9, in which thirteen were killed, showed that the British company's craft are overaged. He said that under an agreement by which Britain concentrates on military plane manufacture the United States was to make necessary non-fighting craft and Britain was entitled to the new ones from the United States.

Sir Archibald answered that he would await completion of the inquiry before drawing any conclusions on the Lisbon accident.

Eden Implies Bombs Will Be Rained on Rome

Says R. A. F. Will Act if War Makes Raids Helpful

LONDON, Jan. 20 (AP).—An implied promise that Rome will be bombed by the Royal Air Force "as heavily as possible if the course of the war should render such action convenient and helpful" was voiced by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden to the House of Commons today.

Asked if he had information that a military camp and armament factories are in or near Rome. Eden replied affirmatively. Then he was asked whether Rome is an open city.

"I think," he answered, "that the Prime Minister made it plain last September that we have as much right to bomb Rome as the Italians had to bomb London, and we should not hesitate to do so to the best of our ability and as heavily as possible if the course of the war should render such action convenient and helpful."

The Commons cheered.

Some Italian planes were identified as among raiders who struck sporadically at London in the early days of the bombings.

U. S. TROOPS MOP UP GUADALCANAL JAPS

1,032 Reported By Navy As Killed In Five-Day Operations

JAN 21 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Jan. 20—American troops, relentlessly pressing a campaign to eliminate enemy forces on Guadalcanal, killed 1,032 Japanese in five days of jungle warfare, the navy reported today.

In patrol skirmishes and in comparatively large-scale engagements, they wiped out group after group in the five days ending January 17.

Many of the engagements were within a short distance of Henderson Airfield, base for American planes which have been bombing enemy positions on other islands and attacking shipping in the Solomons area.

Up To 4,000-Yard Gains Made

One was an encounter in which American troops advanced between 3,000 and 4,000 yards to throw back the Japanese despite "stiff enemy resistance" last Friday.

The next day the ground forces again forged ahead, with the enemy offering determined resistance from trenches and ambushes in the jungles.

Other skirmishes took American troops into action against pockets of enemy resistance—small groups of Japanese holding positions from which they could harass American movements. In such actions last last Saturday the navy reported 150 Japanese were killed, a number taken prisoner and a quantity of equipment captured.

Air Force Continues Action

The navy told also today of continued attacks against enemy shipping seeking to reinforce Japanese troops in the Solomons. Bombers flew 300 miles northwest to Shortland Island and found a Japanese cargo vessel at anchor.

Two bombs struck the ship. She burst into flames and was burning when American planes returned to their base.

Aerial resistance was encountered by Flying Fortresses and their fighter escorts on that raid but it was not effective. Two Japanese Zeros equipped with floats for operation on the water were shot down. One American fighter plane failed to return.

ALLIED FORCES PRESS ENEMY AT SANANANDA

MacArthur's Headquarters Hears Japanese Are 'Crumbling'

ARRIVED

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Thursday, Jan. 21 (AP)—Allied jungle fighters, moving so fast they did not have time to count the enemy dead, further compressed Japanese pockets around Sanananda Point in New Guinea while Allied bombers attacked ten points embracing nearly the whole South Pacific area yesterday and the day before.

"The whole thing is crumbling," said a spokesman at General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters concerning the Papuan ground resistance of the Japanese.

On the aerial war front, these achievements were listed:

The jetty at Dobo in the Aroe Islands was raided and one of three Japanese float planes that attempted to intercept probably was damaged. At Ambon in the same sector, a Japanese fighter was shot down by a bomber.

Japanese localities at Lautem in Portuguese Timor were bombed and near Jujioro one of five Japanese fighters trying to intercept was damaged.

Along the coast of the Willaumez Peninsula in New Britain, three barges were strafed and these had to be beached. Also in New Britain, the Gasmata Airdrome, a much-bombed target, was raided, and gun positions were hit at the Cape Gloucester Airdrome.

In New Guinea, the Madang Airdrome and wharf were bombed, as was the Finschhaffen wharf.

Jap Casualties Heavy As Allies Split Last Papuan Garrison

Only Four Isolated Groups Left In Sanananda Area

JAN 21 1943

By the Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Jan. 20.—Allied ground forces have cut the last garrison of Japanese on the Papuan Peninsula of New Guinea into four isolated groups after capturing the village and point of Sanananda, an Allied headquarters communique said today.

Heavy casualties were inflicted on the Japanese in the bitter fighting and only 27 were taken prisoner. Some of the Japanese were reported wandering in the swampy jungle country.

The only remaining enemy resistance was from two Japanese pockets on either side of Sanananda Point and two more on Sanananda road leading to the beach.

The Japanese attempted to aid their apparently doomed ground troops in the Sanananda sector by sending a group of bombers over the battle area to attack Allied troops, but the effort was unsuccessful, the communique said.

Meanwhile, Allied medium bombers raided Japanese supply dumps at Lae, New Guinea, starting many fires, and other Allied aircraft attacked Japanese installations on Timor, on the Kale Islands and at Gasmata, New Britain.

A small Allied vessel was reported torpedoed and sunk in Australian waters with the loss of two lives.

Blast Path for Ground Forces Advancing on Akyab Over Stiffening Resistance

JAN 21 1943

NEW DELHI, India, Jan. 20 (AP)—United States heavy bombers based in India struck yesterday at the docks at enemy-held Bassein in Southwestern Burma and caused damage, a United States Army communiqué said today.

The communqué also reported a series of bombing and strafing attacks by American fighters and medium bombers the past two days against enemy installations at Kaming in Northern Burma.

On the first day three large fires and sixteen smaller ones were started. The second attack was made in still greater force, scoring direct hits on the Japanese headquarters, a barracks and a warehouse.

"As a result of these operations," the communiqué said, "it is estimated that half of the enemy base was completely destroyed."

No American planes were lost.

British bombers also continued to "soften up" Japanese positions in Burma with raids yesterday in the Rathedaung area and on the village of Padali on Akyab Island, a British communiqué said today.

Japanese resistance to the Allied force moving into Burma toward Akyab on the Bay of Bengal was said to be continuing, but no important change was reported.

30-24—477

At Padali, Japanese fighter planes were encountered for the first time in a fortnight. In several air fights Allied fighters destroyed one enemy plane and damaged others, it was said.

Rathedaung, north of Akyab, was raided by bombers and fighters and was said to be "well on fire." Japanese water transports also were attacked, and on Monday night bombs were dropped on the Japanese airdrome at Meiktila.

No Allied planes were lost in these operations, it was stated.

RAF Night Fighters Down Two Calcutta Raiders

By the Associated Press.

CALCUTTA, Jan. 20.—RAF night fighters shot down two Japanese bombers last night when a small number of enemy aircraft raided Calcutta for the seventh time, it was announced today.

An earlier communique said damage was negligible and no casualties had been reported.

PLANES, TANKS SENT SOVIETS

JAN 21 1943

4,600 Of Former, 5,800 Of Latter Dispatched To Russian Ally, Stettinius Says

Lend-Lease Administrator Promises Even Greater Help This Year

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Jan. 20—The United States and the United Kingdom have sent 5,800 tanks and 4,600 planes to Russia, the lend-lease administration reported today with a promise that aid to the Soviet "will grow still more in 1943."

Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., administrator, said that as of January 1 more than 3,200 tanks and almost 2,600 planes had gone from the United States, and 2,600 tanks and more than 2,000 planes from the United Kingdom.

Important Progress

Announcing "important progress" last year in supplying the Soviet, Stettinius declared:

"The people of the Soviet Union have so far waged a magnificent battle against the Nazis principally with their own arms. But lend-lease aid to Russia is growing to a sizable proportion. It will grow still more in 1943."

Stettinius said the United States had not yet been able "to send as much as we should like—or as much as the Soviet army needs—and a part of what we send has been lost on the way"—exactly how much he did not say.

Greatly Increased

"After a slow start, lend-lease shipments have greatly increased," he asserted. "They are continuing to increase in spite of the shortage of shipping and enemy attacks along the difficult supply routes to Russia."

Stettinius' statement also reported:

Lend-lease shipments of war supplies to Russia reached a new high in November, equaling thirteen times the total sent in January, 1942.

As of January 1, the United States had shipped to Russia under lend-lease more than 3,200 tanks and almost 2,600 planes.

Gets Greatest Number

Tank shipments to Russia were greater under lend-lease than to any other country since the beginning of the program in March, 1941, although lend-lease aid to Russia did not begin until eight months later.

Plane shipments to Russia exceeded shipments to the United Kingdom or to any other military theater under lend-lease. In addition to tank and planes, United States shipments to Russia included 81,000 trucks, jeeps and other military motor vehicles.

Food shipments to Russia from the United States are "rapidly growing in importance." This country now is sending greater quantities of food there than to the United Kingdom.

Haruna Loss Confirmed In Bombardier's Citation

Medal for Sgt. Levin Ends Doubt About Battleship's Fate

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP).—Decoration of a Flying Fortress bombardier for plastering the 29,000-ton Japanese battleship Haruna cleared up today any remaining doubt as to whether the warship, pride of the Japanese fleet, was listed officially as sunk in the first week of the war.

Word of the decoration of Sergeant Meyer S. Levin, of Brooklyn, received from Australia yesterday, told of the Haruna listing and sinking after his bomb load had been dumped upon her.

The sinking originally was announced by the War Department Dec. 11, 1941, in a communique which told of American Army Air Forces attacking the ship in the South Pacific off the northern coast of Luzon in the Philippines.

Some Civilian Authority To Be Restored in Hawaii

Martial Law to Remain, However, White House Announces

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP).—The White House announced today an agreement had been reached for a "substantial restoration of functions to the appropriate civilian authorities" in Hawaii.

While details of the new arrangements, worked out by the War, Justice and Interior Departments and Hawaii's governor, are to be announced in the territory, the White House said martial law would remain in effect and writ of habeas corpus would continue to be suspended.

The commanding general of the Army's Hawaiian department retains jurisdiction over some civilian activities, but the agreement "contemplates that there will be further restoration of jurisdiction to the civilian authorities when and as the military situation permits."

Martial law has been maintained in Hawaii since shortly after the attack on Pearl Harbor.

Nazi Bonds Ruled Worthless by U.S.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 20 (AP).—Holders of several hundred million dollars worth of German international bonds were assured today that the Federal Government considers them worthless. This is not entirely bad news, because if the Government did not recognize the worthlessness, holders could not deduct the loss in figuring income taxes.

Guy T. Helvering, Internal Revenue Commissioner, said the bureau had ruled that the bonds became valueless in 1941 because of the declarations of war, default of interest payments and disappearance of the public market for the issue.

As Ed Flynn Sees Ed Flynn

JAN 21 1943

Tells Senators He Has Read Extensively In So Far as History Is Concerned.

Washington, Jan. 20 (A. P.).—In presenting his own case to the Senate committee sitting in judgment on his qualifications for the post of Minister to Australia, Edward J. Flynn volunteered this brief biography:

"I was born in Bronx county. I've lived there all my life. My father was an educated gentleman. During my entire life I have lived in a cultured and educated atmosphere. I was graduated from Fordham University and from Fordham Law School. I practiced law for several years in New York.

"I have made many trips abroad. I probably know Europe as thoroughly as any one. I have traveled extensively in South America, Central America and Canada. I'll match my knowledge of the United States with any one. I have owned homes in Arizona and California, and at present I own a cattle ranch in Nevada.

"I have read extensively in so far as history is concerned. I have endeavored to keep myself well informed, for my own satisfaction, as to events happening in all parts of the world. I have kept myself informed as to domestic legislation.

"I have endeavored to support men who believe in social progress. I'm not ashamed I supported Gov. Smith, Gov. Roosevelt and Gov. Lehman.

"I served four years in the Legislature of New York State. Subsequent to that I was elected Sheriff of Bronx county. I was appointed City Chamberlain and served there three years.

"I served under Gov. Roosevelt four years as his Secretary of State, and under Gov. Lehman six years as his Secretary of State. I resigned from that office to accept an appointment from President Roosevelt as United States commissioner to the New York World's Fair. I believe that appointment gave me an opportunity to learn to know nationalities throughout the world. Fifty-two nations were represented there.

"There has been no criticism of my service as Secretary of State or as commissioner to the World's Fair.

"These are political charges. They have been leveled against me in political campaigns. They are not true."

Davis Encouraged By War Situation; Sinkings Now 597

Washington, Jan. 20 (AP)—Elmer Davis, director of war information, today described the war situation as "pretty encouraging, in general," although Axis submarines so far this month have taken a heavier toll of United Nations shipping than in the corresponding period of December.

Full reports on January shipping losses will not be available for about four weeks, he said.

Washington, Jan. 20 (AP)—A medium sized United States merchant vessel was torpedoed and sunk by an enemy submarine late in December in the south Atlantic off the east coast of South America, the navy announced today. The fifty-three survivors have been landed at Miami, Fla.

Four passengers said the crew of the raider, apparently Italian, shouted "traitor" at an Italian mess boy who spoke in his native tongue and took him prisoner aboard the submarine.

The sinking raised to 597 the Associated Press count of announced losses of Allied and neutral merchantmen in the western Atlantic since Pearl Harbor.

HULL ASKS NATION TO PUT MIND ON WAR

Washington, Jan. 20 (A. P.).—Secretary of State Hull appealed to Americans today to pay closer attention to the battle for Tunisia, lest it be obscured by too much public pre-occupation with political and social questions in French Africa.

Mr. Hull's remarks were precipitated when a questioner at his press conference asked whether all Nazi-inspired laws in French Africa had been revoked since the American occupation.

The Secretary replied with some sharpness that he wished his countrymen could keep their minds on the war for a while. He said that he made no effort to keep up with all the detailed non-military developments in North Africa, but had complete confidence in those who were charged with responsibility there, and looked to Lieut.-Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and his advisers to handle the situation.

He was much more interested, he added, in the actual prosecution of the war in Africa than in political and social questions there.

Mr. Hull emphasized he was not saying this in a spirit of captiousness, that he was not criticizing those who ask questions about African developments, but wanted to stress the urgency of the military side of the picture.

Reported Alive

Washington, Jan. 20 (AP)—The War Department announced today that Private First Class Robert L. Thomas, of Poca, W. Va., who was reported January 2 to have been killed in action in Africa, is now reported alive but seriously wounded.

Would Keep Spoils.

Davies said he attended the conference at the request of "certain important civic and business leaders in this country," whom he said, "innocently, I am sure, were used by Hitler to further his plan to conquer the world and ourselves."

"On the face of it, their proposal seemed very fair," said Davies. "Upon digging into the specific terms, however," something else appeared "namely the condition . . . Germany should keep the dominant place which it had achieved by conquest of Europe and be permitted to project its new order in Europe without interference.

JAN 21 1943

"It was a proposal in line with the declared military and political technique of Hitler, namely, make peace with your enemy at the height of your success in order to consolidate your gains and renew your strength for a subsequent attack which would make 'the kill' still more easy."

Nazi 'Peace' Offer in '40 Bared by Davies

Los Angeles, Jan. 20 (AP).—Joseph E. Davies, former Ambassador to Russia, disclosed today that in 1940 he was approached by Nazi spokesmen—at a New York conference suggested by "certain well-meaning citizens of our own country"—with a proposed peace treaty, to be signed by German military or other government officials and under which Hitler would be "retired."

"I made it clear to these gentlemen that it was an impossible peace," declared Davies in a Town Hall speech.

Skipper Refused to Hide as Enemy Poured Shots Into His Craft—Also Prowled Along Nipponese Shore

JAN 21 1943

Seattle, Jan. 19 (A. P.).—An American submarine, with the amazing record of having twice sunk two ships within sixty seconds of each other, was on the surface during an attack on a Japanese convoy.

"Captain. Captain," the lookout shouted, "there's an auxiliary cruiser out there shooting at us."

"Are they hitting us?" inquired the skipper.

"No," the lookout replied.

"Well, all right," calmly rejoined Lieut.-Commander Thomas B. Klakring, who had dared move his submarine so close to the shores of Japan the crew could see a horse race in progress.

Tells of Incident.

In a Navy-approved interview, Ensign Gilson Rohrback told about the convoy incident.

"The skipper liked to get up on the surface and travel," Ensign Rohrback explained.

"As a matter of fact, the merchantmen were shooting at us, too, with five-inch deck guns, but it didn't seem to bother the skipper. He stayed on the surface for an hour and a half trying to get another shot. (Rohrback had told earlier of the sub's sinking two ships in the convoy, damaging a third, then deciding to surface.) Then Jap planes came out and we pulled the cork and went down."

The Ensign, who refers to Commander Klakring as "the sort of fellow who's going to win this war," said:

"I feel as though I've learned quite a bit about Japan. We saw big Japanese cities and Jap trains, bases and ships."

Among the eight ships credited to the sub, meaning a Japanese tonnage loss of 70,000, the Ensign listed as the most remarkable the four blasted to the bottom within minutes of each other.

He emphasized that meant remarkable co-ordination because of the complex calculations involved.

But how could they miss?

Commander Klakring, the Ensign said, "used to go in so close for torpedo shots that the concussion would be worse in the submarine than a lot of depth charges seem."

Nazi Radio Erroneously Reports Robert Taylor Held

By the Associated Press.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 20.—The Berlin radio erroneously reported internmnt in Spanish Morocco of Film Actor Robert Taylor—just shortly after he actually was finishing his day's work in Hollywood.

The Berlin broadcast, recorded last night by the Associated Press, announced that Mr. Taylor had been interned by Spanish authorities after a United States bomber had been forced down in Spanish Morocco.

A studio spokesman said he had seen Mr. Taylor not half an hour before and that to his knowledge the actor hadn't been out of the State for weeks, much less abroad.

ALBANY ASKS FREE TRAVEL TO CANADA

Albany, Jan. 20 (A. P.).—A resolution urging Congress to eliminate unnecessary restrictions on travel and trade between the United States and Canada has been adopted unanimously by New York's Senate.

It asked that such regulations be lifted "for the purpose of promoting a harmonious American front and a victorious prosecution of the existing war."

The proposal was approved and sent to the Assembly as scores of new bills, including one to abolish the State's tax-supported milk publicity campaign, were introduced.

Proposed by Senator Fred A. Young, Lowville Republican, the "travel" resolution stated that the passage of persons and the movement of commodities across the Canadian border are "hampered and affected by many governmental restrictions and regulations."

The Senate received a measure which would grant New Yorkers reduced automobile registration fees if their cars are not licensed until May 1. A three-fourths reduction would be effective between May 1 and July 1 under the bill introduced by Senator Louis B. Heller, Brooklyn Democrat.

U. S. Ship Sunk, 2 Passengers Taken

Miami, Fla., Jan. 20 (AP).—A passenger suspected of knowledge of ship movements was taken prisoner aboard an Italian sub which sank an American merchant vessel in the South Atlantic late in December, survivors revealed here recently.

Four passengers from the ship, including Robert Carter, a seaman of New York City, said the Italians also took an Italian-speaking mess boy into custody.

Hearing the boy speak Italian, one of the sub crew shouted "Traitor" in English.

Damage to the lifeboats prevented all but one from floating, and 53 survivors were jammed into it.

The sub surfaced and the crew of bearded Italians covered the survivors with machine guns while the captain asked questions.

The lifeboat was sighted by a plane three days later.

Niagara Falls Bids For the Peace Conference

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Jan. 20 (A. P.).—A proposal that the peace conference at the end of the war be held in the cities of Niagara Falls in New York and Ontario was made today by Mayor George R. Inglis of Niagara Falls, Ont.

He told the Zonta Club: "There is no more suitable spot in the world than on this border where the two countries have lived in peace for more than a century."

Chile Breaks Relations With Axis Nations

JAN 21 1943

Step Leaves Argentina the Sole Hold-Out Among 21 American Republics

SANTIAGO, Chile, Jan. 20 (AP).—Chile severed relations with the Axis powers today, and President Juan Antonio Rios told his people in a radio broadcast tonight that it was a step toward continental solidarity and in defense of democracy.

President Rios explained the rupture with Germany, Japan and Italy in a half-hour address from the government palace.

The Chilean Senate approved the decision last night by a 30-to-10 vote, and President Rios afterward signed the decree to oust Axis diplomats. A roundup of all Axis nationals was quickly begun.

Tonight President Rios gave Chileans the full explanation of his decision, reached long after the original popular protest against Axis attacks on Chilean shipping had subsided.

[It was not known immediately whether the Axis diplomats would remain in Chile until an exchange could be arranged, or would be transferred to Argentina, now the only American nation maintaining diplomatic relations with the Axis.]

Foreign Minister Joaquin Fernandez called in the American diplomatic corps to make the announcement.

The Brazilian Ambassador, Samuel Souza de Leao Gracie, whose country is the only South American belligerent, said upon leaving the Foreign Office: "This decision places Chile in the democratic front."

Bolivian Ambassador, Alberto Ostria Gutierrez, who as Foreign Minister expelled Axis diplomats from his country, said the break "unites us more than ever."

The Chilean break was foreshadowed by the visit of the Interior Minister, Raul Morales, to Washington, Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires in December to sound out the attitudes of the belligerents in the United States and Brazil and the neutrals of Argentina. Before he returned to Santiago this month, it was known that Chile would break.

Baroness von Schoen, wife of the German Ambassador, Baron Wilhelm von Schoen, already has left by train for Argentina, the one remaining nation which will be left in the Americas maintaining relations with the Axis.

The Senate's vote was taken last night after Foreign Minister Joaquin Fernandez, speaking for the President in a private session, announced the rupture decision and asked for the Senate's approval. Of the 45 Senators, 3 were absent and 2 abstained from voting.

Circles close to the government said a drive to eliminate Axis espionage and liquidate fifth column activities would accompany the formal break of relations. They said suspected spies had been under observation for some time and would be rounded up, while a number of Axis propaganda organizations and publications would be closed.

Gives Reasons for Break

President Juan Antonio Rios of Chile said last night in a broadcast beamed overseas that he had declared a break in diplomatic relations with the Axis "for the good of my country." Dr. Rios, whose speech was delivered in Spanish and recorded in the United States by the Federal Communications Commission, noted that Chile had an "essential interest in this fight" and that the break in relations followed the principles of continental solidarity, to which Chile adhered.

Declaring that Chile also felt a moral obligation, President Rios said that he was following the mandate of Chilean public opinion. He added:

"We are fighting so that all men and nations may live in peace."

He said that Chile would continue to be a free country "with rights for all men," and he bespoke the cooperation of the people of Chile.

Chile Breaks Off With Axis

Senate Votes 30 to 10 for Diplomatic Rupture —Crowd Hails Step.

JAN 21 1943

Santiago, Chile, Jan. 20 (A. P.).—Chile broke relations today with Germany, Italy and Japan, leaving Argentina the only American republic maintaining diplomatic contact with the Axis.

The decree was signed by President Rios after representatives of other American countries and Britain were notified of the step.

[Foreign Minister Enrique Ruiz-Guinazu of Argentina commented in Buenos Aires that Argentina would continue to observe a cordial policy toward Chile. He replied to a reporter's question whether there would be any change in Argentina's policy by saying "You know what our stand is."]

An informed spokesman said that Axis diplomats were not formally notified of the break immediately, but that they had made last undisclosed requests which Chile rejected.

Opponents of a severence of relations also made a last-minute attempt to influence President Rios's decision. A group headed by Liberal Deputy Raul Marin delivered a petition signed with about 300 names asking the President not to break relations.

Axis diplomats will be handed their passports this afternoon, it was announced. Axis nationals will be rounded up at once and taken to internment points.

The announcement of the break followed a 30 to 10 Senate vote approving President Rios's decision for the break with Germany, Italy and Japan.

The move leaves Argentina as the single American republic still maintaining relations with Germany, Italy and Japan.

After weeks of wrangling over the issue, Foreign Minister Joaquin Fernandez presented the motion to the Senate, then went to President Rios's residence to inform him of that body's vote. As the report of the Senate vote spread a crowd gathered outside the Congress Building began cheering and organized a triumphant parade through the central streets. A few shouts of opposition were heard.

The Chamber of Deputies was not consulted by the Government. The Constitution provides only that the President may ask the opinion of the Senate, but even that step is not required.

Of the forty-five Senators only three were absent. It was understood that all the leading parties, Conservative, Liberal, Radical, Socialist, Democratic and Communist, voted in favor of the motion to sever relations. The Conservatives and Liberals, however, split on the issue. Three members of each party voted for the motion, and five of each group

Calls Step Important.

Washington, Jan. 20 (A. P.).—Secretary of State Hull commenting today on Chile's action in breaking diplomatic relations with the Axis Powers said:

"I have just been informed by the Chilean Ambassador of the decision of the Chilean Government to sever diplomatic relations with the Axis Powers. I welcome this action as an important contribution to the security of the continent.

JAN 21 1943

"In a larger sense, however, the Government of Chile has taken a step which once more confirms the identity of the ideals and aspirations of the Chilean people with those of free peoples everywhere in this great struggle.

"I know that I express the feeling of my fellow citizens in extending the heariest good wishes on this occasion to the Government and people of a traditionally friendly country. Chile has now taken its place with the twenty American republics which have given official and practical expression to their realization of the nature of the Axis menace."

Earlier the Chilean Ambassador, Rodolfo Michels, had formally notified Under-Secretary Sumner Welles that Chile had broken relations with Germany, Japan and Italy.

The Ambassador was admitted immediately to the Under-Secretary's office after his arrival at the State Department.

Ambassador Michels left Mr. Welles's office after a 25-minute visit and told newspaper men:

"I have informed the United States Government that my Government has taken action in breaking off relations with the Axis Powers and that information has been transmitted to the ambassadors of the Axis Powers informing them of its decision.

"Since the attack on Pearl Harbor my Government has given full co-operation in the movement for continental solidarity and for democratic principles, and this new step is a new measure to reinforce that co-operation in the cause of the democracies."

Ambassador Michels was accompanied to the State Department by Fernando Illanes, First Secretary the Chilean Ambassador.

Farley Predicts Defeat Of Nazis by End of 1943

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 20.—James A. Farley, who is known for his political predictions, made another prediction today—that the Allies will defeat Germany before the end of this year.

"It is my honest opinion that Germany can't last another winter," said the former head of the Democratic party. "And after Germany collapes, it shouldn't take long to finish Japan."

Mr. Farley said he has visited war plants, and that his peace prediction was based partly on his observations there. "We are putting out equipment too fast for them," Mr. Farley commented.

Latin America's biggest role in the war, he added, is to furnish natural resources and food.

"At the moment the United States public is satisfied with the administration's direction of the war effort," Mr. Roosevelt's former cabinet officer commented.

Mr. Farley said he came here on business.

DAUGHTER BORN TO JULIANA

JAN 21 1943

Dutch Princess Arrives in Ottawa Hospital.

Ottawa, Jan. 20 (A. P.).—Crown Princess Juliana of the Netherlands gave birth to her third daughter last night, a seven-pound twelve-ounce Princess for whom a little bit of Canada was proclaimed a little bit of Holland so that she need not be born on foreign soil.

The baby was registered as Margariet Francisca, Princess of Orange-Nassau.

President Roosevelt was named as one of the baby's godfathers.

The four-room hospital suite was declared by the Dominion Government extra-territorial for the confinement period. For all that, the little Princess was the first member of the royal house of Orange to be born outside the Netherlands and she is the first member of any European royal family to be born in North America.

Her father, Prince Bernhard, announced that "she looks splendid." He came from London last week to be here at the child's birth.

Queen Wilhelmina in London, was expected to travel to Canada for the child's christening at some future date. She was notified by the father after the child's birth.

A son to the 33-year-old Crown Princess would have become automatically her heir to the throne. With the birth of a third daughter, the succession remains unchanged. The Princess Beatrix, who will be 5 on January 31, is next to her mother in the throne succession. The second Princess is Irene, aged 3.

Prince Bernhard had broadcast to the Dutch in Holland asking them to forgo any celebrations in order to avert German reprisals.

A Government spokesman said that messages of congratulation reached the hospital last night from Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King, who were attending a meeting in Montreal at which Mrs. Roosevelt spoke.

News Pleases London.

London, Jan. 20 (A. P.).—Netherlands royal circles here expressed delight today over news of the birth of a daughter to Crown Princess Juliana in Ottawa.

As soon as word was received in London shortly after midnight, officials of the Royal Netherlands Government press service notified the private secretary of Queen Wilhelmina, who then notified the Queen.

Butter Ration In Canada Is Cut One Third

JAN 21 1943

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 20 (AP)—Canada's butter ration for the next six-week period was cut by one third today to maintain the butter supply during the season of low production.

Instead of eight ounces of butter a week for each person, Canadians until the end of February will be entitled to only five and one third ounces, the Prices Board announced.

The board indicated that the cut would be restored, if possible, in March.

Unofficial estimates said the cut would save about 8,000,000 pounds of butter in the next six weeks.

Rickenbacker Comrade To Become Minister

Albany, Jan. 20 (A. P.).—Sergt. John Bartek, 23 years old, who spent twenty-one days with Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker on a rubber life raft after their plane was forced down in the south Pacific, says he will become a clergyman when the war ends.

Touring war plants to tell "our soldiers on the production line the experiences of myself and other men on the firing line," Sergt. Bartek declared, "After what happened to us out there I've decided I'm going to become a minister. I feel I'm a true believer."

Reich, Italy and Japan in Pact On Economic Assistance In War

JAN 21 1943

A Berlin broadcast recorded by The Associated Press last night said that Germany, Japan and Italy had signed yesterday an economic co-operation pact to utilize, "each in his own economic sphere," their resources for "totalitarian warfare against common enemies," and also as the basis for permanent collaboration "after a victorious termination of the war."

The agreement, to run concurrently with the ten-year military assistance pact of Sept. 27, 1940, was signed at Adolf Hitler's headquarters by Nazi Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop and the Japanese Ambassador, Hiroshi Oshima, the broadcast said. An identical pact was signed in Rome by Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano and the Japanese Charge d'Affaires, Shunichi Kase.

The pact pledges financial and technical co-operation, the "permanent observation by special delegates" of economic relations between the Axis nations, and mutual assistance "in the supply of goods and establishment of installations," the broadcast said. Details are still to be worked out, it added.

Since the Axis nations have no present means of effectively exchanging goods because of the Allied blockade, the pact's actual application rests on the supposition of an Axis victory.

The text of the German-Japanese pact follows:

"The government of the German Reich and the Imperial Japanese government have decided to make their economic co-operation still closer in order to support each other mutually with their entire economic strength in this war for a construction of a new order in Europe and in Greater East Asia, and in order to carry out, after a victorious termination of the war, each in his own economic sphere, a comprehensive constructive planning of the new order which guarantees the welfare and prosperity of all people concerned.

"They therefore agreed:

"'Article I—Germany and Japan will promote and develop in every respect and with all means an exchange of economic performances between their economic spheres. They will mutually assist each other in the supply of goods and the establishment of installations and will carry out close technical cooperation.

"Article II—Germany and Japan will closely co-operate financially in order to facilitate the carrying out of payments resulting from Article I.

"Article III — Germany and Japan will remain in close contact in order to make their co-operation for carrying out their economic policy more and more effective. The two governments will for this purpose keep the economic relationship between the two countries under permanent observation by special delegates. Competent authorities of the two governments will agree on details for carrying out this pact.

"Article IV—This pact enters into force on the day of signature and will remain in force for the same duration as the tripartite pact between Germany, Italy and Japan of Sept. 27, 1940, which corresponds to the twenty-seventh day of the ninth month of the fifteenth year of the Showa Era (the reign of Emperor Hirohito)."

Tojo Stalls Off Diet

By the Associated Press

The Tokyo radio announced yesterday, on the eve of the scheduled reconvening of the Japanese Diet, that Premier Gen. Hideki Tojo was ill and for that reason resumption of Parliament had been postponed until January 27.

The announcement indicated serious political friction behind the scenes, where Tojo is working to gather more power in his own hands.

A Domei broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, said Tojo had a cold. The Rome radio said he had the grippe.

The reopening of the Diet always is devoted to ministerial statements of policy and is considered most important. A postponement is almost unprecedented; on past occasions deputies have spoken for ailing premiers.

The OWI pointed out that there have been reports that Tojo was assuming more and more dictatorial powers.

Axis broadcasts have reported his government had prepared two bills for the session, one of which would give him power to direct the actions of any of his ministers or act himself in their names if necessary. The other would give him supreme power over war production.

Experienced observers thought it possible that some of the few civilians remaining in the cabinet objected to this accretion of power to the premier, who also is war minister.

The Chungking radio, recorded by the FCC, quoted political observers in the Chinese capital as expressing belief that the Diet's postponement was "an indication of increasing crisis in the Japanese government."

Baron Vladimir von Beck

The Berlin radio, recorded in New York, said today that Baron Max Vladimir von Beck, Prime Minister of Austria-Hungary from 1906 to 1908, who introduced women's suffrage in that country, died at Vienna, Tuesday, at the age of 89.

Three Swedish Ships Arrive At Gothenburg

New York, Jan. 20 (AP)—Three Swedish safe-conduct vessels, the 9,598-ton motor tanker Sveadrott, the 5,294-ton motorship Nordstjernan, and the 3,400-ton motorship Glimmaren, have arrived at the port of Gothenburg, the American Swedish News Exchange announced today.

Carrying varied cargoes from overseas, the three ships arrived January 18, although the Nordstjerman reached the harbor ten days late as a result of a collision with an unidentified German ship off Kristiansand, Norway.

Hodson Killed in Plane Crash In Dutch Guiana on Way to Africa

Death a Week Ago of City Welfare Commissioner Is Disclosed; On Leave, He Was Lehman's Aid in Relief of Allied-Occupied Lands.

William Hodson, Commissioner of Public Welfare in New York City for the last nine years, who recently received a two-month leave of absence to assist former Governor Herbert H. Lehman, the newly appointed Director of Foreign Relief and Rehabilitation, was killed in an airplane accident at Paramaribo, capital of Dutch Guiana, while on his way to North Africa, it was disclosed last night.

Word of his death, which occurred a week ago, was sent yesterday by the State Department to his family at their home at 246th Street and Palisade Avenue, Riverdale, the Bronx.

Other persons were aboard the plane, it was learned, and some of these also were killed in the crash.

JAN 21 1943

The crash occurred the day after Mr. Hodson left Miami. He had passed several days waiting at Miami for a seat in a plane. Although the purpose of his mission was secret, it is known to have been directly connected with the question of relief in North Africa. The urgency of the situation there has been a cause of serious concern in Washington.

NOT AP

Details of the accident could not be obtained here last night. Members of the family referred all inquiries to Mr. Hodson's secretary, Miss Polly Carter Field. Miss Field explained that such information would have to come from the War Department.

Mr. Hodson, who first came to New York in 1922, had long been connected with social welfare work here and in his native state of Minnesota. Born in Minneapolis on April 25, 1891, the son of William and Anna Redding Hodson, he was graduated from the University of Minnesota in 1913.

Later he studied law at Harvard, where he received his LL.B. degree in 1916. That same year he was admitted to the Minnesota bar, and became chief counsel of the Legal Aid Bureau in Minneapolis.

In 1917, he was named executive secretary of the Minnesota State Child Welfare Commission; and in 1918 director of the children's bureau of the Minnesota State Board of Control in St. Paul.

In 1922 he left Minnesota to accept his first post in New York, that of director of the division of child welfare legislation of the Russell Sage Foundation. He remained with the foundation for three years; then became executive director of the Welfare Council, an organization comprising 800 private and city charities.

Became Relief Chief

From 1925 to 1934 he continued in that post. In 1935 he became Commissioner of Welfare. While remaining as Welfare Commissioner he also served as a member of the New York State Temporary Relief Association, which was absorbed, in July, 1937, by the State Department of Social Welfare, and was a witness and consultant at Congressional hearings on Federal unemployment relief and the drafting of Federal relief legislation.

In 1918, Mr. Hodson was married to Gertrude Prindle, of Minneapolis. They had two sons and a daughter. The elder son, William Hodson jr., is now in the Army; the second son, Jeremy, is a student at the University of Minnesota. The daughter, Mrs. Judith Street, moved to Washingtonn after her wedding a few weeks ago. On learning yesterday of her father's death, she came to New York yesterday to be with her mother.

Mr. Hodson was an independent in politics, and never aspired to political office. From his college days when he worked as a social worker in Minneapolis and St. Paul, his interests were, and remained, in that field. Even while at Harvard he served on the staff of the Harvard Legal Aid Society.

BY JAMES KING

LONDON, JAN 20-(AP)-IN AN ATTEMPT TO KEEP THE TREMENDOUS OUTPUT OF ALLIED WAR FACTORIES FROM THE BATTLEFIELDS, ADOLF HITLER WAS SAID BY BRITISH NAVAL OBSERVERS TODAY TO BE MAINTAINING 200 U-BOATS OF HIS FLEET OF PERHAPS 500 AT SEA ALL THE TIME.

AS THE GERMANS GAVE INDICATIONS OF PINNING THEIR HOPES MORE AND MORE ON AN EVER-INCREASING FLEET OF SUBMARINES, WHICH MANY ALLIED LEADERS RATE AS THE GREATEST MENACE TO THE UNITED NATIONS, DEMANDS WERE HEARD IN BRITAIN FOR FASTER FREIGHTERS TO OUTRUN THE U-BOATS.

AN UNOFFICIAL BRITISH ESTIMATE WAS THAT GERMANY IS BUILDING FROM 15 TO 20 SUBMARINES A MONTH--FASTER THAN NAVAL OBSERVERS HERE BELIEVE THE ALLIES ARE SINKING THEM.

JAN 21 1943

THE GERMAN RADIO MEANWHILE BOASTS TO THE WORLD THAT THE NEW U-BOATS ARE ABLE TO STAY LONGER AT SEA THAN THE OLD ONES AND THAT THEY ARE GETTING TORPEDOES, SUPPLIES AND EVEN NEW CREW MEMBERS FROM LARGE "MOTHER U-BOATS."

LORD CRANBORNE, LORD PRIVY SEAL, TOLD THE HOUSE OF LORDS YESTERDAY THAT "THE SCALE OF U-BOAT ATTACKS IS INCREASING AND IT IS PROBABLE THAT THE PEAK HAS NOT YET BEEN REACHED."

HE WARNED THAT "WE CAN EXPECT NO RELAXATION OF THE U-BOAT CAMPAIGN" AND THAT IT "CAN BE EXPECTED TO CONTINUE UNABATED UNTIL THE VERY LAST HOUR OF THE WAR."

GERMANY NOW IS REPORTED TO BE BUILDING U-BOATS BY PREFABRICATION IN MUCH THE SAME WAY AS FREIGHTERS IN THE UNITED STATES. PARTS ARE BEING MADE ALL OVER EUROPE, IT WAS SAID, AND ASSEMBLED IN GREAT BOMB-PROOF CAVES AND CONCRETE PENS IN FRENCH BAY OF BISCAY PORTS.

MOST OF THE SUBMARINES MET IN THE ATLANTIC ARE OF THE HEAVY OCEAN-GOING TYPE OF 1,060 TONS OR MORE WITH A SURFACE SPEED OF 18.5 KNOTS AND A BETTER THAN ORDINARY UNDERWATER SPEED THROUGH THE USE OF NICKEL INSTEAD OF LEAD IN STORAGE BATTERIES.

JAN 21 1943

SUBMARINES WORKING OFF THE SPANISH COAST AND AS FAR WEST AS THE AZORES ARE SAID TO BE PROBABLY OF THE COASTAL TYPE USING FRENCH BAY OF BISCAY PORTS. THEY ARE FROM 250 TO 750 TONS AND HAVE A SURFACE SPEED OF 13 KNOTS.

london,jan.20-(ap)- Miss Eleanor Florence Rathbone, who represents the combined English universities in the house of commons, is still trying to get British restaurants to serve a glass of water free with every meal.

JAN 21 1943

Today she asked Lord Woolton, the minister for food, to order eating places to provide the drinking water but he said no, even though water isn't rationed.

Miss Rathbone complains that hotels and restaurants make it difficult for guests to obtain drinking water with their meals so as to compel them to order ~~the water~~ as paid-for drinks.

So a glass of water continues here to be almost as difficult to obtain as a dish of ice cream.

THEN E THE GERMAN PASSED BELOW AND BOB WATCHED HIM GO INTO THE SEA. HE "BOB" CAME BACK WITH A CANNON SHELL E HOLE THROUGH THE WING IN WHICH HE COULD SHOVE BOTH FISTS.

SQUADRON LEADER HUGO ARMSTRONG, OF PERTH, AUSTRALIA, CLIMBED TO 10,000 FEET OVER LONDON, DIRECTED BY RADIO TO THE COAST, HE GOT INTO THE SCRAMBLE THAT GAVE HIM TWO ENEMY PLANES AND RAISED HIS TOTAL DESTROYED TO 11.

"THE REAL HEROES OF TODAY'S SCRAP ARE THE GROUND CREWS," ARMSTRONG INSISTED. "EVERY MAN AND WAAF (WOMEN'S AUXILIARY AIR FORCE) RUSHED TO THE TASK OF GETTING THE PLANES INTO THE AIR AS QUICK AS POSSIBLE. THEY WERE MAGNIFICENT.

"THE FIGHTING ITSELF WAS MOST ENJOYABLE. IT WAS THE FIRST JAN 21 1943 TIME I NOW EVER SAW A HUN OVER THIS COUNTRY. THE FIGHTER-BOMBERS CARRIED A SINGLE BIG BOMB SLUNG UNDER THE FUSELAGE. THE PILOTS SEEMED AWFULLY NERVOUS. I SAW ONE JETTISON HIS BOMB AS INTO THE SEA AS HE STREAKED HOME."

AN RAF FIGHTER STATION SOMEWHERE IN BRITAIN, JAN 20-(AP)-NAZI DAYLIGHT RAIDERS WHO FLEW TOWARD LONDON HAD REVENGE IN THEIR HEARTS TODAY BUT THIS STATION'S SPITFIRE MARK NINE PLANES HELPED BREAK UP THE ATTACK BY SWARMING ALONG TO DESTROY SEVEN BOCHES, PROBABLY DESTROY TWO OTHERS AND DAMAGE TWO OTHERS WITHOUT LOSS TO THEMSELVES.

ROARING DOGFIGHTS BROKE OUT ALL OVER THE SKY WHERE THE BATTLE OF BRITAIN WAS FOUGHT IN 1940. JAN 21 1943

"I WISH THEY'D COME BACK AGAIN," EXCLAIMED A WELL KNOWN GROUP CAPTAIN. "MY BOYS GAVE THEM HELL. WE'VE GOT ANOTHER AND WORSE PACKET WAITING IF THEY'D ONLY TRY IT AGAIN."

BOU ARADA (ADD)

BOTH THE AXIS AND THE ALLIES ARE USING STRONG TANK FORCES DESPITE THE FACT THAT ROUTES HAVE TO BE MAPPED METICULOUSLY TO AVOID MARSHY GROUND. JAN 21 1943

GERMAN GENERAL VON ARNIN APPARENTLY CONSIDERS THE HILLS NORTHEAST AND NORTHWEST OF BOU ARADA VITAL TO THE DEFENSE OF AXIS HOLDINGS IN COASTAL AND SOUTHERN TUNISIA. THE HEIGHTS COMMAND THE WHOLE OF THE GOUBELLAT PLAIN IN ADDITION TO THE VALLEY EXTENDING TO PONT DU FAHS, A NAZI STRONGHOLD.

THE MORNING ATTACK AGAINST THE GOUBELLAT ROAD AND RIDGE POSITIONS

30.24-483

WAS COORDINATED WITH AN ADDITIONAL TANK ATTACK DOWN THE ROAD FROM PONT DU FAHS TOWARD BOU ARADA.

BRITISH GUNS STOPPED THIS ALSO AND BY 10:30 A.M. THE WITHDRAWAL OF ALL VEHICLES STILL ABLE TO MOVE WAS ORDERED IN BOTH AREAS.

BOMB-CARRYING FOCKE-WULFS AND JUNKERS MADE SEVERAL ATTACKS ON BOU ARADA AND SURROUNDING AREAS AND ROADS. FOR THAT AERIAL ACTIVITY THE NAZIS PAID A TOLL, BY UNOFFICIAL COUNT, OF AT LEAST FOUR JUNKERS AND AS MANY FIGHTERS.

SECOND NIGHT LEAD AERIAL

BY LEO BRANHAM

LONDON, THURSDAY, JAN 21-(AP)-THE GERMAN AIR FORCE STABBED AT LONDON FOUR TIMES DURING THE NIGHT BUT INDICATIONS EARLY TODAY WERE THAT THE NAZIS HAD DONE NO DAMAGE AFTER A FURIOUS DAYLIGHT RAID YESTERDAY WHICH SMASHED A SCHOOL HOUSE AND KILLED AT LEAST 30 GAILY-CHATTERING CHILDREN IN THE BUILDING.

THE SHOWING LAST NIGHT AND EARLY TODAY BY THE NAZI AIR FORCE WAS REGARDED BY OBSERVERS AS INSIGNIFICANT AS A MILITARY OPERATION, FOR THE GERMANS ONLY REACHED THE OUTSKIRTS OF LONDON ONCE. OTHERWISE, THE FOUR ALARMS IN THE LONDON AREA, ONE OF THEM IN ONLY ONE SECTION, PRODUCED ALMOST NO INCIDENTS.

JAN 21 1943

INCENDIARY BOMBS WERE DROPPED IN THE SOUTHEAST SECTION DURING ONE ALARM.

THE GERMAN DAYLIGHT RAIDERS BURIED 30 TO 63 CHILDREN AND THREE TEACHERS BEYOND HOPE OF LIFE UNDER TONS OF DEBRIS BUT RESCUERS WERE DIGGING FOR THEM. IT WAS THE WORST BLOW SUFFERED BY LONDON SCHOOLS SINCE THE BLITZ ATTACKS BEGAN.

THIRD NIGHT LEAD MEDITERRANEAN

BY ALFRED E.WALL

LONDON, JAN. 20-(AP)-THE FIGHTING FRENCH SWARMING NORTHWARD FROM EQUATORIAL AFRICA HAVE JOINED FORCES WITH THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY CLOSING ON TRIPOLI, IT WAS ANNOUNCED TONIGHT, WHILE THE BRITISH REPORTED SINKING 14 AXIS VESSELS IN THE MEDITERRANEAN IN THE FIRST THREE DAYS OF THIS WEEK.

JAN 21 1943

THESE FRENCH TROOPS SWEPT UP FROM THE LAKE CHAD AREA OVER DESERTS AND MOUNTAINS, CONQUERING THE ITALIAN FEZZAN, AND NOW "ARE CONTINUING THEIR ADVANCE NORTHWARD AND HAVE ESTABLISHED CONTACT WITH THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY," A COMMUNIQUE FROM BRIG. GEN. LE CLERC'S HEADQUARTERS ANNOUNCED.

"THESE FORCES ARE BRILLIANTLY TAKING PART WITH THEIR BRITISH ALLIES IN THE ADVANCE ON TRIPOLI. THEY ARE ATTACKING ON THE LEFT OF THE EIGHTH ARMY MOVING NORTHWARD," SAID THE WAR BULLETIN BROADCAST BY THE FIGHTING FRENCH RADIO AT BRAZZAVILLE.

THE JUNCTURE WAS ANNOUNCED SHORTLY AFTER THE BRITISH HAD REPORTED SINKING 14 AXIS SHIPS IN THE CENTRAL MEDITERRANEAN IN THE FIRST THREE DAYS OF THIS WEEK, AND AS TWIN BRITISH COLUMNS POUNDING TOWARD TRIPOLI WERE REPORTED WITHIN 40 AND 60 MILES OF THE BOMB-BATTERED CAPITAL OF MUSSOLINI'S VANISHING LIBYAN EMPIRE.

THE NEW THREAT FROM THIS FRENCH THRUST INCREASED THE PROBABILITY

THAT FIELD MARSHAL ERWIN ROMMEL WOULD FIGHT ONLY A DELAYING ACTION AT TRIPOLI, INSTEAD OF MAKING A FINAL STAND THERE.

THE FRENCH COLUMN HAD MOVED UP UNDER COLONEL INGOLD, THE FIELD COMMANDER UNDER LECLERC. ITS NEW ADVANCE WAS ANNOUNCED BY THE AUTHORITATIVE FRENCH RADIO STATION AT BRAZZAVILLE, AND NOT THE "RADIO BRAZZAVILLE" USED AS A CLOAK BY AN AXIS BROADCASTING STATION.

A TRIUMPHANT XXX THIRD GRAPH SECOND NIGHT LEAD.

WITH LONDON AFRICAN--VON ARNIM

LONDON, JAN 20-(AP)-COL. GEN. JURGEN VON ARNIM, REVEALED TODAY AS COMMANDER OF THE GERMAN FORCES IN TUNISIA, WASCHOSEN FOR THE JOB BY FUEHRER ADOLF HITLER AS A SOLUTION OF A GROWING CONFLICT BETWEEN HIS PREDECESSOR, GEN. WALTHER NEHRING, NOMINALLY IN CHARGE OF ALL AXIS AFRICAN OPERATIONS, AND MARSHAL ERWIN ROMMEL, COMMANDER OF THE AFRICA CORPS.

SKETCH

AS VON ARNIM DIRECTED A STRONG TANK ATTACK DESIGNED TO AID ROMMEL'S RETREAT FROM TRIPOLITANIA INTO TUNISIA, LONDON SOURCES REPORTED THAT HE WAS KNOWN AS A BRILLIANT OFFENSIVE TACTICIAN, BUT WITH NO EXPERIENCE IN DEFENSIVE OPERATIONS OF THE TYPE LATELY CONDUCTED BY NEHRING IN TUNISIA AND BY THE RETREATING ROMMEL.

JAN 21 1943

(NEUTRAL SOURCES REPORTED RECENTLY THAT THE GERMAN HIGH COMMAND'S PLAN TO CONSOLIDATE THE AFRICA CORPS WITH THE TUNISIAN AXIS FORCES FOR A FINAL AXIS STAND HAD MET THE DIFFICULTY THAT ROMMEL, SUPERIOR IN RANK, HAD REFUSED TO SERVE UNDER HIS SENIOR OFFICER, NEHRING.

(NEHRING WAS REPORTED EQUALLY DETERMINED NOT TO SERVE UNDR ROMMEL WHOM HE IS SAID TO HAVE CALLED "MERELY A LUCKY TACTICIAN.")

VON ARNIM, A PROFESSIONAL SOLDIER AND SON AND GRANDSON OF GERMAN ARMY GENERALS, IS TYPICAL OF THE JUNKERS MILITARY CASTE.

A STAFF OFFICER IN THE FIRST WORLD WAR. HE JOINED THE PRESENT CONFLICT AS A MAJOR, WAS PROMOTED TO THE RANK OF CHIEF OF STAFF OF A TANK DIVISION AND FOUGHT IN POLAND, ON THE WESTERN FRONT AND IN RUSSIA, WHERE HE WAS SEVERELY WOUNDED.

JAN 21 1943

HE WAS PROMOTED TO HIS PRESENT RANK IN OCTOBER, 1942, WHEN, AT THE AGE OF 52, HE BECAME COMMANDER OF THE "HAIRPIN" DIVISIO CALLED FROM THE SHAPE OF ITS DIVISIONAL INSIGNIA.

HELSINKI, FINLAND, JAN. 20-(AP)-THE NEWSPAPER HELSINKI SANOMAT SAID TODAY INCREASED SWEDISH MILITARY PREPARATIONS ARE A PRECAUTION AGAINST A POSSIBLE ALLIED LANDING IN NORWAY OR ELSEWHERE IN NORTHERN EUROPE.

POINTING TO RECENT SWEDISH ASSURANCES OF SOLIDARITY WITH FINLAND, THE PAPER SAID, "WITH THE FORTUNES OF WAR FLUCTUATING ON THE WORLD FRONTS, WE KNOW HOW TO GIVE FULL VALUE TO THE ADVANTAGE OF OUR HAVING BEHIND OUR BACK TO THE WEST A FRIENDLY STATE GROWING MILITARILY STRONGER YEAR BY YEAR, AND WHOSE CONTRIBUTION IS LIKELY TO DETERMINE AT A DECISIVE JUNCTURE WHAT KIND OF PEACE THE NORTH WILL GET."

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, JAN 20-(AP)-ALLIED GROUND FORCES HAVE CUT THE LAST GARRISON OF JAPANESE ON THE PAPUAN PENINSULA OF NEW GUINEA INTO FOUR ISOLATED GROUPS AFTER CAPTURING THE VILLAGE AND POINT OF SANANANDA, AN ALLIED HEADQUARTERS COMMUNIQUE SAID TODAY.

HEAVY CASUALTIES WERE INFLICTED ON THE JAPANESE IN THE BITTER FIGHTING AND ONLY 27 WERE TAKEN PRISONER. SOME OF THE JAPANESE WERE REPORTED WANDERING IN THE SWAMPY JUNGLE COUNTRY.

THE ONLY REMAINING ENEMY RESISTANCE WAS FROM TWO JAPANESE POCKETS ON EITHER SIDE OF SANANANDA POINT AND TWO MORE ON SANANANDA ROAD

LEADING TO THE BEACH.

THE JAPANESE ATTEMPTED TO AID THEIR APPARENTLY DOOMED GROUND TROOPS IN THE SANANANDA SECTOR BY SENDING A GROUP OF BOMBERS OVER THE BATTLE AREA TO ATTACK ALLIED TROOPS, BUT THE EFFORT WAS UNSUCCESSFUL, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID.

FOUR ENEMY BOMBERS RAIDED THE ALLIED BASE AT MILNE BAY, BUT WITHOUT EFFECT, IT WAS REPORTED.

JAN 21 1943

MEANWHILE, ALLIED MEDIUM BOMBERS RAIDED JAPANESE SUPPLY DUMPS AT LAE, NEW GUINEA, STARTING MANY FIRES, AND OTHER ALLIED AIRCRAFT ATTACKED JAPANESE INSTALLATIONS ON TIMOR, ON THE KAIE ISLANDS AND AT GASMATA, NEW BRITAIN.

A SMALL ALLIED VESSEL WAS REPORTED TORPEDOED AND SUNK IN AUSTRALIAN WATERS WITH THE LOSS OF TWO LIVES. IT WAS THE FIRST TIME AN ENEMY SUBMARINE WAS REPORTED IN AUSTRALIAN WATERS IN SEVERAL MONTHS.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, JAN. 20 -(AP)-

GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR AWARDED A POSTHUMOUS DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSS FOR EXTRAORDINARY HEROISM TO FIRST LIEUT. JAMES G. DOWNER OF AN INFANTRY DIVISION, THE DECORATION WILL GO TO HIS WIDOW, MRS. HELEN DOWNER OF (ROUTE ONE) BOWLING GREEN, KY.

JAN 21 1943

HE ALSO AWARDED THE AN OAK LEAF CLUSTER, IN LIEU OF A SECOND DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSS, TO COL. GORDON B. ROGERS OF THE GENERAL STAFF CORPS PRESIDIO, SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.

3.24-485

DOWNER WAS CITED FOR EXTRAORDINARY HEROISM IN AN ACTION NEAR BUNA, NEW GUINEA, DEC. 9, WHEN HE LED A PATROL OF FIVE MEN IN AN ATTEMPT TO CAPTURE AN ENEMY MACHINEGUN EMPLACEMENT, WHICH WAS HOLDING UP THE ALLIED ADVANCE. SEVERAL PREVIOUS ATTEMPTS TO TAKE THE POSITION HAD RESULTED IN HEAVY CASUALTIES.

FULLY AWARE OF THE GREAT DANGER, DOWNER PRECEDED HIS PATROL, COVERING ITS ADVANCE, AND THROUGH HIS COURAGEOUS EXAMPLE INSPIRED A RENEWED ATTACK AGAINST THE STRONG POSITION, THE CITATION SAID. AN ENEMY SNIPER WAS KILLED DURING THE ACTION.

JAN 21 1943

ON

COL. ROGERS, WHO HAD RECEIVED THE DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSS EARLIER FOR EXTRAORDINARY HEROISM IN ACTION, WAS AWARDED THE OAK LEAF CLUSTER FOR AN ACTION NEAR BUNA DEC. 28.

DURING THE COURSE OF AN INFANTRY ATTACK, ROGERS WITHOUT REGARD TO HIS PERSONAL SAFETY AND IN THE FACE OF ENEMY RIFLE

AND MACHINEGUN FIRE FROM EXTREMELY CLOSE RANGE, MOVED ABOUT AMONG THE TROOPS AND INSPIRED THEM TO A DETERMINED ATTACK, THE CITATION SAID. WHEN WOUNDED, HE REFUSED MEDICAL ATTENTION AND CONTINUED HIS ACTIVITIES UNTIL HE RECEIVED A SECOND WOUND WHICH MADE HIS REMOVAL NECESSARY.

JAN 21 1943

MELBOURNE, JAN. 20-(AP)-A LARGE SUBMARINE, BELIEVED TO BE JAPANESE AND THE FIRST REPORTED IN AUSTRALIAN WATERS IN SEVERAL MONTHS, TORPEDOED A SMALL ALLIED SHIP OFF THE AUSTRALIAN COAST KILLIN TWO FIREMEN, IT WAS DISCLOSED TODAY.

JAN 21 1943

THIRTY CREW MEMBERS AND TWO PASSENGERS SAILED AND ROWED IN A LIFE-BOAT TO AN AUSTRALIAN PORT.

SURVIVORS SAID THE SUBMARINE WAS SIGHTED 300 YARDS AWAY AFTER THE TORPEDO STRUCK. THE SHIP SANK WITHIN AN HOUR.

BY CHARLES H.MCMURTRY

WITH THE U.S.FLEET IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC-(CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)-LIEUT.(JG) F.E.(CHRIS) CHRISTOFERSON OF WHITE BEAR LAKE,MINN., WASN'T AROUND TO RECEIVE HIS DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSS THE DAY REAR ADMIRAL GEORGE MURRAY DECORATED FELLOW MEMBERS OF HIS SQUADRON.

CHRIS EARNED THE DFC ALL RIGHT, AT MIDWAY. BUT THAT DAY HE WAS IN SICK BAH ON A DESTROYER ACCOMPANYING HIS CARRIER. CHRIS, FLYING A SCOUT BOMBER, HAD TACKLED A KAWANISHI 97 SCOUT BOMBER. HE ALMOST MADE IT BACK TO THE CARRIER, DROPPED 1,000 YARDS SHORT AS HIS MOTOR FROZE FROM LACK OF OIL. THE JAP HAD RIDDLED CHRIS' FUEL LINE.

FELLOW PILOTS SAID CHRIS NEVER SHOULD HAVE TACKLED THAT GIANT JAP. THE KAWANISHI IS A FOUR-ENGINE JOB, CARRIES A CREW OF NINE OR TEN. CHRIS' PLANE WAS A SINGLE-ENGINE SHIP. HIS CREW WAS HIS RADIOMAN-GUNNER, "BUTCH" POORMAN, FROM KANSAS CITY,KAS.

CHRIS AND BUTCH SPOTTED THAT JAP ABOUT 29 MILES FROM THEIR CARRIER.

JAN 21 1943

"SURE I KNEW IT WAS DANGEROUS TO TACKLE THAT BIG JAP," CHRIS SAID. "I HAVE BUTCH RADIO THE JAP'S POSITION AND COURSE TO THE CARRIER. BUT I KNEW THAT BY THE TIME OUR FIGHTERS COULD COME OUT AND SHOOT HIM DOWN HE WOULD HAVE TIME TO FIND OUR TASK FORCE AND RADIO THE INFORMATION TO HIS BASE. HE HADN'T SEEN OUR FORCE YET. SO I WENT IN."

GOING IN INVOLVED A TWO-MILE RUN, WITH CHRIS FORTUNATE IN HAVING CUMULUS CLOUDS TO HELP COVER HIS APPROACH. THEN HE MADE FIVE RUNS ON THAT BIG LAND-BASED BOMBER.

"WE HIT HIM ON THE FIRST RUN, BUT DIDN'T HAVE ENOUGH FIRE POWER TO DOWN HIM," CHRIS RELATED. "I DON'T REMEMBER A THING ABOUT THE NEXT THREE PASSES. WE WERE BLAZING AWAY WITH EVERYTHING WE HAD AND SO WAS THE JAP. I THINK HE HIT US ON THAT FIRST RUN, TOO. BUT HE DIDN'T HURT US.

"AFTER FOUR RUNS WE WERE ALMOST OUT OF AMMUNITION.

"I TRIED FOR A KILL ON THAT LAST (FIFTH) RUN. I HIT HIM. HE WOBBLED A LITTLE BUT DIDN'T SEEM TO BE DAMAGED BADLY. I WAS OUT OF AMMUNITION. HE HAD PUNCTURED MY FUEL LINE. SO I HAD TO TRY TO GET HOME.

A96KX

"AS I TURNED AWAY TWO OF OUR FIGHTER PLANES ARRIVED. THEY FINISHED HIM. THEY'RE STILL ARGUING ABOUT WHICH ONE DID IT. EACH WANTS TO PAINT THAT LITTLE JAP FLAG (SYMBOLIC OF A DOWNED JAP) ON HIS PLANE.

JAN 21 1943

"I TRIED TO GET BACK TO THE CARRIER BUT ALL MY OIL LEAKED OUT AND MY ENGINE FROZE. I HAD TO LAND ON THE WATER JUST A THOUSAND YARDS SHORT OF MY SHIP. BUTCH WAS THROWN AGAINST THE BULKHEAD AND FRACTURED HIS RIGHT ARM. I WAS THROWN AGAINST THE INSTRUMENT PANEL.

JAN 21 1943

THAT'S WHY CHRIS WASN'T AROUND TO RECEIVE HIS DFC ON SCHEDULE.... THE DOCTOR AT FIRST THOUGHT HE HAD A FRACTURED SKULL. BUT CHRIS GOT OFF WITH AN INCH AND A HALF CUT ON HIS TEMPLE.

WHEN HE CAME BACK TO THE CARRIER ONLY THREE DAYS AFTER THE CRASH, HE WAS BEGGING TO TAKE UP ANOTHER SCOUT BOMBER. HE WAS MORE INTERESTED IN THAT THAN IN THE DELAYED PRESENTATION OF HIS DFC.

WITH AMERICAN TROOPS IN NEW GUINEA-, JAN.18-(DELAYED)-(AP)-ALTHOUGH THEY ARE WITHOUT HOPE OF REINFORCEMENTS AND CAN'T HOPE FOR PROPER MEDICAL CARE, JAPANESE TODAY FURNISHED AMERICAN TROOPS ON THE SANANANDA ROAD WITH A SERIES OF BLOODY LITTLE SKIRMISHES.

THESE SKIRMISHES, AIMED AT CLEARING ENEMY POCKETS ON BOTH SIDES OF THE SO-CALLED "MOTOR ROAD", WHICH IS UNDER WATER FOR MORE THAN THE LAST MILE NEAR THE COAST. BY DUSK NOT ALL THE JAPS WERE CLEARED OUT, BUT THE AMERICAN COMMANDER, WHO DURING THE AFTERNOON'S FIRING HAD A FRONT LINE VISIT FROM LIEUT.GEN.ROBERT L.EICHELBERGER, EXPECTED TO HAVE THINGS UNDER CONTROL VERY SOON.

DURING THE DAY THERE WERE AT LEAST FIVE DIFFERENT FIGHTS IN THE AREA BETWEEN THE FORWARD AMERICAN LINES AND THE MAIN BODY. IN ADDITION THERE WERE SEVERAL OTHER SMALL JAPANESE POCKETS SANDWICHED IN BETWEEN THE AMERICAN AND AUSTRALIAN FORCES, SOME OF WHICH OCCUPIED SANANANDA POINT.

WITH FRANK HEWLETT OF THE UNITED PRESS I HAD A FRONT ROW SEAT ON ONE OF THESE DUST-UPS IN WHICH A PLATOON UNDER LIEUT.RICHARD SLADE ACHIEVED THE TASK OF ELIMINATING A COUPLE OF ENEMY PILLBOXES WHICH WERE DELAYING PROGRESS ON THE RIGHT SIDE OF THE SANANANDA ROAD BEYOND THE HUGGINS ROAD BLOCK.

WE VISITED IT FIRST WHILE THE GENERAL WAS THERE CONFERRING WITH THE UNIT COMMANDER, THEN RETURNED AN HOUR LATER AND FOUND CONSIDERABLE FIREWORKS IN PROGRESS.

LYING BEHIND THE PARTIAL SHELTER OF A SAND PILE AT THE BACK OF A FOX HOLE, CAPT.DUNCAN DUPREE OF POLAR, MONT., WAS HANDLING TWO TELEPHONES, TALKING TO LIEUT.SLADE ON ONE AND TO LIEUT.KENNETH LEIBACH OF MEDICINE LAKE, MONT., ON THE OTHER. GOEBBELS SAID THERE WERE A NUMBER OF SUCH INSTITUTIONS "WHICH OFFER ADVANTAGES TO NO ONE OR ONLY TO VERY FEW AND WHICH REQUIRE PERSONNEL AND MATERIAL ABSOLUTELY OUT OF PROPORTION TO THE EFFECT."

THE BROADCAST ADDED THAT GOEBBELS DID NOT INCLUDE IN THIS CATEGORY 'DIO STATIONS OR THREATERS WHICH HAVE RELATIVELY SMALL STAFFS BUT RD THE ENTIRE GERMANNATION RECREATION."

BY GLENN BABB

JAN 21 1943

THE COST OF HITLER'S "CRUSADE AGAINST BOLSHEVISM" CONTINUES TO FALL MOST HEAVILY ON HIS HAPLESS ALLIES. DISASTER STRUCK THE RUMANIANS IN THE FIRST STAGES OF THE RUSSIAN WINTER OFFENSIVE. NOW IT IS THE TURN OF THE ITALIANS AND HUNGARIANS. THE VARIOUS "LEGIONS" OF ALLEGED VOLUNTEERS WHICH OTHER SATELLITE STATES SENT INTO THE RUSSIAN CAMPAIGN ALL HAVE BEEN PUNISHED HEAVILY.

ANY HOPES THAT THE SUBJECT STATES MAY HAVE HELD WHEN THEY SENT THEIR MEN TO THE EASTERN BATTLEFRONT RAPIDLY ARE GIVING WAY NOT MERELY TO DISAPPOINTMENT BUT TO TERROR LEST THEY LOSE NOT ONLY THE STAKES THEY PLACED IN THE GAMBLE BUT ALL THE RESERVES OF MILITARY POWER AND POLITICAL INDEPENDENCE THEY MANAGED TO WITHHOLD FROM HITLER'S GRASP. EVIDENCE OF THIS TREND COMES FROM MANY QUARTERS.

IT IS NOT MEANT TO SUGGEST THAT HITLER'S ALLIES CHERISHED ANY ILLUSIONS ABOUT THE REAL NATURE OF THE CRUSADE. THEY ENTERED LARGELY BECAUSE THEY FEARED TO REJECT THE PRESSURE OF THE GERMAN FUEHRER WHO SEEMED THEN TO BE ALL-CONQUERING, BECAUSE THEY HOPED TO PROPITIATE HIM AT NOT TOO GREAT A COST AND TO ESTABLISH A CLAIM TO SOME SHARE OF THE SPOILS WHEN HE WON. SINCERE BELIEF IN A GREAT CAUSE MIGHT HOLD SUCH A CONFEDERATION TOGETHER EVEN IN DEFEAT, BUT THE MOTIVES IN THIS CASE DOES NOT PROVIDE A CEMENT CAPABLE OF RESISTING THE STRESSES THAT COME WHEN THE PROSPECT OF BOOTY RECEDES AND THE LOSSES RISE TO TERRIFYING PROPORTIONS, AS THEY ARE DOING NOW.

THE RUMANIANS WERE THE FIRST TO SUFFER WHEN THE TIDE TURNED ALONG THE VOLGA AND THUS FAR THEY HAVE BEEN THE HEAVIEST LOSERS. IT IS CONSERVATIVELY ESTIMATED THAT RUMANIA HAS SENT MORE THAN 30 DIVISIONS, PERHAPS HALF A MILLION MEN ALL TOLD, TO THE EASTERN FRONT. THEY WERE BADLY MAULED AT ODESSA AND IN THE CRIMEA, BUT THE CLIMAX CAME ON THE APPROACHES TO STALINGRAD. THERE, ACCORDING TO RUSSIAN ANNOUNCEMENTS, NO FEWER THAN 16 RUMANIAN DIVISIONS EITHER WERE ROUTED, CUT TO BITS OR CAUGHT IN THAT TRAP BEFORE STALINGRAD WHERE THE RUTHLESS ANNIHILATION OF NEARLY A QUARTER MILLION MEN IS NEARING ITS END. TO KEEP RUMANIA IN LINE AFTER THIS BLOOD-LETTING HITLER FOUND IT NECESSARY LAST WEEK TO SUMMON MARSHAL ANTONESCU TO HIS HEADQUARTERS AND CONVINCE HIM THAT RUMANIA WAS IN THIS THING TO THE END.

JAN 21 1943

UNDATED--FIRST ADD INTERPRETIVE BY BABB [illegible] THE END.

THE RED ARMY'S NEW DRIVE SOUTH AND SOUTHWEST FROM VORONEZH, WHICH NOW THREATENS TO ENGULF KHARKOV, FOUND THE HUNGARISNA DN ITALIANS BARRING THE WAY AND EXACTED FROM THEM A TOLL COMPARABLE TO THE RUMANIAN DISASTER BEFORE STALINGRAD. OF 52,000 PRISONERS TAKEN IN LESS THAN A [illegible]ZK 27,900 WERE HUNGARIANS AND 22,000 ITALIANS.

CCORDING TO MOSCOW'S COUNT. THE RUSSIAN COMMUNIQUE WHICH ANNOUNCED THIS BAG OMITTED THE USUAL REFERENCE TO ENEMY DEAD, SUGGESTING THAT PERHAPS THE HUNGARIAN-ITALIAN RESISTANCE LACKED SOMETHING IN TENACITY, THAT PERHAPS A LOT OF HUNGARIANS AND ITALIANS ARE ASKING THEMSELVES WHAT THEY ARE FIGHTING FOR AND NOT FINDING CONVINCING ANSWERS.

JAN 21 1943

REPEATED REPORTS COME FROM HUNGARY THAT THE GOVERNMENT'S CHIEF CONCERN IS FINDING A WAY TO RESIST NAZI PRESSURE FOR MORE CANNON FODDER AND SALVAGE WHAT IT CAN OF THE FORCES ALREADY SENT TO RUSSIA. AS FOR THE ITALIANS, THE FATE OF THEIR DIVISIONS AND ARMY CORPS BELOW VORONEZH IS A STRIKING PARALLEL TO THAT OF THE SIX ITALIAN DIVISIONS ABANDONED IN THE EGYPTIAN DESERT WITHOUT FOOD OR WATER WHEN ROMMEL DECIDED TO RUN FOR IT. THE TRUTH ABOUT THESE EVENTS CAN NOT BE HIDDEN LONG FROM THE ALREADY WAR-WEARY PEOPLE OF ITALY.

THE TALE IS REPEATED MANY TIMES THROUGHOUT THE NEW ORDER. THE CROAT LEGION IS RETURNING HOME, "TO FIGHT COMMUNISM IN ITS OWN COUNTRY." THE SLOVAKS HAVE RECEIVED THEIR BITTER DOSE. WHAT IS HAPPENING IN RUSSIA RAPIDLY IS DESTROYING WHAT LITTLE TASTE FOR THE VENTURE REMAINED AMONG THE SPANIARDS, WHO SENT A "BLUE LEGION," THE FRENCH FASCISTS, THE DANISH NAZIS OR THE NORWEGIAN QUISLINGS, ALL OF WHOM MADE THEIR BLOOD CONTRIBUTIONS.

THIS DOES NOT MEAN THAT HITLER'S NEW ORDER WILL FALL APART AT ONCE. BUT IT DOES SUGGEST THE RAPID DISAPPEARANCE OF ANY ELEMENTS OF FREE WILL SUPPORT AMONG THE SATELLITES. FROM NOW ON FORCE, BLACKMAIL AND TERROR WILL BE INCREASINGLY IMPORTANT WEAPONS IN THE BATTLE TO KEEP THE CONFEDERATION TOGETHER. HITLER HAS THESE WEAPONS IN SUFFICIENT MEASURE AND THE MEN TO APPLY THEM WITH SUFFICIENT FEROCITY TO KEEP THINGS GOING FOR A LONG TIME.

Push Viewed As Effort To Give Rommel Path To Retreat

JAN 22 1943

British Libyan Army 30 Miles From Tripoli In Continued Drive

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Jan. 21—Rommel's continuing retreat to within thirty miles of Tripoli under British Eighth Army pressure and fresh advances by German tank columns in central Tunisia were viewed tonight as moves intended to prevent the Allies from severing communications by which the Africa Corps might withdraw into northern Tunisia.

Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's advance guards in Libya occupied Tarhuna southeast of Tripoli and Homes on the coast fifty-six miles to the east and pressed on to a point only thirty miles from the outskirts of the last Italian colonial port.

Pressure Unrelenting

Unrelenting pressure from both the coastal and inland British columns was believed preventing German engineers from sowing mine-fields to retard the Bri[illegible]ance and give the Nazi marshal time to make a more orderly withdrawal to strong defense positions.

The German tank advance was in the mountain positions southwest of Pont du Fahs.

Hurricane bombers came to the support of the French defenders with a devastating attack with 500-pound bombs on enemy troop and supply columns moving up to support the Panzers, RAF headquarters announced.

Escorted By Spitfires

"Escorted by a strong force of Spitfires who added their fire power of cannon and machine guns, Hurricane bombers swept down on columns of transports, scoring many hits and scattering troops," the RAF announcement said.

One force bombed a house and, in the words of a pilot:

"The Germans streamed out of it as the attack was made."

The RAF said many casualties were inflicted by bursting bombs. Parking lots where trucks were hidden under trees also were blasted.

Parking lots where trucks were hidden under trees also were blasted.

The gains southwest of Point du Fahs were initiated by the Germans in a drive announced yesterday, when a seven-mile thrust was reported.

Until the German armored attacks were launched two days ago along both sides of a mountain ridge extending southwestward from the Point du Fahs area, the French had held high positions only thirty miles west of Enfidaville and dominating a large portion of the coastal plain.

Expert opinion was that Col. Gen. Dietloff von Arnim's thrust was designed to gain control of the whole evacuated area there by encirclement and thus protect communications essential to maintaining a link between General Field Marshal Rommel's retreating forces and the powerful Axis concentrations in northern Tunisia.

"Enemy vehicles and infantry in this area were attacked by Hurricane bombers," the communiqué said. "Our fighters, including the Lafayette Escadrille, attacked in support of French troops."

Flying Fortresses, roaring through heavily overcast skies, heavily bombed Camp Mangin, near Gabès, scoring direct hits on a barracks area and an adjacent railroad, as well as on the Gabès airdrome.

A small force of German fighters attacked the Flying Fortresses, whose guns downed two Messerschmitt-109s and damaged one Focke-Wulf 190. All the Flying Fortresses returned safely.

Axis Forces Score Tunisian Advance Against French

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—The British 8th Army, with a Fighting French desert column on its left flank, today pushed Marshal Erwin Rommel's hard-pressed rear guard down the coastward slope from Nefusa Ridge to probably within 35 miles of Tripoli in a continuing advance past the hill village of Tarhuna and the coastal road town of Homs.

The occupation yesterday of the towns, one 40 miles southeast and the other 56 miles east of Tripoli, was announced in today's Cairo communique which said Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's forces pushed on "in close contact with the enemy retreating to the west."

Under steadily mounting aerial assault the Axis withdrawal showed signs of disorganization, but informed sources said there was no authoritative indication that bomb-battered Tripoli was being evacuated.

Axis Makes New Advance.

On the Tunisian land front, where it was suggested that new Axis offensive thrusts might be intended to hold open a corridor for Marshal Rommel's withdrawal, Axis troops under Col. Gen. Jurgen von Arnim made a new advance against French positions southwest of Pont Du Fahs.

This was in the section where a communique yesterday disclosed a German penetration of 7 miles. Today's war bulletin described the new gain as "a small advance" and said Allied bombers and fighters, including the French Lafayette Escadrille, were striking in support of the French troops.

JAN 22 1943

Minor engagements continued in the Bou Arada region north of the French positions. There a German thrust was reported yesterday to have been repulsed after a hard mauling.

Reports from the front said the German penetration in the ridged, ravine-cut country southwest of Pont Du Fahs created a fluid front from which one of the decisive battles of the Tunisian campaign might take form.

Counter-Move Expected.

Allied plans for a counter-move were kept secret, of course, but it seemed certain that one was in the making.

The Allies kept their ascendancy in the air on both sides of the dwindling Axis position.

A United States communique said B-24 Liberators raided Tripoli in two separate attacks without the loss of a plane.

"In the first attack," the communique said, "bombs burst along the Spanish mole starting fires which were confirmed by our aircraft reaching the target area later. A probable hit was scored on a merchant vessel.

"In the second attack the target was almost totally obscured by cloud coverage, but the bombs found their mark and started a huge fire that caused columns of black smoke to penetrate heavy cloud coverage at 10,000 feet."

Other Allied planes bombed Axis troops dug in along the coastal road between Homs and the capital.

The adjacent Axis air base at Castel Benito was bombed anew, and enemy troops and transport concentrations near Tripoli were under virtually incessant attack.

Torpedo-carrying Allied planes sank one ship and damaged two others off the Tunisian coast and sent another to the bottom in the Aegean Sea.

Enemy Tanker Attacked.

From the west, Flying Fortresses and British Bisleys kept up their battering of military camps and supply routes behind the enemy's Tunisian line. American Billy Mitchell bombers, escorted by Lightnings, attacked an enemy tanker between Tunisia and Sicily and left it hard hit.

The Italian communique, reporting 1,500 prisoners captured on the Tunisian front in three days, said positions which had been gained there were being consolidated.

The German communique, however, said the positions were held against strong enemy counter-attacks, but reported them "improved considerably in some places."

The news that the Fighting French actually had made contact with the onrushing British after sweeping northward across hundreds of miles of Libyan desert was disclosed last night in a communique from Brig. Gen. Jacques Le Clerc's headquarters.

Gen. Le Clerc said his troops now were "brilliantly taking part with their British allies in the advance on Tripoli," moving steadily forward on the 8th Army's flank, thus compressing Marshal Rommel's fleeing Afrika Korps into a narrow strip along the Mediterranean coast.

An Allied communique announced that Axis tanks and infantry made a small advance, and a spokesman disclosed that the enemy vanguard had reached a point about two miles from Robaa, itself twenty-seven miles from Pont du Fahs and sixty miles southwest of Tunis.

The spokesman reported that the Nazi armored forces were making a twin thrust down parallel valleys further south in the direction of Ousseltia. This was interpreted as an effort to isolate and then occupy the high ground between the two valleys. German occupation of this high ground would insure protection for the coastal route further east along which Rommel's forces may move in from Libya.

This was in the section where a communique yesterday disclosed a German penetration of seven miles. Today's war bulletin described the new gain as "a small advance," and said that Allied bombers and fighters, including the French Lafayette Escadrille, were striking in support of the French troops.

Reports from the front said that the German penetration in the ridged, ravine-cut country southwest of Pont du Fahs had created a fluid front from which one of the decisive battles of the Tunisian campaign might take form. Allied plans for a counter-move were kept secret, of course, but it seemed certain that one was in the making.

In a communique broadcast by the Rome radio, the Italian High Command declared that the Axis had taken 1,500 Allied prisoners, along with twenty guns and other booty in the last three days in Tunisia. "Thirty motor vehicles were destroyed," the statement continued, and added that the positions won were being consolidated.

The German communique, on the other hand, said that the positions were held against strong enemy counter-attacks, but reported them in some places considerably improved.

Job Is to Overtake Rommel.

The British Eighth Army therefore had two tasks before it, the occupation of Tripoli and an effort to overtake and engage the main body of Rommel's army as quickly as possible.

Under steadily mounting aerial assault, the Axis withdrawal meanwhile showed signs of disorganization, but informed observers here said that there was no authoritative indication yet that bomb-battered Tripoli was being evacuated.

In any case, the occupation of the port by the British was regarded simply as a matter of time, perhaps of a few days.

The Allies kept their ascendency in the air on both sides of the dwindling Axis position. Big American bombers blasted again by daylight yesterday at the harbor of Tripoli, last stronghold of Mussolini's African Empire, while other Allied planes bombed Axis troops dug in along the coastal road between Homs and the capital. The adjacent Axis air base at Castel Benito was bombed anew, and enemy troops and transport concentrations near Tripoli were under virtually incessant attack.

Torpedo-carrying Allied planes sank one ship and damaged two others off the Tunisian coast, and sent another to the bottom in the Aegean Sea.

From the west, Flying Fortresses and British Bisleys kept up their battering of military camps and supply routes behind the enemy's Tunisian line. American Mitchell bombers, escorted by Lightnings, attacked an enemy tanker between Tunisia and Sicily and left it hard hit.

Fortresses also blasted a military camp near Gabes, the southernmost of the major enemy supply ports on the Tunisian coast.

The United States Air Forces, Middle East Command, announced at Cairo that the American Liberators raided Tripoli in two separate attacks without the loss of a plane. "In the first attack," the communique said, "bombs burst along the Spanish Mole, starting fires which were confirmed by our aircraft reaching the target area later. A probable hit was scored on a merchant vessel. In the second attack the target was almost totally obscured by cloud coverage, but the bombs found their mark and started a huge fire that caused columns of black smoke to penetrate heavy cloud coverage at 10,000 feet."

TRIPOLI IN FLAMES, BRITISH TROOPS IN OUTSKIRTS OF CITY

JAN 22 1943

LONDON, Friday, Jan. 22—(AP) The Daily Mail's Madrid correspondent, quoting reports there from North Africa, said today that great fires were raging in Tripoli, main Axis base in Libya, and that the British Eighth army's advance units were only five miles outside the city.

Tripoli was said to have been damaged heavily by Allied air raids and also by German demolition squads. Coastal defense batteries were reported destroyed.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—New advances by the Axis forces in Tunisia in an operation apparently aimed at throwing a strong barrier between the Allies and the coast to protect the line of German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's retreat westward from Libya were reported today from Allied Tunisian headquarters, as the British Libyan army drove on behind Rommel to within about thirty miles of Tripoli.

[At Washington, War Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson said Thursday: "It would seem very plain that the fall of Tripoli is only a matter of hours."]

Another small forward movement by Axis tanks and infantrymen into French-held mountain positions southwest of Pont du Fahs was announced in an Allied communique, and a headquarters spokesman disclosed as well that German armored columns were pushing down parallel valleys toward the town of Ousseltia, apparently seeking to isolate and then occupy the intervening heights.

This maneuver, if successful, would afford protection for a large section of the coastal route over which Rommel's retreat from Libya would take him in the effort to join up with Colonel General Jurgen von Arnim's Tunisian army.

Rommel Falling Back Fast

Rommel still was falling back fast today but was under severe attack from the pursuing British 8th Army of General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, from the Allied air arm and from Fighting French columns supporting the advance on the British left.

It was announced yesterday that a column from the Lake Chad troops of Fighting French General Jacques Le Clerc had made contact with the British moving on Tripoli. A second meeting of Fighting French soldiers with Allied forces was announced today by the Brazzaville radio, which was quoted by the Reuters (British) news agency as saying that a Le Clerc column under a Colonel Cartier had established contact with French troops of General Henri Honore Giraud in the Djanet region of Algeria, 900 miles southeast of Algiers.

A British communique issued at Cairo announced occupation yesterday of the towns of Tarhuna and Homs, on the left and right British flanks—Tarhuna is forty miles southeast and Homs fifty-six miles east of Tripoli—in a continuing push that by tonight had proceeded considerably farther and was driving Rommel down the coastward slope from the Nefusa ridge. "Close contact" with the enemy was being maintained, the British said.

Tripoli Ablaze From Bombing

Almost continuous bombing attacks on Tripoli were keeping that city aflame. German radio announcements that it was on fire suggested the Axis public was being prepared for its loss to the Allies. There was, however, no information direct from the front to indicate that Tripoli was as yet being abandoned by Rommel. In any case, the greater issue was how much of his army Rommel was going to be able to take into Tunisia itself.

Along the line of his retreat in western Libya Allied fighter-bombers machine-gunned his troop and transport columns and night-fighter planes took up where the day squadrons left off.

Axis Mediterranean ship lanes were under continual attack, Cairo headquarters announcing that two more enemy supply ships had been sunk and two others badly damaged.

In all these far-ranging operations under the Allied Cairo command only three Allied planes were lost.

At the Tunisian end of the North African theater Lieutenant General Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters announced a series of air attacks on Axis vehicles and infantry in the fighting areas southwest of Pont du Fahs in support of French ground forces. American and British bombers attacked enemy communications and military camps.

"Our bombers," General Eisenhower's announcement remarked, "were attacked by enemy fighters and got two of them."

It was added that four Axis bombers had been destroyed during the nights of Jan. 19-20 and 20-21 and that in all these actions only one Allied plane was lost.

FIGHTING FRENCH FROM LAKE CHAD JOIN WITH GIRAUD

Junction Made at Djanet, 900 Miles Southeast of Algiers

JAN 22 1943

LONDON, Jan. 21—(AP) Fighting French soldiers pushing up from Lake Chad in Equatorial Africa have made contact with French forces of Gen. Henri Honore Giraud in the Djanet region of Algeria, some 900 miles southeast of Algiers, a Fighting French communique heard by Reuters reported tonight.

The announcement broadcast by the Brazzaville radio said:

"Contact was established between Fighting French troops under Col. Cartier and French forces in the Djanet region.

"Gen. Jacques LecLerc had called on them to occupy Gat, where there were still some Italians who had been prevented from escaping to the north by the capture of Fezzon."

Djanet is 65 miles west of Gat, in Algeria across the border from Libya. It is 40 miles inside the frontier. The Fighting French have reported the capture of Gat.

An announcement yesterday said that a LecLerc column had pushed north through the Fezzan region of Tripolitania and made contact with the left wing of the British Eighth army moving on Tripoli.

The Fighting French announcement indicates that a column of Gen. LecLerc's army turned westward to join the Giraud troops.

507 Britons on Carrier Perished Off North Africa

Avenger Was One of 16 Allied Losses in Landing Armadas

LONDON, Jan. 22 (Friday).—(AP).—The Admiralty announced today that 507 British seamen, including sixty-eight officers, were lost in the torpedo sinking of the aircraft carrier Avenger during the French North African landing operations.

The total number of men aboard was not disclosed.

The Avenger was one of sixteen allied naval vessels officially listed as lost out of landing armadas estimated to have numbered 850 transports and warships.

Decisive Battle May be Near.

With the Allied Forces At Bou Arada, Tunisia, Jan. 20 (Delayed) (A. P.).—A German thrust into the French sector southwest of Pont du Fahs has thrown the whole central Tunisian front into a state of fluidity that may well develop into a decisive battle of the French North African campaign.

The Allied plans to counter the German move remained hidden in war councils, but confidence was expressed in front line areas that the situation would be rectified without loss of our favorable positions.

Two possible explanations of the sudden German offensive were discussed here. One was that Col.-Gen. Jurgen von Arnim, Hitler's new commander in Tunisia, was simply following the old military dictum that the best defense is an offensive. The second was that the Nazis were making a desperate effort to clear a space for the retreat of Rommel's defeated army into Tunisia.

Hard-Fighting Invaders Are Sightseeing Boys

JAN 22 1943

By HAL BOYLE

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY, Casablanca, French Morocco — Five thousand eggs were the victory gift personally bought by a major general as a reward for the troops in his division for capturing Mazagan, en route to Casablanca, without firing a shot.

Mazagan garrison capitulated after seeing the strength of U. S. armored forces which earlier took Safi, southern landing point. Navy planes droning overhead helped them make up their minds.

The eggs were a welcome variety to soldiers who had nothing but K field rations.

A direct attack upon the city of Safi by two companies of infantry landed after a suicide dash through the harbor defenses by two stripped-down destroyers, was one of the most spectacular feats of the brief campaign.

The old-type destroyers, loaded with men armed with tommy guns and razor-edged knives, slipped through mine fields in the darkness under fire from French .75's.

One destroyer drove full speed onto beach and troops climbed down rope nets and ran through Safi streets with lead-spitting tommy guns. The other, firing at coastal defenses, ran through a hail of rifle and machine-gun fire under the glare of searchlights, to loading facilities, thereby simplifying the problem of landing heavy armored forces.

The Safi landing was one of the best coups of the war.

The eyes of an Iowa farm boy bulged when he saw his live camel ambling down a Moroccan road a few hours after troops landed at Fedala. Forgetting battle temporarily, he cried:

"Look, fellows, I'm seeing things. First time I ever saw one of those outside a geography book!"

The tide of United States money has swept many poorly-paid workers to delirious prosperity. Arab shoe-shine boys are often tossed five, ten or more francs by free-spending soldiers and sailors, who haven't yet convinced themselves that the brightly colored French paper is money.

Drivers of the horse-drawn public carriages also share in the golden harvest. Every day the streets are filled with carriages crowded with sightseeing soldiers. Everyone has a good time but the horse.

Perfume shops have enjoyed a steady run. The more expensive French brands, irreplacable now, were quickly bought up for gifts to the girls back home.

In a shop at Rabat, the capital of French Morocco, a French woman watched a group of soldiers buying out the perfume supply and sighed:

"Ah, there won't be any left for the French girls."

An American soldier, who overheard her remark, gallantly presented her with a choice bottle of perfume.

Voroshilovsk Taken by Reds; Trans-Caucasian Rail Junction

Russians Also Closing Ring Around Rostov —Two Armies Driving to Sea West and South of City

JAN 22 1943

Closing Ring on Rostov.

Moscow, Jan. 21 (A. P.).—The Russian forces driving down to the south from a Donets River crossing were today reported threatening the industrial city of Voroshilovgrad and heading toward the Sea of Azov west of Rostov in what may prove to be a vast encirclement maneuver.

By capturing Mityakinskaya, the Russian Army had thrust to a point twenty miles east of Voroshilovgrad, major city of the Donets Basin. Voroshilovgrad lies only ninety-five miles north of Rostov, which is also threatened by the lower Don army sixty miles to the east and by the forces driving up from the north Causasus.

In the Caucasus, Russian shock troops crossing the Manych River were declared to be within fifteen miles of the important railway junction of Salsk, 100 miles south-east of Rostov.

Feverish German efforts to fix a stable line along the left bank of the Manych, a placid, lake-fed stream which flows into the Don thirty miles east of Rostov, are failing, field dispatches said.

[In a broadcast picked up by the Associated Press, the Moscow radio said today that more than 500,000 Axis troops have been killed and 200,000 captured on the Russian front from November 19 to January 19. The figures were attributed to Alexander Shcherbakov, chairman of the Moscow Soviet, who added that in the same two-month period the Russians captured more than 6,000 tanks, 12,000 guns and 3,500 planes.]

Other Objectives Listed.

Red Star announced that Soviet detachments were capturing point after point while the Germans were blowing up bridges and trying to lay more mines in a rapid retreat. They already have been driven from a number of positions on the Salsk side of the Manych, it said.

There and elsewhere on the long front the Russians were declared moving ever westward in the tenth week of their winter offensive, with Rostov, Kharkov, Voroshilovgrad and the Maikop oil fields of the Caucasus among their objectives.

With a northern army reported seventy-nine miles east of Kharkov, at Urazova, a southern force swept seventeen miles westward to capture Byelokurakina, 115 miles southeast of Kharkov, a special Russian communique said last night.

These two troop bodies threatened to clamp pincers on Kharkov. The troops who had reached Byelokurakina had accomplished actually the deepest penetration of the Ukraine Republic since the Russians were forced to retreat in this region by the Germans' 1942 summer offensive.

Byelokurakina is about fifty miles inside the Ukrainian border. South of that area, the special communique said, Red Army troops also moved into Byelovodsk, a district center forty-five miles above Voroshilovgrad.

[The German communique said there was "continuous hard fighting south of Lake Ladoga," where the Russians are battling to widen their supply corridor to Leningrad. Without a reference to specific gains or losses, the communique said that Axis shock troops were successfully employed in local combat on the central front and south of Lake Ilmen, and that the Russians were repulsed during continued violent assaults in the south. Trapped troops at Stalingrad were reported to have stood firmly against mass assaults.]

The advance on Rostov from the Don Valley and from the Caucasus found the Russian Army firmly intrenched at Proletarskaya, the Soviet Information Bureau's bulletins said, marking the clearing of the entire region north of the Manych waterway.

In the Lower Caucasus, the Russians claimed the recapture of Nevinnomysskaya, 200 miles southeast of Rostov but only fifty miles from the next key Caucasus strongpoint of Armavir.

Armavir is on the main Baku-Rostov railway and at the head of the spur that runs through the Maikop oil fields to Tuapse on the Black Sea. It is the gateway to Kropotkin and Krasnodar and the entire Kuban valley defense zone south of Rostov.

An advance through Armavir and Kropotkin on the railroad would open the path for a union of the army of the Caucasus with that driving toward Salsk.

The latest communiques had little to say of the offensive to clear the German besiegers out of the Leningrad area.

Dispatches from the front which told of the Russian seizure of the fortress at Ostrogozhsk after a two-day siege said that two trainloads of German automobiles were captured in the town. Red Army troops held the siege on the town while other troops speared down to Valuikiand Urazova in gains reported previously.

deep in the eastern Ukraine and encroaching on Kharkov. Their southern wing was at Byelokurakina, 115 miles southeast of Kharkov, and the northern arm at Urazova, seventy-nine miles east.

Nazi Division Trapped

The noon communique said a ring of encirclement was tightened around an entire enemy division trapped far behind the front near the Moscow-Rostov railway.

At one point a Hungarian battalion surrendered.

A Moscow radio broadcast recorded by the Associated Press in London reported that more than 500,000 Fascist troops have been killed and 200,000 captured on the long Russian front between November 19, when the Russians launched their first winter offensive, and January 19.

(The radio attributed these figures to chairman Alexander Sherbakov, of the Moscow Soviet, in a speech at a meeting commemorating the nineteenth anniversary of Lenin's death. It also declared that the Axis had lost more than 6,000 tanks, 12,000 guns and 3,500 planes in the same two months).

Continued advances were reported in the north Caucasus. Driving down the Stalingrad-Tikhoretsk railway across the Manych river, dispatches said, the Red army was within fifteen miles of Salsk where another railway leads one hundred miles northwest to Rostov.

Along the Rostov-Baku railway, the capture of Nevinnomysskaya on the Kuban river placed the Soviets only fifty miles short of Armavir

Around liberated Leningrad the Russians were said to have "continued engagements in the same directions" south of Lake Lagoda.

[The Germans said violent Russian attacks were repulsed all along the southern front and that hard fighting continued south of Lake Ladoga. Mass assaults on the Germans before Stalingrad were reported and he fighting in the center and south of Lake Ilmen was termed local.]

Col. Gen. N. F. Vatutin's army of the southwest, thrusting toward Voroshilovgrad, Rostov and Likhaya, had occupied three settlements since last night and had Likhaya within artillery range. The trans-Don railway from Stalingrad meets the Rostov-Voronezh-Moscow line there.

Many Locomotives Seized

In capturing Kamensk earlier in the week, the Russians said they seized three train-loads of trucks and materiel and "many locomotives." Vatutin's men were only seventy-five miles nort hof Rostov, key to the Caucasus.

Between Vatutin and the Caucasus, the armies of the lower Don commanded by Col. Gen. K. K. Rokossovsky were sixty miles east of Rostov, mopping up between the two fronts.

The Caucasus army of Col. Gen. A. I. Yeremenko with its Cossack cavalry was reported to have cleared all the Germans from the north bank of the Manych and was pressing toward a junction with the troops moving up the Rostov-Baku railway.

JAN 22 1943

Rail Town Captured

The capture of the rail town of Proletarskaya north of the Manych came after three days and nights of battle in which the Germans were defeated in street fighting, the noon communique said.

The Germans tried, without success, to fix a stable defense line south of the Manych by blowing up bridges and strewing mines. The river is not yet frozen. The Germans were reinforced there by storm troops and were reported offering determined opposition.

The nearest approach to Voroshilovgrad was at Mityakinskaya, twenty miles to the east. The capture of Chebotovka placed the Russians fifteen miles northeast of Mityakinskaya.

City Falls To Russians After 'Fierce Fighting'

Soviets On Donets Front Threaten Voroshilovgrad; Nazis' Losses Since Nov. 19 Put At 700,000

[By the Associated Press]

Moscow Jan. 21—The great industrial center of the Donets basin, Voroshilovgrad, was menaced tonight by the Red army which had advanced within twenty miles of that strongpoint and appeared to be driving toward the Sea of Azov to throw a noose around Rostov and all the Germans in the Caucasus.

Russian columns were fifty miles and 100 miles from the Maikop oil fields, served by a branch line from Armavir.

More Gains Indicated

Overnight gains of ten to twenty miles indicated the great Russian winter offensives were increasing in speed and power, even though at places the Reds were battling reinforced troops in deep defenses. The noon communique listed 2,200 enemy troops killed or captured.

ENTIRE NAZI FRONT PERILED BY SWEEP IN UKRAINE SECTOR

Two Columns Push Toward Kharkov, Other Key Points Menaced.

VOROSHILOVSK FALLS

Gateway to Maikop Oil Fields Again Controlled by Russians.

LONDON, Friday, Jan. 22.—Red army troops striking straight west below Voronezh have reached a point only 85 miles southeast of Kursk, thus threatening the entire Nazi front extending from central Russia to the Sea of Azov, according to a midnight Russian communique as broadcast by Moscow and heard by the Soviet Monitor today.

The Red army already has two columns pushing toward Kharkov, south of Kursk, another threatening Voroshilovgrad, and several more, including those in the Caucasus, menacing Rostov, the German communications peg for southern Russia.

Other Towns Fall

The latest Russian communique announced the capture of Golofyevka, on the Yelets-Kupyansk railway only ten miles below the communications center of Staraya-Oskol, and 85 miles from Kursk, Sini Libyagi, 100 miles east of Kursk, also fell to the advancing Red army. The latter town is 35 miles southwest of Voronezh, and 30 miles northeast of Staraya Oskol, which apparently is being enveloped in this latest westward sweep.

Voroshilovsk Captured

Earlier a special communique had announced the fall of Voroshilovsk in the Caucasus. This town is only 40 miles east of Armavir, communications key to the Maikop oil fields farther west. The midnight communique also told of the capture of other localities near Voroshilovsk, including Staromaryavka 10 miles to the east, and Kugulta, 20 miles to the northeast.

Other Soviet troops driving toward Armavir are beyond Nevinnomysskaya, 50 miles southeast of that railway junction and 35 miles south of Voroshilovsk.

The rapidity of the Russian advance on the broad front below Voronezh suggested again that Axis satellite divisions—Hungarians and Italians—were being torn to pieces by a Red army displaying its greatest striking power since the war began.

500,000 Axis Troops Killed

A Moscow radio report recorded here last night by the Associated Press reported that more than 500,000 Axis troops had been killed and 200,000 captured since the Russians began their advance on Nov. 19. In addition, this broadcast attributed to a speech by the Moscow Soviet chairman, Alexander Sherbakov said the Axis had lost more than 6,000 tanks, 12,000 guns and 3,500 planes in two months.

Russian troops already had been reported within 70 miles of Kharkov, below Kursk, after the capture of the Valuiki-Urazovo area. Another group making a deep penetration of the eastern Ukraine was operating in the Byelokurakina sector 115 miles southeast of Kharkov.

Other columns were still south of these, pushing to a point within 20 miles of the great industrial center of the Donets basin, Voroshilovgrad. With that point captured the Russians presumably would turn southward toward the Sea of Azov in the Taganrog area behind Rostov. Taganrog was the southern anchor of the German line last year.

Salsk Threatened

Rostov already is menaced by Red army columns arrayed fanwise around it on three sides. Soviet troops were about 75 miles north of the Caucasian gateway city, 60 miles to the east, and to the southeast were threatening Salsk, railway junction 100 miles away.

The Russians were reported fighting in the outskirts of a "large populated place," which may be Salsk itself.

But today's Soviet bulletin showed that despite these prodigious drives involving hundreds of thousands of men and enormous supply problems, the Russians still had the strength to hurl other troops into action on the front just below Voronezh.

In that area the Russians now are fighting their way across territory which the Germans seized early in their drive last summer—a drive that was stopped at Voronezh itself and then wheeled southeastward to Stalingrad and the Caucasus.

The front above Voronezh has remained stationary since last winter with the exception of the central sector northwest of Moscow and at Leningrad where a corridor has been pushed through to relieve that city after a 17-month siege.

From Voronezh the front curves northwestward to the Orel sector, 75 miles above Kursk.

The present column striking in the direction of Kursk apparently did so after reducing the Axis garrison at Ostrogozhsk. Dispatches from Moscow said the enemy had thrown in reserves after the fall of that city, 55 miles to the southeast, but failed to halt the Red army.

Hungarian Units Smashed

The communique told of wiping out hundreds of Hungarians and capturing great quantities of equipment. It suggested that the Russians were meeting their stiffest resistance in the Rostov area and the Caucasus where most of the German troops apparently are being thrown in to try to hold the Sea of Azov corner.

As an example of the ground gained by the Russians since their first offensive developed at Stalingrad, a line drawn straight west of the Volga river would find Russian spearheads more than 230 miles from Stalingrad. These are the troops that are threatining the Donets basin capital of Voroshilovgrad.

JAN 22 1943

Immediately before Stalingrad, between the Don and Volga rivers, a heavy core of Nazi resistance remains. But the Russians said their troops killed 1,400 more Germans yesterday in this area where the remnants of 22 Nazi divisions, believed to number less than 50,000 men now, are trapped. This annihilation has been going on for days, ever since the Germans refused to surrender, the Russians said.

The communique spoke of whole companies of enemy infantry being wiped out in the snow-covered steppes, of the Russians encircling and smashing isolated pockets of resistance, and then pushing on westward "on the heels of retreating Germans."

LONDON (AP). — Reuters quoted a Moscow radio broadcast today as saying that German casualties on the Russian front in the last six weeks totaled 750,000, including 250,000 dead.

Highway Built on Frozen Lake Aided Soviet City Under Siege.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The 17-month old German siege of Leningrad, Russia's second largest city, was cracked last Monday by the Red army. Last night, Russian war relief officials in New York announced that American supplies are entering the city by the land route around the shores of Lake Ladoga. The following story, the first of two, gives an idea of what life was like in the city during the siege.)

By JOHN FERRIS

NEW YORK, Jan. 21—(AP) On the night of Nov. 16, 1941, a small hydrographic expedition led by two officers of the Russian Baltic navy set out across the snow-covered ice of Lake Ladoga on a momentous mission.

Leningrad, center of the proletarian struggle in 1917, had been under siege for three months. The Nazis, in their swift advance, had seized Tikhvin, railroad junction and control point for the shipment of goods by rail from the north.

Planes Bring in Supplies

Planes had already tackled the job of getting food and other supplies into the beleaguered city; and in the summer months still far away there would be meager lots of fish from the lake, garden stuffs raised within the siege limits and other vegetables and fruits smuggled in at night by guerrillas through the German lines.

Death from starvation, wounds and disease and the evacuation of thousands of children and some adults were to reduce the city's population of 3,000,000 by half.

But on the night of Nov. 16, 1941 no one could foresee what would happen. Through the seventeen months of the siege stories filtered through to the Russian war relief here, and now that the siege has been lifted some of them are being told.

None is more typical of the Russian spirit of resistance and ingenuity than the building of the great ice highways across Lake Ladoga.

The men wore padded winter clothes and warm gauntlets and carried pistols and tommyguns. On a sled fitted with wide wooden runners they had set up a marine compass and on another they carried a pile of wooden road signs.

Leningrad Supply Trucks Used Road Across Ladoga

1943

Icy winds streamed down from the Arctic in the black night. The cold and strain were terrible but the men went on, measuring the thickness of the ice, placing their signs.

Morning came and one of the officers raised his field glasses and studied the ice ahead. Suddenly he cried out in anger and momentary frustration. Something had happened to the compass and in the darkness the men had made a circle to shore near their starting point.

Workers Begin Again

The men's bodies ached, their feet were sore. Gloom settled on them. But the job had to be done. After a rest they started again, first checking the compass three times.

The frost numbed their fingers and chilled them. From time to time they stopped to gauge the thickness of the ice. One of the officers would swing an axe, sending the chips flying. The ice was like rock and it was hard work. The first hole was seven inches deep before they hit water. The seamen joked about the fine work of jack frost.

A note was made on the chart and a road sign set in place. Then the group moved on, halting every ten minutes to dig again.

Somewhere close at hand was the front line. They could hear artillery and machine gun fire. There was a chance they would meet German scouts. They kept a watch, ready to go into action.

Where there was snow they wore skis. On the windswept glassy surfaces they slid along, supporting each other from falling.

Huge blocks of piled ice sometimes barred the way. They skirted hesitantly, walking gingerly with their equipment.

Once when they were proceeding in single file, one of the officers fell and sprained his ankle. They placed him on a sled and went on.

It was dark when they saw the lights of the small town of Lipki. The Germans were there and the men heard the fire of machine guns.

Through two days they worked, covering nearly 40 miles, before they reached the western shore of the lake. Through the next two days they worked up their material. Then they submitted a chart to the authorities.

Weather Grows Colder

Daily the weather grew colder and the ice thickened. Hundreds of men and women came out from Leningrad to work on the new road. Three-ton trucks towed big wooden triangles to sweep the ice clear of snow. Ice houses were built along the route; traffic signs were set up, and at night lanterns were raised on poles or set on the ice.

As they worked changes appeared in the ice. Cracks would suddenly make a section of the road dangerous. Red warning lanterns were introduced.

By Nov. 28, the preliminary work was finished and at nightfall the first hundred trucks started out with their precious cargoes. They drove at full speed and their lights quickly vanished in the frosty night air.

Halfway across they met a blizzard. Winds of hurricane force blew. Snow whirled into the faces of the drivers and the road lights blotted out.

A road commissar took the situation in hand. In a small four-seater he went ahead to reconnoiter. He came back and ordered the trucks into line again. Then he led the way through the blinding storm. The trip took hours and morning was at hand when the trucks reached shore. But the ice road had been proved practical.

Road Used Regularly

Thereafter, the road was used regularly. At first men felt nervous driving across the open spaces where the bare ice looked gray and rotten, but they soon became accustomed to it, and to the storms and drifts.

Powerful snow cleaners worked at all times. Traffic officers, tough men with plenty of grit and endurance, were assigned to the road. In frost and blizzard they stodo at their posts, guiding the trucks across the lake. They lived in the little ice houses, whose floors were piled with the branches of trees.

This was war and the men were proud of what they were doing.

By day and night the trucks rolled, laden high with boxes of ammunition, bags of flour, sugar and rice and meat for the city and the front lines. Sometimes as many as 2,000 trucks passed over in a day.

German planes appeared almost daily, swooping out of the clouds to drop their bombs and then zooming back to cover.

Drivers Dodge Bombs

The drivers got used to them. They learned how to time the bombs and how to maneuver to avoid the explosives. Some trucks, a negligible number, were destroyed. But the work went on while Russian planes patrolled the skies.

Many times there were big aerial battles above the road. A pilot named Sychev engaged in 15. Frequently the Russians were outnumbered but they brought down more planes than the number of trucks they lost.

Official Russian sources in Moscow have said that 100,000 tons of supplies have reached Leningrad during the siege. How much of this was food and how much was munitions and raw materials and medical supplies has not been disclosed. Nor is there any available information here on the quantity of the supplies moved across Lake Ladoga, but what did move was important in alleviating the sufferings of the people and in making possible the long stand against the invaders, whose lines now have been broken.

Known Death Toll 44, 50 Hurt in Bombing Of London School

Rescuers Work Through Night Probing Debris; Scattered Raids Continue

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—The known death toll in the London school smashed by a German bomb yesterday was raised to 44 today after rescue workers worked through the night in the debris.

Three teachers were among the killed, the rest were children. Fifty others were reported injured.

One enemy fighter which appeared off the southeast coast of England was shot into the sea this morning by British fighter planes, an authoritative statement said.

Two German airplanes were reported destroyed over England last night during scattered night raids which caused four alarms to be sounded in London.

Bombs Dropped at Few Places.

An authoritative statement said the raiders operated over coastal districts of South and Southeast England and East Anglia and a few of them flew in as far as the home counties bordering London.

"Bombs were dropped at a few places," it said. "Only slight damage was done and there were no reports of any casualties."

Incendiary bombs were dropped in the southeast section of the Greater London area during one alert, but the Germans never penetrated beyond the outskirts—and then but once.

Throughout the night rescue workers probed the fire-blackened debris for the bodies of children buried in the school.

The rescue work began immediately after the school was hit and a resultant fire was extinguished. Regular civil defense workers and volunteers labored through the misty night by the light of shaded lamps and flares. Twice the lights were extinguished when alerts were sounded, but the digging went on.

Soldiers Help Clear Debris.

Canadian soldiers in trucks equipped with winches and wire hawsers aided the workers, dragging away great blocks of masonry weighing several tons.

Some of the pupils returned for lessons today, a few with bandaged heads and arms. All they were able to do, however, was to watch the weary men continue digging in the debris.

Three girls who had witnessed the bombing from a nearby street corner a minute or two after they had left the building, reported punctually at 9 A. M. today, their books under their arms. Smiling teachers told them they would be called when it was time for classes to resume.

The girls said that three planes swooped "right over the rooftop" in the attack. "One dropped a bomb," they said. "Our school just seemed to fold up. We came back to see if we could help kids get out but some people across the street took us away."

Rescuers Work All Night.

Another eyewitness said: "There were no balloons up and the warning hadn't sounded when the raiders came. There was a terrific explosion and the center of the school just fell to pieces."

Among the rescue workers was Gunner Charles Alford, an artilleryman home on leave. He had lost one daughter in the blast and kept digging hour after hour, because, he said, "I know my other daughter, Lorina, is in there."

Throughout the night rescue workers probed the fire-blackened debris for bodies. The rescue work began as soon as the structure was hit and the resulting fire extinguished, and continued without pause, regular civil defense workers and volunteers laboring through the long, misty night by the light of shaded lamps and flares. Twice the lights were extinguished when alerts were sounded, but the digging went on. Canadian soldiers in trucks equipped with winches and wire hawsers aided the workers, dragging away great blocks of masonry weighing several tons.

British Attack France.

Meanwhile today one enemy fighter that appeared off the southeast coast of Engl[illegible] was shot into the sea by Briti[illegible] ghters, an authoritative sta[illegible]ment said, while through the night two German planes were reported destroyed over England during scattered raids that caused four alarms to be sounded in London. The Government announced that the night raiders operated over the coastal areas of the south and southeast of England, and that a few flew in as far as the home counties surrounding London.

Rescue squads worked all day and into the second night to locate nine missing children in the wreckage of the London school where forty-four persons were killed yesterday by a bomb dropped from a low-flying German raider.

A battered school register recovered tonight from the rubble enabled authorities to establish the number still missing. There was little hope that they would be found alive although ten-year-old Joan Cinamon was rescued after ten hours of search.

She had been thrown into a part of the building still standing when the bomb sliced off a wing. Partly buried in debris she was crying "I want my mummy."

Rescuers praised the heroism of twelve-year-old Molly Kinnerman, rescued with three others after being trapped for hours. "One of the bravest I know," said E. W. Palmer, who found her. "She was pinned down by timber, and both her legs were broken, but she didn't whimper a bit."

At the mortuary identification attempts still were being made of badly mutilated bodies. Little blue hats and coats recovered from the tons of debris were carefully hung up in the hall of a church near the wrecked school. Empty shoes also were laid out in rows.

This afternoon a strong force of British bombers, escorted by squadrons of fighters, was reported roaring across the channel toward Dieppe.

The Ministry of Health indicated that the evacuation of London school children on a large scale may be resumed as a result of yesterday's tragedy. Organized evacuations were halted after the heavy raids of 1941, and children have been returning to the city at such a rate that now only about 125,000 evacuees remain outside London county as compared with 250,000 at the peak.

The school smashed yesterday was typical. At one time about 230 of its pupils were evacuated, but all but seventy had returned before yesterday's disaster.

Little Girl Sits With Dead Classmates All Night in Wreckage of Bombed School

London, Jan. 21 (A. P.)—As the search for bodies continued this afternoon in the wreckage of the London schoolhouse hit yesterday by a German bomb—three teachers and forty-one children were killed—one rescue worker climbed to the top floor of the shaky structure and there found three children, each about 5 years old.

Two were dead.

The third, a little girl with an injured arm, had been sitting on the floor for more than twenty-four hours.

"It's all right; I can walk," she cried, and, scrambling down to the ground, ran straight into a waiting crowd and found her mother.

LONDON, Jan. 21—(AP) Five of 14 German planes shot down yesterday in the defense of [illegible] were [illegible]d by new l[illegible] speed fig[illegible]hter named "[illegible]," the Air ministry announced today.

No Typhoons were lost in yesterday's battles.

The Hawker Typhoon is a product of the same firm which designed the Hurricane. It is powered by a Napier Sabre engine.

They now have been victorious over German's best planes, including the Focke-Wulf 190, Messerschmitt 109, Messerschmitt 210, Junkers 210 and Dornier 217.

The Typhoon is better armored and has longer range than the Spitfire or the Hurricane.

Its exact top speed is a secret but is known to be more than 400 miles an hour. It is described as the fastest fighter ever produced in Britain.

The Typhoon's 24 cylinder Napier-Sabre engine develops 2,400 horsepower and it is armed with cannon and machine guns.

The first mention of the Typhoon in production was in April, 1941.

Its designer is Sidney Camm, who also designed the Hurricane.

Experts who watched it in action said it "climbs like a rocket, going almost straight up with a full war load."

Some Shelters Barred To Londoners in Raid

Locked to Prevent 'Scandalous Misuse,' Morrison Says

LONDON, Jan. 21 (AP).—A number of Londoners were unable to get into air raid shelters at the height of yesterday's daylight raid because the shelters were kept locked to prevent "scandalous misuse," it was revealed in the House of Commons today.

Sir William Davison asked Herbert Morrison, Minister of Home Security, whether he was aware that "in yesterday's raid a considerable number of people who ran to the shelters for safety were unable to get shelter by reason of the fact that they were locked."

Said Morrison: "The shelters were kept locked owing to scandalous misuse and damage by citizens."

He added that the Health Ministry is in a dilemma about locking the shelters. The wardens, he said, have keys to those locked, but it is a great problem to get shelters open when there is little time between sirens and bombs.

U. S. FLYERS JOIN RAF IN COAST RAIDS

Two Army Air Squadrons Take Part In Sweeps Over France, Holland

[By the Associated Press]

London, Jan. 21—Swarms of RAF fighters and bombers, aided by two squadrons of the United States army air forces, swept northern France and the Lowlands today without loss in raids on Caen, Cherbourg, Flushing and an airdrome near Le Havre. Three German planes were destroyed.

Several German planes crossed the southeast coast of England tonight and were met by heavy ground fire. There were no immediate reports of bombings.

Army Flyers Escort Bombers

The United States planes were medium bombers and Bostons which bombed the German airfields at Caen and the Tircqueville airport near Le Havre, the Air Ministry said.

Other Bostons battered the docks at Cherbourg and at Flushing in Holland. Le Havre and Cherbourg are major French channel ports and Caen lies inland about midway between them.

Many squadrons of Spitfires also carried out offensive sweeps over northern France.

British Employ 8000 On U. S. Mission Staffs

London, Jan. 21 (A. P.).—Sir Kingsley Wood, Chancellor of the Exchequer, told the House of Commons today that the staffs of various British wartime missions now in the United States total about 8,000 persons, of whom about three-quarters were hired in the places where their offices are set up.

The organization of all such missions is being reviewed to see if economies can be effected, he said.

Naming of Juliana's Child Explained by Wilhelmina

Margriet (Daisy) a Symbol of Reblooming Netherlands

LONDON, Jan. 21 (AP).—Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands told her people in occupied Holland today that her new granddaughter, born in Ottawa yesterday to Crown Princess Juliana, had been named Margriet as a "reverent tribute to our heroes" and "to establish a lifelong bond between our grievously tried peoples . . . and the newly born."

The Queen, speaking over Radio Orange, the Netherlands station here, asked: "Who does not remember the marguerites—daisies—budding in the month of May on the meadows and fields, reclothing with their whiteness every year the memory of the suffering and grief of those terrible days in May, 1940, and whispering of a better future?" (margriet is translated "daisy.")

"May it soon be given to Margriet," she said, "to grow up in her country amidst her people and, like her namesakes which bloom in the fields, live ever as a continuing tribute to all those who made the great sacrifice which one day will prove the seed from which a really great, free country and kingdom shall emerge."

Lone Destroyer Sinks Ship in Convoy Melee

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—The Admiralty told today how a British destroyer in a single-handed midnight attack on an enemy convoy sank one merchantman, badly damaged another and created such confusion among three escort vesels that they fired at each other.

The destroyer, the Admiralty said got away with only a shell hole in a funnel.

The battle, which raged for four hours, occurred on October 31, 1942, but details were not announced until today because of security reasons, it was stated.

There were three merchantmen in all in the convoy, escorted by an armed trawler and two fast and well-armed torpedo boats. The Admiralty said the convoy was believed to have been an important one.

AIMO K. CAJANDER, 63, FINNISH EX-PREMIER

Quit Post at Start of Russian War—Twice Acting President

HELSINKI, Jan. 21 (AP)—Professor Aimo Kaarlo Cajander, who was Premier of Finland from 1937 to the outbreak of the Winter war with Russia in November, 1939, died today of a heart ailment at the age of 63. He was head of Finland's forest administration at his death.

Mr. Cajander served as acting President twice during illnesses of the late President Kallio.

The Finnish Cabinet of Professor Cajander resigned on Dec. 1, 1939, under the pressure of the Soviet invasion, despite a vote of confidence by Parliament. A new Finnish Government headed by Risto Ryti, international banker, was established the following day.

Professor Cajander later was named by the new Premier as chairman of a civilian committee in Helsinki which administered American relief funds to noncombatants. In this capacity Professor Cajander worked in close touch with former President Herbert Hoover, who served in this country as head of the Finnish Relief Fund, Inc.

In a statement issued in February, 1940, Professor Cajander expressed thanks for the material help his country had received from the world and disclosed that almost 90 per cent of Finnish relief funds had come from the United States.

Professor Cajander was educated at Helsinki University and was a lecturer in botany there from 1904 to 1911; he then became Professor of Forestry there. He served as Premier in 1922 and 1924, as Minister of Defense from 1928 to 1929 and Deputy Minister from 1929 to 1933.

Marines on Guadalcanal Relieved by Army Units

Gen. Alexander M. Patch Takes Command of Solomons Island Force.

JAN 22 1943

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—(AP) The fighting Marines who wrested Guadalcanal from the Japs back in August and hung on to it triumphantly through five months of bitter fighting have now turned it over to the Army, officials announced today.

The Navy in a communique and Undersecertary of War Robert P. Patterson at a press conference disclosed that hard-bitten Major General Alexander A. Vandegrift of the Marine corps had turned over command to Major General Alexander M. Patch, Jr., 53-year-old infantryman with 29 years of army service.

More Hard Fighting Ahead

Mr. Patterson forecast additional hard fighting, saying that "while our position in the Solomon Islands has materially improved, it is probable that the Japanese will make further efforts to recover lost territory there."

He paid high tribute to those dogged Leathernecks who battled day and night for months against the Japanese. Now they are enroute to a well-earned rest—and later there will be other hostile shores to win.

They spent more time in the 24-hour-a-day battle of Guadalcanal than ever was spent in day-to-day fighting by any American unit, Navy men believe. The first division on the A. E. F. spent 223 days at the front in the first World war but that time included a training period and some battle lulls.

But there had been few lulls for the Marines since they leaped into the surf and raced onto the narrow beaches of Guadalcanal August 7.

They battered the enemy back from the airfield the Japanese were constructing and took it for their own. They named it Henderson field and with the Navy carried on the construction job. Now that airfield is a base for far-flung attacks on enemy shipping, and for forays against the Japanese air and naval bases at Munda, on Bougainville and other islands.

Shared Danger with Men

Gen. Vandegrift, 55 years old, moved onto the island with his men when they jumped out of their landing barges under cover of naval bombardment. He has lived, worked, played and fought with them since, sharing their danger in the day and night bombing attacks of the Japanese and in the countless jungle battles between small patrols and between large units.

Steadily those engagements wiped out the enemy. No definite totals on Japanese losses during the entire campaign have been compiled, but in one five-day period, the Navy reported yesterday, 1,032 Japanese were slain. The Navy reported Nov. 7 that at least 5,188 enemy bodies had been counted in the jungles.

Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, who visited Guadalcanal, told of the island life. "In the Solomons," he reported, "I found men living and fighting in hell holes of mud and corruption."

Despite their hardships, the Marines, and the soldiers and sailors with them, found time for amusement—for swimming in narrow jungle streams, for sports in jungle clearings. Their favorite amusement was listening to shortwave news broadcasts.

Gen. Vandegrift won the Navy Cross with this citation for the Guadalcanal invasion:

"He, in spite of much enemy opposition, led his command with great courage and superb determination to the end that all objectives were captured and opposing enemy forces destroyed."

The destruction continues. The Navy announced that bombers from the Solomons had damaged a Japanese destroyer off Cape Friendship at the easternmost tip of Bougainville, and that eight enemy fighters were shot down in another raid on surface vessels in the Shortland island area.

U. S. Heavy Bombers Batter Rail Junction In Central Burma

British Air Forces Also Join in Daily Assaults On Japanese Bases

By the Associated Press.

NEW DELHI, Jan. 21.—United States heavy bombers made a punishing attack Tuesday on railway installations at Thazi, a rail junction in Central Burma, 80 miles south of Mandalay, an American Army communique announced today.

This was part of a series of daily assaults in which the American and British air forces based in India are pounding Japanese bases throughout Burma.

The communique described Thazi as a point of rail communication between Rangoon and Mandalay and reported many hits on the railway junction and among storage sheds. One was followed by a black fire, indicating destruction of a Japanese oil supply. All the American planes returned safely.

RAF bombers, continuing their round-the-clock assaults on Japanese bases in Central and Western Burma, blasted the airdrome at Toungoo last night and again attacked oft-bombed Akyab Island, a British communique announced today.

These raids followed daylight attacks on scattered targets, including a train in the Magwe area and an airdrome at Schwebo, the announcement said. The preceding night Wellington bombers were reported to have bombed Heho airdrome and the railway junction at Myingyan.

All these operations were carried out without the loss of a single aircraft, the communique added.

The bulletin said it had been confirmed that two of four enemy bombers which attacked the Calcutta area Tuesday night had been shot down by RAF fighters. One Brit[illegible]s sh[illegible]d [illegible]ls [illegible] out the pl[illegible]e announcement said.

Remaining Jap Units In Sanananda Area Declared Crumbling

Allied Bombers Blast Enemy Bases at Lae And on New Britain

By the Associated Press.

ALLIED HEAD[illegible]RS IN AUSTRALIA, Jan. 21 [illegible]Japanese positions in the Sanananda Point area of New Guinea are crumbling under the steady blows of Allied jungle fighters, a headquarters spokesman said today.

There is still an enemy pocket northwest of the spot where the Sanananda road meets the beach and on the other side of the point between Giruwa and Tarakena, the Japanese have attempted to break out and there is heavy fighting, advices from the front said.

And there were still reported to be a couple of enemy groups still fighting along the inland road.

But today's headquarters bulletin said briefly "Our forces have further reduced the enemy's remaining positions" and the spokesman added his observation that "The whole thing is crumbling."

Allied bombers went out again on widespread forays yesterday, the communique reported.

Fires were set in a heavy attack on Lae, the wharf area of Finschhafen was bombed and the airdrome and wharf areas of Madang [illegible]t in the New Guinea sector.

JAN 22 1943

Enemy airdromes at Cape Gloucester and Gasmata, in New Britain, were struck by the Allied planes and a reconnaissance unit damaged a Japanese barge concentration off Willaumez Peninsula.

More activity in the northwest approaches to Australia was noted by headquarters with Allied bombing attacks on points in the Aroe Islands, on Ambon and on Timor.

JAP CRUISER HIT, 3 SHIPS DAMAGED

MacArthur's Bombers Carry Out Widespread Raids in South Pacific.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Friday, Jan. 22—(AP) In two widely separated attacks on Japanese ships, Allied bombers yesterday hit a cruiser and at least three merchant vessels while ground forces, operating in pouring rain, continued the final bitter stages of mopping up around Sanananda.

At Ambon harbor a cruiser was left listing and smoking heavily and a 5,000-ton merchant ship was hit by a formation of Liberators, all of which returned after downing two out of 20 Japanese fighters and damaging others.

At least two other merchant vessels were damaged in a raid on Rabaul.

and a 5,000 ton merchant ship," the noon communique stated.

"The cruiser was last seen listing with heavy smoke pouring out. Our aircraft were intercepted by approximately 20 enemy fighters and shot down two and damaged others. All our planes returned."

At Rabaul, New Britain, medium and heavy bombers swooped low over the harbor before dawn.

Two merchant ships, one of 6,000 tons, the other of 2,000 were damaged, the communique reporting the larger ship was so badly mauled that it was being beached.

Ambon is in the Dutch East Indies group, between the Celebes and northwestern New Guinea. It is directly north of Darwin.

In the vicinity of Wewak, New Guinea, the communique reported a thrilling Allied air victory. Four heavy bombers were set upon by twenty-five Japanese fighter planes. The running fight which resulted lasted for nearly an hour, during which twelve enemy planes were shot down and six others damaged, without the loss of an Allied plane.

Aussie Bombing of Tokio Predicted This Year

By the Associated Press.

MELBOURNE, Jan. 21.—Air Minister Arthur S. Drakeford predicted today that Australian airmen, piloting Australian planes, would drop Australian-made bombs on Tokio before 1943 ends.

In an address he said the Royal Australian Air Force would not stay home after the immediate threat to Australia's shores was gone, but would go out after the enemy and repay the treachery to Pearl Harbor and the burtality to Broome, North Australian base.

A long, bitter war, however, is the Allies' outlook in the Southwest Pacific before Japan is defeated, Mr. Drakeford said.

The threat of invasion of Australia was temporarily removed, he noted, by naval victories in the Pacific, but he told Australians that before the drive on Tokio began the continent would have to work still harder to supply the needs of its fighting men.

Admiral Ingram Says Nazi Surface Raider Was Scuttled South of Equator.

JAN 22 1943

Rio de Janeiro, Jan. 21 (A. P.).—Rear Admiral Jonas H. Ingram, commander of United States naval forces in the South Atlantic, announced today that five Axis submarines had been sunk in the last month in the South Atlantic.

Admiral Ingram said that a German surface raider had been intercepted in these waters and scuttled by her crew in the same period.

His announcement brought to ten the number of Axis submarines reported sunk in Brazilian waters in recent months. Air Minister Joaquim Salgado previously had told of the sinking of five submarines by the Brazilian Air Force, the most recent of which occurred about three months ago.

"There have been comparatively few sinkings of Allied ships in the South Atlantic," Admiral Ingram told a press conference, "and we've gotten a high percentage of enemy craft—higher, I believe, than in other zones.

"We can account for five submarines within the last month. Our success is due largely to the fine air forces of the United States and Brazil, which are doing a magnificent job operating from bases extending from Bahia northward."

The Admiral said his theory of operations was absolutely offensive. "We have thrown defense aside," he continued.

The newspaper O Globo published a dispatch from Recife which quoted Joaquin Salgado, Brazilian Air Minister, as saying:

"I am almost sure that within two months the African continent will be free of Axis armies. The North American air forces will throw them out of the Mediterranean, and we are giving this victory full hearted co-operation.

Admiral Ingram said the job of the South Atlantic forces was "to guard the South Atlantic shipping lanes from the coast of Brazil almost to Africa, protecting ships going to Africa and the Near East."

"Our ocean patrols between here and Africa are very heavy, very efficient and backed by great numbers of aircraft," he said.

The Admiral disclosed that, although the British patrol the South Atlantic close to Africa, the United States Navy already is using the base at Bathurst, Gambia, and expects very soon to have its own bases at Dakar and Freetown.

Within the last few days many survivors of sunken Axis submarines have been captured on or near the coast of Brazil, he said.

Asked how long he thought the war would last, Admiral Ingram said: "Some time yet. We do it right this time or not at all. If the enemy is not completely whipped there will be another war within twenty years or so."

FIVE U-BOATS, OCEAN RAIDER DESTROYED

Admiral Ingram Reveals Success Against Axis In South Atlantic

Defense Thrown Aside For Absolute Offensive, Old Annapolis Star Says

[By the Associated Press]

Rio de Janeiro, Jan. 21—Allied forces on the offensive in the South Atlantic have sunk five Axis submarines in the last month, Rear Admiral Jonas H. Ingram disclosed today, bringing to ten the announced total of undersea craft destroyed in the bitter war in these waters.

The one-time Annapolis football star, now commander of the United Nations naval forces in the South Atlantic, announced at a press conference the sinking of the five submarines in the last month. Brazilian Air Minister Joaquin Salgado previously had reported five submarines were sunk by Brazilian air forces, the most recent about three months ago.

Assurance To Chile

Some observers here considered that Admiral Ingram's disclosures were timed with Chile's rupture of relations with the Axis to give that coastal nation assurance that the Axis submarine depredations were being at least partly countered. Chile, which severed relations with the Axis yesterday, has a long and exposed coastline.

Within the last few days many survivors of submarines have been captured on Brazilian soil near the coast.

Ingram also said that a German surface raider was scuttled when she was intercepted in these waters and her survivors now are in Brazilian prisons.

JAN 22 1943

Offensive Replaces Defense

Ingram was optimistic over the course of the south Atlantic warfare, explaining that there has been "comparatively few sinkings of Allied ships."

The admiral told a press conference that the Allies have "gotten a high percentage of enemy craft—higher, I believe, than in other zones."

"We can account for five submarines within the last month. Our success is due largely to the fine air forces of the United States and Brazil, which are doing a magnificent job operating from bases extending from Bahia northward."

"We have thrown defense aside," Ingram said, "in favor of operations absolutely offensive."

Protect Brazil's Cajital

"For example," he continued, "we station no North American (United States) troops at Rio de Janeiro, but if the capital is threatened we can throw heavy forces here immediately."

The south Atlantic forces, he said, must "guard the south Atlantic shipping lanes from the coast of Brazil almost to Africa, protecting ships going to Africa and the Near East.

"We must free the lanes of preying submarines and raiders and keep blockade-runners from going between Germany and Japan.

"Our ocean patrols between here and Africa are very heavy, very efficient and backed by great numbers of aircraft. The Brazilian Navy and air force are doing great work with us."

CHILE HUNTING FOR AXIS SPIES

Strikes at Fifth Columnists After Diplomatic Break.

JAN 22 1943

Santiago, Chile, Jan. 21 (A. P.).—Chilean authorities undertook today the suppression of Axis espionage and liquidation of fifth column activity following Chile's rupture of relations with Germany, Italy and Japan. The Government pledged that no steps would be taken against Axis nationals who abided by Chile's newly adopted position.

It was estimated there are about 20,000 German nationals in Chile, chiefly in the southern part of the country, about 12,000 Italians, chiefly retail tradesmen spread evenly throughout the country, and 700 Japanese. The latter are comparatively recent arrivals and reside chiefly in northern Chile's strategic ports and mining centers.

President Juan Antonio Rios explained Chile's action last night in a broadcast address to the nation, saying it had been done for the defense of democracy and continental solidarity.

He said: "No nation and no individual can look with isolated indifference" on the war.

Minister of Interior Raul Morales received a message from United States Assistant Secretary of State Sumner Welles, stating: "Through the measures taken by her Government, Chile has occupied rightfully a proud place at the side of those members of the family of American nations which have united in the defense of the integrity of the Western Hemisphere and liberties so precious to the American peoples."

Mexico's 1943 Budget Is Highest In History

Mexico City, Jan. 21 (AP).—Higher taxes on income, alcoholic beverages, petroleum production and gasoline will be established in order to balance the 1943 national budget, President Manuel Avila Camacho announced today.

The new taxes, expected to raise $8,000,000, will be decreed by the President, who was granted such emergency power by Congress.

The President explained that the higher taxes are necessary "to meet the costs of the war and to enable the Government to continue the program of fundamental projects for the economic progress of the nation."

JAN 22 1943

Mexico's 1943 budget, $141,400,000, is the highest in the nation's history.

Brazil Again Gives Hint She Will Fight Overseas

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, Jan. 21.—Mundo published an interview yesterday quoting the Brazilian Minister, Carlos Maximiano de Figueiredo, as saying his country has "a force of 100,000, maybe 125,000, ready to go wherever necessary."

He said Brazil was wholeheartedly devoted to her war effort and added, "I am unable to understand how there can be neutrals between good and evil."

President Getulio Vargas of Brazil hinted some time ago in a statement in Rio de Janeiro that Brazil might undertake overseas war operations.

HAVANA, Cuba, Jan. 21 (AP).—Chile's break with the Axis has left Argentina isolated on the South American continent and in the position of an acrobat losing balance on a slack rope, the commentator of Radio Station O'Shea of Havana said last night.

Argentina, he added, doubtless was looking for an opportunity to end relations with the Axis in a way which would not cause loss of face in view of Argentina's past attitude.

U. S. TRANSPORT CRASHES ON DUTCH GUIANA COAST; 2 MARYLANDERS KILLED

17 Army Officers Bound For Overseas Duty And Eric Knight, English-Born Novelist, Victims Of Wreck In Desolate Area Week Ago

JAN 22 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Jan. 21—Thirty-five men were killed when a huge American transport plane bound for Africa crashed on the desolate coast of Dutch Guiana, in South America, the War Department announced today.

It was the worst disaster in American aviation history. Never before had a single crash cost so many American lives.

Eric Knight Is One Of Victims

The victims included:

Eric Knight, English-born novelist who wrote "This Above All."

P. E. Foxworth, crack G-man who worked on the Lindbergh kidnapping and the roundup of the eight Nazis who came ashore from U-boats.

William Hodson, New York city Welfare Commissioner, who was going to North Africa as relief director.

Two of the victims were Marylanders, First Officer Theodore M. Wagner, Glen Echo Heights, and Flight Purser Eugene Demff, Brookmont.

17 United States Army Officers Aboard

Also aboard were seventeen United States Army officers bound for overseas stations, six civilians in addition to those named, and seven other members of the crew.

The ship, flying south, crashed on a remote section of the Guiana coast last Friday, killing everyone aboard. The news was delayed because of the time required to reach the scene and determine the extent of the casualties and then notify the next of kin.

Maj. Gen. Harold L. George, commanding general of the Air Transport Command, who made the announcement, said the cause of the disaster was not known, but that an army board was investigating.

"I might add," he commented, "that the pilot and crew were just about the best in the business."

Type Not Disclosed

The type of plane was not disclosed, but it apparently was one of the new four-motored transports and unquestionably w[illegible]arger than the DC-3's commonly used by United States commercial air lines which normally accommodate twenty-one passengers.

The plane was operated by a commercial air line which officials did not identify, one of those serving the Air Transport Command on regular schedules throughout the world.

The percentage of losses on these contract lines has been extremely low, General George noted, although as larger planes come into service the fatalities from individual crashes will mount.

Heaviest Loss Was 25

The heaviest loss of life in an American plane crash previously had been the twenty-five, including Senator Ernest Lundeen, of Minnesota, killed when a passenger ship hit a hillside at Lovettsville, Va., August 31, 1940.

Forty-nine persons were killed in the crash of the Russian land plane, Maxim Gorky, May 18, 1935.

Knight, 45-year-old Englishman who served with the Princess Pats of Canada in the last war, was a major in the special services division of the American army and had done much work on military motion pitcures.

On Special Mission

He and Capt. Basil D. (Reds) Gallagher, former New York newspaperman, another victim, were on a special mission for the services of supply. Gallagher had worked on the army newspaper Yank.

A third victmi from the army's special service division was Morris Lewis, New York publicist who assisted in preparing guide books for troops abroad.

In addition to "This Above All," poignant novel about a British army deserter, Knight was well known as the author of "The Happy Land," "The Flying Yorkshireman" and other stories. His home was at Pleasant Valley, Pa.

Pay Tribute To Foxworth

In addition to Foxworth, whom J. Edgar Hoover, FBI director called "one of my most capable assistants," Horald D. Haberfeld 30, FBI agent from Buffalo, N. Y. also lost his life.

The two were on a special mission together which the FBI would not detail, but in view of Haberfeld's background they presumably were bound for North Africa.

Haberfeld spoke German, had worked as an accountaint in Algiers and had traveled extensively in North Africa. Foxworth, 36 years old, formerly headed the New York office of the FBI and had served at Jacksonville, Fla., and Oklahoma City.

Hull Expresses Regret

Secretary Hull expressed regret over the deaths of Hodson and Osmon E. Henryson, of his department, in the disaster, saying that they "died in the performance of their duties and have been added to the list of those other Americans who have given their lives for their country."

Hodson, 51, had been granted leave of absence from his New York city post to serve under former Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, director of foreign relief and rehabilitation operations. Henryson, 36, was going to Algiers as a clerk in the American consulate general.

U. S. S. YORKTOWN JUMPS WAYS GUN

Mrs. Roosevelt Breaks Bottle Just in Time on Successor to Carrier Lost at Midway

ADMIRAL IS INTERRUPTED

Heaviest Warship at Newport News Rips Restraints and Slides Into James River

JAN 22 1943

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., Jan. 21 (AP)—As if impatient to undertake completion of the task begun by her great predecessor, the new aircraft carrier Yorktown, carrying much equipment usually added after in a fitting basin, jumped the gun on her launching today and without mishap slid proudly into the James River before a group of surprised and cheering spectators.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, here to duplicate her mission of seven years ago when she sent the first Yorktown down the ways, stepped forward quickly, however, and saw to it that the great naval craft got her proper wetting with wine.

Rear Admiral Elliott Buckmaster, commanding officer of the carrier Yorktown which was lost in the battle of Midway, had just begun his address. Waiting on the platform with prepared addresses were Artemus L. Gates, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, and Mrs. Roosevelt, the sponsor.

Straining to get under way, the Yorktown, heaviest warship ever launched at the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Company's yards, groaned against the ways and, with a mounting roar, began sliding into the river.

Admiral Buckmaster's voice was drowned out. Mrs. Roosevelt, surprised, stepped forward quickly and swung twice to smash a bottle of champagne before the receding prow of the carrier moved out of reach.

The Yorktown was 2,000 tons heavier than any warship ever launched here, said Rear Admiral O. L. Cox, superintendent of naval construction at the yard, adding that she was "months ahead of schedule."

Admiral Cox said that within a week or ten days the keel of another aircraft carrier would be laid on the same ways.

"We deem it our sacred duty to continue this fight and to destroy utterly those who are endeavoring to enslave us," Admiral Buckmaster said.

"May this new ship that will carry the name Yorktown continue the aggressive fighting spirit that lived so gloriously in the old Yorktown.

"I appreciate this opportunity to pay tribute to all of you men who built the new Yorktown. Your efforts to weld together the natural resources of America that go into the construction of such magnificent fighting craft is beyond praise."

It was at this point that the ship went down the ways seven minutes ahead of time.

Assistant Secertary Gates outlined in his prepared address the part which aircraft carriers had played in the United States landing operations in Africa in November, stating that they "neutralized strong opposition which might otherwise have made this expedition an exceedingly costly affair."

Bankhead Would Make Arms And Let Allies Raise Armies

JAN 22 1943

Senator Holds America Should Concentrate on Producing Food and Weapons—Says 7,000,000 Americans Are in Service.

Washington, Jan. 21 (A. P.).—Senator Bankhead, Democrat, of Alabama, proposed today that the United States concentrate on the production of food and weapons and call on the other United Nations to furnish any additional fighting men needed to win the war.

Declaring that some 7,000,000 physically fit Americans already have entered the service and that present plans call for the monthly addition of 400,000 more, Senator Bankhead told the Senate:

"In view of the absolute necessity of at least continuing and, if possible, increasing the production of war materials and instruments and implements, it is apparent that it will be dangerous to withdraw from war production many more men for service in the armed forces."

Senator Bankhead said that it seemed to him that the most practical solution "is to continue in position to serve ourselves and our Allies as an arsenal for the production and supply of food and instruments of war, and call upon our Allies to furnish the additional man power necessary to constitute any sized army that may be used to our advantage."

He said that the time had come for Congress to reappraise the entire man power program with special reference to fixing the maximum number to be inducted into the Army and to that end offered a resolution calling for hearings on the problem by the Senate Appropriations Committee, of which he is a member.

Says China Needs Arms.

"The soldiers who are supplied by Russia and China are in immediate contact with our enemies," he said. "The soldiers supplied by Great Britain and her dominions are in large measure in the same situation.

"Soldiers to be furnished by the United States, if sent across the Atlantic Ocean, must travel a distance of more than 3,000 miles and be confronted with the hazards of the German and Italian flotilla of submarines and airplanes. Our soldiers who are sent across the Pacific must travel six or seven thousand miles and encounter the dangers of destruction from the fleet, submarines and airplanes of the Japanese.

"In addition to the transportation of our soldiers over such long distances, we must also send with them guns of every kind being used in the war, including rifles, machine guns, anti-aircraft guns, cannon and tanks. We must also send food and clothing to supply their requirements.

Many Ships Are Needed.

"A large number of ships will be needed for conveying and convoying the soldiers as well as the supplies."

Of all the countries in the world, he asserted, China and Russia are in the best position to furnish men, while this nation is in the best position to furnish equipment. He estimated that China alone could raise a 25,000,000 man army.

"Why should we not accept these undisputed facts and apply to them the rule of sound reason and unanswerable logic?" he asked.

Like other farm State Senators, Mr. Bankhead was concerned about keeping enough men on the farms to produce needed food.

"It is now evident," he said, "that during 1943, even with weather conditions above normal, rationing of foods will be extended to the point that the average standard of living may be substantially reduced; and still the reductions in the number of farm workers continues, thereby increasing the number in our armed forces and in our war production workers."

Senator Bankhead cited estimates that from twelve to seventeen civilians are needed for every man in service, and said that if fifteen are required, "we could not support an armed force in excess of 8,600,000."

Present estimates are that the armed forces will total 9,700,000 by the end of this year.

WAINWRIGHT HELD AS JAP PRISONER

JAN 22 1943

12 Other American Generals Captured, Red Cross Reports.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 — (AP) The first official confirmation that Lieutenant General Jonathan M. Wainwright and twelve other American generals captured in the Philippines actually are prisoners of war was announced today by the War department.

The department said the official notification had been cleared through the International Red Cross, and that the American officers were prisoners in Taiwan camp on the island of Formosa. "Skinny" Wainwright took over the command of American forces in the Philippines when General MacArthur was ordered to Australia last March, and headed the last defense of Bataan and Corregidor. His wife lives at Skaneateles, N. Y.

Major General George M. Parker, Jr., of Portland, Ore.

Brigadier General Lewis C. Beebe, of Faribault, Minn.

Brigadier General Clifford Bluemel, of Trenton, N. J.

Brigadier General William E. Brougher, of Decatur, Ga.

Brigadier General Charles C. Drake, of Washington, D. C.

Brigadier General Arnold J. Funk, of Sarasota, Fla.

Brigadier General Allen C. McBride, of Washington, D. C.

Brigadier General Clinton A. McBride of Washington, D. C.

Brigadier General Clinton A. Pierce, of Sierra Madre, Calif.

Brigadier General James N. Weaver, of Columbus, Ga.

PATTERSON SAYS WAR IS BRIGHTER

JAN 22 1943

Washington, Jan. 21 (A. P.).—Under-Secretary of War Robert Patterson, in a broad review of the war situation, said today that except for the submarine sinkings of Allied cargo ships "the over-all picture is bright." Mr. Patterson, at a press conference, orally painted this picture:

1. Russian successes against the Germans may force them to retreat even to the Dneiper River. German troops encircled at Stalingrad seemed doomed, he said, and the lifting of the siege of Leningrad was one of the most remarkable things that has ever occurred in this war.

2. Unfavorable weather has caused a lull in Tunisia but Allied air forces maintain a two-to-one superiority over Axis air forces; French forces are playing an important part, not being deterred by political differences, and in North Africa the fall of the city of Tripoli would seem to be but a matter of hours.

3. Construction of new ships now exceeds submarine sinkings but the drain on shipping and supplies is still heavy. Greater emphasis is being placed on anti-submarine warfare and protection of shipping and new ships are both better and faster than those being sunk.

16 Navy Officers and Men Decorated for Heroism

Washington, Jan. 1 (A. P.).—Decoration of twelve officers and four enlisted men for heroic conduct in action was announced by the Navy Department today.

The Navy Cross was awarded to Ensign Harold White, 27 years old, son of Lawrence B. White of Florence, S. C., for bravery in bombing and strafing Japanese naval forces in the battle of Midway. The Distinguished Flying Cross for heroism in the battle of Midway went to Ensign Philip J. Rusk, 23, son of Mrs. Henry J. Rusk of Cold Spring, N. Y.

COAL STRIKE ENDS; PRESIDENT PLEASED

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Jan. 21 (A. P.).—A wildcat work stoppage in Pennsylvania's hard coal fields, which crippled wartime production so badly that President Roosevelt intervened, virtually ended today with the expiration of a forty-eight-hour zero period fixed by the President.

Miners streamed back to their jobs by the thousands. Of the 24,000 who participated in the three-week revolt against the United Mine Workers' leadership all had returned to work by noon except approximately 3,400 in three collieries.

At Washington the White House said that President Roosevelt, learning of the general compliance with his order to resume production, was gratified at the response and was confident that the comparatively few who had not returned to work would join their associates in the mines.

"The President, knowing the coal miners as he does, felt confident when he issued his appeal on Tuesday that they would respond to the appeal and abide by the national no-strike policy for the duration of the war," said a statement issued by Stephen Early, White House secretary.

While there was no official statement as to what would be done about those who still have not gone back to work, the general understanding was that the President planned no action until the back-to-work trend could be fully adjudged.

250,000 Ordnance Items Used by A.E.F. in Africa

U. S. 'Can't Coast to Victory,' Arsenal Head Warns

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Jan. 21 (AP).—American troops who invaded North Africa needed more than 250,000 pieces of ordnance equipment, Brigadier General A. C. Gillespie, commandant of the Watervliet Arsenal, Watervliet, N. Y., said today in awarding the Army-Navy "E" pennant to the Westinghouse East Springfield plant.

Declaring that there could be "no let down in your efforts," General Gillespie told thousands of assembled workmen that "the amount of equipment needed for our troops in the field is enormous. It totals millions of rounds of ammunition and thousands upon thousands of tanks, planes and guns.

"To give you but one example—it took 250,000 different items of ordnance for the North African expedition last November, and that figure does not include thousands of other pieces of equipment from first aid dressings to steel pontoon bridges, not classed as ordnance items, that were needed before our troops could go ashore ready to fight. . . ."

"Do not, I beg of you, be deluded by the thought that time is on our side," General Gillespie said, adding: "We cannot coast along to victory in this conflict. There is no time for relaxation, for vacations or for any pleasant pursuits of peace. There is only time for war and the struggle for victory."

House Proposal to Force Tugwell Recall Opposed

Senate Report Assails Plan to Deny Food to Puerto Rico

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 (AP)—The Senate Territories Committee criticized today a "committee of the House," meaning the House Agriculture Committee, for recommending that a $15,000,000 appropriation for food relief in Puerto

30.24—501

Rico be withheld so long as Rexford Guy Tugwell is Governor.

Instead of such action, Congress ought to "bring the Governorship periodically under legislative review," the Territories Committee said in a report which recommended prompt passage of a bill by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, Republican, of Michigan, to make the Governor subject to Senate confirmation every four years.

The report said that at present if Congress "believes that a change of Governors is desirable," it has "only three recourses available and none of them may be practical."

The three methods, it said, are impeachment, resolutions requesting the President to remove the Governor and "some such collateral device" as used by the House committee.

The House committee's action "was scarcely tenable procedure," said the report, submitted by Chairman Millard E. Tydings, Democrat, of Maryland, "since it leaves the dire distress of our island wards at the mercy of a political decision for which they are not responsible and which they cannot control."

Senator Tydings filed another report recommending Senate adoption of Senate Resolution 26, by Senator Dennis Chavez, Democrat, of New Mexico, which would continue a subcommittee headed by Mr. Chavez, investigating economic and social conditions in Puerto Rico. The resolution was referred to the Audit and Control Committee, since it requires $25,000 for expenses.

U-Boat Officer Ignores Captain's Plea That He Is Neutral

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 (AP)—The Navy announced today that survivors had landed at unidentified ports in South America from a small Swedish merchant vessel torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine off the northern coast of South America in mid-December.

The vessel was stopped by a submarine, the Navy said. In response to a question her captain told the German officers that his ship was a neutral vessel and proceeded on his course. Thereupon the submarine blinked an order to abandon ship within thirty minutes.

"Scarcely had the last man gone into the lifeboat," the Navy said, "when a torpedo ripped a great hole in the vessel's side. She sank stern first, bow reared high in the air."

The submarine then surfaced, approached the survivors in two lifeboats, and gave them the course to the nearest land. There were no casualties, the Navy said.

HOOVER SAYS BIG NEED IS MEAT AND FAT

Avers Exports Are Less, But Shortage Greater Than In Last War

JAN 22 1943

Urges Agriculture Be Envisaged As A Munitions Industry

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Jan. 21 — Former President Herbert Hoover declared tonight that we are exporting less than half the meats and fats to our allies than we did in World War I and yet are facing a greater shortage of these commodities on the home front than we did then.

In a broadcast address before the National Industrial Conference Board Hoover urged that we envisage agriculture as a munitions industry.

Lists Blockades

He listed the shortage of farm labor, the methods of food price control and the seventy-five per cent. reduction in the manufacture of farm machinery as blockades to possible increased production necessary to support military operations and to aid in saving "the world from anarchy after the war."

"The larger problem which confronts us," the former President said, "is that since the last war American livestock has decreased in proportion to the growth of human population.

"At the end of that war we had twenty-six per cent. more beef cattle for each 1,000,000 of human population than we had twenty-three years later on January 1, 1942. We had twenty-six per cent. more hogs in proportion to the population.

Cows And Sheep

"We had proportionately five per cent. more milch cows than now. But the modern cow gives more milk. We have in 1943 about the same sheep proportionately as in the last war. We have less chickens in proportion to our population but the chickens work harder and produce more eggs."

The imperative demand now, said Hoover, who served as relief director in World War I, is to build up flocks and herds and the production of vegetable oils.

Citing figures to show there has been an "undue slaughter of cows, ewes and sows," the former President said such slaughter gives a temporary increase in meats, but "is an illusion."

Won't Starve, He Says

"... The numbers slaughtered so far are not disastrous," he said. "We will not starve. Our allies will not starve.

"But these demoralizing forces are continuing. And if we keep traveling in this direction we will see more hardships at home if we supply the Allies and armies.

"And with such a situation, it is nonsense to talk about furnishing meat and fat supplies to 300,000,000 additional famine-stricken people after this war is won."

Declaring he had no sympathy with the attacks made upon farmers by "armchair consumers," Hoover said his purpose was to speak in behalf of the farmers to "you who represent the industrial world."

Farm Labor Shortage

On the question of farm labor shortage, he said that women with training can be of service for lighter, simpler tasks, but that it was useless to talk of making up the shortage wholly from women and children, since much farm work is hard labor and requires skills and mechanical ability.

"There are other major remedies," he said. "The first is to cease the draft of labor from the farms into arms and munitions. The second is for industry to rigidly economize on labor and release the economies to the farmer.

"The third is large and temporary import of Mexican farm labor. The fourth is to give consideration to the method of European armies. That is to furlough farm boys from the army for the few months of peak planting and harvest, they remaining under military direction, and in our case to draw both the army and armers' pay."

Food Prices

He declared that food prices had increased approximately sixteen per cent. since price controls were partially applied a year ago and about nine per cent. since they were fully applied.

"... This in fact comprises a slightly larger rise than took place during the first year of food control in the last war under other methods," Hoover declared.

He suggested that we abandon retail-price ceilings on food and fix the prices "as near the farm as possible," thereby stimulating production.

The consumers could be protected, he added, by regulating the turnover and profits of food processors and the markups of wholesalers and retailers.

All price-control functions, Hoover said, should be vested in the Secretary of Agriculture "instead of several other places as at present."

Rickenbacker Bares Detail Of Days Adrift After Crash

Tells of Capture of Gull, as if by 'Miracle' in Pacific Odyssey.

JAN 22 1943

NEW YORK, Jan. 21 — (AP) Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker and his seven companions floated and burned for seven days after their planes came down on the Pacific ocean, with four oranges as their only food. And then came "a miracle."

They had held their daily religious service. As always, they had read this New Testament quotation:

"Therefore take no thought, saying, what shall we eat? Or what shall we drink? Or, wherewithal shall we be clothed? . . . For your Heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things. But seek ye first the Kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you. Take therefore no thought for the morrow: For the morrow shall take thought for the things of itself. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." (Matthew 6:31-34).

Gull Landed on Hat

"About an hour later," says Capt. Rickenbacker in an article "Pacific Mission," in this weeks issue of Life magazine, "when I was dozing with my hat pulled down over my eyes, a gull appeared from nowhere and landed on my hat.

"I don't remember how it happened or how I knew he was there. x x x I reached up for him with my right hand—gradually. The whole Pacific seemed to be shaking from the agitation in my body, but I could tell he was still there from the hungry, famished, almost insane eyes in the other rafts."

Capt. Rickenbacker captured the gull, wrung its neck, carved up the body, and divided the meat into equal shares, holding back only the intestines for bait.

"Even the bones were chewed and swallowed," Capt. Rickenbacker relates. "No one hesitated because the meat was raw and stringy and fishy. It tasted fine. After Cherry had finished his piece, I baited a hook and passed it over to him. The hook, weighted with Whittaker's ring, had hardly got wet before a small mackerel hit it, and was jerked into the raft. I dropped the other line, with the same miraculous result, except that mine was a small sea bass.

The outlines of Capt. Rickenbacker's adventures are well known. But the full day-by-day account, as published in Life, add dramatic detail to the tale he told when he returned to the United States in December. Capt. Rickenbacker's trip was part of a mission for Secretary of War Stimson. His job was, and still is, to visit battlefronts to study all aspects of air fighting.

Near Crack-up in Take Off

He set out for "island X" in the Pacific, from Hickam field, Honolulu, Oct. 20—in a defective plane. The take-off was a near crack-up. But by 1:30 a.m., Oct. 21, he was off again, he and his aide, Col. Hans Adamson, an old friend; the five members of the crew, and an extra man, Sergt. Alexander Kaczmarczyk, who had been ill and was returning to his unit in Australia.

Somehow the plane overshot mark, repeated SOS calls went acknowledged, and Capt. Rickenbacker, realizing what they were in for, found himself studying his companions.

"Other than Adamson, they were strangers."

The co-pilot, Lieut. James Whittaker, "a heavy-set, self-assured fellow of about 40;" the navigator, Lieut. John de Angelis, only 23; Private John Bartek, the flight engineer, 23; Sergt. James Reynolds, the radioman, "a tall, skinny chap, several years older;" Captain William T. Cherry, Jr., the pilot, and Sergt. Alex, "he had had little to say, and studying him I thought he looked frail."

"The last minutes ran out fast x x x We dumped all that high-priority mail into the blue Pacific. Then the tool box, the cots, the blankets, the empty thermos bottles, a brand new beautiful burberry coat I had bought only a few weeks before in London x x x I had frugally removed a spare bridge that my dentist had just made for me, but after a second's deliberation I threw that away too. After it went my brief-case, bulging with papers of which no copies existed—papers that I had considered important. Let the moment come when nothing is left but life and you will find that you do not hesitate over the fate of material possessions, however deeply they may have been cherished."

After the touch and go crash landing, the men hurried so to get away from the sinking plane and onto the rafts, that they left their food and water rations behind—all but four oranges.

Freeing the line of one raft, Pvt. Bartek cut his fingers to the bone, so that "blood reddened everything he touched."

Col. Adamson's back was badly wrenched, and Sgt. Reynolds' nose was slashed.

Capt. Rickenbacker was more worried over the shortage of clothing than lack of food. Only he and Col. Adamson were fully dressed. The others, expecting to swim, had taken off shoes, hats, sweaters, even socks.

In the fierce sun "face, neck, hands, wrists, legs and ankles burned, blistered, turned raw, and b u r n e d again. x x x My hands swelled and blistered; when the salt water got into the flesh, it burned and cracked and dried and burned again. Three months later the scars still show on the knuckles. Our mouths became covered with ugly running sores. x x x Reynolds x x x turned into a solid red mass of hurt. Even the soles of his feet were burned raw. x x x

"These first five or six days were the worst I have ever known."

Sharks Follow Rafts

Sharks followed the rafts. Every now and then one would bump against a raft's canvas bottom with force enough to lift one of the men three or four inches.

"What made the nights hardest was that we could never stretch out. Some day I shall meet the man who decided these rafts could hold two men and five men each."

Sgt. Alex and Lieut. de Angelis in the two-man raft "had to sit facing each other, one with his legs over the other man's shoulders, while he took the legs of the other under his armpits, or they sat back to back, dangling their legs in the water . . . imagine two men in a small, shallow bathtub.

"Reynolds talked about how much soda pop he was going to drink the rest of his life. Cherry couldn't think about anything but chocolate ice cream. x x x My own mind slowly filled with visions of chocolate malted milk. I could actually taste it, to the point where my tongue worked convulsively. x x x I hadn't had a chocolate malted milk in nearly 25 years."

Sgt. Alex became delirious, poisoned by the salt water he had drunk secretly, in the night. On the twelfth night, he died, and next morning, after Lieut. de Angelis murmured what he remembered of the Catholic burial service, they rolled the body over the side.

Rain on the ninth day saved the group from death of thirst, and on the 20th day, over Capt. Rickenbacker's protests, the three rafts went their separate ways. Within two days more all seven were rescued.

Two Nazi Spy Suspects Accused In Plot to Copy Plane Secrets

NEW YORK, Jan. 21—(AP)—The arrest of two German-born men on charges of conspiring with a convicted Nazi espionage agent to forward to Germany microfilm of blueprints and plans of airplane parts and assembly was announced today by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The two arrested were identified by the FBI as Paul Hermann Karl Grohs, 47, and Frank Heinrich Wilhelm Grote, 42, both of New York. They pleaded guilty upon arraignment before U. S. Commissioner Martin C. Epstein and were held in $25,000 bail each.

They were accused by the FBI of conspiring with Carl Reuper who was arrested with others on June 28, 1941, and convicted for violation of the espionage statutes. Reuper, the FBI said, was trained in Germany to obtain data about war material production and other matters relating to national defense in the United States.

The FBI said that Grohs, a machinist and a tool maker in a national defense plant until his arrest, used equipment in Grote's photography studio to copy plans stolen by Reuper from defense plants in the metropolitan area. Grote actively assisted Grohs in copying the material and used his knowledge of photography to make microfilm of the stolen plans, the FBI said. The microfilm could be enlarged to readable size when it was received in Germany.

Grote was described as a machinist in New York until 1930 when he opened the photography studio. Then he closed the studio in October, 1941 to become a machinist for a defense plant.

Grote came to the United States in 1925 and is married to a German alien, the FBI said. The law enforcement agency said Grohs arrived in this country in 1928 and obtained citizenship papers in 1936.

GERMANS REPORT SLOVAKIAN STRIFE

The Berlin radio indicated today that the Nazi satellite state of Slovakia is having some kind of internal trouble. It broadcast this dispatch, datelined Bratislava (Slovakia's capital):

"The Slovak police are carrying out a systematic cleaning up of the Slovak capital. Disorderly elements and other suspects are being rounded up and put in work camps or asylums."

The broadcast was recorded in New York by the Associated Press.

Slovak units, like the Rumanians and Hungarians, have suffered heavily in the fighting in Russia. This has caused bitter discontent in both Rumania and Hungary, and this may have spread to Slovakia.

BY EDWIN SHANKE

STOCKHOLM, SWEDEN, JAN.21-(AP)-TRAVELERS REACHING SWEDEN FROM GERMANY SAID TODAY THAT MANY NAZIS FROM OFFICIALS DOWN TO SMALL FRY WARD HEELERS ARE BEGINNING TO REMOVE THEIR PARTY BADGES FROM THEIR LAPEL BUTTONHOLES BECAUSE THEY ARE LOSING FAITH IN VICTORY AND FEAR THE CONSEQUENCES.

THESE SOURCES ADDED, HOWEVER, THAT ALTHOUGH THIS IS ONE OF THE FIRST SIGNS OF THE NAZIS RUNNING FOR COVER, THEY STILL CAREFULLY CARRY THE BUTTONS WITH THEM AND WEAR THEM AT OFFICIAL FUNCTIONS TO KEEP UP APPEARANCES.

JAN 22 1943

THIS REPORTED SYMPTOM OF DETERIORATING MORALE REVERSES A TREND WHICH STARTED EARLY IN 1938 WITH HITLER'S BLOODLESS CONQUEST OF AUSTRIA. THEN SWASTIKAS POPPED OUT OVERNIGHT ON LAPELS. MANY PERSONS WHO WERE MEMBERS OF THE PARTY FOR YEARS CAME INTO THE OPEN AND BEGAN WEARING THEM FOR THE FIRST TIME. THE PARTY ITSELF GREW RAPIDLY IN THE YEARS OF CHEAP VICTORY.

THE EXPLANATION THAT THE TRAVELERS GIVE IS THAT THE GERMANS SPORTING THE SWASTIKAS AND PARTY BADGES NOW ARE BEGINNING TO SEE THE HANDWRITING ON THE WALL AND AT THE SAME TIME SENSE THE UNDERLYING HATRED TOWARD THEM AMONG THE MANY WHO HAVE SUFFERED AT THEIR HANDS. THIS FEELING HAS BEEN AGGRAVATED AS A RESULT OF MILITARY REVERSES, THE ECONOMIC PINCH OF THE FOURTH YEAR OF WAR, AND THE GENERAL REPERCUSSION OF CASUALTIES WHICH THEY CANNOT ESCAPE BECAUSE SOLDIERS DAILY HOBBLE ABOUT ON ONE LEG OR DANGLE AN ARMLESS SLEEVE ON THE STREETS.

WITH THE SWASTIKAS GONE, THEY HOPE THE PEOPLE WILL FORGET.

DESPITE THE FACT THAT THEY ARE CONSTANTLY IN THE SHADOW OF THE GESTAPO, HOWEVER, THE GERMANS FREQUENTLY REMARK: "WE KNOW EVERY NAZI, EVERY SA, EVERY SS MAN (STORM TROOPS AND ELITE GUARDS), EVERY PARTY BONZEN (RACKETEER) AND WE WILL KNOW WHERE TO FIND THEM WHEN THE TIME COMES," THESE TRAVELERS SAID.

JAN 22 1943

THE TRAVELERS ALSO SAID THEY HAD WITNESSED OPEN EXPRESSIONS OF PROTEST AGAINST THE GESTAPO TREATMENT OF THE JEWS AND HAD HEARD GERMANS DENOUNCE THE PERSECUTION, SOMETHING THEY NEVER DARED DO BEFORE.

A81

ALSO, WORKERS WERE SAID TO BE TIRED OF THE CEASELESS DRIVING BY THE NAZIS TO INCREASE WAR PRODUCTION. THE NAZIS, THEREFORE, HAVE TO CONTEND WITH ABSENTEES IN FACTORIES ON AN INCREASING SCALE, THE TRAVELERS SAID, ALTHOUGH THE WORKERS RUN A RISK OF SEVERE PUNISHMENT FOR BEING AWAY FROM WORK WITHOUT CAUSE.

THE NAZIS ARE TRYING TO COUNTERACT THESE TENDENCIES WITH A JARRING PROPAGANDA WHICH EMPHASIZES THAT NOT ONLY THE NAZIS AND PARTY LEADERS BUT ALSO THE GERMAN PEOPLE WOULD HAVE TO PAY FOR DEFEAT.

FIRST LEAD FRONT

BY WILLIAM B.KING

WITH ALLIED FORCES AT BOU ARADA, TUNISIA, JAN.20-(DELAYED)-(AP)-A GERMAN THRUST INTO THE FRENCH SECTOR SOUTHWEST FROM PONT DU FAHS HAS THROWN THE WHOLE CENTRAL TUNISIAN FRONT INTO A STATE OF FLUIDITY WHICH MAY WELL DEVELOP INTO A DECISIVE BATTLE OF THE FRENCH NORTH AFRICAN CAMPAIGN.

(A COMMUNIQUE FROM ALLIED HEADQUARTERS YESTERDAY ANNOUNCED THE GERMANS HAD DRIVEN SEVEN MILES SOUTHWESTWARD FROM PONT DU FAHS AND TODAY'S COMMUNIQUE REPORTED AN ADDITIONAL SMALL GAIN FOR THE AXIS IN THIS SECTOR)

ALLIED PLANS TO COUNTER THE GERMAN MOVE REMAINED HIDDEN IN WAR COUNCILS, BUT CONFIDENCE WAS EXPRESSED IN FRONT LINE AREAS THAT THE SITUATION WOULD BE RECTIFIED WITHOUT LOSS OF OUR FAVORABLE POSITIONS.

TWO POSSIBLE EXPLANATIONS OF THE SUDDEN GERMAN OFFENSIVE WERE DISCUSSED HERE.

JAN 22 1943

ONE WAS THAT COL.GEN.JURGEN VON ARNIM, HITLER'S NEW COMMANDER OF AXIS FORCES IN TUNISIA, WAS SIMPLY FOLLOWING THE OLD MILITARY DICTUM THAT THE BEST DEFENSE IS AN OFFENSIVE.

THE SECOND WAS THAT THE NAZIS WERE MAKING A DESPERATE EFFORT TO CLEAR THE ROUTES FOR THE RETREAT OF MARSHAL ROMMEL'S DEFEATED ARMY INTO TUNISIA.

GENERAL VON ARNIM'S TANKS AND INFANTRY TURNED SOUTHWARD AGAINST THE FRENCH POSITIONS AFTER AN ABORTIVE ATTACK ON BRITISH FORMATIONS IN THE BOU ARADA-GOUBELLAT AREA. THE BRITISH PUSHED THE GERMANS BACK ALONG THE ROAD FROM BOU ARADA TO PONT DU FAHS.

ALTHOUGH STILL POORLY EQUIPPED, THE FRENCH FOUGHT FIERCELY AGAINST THE SHIFTED FORCES.

A GERMAN TANK COLUMN SUPPORTED BY INFANTRY FOUGHT ITS WAY DOWN THE MAIN ROAD FROM PONT DU FAHS TO WITHIN THREE MILES OF ROBAA, A SUPPORTING COLUMN MOVED ALONG CARAVAN TRAILS FROM THE EAST TO A LANDMARK KNOWN AS THE BYZANTINE RUINS.

THE BRITISH HAD MAULED THE GERMAN FORCES CONSIDERABLY IN FRUSTRATING THE PREVIOUS ASSAULTS.

30.24 - 507

THE GERMANS, WHO WORKED FEVERISHLY THROUGHOUT THE NIGHT TO RECOVER THE TANKS KNOCKED OUT WHEN THEY SENT THEM ALONG THIS ROAD IN A TWO-PRONGED ATTACK ON THE BRITISH, FELL BACK SLOWLY IN THE FACE OF QUICK JABS AND SHORT ENVELOPING MOVEMENTS.

A REVIEW OF THE BATTLE SHOWED THAT THE NAZIS ENDED THE DAY WITHOUT POSSESSING ANY GROUND TAKEN FROM THE ALLIES WITH THE EXCEPTION OF THE AREA HELD BY A SMALL, ALMOST ISOLATED BAND WHICH DUG ITSELF IN ON THE WEST SIDE OF GOUBELLAT ROAD. IT WAS EXPECTED TO BE MOPPED UP IN A MATTER OF HOURS.

JAN 22 1943

ON THE OTHER HAND, THE GERMANS SUFFERED LOSSES WHICH WERE SEVERE COMPARED TO THE SCOPE OF THE FIGHT.

EIGHT GERMAN TANKS DEFINITELY WERE KNOCKED OUT WHILE OTHERS FARTHER BACK WERE SO DAMAGED THAT THEY HAD TO BE PULLED OFF BY NIGHT RECOVERY PATROLS.

APPROXIMATELY 50 PRISONERS WERE TAKEN WHILE OTHER NAZI CASUALTIES WERE ESTIMATED AT ABOUT 150.

THE BRITISH LOST NO TANKS AND INFANTRY CASUALTIES NOWHERE NEARLY APPROACHED THE GERMAN FIGURE.

THE GERMANS BY INFILITRATIONS DURING THE MORNING GAINED POSITIONS ON HEIGHTS OCCUPIED BY THE BRITISH BUT THIS MOMENTARY SUCCESS PROVED A BOOMERANG. THROUGHOUT THE AFTERNOON INFANTRY SUPPORTED BY TANKS WAS SENT AGAINST THESE POCKETS, RESULTING IN THE KILLING OF CAPTURE OF MOST OF THEM.

THE GERMANS COORDINATED THEIR ATTACK IN THE BOU ARADA AREA WITH A DRIVE AGAINST THE FRENCH-HELD LINE FARTHER SOUTH IN WHAT APPEARED TO BE AN EFFORT AT A WIDE ENVELOPING MOVEMENT TOWARD THE NORTHWEST. THERE WAS LIMITED INFORMATION IN THIS AREA OF THE OUTCOME OF THE OPERATION, THOUGH THE GERMANS WERE KNOWN TO HAVE MADE SOME PROGRESS.

THE GERMANS, APPARENTLY FEARFUL THE BRITISH WERE MOUNTING A COUNTER-ATTACK, RAIDED BOU ARADA AND EL AROUSSA, VILLAGES ON THE MAIN ALLIED ROAD IN THIS SECTOR, FROM THE AIR DURING THE DAY.

I WAS IN EL AROUSSA, WHEN 14 JU-87'S POINTED THEIR NOSES DOWN AND LOOSED A BOMB LOAD ON THE CENTER OF THE VILLAGE.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, JAN.21-(AP)-AN ALLIED COMMUNIQUE ANNOUNCED TODAY THAT AXIS TANKS AND INFANTRYMEN MADE ANOTHER SMALL ADVANCE YESTERDAY IN THE FRENCH-HELD MOUNTAINS SOUTHWEST OF PONT DU FAHS AND A SPOKESMAN DISCLOSED THAT THE VANGUARDS HAD REACHED A POINT ABOUT TWO MILES FROM ROBAA, ITSELF 27 MILES FROM PONT DU FAHS AND 60 MILES SOUTHWEST OF TUNIS.

THE SPOKESMAN REPORTED THAT NAZI ARMORED FORCES WERE MAKING A TWIN THRUST DOWN PARALLEL VALLEYS FARTHER SOUTH IN THE DIRECTION OF OUSSELTIA. THIS WAS INTERPRETED AS AN EFFORT TO ISOLATE AND THEN OCCUPY THE HIGH GROUND BETWEEN THE TWO VALLEYS.

GERMAN OCCUPATION OF THIS HIGH GROUND WOULD INSURE PROTECTION FOR THE COASTAL ROUTE FARTHER EAST ALONG WHICH MARSHAL ROMMEL'S FORCES MAY MOVE IN THE WITHDRAWAL FROM TRIPOLITANIA.

"IN THE FIRST ATTACK," THE COMMUNIQUE SAID, "BOMBS BURST ALONG THE SPANISH MOLE STARTING FIRES WHICH WERE CONFIRMED BY OUR AIRCRAFT REACHING THE TARGET AREA LATER. A PROBABLE HIT WAS SCORED ON A MERCHANT VESSEL.

"IN THE SECOND ATTACK THE TARGET WAS ALMOST TOTALLY OBSCURED BY CLOUD COVERAGE BUT THE BOMBS FOUND THEIR MARK AND STARTED A HUGE FIRE THAT CAUSED COLUMNS OF BLACK SMOKE TO PENETRATE HEAVY CLOUD COVERAGE AT 10,000 FEET."

THE BRITISH ANNOUNCED YESTERDAY THEY HAD PENETRATED TO THE HOMS-TARHUNA AREA BUT HAD NOT ANNOUNCED OCCUPATION OF THE VILLAGE.

IN WIDESPREAD AERIAL ACTIVITIES EXTENDING FROM THE TUNISIAN SHORES TO THE AEGEAN, ALLIED PLANES SANK TWO MORE AXIS SUPPLY SHIPS AND BADLY DAMAGED TWO OTHERS, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID.

ALLIED AIRMEN ALSO BLASTED BY DAY AND NIGHT AT THE RETREATING AXIS FORCES AND HAMMERED AT TARGETS IN THE TRIPOLI AREA, INCLUDING DOCKS AND THE CASTEL BENITO AIRDROME, 13 MILES TO THE SOUTH.

CAUCASUS AND THE REMAINDER IN THE STALINGRAD, DON AND DONETS AREAS.

PREMIER ANTONESCU WAS REPORTED TO HAVE REQUESTED ADOLF HITLER TO ALLOW THE RUMANIANS IN RUSSIA TO FUNCTION AS AN ENTITY BUT HIS REQUEST WAS REJECTED AND THE RUMANIANS ARE STILL STANDWICHED AMONG THE GERMANS WITH A GERMAN OVERALL COMMAND.

JAN 22 1943

THIS WAS DONE, ACCORDING TO INFORMATION REACHING REACHING HERE, BECAUSE ON THE OCCASION OF THE BRITISH VICTORY AT EL ALAMEIN AND THE AMERICAN LANDINGS IN NORTH AFRICA THE RUMANIAN OFFICERS DUG OUT THEIR LAST BOTTLES OF CHAMPAGNE AND TOASTED AN ULTIMATE ALLIED VICTORY.

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, JAN.20-(DELAYED)-(AP)-HEAVY LIBERATOR BOMBERS FOUGHT TWO DOZEN OR MORE ENEMY ZERO FIGHTERS OVER THE OCEAN OFF WEWAK FOR ALMOST AN HOUR TODAY AND SHOT DOWN 12 AND DAMAGED SIX MORE.

HONOLULU, T.H., JAN.21-(AP)-THE BOMBING OF JAPAN REMAINS ON THE LIST OF FUTURE WAR MISSIONS BUT "THERE ARE REASONS WHY IT CAN HARDLY BECOME A MATTER OF REGULAR ROUTINE," CAPT. RALPH A. OFTSIE, AVIATION OFFICER ON THE STAFF OF ADMIRAL CHESTER W. NIMITZ, SAID TODAY.

JAN 22 1943

"THERE IS NO 'ROYAL ROAD TO TOKYO'," CAPTAIN OFTSIE, WHO ONCE COMPETED WITH JIMMY DOOLITTLE, FAMED LEADER OF THE AMERICAN BOMBERS OF TOKYO, TOLD THE HONOLULU CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

"POSSIBLY SOME OF YOU ARE DISAPPOINTED AT THE PROGRESS BEING MADE. YOU MAY HAVE FELT THAT BOMB JAPAN SHOULD BE FIRST ON THE LIST OF MISSIONS ASSIGNED AND THAT PROPERLY CARRIED OUT BOMBING OF JAPAN WOULD RESULT IN EARLY TERMINATION OF THE WAR. I ASSURE YOU THAT BOMB JAPAN IS ON THE LIST BUT FOR THE PRESENT THERE ARE REASONS WHY IT CAN HARDLY BECOME A MATTER OF REGULAR ROUTINE."

CAPTAIN OFTSIE, OF EVERETT, WASH., PARTICIPATED IN 1925 IN THE SCHNEIDER CUP RACES AT BALTIMORE WITH DOOLITTLE, THEN AN ARMY CAPTAIN.

"THIS IS QUITE A SEPARATE AND DISTINCT STRUGGLE FROM THAT IN EUROPE," HE SAID.

"YOU WILL FIND, TOO, IT IS AN ENTIRELY DIFFERENT KIND OF WAR.

"AFTER THE INITIAL SERIES OF ADVANCES BY THE JAPANESE AND, WHEN THEY CAME FACE TO FACE WITH GOOD SOUND AMERICAN OPPOSITION, THIS WAR REDUCED ITSELF TO A STRUGGLE IN JUNGLE ISLANDS OF THE SOUTH PACIFIC SEAS, FROM AUSTRALIA TO ALASKA AND AGAIN IN BARREN ISLANDS OF THE FAR NORTH."

THE SITUATION. AGAINST TME BACKGROUND FURNISHED BY RECENT TOKYO BROADCASTS, SUGGESTS STRONGLY THAT THERE IS A CRISIS OF SOME KIND ON THAT HILLTOP IN THE HEART OF TOKYO WHERE THE PREMIER'S RESIDENCE, PARLIAMENT, GENERAL STAFF OFFICES AND THE WAR MINISTRY ARE GROUPED. PERHAPS THE RECENT ANNOUNCEMENT THAT THE GOVERNMENT HAS DRAFTED BILLS TO GIVE THE PREMIER NEW AND UNPRECEDENTED POWERS HOLDS THE EXPLAMATION.

OME BILL WOULD GIVE HIM SWEEVING AUTMORITY OVER "EXPAMSIOM OX WAR PRODUCTION"; ANOTMEG WOULB MAE HIM SUPREME IN THE CABINET, WITH THE RIGHT TO DIRECT THE ACTIONS OF HIS COLLEAGUES OR ASSUME THE FUNCTIONS OF ANY OF THEM IF THE NEED ARISES. HITHERTO THE PREMIER'S POSITION HAS BEEM THAT OF THE FIRST MINISTER AMONG EUALS. THE PROPOSED CHANGE MEANS A VITAL ALTERATION IN CONSTITUTIONAL LAW, AND SINCE THE CONSTITUTION IS REGARDED AS THE EMPEROR'S GIFT TO HIS PEOPLE ITS AMENDMENT IS NOT TO BE UNDERTAKEN LIGHTLY. TOJO MUST WANT THAT ADDITIONAL AUTHORITY BADLX.

ON THE SURFACE IT WOULD APPEAR THAT TOJO, WHO HAS COME UP FROM OBSCURITY WITHIN THE LAST FIVE YEARS, WAS TRYING TO MAKE HIMSELF A DICTATOR ON THE MUSSOLINI PATTERN. BUT SUCH A SIMPLE EXPLANATION DOES NOT FIT THE JAPANESE WAY. DISTRUST OF INDIVIDUAL DICTATORSHIP IS DEEP ROOTED IN THE JAPANESE POLITICAL MIND. JAN 22 1943

TOJO HOLDS HIS PRESENT POSITION OF GREAT POWER NOT AS AN INDIVIDUAL BUT AS THE MEMBER OF THE RULING MILITARY CASTE WHOSE ASSIGNMENT HAPPENS TO BE COMMAND OF THE HOME FRONT. HIS POST IS TO BE CONSIDERED MORE OR LESS COORDINATE WITH THOSE OF ADMIRAL YAMAMOTO, WHO COMMANDS IN THE WAR AT SEA; GENERAL TERAUCHI, WHO COMMANDS THE ARMIES IN THE CONQUERED SOUTHERN AREAS; OR GENERAL UMEZU, CHIEF OF THE KWANTUNG ARMY IN MANCHUKUOM THE BIG DECISIONS ARE REACHED BY STILL MORE SENIOR GENERALS AND ADMIRALS WHO CONTROL IMPERIAL HEADQUARTERS, THE SUPREME WAR COUNCIL AND THE GENERAL STAFFS.

WHAT IS SOUGMT NOW IS MORE POWER FOR THE ARMY'S REPRESENTATIVE IN THE GOVERNMENT, NOT FOR TOJO THE INDIVIDUAL, TO WIPE OUT THE POSSIBILITY THAT ANY MINISTER COULD HAMPER THE ARMY'S PLANS. WHERE SUCH OPPOSITION MIGHT COME FROM IS NOT CLEAR; IT HAD BEEN SUPPOSED THAT THE CURRENT CABINET, COMPOSED OF FIVE GENERALS OR ADMIRALS, INCLUDING TOJO, AND EIGHT UNDISTINGUISHED CIVILIANS, WAS COMPLETELY SUBSERVIENT TO MILITARY DIRECTION. HOWEVER, SOME ONE MUST HAVE BALKED.

TME CHIEF EMPHASIS OBVIOUSLY IS ON WAR PGODUCTION, AN EMPHASIS THAT BECOMES ALMOST FRENZIED AS THE REALIZATION GRIPS THE MILITARISTS THAT JAPAN IS TREMENDOUSLY OVERMATCHED IN THIS PHASE AND THAT AMERICAN INDUSTRX IS PRODUCING MIRACLES.

THERE SEEMS TO BE A RUTHLESS CAMPAIGN TO BRING JAPAN'S ENTIRE ECONOMY UNDER MILITARY CONTROL. JAPANESE CAPITAL AND INDUSTRY, STILL LARGELY IN THE HANDS OF MEN WITH SOME FOREIGN EXPERIENCE AND A WORLD OUTLOOK FAR MORE REALISTIC THAN THAT OF THE ARMY'S MODERN SAMURAI, HAS NOT GONE ALONG WITH THE ECONOMIC MOBILIZATION PROGRAM WITH 100 PER CENT ENTHUSIASM. THIS MAY BE THE SOURCE OF THE OPPOSITION THAT TOJO IS TRYING TO STAMP OUT.

A88 JAN 22 1943

MAMY DEVELOPMENTS SUGGEST A RUTHLESS CAMPAIGN AGAINST THOSE WHO RAN THE ECONOMY OF THE EMPIRE IN PREWAR TIMES. THE GOVERNMENT HAS TAKEN CONTROL OF THE STOCK EXCHANGES, CLOSED SOME OF THE COMMODITY EXCHANGES, COMPELLED THE MERGER OF SOME OF THE BIGGEST BANKS, DEMANDED THE SUSPENSION OF ALL CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE FOR THE DURATION.

THE PICTURE THUS VAGUELY OUTLINED SEEMS TO MEAN THAT THE ARMY IS DETERMINED TO TAKE TOTALITARIAM CONTROL OF ALL PRODUCTIVE CAPACITY AND RUN IT IN SUCH A WAY THAT THE RESULT WILL BE VICTORY OR UTTER RUIN.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SIGNING OF A NEW ECONOMIC TREATY BETWEEN GERMANY, JAPAN AND ITALY WAS ANNOUNCED LAST NIGHT BY THE BERLIN RADIO, WHICH QUOTED THE GERMAN FOREIGN OFFICE AS SAYING THE PACT WOULD ENABLE THE AXIS "TO EXPLOIT TO 100 PER CENT THE WAR POTENTIAL OF THE TRIPARTITE POWERS WITH A VIEW TO WINNING ULTIMATE VICTORY."

THE BROADCAST WAS RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

THE TREATY ALSO WILL SERVE AS A BASIS OF PERMANENT COLLABORATION

30.24 —— 519.

"AFTER A VICTORIOUS TERMINATION OF THE WAR," DECLARED THE BROADCAST, WHICH TREATED THE SIGNING AS AN EVENT OF GREAT SIGNIFICANCE.

THE PACT, TO RUN CONCURRENTLY WITH THE 10-YEAR MILITARY PACT OF SEPT.27, 1940, PROVIDES FOR EXTENSIVE INTERCHANGE OF GOODS IN ADDITION TO FINANCIAL AND TECHNICAL COOPERATION, THE BERLIN RADIO EXPLAINED, PASSING LIGHTLY OVER THE ALLIED BLOCKADE WHICH HAS MADE COMMERCE BETWEEN GERMANY AND JAPAN VIRTUALLY NON-EXISTENT.

JAN 22 1943

DEALING ONLY WITH GLOWING GENERALITIES THE BROADCAST SAID:

"ALTHOUGH DETAILS CONCERNING THE APPLICATION OF THE NEW ECONOMIC TREATY ARE YET UNANNOUNCED, BERLIN QUARTERS FEEL CONVINCED THAT GERMAN, ITALIAN AND JAPANESE ENGINEERS AND ORGANIZERS WILL, TO AN EVER-GROWING EXTENT, SUCCEED IN CREATING PRELIMINARY CONDITIONS TO CARRY THROUGH THE NEW PACT TO THE FULLEST EXTENT AND THUS BRING ABOUT THE FINAL COLLAPSE OF THE ENEMY.

AFTER THE WAR, THE ANNOUNCER SAID, THE TREATY WILL HELP TO "ASSURE THE WELFARE AND DEVELOPMENT OF ALL THE PEOPLES ADHERING TO THE TRIPARTITE PACT" BY A PROGRAM OF "MUTUAL AND UNCONDITIONAL ASSISTANCE:

"FOR INSTANCE, JAPAN, IN ORDER TO CARRY THROUGH THE DEVELOPMENT OF HER NEW HUGE TERRITORIES, NEEDS THE MOST HIGHLY EFFICIENT MACHINERY AS WELL AS FIRST-GRADE OPTICAL AND ELECTRO-TECHNICAL APPLIANCES AS PRODUCED IN EXCELLENT QUALITIES IN GERMANY.

JAN 22 1943

"ON THE OTHER HAND, JAPAN HAS AT HER DISPOSAL FOR EXPORT MOST ESSENTIAL RAW MATERIALS LIKE TIN, COPPER, OIL, SEEDS, ETC., IN LARGE QUANTITIES."

DETAILS REGARDING THE EXCHANGE OF THESE COMMODITIES WILL BE WORKED OUT BY SPECIAL DELEGATES OF THE THREE GOVERNMENTS, WHO WILL KEEP ECONOMIC RELATIONS "UNDER CONSTANT OBSERVATION," THE BROADCAST DECLARED.

THE AGREEMENT WAS SIGNED AT ADOLF HITLER'S HEADQUARTERS BY GERMAN FOREIGN MINISTER JOACHIM VON RIBBENTROP AND JAPANESE AMBASSADOR HIROSHI OSHIMA. AN IDENTICAL PACT WAS SIGNED IN ROME BY ITALIAN FOREIGN MINISTER COUNT GALEAZZO CIANO AND THE JAPANESE CHARGE D'AFFAIRES. SHUNICHI KASE, THE BERLIN RADIO SAID.

THE TOKYO RADIO, IN A BROADCAST RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS TODAY, SAID THAT GERMAN-JAPANESE NEGOTIATIONS WHICH LAID THE GROUNDWORK FOR THE TREATY WERE BEGUN IN THE SPRING OF 1941 WHEN A GERMAN ECONOMIC MISSION HEADED BY HELMUTH WOHLTHAT ARRIVED IN TOKYO.

JAN 22 1943

THE OUTBREAK OF WAR BETWEEN GERMANY AND SOVIET RUSSIA IN JUNE, 1941, HOWEVER, "NECESSITATED A FUNDAMENTAL REVISION OF THE DRAFT PLAN" FOR THE TREATY, THE TOKYO BROADCAST DECLARED.

"MOREOVER," IT ADDED, "IN DECEMBER OF THE SAME YEAR JAPAN DECLARED WAR ON THE UNITED STATES AND BRITAIN, THUS NECESSITATING A FURTHER CHANGE IN THE PLAN."

THE BROADCAST SAID THAT "AFTER THE OUTBREAK OF WAR IN GREATER EAST ASIA THE NEGOTIATIONS DEALT WITH WAYS AND MEANS OF EXCHANGING MATERIAL EFFECTING MUTUAL COLLABORATION IN THE TECHNICAL FIELD AND WITH THE SOLUTION OF PROBLEMS REGARDING THE SETTLEMENT OF TRADE ACCOUNTS."

HOW THESE MATTERS HAD BEEN WORKED OUT THE TOKYO RADIO DID NOT SAY.

ECONOMIC PARLEYS BETWEEN JAPAN AND ITALY BEGAN "AT JUST ABOUT THE TIME PRELIMINARY WORK ON THE JAPANESE-GERMAN AGREEMENT HAD REACHED A DECISIVE STAGE," THE BROADCAST SAID.

British Enter Tripoli Outskirts, Blast Rommel's Main Remnants Fleeing 25 Miles Inside Tunisia

JAN 23 1943

LONDON, Jan. 22—(AP)—The last important defenses of Tripoli were in British hands tonight and the main remnants of Marshal Erwin Rommel's Panzer Africa Corps were believed to have escaped into Tunisia.

Only a few German rearguards had been left behind to engage in a bloody, bitter last-minute defense of the capital and chief city of Mussolini's African empire which now was swept by demolition explosions and fires set by the withdrawing Axis legions.

Their flight was clearly visible to Allied pilots who hovered over the burning city, and the Morocco radio said all important defenses had fallen.

(United States government monitors said this broadcast added: "The rest of the city is at present being subjected to a strong bombardment of artillery.")

The Axis Tunisian army of Col. Gen. Jurgen Von Arnim already playing host to the Rommel corps, meanwhile, was reported smashed back in bitter battles of considerable scale for control of a mountain highland guarding Rommel's coastal escape corridor.

The headquarters of Gen. Henri Giraud reported that the French, with British reinforcements and with Americans in the thick of the action, had repulsed the easternmost of two German thrusts in central Tunisia and "made an advance of several miles" in the valley of Oued Kebir.

The westernmost thrust, to the northwest of the Ousselt hill, already had been reported halted.

"The enemy attack on our positions dominating the approaches to Kairouan 20 miles west of the town has completely failed," the French communique said.

Covered by Clouds of Smoke

Dispatches from Cairo said Allied pilots in flying over Tripoli, the last and most important port in Libya, and the last of Italy's empire saw the city covered by clouds of smoke rising from demolition fires and explosions which rearguard engineers evidently had set to destroy every military installation of value before the British could take over.

The exact location of the British was not disclosed in these dispatches, but the Morocco radio previously had reported the British in the suburbs. One wing was believed sweeping to the southwest in efforts to cut off the retreat of enemy forces remaining in the city.

The Cairo dispatches said all signs indicated that only rearguards, composed of Germans, had been left behind and these were putting up a desperate resistance to slow the British advance, although the numbers of men involved were small.

The Italians in Rommel's army, it was said, had been sent ahead into Tunisia, where they had gone 50 miles beyond the border.

To the south, in the Libyan Sahara, the French communique reported, the last garrisons of Mussolini's empire, were being rounded up.

Only Rear Guard Left

The British entry into the environs of Tripoli, once the greatest port in a now vanished Italian African empire, was announced by the Morocco radio, as Rommel had apparently left only a rear guard there while his main bodies panted onward in the effort to escape General Sir Bernard Montgomery and reach a juncture with the Axis army of Col. Gen. Jurgen von Arnim in Tunisia.

The Tunisian end of the battle line meantime erupted violently.

With twin tank thrusts down either side of the mountain chain southwestward from Pont du Fahs, von Arnim was trying urgently to throw up a 50-mile-long barrier that would hold the Allies off Rommel's probable line of retreat into Tunisia along the coast.

His column along the eastern side of the mountains was at last report still on the advance, menacing the town of Ousseltia, but the westward force was said in dispatches from Allied North Africa headquarters to have been brought to a halt by strong counterattacks by ground troops heavily supported by the Allied air arm.

On the east of the mountain, the French reported that the Nazis were spearheaded by 50 tanks and that 150 German tanks, many of them the most modern, were in action in the whole of that general sector.

Tunisia and the Axis base of Sicily in which an Axis freighter was sunk in those narrow waters and a tanker damaged; of unending assaults upon Tripoli itself, of sweeps over both the Tunisian and Tripolitanian battle areas; of attacks on enemy transport from the Tripolitan frontier to Gabes in Tunisia in which many vehicles were destroyed.

The British fleet went on with its cooperative sweeps in the Mediterranean. An Admralty announcement disclosed light naval forces thrusting into Tripoli harbor had sunk an Italian submarine and had bombarded the harbor works without suffering any damage of consequence.

London, Jan. 22 (A. P.).—The British Eighth Army was today reported battling through the suburbs of bomb-fired Tripoli against crumbling opposition, while other British spearheads were believed to be by-passing the capital in a thrust to cut off the road to Tunisia.

Announcing the Eighth Army's entry into the outlying sections of the Libyan capital, the Morocco radio declared that Marshal Rommel had left only rear guard elements to slow the pursuit of his forces which Allied airmen were already attacking as far as twenty-five miles inside Tunisia.

In short, the fall of Tripoli, already reported in flames, was believed imminent.

JAN 23 1943

Meanwhile, short-range fighters mauled Marshal Rommel's retreating columns as deep as 25 miles inside Tunisia.

The Cairo communique said that by last evening the British, in steady pursuit of the Nazi marshal, were engaging the enemy "west of Homs and south of Tripoli," but the Italians reported British forces southwest of the city, intimating it was being by-passed as well as attacked.

United States headquarters in Cairo said American and Allied warplanes were violently assaulting the retreating Axis columns in the Tripoli area.

Other Allied planes struck with bombs and guns against armor-supported German forces which were attempting to block off a corridor along the Tunisian east coast to protect the fleeing Axis Libyan armies.

The British Admiralty disclosed that British light naval forces boldly defied Axis shore batteries at Tripoli, shelled the harbor works and sank an Italian submarine.

On the Central Tunisian land front Gen. Henri Giraud's hard-pressed French troops reported beating off intensified attacks which the Germans supported with tanks and planes in the spreading battle southwest of Pont du Fahs.

Germans Make Some Gains.

In this desperate effort to widen a corridor for Marshal [illegible] withdrawal into Tunisia, the Germans were said to have made some gains in strong attacks [illegible] Mesbouh, some 30 miles [illegible] Kairouan, but the French said their own troops stormed a height near Fondouk el Aoueb, to the south.

Allied warplanes are striking with bombs and guns against armor-supported German forces threatening French positions at Osseltia, 37 miles below Pont Du Fahs and 20 miles southeast of Robaa, it was announced.

Ten enemy aircraft were reported shot down in other operations and an Axis freighter was declared sunk in an aerial sweep over the Mediterranean between Sicily and Tunisia.

Eight of the enemy planes, the communique said, fell before the guns of P-38's attacking along the 100-mile coastal strip between the port of Gabes and the Tripolitanian frontier.

Heavier Fighting Reported.

The whole front was reported erupting into heavier fighting which might presage a showdown of strength.

Earlier the Morocco radio reported that Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's forces had pushed into the suburbs of Tripoli. It said that parts of Tripoli were aflame and that much of the civilian population was being removed.

The Italian communique said "yesterday, southeast and southwest of Tripoli, on a line from Gasr Garian to Tarhuna, and on the coast fierce fighting took place between our armored forces and the enemy's."

Tarhuna is the hill village 40 miles southeast of Tripoli which the British captured Wednesday. Gasr Garian is 40 miles south and somewhat west of the capital.

Observers in London said it seemed likely that part of Gen. Montgomery's force might be swinging around Tripoli to the south, and that one objective of such a move might be the capture of Castel Benito airdrome below the city.

Day and night Allied bombing already has lessened or destroyed its value as an Axis air base, but the Allies were reported counting heavily on using it as one of their principal fields for the coming all-out bombing of the Axis strongholds in Tunisia.

JAN 23 1943

British military sources said that although the exact positions of Gen. Montgomery's spearheads were not known, he was moving at a fast pace and the British occupation of Tripoli was regarded as a "mopping-up operation on which the 8th Army would waste little time.

These sources said a by-passing thrust to the coast west of Tripoli from the new positions to the south might cut off more of Marshal Rommel's forces.

These potential reinforcements for the Axis last stand in Tunisia were described as exhausted from one of the longest retreats in military history.

More Bases for Allies

London, Jan. 22 (AP)—The fall of Tripoli, expected to set the stage for an all-out Allied offensive to drive the Axis from Tunisia, was anticipated hourly in London today as British and fighting French forces converged swiftly on the city.

British observers said that capture of the city virtually would end the Libyan campaign and give the Allies possession of advance air bases from which to strike at the enemy in Tunisia. Lack of bases close to the Tunisian front has been one of the chief obstacles facing the Allied ground forces in that area.

Aerial activity already has been greatly intensified.

American headquarters announced that four-motored Liberators which have struck at Tripoli almost daily raided shipping in the harbor again yesterday without the loss of a plane. American medium bombers and fighter bombers have taken part in the savage Allied attacks on Rommel's retreating columns.

The Axis Hold

The swift pace of the British advance in Libya, joined from the south by the French, convinced observers here there was little chance that Field Marshal Rommel's harried Afrika Korps would attempt to make a stand anywhere between Tripoli and the Tunisian frontier, 100 miles to the west.

Rommel's flight into Tunisia will reduce the Axis toehold in North Africa to a narrow strip about 290 miles long on the eastern Tunisian coast, from the Libyan border to Bizerte.

Reds Take Salsk in Rostov Push And Close In on Voroshilovgrad

Capture Rail Junction and Air Base in Caucasus; Nazis Admit Major Withdrawal in Stalingrad Pocket After Russian Break-Through

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Jan. 22.—The important rail junction and German air base of Salsk, 100 miles southeast of Rostov, fell to the swiftly advancing Russian Army of the Caucasus today, and the Soviet troops also were fast encircling Voroshilovgrad, capital of the Donets Basin north of Rostov, according to the Soviet monitor's recording of two Moscow communiques tonight.

A special communique announced the fall of Salsk, and the midnight bulletin reported the capture of Konstantinovskaya, which apparently is the important Don River city only 75 miles northeast of Rostov.

Enemy Had Sternly Resisted

It is in the area of this latter city that the Germans had put up a stubborn resistance and for several weeks stopped the Russians where they had advanced closest to Rostov. The Russians have been reported within about 60 miles of Rostov in this sector on the lower Don.

The speed of the Russian offensive in the Caucasus was illustrated by the capture of Novyi Yegorlik, 35 miles along the railway to Kropotkin from Voroshilovsk, whose capture was announced 24 hours before.

The midnight bulletin also told of the capture of Nova Aidar, 30 miles northwest of Voroshilovgrad on the railway running north to Valuiki, already in Russian hands. This important Russian gain put the Red Army only 50 miles northeast of Artemovsk, big railway city on the line running south to Taganrog on the Sea of Azov west of Rostov.

Drive to Take Second Rail Network

Thus the Russians now have seized many points on the north-south railway running roughly 60 miles west of the Moscow-Rostov line, and are driving on to capture a second rail network in the Ukraine.

Salsk's capture was the most important of the day because it put the Russians within 70 miles of Tikhoretsk, where the Stalingrad railway meets the main line running north. Cutting of this line would leave the Nazis only the risky escape channel of the Kerch Peninsula opposite the Crimea.

Once Rostov is taken or encircled the Russians would begin a huge annihilation fight as they did with the 22 German divisions trapped at Stalingrad.

Stalingrad Liquidation Goes On

The Stalingrad liquidation still is going on against less than 50,000 of the original total of some 220,000 Axis troops.

The Russians also reported gains extending from Salsk 200 miles almost due south to the Caucasian mountain range.

On the lower Caucasian railway skirting the mountains Soviet troops are driving northwestward and last were reported about 42 miles from Armavir, rail gateway to the Maikop oil fields to the west.

Germans Admit Encirclement

For the first time today the German High Command admitted that its divisions at Stalingrad were "closely encircled," and also acknowledged a retreat in the Caucasus.

But the Russians said "fierce fighting is taking place at every populated place and on every advantageous line."

One village, the communique said, changed hands three times in one day, the outcome finally being decided by Soviet tankmen who attacked the enemy from the flank and again sent the Germans reeling backward.

The entire front from Voronezh on the Upper Don River to the Caucasus mountains was in motion, and nowhere did the Russians acknowledge any reverses. Whenever their troops were held up by Axis "hedgehog" positions, the Red Army surrounded them and began whittling them down.

No Further Gains at Voronezh

No further gains were reported in the sector south of Voronezh, on the westward push toward Kharkov and Kursk, but the Russians said they had wiped out more than 700 Axis troops northwest of Olkhovatka. This town is 50 miles east of Valuiki, one of the advance Russian points in the drive toward Kharkov 82 miles beyond. The communique said 1,800 prisoners were taken in this action.

On the central front southwest of Velikie Luki the Russians said they had captured nine populated places, killing 200 Germans at one point and inflicting heavy losses on the Germans in the other settlements. Velikie Luki is northwest of Moscow and about 90 miles from the Latvian frontier.

Salsk had been stubbornly defended. It was a major goal of the Russian drive straight down into the Caucasus from Stalingrad. The capture of Salsk marked a 215-mile gain from Stalingrad.

The Russians also announced the capture of Mikoyan-Shakhar, deep in the Caucasus mountains just north and west of Mount Elborus, highest peak in the snow-blanketed range. The town is on the headwaters of the Kuban River 60 miles south of Nevinnomissokaya, foremost advance point in the Russian drive up the Rostov-Baku railway.

JAN 23 1943

Enemy Had a Boast

The Germans had announced last Summer that the Nazi war flag was hoisted on Mount Elborus, 18,471-foot peak, on Aug. 21. The Russians never admitted the Germans had driven that far into the mountains which stood as a barrier denying the Nazis access to the vast oil deposits to the south.

It was the first intimation that the Germans had advanced so far up the north slopes of Caucasus mountains that denied them the rich oil deposits beyond.

The capture of Salsk secured the north Russian flank in the Caucasus and poised a new threat to Rostov. It menaced also the Germans retreating along the Baku railway with envelopment. The Russians are less than 40 miles from Armavir, most important rail junction the Germans hold south of Rostov. If the Russian column could beat the Germans to Tikhoretsk, the Nazis along the railway would be sealed off for annihilation.

Salsk has important air fields from which the Germans had flown supplies to the 50,000 hungry survivors in the trap west of Stalingrad.

BERLIN ADMITS BREAK IN LINE AT STALINGRAD

JAN 23 1943

Russians Cut Into Trapped Enemy Forces With Push From West

London, Jan. 22 (A. P.).—The German High Command asserted today that Russian forces attacking from the west had broken through the lines of the German "defenders of Stalingrad"—presumably the remnants of the twenty-two divisions which have been reported trapped by the Russians in that area.

The broadcast communique, recorded here, also reported Russian attacks all along the southern sector of the eastern front, but said elsewhere these had been repulsed.

The Russians have reported previously that the twenty-two divisions before Stalingrad, originally some 220,000 men, had been whittled down to about 50,000.

For the first time the German High Command in its official communique admitted the desperate plight of Axis troops encircled before Stalingrad.

"The German group in the Stalingrad area which is closely encircled by the enemy and which is offering tenacious resistance to strong enemy pressure had to wage heavy fighting yesterday against the Soviets, who are storming with far superior forces," the communique said.

"Despite heroic defense the defenders of Stalingrad (Germans) could not prevent the enemy from breaking in from the west, which compelled withdrawal of our own positions by several kilometers," the broadcast continued. "In man to man fighting a large number of Soviet tanks were destroyed."

The Berlin correspondent of Milan's Corriere Della Sera, in a report received at Bern, Switzerland, last night, said atmospheric conditions had reduced to the minimum the flying of food supplies to encircled Axis troops before Stalingrad.

The last authoritative estimate of the number of Axis soldiers penned up before Stalingrad was 50,000, these from an original strength of 22 divisions and others totaled 220,000 men.

Meanwhile, Russian dispatches declared at Moscow that powerful blows by the Red Army in a huge arc centering on Rostov-on-Don had carried Russian forces into Voroshilovsk in the northern Caucasus, laying open the strategic oil-rich region south of Rostov to the fast-moving Soviet legions.

Extends Far North.

The arc extends up through the Don and Donets River basins into the Voronezh sector, whence the Russian high command has pointed its offensives south and southwest toward Kharkov, Voroshilovgrad, Likhaya and the north shore of the Sea of Azov west of Rostov.

All along that arc, it was indicated in dispatches from the front and in official war bulletins, the Red Army is carving out chunks of the defense lines the Germans originally established in 1941. No sooner is a major gain noted in one sector than a complementary success is registered far on its flank along that arc.

JAN 23 1943

Rostov 60 Miles Distant.

Along the middle portion of the curve, in the Lower Don Valley, there has been little reported lately of Russian success. Here the Red Army spearhead is poised about 60 miles east of Rostov.

But in the Voronezh area and through co-ordinated offenses aimed ultimately at Rostov, the Russian columns were reported thrusting between Kursk and Kharkov at the north end of the arc, within 20 miles of the Donets Basin industrial and rail center of Voroshilovgrad, toward the rail junction of Likhaya, less than 70 miles north of Rostov, and toward Salsk, a rail center 100 miles southeast of Rostov.

The Soviet midnight communique recorded by the Soviet radio monitor in London told of the capture of Golofyeevka, on a railway 85 miles southeast of Kursk and only 10 miles below Staraya-Oskol, a communications center which also is menaced by a Red Army column at Sini Libyagi, 30 miles northeast.

The capture of Staraya-Oskol would give the Russians control of another section of the rail network that serves important Ukrainian centers.

Other Advances Reported.

Previously, however, the Russians had reported advances to Orazova, far [illegible], the railway, and thus placing an army [illegible] due east of Kharkov. Another wing of the army was reported at Byelo-Kurakina, 115 miles southeast of Rostov.

The Soviet midday communique, similarly recorded in London by the Soviet monitor, said Russian advances continued on all fronts with the occupation of a number of populated places being claimed in the North Caucasus.

Although the Germans were reported to have lost a great deal of their strength—in some cases the usual 200 to a company was now said to consist of from 10 to 30 men—they were still offering fierce resistance in some areas and making counterattacks with fresh reserves in others, the Russians said.

More than 400 Germans were said to have been killed by Russian troops smashing into the trapped Axis divisions west of Stalingrad.

On the southern front the Russians said they by-passed concentrations of the enemy in occupied towns, turned on automatic rifle attacks from the rear and in a three-hour struggle killed 700 of the enemy, took 100 prisoners and captured large quantities of war material.

Effort to Break Out Vain.

The encircled enemy garrisons on the Voronezh front are being squeezed and Axis efforts to break out of the ring are futile, the Russians claimed. A number of towns in the area were reported occupied, more than 1,500 prisoners were taken by one unit alone, and the dead defenders of Ostrogozhsk, under siege for two days, were counted at more than 1,000, the communique recorded in London said. The Russians also asserted they took 600 prisoners in capturing the town.

Fresh Axis forces were reported in use on the southwestern front but they failed to halt the Russian advance, it was claimed.

In addition to the territorial gains claimed by the Russians, they said that more than a half-million Axis troops had been killed and 200,000 captured on the entire Russian front between November 19, when the winter offensive began, and January 19.

The claims, contained in a Moscow broadcast at a Lenin anniversary meeting, also said Axis troops had lost more than 6,000 tanks, 12,000 guns and 3,500 planes in two months of battle.

Reds Report on Stalingrad.

Moscow, Jan. 22 (A. P.).—Red Army troops have blasted their way through western fortifications and dugouts of the remnants of twenty-two Axis divisions trapped before Stalingrad and tightened the lethal encirclement, field dispatches announced today.

Smaller and smaller grew the ring about the Germans, cut off in the first phases of the Soviet winter offensive which is newly reported to have carried Russian forces into Voroshilovsk in the northern Caucasus, and thus into the oil-rich region south of Rostov to attack.

The last authoritative estimate of the number of Axis soldiers penned up before Stalingrad was 50,000, these from two, three or more divisions which at the outset totaled 220,000 men.

Nazi Forces Pocketed.

Another encirclement operation developed on the Voronezh front, where an announced number of Germans are pocketed between the Moscow-Rostov railway and the Don River. Dispatches said the Russians beat back Nazi attacks.

New Red Army hammer blows fell along a huge arc centering before Rostov.

The arc extends up through the Don and Donets River basins into the Voronezh sector from where the Russian High Command has pointed its offensives south and southwest toward Kharkov, Voroshilovgrad, Likhaya and the north shore of the Sea of Azov west of Rostov.

All along that arc, it was indicated in dispatches from the front and in official war bulletins, the Red Army is carving out chunks of the defense lines the Germans originally established in 1941. No sooner is a major gain noted in one sector than a complementary success is registered far on its flank along that arc.

Voronezh Drives Gain.

Along the middle portion of the arc, in the lower Don valley, there has been little reported lately of Russian success. Here the Red Army spearhead is poised about sixty miles east of Rostov.

[The Soviet midnight communique recorded by the Soviet radio monitor in London told of the capture of Golofyeevka, on a railway eighty-five miles southeast of Kursk and only ten miles below Staraya-Oskol, a communications center which is also menaced by a Red Army column at Sini Libyagi, thirty miles northeast.]

The capture of the Caucasian city of Voroschilovsk straightened out the Caucasus line. It is twenty-seven miles north of Nevinnomysskaya, on the Baku-Rostov railway, previously reported taken. These forces now can point for Armavir, key to the Maikop oil fields west of the railroad, and gateway to the Kuban River valley. Any forces seeking to free the Black Sea naval base of Novorossisk and to approach Rostov from the south, or to flank it on the southern shore of the Sea of Azov, would find capture of Armavir necessary to their strategy. Beyond Armavir lies Kropotkin, another rail junction on the Kuban River.

The Red Army progress in the Caucasus indicated here that the Russians were driving the Germans out of the snow-covered terrain faster than the Germans had occupied it during the heat of last summer.

350-Mile Strip Along Channel Raided by Allies

Ghent-to-Cherbourg Blows by Day Led by U.S. Pilots; 10 Planes to Foe's 7 Lost

JAN 23 1943

LONDON, Jan. 22 (AP).—Swarms of British, American and Allied planes carried out large-scale offensive sweeps over northern France and Belgium today in a follow-up to the ninth night bomber attack this month on Hitler's Ruhr Valley arsenal.

The Air Ministry said seven German fighters were destroyed and four Allied bombers and six fighters were lost in the daylight operations, which extended over 350 miles of German-occupied coastal territory from Ghent to the Cherbourg peninsula.

Oil installations at Terneuzen, near Ghent, were bombed, as were German airfields at Maupertus, Abbeville, St. Omer and on the Cherbourg peninsula. "Many squadrons," which included Dominion and other imperial fighters as well as American and British, covered the bombers, fighting swirling dogfights high above the occupied coast. Vapors from the twisting planes could be seen on the English coast.

The Maupertus airfield is one of the principal bases for the Focke-Wulf 190s, which the Germans have been using increasingly in daylight raids on England.

The sweeps were spearheaded by American fighter pilots, and the Air Ministry said they were on a "large scale," indicating that big numbers of fighters made the foray in addition to bombers.

There was no enemy fighter opposition over Maupertus or Abbeville, but in the St. Omer attack there were numerous dogfights, and six German fighters were destroyed there — three by former Eagle Squadron pilots now in the United States Air Forces.

Earlier in the day, coastal-command planes sighted two enemy ships in a snowstorm off Stavanger, Norway, and scored a torpedo hit on one.

German planes struck back at England tonight, dropping bombs near two southwest coastal towns.

Targets in western Germany last night were not specified, but the Air Ministry said heavy loads of explosives and incendiaries started large fires that billowed through the thick clouds. Pilots on the Rhur raid said German night fighters and ground fire were more active than usual. Some bombers had to fight it out all the way home. Gunners reported at least two German night fighters shot down in flames.

Four bombers were lost last night, indicating the raiders did not constitute a great force such as hammered Berlin heavily on Saturday and Sunday nights. The Berlin radio said six four-engined bombers were destroyed over western Germany, and that damage and casualties were caused by the Royal Air Force.

R. A. F. SQUADRONS AGAIN BLAST RUHR

London, Jan. 22 (A. P.).—Returning to the attack on Germany for the first time since the heavy assault on Berlin last Saturday and Sunday nights, the Royal Air Force last night blasted targets in the industrial Ruhr, the Air Ministry announced today.

Four planes were lost in the assault, which left large fires burning in the target area. Accurate observation of the results was prevented by heavy clouds, the Ministry added, and the Berlin radio, giving its version of the raid, said merely that British planes had been over Western Germany, causing some damage and casualties.

Some of Britain's biggest bombers, capable of carrying four-ton blockbusters, apparently took part—perhaps as many as 100 planes—for the German ground defenses and night fighters are generally conceded to be maintaining a good average if they can knock down 5 per cent of the raiders.

North France Attacked.

At Folkestone this afternoon observers reported that vapor trails of battling aircraft were visible high over the French coast after Allied planes had dashed across the channel in the direction of Calais. At intervals squadrons of fighters scooted low across the water toward Dieppe and back and the roar of many motors merged in one dull drone.

Last night's attack, the twelfth on Germany this month, following a series of daylight attacks on Northern France and the Lowlands yesterday by R. A. F. bombers escorted by swarms of fighters, including two squadrons of the United States Air Force. The American planes helped form a protecting screen for Ventura medium bombers and Bostons which attacked the German airfields at Caen and Tricqueville, near La Havre.

On the other hand, a small number of German raiders were reported to have flown over the southeast of England during the night, dropping bombs at several places. No casualties were reported, however, and the damage was said to be light.

The Air Ministry disclosed, meanwhile, that Britain's new Hawker Typhoons—a fast and heavily-armored fighter—were now in general service, reporting they had shot down five of 14 German planes listed as shot down in attacks on Britain the day before.

The Typhoon is powered by a 24-cylinder Napier-Sabre engine which develops 2,400 horsepower and is capable of making more than 400 miles per hour.

SICILY IS BOMBED BY ALLIED PLANES

JAN 23 1943

London, Jan. 22 (A. P.).—The Italian High Command disclosed today that Allied bombers escorted by fighters had raided Sicily yesterday, raining bombs along the south coast of the island and in the interior.

Points bombed included Licata, Porto Empedocle, Gela and Castel Vetrano, according to the radio broadcast of the Rome communique recorded here. It declared the raiders did no damage.

Italian fighters rose to meet the Allied attacks and shot down a bomber and a fighter, the communique said. Anti-aircraft guns were declared to have destroyed two more Allied craft. Five Italian planes were acknowledged lost.

The communique reported Allied planes machine-gunned the railway station at Ragusa, Sicily, and attacked a supply train halted there Wednesday.

United Nations' 1943 Strategy Seen in Making

London Hints Decisions on War Council, Africa and New Attacks Are Near

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Decisions on the United Nations' 1943 world strategy are believed here to be in the making at the moment.

Topping the list are thought to be:

First—Creation of a genuine United war council including representatives of the United States, Great Britain, Soviet Russia and China.

Second—Quick settlement of the North Africa political squabble and consolidation of the British and American commands in North Africa with a view to future operations designed for the opening of a second front in Europe.

Third—Co-ordination of the efforts of all the major United Nations for simultaneous air, sea and land drives in 1943, to finish off the Axis in Europe before the end of the year if possible, or at any rate in 1944, and then turn their full power against Japan.

Fourth—A concerted campaign on the seven seas to put the Allies on the offensive in the last element in which they still are on the defensive—submarine warfare.

An unusual air of expectancy and optimism in high quarters, despite the political and military tribulations in North Africa, is causing the belief to grow in London that such comprehensive steps have been or are being taken. The trips to Washington by Admiral Harold R. Stark, commander of United States naval forces in European waters, and Ambassador John G. Winant are regarded as possibly related to these matters.

Just as conferences last year resulted in the spectacular North African landings and the recent gains of the Red Army, supplied with British and American weapons, so present negotiations are expected to show bold planning and precise co-ordination.

In the opinion of experienced observers in London, there could not be so much optimistic talk here and in the United States if there were not plans, at least, to support it.

Obviously, the Allied offensive is reaching the stage where campaigns such as the 8th Army's pursuit of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, Lieutenant General Dwight D. Eisenhower's campaign in Tunisia, and Russia's reconquest of territory cannot be regarded as isolated and unrelated. They must continue to be co-ordinated in a master plan, and stock must be taken of their progress and results.

One part of this problem of co-ordination is the question who is to command Allied forces which obviously intend to attack Europe from Britain, Africa or both. A high British authority as long ago as last summer expressed willingness to give the job to an American general, and the appointment of Eisenhower to his North African command was an immediate result.

Whether his job will be limited to its present scope, or enlarged after his intended meeting with General Sir Harold Alexander, British commander in chief in the Middle East, has been discussed widely in London, and undoubtedly is occupying the attention of responsible leaders.

ROMMEL'S STRENGTH SET AT 55,000 MEN

JAN 23 1943

LONDON, Jan. 22.—(AP) Military circles here estimate that Field Marshal Erwin Rommel had 12 divisions of Axis troops at his disposal when the British opened their offensive at El Alamein last Oct. 19.

Of these, four were German—two infantry and two armored. The Italians had two armored divisions in addition to six divisions of infantry.

A German division when at full strength consists of approximately 4,000 men, an Italian division about 10,000.

Thus Marshal Rommel is estimated to have had about 126,000 men when he began his long retreat across Egypt and Libya, but he is believed to have lost perhaps half his force in killed or captured between Alamein and Tripoli.

SOLDIER IN FLIGHT MEETS THE POPE

London, Jan. 23.—(A. P.).—A British petty officer, Albert Penny, told today of his escape from an Italian prison camp and how he took refuge in Vatican City, where he met the Pope.

Penny has been repatriated through Vatican negotiations for his exchange. He said he saw the Pope in the small throne room for a few minutes.

"He asked me about my wife and family and whether I was pleased to be going home. He gave my wife and myself his blessings and presented me with a rosary with a silver crucifix for each of us and a photograph of himself."

LONDON, Jan. 22 (AP)—Rear Admiral D. W. Boyd, who planned the aerial torpedo attack on Taranto Harbor early in the war that seriously crippled the Italian battlefleet, was named Fifth Sea Lord and appointed Chief of British Naval Air Equipment by the Admiralty today. The post of Chief of Naval Air Equipment is a new one and is thought here to have a direct bearing on probable future war tactics.

Mass Funeral Rites Set in London for School Victims. . .

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Mass funeral services will be held Wednesday for 47 children and teachers who died when German bombers wrecked a London school in a daylight raid the day before yesterday.

Six of the children died in a hospital after being removed from the debris.

Squads of 100 men each continued to work throughout last night and on into the day removing tons of rubble, but officials said they believed it unlikely there were additional bodies in the debris.

Marries a Woman He Can Look Up to

LONDON.—(AP) There's no way Pvt. Reginald Russell can get around it—he'll always have to look up to his wife. The four foot one-and-a-half inch tall soldier, smallest man in the British army, married Alannah Fulham, five foot six inch lance corporal in the Auxiliary Territorial Service.

German Press Reflects Fear of 1918 Repetition

By the Associated Press.

BERN, Switzerland, Jan. 22.—How memories of the World War are biting into German public opinion is indicated in the slogan coined by Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung in an issue received here today.

The newspaper exhorts the German people to "do the opposite of 1918."

The intimation that the war's course now is similar to that of 1918 is a suggestive psychological weapon of Germany's enemies, the Neue Zuercher Zeitung editorialized, but it added that in Nazi appeals for greater effort and greater sacrifices "one sees the ghost of 1918 appearing again."

The Basler Arbeiter Zeitung said German Propaganda Minister Goebbels "now must handle German public opinion like a raw egg lest something unpleasant happen."

Berlin Raid Dead Put at 890

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Jan. 22 (AP)—Information reaching diplomatic sources in Stockholm tonight said it was estimated that 890 Germans were killed in the R. A. F. bombing raids on Berlin last week-end. The Germans have reported a list of 110 dead, the hihgest in the capital since the war began.

Quisling Conducting a Purge

JAN 23 1943

Several of His Prominent Norse Leaders Ousted—More German Troops Moving In.

Stockholm, Jan. 22 (A. P.).—The ousting of prominent Quisling leaders from their posts in a purge of the Nasjonal Samling party was reported today in stories reaching here from Norway. Vidkun Quisling, head of the party, is conducting a gradual purge, the reports said.

First to go was Yngvar Martens, a district leader in Nordtrondelag who was said to have been removed after his brother-in-law, Herman Haufen, accused him of black market operations. Earlier Martens was reported to have accused Haufen of financing repairs to his automobile with German funds. More dismissals were reported expected in the district.

In the Skien sector, a prominent Norwegian Nazi, Alf Seeberg, was said to have been ousted as leader.

To make certain that all vacancies will be filled with politically reliable men, Quisling has directed the Department of the Interior to form a new office to control all appointments. Under Nazi pressure Quisling was said to have dismissed all the members regarded as unreliable from the board of Norway's national bank.

Cousin of Quisling Ousted.

It was also reported that a cousin of Quisling, Constable Abraham Quisling, in Skien, resigned from the Nasjonal Samling—and then paid for it by being discharged from the Norwegian Police Service.

Schools and other buildings are being requisitioned by the Germans in Norway to house troops in Oesfold, Mots, Fredrikstad and Halden, where the number of soldiers has been increasing since Christmas, other reports from Norway said. Askim and Skjeberg also are pictured as crowded with soldiers. Fredrikstad and Halden are cities on the east shore of Oslofjord, below Oslo.

Youth Movement Fought.

Between 5,000 and 6,000 members of the Norwegian Hirdman, a German-dominated military organization, were reported now receiving training from German military instructors so that they could be sent into battle in the event of an invasion.

A Norwegian underground movement is circulating leaflets appealing to parents to keep their children out of the Nasjonal Samling youth service, which is patterned after the Hitler youth movement, other reports indicated. The leaflets said children enrolled in the Vidkun Quisling youth organization would be taught "to be spies in their own homes."

Enrollment forms to be filled in by children between the ages of 10 and 18 soon will be distributed in Norway's schools, the leaflet said. It reported that the children will be expected to sign a pledge stating: "I realize that hereafter I am obliged to obey the person placed over me and that I must act in accordance with directions issued for and outside of the (youth) service."

Meanwhile, dispatches reported from Oslo that fourteen American women arrested by the Gestapo in Norway last autumn had been removed before Christmas from the Grini concentration camp near Oslo to the Liebenau interment camp in Germany near the Swiss border. Friends reported they received seasonal greeting cards which the women mailed from Liebenau.

Troop Train in Poland Reported Blown Up

Moscow, Jan. 22 (A. P.).—A Tass dispatch from Istanbul last night reported that a German troop train had been blown up at Krakow, Poland.

A cafe there frequented by Axis soldiers also was reported bombed and the explosion was said to have killed eleven and injured thirteen. Tass said that the Germans established a 6 P. M. curfew in Krakow in reprisal.

Earle Arrives in Turkey

ANKARA, Turkey, Jan. 21 (Delayed) (AP).—Lieutenant Commander George H. Earle, former Governor of Pennsylvania and Minister to Bulgaria, has arrived in Turkey to take his post as assistant naval and air attache to the American Embassy. He will be stationed at Istanbul. It was disclosed that he took part in the operations at Casablanca, Morocco, when American forces landed there in November.

American Join French In Tunisia Battle

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 22—(AP) Bolstered by American and British reinforcements, French troops have halted a twin-pronged German thrust along a mountain range running southwestward from Pont du Fahs, Gen. Henri Giraud reported tonight.

French and British troops advanced "several miles" against one column in the Oued Kebir, coming down west of the ridge, and, with American troops also poured into the fight have "stopped and partly repulsed" a stronger Nazi column to the east of the heights, a communique reported.

Seek to Control Heights

The German advances sought control of the heights to command the broad coastal plain to the east for the impending showdown battle in Tunisia. To the west they had come within two miles of Robaa, 27 miles southwest of Pont du Fahs, and on the east had threatened Ousseltia, 37 miles below Pont du Fahs, and northwest of Kairouan.

An enemy attack on French positions "dominating the approaches to Kairouan 20 miles west of the town has failed completely," the communique added.

Allied warplanes pummeled both German columns in strong attacks yesterday, and the British and American troops were rushed to the side of the ill-equipped French.

The German force coming down east of the ridge was led by 50 tanks.

French headquarters reported that the Germans had thrown 150 tanks, many of them the latest Mark Four type, into the battle area there and farther north near Bou Arada, where other British forces are fighting Germans attacking westward from Pont du Fahs. The British knocked out two Nazi tanks making an assault last night, and destroyed six tanks that lumbered to the attack yesterday.

Furious Battle Rages

In the valley running northeast from Robaa, the troops were engaged in furious fighting, a headquarters spokesman said.

U. S. fighter and bomber squadrons yesterday carried out the most widespread and effective operations in recent days, spokesmen reported, machinegunning and bombing the German columns, attacking shipping, engaging Nazi planes in the air, and punishing large motor convoys on the coastal road along which Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's battered Africa corps seeks to withdraw from Tripolitania.

American planes destroyed 10 Axis aircraft, and "well over" 65 enemy motor vehicles in their sweeps, losing only three aircraft themselves.

At Pont du Fahs, B-25's escorted by P-38's blasted away the main portion of the road north of that town which is vital to the Germans in reinforcing their forces to the southwest. Other bombs hit a near-by railroad bridge.

B-26 bombers accompanied by P-38's sank one medium-sized freighter and strafed another between Tunisia and Sicily, shot down two tri-motored Italian bombers and downed three out of a group of Messerschmitt 109's which jumped them.

One sweep by heavily-gunned Lightning fighters destroyed about 65 Axis motor vehicles about 15 miles west of Ben Garane, and P-38's shot up about 20 trucks along the road between Gabes and Ben Gardane. The American planes came in so low on this attack that one hit a telephone pole, but flew home safely despite a damaged wing.

A-20 bombers joined by P-40 fighters and American-manned Spitfires strafed German tanks and trucks east of Ousseltia, leaving three fires burning in the target area.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 22 (AP).—American fighter and bomber squadrons carried out yesterday their most widespread and effective operations in recent days, spokesmen here reported today, machine-gunning and bombing German columns, attacking shipping, engaging Nazi planes and pounding large motor convoys on the coastal road along which German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's battered Afrika Korps seeks to withdraw from Tripolitania.

American planes destroyed ten Axis aircraft and "well over" sixty-five enemy motor vehicles in their sweeps, losing only three aircraft themselves.

Axis Tunisia Column Fought to a Standstill

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Jan. 22 (AP)—A German tank column driving along the eastern side of a mountain chain southwestward from Pont du Fahs threatens the town of Ousseltia, but its mate in a valley to the west has been fought to a standstill during a savage counter-attack by Allied aerial squadrons and ground troops, spokesmen said today.

The Nazi detachment which was reported yesterday to have reached a point only two miles from Robaa, 27 miles southwest of Pont du Fahs, was only a light formation, a spokesman said, and it was reported heavily punished.

Allied warplanes, fighters and light and medium bombers were concentrated for attacks to help out the French troops standing before both prongs of the dual thrust by which the Germans hope to win command of the mountains.

Get 10 Planes, One Ship

American fighters and bombers destroyed 10 enemy planes yesterday, sank a medium-sized freighter and wrecked more than 65 Axis motor vehicles, officer said.

The French reported that the Germans' eastern column striking toward Ousseltia, which lies 37 miles below Pont du Fahs and 20 miles southeast of Robaa, was paced by about 50 tanks. Approximately 150 Nazi tanks, including many of the latest Mark Fours, were said to be in action in the Pont du Fahs-Kairouant sector.

A communique reported, however, that Allied troops in the British-held Bou Arada-Goubellat area west of Pont du Fahs had destroyed 17 Axis tanks and shot down seven JU-87 dive-bombers.

German and Italian aerial thrusts against Allied bases were declared to have cost the Axis five bombers last night. At Algiers the attacking force was small and property damage was slight, it was announced.

Great Fires Blazing in Tripoli

CAIRO, Jan. 22 (AP).—The main remnants of the Axis Africa armies were reported tonight to have retreated into Tunisia, leaving great demolition fires burning at Tripoli. Royal Air Force pilots returning from Tripoli said great columns of smoke were rising from the port city, indicating the enemy was carrying out extensive demolitions.

The British 8th Army, advancing over difficult terrain, was moving ever nearer to Italy's last colonial port, and all indications were that the enemy was withdrawing except for small rear-guard resistance parties.

Pilots said that while the city remained intact, the Axis forces apparently were attempting to destroy all installations that might be useful to the Allies.

'ON TO TRIPOLI' CRY LAUNCHED ATTACK

Gen. Montgomery's Orders of the Day Spurred British in Last 200 Miles.

By EDWARD KENNEDY

CAIRO, Jan. 23 — (Delayed) — (AP) The British Eighth army's final drive to clean up Tripolitania began at dawn Jan. 15 with General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's war cry: "On to Tripoli!"

His order of the day was read to the troops huddled together in small groups just before they attacked. It said:

"Leading units of the Eighth army are now only about 200 miles from Tripoli. The Eighth army is going to Tripoli.

"Tripoli is the only town in the Italian overseas empire still remaining in their possession. Therefore we will take it from them; they will then have no empire.

"If each one of us, whether frontline soldier or officer or man whose duty is performed in some other sphere, puts his whole heart and soul into this next contest, then nothing can stop us. Nothing has stopped us since the battle of Egypt began Oct. 23. Nothing will stop us now.

"Some must be back to begin with but we will all be in the hunt eventually.

"Our families and friends in the home country will be proud when they have heard we have captured this place."

Planes Stop Enemy Ploughing Airfields

CAIRO, Jan. 22. (AP)—Pilots returning [illegible] Libyan air bases have brought an odd phrase into their reports of warfare today: "All ploughs put out of action."

They had found enemy forces ploughing up the airfield and runways of the Castel Benito airdrome just outside of Tripoli and, figuring on using such facilities in the immediate future, they put a stop to the operations.

In air combats three Macchi 202s and three Junkers 87s were destroyed.

NEW RAIDS ON BURMA

New Delhi, Jan. 22 (A. P.).—Japanese fighter planes kept at a safe distance as R. A. F. bombers and fighters swept over western Burma yesterday on another of their daily raids, blasting at enemy positions between Akyab and Rathedaung, a British communique announced today.

Although enemy planes were aloft, the communique said, they made no attempt to interfere as Blenheim bombers, escorted by fighters, made three separate forays along the shores of the Bay of Bengal. The fighters followed up the bombing with low-level machine-gun attacks, but still the enemy planes did not offer combat, the bulletin added.

All the British planes were reported to have returned safely.

BULLETIN.

A lone Japanese plane bombed the American base island of Espiritu Santo in the Solomons Thursday, the Navy reported today, in the first enemy air action directed against that New Hebrides operations center.

By the Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Jan. 22.—One of the four pockets of resistance still held by the Japanese in the Sanananda sector of New Guinea has been liquidated, the Allied high command reported today.

One hundred and fifty Japs were slain in this operation. The pocket was about 700 yards in from the beach near Sanananda road.

The fighting is seriously hampered by 10 inches of rain, falling in a single day, but the troops slogged on for the kill.

12 Jap Planes Downed.

The air forces, meanwhile, in widespread action reported an overwhelming victory in an hour's running battle with 25 Japanese planes over Wewak, New Guinea, and ranged over Rabaul and Ambon Island in attacks on enemy shipping, hitting a Japanese cruiser and a merchant ship in an Ambon Island harbor, northwest of Australia.

Four Allied bombers encountered a covey of 25 enemy fighters over the north coast of New Guinea, near the port of Wewak. In the ensuing clash they reported 12 of the fighters were shot down and 6 damaged. The bombers returned to their base, headquarters reported.

Other bombers damaged at least two large merchant ships and attacked the airdrome in a smashing, mast-high moonlight attack on Rabaul. The airdrome at Gasmata, in Southern New Britain, also was bombed.

The Ambon mission reported it shot down two and damaged others of a flight of 20 Japanese fighter planes which attempted interception.

Then it bombed the Japanese cruiser, leaving her listing and smoking, and scored a direct hit on a 5,000-ton merchant ship, it reported.

Suffer No Loss.

All of the Allied planes returned from the raid, the communique added.

The Japanese airdrome at Lae was raided by medium bombers.

The Japanese sent two raiding parties over Milne Bay, a night attack of nine enemy bombers and a later high-altitude bombing by three planes which did slight damage to the airdrome, headquarters said.

Two Japanese planes that ventured over the port of Darwin in a night raid dropped bombs harmlessly in the bush and interceptors probably destroyed one of the inquarters was reported.

Fierce Battle Over Wewak.

Somewhere in New Guinea, Jan. 20 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Two dozen or more Japanese fighter planes were reduced to a mere six undamaged craft after they tangled with American heavy bombers today, despite the enemy use of a kind of aerial control tower technic.

A silver Zero hovered a thousand feet above the scene of the air battle directing the other Jap planes, American pilots reported. The silver Zero never gave up its press-box view to take part in the fight, the Americans said. The encounter took place over the ocean off Wewak. After an hour of fighting twelve Zeros had been shot down and six damaged. Some of the American bombers were damaged, but no crew member was injured.

The air battle, one of the most intense the war has developed in this area, started with a flank attack by the Zeros. It took place at altitudes ranging from 2,000 to 9,000 feet.

Olsen Saved the Day.

A ship piloted by Lieut. Frank Dowie of Des Moines, Iowa, shot down four Zeros and damaged one to become high scorer for the day. The bomber's wings, bomb bay and nose were badly battered, however, and it came home on three motors. Lieut. Roy Olsen of Cedar Falls, Iowa, piloted a plane which destroyed three Zeros and damaged one.

Lieut. Samuel Lumpkin, who is on leave as Speaker of the Mississippi House of Representatives serving as an Intelligence officer, said the Liberators fired many thousands of rounds of ammunition.

Staff Sergt. Robert Frantz of St. Clair, Pa., the tail gunner in Lieut. Dowie's ship, bounded out of his plane the moment it rolled to a stop, yelling, "Where is that guy Olsen? I want to thank him. The Japs shot out our tail turret and one engine. I was unable to fire at the Zero coming straight for us when Olsen came in and covered the tail. He saved my life, that's all."

Dowie's Box Score.

In Lieut. Dowie's plane Sergt. Frantz and Sergt. John Filip of Lubbock, Tex., and Corporal Clyde Daniel of Shreveport, La., were credited with shooting down one Zero each. Sergt. Filip said the radio operator on his plane confirmed that the Zero he hit fell into the sea.

Lieut. Dowie's nose gunners shared one plane destroyed and one damaged. They were Lieut. Matthew Saltysiak of Providence, R. I., navigator, and Sergt. Jack Coogan of Madison, N. J., bombardier. It was the second time they had shot down a Zero by joint action.

In Faulkner's plane Sergt. Peter Abromovich of Barnesboro, Pa., the nose gunner, and Sergt. William Fitzpatrick of Bradwood, Ill., the tail gunner, each got a Zero. Said Fitzpatrick, "I have been sitting in the tail on many missions against the Japs and never before has one come so close that I could have hit him with a hammer."

ALLIES OVERCOME JAP RESISTANCE IN SANANANDA AREA

Papuan Campaign Ends with Overwhelming Victory for U. S., Aussie Forces.

Bombers Smash Enemy Concentration in Night Raid on Rabaul Harbor.

By TOM YARBROUGH

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Saturday, Jan. 23—(AP) Exactly six months after the Japanese began their Papuan campaign with a landing at Gona, New Guinea, Allied forces practically ended it yesterday by shattering the last organized resistance around Sanananda point.

Seven hundred and twenty-five bodies have been counted and the counting continued.

First Complete Victory

Thus Papua became the first complete geographical unit to be won back from the Japanese. It consists of about 90,000 square miles and has a population of about 300,000, mostly dark-skinned natives.

The only activity left around Sanananda is the stealthy pursuit of thinly scattered Japanese troops, wandering through dense jungle. The majority of the Japs killed in yesterday's push were in a pocket about 2,500 yards from the beach on the water-soaked Sanananda road.

Equipment Captured

Considerable equipment was captured, including field guns, trucks and ammunition.

Striking at a large concentration of ships in the harbor at Rabaul, New Britain, four-engined bombers flew through a high altitude snowstorm, then dropped as low as 150 feet to sink four vessels totalling 24,000 tons. Direct hits were scored while the planes were in the midst of the strong anti-aircraft fire and many searchlights.

Weather on the Rabaul run caused considerable trouble. The big planes, which are hard to manage in tricky weather, encountered thunderstorms, snow, thick cumulus clouds and icing conditions.

Furthermore, the anti-aircraft fire and usage of searchlights have increased at Rabaul as shipping concentrations grew there.

Allied planes again hit Lae and Salamaua and the Japs called a Merauke, Darwin and Milne bay with no damage resulting.

The Allied triumph announced today as the climax of a series of maneuvers which rolled the Japs back over the mountains and caused them to surrender in turn Gona and then Buna from which their drive across the mountains began last July.

Yanks, Aussies in Action

American and Australian troops carried on this brilliant offensive, while Allied planes blasted attempts of the Japs to send reinforcements from nearby island bases.

Four Jap ships went down at Rabaul, whose harbor bottom already held the hulks of many other vessels sunk in repeated raids by Gen. MacArthur's bombers.

"In a pre-dawn attack our bombers struck heavily at shipping in the harbor," the communique said of the new raid.

"In an extremely low level strike, four ships of an aggregate tonnage of 24,000 tons were destroyed. Direct hits on a 4,000 ton cargo ship split and sank the vessel within four minutes. An 8,000 ton transport was left burning as a result of two direct hits and later was seen to explode.

Three Direct Hits

"A 4,000 ton vessel with a lighter moored alongside was hit and sank within 12 minutes while another 8,000 ton vessel received three direct hits and was left burning with a series of explosions. Two searchlights were extinguished by strafing. All our planes returned safely."

The Allied ground victory, adding up to one of the greatest achieved against Japan in the south Pacific, was recorded in its final action in these words:

"Sanananda: All organized enemy resistance has been overcome. Mopping up is in progress. Seven hundred twenty-five enemy dead have been found in addition to those previously reported with many more yet to be counted. (Yesterday's communique had reported the slaying of 150 Japs.) An inconsiderable quantity of enemy material an dequipment has been captured, including field guns, trucks and ammunition."

Rabaul Gets Heavy Raid.

Somewhere in New Guinea, Jan. 21 (Delayed) (A. P.).—In one of the most widespread night raids ever staged over New Britain, a large force of Flying Fortresses bombed Japanese shipping in Rabaul Harbor and attacked three airports in the Rabaul area early today.

Bombs hit on or near a 2,000-ton merchant vessel and a 6,000-ton ship, rocking them violently, possibly damaged another 6,000-ton vessel, and destroyed war material around the airdromes, officers said.

'Inscrutable' Japs Wax Merry, Slangy As U. S. Prisoners

Sullenness Yields to Good Food, Cigarettes; 'Murder' Swing Tunes

JAN 23 1943

(The following story was written by Samuel Shaffer of Washington, a Marine Corps combat correspondent, and distributed by the Associated Press.)

SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, January 9 (Delayed).—Behind barbed-wire entanglements at this Marine Corps base is the largest concentration of Japanese war prisoners in the world.

To the visitor able to gain admittance, this prison camp provides a liberal education in the upsetting of firmly-held beliefs about the inscrutable Japanese.

Enemy officers, enlisted men and laborers captured at Guadalcanal by Marines—those I have seen—are anything but resigned and sullen prisoners of war, who brood about the misery of their lot, as they are pictured in many reports I have read.

Becomes Happy-Go-Lucky.

Once over his astonishment at being treated like a human being and given more food than he has probably had for some time, the Jap undergoes a rapid readjustment. Often he becomes a happy-go-lucky prisoner with a passion for horseplay, cigarettes, American slang and swing tunes.

Imagine Tojo's discomfort if he knew that his warriors were calling each other "Hachi Maru," which is Japanese for "8-ball."

This started recently when two Marines visited the camp to polish up the Japanese they had studied. One Leatherneck called the other an "8-ball."

A prisoner, who possessed a smattering of English, asked what that meant. When it was laboriously explained, a smile wreathed his puckered features. He said: "Hachi Maru." Within an hour, these words were on the tongue of every prisoner.

Nor would Tojo appreciate the sentiments displayed by another prisoner, when some one mentioned Germany in his presence. With thumb and forefinger of his left hand he gripped his nose firmly, while the right hand shot forward in a Hitlerian salute.

The Jap soldier or sailor knows far less about the war than any man in the uniform of the United Nations. Officers are astounded by the state of general ignorance of world events in which the Japs have been kept.

Tents Scrupulously Clean.

Eight-man tents, which they keep scrupulously clean, house the prisoners. Reville is at 6 a.m., rollcall at 6:30, breakfast at 7, lunch at noon, supper at 5:30 p.m., another rollcall at 6 and taps at 8.

Each prisoner is allotted five native cigarettes daily but they would gladly trade them all for one American. Their taste for things American doesn't stop there. Their favorite expression is "O. K." And their favorite tunes American swing.

Most popular number at present is "My Blue Heaven," usually sung in a manner which would torture the composer if he could hear it.

Argentine Outburst Curbed

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Jan. 22 (AP)—Three persons were arrested in front of the Chilean embassy tonight for shouting "Long Live Chile! Down with Fascism!" All were Argentine citizens.

Spy Ring Reported Working in Argentina

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Jan. 22. (AP)—A memorandum charging a vast spy ring is operating in Argentina, directed and financed by the German embassy at Buenos Aires and taking its instructions from the Nazi High Command, was published today by the Inter-American Committee for Political Defense.

The report—submitted by the United States—said the ring's operations affected 11 American republics, that its top men acted under diplomatic immunity, and that it sent to Berlin information on ship movements, U. S. troop transfers, airplane routes from Natal in Barzil to North Africa, and even facts on U. S. plane production.

The committee voted five-to-one for publication, with Argentina voting in the negative and Chile abstaining, thus returning the favor to Argentina which had abstained from the vote two months ago to publish a similar memorandum on spy activities in Chile.

Cuban Sugar Heads Reject U. S. Purchase Terms

By the Associated Press

JAN 23 1943

HAVANA, Jan. 22—A general assembly of the National Association of Sugar Growers approved last night a motion to reject United States terms for purchase of 2,600,000 tons of Cuban sugar this year and shortly afterward issued a manifesto charging Washington with seeking to strangle the Cuban industry.

The assembly directed its Board of Directors to continue negotiations with the United States to obtain better terms, or, if the negotiations should fail, to seek financing of the 1943 sugar crop in the United States and Cuba.

In the manifesto, addressed to the people of Cuba, the sugar growers said the island's sugar production was increased to maximum capacity last year "due to the express desires of the Washington administration." Now, it alleged, Washington seeks to [illegible] the Cuban industry by recommending that Cuba undertake an agricultural diversification program.

It charged that diversification for Cuba was proposed while the United States stimulated increased sugar production in its own territories.

SOME CANADIANS TO RECEIVE TIRES

Ottawa, Jan. 22 (A. P.).—Beginning next month a limited number of tires being manufactured in Canada under a new process from reclaimed rubber will be rationed for a selected list of motor vehicles, the Munitions Department announced today.

"But the ordinary motorist will have to wait until the war is over before any type of rubber, whether crude, reclaim or synthetic, can be released to make his tires," said Alan H. Williamson, the rubber controller.

Vehicles for which permits for buying the new reclaim tires will be issued include, in descending order of priority:

1. Passenger cars owned by plant employees who drive fellow workers to and from work under the wartime industrial transit plan.
2. Taxis and drive-yourself cars.
3. Cars owned by mail carriers.
4. Cars owned by farmers who transport their produce and supplies and do not own a truck.

Under the tire-rationing regulations owners of these vehicles are not permitted to buy new tires made from crude.

The prices board issued an order, effective immediately, bringing under price control several varieties of fish hitherto exempt from the price ceiling.

The order, limiting the markups of wholesalers and retailers, applies to lobsters, oysters, clams, crabs, shrimps, scallops, winkles, codfish (eastern and western), herring (including sardines), haddock, smelts, mackerel, hake, halibut, and all fresh-water fish except salmon and other fish which inhabit fresh water only temporarily.

11,000 Lost By Japs On Guadalcanal

Marine Officer Says Only 4,000 Left in Enemy Force.

By John M. Hightower

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (AP)—Japan has lost more than 11,000 men in the land fighting on Guadalcanal Island, a Marine officer fresh from the battlefront reported today, and the remaining enemy force of less than 4,000 is so weak that it probably could be smashed entirely in 10 days by a full-scale American offensive.

"Of course, I can't say what the plans of the commanding general down there now are," declared Lieutenant Colonel Lewis B. Puller, "but I believe that in a 10-day operation using the available men there, we could clean the Japanese out."

Tanned and rugged in appearance, although he was wounded seven times in a single battle last November 8, Colonel Puller gave a first-hand account of the American fighting for control of the strategic Solomon Islands in an informal press conference at the Navy Department. He left Guadalcanal January 1.

Airfield Big Prize

The airfield, which was the great prize the United States captured when Marines invaded the southeastern Solomons last August, has been expanded so that it can now handle our heaviest and fastest bombers, he said, and new flight strips have been built.

The Army was taking over, under command of Major General Alexander M. Patch, [illegible] when Puller left and he said it was his understanding that all Marines were to be withdrawn. His own regiment, [illegible] Commanded [illegible] who withdrew [illegible] now really [illegible] they wanted to get [illegible] he said.

He praised the quality and fighting spirit of [illegible] when they went into the battle before the last. One force was composed of [illegible] from the Dakotas, and Puller said they were "a very good force, indeed, and I would be happy to command more like them."

Ground Forces Surprised

Some hours before Puller was interviewed the Navy released a communique on latest developments in the Solomons fighting, reporting that ground forces on Guadalcanal were "mopping up pockets of enemy resistance" and on Thursday had made small advances in some sectors.

In the air, the communique said, American aircraft had made harassing raids on Ballale Island, about 300 nautical miles northwest of Guadalcanal Airfield, but results were not observed. The Japanese, meanwhile, sent a lone plane against Espiritu Santo, an American base in the New Hebrides Islands, and several bombs were dropped but did no damage nor injury to personnel, the communique said.

Other enemy planes, in a series of single raids, bombed the American position on Guadalcanal on Thursday night. They caused minor damages to installations, killed three Americans and wounded one, and lost one plane to anti-aircraft fire, the announcement asserted.

Col. Puller, whose home is in Saluda, Va., where his wife and small daughter live, estimated that the original Japanese force on Guadalcanal, plus reinforcements, probably totalled about 15,000 men.

Of those, he said 7,000 had been killed in combat by the time he left, an estimated 3,000 had died of wounds and 5,000 were left. The 5,000 he divided into two groups: 3,000 effectives, armed and organized for strong resistance; 2,000 stragglers, poorly armed when they had arms at all, and scattered through the jungles and mountain fastnesses of the island.

The colonel applied to those figures the Navy report of last Wednesday that 1,032 Japs had been killed in the previous five days fighting and thereby arrived at the estimate of less than 4,000 Japs now on the island.

Since the Navy report may have included some "stragglers," the present strength of effectives could only be stated as between 2,000 and 3,000. The last reinforcements which the Japs are known to have received reached Guadalcanal early in November and landed east of the American airfield. [illegible] forces were then, and [illegible] the end of the [illegible]

Puller led [illegible] by the [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] of [illegible] taking [illegible] 1,500 men, of the eastern landing party. He said the objective was fully achieved. About half of the 1,500 were killed and the rest forced to withdraw, by platoons or companies, to join the main forces of the west.

Puller, a soft-voiced Virginian with a ready smile, was wounded in this fighting. While he said nothing at the press conference, the Marine combat correspondent had previously related the story of what happened.

When dead and wounded were being removed, the correspondent reported, the doctor pinned a casualty tag on Puller, and suggested that he be removed from the field. There were blood-soaked bandages on his arm, leg and foot.

"Evacuate me, hell!" he said. 'Take that tag and label a bottle with it. I will remain in command."

QUITS MARTINIQUE TO FIGHT THE AXIS

Washington, Jan. 22 (A. P.).—Fighting French headquarters here announced today that Major R. Sarrat, commander of the French garrison on Martinique, had "escaped" from that Caribbean island and joined the Fighting French forces. The announcement quoted Major Sarrat as saying that since the American landings in North Africa the bulk of the French population of Martinique has been openly hostile to the Vichy government.

It said that Major Sarrat and other volunteers recently arrived from Martinique related that a petition signed by several hundred persons was submitted to Admiral Georges Robert, the French High Commissioner, urging the re-entry of the French Caribbean possessions into the fight against the Axis. The United States does not recognize Martinique as a Vichy possession but deals directly with Admiral Robert as the "ultimate French authority" in the Caribbean.

An agreement has been concluded with him which, the State Department explained recently, safeguards American interests against Axis intrigue or surprise moves involving French Western Hemisphere possessions.

2 Navy Planes, Carrying 25, Are Overdue

Seaplane From Pearl Harbor Last Seen Near San Francisco

JAN 23 1943

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (AP)—The Navy reported today that a transport seaplane, with 19 persons aboard, was overdue on a flight from Pearl Harbor to San Francisco.

No report from the big plane had been received since early Thursday morning when it circled in the vicinity of San Francisco, the Navy said.

The Navy also reported tonight that one of its twin-engined cargo transport land-type planes was overdue after taking off at 5:40 p. m., Pacific War Time, yesterday from Winslow, Ariz, for San Francisco, Calif. Aboard the cargo plane were three officers and three enlisted men, cargo and mail.

At Flagstaff, Ariz., Sheriff Peery Francis, after a day-long investigation, said he was certain the twin-engined Navy transport plane had come to rest somewhere in Schultz pass, which grooves the 13,000-foot San Francisco peaks and 10,000-foot Mt. Elden, north of Flagstaff.

Navy Announcement

The announcement of the missing seaplane said:

"A large transport seaplane, operating for the Naval Air Transport Service, is now more than 24 hours overdue on a flight from Pearl Harbor to San Francisco.

There has been no radio contact with the plane since early yesterday morning when it circled the vicinity of San Francisco. Fog and bad weather prevented a landing in the area at that time.

"A search of wide land and sea areas has failed as yet to reveal any sign of the transport.

"A crew of nine, and ten naval officer passengers were aboard the plane."

In the absence of definite information as to the fate of the craft, the Navy declined to give out any information regarding the identity of those aboard or to give any details about the flight or the plane itself except to say that it was a four-engined seaplane.

Search Started

At San Francisco, Vice Admiral John W. Greenslade, U. S. N., commander of the Western Sea Frontier, said a widespread search by Army and Navy planes was under way in efforts to locate the missing plane.

The search extended far to sea and inland to the foothills of the Sierra Nevada mountains.

Admiral Greenslade said the search would be continued, with additional planes scanning the area when weather conditions were favorable.

He issued the following statement:

"Upon being notified by the authorities that an aircraft was overdue bound from Pearl Harbor to San Francisco, he (Greenslade) immediately instituted a search by surface craft and aircraft to endeavor to cover all possible areas wherein the ship could have landed.

"Surface craft available and all aircraft under the Western Sea Frontier, ably assisted by Army aupthorities, are searching from Monterey Bay to Eureka, and 225 miles to the west of San Francisco.

"In addition the Army has searched the same general area up to the foothills of the Sierra Nevada mountains. This search, up to the time of this release, has not located the missing ship.

"The surface search will be continued. Additional air searches will be carried out when weather conditions are favorable.

"The surface and aircraft of the Northwestern Sea Frontier are cooperating in this search."

MARINE REFUTES CHARGE AGAINST CIVILIAN CREW

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—(AP) A published story that Marines at Guadalcanal had to unload their own supplies because a merchant ship crew contended Sunday work would violate union rules brought from a Marine officer today a statement that "they've had no difficulties of this nature in the Solomons."

The Akron, Ohio, Beacon Journal in a copyrighted story, quoted six veterans of the Guadalcanal action, on individual visits to Akron, as saying the crew refused to unload a merchant ship because of National Maritime union rules against working on Sunday. The crew had worked two hours on a Saturday and then laid off until Monday, the veterans said.

At Washington, Lieutenant Colonel Lewis B. Fuller, of the Marines, who left the Solomons early this month, told a press conference:

"All the ships are unloaded as a matter of routine by the soldiers, sailors or marines. Even those brought in by merchant seamen—of which there are a very few, because most of the ships are transports—are unloaded by soldiers, sailors or marines."

NAVY DRAFT TO START

Washington, Jan. 22 (A. P.).—The first Navy draftee of this war, or the first Marine or Coast Guard draftee for that matter, appears destined to go unrecognized as such. Selective Service headquarters and the Navy said today that they believed that there would be no way of determining just who the first man was, since great numbers would be taken in at many places in the same manner at the same time.

An explanation of how the all-service draft will work is expected shortly. The Navy and Marines are now meeting their requirements with men who volunteer through their draft boards for induction into those services.

The new program is expected to go into operation about February 1, as originally planned.

PELHAM MAN NAMED AS HERO IN SINKING

Lieut. K. H. Muir Sought to Save His Gun Crew When Ship Was Torpedoed

WENT DOWN WITH VESSEL

JAN 23 1943

Navy Cross Award Is Made for Officer Who Also Had Treated Men When They Were Ill

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (AP)—Lieutenant (J. G.) Kenneth H. Muir of Pelham, N. Y., has been awarded a Navy Cross for heroism shown as commanding officer of a gun crew on a merchant vessel torpedoed and sunk by an enemy submarine off the northern coast of South America in December.

The killed or missing on the ship totaled thirty-nine.

Lieutenant Muir attended several members of the crew when they became ill on the voyage before the attack. When the attack came the ship was hit by two torpedoes and remained afloat only a few minutes.

Rex W. Wisley, a member of the crew, from Glendale, Calif., said that in the few moments of action "Muir rushed three men to the stern and made them leap clear, then he went back for more."

"We couldn't hear what he said," Whaley continued, "but he was urging them to leap. He was wounded and must have been in great pain, too. But he did not leave his crew.

"I was going to join the Marines soon, but if I can meet and serve with guys like Lieutenant Muir in the merchant marine I'm going to stay in it."

The citation accompanying Lieutenant Muir's Navy Cross said that "he was still urging his gunners over the side (of the ship) when the ship went down."

NAVY CASUALTY LIST CONTAINS 95 NAMES

Ten From This Area Included as Missing or Wounded

JAN 23 1943

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (AP)—The Navy Department announced today ninety-five casualties, including eighteen dead, thirty-seven wounded and forty missing.

This brought to 21,629 the total of Navy, Marine and Coast Guard casualties reported to next of kin since Dec. 7, 1941. The grand total includes 6,386 dead, 3,900 wounded and 11,343 missing.

after two days of exhorting the troops to fight, said the Russians were attacking from all sides.

The communique broadcast by Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press yesterday, said the Russians broke the west wall before Stalingrad and "are storming with far superior forces." They claimed large numbers of Soviet tanks were destroyed.

Admitting reverses in the Caucasus as well, the communique said:

"In the eastern Caucasus, German troops detached themselves from the enemy according to plan in the course of mobile fighting."

"Heavy and varying fighting" was reported on the middle Don. Fierce Russian attacks south of Lake Ladoga in the Leningrad area were said to have broken down. Local Russian attacks were reported to have failed southeast of Lake Ilmen and at Velikie Luki, where 18 tanks were reported shattered.

Along the entire southern sector of the Russian front, the Germans said they repulsed the Russians who "attempted to break through."

Russian accounts say the trapped Sixth German army of Gen. Freidrich Paulus before Stalingrad originally consisted of 22 divisions of 220,000 men who have been reduced to less than 50,000, ill-clad and existing on scraps of food.

GERMAN RETREAT NEAR STALINGRAD ADMITTED BY NAZIS

Gloomy Communique Dwells on Superiority in Numbers Held by Reds.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

In their gloomiest communique of the war, the German High Command reported yesterday that Nazi troops encircled near Stalingrad were forced back several kilometers by a Russian break-through from the west and tacitly admitted a retreat in the Caucasus.

The plight of the "Stalingrad defenders" was acknowledged about ten days ago when the Germans

American Baseball Banned in Japan as Unsportsmanlike

By the Associated Press.

Educational authorities in Aichi prefecture of Japan have abolished baseball as a means of putting an end to "hardly sportsmanlike" customs introduced from America, it was reported today in a Tokio dispatch broadcast by the Berlin radio and recorded by the Associated Press.

Nagoya, one of Japan's great industrial cities and a hotbed of baseball, is in Aichi prefecture. Nagoya college and semipro teams have been among the best in Japan.

"The educational department thereby hopes to put an end to hardly sportsmanlike customs which had come from America, as for instance preferential treatment accorded to members of such baseball teams by university authorities," the Berlin broadcast said.

JAP SHIP LOSS BIG IN ALASKA

JAN 23 1943

65,000 Tons Hit in 2 Weeks After Dutch Harbor.

San Diego, Cal., Jan. 22 (AP)—Navy flyers making missions in which every flight was described today by their wing commander as one the crew should not have returned from, sank or damaged 65,000 tons of Japanese shipping in two weeks after the Dutch Harbor attack.

"Every man knew this and yet none wavered," said Capt. Leslie E. Gehres of Coronado, Cal., commander of Patrol Wing Four. Twenty-five officers of the wing were awarded decorations by President Roosevelt.

Capt. Gehres mentioned the tenacity and bravery of Lieut. Lucius D. Campbell of Seattle, Wash., as typical. Lieut. Campbell, flying in a snowstorm over the bleak Alaskan waters, located a heavy enemy fleet concentration.

"He maintained contact until his ship, riddled by Japanese bullets, was forced down at sea," the Captain related. "He received the Navy Cross for his action."

Capt. Gehres's command maintained constant patrol over thousands of miles of cold Alaskan waters. Returning to bases knee deep in mud only long enough to refuel and rearm, the American flyer, constantly confronting adverse weather, kept accurate tab on Jap positions and strength.

Flew in Catalinas.

The flyers used Consolidated Aircraft Catalina patrol bombers. Gehres said the Jap invasion force at Kiska was bombed for three days through sheets of anti-aircraft fire. Also included in the wing's list of destruction were many Jap aircraft, a radio station and an ammunition dump.

The many tons of shipping sunk or damaged included direct hits on a large transport, a destroyer, and three cruisers in addition to many near misses.

Many members of the wing had been in Alaska only a few days before the Japs attacked. Ground and plane crews stood long watches which Capt. Gehres said were relieved only by the frigid, bleak beauty of the aurora borealis.

"Men worked until they dropped from exhaustion," he related. "The entire crew of one seaplane tender once labored without rest for thirty-six hours to service and refuel the Catalinas. Often men would wade up to their waists in the icy water to steer the big boats into their ramps."

Fought Until Fuel Was Gone.

Lieut.-Commander Charles E. Perkins of Wendell, N. C., also was cited by the captain for heroic flying. Capt. Gehres said that Commander Perkins piloted an isolated patrol bomber which despite difficulties, transmitted vital information on the enemy's strength and position. Commander Perkins also received the Navy cross.

"The flyers many times fought and patrolled until their fuel was gone, knowing they would be forced down at sea, but they were unwilling to break off contact with the enemy."

THREE MEN KILLED AS VESSEL IS SUNK

38 Survive Torpedo Attack Off Coast of South America.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 22 — (AP) Three men were killed when a medium-sized United Nations merchantman was torpedoed late in December off the coast of South America, it was learned when 38 survivors of the attack were landed here.

The three victims were in the engine room at the time of the attack, the others reported. The ship sank in short time after the torpedoing.

The survivors, who took to two lifeboats, were picked up soon after by a small fishing boat. Later they were transferred to an American vessel and landed at a Caribbean port.

Marines Accuse Union Crew

Charge Merchant Seamen Refused to Unload Ship at Guadalcanal on Sunday.

JAN 23 1943

Akron, Ohio, Jan. 22 (A. P.).—The Beacon Journal says in a copyrighted story that the Navy is investigating reports that ailing Marines were forced to unload their own supplies when the crew of a merchant ship lying off beleaguered Guadalcanal refused to work on Sunday because of union regulations.

The Beacon Journal's story published in yesterday's editions, quoted six Guadalcanal veterans as declaring that the marines had to take over the Sunday work after the crew had worked two hours on Saturday and then laid off until Monday morning.

The newspaper did not disclose the identity of the veterans, but said that the information came from three marines, two sailors and a Navy pilot on individual visits to Akron.

The Navy pilot, the paper said, termed the incident the worst scandal of the war and said that the crew refused to unload supplies because of National Maritime Union rules against working on Sunday.

The paper said that the veterans' stories had been put up to naval officials in Washington for confirmation or denial.

"Confirmation has come," it added, "from a high official source in Washington, who though he witnessed these conditions during his service in Guadalcanal, must necesssarily remain anonymous."

The copyrighted story was cleared for publication by the Office of Censorship, the Beacon Journal said.

Marine Tells Story.

The story quoted one Marine as saying that the reason "the supplies were not landed was not because the crew couldn't get them in. The landing boats could have got in, all right.

"There was no opposition from the Japs. We had the landing covered."

One of the sailor informants said that the Marines unloaded the supplies because part of the cargo was much needed food.

"During the first weeks of action, the boys didn't have enough supplies," he was quoted as saying. "Food was short and so were medical supplies. For a time all the food we got was rice we captured from the Japs.

"Our boys weren't interested in waiting over Sunday to get the food that lay just off shore. They just went after it."

LONDON, [illegible] FRENCH TROOPS BEAT OFF FRESH GERMAN ATTACKS ON THE CENTRAL TUNISIAN FRONT SOUTHWEST OF PONT DU FAHS YESTERDAY BUT THE NAZIS GAINED SOME GROUND FARTHER SOUTH IN THE KAIROUAN SECTOR, A FRENCH COMMUNIQUE BROADCAST BY THE MOROCCO RADIO REPORTED TODAY.

HEAVY LOSSES WERE INFLICTED ON THE GERMANS IN THEIR DRIVE SOUTHWEST OF PONT DU FAHS AND IN ATTACKS IN THE NEARBY VALLEY OF KEBIR RIVER, THE ANNOUNCEMENT ADDED.

JAN 23 1943

INDICATING THE MOUNTING INTENSITY OF THE FIGHTING IN BOTH THE PONT DU FAHS AND KAIROUAN SECTORS THE COMMUNIQUE SAID:

"IT HAS BEEN CONFIRMED THAT THE ENEMY HAS ENEGAGED VERY CONSIDERABLE FORCES IN THE BATTLE WHICH HAS BEEN GOING ON FOR THREE DAYS. FIGHTING IS CONTINUING ON THE WHOLE SECTOR OF THIS FRONT."

THE MAIN GERMAN ATTACKS YESTERDAY, THE BULLETIN DECLARED, WERE IN THE AREA SOUTHWEST OF PONT DU FAHS AND SOUTHEAST OF BOU ARADA. PONT DU FAHS IS 30 MILES SOUTHWEST OF TUNIS AND BOU ARADA IS SOME 15 MILES FURTHER WEST.

"IN SPITE OF LOSSES SUFFERED BY HIM, THE ENEMY ATTACKS WERE UNSUCCESSFUL," THE FRENCH DECLARED.

DURING THE EVENING, THE BULLETIN SAID, THE GERMANS ATTACKED WITH THE SUPPORT OF 50 TANKS NORTH OF AINS MESHOUR, ABOUT 30 MILES WEST OF KAIROUAN, AND "SECURED SOME PROGRESS."

MAIROUAN IS ABOUT 35 MILES WEST OF THE PORT OF SOUSSE AND 50 MILES BELOW PONT DU FAHS.

LONDON, JAN. 22--(AP)--AT LEAST FIVE IMPORTANT CHANGES ARE UNDERWAY IN THE CONSTRUCTION AND OPERATION OF THE FLYING FORTRESS WHICH SHOULD GREATLY INCREASE ITS EFFECTIVENESS AS A DAYLIGHT PRECISION BOMBER.

FOR SECURITY REASONS, THE NATURE OF THE CHANGES CANNOT EVEN BE HINTED BUT THE EFFECT MAY SOON BE EVIDENT IN INCREASED DESTRUCTIVENESS AGAINST THE WAR TARGETS AND FIGHTER DEFENSES OF EUROPE.

JAN 23 1943

IT IS NO SECRET THAT THE LETHAL POWER OF THE FORTRESSES HAS DIMINISHED SLIGHTLY DURING THEIR FOUR MONTHS OF OPERATION BY AMERICAN FLIERS IN THIS WAR THEATER.

DEMOLITION OF TARGETS IS PROBABLY MORE EFFECTIVE THAN EVER AS THE FLIERS GAIN IN EXPERIENCE, BUT THERE HAS BEEN AN INCREASE IN THE LOSS OF THE PLANES AND A DECREASE IN THEIR TOLL OF GERMAN FIGHTERS. THIS TAPERING OFF WAS EXPECTED, AS THE ENEMY'S EXPERIENCE WITH THE NEW BOMBER INCREASED.

CHANGES NOW UNDERWAY SHOULD REVERSE THIS TREND AND POSSIBLY BRING THE FORTRESSES TO A HITHERTO UNATTAINED DEGREE OF EFFECTIVENESS.

BERN, SWITZERLAND, JAN. 22-(AP)-THE NAZIS ARE REDUCING THE PERIOD OF CHILDHOOD AS THE WAR'S TOLL OF THE NATION'S MANPOWER FORCES THEM TO SADDLE TASKS ON BOYS 14 OR EVEN 10 YEARS OLD.

THIS IS ADMITTED BY DAS SCHWARZKORPS, HEINRICH HIMMLER'S PUBLICATION WHICH COMPLAINED OF THE LACK OF A PROPER NAZI CONCEPTION OF WORK BY YOUTHFUL HELPERS WHO ARE INCLINED TO LEAVE THEIR JOBS AT "THE STROKE OF THE CLOCK," LEAVING IMPORTANT PIECES HALF FINISHED.

THE WAR, IT DECLARED, HAS "SHORTENED THE SPAN BETWEEN CHILDHOOD AND MANHOOD X X X TO MAKE MEN OUT OF CHILDREN IN TWO OR THREE YEARS WOULD BE A HOPELESS TASK WERE IT NOT FOR THE HITLER YOUTH (ORGANIZATION) WHICH TAKES A LITTLE BOY OF 10 AND BEGINS TEACHING HIM CONSCIENTIOUSNES AND DUTY."

JAN 23 1943

THE JOURNAL REMINDED THAT MOST 19 YEAR OLDS ARE AT THE FRONT AS WELL AS MOST 18 YEAR OLDS, WHILE MOST OF THOSE OF 17 ARE DOING VOLUNTEER WORK WITH THE ARMY. THEREFORE IT REFERRED CHIEFLY TO BOYS FINISHING SCHOOL AT 14 AND GOING INTO INDUSTRY UNTIL 17.

DAS SCHWARZKORPS SAID THERE WERE MANY INSTANCES OF BOYS LEAVING WORK UNFINISHED. ONE WEST GERMANY FIRM REPORTED THAT OF 300 PIECES OF WORK, ONLY 120 COULD BE COMPLETED "DUE TO A POOR CONCEPTION OF WORK BY YOUTHFUL HELPERS."

IT CRITICIZED FOREMEN FOR LECTURING WHERE "EAR-BOXINGS COULD DO WONDE[illegible]."

MOSCOW, JAN. 22-(AP)-COSSACKS THUNDERING ACROSS THE NORTH CAUCASUS CAPTURED MORE TOWNS ON THE APPROACHES TO ARMAVIR TODAY WHILE THE RUSSIANS REPORTED OTHER UNCHECKED ADVANCES ALL ALONG THE FRONT AND THE SHATTERING OF THE WESTERN DEFENSE WALL OF THE GERMAN DEATH TRAP BEFORE STALINGRAD. JAN 23 1943

(THE GERMANS IN THEIR MOST MELONCHOLY COMMUNIQUE OF THE WAR SAID OF THE STALINGRAD AREA: "THE GERMAN GROUP IN THE STALINGRAD AREA, WHICH IS CLOSELY ENCIRCLED BY THE ENEMY AND IS OFFERING TENACIOUS RESISTANCE TO STRONG ENEMY PRESSURE, HAD TO WAGE ALSO YESTERDAY HEAVY FIGHTING AGAINST THE SOVIETS, WHO ARE STORMING WITH FAR SUPERIOR FORCES. DESPITE A HEROIC DEFENSE THE DEFENDERS OF STALINGRAD COULD NOT PREVENT THE ENEMY FROM BREAKING IN FROM THE WEST.

WHICH COMPELLED THE WITHDRAWAL OF OUR OWN FORCES BY SEVERAL KILOMETERS."

JAN 23 1943

(THE BERLIN COMMUNIQUE ADMITTED A RETREAT IN THE EASTERN CAUCASUS WHERE "GERMAN TROOPS DETACHED THEMSELVES FROM THE ENEMY ACCORDING TO PLAN IN THE COURSE OF MOBILE FIGHTING.")

LESS THAN 50,000 HUNGRY AND SHIVERING GERMANS REMAIN IN AN INHOSPITABLE POCKET OF LESS THAN 200 SQUARE MILES WEST OF STALINGRAD. SOME 22 DIVISIONS OF 220,000 MEN WERE ENVELOPED THERE NEAR THE START OF THE GREAT CONCERTED RUSSIAN OFFENSIVES NOV. 19. THEIR FINAL LIQUIDATION WILL RELEASE MANY THOUSANDS OF VICTORIOUS RED TROOPS FOR THE DRIVES ON ROSTOV AND KHARKOV.

A NUMBER OF VILLAGES WERE REPORTED CAPTURED ON THE VORONEZH FRONT WHERE THE RUSSIANS--50 MILES DEEP IN THE UKRAINE--HAVE CAPTURED TOWN 79 MILES EAST OF KHARKOV AND 85 MILES SOUTHEAST OF KURSK. A SMALLER DEATH TRAP SURROUNDING AN ENTIRE AXIS DIVISION FAR BEHIND TH FRONT WAS TIGHTENED OVERNIGHT, THE RUSSIANS DECLARED.

IN ALL THEIR SUCCESSFUL OFFENSIVES FROM LENINGRAD TO THE KUBAN RIVER, THE RUSSIANS REPORTED THE ADDITIONAL LIQUIDATION OF 4,300 ENEMY TROOPS. ABOUT HALF WERE KILLED AND THE OTHERS CAPTURED.

GERMAN ARMIES IN THE CAUCASUS FACE A NEW CRISIS SINCE THE FALL OI VOROSHILOVSK. A HIGHWAY LEADS 39 MILES EAST TO ARMAVIR, KEY TO THE MAIKOP OIL FIELDS. ANOTHER RUSSIAN COLUMN DRIVING UP THE ROSTOV-BAKU RAILWAY STANDS LESS THAN 42 MILES FROM ARMAVIR BEYOND RECAPTURED NEVINNOMISSOKAYA.

AT THAT POINT THE RUSSIANS WERE 200 MILES SHORT OF ROSTOV, HAVING COVERED HALF THE DISTANCE FROM THE SPRINGBOARD OF THEIR DRIVE AT ORDZHONIDIKZE. ARMAVIR IS THE MOST IMPORTANT RAILWAY JUNCTION THE GERMANS HOLD SOUTH OF ROSTOV.

ROSTOV ITSELF WAS MENACED BY THREE OTHER COLUMNS AND RUSSIANS ON THE LOWER DON WERE 60 MILES AWAY. THOSE PRESSING DOWN THE STALINGRAD-TIKHORETSK RAILWAY WERE NEAR SALSK, 100 MILES SOUTHEAST OF ROSTOV. OTHERS LESS THAN 20 MILES FROM THE DONETS BASIN CITY OF VOROSHILOVGRAD WERE 75 MILES FROM ROSTOV AND THREATENING TO CUT DOWN TO THE SEA OF AZOV WEST OF THE CITY.

JAN 23 1943

RED FORCES WEST OF VORONEZH CLAIMED EFFECTIVE CONTROL OF AN IMPORTANT 90-MILE STRETCH OF THE RAILWAY LEADING FROM MOSCOW TO THE DONETS BASIN BETWEEN RECAPTURED VALUIKI AND SURROUNDED STARYI OSKOL. IN THIS AREA, DISPATCHES SAID, THE RUSSIANS CUT THROUGH THE FASCIST DEFENSES, HITTING THE ENEMY FROM FRONT AND REAR.

OF THE LENINGRAD BATTLE, THE RUSSIANS AT MID-DAY SAID ONLY THAT ENGAGEMENTS SOUTH OF LAKE LADOGA CONTINUED IN THE SAME DIRECTIONS. THE ONLY MENTION OF THE CENTRAL FRONT OPPOSITE MOSCOW WAS THE REPORT OF A GUERRILLA DETACHMENT WHICH RAIDED A NAZI AIRDROME, DESTROYING 18 PLANES AND 16 TRUCKS. IN TWO MONTHS, THE RUSSIANS SAID THIS BAND OF IRREGULARS HAD WRECKED 20 GERMAN TROOP TRAINS.

THE ARMY NEWSPAPER RED STAR SAID PARTICULARLY BITTER FIGHTING RAGE FOR VOROSHILOVSK IN THE CAUCASUS BEFORE ITS FALL. NUMEROUS SETTLEMENTS AROUND THE CITY AND SEVERAL HIGHWAYS LEADING TO IT ALL HAD BEEN TURNED TO FAVORABLE USE BY THE GERMANS.

JAN 23 1943

NAZI GUNS WERE PLACED SKILLFULLY IN THE FORESTS AND ON COMMANDING HILLS, BUT THERE WERE PLENTY OF RUSSIAN GUNS TO ANSWER.

RUSSIAN ARTILLERY, A DOMINANT FACTOR IN ALL RUSSIAN SUCCESSES, SOON SILENCED GERMAN BATTERIES AND RED STAR SAID THE ENEMY RETREATED BEHIND THE VOROSHILOVSK-KROPTKIN RAILWAY.

TRIPOLI MAY NOT FALL TODAY OR EVEN TOMORROW, BUT IT IS APPARENT THAT ROMMEL IS FIGHTING NOW--WHEN HE DOES FIGHT--NOT FOR THE CITY BUT FOR THE FEW PRECIOUS DAYS HE NEEDS TO GET THE REMNANTS OF HIS AFRICA CORPS INTO TUNISIA.

THE DISASTER HE IS TRYING TO FORESTALL IS NOT THE LOSS OF THE LAST COLONIAL CAPITAL OF MUSSOLINI'S TAWDRY 20TH CENTURY ROMAN EMPIRE, WHICH OBVIOUSLY HAS NO SENTIMENTAL VALUE FOR HITLER. WHAT HE FEARS MOST IS AN ALLIED THRUST THAT WOULD PREVENT A JUNCTION BETWEEN HIS TATTERED COLUMNS AND GENERAL VON ARNIM'S TUNISIAN FORCES.

IF ROMMEL TARRIES A DAY TOO LONG IN TRIPOLI THAT JUNCTION MAY BE BEYOND HIS REACH. AS THINGS ARE IT APPEARS THAT THE COMBINED STRENGTH OF THE TWO AXIS ARMIES IS JUST ABOUT EQUAL TO HOLDING THAT BOMB-POCKED CORRIDOR AROUND THE GULF OF GABES LONG ENOUGH FOR ROMMEL TO REACH THE COMPARATIVE SAFETY OF THE TUNISIAN COAST ABOVE SFAX. THE ALLIED COMMUNIQUES LEAVE NO DOUBT THAT HE IS RUNNING FOR IT, FOR THE RAF AND AMERICAN AIR FORCES ARE FINDING THEIR BEST TARGETS IN THE WESTWARD MOVING MASSES OF VEHICLES AND MEN ON THE ROAD BETWEEN TRIPOLI AND BEN GARDANE, WHICH IS WELL WEST OF THE TUNISIAN BORDER.

JAN 23 1943

THIS WILL BE A BLOODY RETREAT, PROBABLY WORSE THAN ANY PREVIOUS PHASE OF THE 1,200-MILE FLIGHT FROM EL ALAMEIN, THAT FARAWAY THRESHHOLD OF THE EGYPTIAN VICTORY THAT ROMMEL COULD NOT QUITE SNATCH. NOW THE ALLIED PLANES COME FROM BOTH EAST AND WEST TO MAKE THE HIGHWAY ONE LONG RIBBON OF HELL, BY DAY AND BY NIGHT, STRIKING FROM BASES IN TUNISIA AND ALGERIA AS WELL AS FROM THOSE WHICH FOLLOW CLOSE BEHIND MONTGOMERY'S TANKS AND INFANTRY.

CAIRO ANNOUNCES TODAY THAT THE EIGHTH ARMY'S VANGUARDS LAST NIGHT WERE "ENGAGING THE ENEMY WEST OF HOMS AND SOUTH OF TRIPOLI." THIS INDICATES A STEADY APPROACH TO THE DOOMED CITY IN SPITE OF SOME ENEMY RESISTANCE, PROBABLY CONFINED TO DELAYING ACTIONS. THE COMMUNIQUE LEAVE LITTLE DOUBT THAT THE BULK OF THE AFRICA CORPS ALREADY IS ON THAT BATTERED ROAD BETWEEN TRIPOLI AND BEN GARDANE.

MEANWHILE VON ARNIM IS DOING HIS BEST TO HOLD THE WAY OPEN. THAT ALMOST CERTAINLY IS THE MEANING OF THE GERMAN TANK THRUST WHICH HAS PROGRESSED 25 MILES SOUTHWEST OF PONT DU FAHS AGAINST GENERAL GIRAUD'S FRENCH. THE PURPOSE SEEMS TO BE TWOFOLD, TO GAIN HIGH GROUND FROM WHICH A BROAD SURROUNDING AREA CAN BE DOMINATED AND SO DIRECTLY PROTECT THE ROAD NORTH OF SFAX AND ALSO TO CONTAIN FRENCH FORCES WHICH MIGHT BE USED IN A DRIVE TO REACH THE COAST FARTHER SOUTH.

JAN 23 1943

THE CHANCES ARE THAT VON ARNIM'S TACTICS, SUPPLEMENTED BY THE SPEE OF ROMMEL'S FLIGHT, WILL SUCCEED. THE GERMAN GENERALS PROBABLY WILL BE ABLE TO UNITE THEIR FORCES. IT IS AN INTERESTING SPECULATION AS TO WHICH WILL COMMAND THE LAST AFRICAN STAND OF THE AXIS. ROMMEL IS A FIEND MARSHAL, VON ARNIM ONLY A COLONEL GENERAL, BUT ROMMEL IS MARKED BY A GREAT DEFEAT.

IN ANY CASE THE COMMANDER SHOULD HAVE BETWEEN 100,000 AND 150,000 EFFECTIVE FIGHTING MEN. GENERAL GIRAUD SAID TWO WEEKS AGO THAT AXIS FORCES IN TUNISIA NUMBERED 70,000 AND THEY PROBABLY HAVE BEEN

32.24-547

AUGMENTED. ESTIMATES OF WHAT ROMMEL HAS LEFT RANGE BETWEEN 40,000 AND 70,000 MEN. SUPPORTING THE COMBINED ARMIES WILL BE A POWERFUL CONCENTRATION OF ANQVV DIVISIONS NOW PERISHING ON THE APPROACHES TO STALINGRAD, TO FIGHT TO THE END AND DIE WITHOUT HOPE OF RESCUE. THE TUNISIAN ARMY PROBABLY WILL NOT HAVE EVEN THE CHOICE BETWEEN THIS FATE AND AN AFRICAN DUNKERQUE, SINCE THE BRITISH NAVY DOMINATES THE CENTRAL MEDITERRANEAN AND IT IS DOUBTFUL WHETHER HITLER CAN ACHIEVE EVEN THE LOCAL AIR SUPERIORITY WHICH MADE DUNKERQUE POSSIBLE FOR THE BRITISH.

Ten miles south of Tripoli is the large airport of Castel Benito, suitable for use by large Allied bombers to raid Axis ports and bases in Tunisia and the supply lines to Sicily and Italy. Use of the excellent port of Tripoli will greatly simplify the 8th Army's supply problem.

A good part of Rommel's force was believed to be already in contact with the Axis forces of Col.-Gen. Jurgen von Arnim behind the Mareth line.

Volokonovka Captured in Move to Sever Nazi North-South Rail Line

Capture Gateway To Maikop Oil Field

Nazi 1942 Gains Nearly their way toward erasing all the German gains scored last year in Russia. The communique said a total of seventeen Axis divisions, nine of them Hungarian, had been smashed since the offensive below Voronezh began in mid-January.

80 Miles West of Railway

The Red Army, hurling back the Axis forces over terrain where the Nazis themselves swept eastward last summer, now is eighty miles west of the Moscow-Voronezh-Rostov railway. It has severed the Yelets-Valuiki-Kupyansk line, the first important north-south network encountered, and apparently is aiming for Belgorod, which is about midway between Kursk and Kharkov on the main trunk line. Volokonovka is about twenty-two miles above captured Valuiki and seventy-eight miles northeast of Kharkov.

JAN 24 1943

To the south, other Russian units were encircling Voroshilovgrad, Donets industrial capital, in an apparent attempt to reach the Sea of Azov below and completely encircle Rostov, feeder point for Nazi forces in the Caucasus.

Last summer's Axis line, the high-water mark established in the 1941 push, extended from a point east of Kursk and Kharkov down to Taganrog, on the Sea of Azov.

The capture of Armavir was a great strategic victory for the Russians, who are compressing the Germans into the northwestern Caucasus. It fell after "a determined assault," the communique said.

Armavir is the pivot for the entire German position in the Kuban River region. A spur line runs west to Tuapse, Black Sea port, and in between lie the Maikop oil fields which have a normal annual output of 2,500,000 tons. The Germans, if they ever got the wrecked wells working again, now have lost access to this oil with the fall of Armavir.

The Russians probably will strike west and southwestward into the Maikop region in an effort to join forces with their troops holding Tuapse. Another column, it is thought, will drive on northward toward Rostov. The next major goal for the forces at Armavir is Kropotkin.

The midnight Soviet communique said Gigant, seventy-five miles from Rostov, had fallen to the Russian troops that had seized Salsk, railway junction 100 miles southeast of Rostov. The Red Army also took Razvilnoye, twenty miles southwest of Salsk on the railway to Tikhoretsk.

Moscow dispatches said the Germans were making desperate efforts to hold the Russians on the approaches to Rostov, hurling fresh tank reinforcements into battle.

Russian tanks themselves have played a major role in the Red Army offensive that has left Stalingrad more than 200 miles behind, but the Russian use of artillery probably has been the most effective weapon, these dispatches said.

On the Voronezh front 12,000 more prisoners were taken, boosting the total of Axis captives to 64,000, and in nine days since the offensive began the Russians said

British Pursue Foe After Taking Tripoli, Race for Tunisia to Cut Off Rear Guard; Reds Take Armavir, Drive on Belgorod

Allied and Axis Forces Continue Tunisian Fighting

JAN 24 1943

By the Associated Press

The British 8th Army wrested Tripoli from the Axis today and the conquest of Premier Mussolini's African empire was all but complete.

Rear guards left behind by Marshal Erwin Rommel to slow the pursuit of his main forces into Tunisia were overwhelmed and the British took possession of the burning city at 5 a.m., officials announced in Cairo.

The Italian high command communique broadcast later by the Rome radio said Axis troops evacuated the city and moved westward last night after fierce fighting. It said motorized elements battled yesterday south of the city, around which a wing of the 8th Army was swung to speed the chase.

Berlin likewise officially acknowledged the loss of Tripoli. The German high command's version of the retreat said:

"The German-Italian panzer army disengaged itself last night from the enemy according to plan after warding off heavy enemy attacks. In the course of this movement toward the west Tripoli was evacuated without fighting after all supplies and war material had been removed and the harbor destroyed."

British War Secretary Sir James Grigg, skipping the pending mop-up of the western reaches of Libya, said the fall of Tripoli "completes the destruction of the Italian empire in Africa."

The British have had the ungrudging help from American supplies and the American air forces in the latest stage, but nevertheless it has been overwhelmingly our show," the War Secretary said.

Secretary of State Hull hailed the British capture of Tripoli as one of the most overwhelming and important victories of the war. He said the Government and people of the United States rejoice in the magnificent achievement.

British Cut Across Plain.

Having dealt a shattering psychological as well as military blow to the Axis, the British pressed forward without pause toward Tunisia on the heels of Rommel's remaining troops, estimated to number 63,000.

In an effort to chop off rear elements of Axis troops before they could reach the Mareth line, 65 miles inside the Tunisian border, some of Gen. Bernard L. Montgomery's forces were believed to have cut across the coastal plain through El Azizia, 20 miles southwest of Tripoli.

While the accupation of Tripoli was being accomplished, flights of Allied bombers and fighters were ranging far ahead into Tunisia in destructive attacks on Rommel's material and manpower.

United States medium bombers and fighter-bombers pounded the retreating Axis columns yesterday near Tripoli and to the westward, a United States headquarters communique said.

The attacks and ground strafing started numerous fires among moving vehicles, the announcement said, while many bomb bursts were observed on the road. All United States planes returned.

While the retiring Germans and Italians undoubtedly demolished many installations in Tripoli's fine harbor, adding to the destruction wrought by Allied bombers, London military sources said the port probably could be made useful in short order.

200 Miles From Gabes.

Bengasi, they pointed out, was reported "totally destroyed" several times in the course of the war in Libya, but each time was repaired quickly by the troops capturing it.

The capture of the capital of Tripolitania put the 8th Army within 200 miles of the enemy-held Tunisian port of Gabes and only 320 miles from the Axis supply lines through "bomb alley"—the stretch of the Mediterranean Sea between Tunis and Sicily.

Wiped Out; 64,000 of Foe Seized in 9 Days

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Jan. 23.—Red Army troops sweeping westward to break the Nazi communications backbone in southern Russia have captured Volokonovka, fifty miles from the big German base at Belgorod, on the Kursk-Kharkov railway, and have taken 12,000 prisoners for a total of 64,000 in nine days, a special communique broadcast from Moscow recorded here by the Soviet monitor said tonight.

Armavir, rail gateway to the Caucasian oil fields of Maikop and 160 miles south of Rostov, also fell to the advancing Russians, the communique said.

The Russians now are well on 1943

they had routed 17 Axis [illegible], nine of them Hungarian.

Biggest Caucasus Victory

The seizure of Armavir was the biggest Red army victory yet in the Caucasus. From that city runs the only railway to the Maikop oil fields and to Tuapse on the Black sea coast. The latter is still in Russian hands and Axis troops in between these points now are imperilled.

(London sources estimated that 200,000 Axis troops were threatened with encirclement in the Caucasus just as an equal number was trapped before Stalingrad).

In taking Volokonovka on the fast moving Voronezh front, the troops of Lieut. Gen. F. I. Golikov again cut the Yelets-Kupyansk railway in the sweep toward the main Kursk-Kharkov line beyond. Volokonovka is about 22 miles above Valuiki which was taken several days ago.

Voroshilovgrad, industrial center of the Donets basin to the south, also is threatened with imminent seizure by Russian troops who yesterday captured Kondrashevskaya, 10 miles to the east, and Stanichno-Luganskoye, only 12 miles away.

May Turn Toward Sea

These troops driving into the Ukraine may wheel southward toward the Sea of Azov in an effort to completely encircle the Caucasian gateway city of Rostov.

(The midnight Soviet communique recorded by the Soviet monitor in London said Gigant, 75 miles from Rostov, had fallen to the Russian troops that had seized Salsk, railway junction 100 miles southeast of Rostov. The Red army also took Razvilnoye, 20 miles southwest of Salsk on the railway to Tikhoretsk.

(Nearly 2,000 enemy trucks, an entire trainload of supplies, and other important equipment were captured yesterday, this communique said hundreds of Axis troops were killed or captured).

Rostov itself was in growing peril from other Red armies less than 60 miles to the east on the lower Don beyond Salsk, the recaptured rail junction and air base 100 miles to the southeast; by forces on the railway to Voronezh, 75 miles to the north; and by the Caucasus armies driving up the Baku railway less than 200 miles away.

Nazis Admit Retreat

(The German communique spoke of the Nazi retreat in the north Caucasus as a "disengagement movement proceeding according to plan." It said the Russian breach in the Stalingrad pocket "was halted by the utmost exertion." Soviet attacks in the Don area, south of Lake Ladoga and in the western Caucasus were said to have failed.)

On the Voronezh front, the Russians declared they dislodged the enemy from a number of populated places overnight, encroaching closer on Kharkov, ancient capital of the Ukraine, only 79 miles from the nearest Russian column. Behind the lines, a trapped Axis division was slowly being liquidated.

Further north, Gen. Golikov's troops pressed deeper into Kursk province, less than 85 miles from the capital of the same name.

Cossacks Pace Drive

The most rapid advance was in the north Caucasus where the Russians were paced by the superb Cossack cavalry, thundering home at last to their plundered villages.

The Russian advance in both sections of the Caucasus was at breath-taking pace.

A Pravda dispatch said the Red army had emerged onto wide steppe land where the going was easier. The smooth terrain was declared to be facilitating the Russians' current outflanking maneuvers, surrounding German garrisons and hedgehog positions. These encirclements were used time and again through the Don Cossack steppe as the Russians moved down the Stalingrad-Tikhoretsk railway. They have covered more than 215 miles in two months in that direction alone.

The noon communique gave no details on the battle of annihilation in the Stalingrad death pocket, or on the engagements around Leningrad or on the central front. Nine villages were captured southwest of Velikie Luki yesterday and the continued Russian drive in that area indicated the Russians already were near or inside White Russia.

FALL OF SALSK SPEEDS DRIVE TO RING ROSTOV

JAN 24 1943

City Also German Air Base for Aiding Stalingrad Armies

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, Jan. 23.—Soviet troops, smashing through the German defense lines along the Manych waterway, have captured the railroad center and air base of Salsk, 100 miles southeast of Rostov, and dispersed fresh German forces which for a time threatened to slow the Russian advance in southwestern sectors, dispatches from the front said today.

[The German High Command said that its "disengagement movement in the northern Caucasus is proceeding according to plan." The High Command communique, broadcast from Berlin, declared that a Nazi counter-attack had driven the Russians eastward within the Don area. The invasion group trapped before Stalingrad was said to have halted the "deep enemy breach" in its western line.]

The German defenses before Salsk failed to halt the Red Army any more than had the rear guard actions of Axis units in the Central Caucasus, it was reported, and the Russian advance now was said to be proceeding in both of those major sectors at a breath-taking pace.

Red Army drives have carried to within 10 miles of the important Ukrainian city of Voroshilovgrad, drives aimed at reducing its worth as a transportation center and also at flanking Kharkov to the north.

The Red Army also reported that it took Konstantinovskaya, on the north bank of the Don River, 75 miles northeast of Rostov and only a short distance east of where the Donets River flows into the Don.

Lines Being Outflanked.

Campaign lines developing along those rivers, however, fast are being outflanked by pushes along the Sal River Valley, south of the Don's course, and down from Kamensky, west of the northern Donets Valley.

(During last night's fighting, the Russian midday war bulletin recorded by the Soviet radio monitor in London said, the same armies that took Salsk and Novy Yegorlik pushed into several more towns in the region, while south of there the trans-Caucasian army was credited with the capture of "dozens of populated places."

(The communique told of fighting at the approaches to a big populated place where Soviet troops were said to have wiped out two German cavalry squadrons and disabled their tanks as well as capturing a great deal of material.

(The principal objective of Soviet troops in the Voroshilovsk-Nevinnomysskaya wedge in that area has been Armavir, gateway to the north and to the West Caucasus oil fields.

(More successes were detailed on the Voronezh front and on the southwestern front with the capture of more towns noted, although they were not identified in the war bulletin.)

Nearing Voroshilovgrad.

A special communique announced the recapture of Salsk and also of Mikoyan-Shakhar, a city just north of Mount Elborus, highest peak in Europe.

Voroshilovgrad, industrial and rail center and an important communications network of which it is the apex, were pictured in a later communique as threatened by advances of Red Army troops who occupied Novo Aidar, 30 miles northwest of Voroshilovgrad, and Kondrashevskaya, 10 miles northeast.

The capture of Novo Aidar cut a railroad that runs south from Valuiki and east of Voroshilovgrad.

Kondrashevskaya is situated at the junction of that line with a railroad running west from Millerovo to Voroshilovgrad.

From Voroshilovgrad itself only one line was left to the Germans to route supplies southwestward into the Donets Basin.

With Salsk occupied, the Red Army also pushed into Novy Yegorlik, 15 miles farther east below the Manych waterway, and thus the forces operating on the southern and on the trans-Caucasian fronts virtually were fused. The troops on the southern front took Novy Yegorlik only a day after the Caucasian forces recaptured Takhta, 40 miles to the southeast. If the units have not already joined, it was believed here that only a barren expense of steppe land faced them.

Another Blow to Trapped Nazis.

The recapture of Salsk was hailed here not only for its importance in the developing campaign to surround Rostov and trap the German units still in the Caucasus, but also because it spelled another mortal blow to the Axis units trapped before Stalingrad.

From Salsk the Germans had operated a plane ferrying service which managed to get some supplies to the remnants of the army that help the siege of Stalingrad and then was cut off from the main body by the swiftly moving Russian winter offensive.

(For the first time the German high command admitted officially in a broadcast yesterday that the Stalingrad besiegers were in peril from the Russian Armies that surrounded them, and that the German Caucasus army was in retreat.)

The forces of Col. Gen. Yeremenko were poised at Salsk for one thrust that could take them up a branch railroad toward Rostov and for another that could cut 70 miles southwestward to Tikhoretsk, along the main line to the Black Sea.

The capture of Tikhoretsk would cut off all principal railway service for German forces in the Caucasus. It would flank Krasnodar, Armavir and the Maikop oil fields, already threatened from the south and the southeast by forces driving past Voroshilovsk, Nevinnomysskaya and Udobnaya.

Occupation of Tikhoretsk also would put another Red Army force seventy miles directly south of Rostov, driving a wedge at the rear of any German defenses that might be concentrated on the banks of the Kuban River and promising encirclement of the retreating German Caucasus army.

Nazis Resist Stubbornly.

The London-recorded Russian midnight communique reported that everywhere the Germans were offering stubborn resistance and that fierce fighting was taking place at every populated place and on every advantageous line. One village changed hands three times in a single day's fighting, it was reported.

The capture of nine towns southwest of Velikie Luki also was reported.

BOMBING AT DUSK HITS FRENCH COAST

London, Jan. 23 (A. P.).—Reports from Folkestone on the southeast coast said that Royal Air Force planes flew over the Strait of Dover in a steady stream just after dusk tonight and that soon thereafter the sound of explosions was heard on the coast of France.

Tonight's foray followed two successive night bombardments of targets in western Germany, which embraces the great industrial Ruhr Valley.

First news of last night's raid came from the Berlin radio, which said scattered bombings had caused civilian casualties and some property damage.

The R. A. F. had been over Germany on twelve previous nights, including the heavy attacks on Berlin last Saturday and Sunday.

German planes bombed several places in northeastern and southern England last night, but casualties were reported light.

German raiders bombed and machine-gunned a village in south England early today, causing considerable damage. There were casualties, including some killed.

Raids over northern France and Belgium ranged from Ghent to the Cherbourg peninsula. Seven German fighters were reported destroyed while four Allied bombers and six fighters were missing.

Three of the seven were victims of American fighting planes, Eighth Air Force Headquarters announced. One American fighter was reported missing.

The Berlin radio said that the daylight raids cost the Allies seventeen planes, mostly bombers. Last night, it said, German bombers attacked war industries on the south coast of England and in the estuaries of the Tyne and the Tees rivers on the northeast coast.

Yesterday swarms of British, American and Allied planes made extensive sweeps over Northern France and Belgium, ranging from Ghent to the Cherbourg peninsula. Seven German fighters were reported destroyed while four Allied bombers and six fighters were listed as missing.

Targets included oil installations at Terneuzen near Ghent, and German airfields in the vicinity of Maupertus, Abbeville, St. Omer and Cherbourg.

NAZI RAIL TRAFFIC HIT

British and Allied Planes Ou Over France and Germany After Another Ruhr Raid

LONDON, Jan. 23 — (AP) Waves of night bombers roared eastward over the English channel tonight to continue virtually non-stop blows against the Axis in Europe, winging away in such force that the throaty procession took 25 minutes to cross the coast.

The night raiders took off after other Allied planes returned from widespread daylight attacks, in which American flying fortresses pounded the submarine pens at Lorient and Brest, and American-made R.A.F. Mustangs struck at Nazi inland transportation.

Five Fortress bombers were lost in the smash at the U-boat bases in the Americans' third raid of this month. It was their third attack on Lorient and the second on Brest since the United States Army Air Forces came to Britain.

Visibility over the targets was good and excellent results were observed, a joint communiqué by United States Headquarters and the Air Ministry said.

The Fortresses encountered enemy fighters over the submarine bases on the west coast of France and shot down an undisclosed number of them, the communiqué added.

The R. A. F. meanwhile hammered at German troops, trains, barges and tugs farther inland, and more R. A. F. planes swarmed over the Strait of Dover just after dusk. Explosions were heard a short time later from the French coast.

Reuter reported that the Berlin Deutschlander radio station went off the air this evening, indicating that the Nazi capital might be fearful of another R. A. F. raid tonight.

The Mustangs attacked twenty-seven trains during the day, the Air Ministry reported. Pilots of one squadron said that in fifty minutes they inflicted many casualties on a company of German troops, attacked six trains, hitting all the locomotives, and shot up two large barges, a dredge and three tugs, firing one of them.

Pilots who swooped down upon the German troops said they found the enemy infantry on an open road. They scattered, "but we got bursts right in among them," the British fliers said.

One R. A. F. bomber and three fighter planes were lost in these sweeps, the Air Ministry said.

Fighters Go Out With Bombers

Squadrons of Allied fighters escorted the Flying Fortresses as far as Brittany, and then carried out supporting operations. Spitfires swept over Brittany for four hours to pin down the German Air Fleet and then escorted the big bombers back over the Channel.

The daylight raids followed a second successive night attack on Western Germany, which includes the industrial valley of the Ruhr. The Germans said scattered bombings had caused civilian casualties and some property damage.

SUPREME COUNCIL TO BE FORMED BY LEADING NATIONS

Second-Front Attack on Europe May Be Decided in Allied Talks

JAN 24 1943

LONDON, Jan. 23—(AP) Plans for a world-girdling offensive against the Axis, including the formation of some type of supreme war council of the United Nations, are expected to be announced shortly, possibly within the next week, it was learned today.

How many details will be announced of the decisions reached for a 1943 victory drive will depend on how much the enemy can safely be allowed to learn, but formal disclosures are expected soon by informed Allied quarters here.

Second-Front Decisions

In addition to the formation of a central war-planning council, which is expected to be the most important result of the talks, decisions are expected on the question of a second-front attack on the European continent, and on an untangling of the scrambled political situation in North Africa.

Gen. Wladyslaw Sikorski, premier of the Polish government-in-exile, who arrived here Jan. 13 after conversations with President Roosevelt, is understood to have emphasized the belief of the smaller Allied governments in the urgency of a campaign to free the conquered people of Europe.

Other United Nations leaders, including President Roosevelt himself, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin have left no doubt of the need and desire for a second front in Europe at the earliest possible moment.

Much Planning Required

But to execute this program requires setting up an over-all-timetable of attack and final allocation of weapons, shipping and other resources among the United Nations.

Also prerequisite to a successful attack are the elimination of all political rivalry such as that existing in North Africa even among pro-Allied Frenchmen, collaboration on propaganda and diplomacy to be directed against the Axis, and a sonsolidation of over-lapping commands among the Allied forces, such as those of Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, commander in chief of Allied forces in North Africa, and Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, British commander in the Middle East, whose forces under Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery now are approaching Gen. Eisenhower's territory in Tunisia in the pursuit of Axis Marshal Erwin Rommel's retreating African corps.

Gen. Alexander May Head Next Offensive by Allies

Success of Libyan Campaign Wins New Honors for British Leader.

JAN 24 1943

LONDON, Jan. 23—(AP) Lifted to the forefront of popular acclaim by the fall of Tripoli and the successful conclusion of his desert campaign, Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, commander in chief of Allied forces in the Middle East, is regarded by many here as the logical man to command the next full-blown offensive of the Allied nations, wherever it may fall.

The quiet, pleasant general, whose appointment to the supreme command in the Middle East last August received a cool reception from British press and public, now has won firm recognition as one of Britain's most capable strategists.

Throughout the recent desert campaign, military authorities stressed the fact that it basically was Gen. Alexander's show, even though Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery was more in the limelight as battlefront executor of his chief's grand strategy.

Early Record Recalled

Now the public is remembering again that the 51-year-old Gen. Alexander won fame in the last war and was the "last man off the beach at Dunkerque" in the present conflict.

Gen. Alexander organized the present realistic battle school training methods in Britain and directed the British army's retreat out of Burma, where the soldiers in the face of terrific odds were said to have come out "with their tails up."

An avowed apostle of the offensive, Gen. Alexander has told his junior officers:

"We must not be content to sit behind concrete fortifications. We should take every opportunity to hit back—especially where the enemy is not expecting us."

He is a prime exponent of air support for ground troops, and his expertness in the use of the aerial arm was seen all through the desert campaign.

Cool, Courageous Under Fire

Many tales are told of Gen. Alexander's coolness and courage under fire. Just before the Dunkerque evacuation he and two staff officers and a chauffeur sergeant, J. A. Welis, were trapped by a road block 10 miles from the channel. Gen. Alexander burned his car, obtained bicycles and pedaled the rest of the distance under fire to take charge on the beaches.

"He was cool as a trout," Sgt. Wells recalls. "He never took cover even when the bombing and shelling was at its height."

Gen. Alexander is the third son of the fourth Earl of Caledon. Educated at Harrow and at Sandhurst, Britain's famous military academy, he came out of the first World War as a Lieutenant Colonel.

He won the French Legion of Honor at the Marne, the Military Cross at Loos and the Distinguished Service Order at the Somme. He was twice wounded and five times mentioned in dispatches.

Empire Newsmen Score Censorship in London

Call Government Handouts Not Very Informative

LONDON, Jan. 23 (AP).—The council of the Empire Press Union, representing correspondents from all parts of the empire, complained in its annual report today that virtually all news of any value had to be "squeezed out" of government press bureaus.

"Valuable as some of these offices are, it can hardly be said their output of usable press material had been proportionate to the expansion of the public relations staff," asserted the report, which also sharply criticized British cable censorship.

Declaring that the union's problem throughout 1942 had been to insure that the British overseas press received a fair share of the "scanty" news facilities available, the report accused the public relations staffs of the fighting services—especially the Admiralty—of reluctance to release material that could, without risk of aiding the enemy, contribute to the war effore of the press.

100,000 Polish Troops Reach Iran From Russia

Force Will Augment Army Serving in Near East

LONDON, Jan. 24 (Sunday) (AP).—More than 100,000 Poles have arrived at an Iranian port from Soviet Russia to bolster the Polish army in the Near East under General Wladyslaw Anders, the India Office announced today.

The force was sent from Russia under a November, 1941, agreement between the Soviet government and the Polish government-in-exile at London for release of Polish war prisoners for service with other Polish forces against the Axis.

A reception camp covering three square miles has been built to house the Polish force, which is supplied with British food and clothing and Russian arms.

The latest contingent to arrive completes the movement of these troops to the Near East, it was said.

JAN 24 1943

German Thrusts Are Blocked.

London, Jan. 23 (A. P.).—Gen. Henri Honore Giraud reported from Tunisia today that French troops supported by American and British reinforcements had halted German thrusts in the mountain country southwest of Pont du Fahs and that French and British troops had advanced several miles in the valley of Oued Kebir.

This fighting in central Tunisia is mainly for control of mountain ridges dominating the route which Rommel's forces must follow along the Tunisian coast. Northwest of Kairouan, a town only twenty-eight miles from this coastal road, the French communique reported a strong enemy attack had been stopped and partly repulsed. American troops took part in this action.

"The enemy attack on our positions dominating the approaches to Kairouan twenty miles west of the town has completely failed," the communique said.

BILLY MITCHELLS USED FIRST TIME IN EUROPE

LONDON, Jan. 23 — (AP) — North American Billy Mitchell B-25 medium bombers, the type that bombed Tokyo, participated in yesterday's daylight attacks on Axis targets on occupied Europe, the Air ministry news service announced today.

This was the first mention of the use of Billy Mitchells in this war theater though they have been in service for some time in the Middle East and in the southwest Pacific.

The Berlin radio claimed today that 17 Allied bombers were shot down in the course of yesterday's sweeps over the continent.

Quisling Reported Living In 'Little Berchtesgaden'

Norwegian Refugee Describes Puppet as Fearful of Life

LONDON, Jan. 23 (AP).—Vidkun Quisling, the Norwegian Nazi puppet, has built himself a $60,000 "Northern Berchtesgaden" near Oslo where he now lives under protection of 150 guards who man machine-gun posts twenty-four hours a day, it was said here today. The story of Quisling's fortified retreat was told by a Norwegian who arrived in Great Britain after carrying on underground espionage as a member of Quisling's inner circle.

The Norwegian source said Quisling now is a haggard, weary man who lives in constant fear of death by assassination. He maintains 150 storm troopers on duty constantly, both at his retreat and when he moves about the country. He refuses to eat or drink until the food or liquid has been tasted.

Quisling's "Little Berchtesgaden" was said to be located on Bygdoey Peninsula, a finger of land which juts out into Oslo Fjord about a half dozen miles from the city. Anti-aircraft guns have been mounted in the vicinity.

British Ships Shell Zuara.

London, Jan. 23 (A. P.).—British light naval units today bombarded Zuara, in Tripolitania, sixty miles west of Tripoli, the Admiralty announced. Good results were said to have been achieved and large fires and explosions observed. The attacking warships suffered neither damage nor casualties, the Admiralty added.

ROME RADIO SEES END NEAR IN AFRICA

JAN 24 1943

London, Jan. 23 (A. P.).—Mourning the loss of Tripoli, the Rome radio said today that "the great struggle which Italy has been waging for twenty-three months in North Africa is coming to an end."

In a broadcast picked up here by the Associated Press, Rome admitted that the Italians had suffered enormous losses in the desert campaign and attributed the retreat to British superiority in men and equipment. Emphasis was placed on the part played by the British Navy in hampering the flow of supplies to Rommel's forces. A great part of Britain's submarine fleet had been concentrated in the Mediterranean, the broadcast said.

"The sacrifice of so much territory is certainly painful, and it has been defended with so much valor and with the loss of so much blood. But in war the loss of territory is not the end of maneuver," the announcer said. "On the other hand, the loss of all these territories cannot prevent ultimate victory."

LIBERATOR'S GUNNERS FIGHT 6 DIVE BOMBERS

LONDON, Jan. 23 — (AP) — A United States four-motored Liberator bomber on anti-submarine patrol recently fought off a concerted attack by six Junkers-88 dive bombers, shooting one down and damaging another, the Eighth air force disclosed today.

The Germans went at the Liberator in pairs from the sides and from the tail until on their third attack one was caught by a burst from the bomber's machine-guns and plunged into the sea. The other five then turned away, but one was damaged before it got out of range.

ARMS SEIZED IN LYONS

London, Jan. 23 (A. P.).—The Berlin radio, broadcasting a DNB (German news agency) dispatch from Paris, said today that political police of the Vichy French Government had discovered eight tons of arms in two secret depots at Lyons yesterday, and had also made some arrests at Marseilles.

Britain Pushes Blitz on Pests

London (A. P.).—Britain is running another war on the side—against pests.

New methods of extermination against rats, mice and insects are saving millions of dollars worth of food. They have been tried out at Britain's two main research stations, and are now being applied to every town and district.

War has been declared on coleoptera, weevils and crowds of other pests.

AMERICANS MOVE TO FRONT

LONDON, Jan. 23—(AP) The Paris radio reported today that two U. S. divisions had been sent from Morocco to the Tunisian front, which was "somewhat more calm" today.

88 Austrians Executed By Nazis in 2½ Months

Stockholm, Jan. 23 (A. P.).—Reports from Austrian newspapers disclosed today that eighteen workmen had been executed by the German Gestapo since January 1, bringing to eighty-eight the known executions in Austria in the last two and a half months. The majority were charged with high treason in connection with leaflets advocating surrender of an independent Austria.

Other reports which cannot be confirmed said that 107 workers have been arrested in Leipzig, in Germany itself, in connection with an illegal newspaper which has been appearing for the last five months.

EMPIRE IN AFRICA SEIZED FROM ITALY AS TRIPOLI FALLS

British Eighth Army Drives Toward Tunisia in Pursuit of Rommel.

CAIRO, Jan. 23. — (AP) Tripoli fell to the conquering British Eighth army at 5 a. m. today after an epic 1,300-mile drive from the approaches of Alexandria, and with it went the last bit of the Italian empire that Mussolini had gambled on a German victory.

Once a far-away, ultimate goal of the British, the smouldering capital of Tripolitania has become only a vitally important way-station, for Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's soldiers scarcely paused at the port. They thundered on to the west in pursuit of Marshal Rommel's Africa corps remnants, beating along the coastal road to the refuge of the French Mareth line 65 miles inside Tunisia and 165 miles from the city of triumphant arches over which the Union Jack proudly fluttered in the breeze.

German Units Beaten Back

Strong rear-guard detachments of Germans attempted to delay the Eighth army at Tripoli, but these were swiftly engaged and beaten back as the British swarmed in from the east and south. Columns of black smoke had curled up from the ancient city throughout the night as the enemy carried out demolitions.

The British expressed the belief that the excellent harbor, now cluttered with hulks of ships sunk by the R.A.F. and United States air forces, could be put in operation as a major base within a short time. The Castel Benito airdrome 13 miles below the city of 100,000, likewise is expected to be a major forward air base for assaults on the Germans and Italians striving desperately to maintain a toehold in Africa in adjoining Tunisia.

Fighters and bombers ranged far ahead of the Eighth army pounding the Africa corps survivors along their road of retreat. The British said great damage was inflicted on "excellent targets," particularly on small shipping trying to leave Zuara harbor, 60 miles west of Tripoli in a minor Dunkerque. Significantly, enemy air activity was on a small scale and only three fighters were shot down.

The only major pauses in Gen. Montgomery's advance were before El Agheila, 400 miles east of Tripoli, and before the Wadi Zem-Zem, 180 miles east of there. In both cases, the pauses apparently were caused not by the enemy, but by the problem of consolidating lengthened supply lines and of resting and reorganizing weary troops.

Supply Problem Eased

The harbor of Tripoli will do much to ease the British supply problem, since the Mediterranean fleet of the Royal Navy controls the sea and the Italian fleet still lies in its harbors, reluctant to come out and fight.

The great demolition and bomb-set fires in Tripoli served as funeral pyres rising in Mussolini's dream of reestablishing a new Roman empire. Since stabbing France in the back in 1940 when the republic was collapsing and the British were almost at wits' end, Mussolini in turn has lost all his African possessions: Somaliland, Eritrea, Ethiopia; and now Cirenaica and Tripolitania—which together form Libya.

British Big Guns and Planes Reduce Last Outpost of Italians in Africa.

LONDON HAILS CAMPAIGN END

British Warships Shell Zuara, Scene of Axis Dunkirk West of Tripoli.

JAN 24 1943

Cairo, Jan. 23 (A. P.).—Tripoli, last outpost of Premier Mussolini's once-proud African empire, fell today before the assault of the British Eighth Army in a smashing climax to the long-drawn Libyan campaign.

An official announcement said that forward elements of the Eighth Army had entered the city at 5 A. M., after battering through outer defenses shattered by a heavy artillery and aerial bombardment.

The capture of the city placed Gen. Montgomery's Eighth Army only 100 miles from the Tunisian border and marked the climax of an advance of approximately 1,300 miles begun last October when he cracked Field Marshal Rommel's line at El Alamein, deep in Egypt.

Powerful Guard Left in City.

The Germans left a strong body in the city, but this rear guard was driven back, directly into the aerial rain of death with which the Allied fighter-bombers were pounding the roads west of Tripoli, the British announced.

The British tanks rolled into the city just before dawn, after having pushed all night relentlessly ahead. Progress was difficult, as Rommel's final pockets of resistance bristled with anti-tank guns and roads and bridges had been demolished wherever possible. As the morning sun struck the minarets of Tripoli's many mosques, the British were well inside the city and the natives were out to welcome them.

Low-flying pilots who had flown over the city yesterday reported that the Karamanli Mole had been blown up at its center and base, partly by Allied bombings and partly through demolition by the Germans. The lighthouse at the end of the Spanish Mole was also reported destroyed.

American Planes Attack.

Meanwhile today United States headquarters here revealed that American medium bombers and fighter-bombers pounded the retreating Axis columns by daylight yesterday both near and to the west of Tripoli.

The communique said that the attacks and ground strafing started numerous fires among moving vehicles, that many bomb bursts were observed on and beside the road, that American planes caused a large explosion followed by a fire when they dropped incendiaries at a point west of Tripoli, and that all the American planes returned safely.

The British entered Tripoli to find fires raging in many places—some set by Allied aerial bombardments which preceded the city's fall and others set by the retreating Axis forces to destroy supplies and equipment they could not take with them.

Battered Along Highway.

In its daily announcement, British headquarters told of heavy aerial assaults on Rommel's men in flight along the highway west of Tripoli.

When one gasoline tanker was struck, twenty vehicles near it went up in flames and when five staff cars tried to pass the blazing mass they were riddled with machine-gun bullets from Allied planes. The Germans sent out Messerschmitts in force to attempt to halt the Allied fighter-bomber activities, but they were intercepted and four were shot down.

Two-engined Allied fighters carried the attack further westward to Gabes, Ben Bardane and Sfax in Tunisia, hammering both road traffic and Axis coastal shipping. Light bombers took up the job by night, giving the withdrawing enemy no rest.

"Great damage was inflicted on excellent targets," this communique noted, and as far as sixty miles west of Tripoli small shipping in the harbor at Zuara was reported damaged in a miniature Dunkirk.

The word in Cairo is that the Africa Corps is virtually destroyed, and what remains of it has gone limping into Tunisia for a final stand in conjunction with Von Arnim's forces there.

[This view of the magnitude of Rommel's defeat was not shared in London, where the military authorities estimated that Rommel had lost only about half of the Africa Corps, which originally numbered 126,000 men, and was moving considerable forces into Tunisia.]

'Mussolini's No Good.'

Late today it was learned that at Tarhuna, one of Mussolini's model agricultural colony towns south of Tripoli, the entire population of 2,000, headed by the mayor, turned out to surrender to a small advance party of the Royal Air Force prospecting for a landing ground. A member of the R. A. F. party said: "They all seemed genuinely glad to see us. One man said, 'Mussolini non buono' (Mussolini's no good), with appropriate gestures."

The most formidable obstacle to Gen. Montgomery's pursuit of the Axis forces into Tunisia is the so-called Mareth Line, which the French constructed before the war some sixty-five miles west of the Libyan frontier and behind which Rommel is expected to take refuge.

The British are now within 200 miles of the enemy-held Tunisian port of Gabes and only 320 miles from the Axis supply lines through Bomb Alley—the stretch of the Mediterranean Sea between Tunis and Sicily.

The Soldier Bouvier, He Deserted To Fight; Wins a Hero's Awards

JAN 24 1943

Thrilling Story of a Beardless French Youth and His Experiences.

By CLYDE A. FARNSWORTH
Correspondent of the Associated Press

CAIRO, Jan. 23—This was the soldier Bouvier who once went A.W.O.L. to fight for France, as brave a lad as I have ever met, a mere boy with his decorations and his empty sleeve.

With remarkable nonchalance he sauntered into the lounge of Cairo's principal hotel. Without even a first class private's chevron, he ignored the posted notice which attempts to keep this place out of bounds to "other ranks."

He looked so young, even younger than his bare 18 years, but he held himself so straight. His dark hair was parted and slicked to schoolboy perfection. His face, with its easy, eager smile, had the pink beardlessness of adolescence, yet there was a strange adult light in his eyes when he looked at you.

Swiftly you took in the boyish face and the crossed cannon and medieval helmets on the lapels of his khaki blouse, insignia of the Fighting French armored forces, and then you saw the empty sleeve tucked neatly into his right-hand pocket, and the odd stiffness of his left hand with which he shook hands.

Last of all you studied the row of ribbons over his heart. There was, first of all, the ribbon standing for the Cross of Liberation, highest award given by the Fighting French, and in this case the only one held by a common soldier.

Next to the ribbon for the Cross of Liberation, Bouvier wore one standing for the Croix de Guerre and against its gray field lay a tiny bronze palm. In the same array of decorations were ribbons for the Medaille Coloniale, the Medaille de Blesse for those wounded in the service of France and, last of all, one with a tiny bronze plate superimposed and engraved:

"Bir Hakheim
"1942"

It was there, last June 8, that Leon Bouvier, then 17 years old but already a veteran of this war, was wounded: one arm stump, and the remaining hand so injured that he retains the use of but three fingers.

Bitter 15 Day Battle

In the official record of the Fighting French defense of Bir Hakheim, a battle which lasted 15 days, May 27 to June 11, there is a factual, impersonal entry: "Monday, June 8: A convoy arrived this morning at 4 a. m. The trucks were driven by French drivers of a transport unit; all volunteers for this mission."

Bouvier, then driver of a Bren gun carrier, had set out with that mission of relief for the encircled, embattled defenders of Bir Hakheim. He was to have escorted the trucks, 15 in all, loaded with explosives and other supplies, into Bir Hakheim. He never. But let Bouvier tell the story:

"I was driving a bren carrier. We came up at night with 170 trucks, arriving outside the German lines at 11 o'clock. We had a rendezvous with Second Lieutenant Jean Bellec and two soldiers from inside Bir Hakheim. They had come through the enemy lines and were to lead us in.

"But there were too many trucks and Bellec said that not more than 15 could be taken in, and even then only if we proceeded slowly and carefully and as quietly as possible. They called for volunteers to drive. I volunteered to go along in my Bren carrier and took with me Bellec and one of the soldiers who had come out with him. We had three miles to cross.

Attacked from Air

"Our column crawled along, stopping often in the dark. At 1 a. m., all hell broke loose. We were attacked by Stukas which dropped flares. We were in the middle of the German lines and they opened up with everything they had. We were in a cross-fire of machine-guns. Tracers were everywhere.

"One of the trucks was hit somehow and the fuel tank took fire. My Bren carrier was close. I knew that the truck was loaded with 20 cases of mines and that there also was one case of fuses for them. I knew that if the fire ever reached the fuses the mines would be set off and I was sure the explosion would destroy us all.

"So I took the fire extinguisher from my Bren carrier and ran to the fire to put it out. It was already eating into the cases of mines. I was there in the light of the fire and I knew I was exposed for bullets were striking all around me. I actually put the fire out.

"But at that moment, just as I was leaving to find cover, something must have hit the box of fuses. It might have been machine-gun fire. The truck blew up. There were, as I said, 20 cases of mines, each with 20 unfused mines in it—400 mines in all.

"I was blown I don't know how far, but a considerable distance. I could feel myself flying through the air. Most of my clothing was ripped off. When I picked myself up the lower half of my right arm was gone and I was bleeding horribly. There was no one around. It was dark. I feared to call for help for I knew I would be captured.

"My left thumb was shorn off at the first joint and the tendon of the forefinger was cut. I had burns on my arms and body. The hand hurt fiercely. I had a great pain in the back of my head but I could feel no pain in the stump of my right arm. I knew that I would bleed to death in a few minutes. I felt faint. I was covered with blood from head to foot.

"I don't know how long I lay there but it was still night when I heard voices. I thought the Germans had come. I was ready then to surrender. I grunted or moaned for help. But they were not Germans; they were a Scottish patrol of seven men who had seen the bombardment and the fire and had wormed their way into the place to investigate. The rest of the convoy had moved on.

"They gathered me up like a baby and carried me back to an ambulance. From there on I do not remember much. They cut off some of my right arm in a field hispital, I know. They were constantly giving me morphine injections. The retreat from Libya was now fully under way. Bir Hakheim was evacuated while I was being moved back for treatment.

Seven Days in Ambulance

"They tried to get me into an ambulance plane once but there was space for only one man. It was given to a wounded officer. I was given over to an ambulance driver who was instructed to carry me back until he could find a hospital for me. We did not find it until we reached Alexandria. I spent seven days in the ambulance."

Bouvier paused. The story was nearly ended. He glanced at his empty sleeve and the medals which he wore like a boy scout proud of his merit badges. He grinned. "I always wanted to be a hero," He said. "I have been kissed now by five generals."

There is one forgivable demerit in the military record of the Soldier Bouvier. He was with the Fighting French in Syria when the rumor spread around the camp that General Koenig's brigade, the troops which later were to defend Bir Hakheim, was to move into Libya.

"I went first to my commanding officer and asked if I might be transferred so I could go along," Bouvier related. The C.O. told me there was nothing official. So I went to General Koenig. He told me that if I wanted to go I should merely get aboard one of the trucks when the brigade left. That is what I did."

Weeks later when Bouvier, by that time a clerk in Koenig's mobile headquarters, had moved up to Halfaya pass near the Libyan border of Egypt, a letter came from General Headquarters asking Koenig for information on "the deserter Bouvier."

"The general had others who could have typed the answer for him but he dictated it to me instead," the boy recalled. "I remember so well. He stood beside me and dictated: 'The Soldier Bouvier has deserted to fight.'"

City Falls on Schedule

CAIRO, Jan. 23—(AP) When the British Eighth army launched its final offensive in Libya, Allied war correspondents were told that Tripoli would be in Allied hands on Jan. 22.

The army was only five hours late after advancing 1,300 miles.

Douglas Takes Command Of R. A. F. at Cairo

JAN 24 1943

Cairo, Jan. 23 (A. P.).—Air Chief Marshal Sir William Sholto Douglas assumed command today of the Royal Air Force in the Middle East, succeeding Air Marshal Sir Arthur William Tedder.

Announcement of the impending change, made in London on November 28, said that Sir Arthur would become Vice-Chief of Staff of the Air Forces.

SOLDIER TO GET MEDAL

CAIRO, Jan. 23—(AP) Corp. Charles Bshara, Sanford, Me., a member of the U. S. fighter squadron ground crew operating in the Tripoli advance, has been recommended for the Soldier's Medal for shooting down an enemy plane.

Corp. Bshara drives a truck on which his resourceful commanding officer had mounted a machine-gun. Although not a gunner himself, Corp. Bshara in an emergency recently shot down a Messerschmitt 109 which had evaded anti-aircraft fire and was strafing ground troops. His quick action with the truck's machine-gun saved the lives of many of his comrades.

TUNISIA FIGHT RAGES

Axis Battles to Keep Escape Route Open for Rommel.

JAN 24 1943

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 23—(AP) Britain's Eighth army captured Tripoli to finally topple Mussolini's African empire early today and raced on westward toward Tunisia where Allied troops were mopping up Nazi parachutists trying to widen the 50-mile "bomb alley" of escape left to Marshal Rommel's Axis forces fleeing into Tunisia.

General Montgomery's desert troops at 5 a.m. swept into Tripoli whose dock depots and installations had been blasted both by Allied bombers and Nazi demolition squads. Capture of this city was the ultimate triumph of a three-month push equivalent to the distance from New York to the plains of Nebraska.

The British then were reported to have pushed on westward toward the Tunisian border, 100 miles west of Tripoli, while Allied planes pounded Marshal Rommel's shattered troops on the coastal highway and inflicted "great damage" on boatloads of Axis officials fleeing the port of Zuara, 60 miles from Tripoli.

Warships Shell Zuara

(The admiralty in London also announced that light forces of the Royal Navy bombarded Zuara early Saturday. "Good results were achieved, large fires and explosions being observed," the communique said. No casualties nor damage was suffered by the British fleet.)

Less than 300 miles separates General Montgomery's troops and the Allied Tunisian forces in the Gafsa area of Tunisia, but the Axis apparently is firmly entrenched all along the eastern Tunisian coast where Marshal Rommel is withdrawing to join the Axis troops under Gen. Jurgen von Arnim.

May Have to Rest

It also is believed that General Montgomery's main forces would have to pause for rest and reorganization after the long, exhausting haul across Libya.

A French communique issued tonight said fighting continued all day in the mountainous central Tunisian sector 20 miles northwest of Kairouan where U. S. troops are aiding the French.

"After repulsing all enemy attacks our forces regrouped in the region north of the road which leads from Ousseltia to Kairouan," the bulletin said.

"Fifteen kilometers (nine miles) north of Ousseltia our Moroccan detachments annihilated a German unit."

Enemy Posts Surrender

During the day several enemy posts surrendered and valuable material was seized, the communique added.

Earlier, British and French troops were reported to have rolled back a German tank column at least four miles in the Kebir valley after a counterattack launched from Robaa toward Pont du Fahs. This sector is above the Ousseltia-Kairouan area.

In these two valleys, roughly 50 miles west of the eastern Tunisian coast, the Axis has made its most determined bid to smash the Allies in order to secure the line of Marshal Rommel's retreat.

Allied aircraft continued to pound German and Italian columns retreating along the coast and at the same time attacked Tunis' el Aouina airdrome three times yesterday, finding a great concentration of Axis transport and fighter planes on the field.

Axis Uses Parachutists

In their attempt to widen their hold on the 200-mile-long coastal belt the Axis dropped parachutists at several points in the rear of the Allied forces. But the majority of these already have been rounded up with the help of the French gendarmerie and Arabs, a spokesman said.

Some of Col. Edson Raff's American parachutists are based in southern Tunisia, but whether they have been dropped along the coastal road to harry the Rommel retreat is not known.

(Berlin broadcasts hinted that Gen. Montgomery's forces had intercepted the Rommel retreat in Libya by landing forces from boats somewhere along the coast west of Tripoli. The Berlin broadcasts claimed the landing party was driven off.)

The big question of course was how many troops Marshal Rommel can speed into Tunisia to reinforce the 70,000 or more which General von Arnim is said to have.

The estimates varied from 40,000 to 70,000, including supply service units. Marshal Rommel was reported to have lost up to 75,000 men when he was smashed in Egypt by General Montgomery and forced to retreat into Libya. At that time this figure represented more than half of his army.

(British military commentators in London said there would be no slowing of the pursuit of Marshal Rommel by General Montgomery's forces unless Marshal Rommel wants to stand and fight. It was not believed that a Rommel junction with General von Arnim's forces would tip the scales in favor of the Axis in Tunisia).

The flight to sea of Axis personnel from Zuara, west of Tripoli, was taken here to mean that Marshal Rommel did not intend to make a stand anywhere short of the Tunisian frontier.

Retreating Columns Blasted

His straggling forces were reported being cut down along the road west of Tripoli by American and British airmen who set fires among his trucks and blasted craters in the road.

Among the targets of these Allied Middle Eastern forces covering General Montgomery's ground forces was the Axis airdrome of Ben Gardane in southern Tunisia not far from the Tripolitania border. Marshal Rommel has been noticeably short of aerial protection, and the Allies were determined to smash what little he has left.

In widesperad aerial activity over Tunisia the heaviest Allied blow was at Tunis. B-17s launched the first attack yesterday against El Aouina airdrome where scores of Nazi transport planes and many fighter squadrons were sighted. That was at 11 a. m., and the four-motored bombers "completely covered the airdrome with bomb bursts, starting fires visible from 80 to 100 miles."

"There were explosions among buildings and it is believed an ammunition dump was hit," the announcement said.

Fifteen Messerschmitts arose to make a 30-minute attack on the Flying Fortresses, and three of the German planes were shot down and four damaged.

Return to Airdrome

At 12:30 p. m. Marauder B-26s escorted by Lightning P-38 fighters hit the airdrome again, starting more fires and destroying many single and twin-engined planes on the field.

The third attack came two hours later with Billy Mitchell B-25's concentrating their bombs on dispersed transport planes among which several fires were observed. Messerschmitt fighters which attempted to intervene were driven off although one B-25 crashed and burned.

In assisting the American and French ground forces in the Ousseltia valley sector Warhawk P-40s, including members of the French Lafayette escadrille, attacked Axis vehicles and machinegun posts while Havoc A-20 light bombers raided enemy tanks. The A-30's were reported to have scored several direct hits on an Axis tank depot northeast of Ousseltia.

British Hurricane bombers escorted by Spitfires attacked Axis objectives also at Pont-du-Fahs, and Allied bombers on Thursday night also attacked the airdrome at Bizerte and road and rail communications behind the enemy's lines.

"During a sweep by bombers and fighters between Tunisia and Sicily," the communique added, "a freighter was hit by bombs and six enemy aircraft were destroyed. From all these operations five of our aircraft are missing."

Nazi Paratroopers in Tunisia

Forces Dropped Back of Allied Lines in Vain —Most Are Quickly Captured.

JAN 24 1943 NORGAARD

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Jan. 23 (A. P.).—German parachute troops were dropped behind the Allied lines in Tunisia in a vain effort to break the successful resistance to the Axis tank push down the Kebir River and the Ousseltia Valley, but most of them were quickly rounded up, Allied headquarters announced today.

German and Allied land forces continued to fight in the Ousseltia Valley below Pont du Fahs while British and American planes bombed and shot up equipment of the German columns. It was not disclosed whether the parachute troopers were demolition squads, attempting to destroy bridges and other vital structures, or fighting forces attempting to seize positions in the Allied rear.

U. S. Troops Move Up.

United States troops were moving up the Ousseltia Valley to support the British forces engaged in widespread and violent fighting with German tank columns, the announcement said. A headquarters spokesman said that the German force, which yesterday had been reported threatening the town of Ousseltia, thirty-seven miles from Pont du Fahs, had made no further progress.

Across the mountain range, down both sides of which German task forces are moving, a combined British and French force drove back another German tank column four miles, leaving the Axis troops six miles short of their immediate objective, Robaa, which is twenty-seven miles southwest of Pont du Fahs.

Twelfth United States Air Force fighters and bombers concentrated yesterday on three quick smashes at a Tunis airdrome and on repeated bombing and strafing blows at Axis communications and tank and truck columns. During the day American planes shot down nine Axis aircraft and damaged five others, with a loss of five American planes. A large number of enemy planes also were destroyed on the ground.

American flying fortresses covered the Tunis airdrome with bomb bursts and started fires visible for 80 to 100 miles, a headquarters spokesman said. There were explosions among the buildings and a hit was believed made on an ammunition dump. The bombers fought off fifteen Messerschmitt fighters, bringing down three and damaging four others.

A sweep of Allied bombers and fighters over Tunisia and Sicily struck a freighter with bombs and destroyed six more Axis planes, the communique said. Five Allied aircraft were reported missing after all these various operations.

[The Italian communique declared that the Axis forces in Tunisia had consolidated gains won in previous days, but did not specify in what sector. Axis planes, the announcement also said, attacked Bone harbor on Thursday night, scoring direct hits on the Allied installations there and causing fires and explosions. Later, it said, Italian torpedo planes sank two Allied ships in the harbor and damaged a third, while Axis submarines were declared to have sunk two Allied merchant vessels in the Mediterranean. Allied air raids on Ragusa, Pachino and Noto, in Sicily, were acknowledged.]

British Submarine Destroys 4 Axis Ships Bound for Tunisia

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 23—(AP) A British submarine "operating in Tyrrhenian seaports" destroyed two enemy merchant ships and a schooner and drove an armed trawler ashore in sinking condition in attacks on a convoy northbound to Tunisia, Navy communique said today.

JAN 24 1943

The destroyed merchant ships were of 6,000 tons and 2,000 tons. The schooners, equipped for anti-submarine warfare, was of 200 tons and the grounded trawler was of 400 tons.

The submarine first attacked the southbound convoy of two 6,000 ton ships under escort of three destroyers.

A torpedo in one of the merchantmen damaged and stopped her and the next day, the submarine finished off the wounded ship despite a surrounding cover of rescue tugs and destroyers.

The other merchant ship accompanied by one destroyer retired the communique said.

Three days later, the same submarine attacked the schooner trawler and 2,000 ton merchant ship with torpedo and gunfire while along the east coast of Sardinia.

Allied Bombers Hit Two Ships In Rabaul Raid

JAN 24 1943

Fell Five Japanese Planes; All Enemy Resistance in Papuan Peninsula Ends

Allied Headquarters in Australia, Sunday, Jan. 24 (AP). — Two more ships have been hit by bombs at Rabaul, New Britain, where earlier this week Allied planes sent four vessels, totaling 24,000 tons, to the bottom, the Allied high command reported today. Eight to ten Jap Zeros were shot down in air fights.

At the same time, the noon communication announced that all fighting in the Papuan peninsula of New Guinea has ceased with 117 Japs taken prisoner.

At the same time the noon communiqué announced that all fighting in the Papuan Peninsula of New Guinea had ceased, with 117 Japanese taken prisoner.

Five Japanese Zero planes were downed in dog-fighting which occurred during the latest Rabaul raid.

"Our heavy bombers attacked the harbor before dawn," General Douglas MacArthur's communiqué stated, "striking at shipping and airdromes. A fuel dump at Vunakanau was hit and left burning furiously with numerous explosions visible for seventy-five miles; other bombs fell in the dispersal areas and blast bays. Vessels at anchor and a convoy approaching the harbor were bombed, but searchlight glare was such that results could not be observed.

Bomber Bags Five Zeros

"During the day one of our heavy bombers on armed reconnaissance over the area seriously damaged a 12,000-ton transport in the harbor with a direct hit and five near misses and scored two near hits on an 8,000-ton ship north of Rabaul, which came to a standstill. Twelve enemy fighters intercepted the bomber in a running fight lasting 1 hour and 5 minutes. Five enemy planes were destroyed and two damaged. Our bomber returned safely."

[Mention of a convoy in Rabaul's vicinity could be regarded as indicative of impending Japanese action in the Southwest Pacific. It was from Rabaul that the Japanese sent a convoy to Lae recently which resulted in severe shipping losses and the costliest Japanese air defeat of the war to date. It also was from Rabaul that some reinforcements have steamed down into the Solomons sector.]

Number of Prisoners a Surprise

The news of the cessation of fighting in Papua was presaged in yesterday's communiqué which told of the elimination of all organized Japanese resistance around Sanananda, leaving only small groups of Japanese soldiers wandering aimlessly in the jungles.

[The taking of 117 Japanese prisoners was amazing in the light of the war to date. A Japanese officer taken prisoner earlier in the New Guinea fighting said that Emperor Hirohito had commanded the Japanese to fight to the last man. In most cases, prisoners taken in a battle sector have been almost negligible.]

"Liquidation has been completed with heavy casualties to the enemy," said the communiqué concerning the final stages of the Sanananda fighting which wound up action against a Japanese Papuan army which once totaled 15,000 men.

"One hundred seventeen prisoners were taken yesterday. Ground fighting in Papua has ceased."

Proving as did the bomber over Rabaul that Allied bombers can hold their own against superior numbers of Japanese planes, a heavy bomber in the vicinity of Wewak, New Guinea, shot down three Japanese Zeros for certain and probably got two others out of a swarm of eighteen which engaged it in a running fight of 1 hour and 35 minutes. The bomber got home safely.

the Prome district of Central Burma yesterday and pounded Donbiak, in western Burma, in a series of widespread raids, a British communique said today.

The Japanese position at Donbiak, on the Mayu Peninsula north of Akyab, was shelled by British artillery on Thursday, the British said, and the aerial attack to soften up the invaders followed yesterday.

Nine trucks were reported destroyed and a number of Japanese soldiers killed as British bombs caught a convoy on the Schwedaling-Prome road. Shipping on the Irrawaddy River and along the Arakan coast was damaged by attacks from the air, it was announced. Two British planes failed to return from the mission.

Japanese aircraft made an attack in southeast Bengal during the night and returned at noon today to bomb the Chittagong area, not far from the Burma border.

Only a few planes took part in last night's attack and no casualties were reported, the communique said. Damage was said to be slight. No details were available on the bombing of the Chittagong area, it was reported.

Enemy Loses 53 Planes To One U. S. Squadron

Fortresses Also Account for 4 Ships in 6 Months in Pacific

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 23 (AP).—One American Flying Fortress squadron operating in the Southwest Pacific has flown more than 1,000,000 miles on 630 missions in the last six months during which it has destroyed thirty-three Japanese fighters in combat and more than twenty aground and sunk a heavy cruiser, two merchant ships and a transport. The disclosure was made at Sydney today by Sergeant Pilot Mervyn Bell, of the Royal Australian Air Force, co-pilot of one of the planes in the squadron.

Bell was enthusiastic about his American flying mates, declaring: "The Yanks are the greatest team I've ever been with."

MALTA CHEERS CAPTURE OF TRIPOLI BY BRITISH

VALLETTA, Malta, Jan. 23 — (AP) Cheers rose from the battered and bombed populace of Malta today and faded and tattered flags flew above the many scarred buildings as this most-raided island celebrated the British victory at Tripoli.

The islanders believed the Axis would be now getting some of the punishment which Malta endured when it was situated between the enemy air forces in Sicily and Tripoli.

Allies End Campaign In Southeast Papua; Jap Army Eliminated

Sanananda Pockets Clear; Allied Bombers Sink Four Enemy Ships at Rabaul

By VERN HAUGLAND,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, Jan. 23.—Organized Japanese resistance in Southeast Papua ended at 2:05 p.m. (local time) yesterday when the last two remaining pockets held by an enemy force which once numbered 15,000 were wiped out by American and Australian troops.

The last to fall was a group of Japs on the coast northwest of Sanananda. Attacked in the early morning by Australians, the enemy registered bitterly but withdrew a short distance. Artillery and motors softened the new defense and an afternoon attack crumpled the enemy.

Two days ago the Americans cleaned out the main Japanese pocket two miles from the coast along Soputa track, using heavy artillery and motar fire. A small unit was left on the north side of the track.

A total of 475 dead were counted in that area.

JAN 24 1943

Kill All Save One.

At 7 a.m. yesterday, 33 Japanese members of this unit attempted to escape, and Americans killed 32 of them and took the remaining one prisoner.

The Americans subjected the few remaining Japs to well-organized mortar and artillery battering starting at midmorning. Shortly after midday, the Americans reported the Japs cleaned out.

Fourteen Jap stragglers were killed south of Gona. As far as is known, the only remaining Japanese in the Papuan Peninsula are isolated soldiers wandering hopelessly in the swamps. They are being hunted down.

Some 1,200 Jap casualties have been counted in the Sanananda area to date. A total of 898 previously were killed in the Gona area, making a Jap death list of 2,100 in this sector.

The Australians captured a big wireless transmitting set near Sanananda on January 20. Examination showed it was in perfect condition, capable of reaching Tokio. Evidently the Japs were surprised and hadn't had time to destroy it.

Materiel Taken.

The Americans also captured large quantities of arms and ammunition.

The folks back home would have had to see the conditions under which the main attack started in order to believe it.

In the bivouac area, men camped in a sea of mud after a night-long rain judged at 10 to 11 inches—almost one-tenth this area's total annual rainfall.

Pvt. Peter Passini of Farmington, Ill., asked how he'd spent the night, replied cheerfully: "Oh, we were afraid for awhile we were going to be attacked by Jap submarines, but I guess they couldn't make their way through the mud."

Allied bombers, meanwhile, were reported to have struck another heavy blow at Japanese shipping in the harbor of Rabaul, New Britain, sinking four vessels totaling 24,000 tons in a low-level dawn attack.

One Sank in 4 Minutes.

"Direct hits on a 4,000-ton cargo ship split and sank the vessel within four minutes," said the communique. "An 8,000-ton transport was left burning as a result of two direct hits and later was seen to explode.

"A 4,000-ton vessel with a lighter moored alongside was hit and sank within [illegible] minutes, while another 8,000-ton vessel received three hits and was left burning with a series of explosions. Two searchlights were extinguished by strafing."

Although the big four-motored bombers ran into a high altitude snowstorm and icing conditions en route to Rabaul, and flew through heavy anti-aircraft fire over the target, all returned safely.

Lae and Salamaua Hit.

Other Allied air formations blasted at Japanese bases at Lae, Salamaua and Madang on the northeastern coast of New Guinea and also attacked an enemy merchant vessel in the Arafura Sea off Cape Van Den Bosch, in Dutch New Guinea, the communique said.

At the same time two Japanese bombers were reported to have made a night raid on Darwin, Australia, dropping bombs harmlesly in a swamp. Three Japanese raiders also attacked Milne Bay, New Guinea, and a single enemy plane dropped two bombs at Merauke and the south coast of Dutch New Guinea, but caused no damage, Allied headquarters said.

U. S. Continues To Mop Up Foe On Guadalcanal

Vandegrift Says Ten Have Been Killed for Every American Lost on Isle

AN ADVANCED SOUTH PACIFIC BASE, Jan. 23 (AP).—Ten Japanese have been killed on Guadalcanal for every American soldier lost, and enemy air losses in the Solomons have been seven to each one for the Americans, Major General A. A. Vandegrift, of the United States Marine Corps, said today.

"The Jap is a good fighting man, and any one who says differently is mistaken," he said at a brief interview. "But he is no superman by any means, and he can be killed the same as any one else.'

General Vandegrift conferred with Admiral William F. Halsey sr., commander of the south Pacific fleet. He has been relieved of his command on Guadalcanal after months of the hardest fighting in the fighting marines' history.

"At the present moment," General Vandegrift said, "I feel Guadalcanal is secure to us."

Without citing figures, he said American troops were taking a terrific toll of Japanese in the Solomons fighting aside from many thousands of the enemy aboard troopships which have been sunk attempting to land in the area.

General Vandegrift has turned over his command to Major General Alexander M. Patch, who had been commanding an advance base since March. "The situation is in good hands," he said.

Two British Agents Among 15 Persons on Airliner Overdue at Lima.

JAN 24 1943

Lima, Jan. 23 (A. P.)—Rescue parties plunged into the rugged mountains of southern Peru today in search of a Pan American-Grace Airways transport missing en route from Santiago to Lima with fifteen persons aboard, including two British diplomats, two yeomen of the United States Navy, an American civilian and three American crewmen.

The plane, which left Santiago yesterday morning on the 1,600-mile flight, had been overdue in Lima since 5 P. M. last night. Airway officials said the last direct word was received from the plane at 3 P. M., when it passed over Ocona, about 400 miles southeast of Lima.

The message indicated the craft was in no difficulty at that time.

Airmen familiar with the Santiago-Lima run, however, suggest it might have been forced down by bad weather. Flying conditions on this route, they said, now are at their worst because of heavy summer fogs.

Among the eleven passengers were William Mackie, a British diplomatic courier; Alfred Howard of the British Diplomatic Service; Charles Petke and Allen Slattery, United States Navy yeomen; Alexandre Crowe, Cain, identified only as an American civilian; Leon Winters, a Briton, and Claudio Planet, son of a former Chilean Foreign Minister.

The American members of the crew were listed as Golden Gardner, 25 years old, pilot; Robert Turbyne, 27, co-pilot, and James Ewing, 21, radioman.

Three women were among the other passengers, who included three South Americans and two Dutch citizens. The plane's purser was a Peruvian.

BRAZIL JUNGLES NOW SUPPLYING VALUABLE LATEX

JAN 24 1943

EDITOR'S NOTE: Henry W. Bagley, who wrote this story on the valuable work of U. S. rubber experts in the Amazon valley, has just returned from a five-week tour of the region. He traveled, as do the experts, by any means of conveyance available—by plane, train and ship, by dugout canoe, on muleback and afoot. Bagley is chief of the Associated Press bureau in Rio de Janeiro.)

BY HENRY W. BAGLEY

BELEM, Brazil, Jan. 23.—(AP) By horse, mule, boat, plane, on foot or by any mode of transportation they can find, American rubber technicians are going into the jungles of Brazil to help get the most out of that country's rubber potential.

More and better Brazilian rubber for the United Nations is their aim; teaching improved methods of obtaining rubber is the way they hope to accomplish it.

One of these experts is Michael Polli of Cleveland who went home for a vacation after three years with Firestone in Liberia only to be snapped up by the Rubber Reserve corporation and dispatched post-haste to Brazil.

Polli looked over the situation in the Amazon valley, then turned his eyes on the coastal state of Bahia. There he found something that many rubber experts didn't know existed in that region—a good, amazon-type rubber tree.

Although the site is hundreds of miles from the Amazon, original home of the "hevea brasiliensis," which usually is referred to as just "Hevea" or the "Para Rubber tree," Polli says the region around Una and the neighboring village of Franconia contains 500,000 to 600,000 Hevea trees.

A Return Home

The first ones were brought in about 1910 from Ceylon (which originally got them from the Amazon), but they were planted only as shade for cocoa, Bahia's principal crop. When Brazilian rubber enjoyed a minor boom in 1928, Bahia hevea was tapped, but it soon fell into disuse, as cocoa occupied most of the state's labor.

Polli went to Una last September, knowing practically no Portuguese. Although no one in the town of 400 spoke English, he managed to make himself understood and by November was speaking the native language fluently.

Whether in Bahia or the Amazon, here's what a hevea rubber worker does: Before sunup, he goes out with his bucket and his jebong knife, a short-bladed instrument with the blunt point turned almost at a right angle, similar to a linoleum knife. Reaching his first tree (let's assume it never has been tapped before), he makes a shallow cut in the bark, from left to right at a downward angle of about 35 degrees, about half way around the trunk some 40 inches above the ground. Immediately a white fluid, which looks like milk, begins to flow down the cut. Quickly the worker hooks a small cup into the bark at the lower end of the cut, and the precious latex trickles in.

JAN 24 1943

Perhaps he will make another cut in the same tree on the opposite side of the trunk, but not connecting it with the first one. Then, after attaching his second cup, he passes on to his next tree.

He will cut, say, 200 trees in a day, and on his way back home he will pick up the latex from the little cups and pour it into his bucket. He may gather as much as 15 pounds of latex in a day.

Next day, his process is the same except that on trees already cut, he simply shaves off a small part of the bottom of the cut and the latex flows again. Thus after many months he will have carried his original cut down to the bottom of the tree.

Bark Renews Self

By that time the milking season will be over. When it comes around again, there will be new bark.

That's the new method of cutting which is being taught by the rubber reserve men, who say it gives much higher production and affects the life of the tree no more than the old system of making wide slashes in herring bone style perhaps an inch apart.

When the jungle worker gets back to his house with his day's latex, he builds a fire in a pit, places a low chimney over it and proceeds to smoke the fluid on a long stick or paddle. He starts with a small quantity of already-coagulated latex on his stick and pours cup after cup of the liquid over this mass, constantly turning the paddle.

He winds up with a rubber ball on a stick, and next day he adds his new supply to the same ball. In perhaps 10 days he'll have a ball weighing more than 100 pounds. After the stick is removed, the ball of rubber is branded and piled up with others for shipment to the export port.

That's when another group of Uncle Sam's technicians come into the picture. These are men like Lewis G. A. Brownson of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Frederick Barr of Passaic, N. J. Brownson is stationed in Belem, at the Amazon's mouth, and Barr operates in Manaos, an up-river port.

Guinazu Sees Probe Of Axis Spies Hurt by Inter-American Report

Argentina Doing Best To Cope With Agents, Minister Declares

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 23.—Foreign Minister Enrique Ruiz Guinazu declared last night that Argentina's investigation of Axis espionage activities might be impaired by the publication yesterday in Montevideo of an Inter-American committee report on espionage in this country. He said it "added nothing" to information already submitted to his government by the United States Embassy.

The foreign minister, in a statement to the press, said Argentina was doing its best to cope with the Axis spy ring under her own laws. Argentina was described in the report as the "center of operations" of German espionage in the Western Hemisphere.

Thirty-eight persons were arrested as a result of memoranda previously turned over to Argentina by the American Embassy. Six of them have been arraigned and released on bond, pending trial early in February.

The committee report said there were at least four groups of agents operating in the ring, whose activities were co-ordinated by German diplomatic agents. The functions of the group, it was stated, included espionage; the transmission of information through diplomatic channels, clandestine radios, the mails and commercial cables; dissemination of propaganda; sabotage, transit through unwatched zones with false passports and the assumption of false nationalities.

Much of the information, it was said, was gathered through the interception by radio experts in the United States of messages exchanged by Nazi agents in Argentina with their superiors in Germany. One message cited was dated November 17, 1942, and said that every armed merchantman belonging to the United Nations would be equipped with anti-torpedo netting when touching at Trinidad, Freetown and other British ports.

Other messages mentioned the number of planes flying from Natal to North Africa and the Middle East. One example cited said a certain Curtiss plant "will be in mass production of dive bombers for Navy series SB2 one seaters," and gave details of armanent and horsepower.

Base in Brazil Is Key Point in Ferry Service

Planes Roll Into Airport, Then Roar Out for Duty in Africa, Burma or China

JAN 24 1943

NATAL, Brazil, Jan. 23 (AP).—The big American two-engined bomber roars in, rolls to a stop halfway down the macadam runway and wheels aside. Another follows her, and another, and another.

The crews climb out and trudge across the ground to one of the many long, one-story structures on the vast field—some to make their reports, some to get showers and changes of clothes, some to tumble into bed.

Gasoline trucks slide up alongside the gray-painted bombers; hoses are run in. Repair crews clamber over the ships. Everything must be ready quickly, for these planes are going to push on—perhaps in a few hours, perhaps in a few days—to the fighting fronts of Africa and Asia.

When they again roar down that runway, most of them with the same crews, they will be off on the long jump through the tropical night to a mid-ocean rendezvous on a tiny British-owned island, 1,000 miles east of Natal. Before the next day is out, if all goes well, they will be somewhere in Africa, on the underside of Africa's great bulge.

Then within a few hours they may shoot off again—perhaps at different tangents. Some may strike up across British Nigeria to a fighting French post on Lake Chad, in the heart of French Equatorial Africa; go on from there to the dry Anglo-Egyptian Sudan; then to a Red Sea post which Premier Benito Mussolini used in subduing Ethiopia, but now a British and American stronghold for African operations; thence along the edge of the Arabian Sea and finally into western India.

May Head for Burma or China

Usually the Allied forces in India take over here, but sometimes the ferry pilots fly across India toward the frontier of Burma, for operations against the Japanese. Or the men may take the ships into Chungking to join Major General Claire L. Chenault's air force

Perhaps, too, instead of going on eastward the planes will turn northward to Cairo. In a few days they will be pounding the Germans and Italians in Tunis

From their first landing spot in Africa after the overwater trip, they may head westward, then northward, up the shore of the African hump, with stops in Liberia and British fields at Freetown and Bathurst to Morocco and Algeria, to strike at Tunis from the west.

Natal is the middle-point, and perhaps the keypoint, in the United States' long chain of air bases over which bombing and transport planes and supplies are fed to Allied forces halfway round the globe. It is part of an aerial system running from the United States through Puerto Rico, Trinidad, British Guiana, Belem and Natal to African and Asian battle fronts.

The United States Army Ferry Command took the first planes across from Natal to Africa long before the United States got into the war. Then the American government got the Brazilian government's permission for Pan American Airways to bring planes from the Untied States to Natal and ferry them across to Africa. The set-up was called Pan American Air Ferries.

Service Reorganized in June

When the Army revised the ferry organization, the South Atlantic Wing of the Army Air Transport Command was created in June. Pan American Air Ferries in a sense was incorporated into the Army operation. Transcontinental and Wesern Air, and Eastern Airlines also came into the South Atlantic ferry movement, under Army control.

Now those companies continue to fly cargo ships, but under Army orders. The lines provide the personnel, but the men go and come in the ships assigned to them and or schedules set by the Army.

Headquarters Moved

Brigadier General Robert L. Walsh heads the South Atlantic wing of the Army air transport command, pulling the strings that keep the bombers and cargo ships moving from Puerto Rico to Africa.

General Walsh had his wing headquarters until recently at Georgetown, British Guiana. The field, which under the Anglo-American destroyer deal became United States territory for ninety-nine years, is headquarters for one of the two groups making up the South Atlantic wing. The other is based at Natal, to which General Walsh has shifted wing headquarters.

Heading the group is Lieutenant Colonel J. V. Dallin, of Philadelphia. His right-hand man is deputy commander Major Robert T. Barton jr., of Richmond, Va.

Parnamarim Field, outside Natal, was once just a poor airport for Italian, German and French commercial planes crossing occasionally between Brazil and Africa, and for Pan American Airways coastal planes. Today there are no French or German planes at Parnamarim.

End of Guadalcanal Fighting Expected by Marine Officer

Lieut.-Col. L. B. Puller Says Only 4000 Japanese Are Left Out of 15000, and Cleanup Nears.

JAN 24 1943

Washington, Jan. 23 (A. P.).—Lieut.-Col. Lewis B. Puller, a veteran Marine officer, reported that Japanese troops on Guadalcanal have been whittled down from 15,000 to fewer than 4,000 and the Navy's announcement that American troops are mopping up pockets of enemy resistance emphasized today the possibility that the campaign there may soon be victoriously concluded.

Col. Puller, wounded seven times on November 8 last during an assault that drove the foe from the eastern end of the strategic island, believes the Nipponese could be wiped out in ten days with a full-scale offensive.

He expressed that opinion at a press conference yesterday, but explained that he didn't know what were the plans of the commanding general there. He estimated that the Japanese have lost 11,000 men in land fighting since the battle of the Solomons began six months ago. And of the remaining force, he said, probably 1,000 to 2,000 are stragglers.

Before Col. Puller gave his account, the Navy reported that American troops were advancing against Japanese positions in some sectors and units of the enemy forces were being eliminated.

Japs Had 15,000.

Col. Puller, a soft-voiced Virginian, who commanded a Guadalcanal battalion before the Army moved in to relieve the Marines, estimated the original forces, plus reinforcements, totaled 15,000. Before he left the island on January 1, he said, 7,000 were killed and 3,000 others died of wounds. Since then, he noted, the Navy had reported an additional 1,032 killed, leaving fewer than 4,000 there now.

Henderson airfield, built by the Japanese and seized by the Marines early in the fighting, has been enlarged so that it can be used by the heaviest and fastest bombers, the Marine officer said.

Sailors on 'Wrong' Beach Rescued Ship Survivors

Eyewitness Describes Axis Attack Which Sank Leedstown Off Algiers.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—(AP) It was all a mistake that turned out very well indeed for crew members and soldiers aboard the torpedoed transport Leedstown, Hunter Wood, 34, of New York, a chief boson's mate in the Coast Guard, revealed today.

It occurred during the North African landing operations when almost anything might have happened to a man and a good many things did.

Wood was a member of a landing party which went ashore in the vicinity of Algiers. When the initial operation was finished, Wood was ordered to take a detail of ten men and join his senior officer and the remainder of his group at a nearby beach.

Landed on Wrong Beach

The trouble started then because there were two beaches with almost identical names and Wood went to the wrong one.

He set up quarters in a small villa from where the Leedstown, anchored a mile and a half offshore, was plainly visible. The transport was tied up because of a damaged rudder.

Hardly had Wood examined the appointments of his new quarters when a German bomber showed up over the Leedstown and soon another appeared. Each plane dropped three bombs. Then a torpedo struck the vessel amidship and the shore group could see that she was being abandoned. Life rafts floated in toward the beach.

From their "wrong beach" Wood and his party swam out through heavy surf with lines which were tied to floating rafts. The pounding was so heavy that many of the survivors had been knocked from their rafts into the sea and they held on as the ropes were hauled in.

Natives Help

Wood's party was joined by soldiers from a nearby town and native French and Arabs also helped in the rescue.

The Arabs slashed off reeds about 15 feet long, Wood related in an account released by the Navy department, and waded out in the surf extending the reeds to the men who were pulled ashore as soon as they caught hold. Children of the natives showed up at the water front bringing wine and brandy for the survivors and all hands helped the men reach the movie theater in the village where they were permitted to rest.

Wood said he was also an eyewitness on another occasion of the torpedoing of the British aircraft carrier Avenger. He was on shipboard at that time and when general alarm sounded took station at his guns forward.

Attacked at Night

"The night was black as ink," he said, "and we were straining our eyes to find a submarine that was said to be lying on the surface when we heard a muffled explosion dead astern and it was the Avenger that was torpedoed."

Wood is a marine artist in civil life and he did a painting on the loss of the Avenger. In his account, Wood praised Ensign Lute Michael McLin, 29, of New Orleans, La., and of Donald Bryson, 35, bosun's mate, first class, of New London, Conn.

He said that Ensign McLin "asked none of his men to do nothing he wouldn't do himself."

"He was in water up to his neck, right along side the rest of us," Wood said, "and so was my bosun's mate, Bryson."

Brig.-Gen. Byers Decorated.

Washington, Jan. 23 (A. P.).—A Silver Star for gallantry in action in New Guinea has been awarded Brig.-Gen. Clovis E. Byers, 43 years old, the War Department announced today.

A citation declared that Gen. Byers frequently visited front lines at Buna and inspired officers and men by his "fearless gallantry under enemy fire."

Gen. Byers, born in Columbus, Ohio, formerly was an instructor at the United States Military Academy.

The department also announced the award of a Distinguished Service Medal to Col. Paul B. Wurtsmith for exceptionally meritorious service as commander of an Army Air Forces fighter group in the vicinity of Darwin, Australia.

SHIP UNLOADINGS IN TWO INQUIRIES

Washington, Jan. 23 (A. P.).—Representative Vinson, Democrat, of Georgia, chairman of the House Naval Committee, said today that he would appoint a special sub-committee on Tuesday to investigate a published report that union merchant seamen refused to unload a ship at Guadalcanal because it was Sunday. He added that the Navy already had launched an inquiry.

Mr. Vinson did not give any details of the Navy's investigation.

In a report to the House Naval Committee earlier this week, the Navy Bureau of Yards and Docks declared that construction battalions were being enlarged as a result of the discovery, "soon after our entrance into the war, that civilian personnel would not prove satisfactory for construction activities at outlying bases in or near the combat zones, for reasons of discipline, efficient organization and security."

"On October 12, 1942," Rear Admiral Ben Moreell, chief of the bureau, told the committee, "the formation of eight construction battalions was authorized. These are stevedore battalions specially formed and trained for the task of loading and unloading ships at outlying bases."

The Akron (Ohio) Beacon Journal published the story yesterday, quoting six Marines recently back from the Solomon Islands.

Mr. Vinson said he had asked the Beacon Journal for all the information concerning the situation in the newspaper's possession, together with the Marines' names. Meanwhile he called also for a report from Under-Secretary of Navy James V. Forrestal and Vice Admiral F. J. Horne.

Lieut.-Col. Lewis B. Puller, United States Marines, also back recently from the Solomons, asserted that he knew of no difficulties in unloading ships—that it was a matter of routine for sailors, soldiers and Marines to unload the vessels, whether Government-owned or merchant ships.

In New York Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime Union (C. I. O.), said that there was no union rule preventing merchant seamen from unloading ships on Sunday, and that it was a matter for the master of the ship to determine.

COAST GUARD SHIP LOST IN ATLANTIC

Cutter Was Commanded by Lieut. Thomas LaFarge of Cornwall, Noted Artist.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23. — (AP) The Coast Guard cutter Natsek, under command of Lt. (j.g.) Thomas Sargeant LaFarge, an artist in civilian life, has been overdue in the north Atlantic for several weeks, the Navy reported today, and "must be presumed to be lost."

Lieut. LaFarge had a crew of about 30 men on the 117 foot craft, which was built at Rockland, Me. in 1941 and put in service only last June.

On Routine Patrol

Navy officials said the Natsek was on routine Coast Guard patrol—which might have meant either offshore work or far-ranging excursions at sea.

Lieut. LaFarge, a reserve officer who made several Atlantic crossings in sailboats before joining the Coast Guard, was grandson of the famous artist, John LaFarge. In his own right the officer was well known in art circles for murals, frescoes and mosaics in various buildings in Washington and New York.

His wife, Mrs. Marie I. LaFarge, lives at Cornwall, Conn.

Lieut. LaFarge, 38, had had extensive experience in cruising along the coasts of Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, Labrador, and Bermuda and had made several Atlantic crossings in sailboats prior to entering the Coast Guard reserve.

The communique announcing loss of the cutter also included a single line reference to fighting in the Solomons, indicating comparative quiet on that front. "U. S. forces on Guadalcanal continue mopping up and patrol operations," the communique said.

YORKTOWN MEN PROMOTED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—(AP) Nineteen enlisted men have been promoted by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief of the Pacific fleet, for meritorious service aboard the aircraft carrier Yorktown and action in the battles of the Coral sea and Midway.

PIGEON DELIVERS MESSAGE IN AFRICA

Bird Wounded Three Times Completes Ninety-Mile Flight.

JAN 24 1943

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—(AP) If there were medals for birds, "Lady Astor," a little carrier pigeon, would rate the highest decoration, Signal corps officers agreed today.

They told of "Lady" dropping exhausted at a French Morocco headquarters, wounded three times, but home with an important message from a unit 90 miles away.

"She'll never have to work again if I have anything to say about it," said Sergeant Adam Samson, Totowa, N. J., the bird's trainer. "Lady has done her bit. I want to thank the person who gave her to us."

Lady was given to the Signal corps by a member of the Steinway club of New York.

President-elect arrived here early today on an official visit as guest of the Government, and members of his party told this story:

A short distance out of Richmond, Va., Marine Corps Warrant Officer Edwin H. Levenstein and Privates Vincent R. Kasyjanski and Stefan Jakenec wandered into Dr. Guani's private car. They were telling Juan F. Yriart of Uruguay that they couldn't find a seat on the train. Dr. Guani overheard the conversation.

"Come on in and sit down," said Dr. Guani. Then, after making the marines comfortable, he paid their Pullman fares to Washington.

A member of the party quoted Dr. Guani as observing:

"I'm not sitting here in comfort while American boys in uniform, fighting for the defense of democracy, have to stand."

NEW AND BIGGER SCRAP CAMPAIGN SOON PREDICTED

It Takes a Lot of Sorting to Prepare the Scrap for Mills.

By JAMES D. WHITE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 — (AP) From Greenland's icy mountains to . . . (military secret), the World's junk piles are turning in strategic scrap to the metal mills of America for the weapons of total war.

We are getting scrap from 20 countries, and thus reverse the historic trend. We used to export scrap to all buyers (including the Axis) without much restriction. Those days are gone, probably forever.

Today we are collecting junk from any place we can get it, in Latin America, from New Zealand and Australia, from Africa and Egypt, and soon will be getting it from the Middle East.

Battle scrap is already coming from Hawaii and the Southern Pacific, and soon will come from North Africa.

What About Old Scrap?

Meanwhile, what has happened to the scrap metal which this country has been collecting?

Part of it has already gone into the mills; the rest will get there within three months, say the experts.

The national scrap drive last fall, led by the nation's newspapers, resulted in a reported total of around 5,000,000 tons of scrap mental.

But scrap is something quite different from the junk you and I used to know back home. Today the scrap dealer is a pretty strategic bird. He is no longer just a fellow who obligingly hauls off something we don't want. He has to be an expert on the vital metals he handles, because he has to do a lot of sorting and processing of junk that you never hear about.

Must Be Separated

Scrap yields every known variety of metal and combination of metals. To be usable in the specialized mills of 1943, it has to be separated into its various grades and types.

Here's what the recent scrap drive brought out:

While enthusiastic and frequently competing circles reported a total collection of around 5,000,000 tons, only part was immediately usable—for two reasons: first, the competing areas frequently reported large (and very valuable) scrap tonnage like abandoned street car lines and obsolete industrial assemblies which had to be torn up and taken apart before they could be moved to the mills. A lot of this work still has to be done.

The other reason is that loyal Americans turned in everything, including the kitchen sink, to throw at Hitler and Hirohito. That's fine, but with every conceivable type of metal all mixed up together, it is taking a lot of sorting and grading.

Don't get the idea that it isn't welcomed just because it's hard to handle. Everything turned in will eventually be used, and gladly.

Even the rust that collects at the bottom of a scrap pile is used.

If you hear that not all the scrap you've collected has gone to the mill, just remember that it takes even the experts quite a time to take it apart and sort the various grades, and that steel mills can absorb only a certain amount of what is to them relatively low grade scrap as they go along.

New Drive Likely

But they have to have it. And you'll probably see a scrap drive this spring or summer that'll make last year's effort look small.

The simple and important fact is: we're after all the scrap iron and steel, scrap rubber, and scrap copper and other non-ferrous metals we can get.

How much scrap iron and steel, for instance, do we use? Well, before we answer that. Let's look at the whole steel picture. Our production goal for 1943 is 100,000,000 tons — 10,000,000 more than last year.

About half of this will come from scrap. But from the metal man's standpoint there are two kinds of scrap. One is obtained from processing plants where still filings and cuttings provide raw materials fully ready to go into the melting pot. The other is purchased on the open market at the nation's junk—the old tubs and busted machinery you turned in last year.

So of the total steel met, 50 per cent is iron ore, the rest is scrap. It has to be that way, because we use predominantly the open-hearth furnace process which requires it.

Therefore our steel industry expects to need 25,000,000 tons of collected junk in 1943 for scrap metal. That's five times what the 1942 public scrap drive reported.

How much are we importing? That's military information, but the scrap experts say it will be cumulative as certain dismantling projects we already have under way in Latin America begin to yield scrap this year in bigger quantities.

LEND-LEASE SUPPLIES RECEIVED FROM BRITAIN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—(AP) The Office of War Information today issued its third press release within a week depicting two-way operation of the Lend-Lease act. The law expires June 30 and Congress will be asked to renew it.

The statement said that Britain provided the United States with 160 Spitfire fighting planes under Lend-Lease as well as other supplies, including 100 miles of portable airfield runways, more than 1,000,000 anti-tank mines and grenades, 130 reconnaissance boats, and medical supplies for 100,000 men.

Nazis Say Italy Suffers Chiefly A 'Moral Blow'

Discount Value of ... From Military View ... Rome Admits Big Lo...

JAN 24 1943

The fall of Tripoli was more a "moral than a military or economic" blow to the Italian people, a German broadcast recorded by The Associated Press said yesterday.

"Tripolitania had lost its importance since the beginning of the war, and was less valuable economically than the fertile Cyrenaica," the broadcast said, and "since the occupation of Tunisia by the Axis, Tripolitania has almost completely lost its military importance."

Italy's Libya colony was divided into two large provinces, Tripolitania in the west and Cyrenaica in the east.

The Rome radio had declared earlier that "the great struggle which Italy has been waging for twenty-three months in North Africa is coming to an end," but added: "In war the loss of territory is not the end of maneuver. On the other hand, the loss of all these territories cannot prevent ultimate victory."

This broadcast admitted that the Italians had suffered heavy losses in the desert campaign, and attributed the capture of Tripoli to the British 8th Army's superiority in men and equipment.

The German report said the Italians felt consolation in that "the British had to pay dearly for the conquest of Tripolitania," and that they had been expecting the loss of the capital for some days.

"Of importance," it added, "is the fact that almost the entire European population of Tripolitania has been evacuated long ago when the bomb attacks began to endanger the life of Europeans. Only the fewest of Italians will thus have to be concerned about their relatives here."

British radio estimates placed Italy's losses in man power in the war at 500,000, 450,000 of them in Africa, including 250,000 in British hands as prisoners.

A Rome commentary said Italy's position in Africa was made critical when the British Admiralty decided to concentrate in the Mediterranean the majority of its submarines for attacks on Axis convoys, and when these undersea forces were supplemented by American submarines.

Undersea craft, aided by torpedo bombers, launched continuous attacks against our ships heading toward Africa," the broadcast said.

Libya's War Timetable

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The long, bitter and bloody seesaw warfare that at last has carried the triumphant British Eighth Army to Tripoli and liquidated Mussolini's African empire, had its beginning two years and four months ago, when an Italian army leaped into Egypt for the rich prize of the Suez.

Their hopes were smashed by the British who drove deep into Libya beyond Bengasi to El Agheila, only to be thrown back by reinforced Axis armies. The British recovered, drove again to El Agheila, and then lost all their gains and part of Egypt to Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, crafty tactician of the desert.

Now, in their third offensive, the British have won all of Libya.

Here are the highlight dates in the six campaigns:

Sept. 14, 1940—The Italians drive into Egypt, penetrating 70 miles to Sidi Barrani.

Dec. 8, 1940—The British under Gen. Sir Archiball P. Wavell open their first offensive.

Jan. 22, 1941—Tobruk falls to the British, along with 25,000 Italian prisoners.

Feb. 6, 1941—British capture Bengasi, 340 miles west of the Egyptian frontier.

April 4, 1941 — Resurgent Axis army retakes Bengasi.

April 12, 1941—Tobruk placed under siege by the Axis.

April 13, 1941—The Axis again reaches the Egyptian border.

Dec. 6, 1941 — Second offensive begun by British under Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck.

Dec. 10, 1941 — Besieged Tobruk garrison relieved.

Dec. 25, 1941—British take Bengasi second time.

Jan. 29, 1942 — Marshal Rommel wrests Bengasi from British.

June 21, 1942—Axis takes Tobruk, and estimated 25,000 British prisoners.

July 6, 1942—British hold against Axis at El Alamein, 60 miles from Alexandria.

Oct. 23, 1942—Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery begins third British offensive.

Nov. 13, 1942—British retake Tobruk again.

Nov. 20, 1942—Bengasi falls to British.

Jan. 23, 1943—Tripoli captured by British.

Eight Ship Survivors Lived for 20 Days On Raw Shark Meat

Big Fish Kept Them Worried by Rubbing Against Raft

JAN 24 1943

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 23.—An American seaman told yesterday how eight survivors of a ship sunk last October in the Caribbean found sharks both a nuisance and a means of saving their lives.

For 20 days, he said, the castaways lived almost entirely on raw shark meat, but the big fish kept them in a continual state of worry by rubbing against the bottom of their life raft to scrape off barnacles.

The seaman, Ernest H. Cowan of Becton, Tex., was one of two survivors landed here. The other six reached another East Coast port.

Wove Fishline.

"At one time," Seaman Cowan said, "we had two 5-foot sharks thrashing and writhing aboard our 5 by 14 raft, with the eight of us. Men and sharks were very much at grips until we killed them with our knives and bare hands.

"We wove a fishline from shreds of our shirts and I made a small hook from a key used for opening the tin cans that held our few emergency rations. With this rig we caught a small fish.

"Then I made a large hook by bending a 6-foot sea anchor rod, and tied the small fish to it for bait. The sharks immediately took the bait. They were swimming around us continually, but never got vicious, although they worried us by rubbing their backs against the bottom of the raft to scrape barnacles off their backs. It got to be a nuisance."

Sailed 150 Miles.

Seaman Cowan said they used the rest of their shirts to fashion a sail which carried them 150 miles before they were picked up by a ship.

Seaman Cowan and Jose Lamba, Puerto Rican seaman, came here from a port across the Atlantic, where they were landed by the rescue ship. The sinking of their ship was announced previously from a point outside the United States.

ADMIRAL ENGLISH ON MISSING PLANE

JAN 24 1943

Commander of Pacific Submarine Force Among 19 Lost Off West Coast.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23—(AP) Hopes were dimming tonight for the safety of Rear Admiral Robert H. English, commander of the ~~Pacific fleet~~ submarine force, and 18 other persons aboard a Navy transport plane missing since Thursday.

"The search is continuing," Navy officials reported succinctly. That was all.

Names of those missing were made public today.

That the loss of so many high-ranking officers was a severe blow was easy to discern through terse statements by Navy headquarters. Three captains, three commanders and two lieutenant commanders is a heavy toll in the fighting forces.

Navy Nurse on Plane

One woman was aboard—Lieut. (j.g.) Edna Owella Morrow, a Navy nurse assigned ~~to duty~~ in the south Pacific.

The plane was last heard from Thursday morning, when it circled the bay area unable to land because of weather conditions. Whether the pilot sought a water landing at Clear lake, which before the war was an emergency landing "field" for the Pan-American clippers, or headed back to sea was not disclosed.

Names of the other nine naval officers and nine crew members who were not naval personnel, were announced by the Navy.

Three Captains Missing

Captain Robert Holmes Smith, commanding officer of a naval vessel, whose address is Rocky Mount, N. C.

Capt. Robert E. Thomas, of the Navy civil engineer corps, director of the Pacific division of the Bureau of Yards and Docks. His address is Rockford, Ill.

Capt. Donald C. Godwin, attached to the Twelfth Naval district, San Francisco, whose address is Williamston, N. C.

Commander John J. Crane, assigned to duties at sea. His address is Toledo, Ohio.

Admiral English, who became 55 years old only a week ago today, is a native of Warrenton, Ga., and has been in the Navy since 1911, when he was graduated from the naval academy at Annapolis.

Served in First War

During the World War he had duty at the New London Ship and Engine company, Groton, Conn., and later helped fit out the submarine O-4 at the Fore River Shipbuilding company plant at Quincy, Mass. He commanded the O-4 from May, 1918, until March, 1919, and was awarded a Navy Cross for his work in operating in enemy waters.

After the war he had various commands at sea and ashore, not only on submarine duty but in various other vessels and types of service. In May, 1938, Admiral English was assigned as chief of staff and aide to the commander of the submarine force, U. S. fleet, and held that duty until June, 1939, when he was brought back to Washington for a second tour of duty in the office of the chief of naval operations.

He was made director of the fleet maintenance division of the office of naval operations in August, 1940, and remained in that assignment until 1941, when he was ordered to command at sea. Subsequently he was made commander of the submarine force of the Pacific fleet.

WAAC ~~OFFICERS INVADE~~ ARMY'S HIGHEST SCHOOL

FORT DES MOINES, Ia., Jan. 23.—(AP) Sixteen officers of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps were named today to attend the Army's highest school, the Command and General Staff school at Fort Leavenworth, Kas.

Training school officials announced the list today and one WAAC officer said it was expected the future top officers of the WAACS would come from the group.

They will enter the service of supply staff classes beginning Feb. 8 after a two-week preparatory course here. Before the war attendance at the school usually was limited to officers holding a commission of major or higher, but the first women's group includes first, second and even third officers (captains, first and second lieutenants).

ESTRADAA WAS CITED FOR EXTRAORDINARY HEROISM IN ACTION NEAR BUNA, DEC. 16. DURING AN INFANTRY ATTACK, HE ADVANCED ALONE OVER OPEN GROUND TO A POSITION WITHIN 20 YARDS OF AN ENEMY PILLBOX WHICH HE ATTACKED WITH GRENADES AND RIFLE FIRE. WHEN HIS UNIT ADVANCED TO THE POSITION, HE AGAIN TOOK THE LEAD IN CLEARING OUT ENEMY DUGOUTS. HE WAS KILLED WHILE VOLUNTARILY ENGAGED IN CLEARING OUT THE LAST ENEMY POSITION, THE CITATION SAID.

CORP.RINI ALSO EARNED HIS DECORATION THE SAME DAY. VOLUNTEERING AS A MEMBER OF A PATROL, HE LED AN ATTACK ON A STRONGLY FORTIFIED ENEMY MACHINEGUN EMPLACEMENT, WHICH HAD BEEN HOLDING UP THE ADVJNCE OF THREE COMPANIES. WHEN THE PATROL WAS HALTED BY FIRE FROM THIS EMPLACEMENT, HE WENT FORWARD ALONE AND DESTROYED THE POSITION BY THROWING GRENADES THROUGH LOOPHOLES, THE CITIATION SAID. HE WAS KILLED LATER WHILE MOPPING UP AN ENEMY DUGOUT.

CAPT.REAMS WAS MODEST ABOUT HIS PERSONAL EXPLOITS. THE SIX-FOOT 220-POUND GIANT SAID MOST OF HIS VICTIMS WERE "PLAYING POSSUM OR WERE ALREADY WOUNDED BY ARTILLERY OR MORTAR BURSTS."

BUT FROM OTHERS IN HIS COMPANY IT WAS LEARNED THAT HE LED HIS OUTFIT INTO ACTION, SEVERAL TIMES GETTING SO FAR OUT IN FRONT THAT THE PLATOON LEADERS HAD TO HURRY UP THEIR MEN TO KEEP HIM UNDER COVERING FIRE.

IT WAS HIS COMPANY WHICH SWEPT THROUGH THE JAPS' REGIMENTAL HEADQUARTERS.

PEARL HARBOR, T.H., JAN.23-(AP)-PRAISE FOR MEN AND SHIPS THAT TAKE SUPPLIES THOUSANDS OF MILES ACROSS THE PACIFIC WAS VOICED TODAY BY CAPTAIN RICHARD B.COFFMAN, U.S.NAVY SENIOR CONVOY COMMANDER, WHO PROUDLY SAID "WE HAVEN'T LOST A SHIP."

"THE BULK OF SUPPLIES TO BE MOVED IN THIS WAR WILL BE PERHAPS FIFTY TO ONE COMPARED WITH THE LAST WAR," SAID THE 58-YEAR-OLD OFFICER, OF LONG BEACH, CALIF.

"OUR CONVOYS HAVE NEVER BEEN ATTACKED. WE HAVEN'T LOST A SHIP.

JAN 24 1943

"WHILE I WOULDN'T TRY TO UNDERESTIMATE THE ENEMY'S STRENGTH, I THINK THAT BASICALLY JAPANESE ARE POOR SEAMEN AND THEIR EYESIGHT CAN'T COMPARE WITH AMERICAN GLIMMERS. THEY'RE LESS ABLE SEAMEN FOR SUBMARINES THAN ARE MEN OF THE AMERICAN NAVY.

"WE BENEFIT BY OUR INFORMATION SERVICE. JAPANESE INFORMATION SERVICE DOUBTLESS HAS BEEN CRIPPLED, AS HAS THEIR AVAILABLE SURFACE STRENGTH. THE ENEMY HASN'T VESSELS TO SPARE TO SPREAD HIS FANGS INTO THIS PART OF THE PACIFIC.

"I CAN VISUALIZE THAT WE HAVE PASSED FROM THE DEFENSIVE TO THE OFFENSIVE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, AND WE ARE GOING TO HOLD THAT UNTIL WE CAN MULTIPLY IT BY A SUBSTANTIAL QUANTITY. OUR ADVANCE THERE IS PREDICATED ON WHAT GOES ON IN OTHER AREAS, AS IN NORTH AFRICA FOR INSTANCE. WE CAN'T HAVE EVERYTHING WE WANT AT EVERY PLACE WE WANT IT AT THE SAME TIME. AS SOON AS WE ARE ABLE TO SETTLE THE SITUATION IN OTHER AREAS, THE BAROMETER WILL GO UP IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC AND WE SHOULD GO TO TOWN.

"THE FACT THAT VICE ADMIRAL ROBERT L.GHORMLEY AND VICE ADMIRAL WILLIAM F.HALSEY, UNDER THE ABLE LEADERSHIP OF ADMIRAL CHESTER W.NIMITZ, GOT THE JAPS OCCUPIED DOWN THERE WAS JUST WHAT WE NEEDED.

JAN 24 1943

"THE QUESTION OF SUPPLY AND LOGISTICS IS RELATED TO CONTINUOUS PUNCHING TO KEEP THE JAPS OCCUPIED, AND THAT IS ONE REASON WHY THE PACIFIC LANES FOR THE LAST FOUR MONTHS HAVE BEEN MORE OR LESS SECURE ON OUR RUNS. THERE'S NO DOUBT THAT THE JAPS ARE FULLY OCCUPIED AND IT LOOKS LIKE THEY'LL BE KEPT OCCUPIED.

"A CONVOY COMMANDER'S RESPONSIBILITY IS SAFE NAVIGATION AND SAFE PASSAGE OF TROOPSHIPS TO THEIR DESTINATIONS. OUR GREATEST CONCERN IS THE ONE EXPRESSED BY JOHN PAUL JONES WHO SAID 'YOU CAN NEVER TELL WHEN THE ENEMY'S TOPSAILS ARE GOING TO SHOW UP OVER THE HORIZON.' THIS MEANS ETERNAL VIGILANCE.

"WE COUNT ON THE COMMANDER OF ESCORTING COMBAT SHIPS TO REPORT ANY CONTACTS WITH THE ENEMY. OUR CONVOY SHIPS ARE HEAVILY ARMED FOR SKY AND SUBMARINE DEFENSE AND THEY HAVE WELL-TRAINED GUNCREWS, GUNNERY OFFICERS AND ARMED GUARD CREWS.

"IT WAS QUITE A PROBLEM INDOCTRINATING MERCHANT MARINE MASTERS WITH THE ETHICS OF TACTICS, BUT THEY DESERVE MUCH CREDIT FOR STEPPING INTO HARNESS. THEY CAME ACROSS EXCELLENTLY INTO NAVAL REQUIREMENTS OF CONVOY MANEUVERING AND OPERATIONS.

"THE GREATEST ALERT PERIODS ARE AT DAWN AND TWILIGHT, WHEN

30.24—561

MORE THAN ANY OTHER TIME WE EXPECT SUBMARINE ATTACKS.

"UNDER THE LOGISTICS OF WAR, IT CAN EASILY BE UNDERSTOOD THAT WITHOUT A SUPPLY LIFE LINE THE BOYS ON THE FRONT COULDN'T DO MUCH. THE SLOGAN IS: 'THE CONVOYS MUST GO THROUGH.'

"WE NEVER STOP FOR ANYTHING. IF A SHIP BREAKS DOWN ITS THEN ON ITS OWN: WE CANNOT HAZARD THE REST OF THE CONVOY. OUR RUNS TO THE SOUTH PACIFIC ARE BETWEEN SIX AND SEVEN THOUSAND MILES. THE AVERAGE ROUND TRIP FOR A CONVOY TAKES TWO MONTHS. SOME SHIPS COME BACK ON VARIOUS ROUTES TO PICK UP CARGOES OF STRATEGIC MATERIAL NEEDED ON THE MAINLAND.

JAN 24 1943

"I'VE TALKED WITH MANY LEADERS FROM THE FRONT. I MIGHT DIGRESS TO SAY IT IS A BEAUTIFUL THING TO HEAR HOW ALL HANDS, INCLUDING OUR AIRMEN, HAVE BEEN ELATED BY THE PERFORMANCES OF OUR NEW BATTLESHIPS WHICH NAVAL POLICY HAS LONG REGARDED AS THE BACKBONE OF THE FLEET. EVERYBODY IS FIGHTING MAD AND ALL ARE WORKING TOGETHER. WHAT MAKES THEM FIGHTING MAD IS THE TYPE OF ENEMY THEY'VE MET AND THE FACT THAT THEY ALL HAVE DONE A LITTLE BLEEDING TOGETHER."

UNDATED TRIPOLI

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

JAN 24 1943

THE FALL OF TRIPOLI MARKS THE SHATTERING OF ANOTHER ITALIAN DREAM FOR THE RESTORATION OF A VAST ROMAN EMPIRE.

FOR TRIPOLI -- THE ANCIENT OEA (CQ) OF THE PHOENICIANS, A ROMAN COLONY AFTER THE FALL OF CARTHAGE, THE SEAT OF THE BARBARY COAST PIRATES WHO WAGED A LOSING WAR WITH THE UNITED STATES NAVY IN THE EARLY 1800'S -- WAS THE LAST SYMBOL OF THE DESERT IL DUCE TRIED TO BUILD INTO A GREAT ITALIAN DOMAIN.

THE GENTLE-EYED HAILE SELASSIE WAS BACK ON HIS ETHIOPIAN THRONE IN ADDIS ABABA, AND THE BRITISH AND THE AMERICANS HAD EXTENSIVE BASES IN CONQUERED SOMALILAND AND IN ERITREA, BASES THROUGH WHICH SUPPLIES POURED TO THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY THAT CHASED MUSSOLINI'S MEN -- RIGHT ALONG WITH ROMMEL'S -- BACK ACROSS LIBYA, WHOSE FOUR PROVINCES IN 1939 WERE INCORPORATED IN THE NATIONAL TERRITORY OF ITALY.

30.24—563

IN LIBYA IL DUCE HAD SET UP TOWNS AND COLONIES AND ADMINISTRATIVE STATES WITH THE DESERT CAPITALS OF DERNA, OF BENGASI, OF MISURATA, OF TRIPOLI.

JAN 24 1943

IN TURN THE COLONIES ERECTED HUGE MONUMENTAL SIGNS SAYING SIMPLY "IL DUCE" OR BUILT TRIUMPHAL ARCHES OVER THE ROADS.

SYMBOLIC OF THE ROMAN PATTERN FOR TRIPOLI IS THE RICHLY SCULPTURED WHITE MARBLE TRIUMPHAL ARCH BUILT IN 163 A.D. NEAR THE PORT.

THE ANCIENT ARCH STOOD THROUGH THE ARAB INVASION OF TRIPOLI, THROUGH THE NORMAN PILLAGING, THROUGH THE WARS OF THE SPANIARDS TO ATTEMPT TO REGAIN THE CITY FROM TURKS WHO CAPTURED IT IN 1551 AND SET UP A PIRATICAL REGIME THAT HELD SWAY IN THE MEDITERRANEAN UNTIL THE FRENCH OCCUPIED ALGIERS IN 1830.

IN 1714 AHMED PASHA CARAMANLI NAMED A REGENCY AND A SCHEDULE OF TARIFFS FOR THE PROTECTION OF SHIPPING.

THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT PAID ABOUT $83,000 ANNUALLY FROM 1796 UNTIL 1801 BUT WHEN MORE MONEY WAS DEMANDED THE UNITED STATES BALKED AND SENT A NAVAL FORCE TO BLOCKADE THE PORT.

THE WAR LASTED FOUR YEARS. IN 1803 THE U.S. FRIGATE PHILADELPHIA WAS CAPTURED, AND CAPTAIN WILLIAM BAINBRIDGE AND HIS CREW WERE HELD PRISONER UNTIL 1805, WHEN $60,000 RANSOM WAS PAID FOR THEIR RELEASE.

IN 1804, HOWEVER, LIEUT.STEPHEN DECATUR -- "MY COUNTRY, RIGHT OR WRONG" -- LED A CREW OF 75 IN A COMMANDO-LIKE RAID TO DESTROY THE PHILADELPHIA IN TRIPOLI HARBOR.

DECATUR AND HIS CREW, ABOARD THE INTREPID -- A CAPTURED TRIPOLITANIAN CRAFT WHICH HAD BEEN RECHRISTENED -- GOT INTO THE HARBOR, FIRED THE PHILADELPHIA IN A HALF HOUR BATTLE ON HER DECKS, GOT BACK INTO THEI OWN BOAT AND SPED OUT OF THE HARBOR WITHOUT THE LOSS OF A MAN.

LATER WILLIAM EATON, AN AMERICAN, ATTEMPTED WITH 500 MEN TO MARCH FROM ALEXANDRIA TO TRIPOLI, TO SEAT ON THE THRONE A PASHA WHO WOULD BE MORE AMENABLE TO PROTECTING UNITED STATES SHIPPING WITHOUT TAKING TRIBUTE.

JAN 24 1943

EATON AND HIS MEN CAPTURED DERNA BUT PEACE WITH TRIPOLI WAS NEGOTIATED BEFORE HE GOT FARTHER.

THE PIRACIES DID NOT ENTIRELY CEASE, HOWEVER, SO IN 1815 BAINBRIDGE AND CAPT.DECATUR -- HE HAD BEEN PROMOTED -- HEADED A SQUADRON THAT MOVED INTO TRIPOLI AND FORCED THE PASHA TO FULFILL HIS PROMISES.

196

TURKEY MOVED BACK TO RULE THE COUNTRY IN 1835 AS A PROVINCE AND RULE IT SHE DID DESPITE FEARS OF FRENCH AND ITALIAN ENCROACHMENT UNTIL 1911. THEN ITALY, FEARING THAT GERMANY MIGHT HAVE DESIGNS UPON TERRITORY IN LIBYA, DECLARED WAR ON TURKEY IN NOVEMBER 1911 AND WON THE COUNTRY BY FIGHTING AND BY SUCCEEDING TREATIES UP THROUGH 1914.

WITH THE FIRST EUROPEAN WAR OUTBREAK, THE ITALIANS VACATED LIBYA IN 1915 EXCEPT FOR THE SEAPORTS OF TRIPOLI AND HOMS. JAN 24 1943

SENUSSI, BERBERS AND TURKS SET UP LOCAL GOVERNMENTS. MISURATA BECAME A GERMAN SUBMARINE BASE. THE COUNTRY WAS IN CHAOS UNTIL THE END OF THE WAR AND EVEN THEN THE ITALIANS WERE UNWILLING TO ATTEMPT TO RECLAIM TRIPOLITANIA UNTIL GOVERNOR GIUSEPPE VOLPI BEGAN HIS RESETTLEMENT CAMPAIGN -- A CAMPAIGN EAGERLY TAKEN UP AND EXPANDED ON BY MUSSOLINI.

THROUGH THE PORT OF TRIPOLI IN 1938 POURED 16 BOAT-LOADS OF ITALIAN FARMER-SETTLERS, THE FIRST OF THE LARGE SCALE DRIVE OF ITALY TO PEOPLE THE DESERT COLONY.

AROUND TRIPOLI, A CITY OF ABOUT 100,000 THEY FOUND FERTILE FARM AREAS WITH A RAINFALL OF SOME 12 INCHES A YEAR AS AGAINST LESS THAN EIGHT INCHES IN MORE THAN HALF THE COUNTRY. THEY FOUND THE DESERT CROWDING THE WEST EDGE OF THE CITY AND THE GREEN OASIS OF MESHIA AT ITS EASTERN BORDER.

THE BERLIN RADIO SAID LAST (SAT) NIGHT THAT THE NAZI ARMIES ENCIRCLED AT STALINGRAD WERE FIGHTING "TO THE LAST CARTRIDGE AND LAST HAND GRENADE" IN ORDER TO TIE DOWN HUGE RUSSIAN FORCES AND MAKE THEM "EMPLOY LARGE AMOUNTS OF MATERIAL."

THE BROADCAST, HEARD BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, WAS SEEN AS PART OF THE GERMAN PRESS AND RADIO CAMPAIGN TO PREPARE THE GERMAN PEOPLE FOR NEWS OF GREATER REVERSES IN RUSSIA. "PRESS AND BROADCAST IN GERMANY LET ARISE NO DOUBTS ANY MORE AS TO THE SERIOUSNESS OF THE SITUATION AT STALINGRAD AND THE DIFFICULTIES IN GENERAL," SAID ONE BROADCAST.

ACKNOWLEDGING RETREATS IN THE CAUCASUS AGAIN, THE RADIO SAID THESE HAD BEEN "FORESEEN BY THE TOTAL PLAN FOR GERMAN DEFENSE," AND ADDED THAT THE "THE GERMAN COMMAND HAS THE PATIENCE AND NECESSARY SELF-ASSURANCE AND CALM TO WAIT UNTIL THE WEAR AND TEAR OF SOVIET ARMIES HAS REACHED A CLIMAX" BEFORE "EMPLOYING NUMEROUS NEW DIVISIONS AGAINST THEM."

JAN 24 1943

THESE NEW DIVISIONS, IT SAID, WERE ONLY PARTLY READY. SOME ARE STILL TRAINING AND WILL "APPEAR WITH CERTAIN NEW ARMS" TURNED OUT IN "MASS PRODUCTION."

A TYPICAL BERLIN NEWSPAPER HEADLINE SATURDAY NIGHT, THE RADIO SAID, WAS:

"REQUIREMENT OF THE MOMENT; A SUPREME EFFORT BY EVERYONE."

GREATER EXPLOITATION OF FEMALE LABOR AND YOUTH, THE RAISING OF NEW ARMIES FOR THE FRONT, AND "THE CLOSING OF SHOPS WHICH HAVE PRACTICALLY NOTHING TO SELL, OF BARS, AND LUXURY RESTAURANTS" WERE MEASURES IN THE OFFING, THE BERLIN RADIO SAID. GERMANS WERE BEING TOLD, THE BROADCAST POINTED OUT, THAT FREDERICK THE GREAT IN THE SEVEN YEARS WAR HAS HIS DIFFICULTIES, TOO.

"TODAY GERMANS FEEL IN THE SAME POSITION AND ARRIVE AT THE SAME CONCLUSIONS, NAMELY, THAT WHEN ALL ENERGIES ARE UNITED, VICTORY IS CERTAIN," THE TRANSOCEAN NEWS AGENCY'S POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT WAS QUOTED AS SAYING.

JAN 24 1943

THE BERLIN RADIO THEN READ A REPORT BY TRANSOCEAN'S MILITARY CORRESPONDENT, CAPT. LUDWIG SERTORIUS, WHICH USED THE NOW FAMILIAR GERMAN PHRASE, "SHORTENING" OF LINES AS THE REASON FOR GERMAN RETREATS IN RUSSIA.

"THIS METHODICAL SEVERANCE OF CONTACT WITH THE ENEMY LEADS TO A SHORTENING OF THE FRONT AND LETS GERMAN FORCES FREE FOR EMPLOYMENT ELSEWHERE," SERTORIUS' REPORT SAID.

WITH TRIPOLI FALLEN AND THE EXPULSION OF THE AXIS FROM LIBYA ONLY A QUESTION OF DAYS THE TIME IS AT HAND FOR NEW GROUPINGS OF THE ALLIED FORCES AND ASSIGNMENT OF COMMANDS. OF COURSE THIS HAS LONG BEEN FORESEEN IN WASHINGTON AND LONDON AND IT IS A SOUND ASSUMPTION THAT PLANS FOR THE NEXT PHASE ALREADY HAVE TAKEN DEFINITE FORM.

A MAJOR PHASE OF THE WAR IS ENDING; ONE OF THE MOST BRILLIANT CAMPAIGNS IN HISTORY IS DRAWING TO A CLOSE. THREE SHORT MONTHS AGO

30.24-565

NEARLY THE WHOLE 3,000-MILE EXTENT OF AFRICA'S NORTHERN COAST, FROM MOROCCO ALMOST TO THE NILE DELTA WAS IN ENEMY OR POTENTIALLY HOSTILE HANDS. NOW THE AXIS SEGMENT IS COMPRESSED TO SOME 300 MILES, WITH EVERY PROSPECT THAT IN A FEW DAYS IT WILL HAVE SHRUNK TO ONLY A FEW SCORE. THOSE VAST, CONTINENTAL-SCALE OPERATIONS, CONCEIVED WITH SUCH BOLD IMAGINATION AND CARRIED OUT, FOR THE MOST PART, WITH SUCH SKILL AND DASH, GIVE WAY TO A RELATIVELY SMALL SIEGE OPERATION.

THE JUNCTION OF THE FORCES OF ALEXANDER ON THE EAST AND EISENHOWER IN THE WEST IS IMMINENT. WHO THEN IS TO COMMAND THIS GROUP OF ARMIES--THE BRITISH EIGHTH AND FIRST AND THE AMERICAN FIFTH-- WHICH THUS BECOME AVAILABLE FOR COMBINED OPERATIONS FOR THE CONQUEST OF TUNISIA AND THE FAR VASTER CAMPAIGN AGAINST HITLER'S EUROPE TO WHICH TUNISIA IS ONLY THE PRELUDE?

JAN 24 1943

THE FACT THAT HITLER HAS A SIMILAR CHOICE TO MAKE BETWEEN ROMMEL AND VON ARNIM WAS MENTIONED IN THIS COLUMN YESTERDAY. OF FAR GREATER SIGNIFICANCE IS THE QUESTION OF THE IDENTITY OF THE ALLIED COMMANDER IN CHIEF.

LONDON DISPATCHES PUBLISHED YESTERDAY AND THIS MORNING SUPPORT THE CONVICTION THAT THIS AND OTHER DECISIONS OF THE UNITED NATIONS' GRAND STRATEGY FOR 1943 ALREADY ARE IN THE MAKING. THEY SPOKE OF "PRESENT NEGOTIATIONS" WHICH CAN BE EXPECTED TO PRODUCE "BOLD PLANNING AND PRECISE COORDINATION." THEY CERTAINLY IMPLY THAT SOMEWHERE, SOMEHOW UNITED NATIONS LEADERSHIP IS HAMMERING THE MASTER PLAN INTO SHAPE. THE NECESSITIES OF WAR VEIL SUCH DETAILS AS THE EXACT MANNER OF THE CONSULTATIONS OR THE PERSONAGES INVOLVED BUT ENOUGH IS DISCLOSED TO GIVE ASSURANCE THAT LEADERS OF THE ALLIED POWERS ARE LOOKING FAR BEYOND THE IMMEDIATE TACTICAL PROBLEMS OF TOMORROW OR NEXT WEEK. THERE IS TEMPTATION SOMETIMES, IN THE CLAMOR OVER SUCH SNARLS AS THAT OVER FRENCH EMPIRE POLITICS OR IN SPELLS OF IMPATIENCE WHEN THE WAR SEEMS TO BE GOING SLOWLY, TO FORGET THAT NOT ALL ACTION IS ON THE SURFACE.

WITHIN A FEW DAYS THE CHOICE FOR THE COMBINED AFRICAN COMMAND PROBABLY WILL BECOME KNOWN AND THE LEADER THEN DESIGNATED MAY PROVE TO BE THE MAN WHO WILL LEAD THE AMERICAN-BRITISH INVASION OF EUROPE. IT PROBABLY IS PROVING, OR HAS PROVED, A DIFFICULT CHOICE. NEARLY HALF A DOZEN ABLE GENERALS ARE ON THE SCENE, THE BRITONS ALEXANDER, MONTGOMERY AND ANDERSON, THE AMERICANS EISENHOWER AND CLARK.

THE TUNISIAN SHOW AT THE OUTSET WAS EISENHOWER'S BUT ALEXANDER AND MONTGOMERY COME INTO THE PICTURE AS HEROES OF ONE OF THE MOST BRILLIANT CHAPTERS IN ALL BRITAIN'S LONG MILITARY HISTORY. MOREOVER THEY ARE FULL GENERALS, OUTRANKING THE OTHERS. BUT LAST SUMMER, IT HAS BEEN INDICATED, HIGH AUTHORITY IN BRITAIN WAS WILLING TO ACCEPT AMERICAN COMMAND FOR NOT ONLY THE AFRICAN VENTURE ITS EUROPEAN SEQUEL. EISENHOWER WAS CHOSEN THEN AND IT MAY BE FELT THAT HE HAS NOT YET HAD A CHANCE TO PROVE HIS CAPACITY. THERE IS ALSO THE POSSIBILITY THAT THE NOMINATION MAY GO TO A MAN OUTSIDE THE GROUP NAMED, PERHAPS AN AMERICAN OF HIGHER RANK THAN EISENHOWER. THE UNITED STATES HAS TWO FULL GENERALS, OF DISTINGUISHED RECORDS IN BOTH WORLD WARS, MARSHALL AND MACARTHUR. ON THE OTHER HAND THERE MAY BE SOME SIGNIFICANCE IN THE RECENT ELEVATIONS TO FIELD MARSHAL'S RANK OF GENERALS WAVELL AND GORT.

THIS PROBABLY IS THE IMMEDIATE CONCERN OF WHATEVER GRAND STRATEGY CONSULTATIONS MAY BE IN PROGRESS, BUT IT IS ONLY PART OF THE GLOBAL PROBLEMS UP FOR DECISION. THESE INCLUDE, THE LONDON DISPATCHES INDICATE, THE FORMATION OF AN ALLIED WAR COUNCIL TO INCLUDE, IN ADDITION TO THE ANGLO-SAXON POWERS NOW IN SUCH CLOSE COLLABORATION, THE SOVIET UNION AND THE RELATIVELY NEGLECTED MAJOR PARTNER, CHINA; CLEANING UP OF THE FRENCH NORTH AFRICAN MESS; A CAMPAIGN TO BRING ALL AVAILABLE RESOURCES TO BEAR ON THE ONE MAJOR PHASE OF THE WAR WE STILL ARE LOSING, THAT AGAINST HITLER'S U-BOATS; AND FINALLY COORDINATION OF ALL ALLIED OFFENSIVES TO THE END THAT AT LEAST THE EUROPEAN END OF THE AXIS WILL BE SMASHED BY THE END OF 1944 AT THE LATEST. A TREMENDOUS ORDER, THIS, BUT IT SHOULD NOT BE BEYOND THE RESOURCES OF STATESMANSHIP AND MATERIAL STRENGTH THE UNITED NATIONS CAN MUSTER.

British Press Rommel Chase as French Attack in Tunisia With U. S. Aid

Two Battle Fronts Rapidly Converging

Fortresses and Lightnings Down 19 Planes, Wreck 16 in Raid on Bizerte

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 24.—Pressing on after the capture of Tripoli, the British 8th Army kept up the chase of the Axis rear guard toward Tunisia today, and in central Tunisia American troops joined with the French in attacking the Germans in the Ousseltia region.

Aided by an American armored unit, the French inflicted "severe losses" on enemy troops and vehicles in an attack against one German column advancing southwestward from Pont du Fahs, a French headquarters communique said.

The communique told also of other local clashes in this area and of repulse of an enemy attack farther east in the mountains which the Germans seek to dominate. Indications were growing that the battle might be nearing to cut off Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's retreat into Tunisia.

Large-Scale Action Near

Rains which had bogged down combat activity for weeks have held off for several days now, facilitating the plans of either side for a large-scale action to clinch control of the waist of Tunisia, where Rommel's Afrika Korps must pass to join the defense of Tunis and Bizerte or be cut off and perhaps destroyed in a pocket.

With the Battles of Tunisia and Tripolitania rapidly merging, Flying Fortresses and Lightning fighters fought one of the most extensive aerial actions in North Africa to date, shooting down nineteen enemy planes and crippling sixteen more during another attack on Bizerte which blasted hangars, workshops and oil tanks and broke up a merchantman in the harbor.

[A dispatch from the central Tunisian front by Ross Munro, a Canadian Press correspondent, indicated that the new clashes there might involve the preliminaries of an Allied counter-attack to close the fifty-mile corridor through which Rommel must pass.

Americans and French Attack

[American troops, tanks, guns and planes made a "lightning, coordinated attack" and won "complete and daring success" after going to the aid of the hard-pressed French, he said. More troops, tanks and tank-destroyer units were coming up, he said, and they were said to be strongly pushing their advantage against the Axis troops barring the way to the coast five or six miles east of Ousseltia.

[An Allied staff officer in Tunisia was quoted by a Reuters (British) news agency correspondent as saying it was "extremely likely" that some of the reconnaissance elements of General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's 8th Army already had crossed into Tunisia from Tripolitania and said parts of the fugitive German force already had passed through Gabes, 100 miles northwest of the border.]

A Middle East communique from General Montgomery's main headquarters at Cairo said 8th Army troops "after occupying Tripoli continued their advance and by (Saturday) evening were in contact with the enemy well to the west."

Contact at Zuara

JAN 25 1943

This meeting was believed to be in the vicinity of Zuara, sixty-five miles west of Tripoli and thirty-five miles from Tunisia, where Rommel was attempting to join the remnants of his Afrika Korps, estimated at from 40,000 to 70,000 men, with the 70,000 troops of Colonel General Jurgen von Arnim, Axis commander in Tunisia.

Zuara is at the end of a railway line running west from Tripoli and is the last port in Tripolitania from which the Axis might attempt a limited evacuation of its forces by small boat. It was considered unlikely that Rommel could bring much heavy equipment with him because of the Royal Navy's intervention at Zuara.

The Cairo communique said that Allied air action in Tripolitania had eased up slightly after seventy-two hours of intensive hammering at the fleeing German and Italian columns, because the targets had thinned out.

[Morocco radio reports described Zuara as a scene of confusion, with Germans and Italians attempting to withdraw by sea as well as land, and said light British naval forces which bombarded the port Saturday were continuing the assault in conjunction with bombers, fighters, tanks and motorized artillery.]

An Allied headquarters communique issued here prior to the French announcement indicated that General Arnim had had some success in his limited offensive to widen the Tunisian coastal corridor. In one of the twin thrusts down each side of the fifty-mile Ousselat Mountain range Arnim's troops occupied the Gebel Bou Dabous Mountain, which dominates the plains around the Moslem religious center of Kairouan, seventy-five miles south of Tunis and thirty miles west of the port of Sousse.

The French, who had held that strategic point through a week of fighting in which the Germans used fifty tanks and considerable infantry forces, finally had to withdraw to the south to escape encirclement, the Allied communique said. The main new position they took up was on the Gebel Ousselat, south of the road from Ousseltia to Kairouan, a headquarters spokesman said.

The French, with American troops supporting them, still held positions north of the road, however, including the village of Ousseltia and the west side of the Ousseltia Valley to the northeast of the town.

General Arnim's other drive, to the northwest of the mountains, had been turned back. The spokesman said the situation there, along the road from Pont du Fahs to Robaa, was unchanged, with British and French forces holding positions six to seven miles outside Robaa. At one time the Germans were within two miles of the latter place. Pont du Fahs is about fifty miles north of Kairouan and thirty miles south of Tunis. Robaa is twenty-seven miles southwest of Pont du Fahs and twenty miles northwest of Ousseltia.

U. S. Planes Down 21 Of Foe

United States planes yesterday destroyed twenty-one German and Italian aircraft, the communique disclosed.

Nineteen of these went down under the fire of the Flying Fortresses and their Lightning P-38 escorts which made a destructive attack on Bizerte. They broke up a large merchant ship in the harbor with square hits and planted other explosives on hangars, workshops and oil tanks.

Sixteen more Messerschmitt fighters were believed damaged but all the Fortresses and their escort returned safely.

Allied bombers and fighters were making intensive sweeps over the nearby Axis sea channels and Marauders destroyed two more small ships and shot down a bomber between Tunisia and Sicily. One of the ships exploded and the other caught fire and capsized.

Fires visible for forty miles were set last night by British Bisley bombers which attacked Kairouan air field and communications.

Pound Rommel Retreat

The air forces in this theater combined with Montgomery's airmen from the east to attack the retreating Rommel army and P-38's destroyed between twenty-five and thirty vehicles in sweeps along the Tripolitania-Tunisia road between Gabes, Medenine and Ben Gardane.

[The Italian communique said sixteen Allied planes were shot down in the last two days in Tunisia and one more in Libya. It reported raids on Catania and Licata in Sicily and Lampedusa island and a machine-gun attack on a passenger train in Sicily in which seven persons were killed and thirty injured. An Allied destroyer with a convoy was torpedoed by an Italian submarine, the communique said.]

The Cairo communique reported small shipping off Tunisia was bombed and machine-gunned and that targets in Sicily were attacked by fighter-bombers.

From all these air operations the Allies lost eight planes, seven of them from Tunisia and one from Libya.

Fresh Troops Press Gains Against Nazis in Hills on Ousseltia-Kairouan Line

JAN 25 1943

By Ross Munro

Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH ALLIED FORCES on the CENTRAL TUNISIAN FRONT, Jan. 24 (AP).—American troops are strengthening their positions in the Ousseltia area and are continuing attacks against Axis forces holding the foothills and mountain passes astride the road to Kairouan, German-held town twenty-five miles southwest of the present battleground.

A lightning, co-ordinated and daring attack by American tanks, guns, infantry and planes against the Germans coming down on Ousseltia from the north was a complete success, and they are pursuing the advantage strongly with fresh troops, more tanks and tank-destroyer units.

If they can drive the German and Italian troops out of the hill and mountain positions five or six miles east of Ousseltia, the Kairouan road will stretch before them over a comparatively flat plain where tanks can fight.

American planes are bombing enemy positions, and artillery also is in action against these targets.

Kairouan guards the Tunisian waist and protects the coast linking the withdrawing Axis desert forces in Tripolitania with the Tunisian army. It is only thirty miles from Sousse and the Gulf of Hammamet.

This front is tense with the expectation of new battles as the Middle East and North Africa campaigns are slowly merging. The fall of Tripoli was cheered by British Tommies, American doughboys and French troops fighting here, and has given them a boost.

The American action at Ousseltia featured the Allied operations of the last few days, but British troops have not been idle. At Robaa they have the situation under control and now are facing the Germans in the hills and valleys running toward Pont du Fahs to the northeast.

In the hills north of Bou Arada, German infantry and artillery attacked positions held by British units, and the Nazis were driven back and scattered.

A considerable number of French troops cut off by the Germans in their midweek tank advance southwest of Pont du Fahs are starting to rejoin Allied forces by filtering through the German lines. Some French troops still are surrounded in the hills, but they are being supplied by air.

French Moroccan troops patrolling the mountains north of Ousseltia captured fifty Germans, including three staff officers.

The skies are slightly hazy this afternoon, but so far it has not rained. One good rainfall would stop tank operations completely.

Less than 300 miles separate the British 8th Army and Allied forces here, and the Tunisian campaign is really starting to boil up. But this weather must hold, or neither side will be able to move on a large scale.

New German attacks on the long Allied front from Mateur, in the north, through Medjez-el-Bab to Bou Arada, Robaa and Ousseltia are quite possible. Last week's three-pronged tank thrust that the Allies blunted was a complete failure, but the Axis is likely to make more attempts to smash through and outflank the British and Americans.

Bombs from Stukas Rudely Awaken Village of Bou Arada in Tunisia

By WILLIAM B. KING

ON THE TUNSIAN FRONT, Jan. 20.—(Delayed) — (AP) The neat little village of Bou Arada was just waking up when four short blasts sounded on the lookout whistle and the Stukas came over.

There were 14 flying in trim formation, with smaller fighting planes circling and weaving up above.

"They are Stukas," someone cried, but others were just as certain they were friendly.

One man was so sure they were "ours" that he cursed the anti-aircraft gunners when the first bursts began popping.

Then the flight leader tipped a wing and began his dive toward the center of the village, and I saw no more. I had flung myself against a sturdy wall just as the first bomb screamed downward.

The explosion made the earth shudder. I imagined each succeeding bomb was coming closer. Finally the explosions ceased, and at least two fires had been started. Less than 150 yards away a pile of ammunition was burning. Shells exploded among the flames.

Twisted and uprooted trees and glass from shattered windows littered the street. The village water tank was a crumpled wreck.

A few laden trucks were burning and blackened bodies of men lay at the side of the road. Doctors worked swiftly on the injured.

Without warning a delayed-action bomb exploded about 100 yards away. A spit of orange flame shot up through the center of a great smoke plume.

Smoke and dust had not cleared from the air before soldiers were rushing to move endangered vehicles and stretcher bearers were racing in search of new casualties.

Bou Arda had survived another bombing.

This armored group did not follow the coastline on the march toward Tripoli. It gathered its striking power in the desert to play its part after Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's "on to Tripoli" message was read to the troops Jan. 14.

Brief Skirmishes

Dominating everything are plains, sand, and rock. There has been some sharp fighting, but it consisted of brief local encounters where the British met small pools of rearguard resistance.

And one always remembers the Stukas diving, sirens screaming; the Messerschmitts strafing and then high-tailing for home with the anti-aircraft blazing at them.

Air raids do not panic these desert troops. Soldiers fire away at low-flying planes with rifles and machine-guns. They respect an air attack, but have learned that the Stuka is not so deadly an instrument as was once believed.

Columns of black smoke rise from one or two vehicles hit by the planes. An officer asks: "where can I find the padre?"

The burial service is simple and brief and another white cross marks a soldier's grave.

Crowd Around Germans

Along the rough, dusty route huddled a group of German and Italian prisoners. The British soldiers crowded around the Germans and ignored the Italians.

The prisoners did not look like products of a super race. They looked tired, dirty, bewildered, and very ordinary. They seemed surprised that they got out alive.

They had dug gun positions in a rocky promontory, but were overrun by the British advance. One stained but victorious, standing on a tank marked "made in America."

Worst of all is climbing from a warm bedroll into the icy wind before dawn. There is no dawdling for a cigarette in bed. A tough sergeant sounds reveille by calling: "wakey, wakey — breaky, breaky." And then he roars "get the hell out of bed."

Air Raids in Desert Fail to Panic Allied Troops Who Shoot, Duck

Natives of Tripoli Greet British as Deliverers

Italians Also Appear Relieved the Fight Is Over

CAIRO, Jan. 24 (AP)—Tripoli, a city whose population includes many thousands of Italians and almost 100,000 natives, was reported calm today as British troops swept through the city in pursuit of Axis forces.

The natives greeted the 8th Army troops as deliverers and cheered the tank crews as they rode through the Tripolitanian capital, while the Italians appeared to be relieved that the fight was over, the reports said.

The Tripoli area was being rapidly cleaned up in several small clashes with Axis troops hiding out in isolated wadis (ravines), and several batches of prisoners were said to have been taken.

The Tripoli airfield already had been put to use, and an American communique said 9th Air Force fighters and fighter-bombers, already operating from a base in the vicinity of the city, had obtained numerous hits on enemy transport in the Zuara area, sixty-five miles westward.

Five American pilots recently shot down or forced to land inside enemy territory returned and rejoined their units, it was announced.

Prepare Tripoli As Base

London, Jan. 24 (AP)—The work of preparing Tripoli as a new base already is under way, Reuters reported tonight from Cairo.

Repair work has been started on damgaed buildings and installations, and the rubbish from demolitions and bombings is being cleared away from the harbor, the report said.

Fighting French Take Misda

LONDON, Jan. 25 (Monday) (AP).—Fighting French forces have captured the Axis stronghold of Misda, 100 miles south of Tripoli, according to a Fighting French communique reported by the Brazzaville radio today. Misda is about 1,450 miles north of Fort Lamy, in the Lake Chad region, where troops under Brigadier General Jacques Le Clerc started their drive several weeks ago.

SWIFT ADVANCE DOWN RAIL LINE THREATENS ENEMY

Town 50 Miles Northeast of Important Junction Is Captured.

GAIN IN UKRAINE

Soviet Columns Push Into Starobelsk, Seek to Envelop Kharkov.

MANY PRISONERS TAKEN

Entire Battalion Surrenders in Stalingrad Sector; Material Seized.

LONDON, Monday, Jan. 25 — (AP) Russian troops sweeping forward in the Caucasus have captured Peschanokopskoye, only 50 miles northeast of Tikhoretsk, key railway junction of the vital Novorossisk-Stalingrad and Rostov-Baku railroads, the Soviet midnight communique as reported by the Soviet Monitor said early today.

Farther to the north, deep in the Ukraine, Soviet columns pushed into Starobelsk, 130 miles southeast of Kharkov, in a drive that may be intended to envelop that Nazi stronghold from the south.

Important Rail Town

Peschanokopskoye, an important railroad town, is only 95 miles southeast of Rostov, and other Russian troops captured several other towns in the same area, including Krasnaya Polyana, 21 miles east of Peschanokopskoye, and Bezopasnoye, 55 miles southeast.

This same Soviet drive also took a town named Novo-Mikhailovskoye, apparently 37 miles southeast of Peschanokopskoye, although another town of the same name is located 22 miles south of Armavir, taken by the Russians earlier to cut the railway linking the Germans at Maikop with the rest of their forces.

Reds Advance Swiftly

The Russians are advancing swiftly down the Stalingrad-Novorossisk railroad toward Tikhoresk and may be threatening to pocket a large German force around Kropotkin.

The fall of Starobelsk, lying midway along a branch railway from Valuiki to Voroshilovgrad, was announced in a special communique, and other towns were reported taken in the same area. Soviet forces also were said to be advancing in a parallel thrust farther north about 90 miles from Kharkov in the Valuiki area.

Starobelsk fell after bitter street fighting in which the Germans had to be driven out house by house and by one block of buildings after another in a 10-day struggle, a frontline dispatch broadcast by the Moscow radio said early today.

One Soviet unit accounted for 2,500 Germans, destroyed 40 tanks, four armored cars, 18 trucks, and two planes, the broadcast reported. The Russians quoted captured prisoners as saying the Germans were rushing divisions east from occupied countries, and that one infantry division brought from Dunkerque consisted "mainly of middle-aged men."

Two battalions of this regiment suffered heavy losses in their first encounter, the prisoner said. A tank division was brought into the battle from guard duty at Bordeaux.

Lies on Aldar River

Starobelsk is 125 miles southeast of Kharkov and 50 miles north of Voroshilovgrad, the respective industrial capitals of the Ukraine and Donets basin. It lies on the Aldar river, a tributary of the Donets.

Other Russian forces are within 78 miles of Kharkov directly to the east, and from 56 to 70 miles from Rostov on the east and north.

The communique said Starobelsk fell to "our troops on the southwestern front, as the result of a vigorous offensive." Earlier, the noon communique has spoken of the Red forces in this area as "engaged in wiping out scattered groups."

Starobelsk lies at a point northwest of Rostov and further fortifies the position of Russian troops who have swept across the Donets river in the direction of the Sea of Azov in what appears to be a wide encirclement of Rostov.

Reds Advance 13 Miles Overnight In Caucasus

Moscow, Jan. 24 (AP) — German forces in the Caucasus apparently faced a calamity of considerable proportions today as a result of the swift Russian advance near Kropotkin, while on the Voronezh front the routed Axis forces were reported in fast retreat toward Kharkov and Kursk.

A thirteen-mile advance was recorded overnight in the north Caucasus and the Russians said they captured a town of great importance there. At recaptured Armavir on the Rostov-Baku railway, the Red army was only forty-three miles southeast of Kropotkin and they had severed the railway leading to the Maikop oil fields and Tuapse, on the Black Sea. Large numbers of Germans were reported facing entrapment.

More Villages Taken

Several more villages fell in the Voronezh sector, where the Red army was engaged also in wiping out scattered isolated groups, including an entire division trapped some fifty miles behind the front. About 800 enemy troops were killed and 450 were captured on that front alone during the darkness, dispatches said.

Liquidation of the trapped Germans west of Stalingrad proceeded. The entire Second Battalion, Five Hundred and Eighteenth Regiment, Two Hundred and Ninety-fifth Infantry Division, surrendered and it was indicated that other groups were ready to raise the white flag.

Wanted To Surrender

One German soldier said the battalion had wanted to surrender earlier, but was frightened by officers' tales that the Russians killed captives. When a Red army commander met the battalion leaders and assured them of safety, the men and officers gave up.

The originally trapped 220,000 men of the German Sixth army's twenty-two divisions has shrunk to less than 40,000 starved survivors, the Russians said.

[The German communique admitted a further breach had been driven into the Stalingrad pocket from the west. It said "fighting in the north Caucasus had shifted to the Kuban valley" according to plan and that along the Black Sea the Axis forces had driven back Russians who had broken their lines.

[The Leningrad battle south of Lake Ladoga "swayed to and fro," the communique said. Russian attacks between the Donets and Don were called furious. It was the first German mention of the Donets.]

The Russian communique told of unchecked advances and successes. Some 1,800 Axis casualties in killed and captured were recorded since midnight.

Nazis In Full Flight

The Russian advance in the North Caucasus had the Germans in full flight, and dispatches said they were unable to make a stand at any place. The capture of Armavir may mean the entrapment of large groups of Germans cut from their supply base of Rostov.

The peril to that great communications peg at the mouth of the Don grew on all sides. Capturing Gigant, about midway between railways leading from Salsk to Tikhoretsk and Rostov, the Russians were less than ninety miles from Rostov to the southeast and aimed straight for Kushchevka, a major rail junction just below Rostov.

On the lower Don the Russians stood fifty-six miles from Rostov and to the north they were only seventy miles away and just ten miles short of Voroshilovgrad, industrial center of the Donets basin.

Town Not Named

The important north Caucasus town captured overnight was not named in the announcement, but the Russians said they seized 504 trucks, 14 guns, 70 carts and prisoners in the coup. On the Voronezh front, the booty included several locomotives, of which the Germans are short, and 14 stores of provisions.

The Russian winter offensives already have overrun more than three fourths of the German gains of the summer. At places south of Voronezh the Russians have driven behind their extreme advance line of last winter.

The Russian press placed the onus for the German retreats squarely on Hitler himself. The newspapers quote captives as saying that Hitler's generals advised him against driving into the Caucasus rather than concentrating everything against Stalingrad to secure the German flank.

Hitler Blamed

These captives were quoted as saying Hitler persisted in the belief that he could take the Caucasus and Stalingrad at the same time and accordingly divided his tanks and planes to drive against both objectives. The Russians retreated slowly during the summer, fighting a war of attrition.

When many experts and Hitler, too, assumed the Red army had spent its reserves, the Russians halted their retreat abruptly and threw the Germans into reverse.

The Russian press is now talking of the seven-mile Kerch straits into the Crimea as the only means of escape for the Germans in the Caucasus below Rostov.

RAF HAMMERS U-BOAT BASE AT LORIENT AGAIN

Heaviest Bombers Unload "Great Weight" Of Explosives On Port

JAN 25 1943

Cargo Of Bombs Also Is Poured On Heart Of Industrial West Germany

[By the Associated Press]

London, Jan. 24—The RAF dealt the German war machine two smashing blows last night, blasting the U-boat nest at Lorient for the fourth time within ten days and pouring a cargo of bombs on the heart of industrial western Germany.

Radio stations at Berlin, Koenigsberg, Leipzig, Stuttgart and Luxemburg went off the air simultaneously at 7.15 P. M. tonight an indication that the Germans expected another Allied bombardment.

Following up yesterday's daylight attack by United States Flying Fortresses on Lorient, the RAF's heaviest bombers unleashed a "great weight" on high explosive and fire bombs in a concentrated thirty-minute assault on the submarine pens and docks there last night.

Fires Visible 15 Miles Away

Visibility was good, the Air Ministry said, and many fires were left burning. Some of them, returning pilots said ,could be seen for 150 miles. Only three British bombers were reported missing from the night's two expeditions.

With this latest powerful blow at Lorient it became evident that the Allies hope to flatten the French port from which Nazi submarines prey on Atlantic shipping, to knock out its power plants and workshops and pound its massive U-boat shelters to pieces.

Lorient has been raided more than fifty times since it was converted into a super-submarine base in the summer of 1940. Its thick concrete-covered stockades are believed to accommodate at least twenty and possibly thirty U-boats.

Yesterday's was the second daylight attack by the United States Flying Fortresses on Lorient. Their first visit to the heavily defended city was on January 3.

Germans Admit Damage

Although the Air Ministry's communique treated last night's said on western Germany as secondary to that on Lorient, it was described as "heavy," and bomber pilots said a glow of great fires could be seen through the clouds that hung over the target.

The German DNB news service said "residential quarters" were damaged in several places in western Germany and that the "civilian population suffered losses." To the initiated this would indicate that the raid was not on a small scale. Only the RAF's biggest four-motored bombers made the run.

The Germans threw up a concentration of night fighters over the approaches to their vital industrial areas, returning pilots reported, and ground defenses were said to have laid an "intense barrage" about the targets. At Lorient, however, the anti-aircraft fire was described as only moderate.

HOPE SPURRED FOR VICTORY BID THIS YEAR

Successes On Many Fronts Increase Talk On Joint Strategy Plan

Possibility Of Striking Axis Nations Simultaneously Discussed

[By the Associated Press]

London, Jan. 24—Hopes for a supreme Allied bid for victory this year were spurred today by persistent talk of momentous decisions in the making or already agreed upon in councils of the United Nations.

JAN 25 1943

Speculation over what course the grand strategy would follow covered a wide range and official quarters maintained steadfast silence. The very fact that the talk would not down was considered in the best informed quarters as evidence that something big was in the wind.

May Strike Simultaneously

With the Allies registering successes the world over—on Russia's frozen steppes, in the New Guinea jungles and on Africa's desert sands—press discussions leaned toward the possibility of a massive offensive timed to strike the Axis nations simultaneously and knock the enemy out of the war in the next twelve months.

The Axis itself reflected a state of jitters in broadcasts from Nazi-controlled radios telling of "important political conversations under way in Washington."

In all the guessing in London, one thing stood out: The Allies, far from any thought of an early German collapse, were pitching pitching their plans on the idea that the Nazis must be defeated on the battle field and that a second front must be mounted to do it.

Theory Advanced

With this as a thesis, some quarters advanced the theory that the Allies were shaping plans on the basis of three eventualities:

1. Hitler might remain on the defensive to conserve his dwindling manpower and attempt to knock Russia out with a spring offensive, possibly in the south.

2. The Germans might attempt to close the western end of the Mediterranean by an attack on Gibraltar through Spain.

3. Hitler might even make his long-threatened try to invade England.

Before a second front can be established in Europe, the muddled North American political situation must be cleared up and this doubtless is getting attention at any Allied conference.

18 Germans Executed

Are Shot in Norway for Trying to Escape and for Aiding Enemy

LONDON, Jan. 24 (AP).—Official Norwegian circles at London reported today that eighteen prominent Germans, including several officers, had been executed at Kristiansand, Norway, after sentence by a German court martial for "attempting to escape and for co-operating with the enemy."

Bar Swedish Nazi Paper

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 23 (AP).—The Nazi newspaper "Dagsposten," published here, has been barred from Norway by the Germans because it is "unsuitable for Norwegian readers." The "Dagsposten" was the only foreign paper except German and Italian newspapers permitted to circulate in Norway.

Jerusalem Bars Force In Recruiting Soldiers

JERUSALEM, Jan. 24 (AP).—A new law was announced today designed to prevent intimidation or terrorization of any man to force him to join the British armed forces.

An accompanying communique said that recent reports from various parts of Palestine told of unauthorized terrorists and "hooligans" using bombs and castor oil to persuade reluctant persons to volunteer for military service.

General Predicts

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in Australia, Jan. 24—Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Allied commander in chief in the Southwest Pacific, said today that in his forces' hard-fought but winning battle for Papua "a new form of campaign was tested which points the way to the ultimate defeat of the enemy in the Pacific."

This new method of warfare, the general said, primarily involved "the continuous, calculated application of air power."

He remarked particularly that in the northeastern New Guinea fighting the Allies' air arm had been found effective and important, not only as an offensive-defensive weapon but as an instrument of troop transport and supply.

Two Arms Welded

"Our air forces and ground forces were welded together in Papua, and when in sufficient strength with proper naval support, their indissoluble union points the way to victory through new and broadened strategic and tactical conceptions," MacArthur said in written comment on the action now concluded.

Close coordination between air and land units will permit "swift, massive strokes" against the enemy and preclude the necessity for a "dilatory and costly island-to-island advance," he predicted.

Text Of Comment

The text of MacArthur's written comment:

"The destruction of remnants of the enemy forces in the Sanananda area concludes the Papuan campaign. The Horii army (Lieut. Gen. Tomitaro Horii commanded the estimated 15,000 Japanese troops in Papua) has been annihilated.

"The outstanding military lesson of this campaign was the continuous, calculated application of air power inherent in the potentialities of every component of the air forces employed in the most intimate tactical and logistical union with ground troops.

Effect Accentuated

"The effect of this modern instrumentality was sharply accentuated by the geographical limitations of this theater. For months on end, air transport with constant fighter coverage moved complete infantry regiments and artillery battalions across the almost impenetrable mountains and jungles of Papua and the reaches of the sea, transported field hospitals and other base installations to the front, supplied the troops and evacuated casualties.

"For hundreds of miles bombers provided all-around reconnaissance, protected the coast from hostile naval intervention and blasted the way for the infantry as it drove forward.

"A new form of campaign was tested which points the way to the ultimate defeat of the enemy in the Pacific.

Swift Strokes Applied

"The offensive and defensive power of the air and the adaptability, range and capacity of its transport in an effective combination with ground forces represent tactical and strategical elements of a broadened conception of warfare that will permit the application of offensive power in swift, massive strokes rather than the dilatory and costly island-to-island advance that some have assumed to be necessary in a theater where the enemy's far-flung strongholds are dispersed throughout a vast expanse of archipelagos.

"Air forces and ground forces were welded together in Papua, and when in sufficient strength with proper naval support, their indissoluble union points the way to victory through new and broadened strategic and tactical conceptions."

Military Authorities See New Plan of Warfare

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24 (AP) Qualified military authorities here saw General Douglas MacArthur's significant statement today as removing finally any further discussion of an island-by-island strategy for victory in the Pacific and relegating it definitely to the discard.

Talk of such a strategy sprang up after Gen. MacArthur, on taking command in Australia, promised to roll the enemy back from the limits of his conquest in the south Pacific and eventually to recapture the Philippine islands.

Declaring that effective coordination of air striking power, air transport and land troops had been proved as the formula for victory in northeastern New Guinea, the general declared that this formula in the future "will permit the application of offensive power in swift, massive strokes rather than the dilatory and costly island-to-island advance that some have assumed to be necessary."

Shift in Strategy Seen

Observers here interpreted this to advocate a strategy of striking at Japan's key bases directly, outflanking or literally flying over intermediate and less important bases.

Gen. MacArthur's reference to "air forces and ground forces x x x welded together x x x with proper naval support" was interpreted as an argument by the general against a separate air force and as express recognition of the need for closest cooperation between military and naval forces in the amphibious warfare of the south Pacific.

Gen. MacArthur, it was recalled, has long argued the case for air and ground coordination down to the last detail. As chief of staff at the War department he promoted the creation of a general headquarters air force of the Army which was, in a sense the forerunner of the present autonomous Army air forces organization.

MUNDA POUNDED BY U.S. BOMBERS

Extensive Damage Reported; Six Other Forays Made on Jan. Bases

JAN 25 1943

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24—(AP)—American bombers blasted the Japanese air base at Munda in the central Solomon islands four times Saturday, the Navy announced today, starting fires, knocking out anti-aircraft batteries, and apparently blowing up an ammunition dump.

The attacks were among seven raids against enemy outposts in the South Pacific from Friday morning through Saturday night (Solomons time).

Two Jap Assaults

The Japanese countered with two aerial assaults— one against the American base on Espiritu Santo island in the New Hebrides group, southeast of the Solomons, and the other against Guadalcanal.

Ground fighting on Guadalcanal was continuing and the Navy communique reported 145 enemy troops were killed Wednesday through Friday. Whether our front lines on the island were advanced in these operations was not stated.

The nature of the enemy air operations against Espiritu Santo, results of which were not reported caused considerable conjecture here in the absence of any information as to how they were carried out.

Espiritu Santo is 535 nautical miles southeast of Guadalcanal and about 900 miles from the nearest Japanese air bases either in the Central and Northwestern Solomons or in the Ellice islands which lie northeast of the New Hebrides.

JAN 25 1943

Several Fires Started

American air operations covered in today's report began Friday morning when a Flying Fortress attacked Rekata bay on Santa Isabel island and started several fires. That place has been used by the enemy at various times as a seaplane base and on one occasion many weeks ago the installations there were reported to have been entirely destroyed by bombing attacks.

JAN 25 1943

On Saturday morning a Navy Catalina patrol bomber started the parade of destruction to Munda on New Georgia island where the Japanese apparently have a fairly well-developed but much battered airfield. The Catalina dropped bombs over the area and the communique said that "a large explosion resulted, indicating hits on an ammunition dump."

Parade of Raiders

At noon a flight of Army Marauders, escorted by Wildcat and Airacobra fighters, attacked and silenced aircraft batteries at Munda. These were followed by Flying Fortresses, escorted by Lightning fighters which started a number of fires.

DAMAGING BLOWS DEALT JAP BASES

MacArthur's Planes Attack Rabaul, Lae, and Salamaua.

JAN 25 1943

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Monday, Jan. 25 — (AP) Allied planes carried the war to the Japs in the South Pacific over the weekend, with results showing they not only can deal destruction as fighting groups but also singly can hold their own against superior numbers of the enemy.

Sharing attention with damaging blows dealt by groups of planes on Rabaul, New Britain, Lae and Salamaua, New Guinea, was a four-engined bomber which on Saturday was attacked by nine Jap fighter planes in the vicinity of Wewak, New Guinea. In a running fight which lasted for an hour and a half, the Liberator shot down two of the enemy and got home safely.

Third Successful Stand

It was the third occasion last week in which Liberators successfully fought off strong attacks by Zeros. Four of these big bombers last Wednesday shot down 12 and damaged six of 25 attackers. Friday one destroyed three and probably destroyed two others out of 18 attackers.

JAN 25 1943

Searchlights which have given the raiders some trouble recently at Rabaul were among the targets of the most recent raid of Allied heavy bombers. Two were doused.

In the Solomon sea, about 130 miles west of the Shortland islands, a Catalina patrol bomber on night reconnaissance scored possible hits on an enemy ship.

Enemy airdromes were attacked at Rabaul.

TRIED BY BOMBER

Transport Hit, Five Zeros Shot Down in Extra-Curricular Activity.

VERN HAUGLAND

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, Jan. 23—(Delayed) — (AP) Lieut. John Arant, of Winnemercca, Nev., winging his Liberator bomber on a reconnaissance mission over Rabaul today, decided he might as well amplify his assignment with a little direct warfare.

JAN 25 1943

Accordingly, he scored a square hit on a large enemy transport, a near miss on another ship, and destroyed five of a group of Japanese Zeros which rose to attack the big plane.

At the same time another Liberator piloted by Lieut. Lark Martin of Fitzgerald, Ga., challenged by 18 Zeros while on reconnaissance over Wewak, New Guinea, shot down three of the fighters and possibly destroyed two more.

Both Planes Riddled

Both American planes limped into home airdromes considerably shot up. Lieutenant Arant's crew was uninjured. A few members of Lieutenant Martin's crew were hurt slightly.

Lieutenant Martin said the Zeros at Wewak attacked his heavy bomber for nearly an hour and three quarters. The tail gunner, Staff Sgt. Paul Stratton of Georgia, radioman and turret gunner, got one for certain plus two possibles, while an extra crew member identified only as Sergeant Wolbrum got another

Jap Hospital with 250 Victims, Living and Dead, Found in Papua

By VERN HAUGLAND

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, Jan. 24 — (AP) A Japanese hospital containing 250 enemy living and dead was found 600 yards south of Giruwa yesterday by Allied patrols mopping up the Sanananda battleground. Many of the patients were lying on crudely-constructed beds in the rain-soaked jungle so near to death their plight was hopeless.

Fifty litter cases were removed to Allied hospitals in the area for treatment and medical officers expected to remove 50 more Seventeen others were able to walk slowly toward the rear.

Resistance Has Collapsed

While all organized Japanese resistance in Sanananda has collapsed and the Papuan campaign officially has been declared ended, patrols continued to capture or kill stray groups of enemy soldiers.

It was one of these patrols which found the hospital. Detailed reports on the condition of the Japanese were not available immediately, but many of the enemy were said to be emaciated—evidence of the effectiveness of the Allies' siege-and-blockade tactics in cutting off the New Guinea Japs from their supplies.

Australians killed 11 of 12 Japs encountered between Sanananda and Killerton point. The other escaped. Americans farther inland picked up seven prisoners.

dia by the British on a goodwill tour, spent several days in New Delhi, and is returning to Turkey early in February.

May 1 is considered the critical date because then the passes through the barrier of the Turkish and southern and eastern mountains will be cleared of snow, and the ground sufficiently dry for motorized operations.

Such an outlook is by no means officially aired, but was obtained from a competent source cognizant with the Turkish viewpoint. The supposition is based by the Turks on these points, this informant said:

One—the attack would be designed to divert both the Anglo-American and Russian pressure from other fronts.

Two—It is a military logical zone for German operations to get at the Caucasian oil and split the enemy front.

Three—It could come as a desperation gesture by Hitler, since he cannot simply sit tight while the Allied ring closes in.

Anticipating the possibility of such a move, the Turkish army is being kept mobilized to the peak despite the terrific drain it imposes on a relatively poor country already heavily burdened by losses from the last war and efforts to carry on the late Kamal Ataturk's national reconstruction program.

Aside from this there is a striking change of tone in the comments of private citizens in Turkey, this informant continued. In official positions the neutrality and friendship of both sides are maintained, but in recent months frequent comment has been heard among the population that the time is ripe for Turkey to declare herself on the side of the Allies.

Turkey has a deep-seated fear of Russia and is determined to stay in a strong position both militarily and diplomatically as a safeguard against possible encroachments by war.

This is considered one important reason why she would not plunge into the war at an early date and thus exhaust her resources. But at the same time it was pointed out that Turkey recognized that her position at the peace conference would be greatly improved if she were on the side of the Allies.

Britain To Ship Wheat To Relieve Situation In India

Bombay, Jan. 24 (AP) — The Government announced today that Great Britain would send substantial shipments of wheat to India in the next two or three months to help relieve the growing seriousness of the food situation.

JAN 25 1943

The wheat will sell at prices "appreciably lower than those at present prevailing in free markets," the Government said.

To Draft Chinese for Japan

CHUNGKING, Jan. 23 (Delayed) (AP).—The Central News asserted today that Wang Ching-wei, head of the puppet Nanking government, agreed during a recent visit to Tokio to draft 10,000,000 men in the Japanese-occupied area of China "to serve as Japanese gun fodder."

Motor Torpedo Boat Aboard

Also aboard the ship was a motor torpedo boat fully armed which Ingram said was a new wrinkle in blockade running. Presumably these are used to attack Allied vessels but in this action the Nazis were so promptly put under pressure they were unable to launch their torpedo craft.

Lieut. Robert H. White, of St. Johnsbury, Vt., was recommended for the Navy Cross for his personal bravery and ability in leading an armed party which boarded the sinking vessel after three explosions ripped away much of her bottom.

Three Heavy Explosions

Sixty-two officers and men, believed to be the entire ship's complement, were taken prisoners after they had abandoned the scuttled ship in lifeboats. Twenty-four were said to be members of the German navy.

Two lifeboats first were lowered into the water while flames could be seen enveloping the pilot house. Then three heavy explosions rocked the ship and as she began to sink the Norwegian flag came down and the German swastika was raised. By this time there were four lifeboats in the water.

The boarding party went alongside one of the lifeboats and forced the enemy ship's coxswain and one of its junior officers to guide the party aboard the slowly settling ship. The party stepped directly from their whaleboat to the ship's fantail.

An American enlisted man hauled down the Nazi flag. A Norwegian flag and machine guns were seized.

On the fantail the party found a dying dog with a bullet in his head, apparently the ship's pet.

Announcement of the scuttling was made by Vice Admiral Jonas H. [illegible], commanding Allied South Atlantic operations.

As a result of the boarding operation, a letter of commendation was recommended for Lieut (j. g.) Charles H. Vale, of Kenosho, Wis., and the following enlisted men were promoted: Leon D. Commenting in general on blockade-running operations, Rear Admiral O. M. Read, commander of the task group, said that undoubtedly as American operations increase "it will be up to the enemy to get more rubber and strategic materials from Japan."

FLYNN OKAY HELD LIKELY

JAN 25 1943

But 5 Senators Whose Attitude Is In Doubt Could Shift Committee Result

Connally And Barkley Predict Favorable Report On Nomination

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Jan. 24—Approval by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Wednesday of President Roosevelt's nomination of Edward J. Flynn to be Minister to Australia appeared today to be likely, although five Senators whose attitude is in doubt could alter the result.

Representative Connally (D., Texas), chairman of the committee, and Democratic Leader Barkley, of Kentucky, both predicted the committee would report favorably the nomination of the former Democratic national chairman, who also was picked by the President for his personal ambassador in the southwest Pacific area.

Strictly Partisan

One informed committee member, who asked that his name not be used, predicted the vote would be strictly partisan. There remained, however, the possibility of defections from the ranks of the fifteen Democrats and eight minority members.

The membership of the committee, in addition to Connally and Barkley, is as follows: Democrats—George, Georgia; Wagner, New York; Thomas, Utah; Van Nuys, Indiana; Murray, Montana; Pepper, Florida; Green, Rhode Island; Reynolds, North Carolina; Guffey, Pennsylvania; Gillette, Iowa; Clark, Missouri; Glass, Virginia; Tunnell, Delaware. Republicans—Johnson, California; Capper, Kansas; Vandenberg, Michigan; White, Maine; Shipstead, Minnesota; Nye, North Dakota; Davis, Pennsylvania. Progressive—La Follette, Wisconsin.

La Follete Noncommittal

Most Democrats were expected to support Flynn's appointment and it seemed likely all seven Republicans would oppose it. La Follette declined to commit himself.

Twelve would be a majority if all members voted. However, Glass and Johnson were not present at hearings last week. If they do not return for Wednesday's meeting, they can vote by proxy.

Clark has announced that unless Flynn relinquishes his post as Democratic National Committeeman from New York he will vote against confirmation. Flynn said during the hearings that he had "tentatively resigned" from the party committee membership but did not elaborate.

Attitudes Secret

Besides Clark and La Follette, the attitude of three more Democrats—George, Gillette and Van Nuys—remained a secret even to their colleagues.

Thus if the Republicans vote solidly against the nomination and these five join them, the nomination will be reported adversely. On the other hand, if there are no other Democratic defections, support by one or more of these five will give Flynn the first round in his fight for confirmation—a result that seems probable.

Stiffer Times Ahead

Once over this hurdle, however, the long-time political and personal friend of President Roosevelt admittedly faces stiffer opposition in the Senate, where some Democrats not members of the Foreign Relations Committee are expected to join most of the thirty-eight Republicans in opposing the appointment.

A Senate Judiciary subcommittee is to report to the full committee during the week on the nomination of Wiley B. Rutledge, of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals, to be an associate justice of the Supreme Court, with confirmation virtually assured.

MIDDLE-CLASS STATUS SEEN FOR ALL IN U. S.

Wallace Visions Future Wherein Benefits Are Equally Shared

JAN 25 1943

Says 'Spirit Of Competition By Private Enterprise Must Continue

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Jan. 24—Vice-President Wallace, one of the foremost exponents of post-war planning, summed up today his vision of the nation's future as "an American where all can become members of the middle class—where all can share in the benefits which that class has enjoyed in the past."

The 52-year-old Vice-President, who doubles as chairman of the Board of Economic Warfare, declared:

"The spirit of competition will and must continue to be one of our main driving forces.

Government To Fill Gaps

"We can have full employment in this country without destroying private initiative, private capital, or private enterprise.

'Government can and must accept the major responsibilities for filling in whatever gaps business leaves.

"The more private enterprise succeeds in maintaining full employment, the Government spending will be required.

"Individual initiative and enterprise, and Government responsibility for the general welfare, will continue to pull in double harness, for a better life for our people.

"Horatio Alger is not dead in America and never will be."

Wallace expressed these views in a statement he gave an interviewer.

Self-Interest Still Needed

He classed as "nonsense" any contentions that post-war aims can not be discuss[illegible] kindling peace-t[illegible] and emphasizing pe[illegible] ties" and scoffed at the[illegible] who talk "in dark whispers of the collectivization of American life, of the destruction of free enterprise."

"We need the driving force of self-interest to get most of the work of the world done," he said.

"Business men will be encouraged to do what competition has always tended to make them do—to reduce prices as costs fall, to increase the levels of sales and employment, to use profits only as an incentive to increase production or lower costs.

Security Must Be Assured

"To the A[illegible] there are areas of unemployment left despite these efforts by business, Government must and will step in to see that all people have opportunities for work and to establish such minimum standards of living that no member of the community suffers even though business temporarily and in part fails to provide opportunity at good work for all people.

"Men must work for what they have. By and large their material reward will continue to be based on how skilled they become."

On the other hand, he contended, social security and other measures providing for protection against disease, accident, involuntary unemployment and old age, as well as provision of opportunity for health, education and work "are not inconsistent with the principle that hard work must be rewarded to encourage workers to do their best."

Comfortable Income For All

Most Americans, the Vice President asserted, visualize the nation of the future as made up not of "propertyless workers," but rather an America "where all can become members of the middle class, sharing such things as private homes with modern conveniences, including electrical appliances, a car neither old nor ramshackle, decent clothes and books" and recreation.

"If we can work out the ways to keep production going on an equally high level after the fighting ends, every family can enjoy a comfortable income, even though there continue to be wide differences between what is earned by skillde professional men, or inventors, or daring businessmen, and what average workers earn," he asserted.

Only "prophets of doom" say a way can't be found to keep business going at such a full level without abolishing private enterprise and substituting Government ownership and control, he contended.

Easy Money Making At End

He would retain many of the elements of business as it has been known, but "we cannot go back to the past complete lack of economic responsibility and insure full employment at the same time."

"I hope that some kinds of easy money making are gone for good—money made by the old-fashioned manipulation of security markets and of speculative commodity markets, or by the unrestricted use of business monopoly powers which strangle trade, kill competition and cut down production or jobs," Wallace emphasized.

"Even tremendously large incomes will be less common in the future, not only because they are bad for those that receive them, or at least their children and grandchildren, but also because they build up hoards of idle money instead of putting people to work and concentrate control of industry in single hands."

WICKARD SEES MORE RATIONS

JAN 25 1943

Widening Between Demand And Supply Possible, He Says In Annual Report

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Jan. 24—Claude R. Wickard, Secretary of Agriculture, declaring it good common sense to give the military forces and the lend-lease programs first claim to the nation's food supply, called upon civilians today to accept rationing as a "part of the price of victory."

In his annual report to President Roosevelt, the Secretary and administrator of the wartime food program said it was possible that the gap between demand and supply would widen further this year to make additional rationing necessary.

Rationing Necessary

Much of the 220-page report was devoted to the demands being made upon American farmers for food to meet expanding military requirements, needs of the country's fighting Allies and reserves for feeding hungry peoples freed from Axis domination.

"Getting full effectiveness from our human and military resources will necessitate rationing," Wickard said. "Civilians should understand the reasons."

In controlling food supplies, he explained, the Government acted on the rule that military and lend-lease needs rank first.

"Too Complacent"

The rationing procedure applies only to what remains after the requirements of the battle fronts have been met and reserves accumulated to provision recaptured areas and help write the peace. In war for survival this is obvious commin sense. Letting the United Nations' fighters down would let us all down—in a hurry."

Wickard asserted that the nation was "still too complacent" about food. He said it was possible for civilians to cut down considerably and still have more and better food than the people of any other country.

"Actually, we have a reservoir of farm products, namely, the supplies that ordinarily we waste, such as the excess fat on beef and pork cuts, the stale baked goods, the left-overs. Much more sacrifice that we make as yet would not cut seriously into our nutrition or put us on par with our Allies in privation."

Above Expectations

The Secretary reported that food production in 1942 was above all expectations. The total output, he said, was ten per cent. above that of 1941. Although 1943 farm goals call for further increases, the Secretary said an output equal to that of 1942 was probably the maximum for which the nation could plan.

"Farmers will have to contend with greater obstacles, especially with worse shortages of labor and machinery; they will have to do with less fertilizer, insecticides, bagging and other means of production. It will be a miracle if the weather is as good for crops as it was in 1942."

The Secretary reported that unity was developing on the food front.

National Interests

"Bickering over the dollars and cents aspect of it and over group shares in the national income is giving way to broad acceptance of stabilization policies based on the Price Stabilization Act," he said. "National interests are prevailing over group interests and are throwing group struggles into the discard."

Wickard said it was possible to make certain general statements about the agricultural position of the United Nations. So far as production is concerned, he said, the United Nations will be able to meet most of their essential requirements in food and fiber.

"However, there will undoubtedly be many deficits, some of them severe, due to the limited shipping facilities.

"These deficits will mean somewhat less varied diets in such countries as the United Kingdom, Australia, and the Americas, but if present shipping capacity is at least maintained, there will be enough to eat. Elsewhere, where problems of transportation are more difficult, there is a serious danger of widespread malnutrition."

SAYS REICH HIT TOO SOON

Book Reveals Reich Planned For 20 Years Huge Industrial Offensive

Authors Describe Hitler's Pre-War Nation As A "European Sandbox"

JAN 25 1943

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Jan. 24—Germany struggled for twenty years with an international industrial offensive to achieve a master plan of conquest against the world—and then struck too soon—a well-authenticated new book published today says.

The authors described pre-war Germany as a "European Sandbox" out of which was built a "fortress of self-sufficiency," and question whether anything will be done about Germany's twice-tried attempt at world supremacy after this war with the conclusion that "disastrous wars are the failures of peace."

The book, "Germany's Master Plan," was written by Joseph Borkin, economic advisor to Thurman Arnold's antitrust division of the Department of Justice, and Charles A. Welsh, cartel expert for the Office of Price Administration.

Deals With Cartel System

With liberal doses of references from other competent written works, the story deals with Germany's "cartel system," operated by the giant I. G. Farbenindustrie.

In an introductory chapter, Thur-

1940

30 24-571

men Arnold describes a cartel as a "small ring of producers or distributors who have acquired control of domestic or foreign markets." Borkin and Welsh class the German cartel as the greatest ever conceived and Germany as the "classic land of the cartel."

"With the growth of these international cartels," says Arnold, "Democracy becomes a shell which conceals the power of private groups. Political freedom cannot exist except when it is founded upon industrial freedom."

Failed Due To Bad Timing

After a discussion of the throttling power of cartels, Arnold says: "We cannot turn over our future economic policy to private groups without public responsibility as we have done in the past."

The authors point out the "most comprehensive blueprint for empire which the world has known" failed Germany due to bad timing.

"Because Germany precipitated war before the master plan for conquest was completed," the authors state, "her armies at the end of 1942 were spread from the Barents Sea to the Mediterranean, from the Channel Islands to the Caucasus—conquerers, but not victorious.

Confident that her new technology had given her the implements of certain victory, Germany made—for us—a fortunate miscalculation.

Machine Was Not Ready

"Her new machine was not quite ready: It could demolish a decadent France, but could not leap the channel; it could provide all German needs if victory came fast; it could not touch Detroit.

"Whether this forced haste only delays German victory or deals it a mortal blow is for us to decide. We can now grasp the industrial initiative."

Germany, according to the authors, began her industrial push on a world-wide scale in 1850, and brought it to near-perfection just before the outbreak of the present World War.

"Every junkheap or scrap rubber, every pile of aluminum pots and pans which Americans build in public squares is an unwitting tribute to the efficiency of German cartel warfare," the authors say.

"As the war progresses, the true significance of shortage becomes clearer. Because of cartels (combinations of industrial pools), critical military goods are either unobtainable or must be carefully rationed to the army, the navy and the air force."

The "I. G." trust in Germany began with the dye industry, gained control of pharmaceutical developments, spread out into other industries, pulled and hauled on international exchanges of trade and finally emerged as a tremendous power in the manufacture of the "vials of wrath."

It was this trade monster, the authors assert, which gave Germany oil from coal, synthetic rubber, synthetic drugs and substitute elements necessary to warfare, which created the premature belief among German militarists that they were ready to go out and lick the world with self-produced equipment from their own "sandbox."

Big Nations Slumbered

Throughout this German development, Great Britain, the United States

bered, the authors say, [illegible] unaware of the full portent of "Germany's master plan."

The authors assert that German militarists studied Japan's conquest ambitions and found in these a perfect foil for their own. Japan could be used to stab the democracies from the rear and give Russia a two-front war.

Germany Hopes to Win In the Business World

By JAMES J. STREBIG

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24—(AP) Joseph Borkin, whose business is untangling international economic intrigue, warns of the danger of a German victory in the business world whatever the outcome of the war.

If that should happen again, as it happened in the 1920's, Borkin said in an interview, the Prussian Junkers for whom he blames German militarism would have opportunity to overcome what he calls the mistake made in 1939 — striking too soon—and, he declared, democracy could not hope to survive.

Borkin is an economic adviser in the justice department's anti-trust division and has guided the investigation in which the government has indicted some of America's largest corporations on charges of joining in agreements with foreign groups to divide world markets, restrict production and fix prices.

Real War Machine

He probably knows more about I. G. — popular name of Interessen Gemeinschaft Farbenindustrie Aktiengesellschaft, the great German dye trust — than anyone outside of it. He sees I. G. as Germany's real war engine, a machine which softens prospective victims afield while strengthening the home front through expanded capacity for vital materials.

The cartel — a combination or agreement for limiting markets, production and prices — has been Germany's economic warfare method, the means by which Borkin declared the United Nations were caught short on rubber, aluminum, mercury, nickel, tungsten, tin, silk and quinine.

"Wherever there had been a cartel before," Borkin said, "there was a military shortage after Pearl Harbor.

Briefly, this was what took place between Versailles and Pearl Harbor, Borkin related:

Strengthened Weaknesses

Having failed at arms in 1914-1918, Germany studied her weaknesses and adroitly regained the industrial holdings taken from her in other countries. With these footholds the world over, she began to build up at home the technological devices needed to meet her shortcomings, using the same efforts to construct and retard similar developments elsewhere.

At the heart of this program was the use of patent controls and international agreements. German companies, always playing a role in the grand scheme, traded information and promises and threats to the end that Germany was free to expand as much as it chose at home and to do business abroad on a scale always much more extensive than that allowed other cartelists.

It required skill and diplomacy, but Germany had never lacked those.

The result, Borkin said, was that when war came, Germany not only was able to produce the oil and rubber which a blockade might shut off, but also had a tremendous capacity for light metals, military glass, plastics and drugs, built up by selling to most of the world in peacetime. At the same time, other countries found themselves with only peacetime capacities.

"I.G. obtained for Germany whatever it needed and science could make, while trying to keep the same sources from others," he said. "The cartel was I.G.'s formula for conquest; with the cartel it invaded and occupied strategic points in the economies of other countries. It represents the acme of Pan-Germanism in the economic sphere."

Recalling Germany's international agreements before the First World war and the ease with which the Reich recouped losses and expanded them into great gains after that conflict, Borkin said that I.G. already had planned for post-war reconstruction — win or lose — in agreements with non-German companies.

Reports from occupied countries show that I.G. experts have followed Hitler's armies for the purpose of acquiring ownership of the entire European chemical industry, he said. Their contracts with American firms, he added, provided for a means of operating during the war and a settlement of claims afterward.

"I.G. apparently hopes to win its own war, as it did once before," Borkin asserted, "even though Hitler loses, as did the Kaiser."

"We are struggling yet to close some of the gaps left by our failure to recognize the economic war carried on by Germany through cartelization."

He said that tungsten carbide production in this country had been held down by a price arrangement under which the German producers sold at a much lower rate. For example, at one time the substance—nearly as hard as a diamond and virtually indispensable in making machine tools—sold for $453 a pound in the United States while selling in Germany at about $50 a pound. Thus it was nearly prohibitive for American tool makers.

Aluminum output was controlled through a world division of production on a pegged basis, he said, and two other vitally important light metals—magnesium and berryllium—were controlled by less sweeping but equally effective arrangements.

In the field of plastics, he decribed the general pattern of division as one whereby the American companies were permitted to sell without competition in this country and Canada, while Germany took the rest of the world.

Similar arrangements were used for pharmaceuticals, military glass and certain chemicals.

Borkin discussed the views he has put into a forthcoming book, "Germany's master plan" written in collaboration with Charles A. Welsh, an authority on international trade and finance with the office of Price Administration. The work aims at showing the danger of letting Germany win in peacetime a war lost in battle.

What's Behind The War News

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

If the Germans have found a way to make practical use of oxygen in operating a submarine's diesel motor while submerged, as they claim, then they have made one of the greatest advances in undersea warfare since the modern submarine was first developed about 50 years ago. But great stress must be laid on the "if" in view of thorny problems involved in supplying and using oxygen equipment in place of standard electrical propulsion machinery.

The German radio reported Saturday night that a new type of submarine which would operate on compressed oxygen was under construction. An inventor identified only as "Andre" was credited in the broadcast with having found a way to compress the gas to a degree 400 times greater than heretofore possible. The gas, the Germans say, is fed into the regular diesel engines of the submarine which are, however, equipped with special cylinders.

Much skepticism arises from the fact that the Germans made the announcement at all. If they were building such a U-boat they might be expected to keep quiet about it until they could employ its revolutionary characteristics to good advantage in combat—to use it as a "secret weapon."

The broadcast may have been designed, however, to alarm the Allies, already seriously concerned over U-boat successes in the Atlantic, and to cheer up the German people, who may need a propaganda shot-in-the arm to counter Axis setbacks in Russia and Africa and in the air war over Germany.

Enormous Advantages

The advantages of a submarine which could be driven under the sea by other than electrical power are enormous. Standard American subs, like those of other nations, are driven on the surface by diesel engines which simultaneously charge huge banks of storage batteries that furnish the power for propulsion when submerged.

There are four disadvantages to this system:

The batteries weigh many tons. They occupy about one fourth of the total space inside the hull. When salt water comes into contact with them, a constant danger, they give off a highly poisonous gas. When a submarine is driven at full speed while submerged the batteries run down quickly, and even at slow speed they are exhausted in a few hours.

These factors limit the amount of torpedoes and other "pay cargo" which a submarine can carry and also circumscribe its operations. Thus, in dangerous waters, a submarine normally stays down by day to prevent discovery, but surfaces at night to charge its batteries.

Two Primary Problems

Scientists seeking a method of using internal combustion motors while a submarine is submerged have had two primary problems:

The first was how to store the oxygen in sufficient quantities to provide adequate fuel for submerged operations on long voyages or else how to make lightweight oxygen plants, built into the subs, which could extract and purify the gas from the air.

Second was what to do with exhaust gases. Assuming that they could be blown out of a submerged submarine under great pressure, they would still leave a tell-tale wake of bubbles on the surface of the ocean. That would destroy the submarine's most valuable characteristic—its ability to hide from surface and air craft.

The German radio suggested a possible answer to the first of these problems by claiming that inventor "Andre" had found how to compress oxygen to a degree 400 times greater than heretofore possible. That would mean that a one cubic foot contianer could hold as much of the gas as a 400 cubic foot container previously held.

But this is only a partial solution to the problem. The radio did not say how heavy the containers have to be to hold the highly compressed gas without danger of explosion nor how many containers were required for a long voyage.

Unbelievable Strength

The Germans claim that elimination of batteries in the new type sub saves 60 tons of weight and much space. If that is true, it would be a great gain in submarine weight is saved and more space made available for torpedo load, food and ammunition stores, the broadcast said.

NEW TYPE SUBMARINE ANNOUNCED BY NAZIS

Compressed Oxygen Operates Diesels Beneath Surface

By The Associated Press

The German radio last night reported that the Nazis were building a new type of submarine operating with compressed oxygen. The broadcast was recorded by The Associated Press.

The report may be circulated at this time to impress the Allies with the progress of German submarine warfare. The advantage of the new invention, the radio said, is that the U-boats can use their Diesel motors beneath the surface and thus gain speed and cruising radius.

An invention by a German named Andre permits oxygen to be compressed to a degree 400 times greater than heretofore possible, the broadcast said.

"By installing specially designed oxygen tubes in Diesel cylinders," it continued, "submarines are enabled to operate beneath the surface exclusively on the energy derived from the Diesels and the new type of cylinders, instead of on electric batteries equipped with stronger Diesel engines with a larger number of cylinders. This makes for greater speed and a wider radius of action.

"In subsurface operation, part of the exhaust gases are again absorbed by the Diesel engines and mixed with oxygen."

Submarines normally operate beneath the water on electric batteries, and surface to recharge their batteries with their Diesel engines. They cruise on the surface with the Diesels. No electrical battery plant is n submarines construction, but it implies almost unbelievable strength combined with light weight in the oxygen tanks.

But [illegible] months clipped almost insuperable engineering difficulties during World War I to produce a successful type of submarine. Moreover, in the present war the German subs reputedly are far advanced over the U-boats of World War I in their ability to descend to great depths.

Great Technical Ability

Thus, there can be no question of the great technical ability of the enemy in U-boat design.

This very fact, however, might be relied upon by German propagandists to lend the color of truth to claims of a formidable new undersea war craft which in fact does not exist.

Halsey Throws Everything, Including Stove Lids, at Japs

Problem of Keeping Pacific Naval Leader Supplied Told by Admiral

JAN 25 1943

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24 — (AP) The man who sees to it that the Navy has what it needs to make war in the Pacific said today it was a tough job because when Admiral William F. Halsey "goes into action he throws everything he's got at the enemy including the kitchen stove—and then he goes into the kitchen, gets the stove lid, and throws them too."

Vice Admiral William L. Calhoun, commander of the Pacific Service force, explained in a statement released by the Navy that his job is "to make sure that the kitchen stove and all the lids are there when Billy Halsey gets ready to throw them." Admiral Calhoun is here for conferences.

Crude Methods Used

Shipping, handling, and storage are the great problems confronting the men who supply American forces setting up bases in the Pacific islands. On the receiving end, Admiral Calhoun said, "methods as crude as those Robinson Crusoe had to use to get his stuff out of the wreck" are necessary.

"There were no storehouses on those islands, no magazines, no oil tanks, no refrigeration facilities," he said. "Our engineers are building them now, but material and labor for new storage facilities must come from the mainland—and that means delay. Ships are scarce. We have very low grade and insufficient terminal and pier facilities for unloading—sometimes we have to carry things right up the beach. Hurricane weather is frequent and that delays us, too, and the tropical climate is very destructive of stores if unloaded without proper protection to safeguard them until they are used."

Gasoline a Great Problem

One of the greatest needs of the United States forces battling the Japanese is aviation gasoline and that makes Admiral Calhoun's prime problem the matter of having gasoline ready wherever and whenever needed. The problem is made especially difficult by the fact that gasoline must be shipped in drums because there are inadequate receiving and storage facilities in the battle areas.

Admiral Calhoun said that plentiful supplies "are now on hand in the war zones, but they must continue to flow." Transportation and storage of supplies "is improving swiftly and has bettered by 25 or 30 per cent in recent months in the area where Admiral Halsey's forces are operating," Admiral Calhoun reported.

Patterson Says U.S. Is Planning For War in '44

Rebuts Critics of Big Army; Warns of Axis Strength, Especially in Submarines

BALTIMORE, Jan. 24 (AP).—Robert P. Patterson, Under Secretary of War, said tonight that "the people who contend that our Army is too large seem to overlook two important factors."

The first of these, he asserted in an address prepared for the sixth general assembly of the Council of State Governments, "is that it is as essential to obtain superiority over our enemies in number of soldiers as it is in training and in number and quality of weapons.

"The second point . . . is that we are training men in 1943 to fight in 1944. Our training program must contemplate a long war and unfortunately there are no sound reasons to believe that the war will be finished in 1943."

Speaking on the eve of an inquiry by the Senate Military Affairs Committee in Washington to determine whether, as some members of Congress have contended, the nation is building too large an army, Patterson declared that "the size of the armed forces necessary to win the war is a military problem to be decided by the military leaders, the joint chiefs of staff."

"Today," he continued, "it is estimated that the Axis powers and their satellites have under arms 569 divisions. This is considerably more divisions than we and our British and Russian allies have."

He estimated the Army's present strength at "over 5,500,000, far along on the road toward our vital objective of 7,500,000 men by Jan. 1, 1944."

About 20 per cent of our forces now are overseas, he added.

Although asserting "tonight the war news is good," the Under Secretary declared:

"But we have just begun. For us, the battle has only started.

"The submarine menace is critical. The sinkings have made a sharp cut into the munitions delivered abroad. We have yet to conquer the threat of the German submarines.

"We do not forget that the Japanese still control the greater part of the Pacific; the Nazis control practically the whole of western Europe.

"We have only now commenced the long task of driving them back, inch by inch. It will be a task that will cost us dear in lives. Many men will not come back."

Detailing Allied successes in Russia, North Africa and the Southwest Pacific, Mr. Patterson said: "The American people are fighting mad. The men they have sent to the front are even madder. They have a healthy hatred for the Nazis and the Japanese, and they are showing it every day. They are showing it by outpunching, outshooting, out-bayonetting, outflying and outsailing the Axis."

The American soldier, Mr. Patterson declared, "has become the best soldier on the face of the earth. And the men in the Navy are just as good. . . .

"We are giving him the weapons, too. . . . You have heard much, and righly, of the achievements we have made in manufacturing vast quantities of munitions. But I want you to know that not only is our record in quantity unsurpassed, but so is our record in quality."

Sergeant, Deeply Irritated, Fears War Will Be Over Before He "Can Get In There And Pitch"

JAN 25 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Milwaukee, Jan. 24—An ex-army sergeant at 15? Sure, it's so. He's Johnny Maras, back at his home here with a discharge in his pocket and mad enough about it to chew nails.

Johnny earned his three stripes the hard way—after fibbing a bit about his age, of course—in the heavy-weapons unit of the United States Army Infantry. And then the colonel found out—about the fibbing.

That was two weeks ago, after Johnny had been sent to an embarkation point and was al lset to take off for a crack at the Axis.

Colonel Finds Out

"I've found out your real age," said the colonel. "You're only 15."

"Oh, no, sir," said Johnny, "I'm 18."

The colonel chuckled. 1943

"I checked up at the city hall at Milwaukee," he said. "I found you were born June 20, 1927. That makes you 15."

So Johnny confessed.

And then the colonel said, smiling:

"You know, Johnny, you're the first 15-year-old sergeant I've seen in this army."

Revocation Discharge

But regulations are regulations, so the colonel handed Johnny a revocation discharge.

"I figure," Johnny said tonight, "that when I was home on furlough at Christmas somebody found out how good I was doing in the army and turned me in. Now, wasn't that a lousy trick?

"So now I got to wait a year-and-a-half before I can get in there and pitch. I can't get into the marines or the navy until I'm 17 and the army won't take me back until I'm 18. And the war probably will be over by then."

Pal Is Killed

How'd he get in in the first place? Well, his pal, a marine, was killed at Pearl Harbor. So Johnny quit school and hitchhiked to California. He tried the navy and the marines but they wouldn't be fooled about his age. The army was.

He had his basic training at Camp Roberts, Cal., and then was transferred t oFort G. Meade, Md. After that came shipment to the embarkation point.

And then the colonel caught him. So Johnny came marching home.

Crushing of Jap Military Caste Absolute Need, Grew Warns

LEWISTON, Me., Jan. 24—(AP) Only when Japan's "military caste and its machine have been wholly crushed x x x and discredited in the eyes of its own people" will the danger to America subside, Joseph C. Grew, former U. S. Ambassador to Japan, declared today.

Only then, he said, "shall we in our own land be free from that hideous danger and be able once again to turn to paths of peace."

In an address prepared for delivery at Bates college's first wartime, mid-winter commencement, at which he was awarded an honorary doctorate of laws, Mr. Grew said:

"I say to you, without hesitation or reserve, that our own country, our cities, our homes, are in dire peril from the over-weening ambition and the potential power of that Japanese military machine—a power that renders Japan potentially the strongest nation in the world—potentially stronger than Great Britain or Germany or Russia or the United States. . ."

Reminding that the Japanese themselves have spoken of a possible hundred-year war, Mr. Grew, envoy to Tokyo from 1932 until Pearl Harbor was attacked, said "one fact is as certain as the law of gravity.

"If we should allow the Japanese to dig in permanently in the far-flung areas now occupied, if we should allow them to consolidate and to crystallize their ill-gotten gains, if we should allow them time to fortify those gains in the nth degree, as they assuredly will attempt to do, it would be only a question of time before they attempted the conquest of American territory nearer home x x x."

Nazis, Trapped By U.S., Scuttle Disguised Ship

Blockade Runner With Load for Japan Carried Motor Torpedo Boat for Raiding

SOMEWHERE IN THE ATLANTIC, Jan. 8 (Delayed) (AP).—German sailors manning a blockade-running cargo ship disguised as Norwegian ran up the Nazi swastika flag and scuttled the vessel last November under the guns of an American naval task force in the Atlantic. Announcement of the scuttling was made by Vice-Admiral Jonas H. Ingram, commanding Allied South Atlantic operations.

The 5,000-ton vessel presumably was bound for Japan, the Navy report said. Its cargo included clothing, barrels of white powder believed to be lime, medicine samples made in Berlin, coils of wire rope, paint pigments and rope made of cocoanut fiber. Also found on board the ship was a motor torpedo boat fully armed which Admiral Ingram said was a new wrinkle in blockade running. Presumably these are used by the Germans to attack Allied vessels.

Lieutenant Robert H. White, of St. Johnsbury, Vt., was recommended for the Navy Cross for personal bravery and ability in leading an armed party which boarded the sinking vessel after three explosions ripped away much of her bottom.

Sixty-two officers and men, believed to be the entire ship's complement, were taken prisoner after they had abandoned the scuttled ship in lifeboats. Twenty-four were said to be members of the German Navy.

The boarding party went alongside one of the lifeboats and forced the enemy ship's coxswain and one of its junior officers to guide the party aboard the slowly settling ship. The party stepped directly from their whaleboat to the ship's fantail, where it found a dying dog with a bullet in its head, apparently the ship's pet.

As a result of the boarding operation a letter of commendation was recommended for Lieutenant (j. g.) Charles H. Vale, of Kenosha, Wis., and the following enlisted men were promoted: Leon D. Proimos, chief boatswain's mate; Elmer H. Schaible, coxswain; Eugene K. Laubach, machinist's mate first class, and Mike Wonner, quartermaster second class.

[The Navy Department announced that Lieutenants White and Vale received letters of commendation. The identical citations said: "The Department has been informed of the excellent service rendered by you in assisting in the destruction of an enemy blockade runner. For your outstanding performance of duty on this occasion you are hereby commended."]

CANADA DEALINGS WITH U.S. KEPT ON CASH BASIS

Dominion Has Contributed Billion Dollars in Goods in Year, Report Shows.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 — (AP) James L. Ilsley, Canadian minister of finance, declared tonight Canada's own financial arrangements with the United States have remained on a cash basis and it "has not received lend lease assistance on its own account from the United States government."

"Fortunately," Mr. Ilsley said in a speech prepared for delivery before the Canadian society, "we are in the same happy position as the United States, of being able to assist by economic means some of our allies who have had to bear such a large part of the blows from the common enemy."

JAN 25 1943

Canada's aid to the "common effort" in the past year, the finance minister said, included "a free and unconditional contribution of a billion dollars worth of food and war supplies."

By means of price control, Mr. Ilsley declared, Canada has been able to hold the cost of living "within two or three per cent" of the level it had reached before October, 1941, when control was put into effect."

Subsidies, he said, have been used to implement price control, particularly for essential imports, "but we do so sparingly and with the greatest care."

Rationing in Canada has proved "less expensive and more popular than we anticipated," the speaker said, adding: "We have had our difficulties but the wartime prices and trade board has striven to make its rationing plans as simple and understandable as possible so that the moment rationing is announced and put into effect, the people are able to know what they must do and way."

Peyrouton Citizenship Is Canceled By Vichy

New York, Jan. 24 (AP)—The German-controlled Paris radio reported today that Marcel Peyrouton, the new Governor General of Algeria, and four other French leaders in North Africa had been deprived of their French citizenship by the Ministerial Council headed by Pierre Laval.

The others said to have been shorn of citizenship because of their collaboration with the Allies were Gen. Auguste Nogues, former Governor General of Algeria; Gen. Alphonse Juin, commander of French forces in North Africa; Yves Charles Chatel, also a former Governor General of Algiers, and an industrialist, Le Maigre du Breul.

General Nogues and Chatel are members of an imperial council formed to govern French North Africa under the Allied occupation.

Five Canadian Women Welcomed To New York

JAN 25 1943

New York, Jan. 24 (Special)—Five Canadian women active in war work, on their way to Washington to confer with Government officials and the heads of women's organizations on the part played by women in the war effort in the United States, were received at City Hall yesterday noon by Newbold Morris, president of the City Council.

The Canadian women were Mrs. Carolyn Cox, chairman of the Women's Committee on International Relations; Mrs. Edgar T. Hardy, president of the National Council of Women of Canada; Mrs. Irene Arnould, of the Canadian Wartime Information Corps; Mrs. Cora Casselman, member of the Canadian Parliament, all of Ottawa, and Mrs. Irene Baird, of Vancouver, of the Canadian National Film Board.

Willkie Urges Support Of Grand Allied Board

New York, Jan. 24 (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie today urged full support of a grand Allied war strategy board, the formation of which is reported under discussion.

In reply to an inquiry concerning these reports, the 1940 Republican Presidential candidate declared:

"It is to be hoped that the recent intimations coming out of London and Washington are correct—that there will soon be set up a joint grand war strategy board consisting of representatives of the United States, Great Britain, Russia, China and other allies.

"We should all support such a course of action if adopted."

Called Indispensable

The remainder of Willkie's statement follows:

"For months, and particularly since my return from my trip around the world, both in private conferences with our own Government and in public speeches, I have urged repeatedly the indispensability of such a course.

For in such joint action lies not alone the hope of victory but equally the hope of eventual world peace. These powers must learn to work together while they fight if they are to work together for world peace and order in the inevitable disintegrating period following the war.

"Likewise, I hope that Secretary Hull's suggestion yesterday that our North African political dealings will be clarified is true.

Fear Damage To Prestige

"For the doctrine of expediency and collaboration with the Vichy element which has been followed there, if pushed much longer, will greatly damage America's prestige throughout the world.

"It is impossible to tell, in view of the elaborate censorship and propaganda, whether the appointments of Darlans, Peyroutons and other Vichyites do or do not bring temporary gains.

"There is one thing, however, that we know absolutely, namely, that such collaboration brings loss of faith to millions of sincere lovers of freedom everywhere and to my mind such loss of faith will cost more, even in practical results, than can possibly be gained by some temporary expedient."

Strong Man

JAN 25 1943

Gen. Batista of Cuba Works, Plays Hard

By CHIP ROYAL

NEW YORK—(AP) When you talk about Pan-American relations, Major General Fulgencio Batista, president of Cuba, has a word for it—"Conocernos."

In case your Spanish isn't so good, it means "Let us know each other."

The Cuban president insists that the Latin-American countries need more of the United States influence, for "it is excellent for better relations." He says it is all very simple. All we have to do is to know each other.

It is easy to know Batista for he is proud of his accomplishments, even to the successful revolution he led in 1933. A stickler for details, he speaks a deep-throated, rapid Spanish, which he frequently helped to translate. The 41-year-old "strong man" traveled a long, rough road from his humble birth in Banes to a suite in the Waldorf-Astoria, and he makes no bones about it.

A Big Man

He looks like a cross between Jack Dempsey and Max Schmeling, possessing a large head with straight black hair. Sparkling black eyes dart above high cheek bones.

He speaks with many gestures, always holding a long cigarette holder, one hand frequently in his pocket. An ardent athlete, Batista likes to drive his own car, and he puts in a full working day at the palace. Often he works until four o'clock in the morning.

It was Batista's knowledge of shorthand, gained when he was an army stenographer, that he credits with bringing him the presidency. Notes he took at President Machado's trial later were used to convict other leaders and elevate him to the command of the army, from which he moved into the palace. To this day, when Batista takes notes, it is always in shorthand.

Railroader

Other of the numerous jobs he dabbled in as a youth still hold an attraction for him, the president declared—particularly railroading.

"Just before I came here, I took a train trip to the Instituto Civico Militar. It is a school I built for 1,500 of Cuba's orphans. I always plan to have lunch with them at least twice a month. When I was a boy, I oiled the big locomotives, and have always wanted to run one of them, so on my last trip to the school, I went into the engine and handled the throttle. From now on, I'm the engineer on that trip."

Batista's ambition, he says, is to educate the masses of Cuba and improve their living standards.

This was Batista's second "good-will tour" to the United States. He said he was "very pessimistic" about us four years ago when he left the United States, but now he sees a new vision among Americans, and our war spirit "warms the heart."

TOLL OF U-BOATS MOUNTS TO 601 IN WEST ATLANTIC

Eight Vessels, Two of Them American, Added to List in Week

JAN 25 1943

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

As the Allies girded themselves for an all-out offensive against submarines — termed by Admiral Harold R. Stark the Navy's "first enemy" — the announced toll of Allied and neutral merchantmen sunk in western Atlantic by enemy action since Pearl Harbor rose over the 600 mark.

The announced destruction of eight vessels, two of them American, in the week ended Saturday, brought the shipping losses to 601. Seven of the eight sinkings took place off South America and in the raider-ridden South Atlantic.

74 Lives Lost

Seventy four lives were lost and 53 persons were reported missing.

Officials in Washington and abroad painted a pessimistic picture of the submarine situation. It was reported from London that decisions on the Allies' 1943 world strategy, believed now in the making, called for a concerted campaign on the seven seas to put the Allies on the offensive in undersea warfare.

Britain's first lord of the admiralty, A. V. Alexander, said "the enemy is now using new U-boats in larger packs and with new tactics. The U-boats now are even more concentrated than before. They are now lying, not in single packs, but if I may use a military expression, in echelons of packs."

Davis Pessimistic

Office of War Information director Elmer Davis commented:

"The submarine situation is bad and it will stay bad for a long time."

Admiral Sir Percy Noble, British admiralty representative on the combined chiefs of staff, said that all the strength and genius of the United Nations would be demanded to defeat the submarine onslaught. Although the Allies were suffering shipping losses in the South Atlantic the U-boats were not getting by unscathed in that area.

Rear Admiral Jonas H. Ingram, commander of United States naval forces in those waters, announced from Rio de Janerio that five Axis submarines were sunk and an intercepted German surface raider scuttled by its crew in the last month.

10 U-Boats Sunk

That made a total of at least 10 submersibles reported sunk in Brazilian waters in recent months.

Brazil's Air minister Joaquim Salgado previously told of the sinking of five submarines by the Brazilian air force.

Of the six other cargo ships sunk in the Western Atlantic during the week, three were British, and one each were of Egyptian, Swedish, and Polish registry.

Of the 601 ships lost, 198 were sunk off the United States, 50 off Canada, 178 in the Caribbean, 46 in the Gulf of Mexico, and 129 off South America and in the South Atlantic.

STOCKHOLM, JAN. 24-(AP)-APPARENTLY PREPARING THE GERMANS FOR NEWS OF A DISASTROUS DEFEAT ON THE EASTERN FRONT, THE BERLIN NEWSPAPER BOERSEN ZEITUNG AND VOELKISCHER BEOBACHTER RECALLED TODAY THE CONDITIONS OF 1918, "WHEN THE WEAKNESS OF THE GERMANS ON THE HOME FRONT FORCED GERMANY TO CAPITULATE."

THE PAPER DECLARED THAT SACRIFICES AT STALINGRAD HAVE "OBLIGED ALL THE PEOPLE TO STAND UP UNDER ALL DIFFICULTIES. A LOST WAR IS A LOST FUTURE."

"FOR THE FIRST TIME IN THIS WAR, GERMANY FACES REVERSES OF A CERTAIN IMPORTANCE," KARL MEGERLE WROTE IN THE PAPER, ACCORDING TO DISPATCHES FROM BERLIN.

JAN 25 1943

MEGERLE THEN COMPARED THE GERMANS' POSITION WITH THAT OF ROME THREATENED BY HANNIBAL, AND WITH THE ENGLISH DURING THE BATTLE OF BRITAIN.

"ROME ONCE WAS IN DANGER OF HER LIFE WHEN THREATENED BY HANNIBAL, BUT SHE TRIUMPHED," THIS JOURNALIST SAID. "ENGLAND HAS WITHSTOOD A SERIOUS REVERSE, EVEN A CATASTROPHE. THE GERMANS WILL PROVE THEY ARE SPIRITUALLY STRONGER THAN THE ENGLISH."

THE GERMANS, HE ADDED, MUST SHOW THE SAME POWERS OF RESISTANCE THE ENGLISH DID.

THE BERLIN PRESS EMPHASIZED THAT THE NAZIS FACE GIANTS IN RUSSIA AND SAID THAT THE FIGHT "OF COURSE WILL COST US VERY GREAT SACRIFICES."

THE GERMAN RADIO IS PLAYING MOURNING MUSIC INSTEAD OF THE USUAL LIVELY TUNES BETWEEN ITS "ALMOST MACABRE" REPORTS FROM THE RUSSIAN FRONT, THE BERLIN CORRESPONDENT OF THE STOCKHOLM NEWSPAPER AFTONBLADET SAID TODAY.

JAN 25 1943

THE TONE OF THE GERMAN PRESS, HE SAID, HAS BECOME "VERY SERIOUS." A GERMAN WAR CORRESPONDENT WAS QUOTED AS SAYING:

"ONE CAN CLEARLY SEE BY THE SOLDIERS' FACES WHAT PRIVATIONS THEY ARE EXPERIENCING AT STALINGRAD. THEIR UNIFORMS ARE WORN RAGS."

FOR THE FIRST TIME, AFTONBLADET SAID, THE BERLIN PRESS USED THE HEADLINE: "VICTORY OR BOLSHEVISM."

30.24-579

COUPLED WITH THE SOMBER NEWS FROM THE FRONT, THE PRESS RENEWED PLEAS FOR THE HOME FRONT TO "WORK MORE AND ENDURE MORE."

STOCKHOLM, JAN. 24-(AP)-EIGHTEEN GERMAN SOLDIERS WERE EXECUTED AT KRISTIANSAND, NORWAY, LAST WEEK AFTER A COURT MARTIAL IN DECEMBER ON CHARGES THAT THEY WERE "IN CONTACT WITH THE ENEMY," THE SWEDISH-NORWEGIAN NEWS BUREAU SAID TONIGHT. JAN 25 1943

SEVERAL OFFICERS WERE REPORTED INCLUDED IN THE GROUP.

IT WAS RECALLED HERE THAT OSLO ANNOUNCED OFFICIALLY RECENTLY THAT THE GERMANS HAD DISCOVERED A MILITARY CONSPIRACY IN THE KRISTIANSAND AREA. NORWEGIANS ARRESTED AT THE TIME HAVE NOT YET BEEN TRIED, IT WAS STATED.

FOLLOW STOCKHOLM

BERN, JAN. 24-(AP)-THE BERLIN CORRESPONDENT OF THE SWISS NEWSPAPER DIE TAT TODAY DESCRIBED THE GERMAN ARMY COMMUNIQUES OF JAN. 21 THROUGH 23 AS "THE MOST PESSIMISTIC EVER ISSUED BY THE FUEHRER'S HEADQUARTERS

"NEVER BEFORE," THIS CORRESPONDENT SAID, "HAVE THE GERMAN PAPERS SPOKEN SO IMPRESSIVELY AND SO WARNINGLY TO THE PEOPLE ABOUT THE EITHER-OR OF THEIR EXISTENCE AT THIS MOMENT. X X X

"ALTHOUGH IT WOULD BE ERRONEOUS TO OVERESTIMATE TEMPORARY DEFEATS TODAY, YET IT HAS BEEN MADE CLEAR QUICKLY TO THE PEOPLE THAT OVERCOMING THE PRESENT MILITARY SITUATION WILL PLACE EXCEPTIONALLY HARD DEMANDS ON THE HOME FRONT." JAN 25 1943

ONE OF THE SLOGANS NOW APPEARING IN THE BERLIN PRESS IS "EVERY MAN IS RESPONSIBLE--PREVENT A VICTORY OF BOLSHEVISM," ONE OF SEVERAL SIMILAR PLEAS FOR A GREATER ALL-OUT "TOTAL WAR" EFFORT.

ANKARA, JAN 24-(AP)-FORTY-SIX GERMAN SOLDIERS WERE KILLED AND 67 WOUNDED AND THE BELGRADE-ZAGREB RAILROAD LINE WAS DISRUPTED FOR TWO DAYS AS A RESULT OF THE DYNAMITING OF A TROOP AND PASSENGER TRAIN NEAR BELGRADE TEN DAYS AGO, ACCORDING TO AN EYE-WITNESS ACCOUNT FROM AN AXIS TRAVELLER WHO HAS JUST ARRIVED IN TURKEY.

BELGRADE, THE YUGOSLAV CAPITAL, IS LIKE A CITY IN A STATE OF SIEGE, THE TRAVELLER SAID, WITH CASEMATES AND PILLBOXES BUILT IN THE STREETS. JAN 25 1943

MOSCOW, JAN.24-(AP)-SURRENDER OF THE SECOND BATTALION, 513TH REGIMENT, 295TH INFANTRY DIVISION TO ENCIRCLING RED ARMY TROOPS BEFORE STALINGRAD WAS ANNOUNCED TODAY AND IT WAS INDICATED MORE SURVIVING UNITS OF THE TRAPPED FORCES MIGHT FOLLOW.

WISHING TO GIVE UP BUT TOLD BY GERMAN OFFICERS THAT THE RUSSIANS KILLED PRISONERS, THE BATTALION WAS REPORTED TO HAVE RECEIVED A RED ARMY EMISSARY WHO ASSURED ALL THEY WOULD BE SAFE. DISPATCHES SAID THE GERMAN OFFICERS AND MEN ALIKE THEN SURRENDERED.

BY DON WHITEHEAD

WITH BRITISH ADVANCE FORCES AT THE GATES OF TRIPOLI, JAN. 21-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE EIGHTH ARMYS DRIVE ON TRIPOLI HAS ROLLED RELENTLESSLY AHEADIOVER THE MOST DIFFICULT STRETCHES OF DESERT, ACROSS MINEFIELDS AND UNDER ENEMY FIRE, AND IT HAS BEEN A RACE BETWEEN VARIOUS COLUMNS TO SEE WHICH ARRIVES FIRST. JAN 25 1943

THESE HAVE BEEN EXCITING DAYS FILLED WITH ACTION.

OUR ADVANCE WAS HELD UP FOR A TIME BY A FIGHT SIX MILES SOUTH OF TARHUNA. WITH THIS POCKET OF RESISTANCE CLEARED, WE MOVED AHEAD AGAIN AT DAWN--A GAUDY DAWN WHICH MADE THE DESERT A RAINBOW OF PURPLES, GRAYS, AND BROWNS.

AMERICAN-MADE GENERAL SHERMAN TANKS HAVE BEEN PLAYING A MAJOR ROLE IN THIS ADVANCE, AND THEY CAME THROUGH IN FINE STYLE. COLUMNS OF THEM CAME DOWN FROM A ROCKY PLATEAU ONTO THE PLAIN WHICH WIDENED BEFORE TARHUNA.

JAN 25 1943

IT BEGAN TO LOOK LIKE OUR PARTY MIGHT BE STUCK IN THE DESERT INSTEAD OF GETTING INTO TRIPOLI, FOR OUR CAR AND TRUCK CARRYING FOOD AND EQUIPMENT BOGGED DOWN IN SAND AS FINE AS TALCUM POWDER. WE WERE ONLY A FEW YARDS OFF THE ROAD, WISHING WE WERE ON IT. BUT IT TURNED OUT THAT THE ROAD WAS MINED, AND WE SAW A TRUCK AND THEN A JEEP STRIKE MINES. BY SOME FREAK THE JEEP DIDN'T EVEN HAVE ITS TIRES PUNCTURED.

A GROUP OF ARABS CAME UP TO THE DAMAGED TRUCK WITH TWO CAMELS. ONE CAMEL STEPPED ON A MINE AND WAS KILLED, AND AN ARAB GOT A MANGLED FOOT.

IT BEGAN TO LOOK LIKE WE WERE SITTING IN THE MIDDLE OF A MINEFIELD. THEN A SHERMAN TANK CAME TO OUR RESCUE, AND THE BRITISH CREW PULLED US OUT. NO MACHINE EVER LOOKED SO GOOD TO US AS THAT FRIENDLY LUMBERI MONSTER.

WE STARTED ROLLING AGAIN AND SOON FROM ATOP A RIDGE TARHUNA GLEAMED CLEAN AND WHITE IN THE MIDST OF OLIVE GROVES, THE FIRST REAL SIGNS OF AGRICULTURE WE HAD SEEN SINCE THE OFFENSIVE BEGAN.

JAN 25 1943

EUCALYPTUS TREES LINED THE ROAD INTO THE TOWN, WITH ITS NEAT HOUSES UNTOUCHED BY WAR.

MORE THAN 100 ITALIAN CIVILIANS AND ARABS WERE THERE. THE BRITISH COMMANDER ASSURED THE ITALIANS THEY HAD NOTHING TO FEAR, BUT WARNED THEM TO STAY IN THEIR HOMES. "IF ANYTHING SHOULD HAPPEN," HE WARNED THEM, "REMEMBER IT IS THE FAULT OF YOUR GOVERNMENT, WHICH LEFT YOU WITHOUT PROTECTION."

THEN WE ROLLED AHEAD EVER NEARER TO TRIPOLI.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, JAN 24-(AP)-AMERICAN FIGHTER PILOTS AND BOMBER GUNNERS SHARED HONORS IN SAVAGE AERIAL BATTLES YESTERDAY OVER THE TUNISIAN AREA, DURING WHICH 21 ENEMY PLANES WERE SHOT DOWN AGAINST A LOSS OF SEVEN UNITED STATES CRAFT.

AMONG THE FLYING FORTRESS MARKSMEN WHO WERE CREDITED WITH SHOOTING DOWN MESSERSCHMITT 109 FIGHTERS DURING A HOT FIGHT OVER BIZERTE WERE LIEUT. W.C.LEWIS OF BIRMINGHAM, ALA., TECHNICAL SERGEANT M.C.MALONE O VAN BUREN, ARK., AND STAFF SERGEANT MARVIN JOHNSON OF NOKOMISI, ILL.

IN THIS FIGHT 19 AXIS PLANES WERE DESTROYED WITHOUT A SINGLE AMERICAN LOSS.

JAN 25 1943

IN A SWEEP BY P-38 LIGHTNING FIGHTERS OVER THE MEDENINE REGION CAPT. RALPH A.WATSON OF CENTERSBURG, OHIO, WAS CREDITED WITH DETROYING ONE ME-109 AND DAMAGING TWO OTHERS. LIEUT. ALFONSO G. SEGRAVES OF TUCSON, ARIZ., DAMAGED A 109 IN THE SAME SWEEP.

DESTRUCTION OF AN ITALIAN BOMBER WAS CREDITED TO SECOND LIEUT. LOUIS A.TOWSON OF 966 E. COURT ST., GAINESVILLE, FLA., WHO WAS IN A FLIGHT OF P-38S PROTECTING AN AMERICAN BOMBER SWEEP OVER THE SEA APPROACHES TO TUNISIA. TOWSON ALSO WAS REPORTED TO HAVE DESTROYED A BIG GASOLINE TRUCK AND TRAILER IN A SUBSEQUENT ATTACK ON AN AXIS MOTOR CONVOY.

CAIRO, JAN 24-(AP)-AN AMERICAN PILOT, RICHARD KIMBALL OF MINNEAPOLIS, MARCHED INTO TRIPOLI WITH THE CONQUERING BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY YESTERDAY.

THE 23-YEAR-OLD FLIER HAD BAILED OUT OF A FLAMING PLANE AND PARACHUTED DOWN NEAR A BRITISH ADVANCE COLUMN IN THE TARHUNA AREA. HE CONTINUED WITH THE COLUMN BECAUSE ALL TRAFFIC WAS HEADED WEST.

30.24 - 581

THIS IS HIS STORY AS RELAYED BY DON WHITEHEAD, AN ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT AT THE FRONT:

"ELEVEN OF US FROM THE FIGHTING COCKS SQUADRON WENT OUT TO BOMB VEHICLES WITHDRAWING ALONG THE ROAD TO TRIPOLI. WE LET OUR BOMBS GO AND THEN SAW TWO MESSERSCHMITTS. WE WENT AFTER THEM.

"I GOT TWO BURSTS IN AND SAW A MESSERSCHMITT PULL UP SMOKING AND THEN IT DIVED INTO THE SAND. I COULDN'T SWEAR I GOT HIM ALL ALONE BECAUSE THEY OTHERS MAY HAVE GOTTEN IN BURSTS TOO.

"I STARTED FOR HOME BUT WAS HIT BY GERMAN GROUND FIRE. I WAS ALMOST BLACKED OUT BY THE CONCUSSION. THEN I GOT AROUND THE ACK-ACK AND A PIECE OF SHRAPNEL WENT INTO MY SHOULDER. THE PLANE WAS SOON AFIRE BUT I WAS AFRAID I WAS OVER ENEMY TERRITORY SO I KEPT FLYING UNTIL THE FLAMES CAME THROUGH THE FLOOR OF THE COCKPIT.

JAN 25 1943

"FOR SOME REASON I WASN'T SCARED. I PUT MY GOGGLES IN MY POCKET AND JUMPED. SOMETHING HIT ME ON THE HEAD AND WHEN I AWOKE I FOUND MYSELF FALLING SO I PULLED THE RIPCORD. AFTER I HIT THE SOFT SAND, SOME ARABS FOUND ME AND GAVE ME WATER. THEN I FOUND THE BRITISH NEARBY."

KIMBALL WAS NONE THE WORSE FOR HIS EXPERIENCE EXCEPT FOR A SUPERFICIAL SHOULDER WOUND AND A BUMP ON HIS FOREHEAD.

ALEXANDRIA, JAN 24-(AP)-ALMOST COINCIDENT WITH OCCUPATION OF TRIPOLI THERE CAME A BRITISH NAVY ANNOUNCEMENT TODAY O THE SINKING BY A BRITISH SUBMARINE OF THE MILLIONTH TON OF AXIS SHIPPING IN THE MEDITERRANEAN.

JAN 25 1943

THE COMMANDER OF THE BRITISH FLEET IN THE MEDITERRANEAN, ADMIRAL SIR HENRY H. HARWOOD, PAID TRIBUTE TO "THIS AMAZING FEAT, WHICH HAS CERTAINLY CONTRIBUTED TO THE DEFEAT OF THE ENEMY ALONG THE AFRICAN COAST."

THE ADMIRAL SAID THE BRITISH SUBMARINES' PERFORMANCE HAD ENABLED THE NAVY TO PROTECT THE SEAWARD FLANK OF THE ARMY WHILE MOVING UP HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS OF TONS OF SUPPLIES TO RE-STOCK MALTA, STRIKING HARD AND FREQUENTLY AT AXIS SUPPLY ROUTES, AND REOPENING CAPTURED HARBOS.

NEW DELHI, JAN. 24-(AP)-BRITISH LONG-RANGE BOMBERS STRUCK LAST NIGHT AT THE JAPANESE AIR FIELD AT HEHO, IN CENTRAL BURMA, HITTING RUNWAYS AND DISPERSAL AREAS, WHILE FIGHTERS ON OFFENSIVE PATROL FAR TO THE WEST BOMBED AND MACHINE-GUNNED SEVEN ENEMY SHIPS OFF THE ARAKAN COAST, A BRITISH COMMUNIQUE SAID TODAY.

JAN 25 1943

ALL THE BRITISH PLANES RETURNED SAFELY. THE ANNOUNCEMENT SAID

New Delhi | Add Turkey

FOR A LONG TIME OBSERVERS IN TURKEY HAVE CONSIDERED THE LITTLE COUNTRY ASTRIDE THE VITAL STRAITS AS PRO-ALLY, BUT THE FORMER INSIS TENCE EVEN ON THE PART OF THE POPULACE THAT NEUTRALITY IS THE BEST COURSE FOR TURKEY IS NOW AFFECTED BY OTHER FACTORS.

REPORTS REACHING HERE SAID THAT THE LITTLE BALKAN COUNTRIES, WORRIED ABOUT WHAT TURKEY MIGHT DO, RECENTLY ATTEMPTED TO SOUND HER OUT IN A SERIES OF CALLS AT THE TURKISH FOREIGN OFFICE.

THE BALKAN DIPLOMATS WERE REPORTED TO HAVE GOTTEN LITTLE SATIS-FACTION, THE TURKISH OFFICIALS SIMPLY REITERATING TO EACH VISITOR THAT "OUR POSITION IS UNCHANGED."

THE INFORMANT CONCLUDED THAT TURKEY NO LONGER IS THE HAPPY HUNTING GROUND FOR LUCKY GERMAN DIPLOMATS, SPECIALISTS AND THEIR WIVES TIRED OF LIMITED RATIONS.

IN RECENT MONTHS THE NUMBER OF GERMANS FATTENING ON THE RICH TURKISH FOOD HAS BEEN DRASTICALLY REDUCED. THE REICH WAS SAID TO BE GRABBING EVERY ABLE-BODIED OR NEARLY ABLE-BODIED MAN AMONG THOSE SCORES BASKING ON THE BOSPHORUS AND STICKING THEM IN UNIFORM--BACK HOME.

TURKEY HAS A DEEP-SEATED FEAR OF RUSSIA AND IS DETERMINED TO STAY IN A STRONG POSITION BOTH MILITARILY AND DIPLOMATICALLY AS A SAFE-GUARD AGAINST POSSIBLE ENCROACHMENTS BY WAR.

THIS IS CONSIDERED ONE IMPORTANT REASON WHY SHE WOULD NOT PLUNGE INTO THE WAR AT AN EARLY DATE AND THUS EXHAUST HER RESOURCES. BUT AT THE SAME TIME IT WAS POINTED OUT THAT TURKEY RECOGNIZED THAT HER POSITION AT THE PEACE CONFERENCE WOULD BE GREATLY IMPROVED IF SHE WERE ON THE SIDE OF THE ALLIES.

JAN 25 1943

FOR THAT REASON TURKEY MIGHT BE EXPECTED TO GET INTO THE SHOW WHEN SHE IS CERTAIN THAT ALLIED AID WOULD PREVENT HER BEING OVERRUN, THE INFORMANT REPORTED, AND HER ATTITUDE IN THIS RESPECT WILL BE STRENGTH-ENED BY THE PROMPT EXPULSION OF AXIS FORCES FROM NORTH AFRICA, FOR THE TURKS ARE TAKING THIS AS A STRONG MEASURE OF ALLIED STRENGTH.

HE ADDED THAT THERE WAS NO REASON TO BELIEVE AUSTRALIA IS EXEMPT FROM ATTENTIONS OF ENEMY AGENTS, AND SAID THAT SOLDIERS MUST BE ON GUARD SO AS NOT TO BE INFLUENCED BY CIVILIANS TRYING TO STIR UP TROUBLE.

OTTAWA, JAN. 24-(CAP)-AN INTERNATIONAL PLANNING PROJECT AIMED AT EXTENDING THE WARTIME COLLABORATION BETWEEN CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES IN PEACETIME DEVELOPMENT OF A VAST AREA OF NORTHERN BRITISH COLUMBIA, THE YUKON TERRITORY AND ALASKA WAS ANNOUNCED TODAY BY A CANADA-U.S.ECONOMIC COMMITTEE.

JAN 25 1943

THE COMMITTEE'S STUDY IS BELIEVED TO BE THE FIRST OF SUCH MAGNITUDE APPRQACHED ON AN INTERNATIONAL BASIS, SAID A STATEMENT ISSUED HERE TODAY. THE NORTH PACIFIC REGION INVOLVED IN THE SCHEME COVERS ABOUT 1,000,000 SQUARE MILES WITH A POPULATION OF ABOUT 100,000.

"THE IMMEDIATE OBJECT OF THE STUDY IS TO GATHER BASIC INFORMATION ON THE REGION AND DEVELOP FOR THE CONSIDERATION OF THE JOINT ECONOMIC COMMITTEES PROPOSALS FOR CANADIAN-UNITED STATES ECONOMIC CO-OPERATION IN THE DEVELOPMENT OF RESOURCES, THE IMPROVEMENT OF STANDARDS OF LIVING, SETTLEMENT, AND OTHER UNDERTAKINGS," THE STATEMENT SAID.

DR.W.A.MACKINTOSH (SMALL K) OF OTTAWA IS CHAIRMAN OF THE CANADIAN SECTION OF THE JOINT COMMITTEES AND DR.ALVIN H.HANSEN OF HARVARD UNIVERSITY HEADS THE UNITED STATES SECTION.

THE STUDY IS TO BE CARRIED OUT BY CO-OPERATING OFFICIALS OF THE TWO GOVERNMENTS WITH THE "ACTIVE ASSISTANCE" OF BRITISH COLUMBIA OFFICIALS. CHARLES CASMELL, DEPUTY MINISTER OF MINES AND RESOURCES FOR CANADA, AND JAMES C.RETTIE OF THE PORTLAND, ORE., OFFICE OF THE

30.24-585

UNITED STATES NATIONAL RESOURCES PLANNING BOARD HAVE BEEN APPOINTED TO ORGANIZE AND DIRECT THE STUDY.

THE NORTH PACIFIC REGION HAS SEEN VAST EXPANSION OF TRANSPORTATION FACILITIES AND ADDITIONAL POPULATION AS THE RESULT OF WAR ACTIVITY, AND IT IS BELIEVED THIS WILL CREATE NEW POSSIBILITIES FOR PEACETIME DEVELOPMENT.

JAN 25 1943

THE CHAIN OF AIRFIELDS AND THE NEW HIGHWAY FROM EDMONTON TO ALASKA, AS WELL AS A PEOPOSED RAILWAY, ARE CERTAIN TO CAUSE MARKED EXPANSION IN THAT PART OF THE CONTINENT COMPRISED OF ALASKA, THE ALASKA PANHANDLE, THE YUKON TERRITORY, PORTIONS OF BRITISH COLUMBIA NORTH OF THE SKEENA RIVER, AND IN ADJACENT PARTS OF THE NORTHWEST TERRITORIES AND PROBABLY NORTHERN ALBERTA, OFFICIALS HERE SAID.

IT WAS LEARNED UNOFFICIALLY THAT PERSONS FAMILIAR WITH THE IMMENSE RESOURCES IN THOSE AREAS FEEL THEY COULD BE BEST DEVELOPED IF THERE WERE CLOSE CO-OPERATION BETWEEN CANADA AND UNITED STATES TERRITORIES. THEY ARGUE THAT FOR ECONOMIC PURPOSES--AND POSSIBLY IN THE MATTER OF ADMINISTRATION--THE DEVELOPMENT SHOULD GO ON AS A JOINT UNDERTAKING OF THE TWO COUNTRIES, WITHOUT REGARD TO NATIONAL BOUNDARY LINES.

THE ALASKAN-YUKON COUNTRY MAY BE AN IMPORTANT PART OF THE POST-WAR AIR ROUTE FROM AMERICA TO ASIA. IT IS CERTAIN, INFORMED PERSONS SAID, THAT THE WAR DEVELOPMENT OF COMMUNICATIONS NOW IN PROGRESS WILL GROW EXTENSIVELY AFTER PEACE COMES AND A JOINT AUTHORITY OF THE TWO COUNTRI COULD BEST HANDLE THIS DEVELOPMENT.

JAN 25 1943

SUCH INDUSTRIES AS FISHING, LUMBERING, MINING, AND POSSIBLY AGRICULTURE, WOULD BE GREATLY FACILITATED IF THIS GREAT AREA WERE

CLOSELY KNIT AND UNHAMPERED BY INTERNATIONAL BORDERS. HOWEVER, BRITISH COLUMBIA COVERS A CONSIDERABLE PORTION OF THE AREA AND ANY DEVELOPMENT SCHEME WOULD HAVE TO BE SATISFACTORY TO THAT PROVINCE.

OTTAWA, JAN. 24-(AP)-PRIME MINISTER W.L.MACKENZIE KING IN A PREPARED STATEMENT FORMALLY ANNOUNCED TONIGHT THE TERMS PROPOSED LAST FRIDAY FOR SETTLEMENT OF CANADA'S STEEL STRIKE, INCLUDING A GUARANTEE THAT WORKERS IN THE BASIC STEEL PLANTS WOULD RECEIVE A MINIMUM WAGE OF 55 CENTS AN HOUR, REGARDLESS OF ANY DOWNWARD FLUCTUATION IN THE COST OF LIVING.

JAN 25 1943

BASICALLY THE SETTLEMENT PLAN IS THE SAME AS THE SEVEN-POINT PROPOSAL MADE BY THE GOVERNMENT LAST TUESDAY WHICH WAS SUBSEQUENTLY REJECTED BY THE UNION--BUT THE GUARANTEE AGAINST REDUCTION IN THE BASIC WAGE RATE IN EVENT OF A DROP IN THE COST-OF-LIVING BONUS PAYABLE TO THE MEN IS NEW.

UNDER THE REVISED PLAN, THE 55-CENT RATE WOULD BE RETROACTIVE TO NOV. 1, 1942.

THE REVISED PLAN FOR SETTLEMENT OF THE STRIKE WAS ENDORSED BY HIGH OFFICIALS OF THE UNITED STEEL WORKERS OF AMERICA EARLY SATURDAY MORNING

WINDSOR, ONT., JAN. 24-(AP)-PHILIP MURRAY, PRESIDENT OF THE CIO, TONIGHT WAS PRESENTED WITH THE THIRD ANNUAL CHRISTIAN CULTURE AWARD BY ASSUMPTION COLLEGE HERE.

THE PRESENTATION WAS MADE BY REV. V.J.GUINAN, COLLEGE SUPERIOR. THE AWARD SAID: "FOR SOME YEARS IN HIS MANIFOLD PUBLIC LIFE, PHILIP MURRAY HAS EXEMPLIFIED NOT ONLY TRUE STATESMANLIKE QUALITIES, BUT IN A RARE DEGREE THOSE CARDINAL VIRTUES SO NECESSARY IN EVERY AGE BUT ESPECIALLY TODAY, NAMELY--PRUDENCE, TEMPERANCE, JUSTICE AND FORTITUDE."

FIRST LEAD STRIKE

SAULT STE. MARIE, ONT., JAN. 24-(AP)-A NEW GOVERNMENT PROPOSAL TO SETTLE STRIKES THAT HAVE HALTED TWO-THIRDS OF CANADA'S STEEL PRODUCTION WAS DISCLOSED BY UNITED STEEL WORKERS OF AMERICA OFFICIALS TONIGHT, AND 7,000 UNION WORKERS HERE SCHEDULED TO VOTE TOMORROW ON ACCEPTANCE OR REJECTION OF THE PLAN.

STRIKING WORKERS AT SYDNEY, N.S., ALSO VOTED TO HOLD A REFERENDUM TOMORROW ON THE NEW TERMS.

JAN 25 1943

ACCEPTANCE OF THE PLAN WAS URGED IN LETTERS READ AT A CLOSED MEETING HERE FROM C.H.MILLARD, NATIONAL DIRECTOR OF THE U.S.W.A., AND JOHN MITCHELL OF HAMILTON, ONT., DISTRICT SIX DIRECTOR.

AS ANNOUNCED BY UNION OFFICIALS, THE LATEST MEDIATION PROPOSAL WOULD PROVIDE A BASIC MINIMUM WAGE OF 55 CENTS AN HOUR IN THE BASIC STEEL INDUSTRY, INCLUDING PRESENT COST-OF-LIVING BONUS PAYMENTS, AND WOULD MAKE THE HIGHER WAGE EFFECTIVE AS OF LAST NOV. 1, IF THE MEN RETURN TO WORK IMMEDIATELY.

THE EARLIER PLAN DID NOT INCLUDE MAKING THE HIGHER RATE RETROACTIVE. THE NEW PROPOSAL ALSO WOULD MAKE THE 55-CENT RATE AN ABSOLUTE MINIMUM BY PROVIDING THAT EVEN IF COST-OF-LIVING BONUS PAYMENTS WERE REDUCED, THE BASIC RATE WOULD NOT BE REDUCED. ANY INCREASES IN THE BONUS SCALE WOULD BE ADDED TO THE RATE.

TORONTO, JAN. 22-(AP)-THE FINANCIAL POST, IN A DISPATCH FROM ITS MONTREAL CORRESPONDENT, SAYS TODAY:

JAN 25 1943

"DONALD GORDON, CHAIRMAN OF THE WARTIME PRICES AND TRADE BOARD, R. L. WELDON, NEWSPRINT ADMINISTRATOR, AND OTHER OFFICIALS, MET WITH REPRESENTATIVES OF THE OFFICE OF PRICE ADMINISTRATION IN WASHINGTON THIS WEEK TO DISCUSS NEWSPRINT PRICES.

"THE CANADIAN DELEGATION WENT TO WASHINGTON PREPARED TO LAY ON THE TABLE PARTICULARS OF MILL COSTS. IN THE PAST, THE REFUSAL OF THE CANADIAN MILLS TO DIVULGE SUCH FIGURES EFFECTIVELY BLOCKED ATTEMPTS TO SECURE APPROVAL OF THE O.P.A. TO A PRICE INCREASE.

3.24-587

"WITH ADDITIONAL DATA THE DISCUSSIONS ENTERED A NEW PHASE. IT IS UNDERSTOOD OFFICIALS OF OPA WERE OPEN TO CONVICTION THAT THE PRICE INCREASE WAS JUSTIFIED, BUT THEIR ATTITUDE IN THE PAST HAS BEEN 'PROVE IT.'

"DISCUSSIONS THIS WEEK ARE UNDERSTOOD TO HAVE RESULTED IN CONSIDERABLE PROGRESS. HOWEVER, THERE IS NO INDICATION THAT A CHANGE IN PRICES IS IN IMMEDIATE PROSPECT. X X X

"THERE HAS BEEN CONSIDERABLE TALK AS TO THE POSSIBLE EXTENT OF THE INCREASE IN PRICE. GUESSES HAVE RANGED ALL THE WAY FROM $3 TO A MAXIMUM OF $10 A TON.

"IT IS ASSUMED THAT THE OPA WILL APPROVE AN INCREASE OF AT LEAST $3 A TON. IT IS UNLIKELY THAT THE RATE WILL BE ADVANCED AS MUCH AS $10 A TON X X X."

JAN 25 1943

(OPA CONTROL IS EFFECTED THROUGH ITS CEILING ON THE PRICE AT WHICH NEWSPRINT CAN BE PURCHASED IN THE UNITED STATES. THE PRESENT CEILING IS $50 A TON, NEW YORK. CANADA PROVIDES OVER 70 PERCENT OF U.S.NEWSPRINT SUPPLY.)

REFERRING TO RECENT ORDERS DESIGNED TO CURTAIL PAPER CONSUMPTION 10 PERCENT, THE POST SAYS:

"THE BELIEF PERSISTS, BACKED LARGELY BY OFFICIAL WARNINGS, THAT THE REDUCTION X X WILL NOT STOP AT 10 PERCENT. FURTHER RESTRICTIONS ARE EXPECTED AS THE YEAR PROGRESSES AND BY THE END OF 1943, PAPER CONSUMPTION MAY BE 25 PERCENT TO 30 PERCENT UNDER THE 1942 LEVEL."

D41

THE POST SAYS, HOWEVER, THAT THE PULPWOOD SITUATION IS NOT AS BAD AS APPEARS ON THE SURFACE, AS A LARGE QUANTITY OF THE CUT WAS NOT BROUGHT OUT OF THE WOOD LAST SPRING OWING TO WATER CONDITIONS. IT ADDS THAT IT IS POSSIBLE THE SUPPLY OF WOOD WILL BE LARGER THAN ANTICIPATED, AND "IF THAT TURNS OUT TO BE THE CASE AND POWER AND TRANSPORT ARE AVAILABLE, THEN THE SUPPLY OF NEWSPRINT PAPER FOR 1943 MAY NOT WARRANT ANY FURTHER CUTS IN CONSUMPTION."

THE FOOD MINISTRY IS UNDERTAKING A COUNTRY-WIDE CENSUS OF BREAD PRODUCTION AND CONSUMPTION AS THE BASIS FOR CALCULATIONS IN POSSIBLE RATIONING.

Allied Bombers, Fighters Smash at Enemy Airdromes, Ports.

LONDON, Jan. 25—(AP) A raid by American trops to within striking distance of Marshal Rommel's line of retreat along the Gulf of Gabes in Tunisia and sharp progress of the Fighting French columns seeking to hit his flank, were disclosed today as the bulk of his army poured into Tunisia for a possible rendezvous with the forces of General von Arnim.

Allied headquarters in North Africa announced that American troops had thrust into the town of Maknassy, capturing 80 Axis prisoners in an area only 33 miles short of the Gulf of Gabes, and Brigadier General Jacques Le Clerc's headquarters reported that the Fighting French were now operating west of Tripoli and had only 50 miles more to go to reach the Mediterranean.

French Drive Into Hills

Gen. Le Clerc's communique, as broadcast by the Brazzaville radio, said the Fighting French had entered the Jebel Nefusa, a long range of hills 30 to 100 miles south of Tripoli and extending into eastern Tunisia about the same distance from the Mediterranean.

A communique from Gen. Henri Giraud's headquarters said French troops supported by U. S. armored forces had improved their positions north and northeast of Ousselita and repulsed a German attack to the east in the mountains "with heavy losses." This action was in northwest Tunisia.

Marshal Rommel's retreat from Libya, meanwhile, had taken most of his forces some 60 miles within Tunisia. Field dispatches reported that all his Italians and the greater part of his German corps were behind the Mareth line in southern Tunisia, and a critical phase was approaching in the Allied effort to cut him down or seriously weaken him short of any juncture with Gen. von Arnim.

There was nothing to indicate that the America action at Maknassy was more than a raid in force, and U. S. military sources here warned against expecting an early full-scale blow to the Rommel flank. But the possibilities were nevertheless clear.

Answer to German Challenge

Maknassy, incidentally, was hit after the Germans had dropped a note: "Why don't the Americans come out and fight?"

Von Arnim's effort to throw up a mountain barrier between the main Allied forces and the coast had run into serious difficulties, Allied headquarters declaring that the German advance in the Ousseltia valley had been stopped.

While most of Marshal Rommel's force was reported behind the Mareth line, the possibility that he would attempt any serious or prolonged stand there was discounted. Military observers believed he would leave only a rather substantial rearguard there and that his intention was to avoid any pitched battle until he could join with Gen. von Arnim.

At both ends of the Mediterranean battle line Allied bombers and fighters continued heavy attacks on Axis airdromes, ports and troop columns.

Five Axis Ships Sunk

In the Mediterranean, the campaign of attrition sharpened, the Admiralty reporting that British submarines had sunk five more Axis vessels.

British headquarters at Cairo announced Allied air attacks on enemy shipping trying to slip from Zuara harbor west of Tripoli; on Axis air fields 60 miles within Tunisia; on enemy transports strung out westward from the Libyan frontier; on two enemy ships torpedoed and set afire off Sicily, and on Sicily itself.

From Allied headquarters in North Africa heavy attacks on Bizerte, on Sousse harbor, on an Axis air field near Medenine about 60 miles within Tunisia, and on enemy transport columns were reported.

An Allied spokesman declared that 25 to 30 Axis planes were believed to have been destroyed aground in the Medenine attack.

Our Soldiers Raid Town of Maknassy in Answer to Enemy's Dare—Fighting French Only Fifty Miles From Sea.

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Jan. 25 (A. P.).—United States troops, accepting a dare from Axis forces opposing them, raided the town of Maknassy, only thirty-three miles from the Gulf of Gabes, and captured eighty enemy soldiers, it was announced today. A military spokesman said that the raid—obviously one in force—was made after the enemy dropped a note on the United States lines taunting: "Why won't the Americans come out and fight?"

The answering slap at the troops of Col.-Gen. Jurgen von Arnim came as French, British and American forces halted the menacing German thrust down the Ousseltia Valley, more than 100 miles to the north, checkmating a play for the possession of the heights dominating the Kairouan plains and a long sector of the coastal communication routes.

[While the Maknassy action simply was a raid, it suggests that American forces may be mobilizing above the Chott Djerid wastelands for a slash at the coastal roads and the Gabes-Sfax railway, which would outflank the Germans campaigning to the north in the Ousseltia Valley.]

American patrols scouted the area northwest of Ousseltia, between the Axis bases at Kairouan and Pont du Fahs, and brought back a number of French wounded who had fallen before the tank-supported German drive last week. Further particulars of the Axis challenge which was answered by the Maknassy raid were lacking, but it was assumed that the raiders started from behind Sanad, twenty-two miles to the west and about twenty-six miles northeast of Gafsa.

Aerial Action Intensifies.

Sanad is the most easterly point known to have been held recently by Allied forces in that region. American medium and heavy bombers continued their aerial onslaught against Axis airdromes and shipping facilities.

The spokesman said that between twenty-five and thirty Axis aircraft were believed to have been destroyed on the ground when two waves of United States medium bombers struck yesterday at an airdrome immediately west of Mendenine, into which it was thought that Marshal Rommel may be withdrawing the remainder of his ground and air forces. Medenine lies sixty miles west of the Tripolitanian frontier.

B-25 Mitchell Bombers with a P-38 Lightning escort struck first with what a spokesman called good results. In addition to wrecking grounded planes, bombs hit a building and left the field covered with smoke.

Allied Losses Lighter.

A few minutes later, B-26 Marauders, with P-38's escorting, roared over the same target. They scored hits all over the area and started several fires.

A Messerschmitt 109, one of a group which sought to intercept, was shot down. Axis transports along roads in the region of Pont du Fahs and Kairouan were attacked by British and American air formations.

A Twelfth Air Force spokesman said that United States planes destroyed twenty-eight enemy planes in the air and damaged seventeen others in the week through January 22, against an American loss of thirteen planes. This included the record of the French Lafayette Escadrille, which is operating under American command.

The week's toll brought the total of Axis warplanes destroyed by United States flyers in the North African camapign to 222. At the same time, 159 enemy planes were damaged. American losses totaled 110, less than half those of the Axis.

In addition to the eighty Axis troops captured by the Americans near Maknassy, fifty prisoners were reported to have been taken in a British sector. "Fighters made many sweeps in support of our ground forces," a communique said.

Axis Union Imperiled.

London, Jan. 25 (A. P.).—The British Eighth Army, aided by war planes which included United States bombers and fighters striking from both east and west, pushed Field Marshal Erwin Rommel farther on his way from Tripoli today even as indications developed that Allied troops already may threaten his escape route along the Gulf of Gabes. The fact that United States troops were disclosed officially to have been in action at Maknassy and the circumstances suggested that the whole Axis strategy for a union of the armies of Marshal Rommel and Col.-Gen. Jurgen von Arnim might be imperiled.

This evidence that the Americans had mobilized in some force more than 100 miles south of the contested highlands and the Ousseltia Valley between Pont du Fahs and Kairouan developed as a Cairo communique announced that British Eighth Army troops "continued their advance to the west" from Tripoli yesterday. JAN 26 1943 German thrust in the Ousseltia Valley was halted.

Marshal Rommel's route of retreat, which Gen. von Arnim is trying desperately to keep open, lacks the natural barriers along the Gulf of Gabes which it has in the mountains and desert wastes in other Tunisian areas.

It was considered likely that British vanguards already had speared into Tunisia. A hint that the Allies even now were preparing for another thrust was seen in Axis radio reports that a huge force of American troops was massing at Tebessa on the Algerian-Tunisian frontier, about 145 miles west of Sfax. Sfax is roughly 150 miles from the Libyan-Tunisian frontier and about the same distance south of Tunis.

U. S. Unit Scores Victory.

The suggestion that United States forces were preparing to take a major hand in the central Tunisian sector was given color by a French communique disclosing that an American armored unit had inflicted severe losses in an attack on an enemy column in the Ousseltia region, south of Pont du Fahs.

A dispatch from Ross Munro, Canadian press correspondent at the front, described the action as a "lightning co-ordinated attack by American tanks, guns, infantry and planes" and said it was a complete and "daring" success. Mr. Munro said that the front was tense with the anticipation of big developments to come.

Another threat to Marshal Rommel's forces appeared when it was announced that Brig.-Gen. Jacques le Clerc's Fighting French troops, hurrying up from Equatorial Africa, had reached the Jebel Nefusa, a range of hills southwest of Tripoli, and had only fifty more miles to go to reach the Mediterranean. A Fighting French communique said: "Our forward troops penetrated Jebel Nefusa. The fleeing enemy is being pursued without respite."

AXIS LIBYAN ARMY IS NOW IN TUNISIA

Greater Part Over Border and Behind Mareth Line, Say Dispatches From Front

JAN 26 1943

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 25 (AP)—Almost all the Italians and the greater part of the Germans of General Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's Africa Corps already have crossed into southern Tunisia and are arrayed behind the Mareth Line, dispatches from the front said today.

Only rear-guard elements of the Africa Corps were reported to be still in the northwestern tip of Tripolitania, and they were moving rapidly westward, with the British Eighth Army in hot pursuit.

For all practical purposes, all of Tripolitania can be considered wrested from the Axis, which is installing itself as best it can in Tunisia for a final stand in North Africa to delay any Allied attack on Europe from that direction.

Leclerc Troops Near Sea

LONDON, Jan. 25 (AP)—Fighting French forces under Brig. Gen. Jacques Leclerc are now operating west of Tripoli and have only fifty miles more to go to reach the Mediterranean, a Fighting French communiqué said tonight.

TOP LEADERS MAP ALLIED STRATEGY

Supreme Council for United Nations May Grow from Conferences.

LONDON, Jan. 25 — (AP) The United Nations were reported tonight in diplomatic circles to have agreed on a formula for some kind of a supreme council to direct and unify efforts to win the war in 1943.

British, United States, Russian and Chinese officials remained silent on the grand strategy talks known to have been under way, but it is no secret that some extremely important announcement affecting the Allied conduct of the war is imminent.

Allied Unity Sought

It is no secret either that a unification of strategy has been high on the Allied agenda for months, nor that as part of this unity, great attention is being given to the problem of coordinating Allied armies in North Africa under a single command.

The British Eighth army commanded by Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery under supervision of Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, the Middle East commander, is nearing a junction with the British First army, the U. S. Fifth army and the French all under the direction of Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the American.

High Post for Gen. Marshall

Recent speculation has centered on Gen. George C. Marshall, U.S. Army chief of staff, as commander-in-chief of Allied forces in the European theater. Walter Farr cabled to The Daily Mail that "keen observers" in Washington predicted the Marshall appointment. He also said that Vice Admiral Sir Percy Noble, head of the British Admiralty delegation in Washington, might be placed in charge of a united campaign against submarines.

Noting the great volume of public discussion, some observers viewed many rumors as having been planted deliberately to obtain public reaction.

If so, the renewed public, official and press attention to the submarine menace must have placed the U-boat problem high on the Allied agenda, along with the resolution of French political differences and wide scale offensive for 1943.

The cry for offensives to crush Germany, Italy and Japan has come increasingly from critics who expect an intensification of the German submarine campaign with 500 to 700 undersea craft.

These critics assert that the answer is harder bombing attacks like the weekend assaults on such submarine lairs as Lorient and Brest, more patrol aircraft and more escorting craft, particularly the small, speedy boats and destroyers, for convoys.

No responsible person has suggested an early internal collapse of Germany, beset though she is in Russia and North Africa. Virtually all discussion is based on the assumption that a smashing military defeat must be inflicted on the Axis.

British Papers See Marshall As Likely Allied Commander

Official Statement Believed Near on Strategy for 1943

JAN 26 1943

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—Speculation that Gen. George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff of the United States Army, might be appointed commander in chief of Allied forces in the European war theater was published in British newspapers today as the press continued to place great emphasis on Allied strategy for 1943.

Unofficial British commentators, maintaining intense interest in Allied "win the war" plans which were believed to be already made or in the final draft, predicted an official announcement was imminent.

Walter Farr, Washington correspondent of the Daily Mail, reported that it was the view of some "keen observers" in Washington that Gen. Marshall was to be named generalissimo of the Allied armies in the European theater.

Mr. Farr, who gave the first tip to Britons of Prime Minister Churchill's visit to Washington in December, 1941, also speculated that Vice Admiral Sir Percy Noble, head of the British Admiralty delegation in Washington, might be appointed supreme commander of the anti-U-boat campaign.

Only last week, Admiral Noble emphasized the gravity of the U-boat problem at a Washington press conference and said it would "take all our strength, resources and ingenuity" to beat the submarine.

Plans to give the Allies the edge over the U-boat menace and moves to help solves the problems between the Fighting French followers of Gen. Charles de Gaulle and Gen. Henri Honore Giraud, high commissioner of French North Africa, were believed to be prominent in any pattern for victory under consideration by the United States, Britain, Russia and China.

Press discussions revolved about a 1943 offensive of tremendous scope designed to defeat the Axis enemies within the next year.

It was evident there was no optimism about the possibility of an early internal collapse in Germany and almost all discussions proceeded from the premise that a distinct and smashing military defeat must be inflicted on the Axis.

Official sources refused any comment on the various reports in circulation.

Nazi-controlled radio stations were broadcasting stories of "important political conversations under way in Washington."

Circles close to Gen. Charles De Gaulle, Fighting French leader, said he would not willingly consent to the organization of a non-French regime for the French empire. Observers believed, however, that this might be the only solution of the tangled politics of North Africa if Gen. De Gaulle and Gen. Henri Giraud, French-African High Commissioner, are unable to reach an agreement at a meeting they are scheduled to hold shortly.

Because of the military importance of North Africa to the United Nations, observers believed British and American leaders were no longer willing to wait until the French settle political problems among themselves. It is considered likely that a joint central authority will be formed, in which both De Gaulle and Giraud will be represented, but over which neither would have control.

Regime Would Be Temporary.

The regime would be temporary, it was said, and all important French groups would be asked to co-operate, each administering the local territory it controls.

The effect, it was hoped, would be to postpone the dispute over French policy until the military problem of North Africa had been solved by the ejection of the remaining Axis forces from the territory.

Gen. De Gaulle has made it clear in previous statements that he desires a provisional Government in North Africa based on the Constitution of Republican France. Gen. Giraud's attitude has never been made clear. Nor, it is asserted, is there accurate knowledge of the sentiments of the French masses in North Africa.

This has led political observers to fear that a settlement on the basis of De. Gaulle's formula may not be possible.

Richard K. Law, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, told a luncheon audience at Leeds that many worrisome problems confronting the Allies in North Africa would "sort themselves out before long." He added that building a tremendous organization for the attack in Tunisia would take time, just as similar preparation in Egypt had, "but not an infinity of time and the Allies should not be despondent at the rate of progress."

WARNING MADE BY PEYROUTON

Governor of Algeria Won't Tolerate Any Split.

JAN 26 1943

Algiers, Jan. 25 (A. P.).—Marcel Peyrouton, new Governor-General of Algeria, told an audience of officials and prominent residents of Algiers today that "we shall act" against any attempt to divide the population of Algiers to the detriment of the Allies. He described such attempts to divide the people as "the efficacious arm of collective suicide."

"The Allies have promised us to respect French sovereignty," he declared. "We must, in exchange, bring them active collaboration. Passive adhesion is not sufficient."

Gen. Marie Bergeret, Imperial Council member and former Vichy Air Minister, told the gathering that the one thought of Gen. Henri Giraud, High Commissioner, was "the liberation of France by bringing about, in the most effective way, participation in the war effort by all countries under the High Commissioner's authority."

Gov. Peyrouton pledged that he would do his best to become an instrument of complete unity among the people of Algeria. Unity, he said, "is not a mark of weakness, but, on the contrary, is a sign of strength."

He said that he intended to assure "order in the minds and in the streets." He said that he was not yet ready to announce his program of action, but added that it would come very soon.

26 Allied Planes Penetrate Axis Screen, Blast Target

Wave of Messerschmitts Able to Shoot Down Only One Craft in Tunisia

JAN 26 1943

By HAROLD V. BOYLE

WITH THE UNITED STATES ARMY IN TUNISIA, Jan. 22—(Delayed)—(AP) From a farmhouse on a slope a few hundred yards south of the little French village of Ousseltia today I saw 26 Allied planes ride through a wave of Messerschmitts to drop heavy bombs on German positions a few miles north up the valley.

Great smoke columns rolling skyward told that the missiles of 12 B-26 bombers had hit the bull's eye.

As they left their objective, two of the four Messerschmitts engaged one of the 14 Allied fighter fighter planes and shot it down. The rest of the Allied squadron flew away unimpeded from the successful mission.

French Flier Unhurt

The stricken fighter plane spiraled down gracefully and made a belly landing in a field less than a mile from our vantage point. A French pilot climbed out, removed his personal equipment, lit a cigarette and, with the same match, set fire to his damaged plane, then walked calmly away, unhurt.

In a few minutes, the flames turned the plane into charred wreckage, useless to the Germans should they attack and gain the field.

After the departure of the Messerschmitts, whose appearance a few minutes before had made us abandon a jeep for the farmhouse, we drove on into Ousseltia. I was a passenger on a reconnaissance jeep driven by Private Eugene Facchenillo, 23, of Bessemer, Mich.

Soldiers Heavily Armed

My other companions were Lieut. Robert M. Keith, 24, of Portland, Me., and Private Nelson P. Bourguignon, 24, of Holyoke, Mass., whose French Canadian descent made him valuable as an interpreter. All the soldiers were heavily armed.

On the outskirts of Ousseltia a group of American soldiers in a half track told us that American armored equipment and Allied planes had stopped a German attack down in the valley dead in its tracks and that the Nazis now were trying their best to hold their positions.

No Tanks Lost

"The Germans threw heavy artillery over at us all morning but didn't get one of our tanks," said Lieut. Frank Crittenden of Ridgewood, N. J., commander of a mortar platoon.

"It sure is heartening to see the way our planes are coming over now," Lieutenant Crittenden said. "Earlier in the Tunisian campaign we took 23 raids one day, Chiefly by Stukas, but you hardly ever see a Stuka at the front anymore."

Inside the city itself we met a group of half track and tank drivers pulling out of a little gully.

150-Minute Bombardment

"We just sweated out a two and a half hour artillery bombardment," said Private Ambrose Metcalfe, 20, of Pine Mountain, Ky. "They dropped 88 millimeter shells all around us but didn't hit anything. Those Nazi artillerymen need more than practice to make them good."

One shell hit within ten feet in a dirt ridge above Private Metcalfe's head. Another exploded within six feet without injuring Staff Sergt. Buck Baber, 28, of Batesville, Va. A blast from a third shell knocked Sergt. Willis J. Ewell, 24, of Raven, Va., off the dirt bank but he climbed to his feet, unhurt and unhit.

Others in a nearby half track crew included Private Gus Capelli, 24, Denver, Colo., and Private Raymond Kernodle, 26, Burlington, N. C.

Several Buildings Scarred

Although Nazi shells missed their real objective, they found other marks. A drive through the city showed that several buildings and a Catholic church bore scars of shelling.

30.29-591

Late in the afternoon American tanks began to drive up the valley. Before halting for the night, they had destroyed seven German Mark Fours while losing three themselves.

Bougga Ruins Seen As Warning to Enemy Of 'Berlin in '44'

Crumbling Roman Town In Tunisia Once Had 200,000 Inhabitants

By HAROLD V. BOYLE,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN TUNISIA (Delayed).—Leaves from a war correspondent's notebook:

In the old days there was a road to Tunis, or rather, Carthage. It stretched from Bougga, near the modern little French village of Teboursouk, and Roman legions drove their battle chariots over it so roughly that the grooves made by the iron-rimmed wheels still are visible in the worn stones.

Now, the ruins of Bougga, bones of the old Roman Empire, stand as a sentinel warning to the legions of Hitler and Mussolini, who camp less than threescore miles away and fight to keep alive fading dreams of building a new African empire.

Seventy Arab families now make their homes in the ruins of Bougga, which nearly 2,000 years ago had a population of between 200,000 and 300,000.

Roman Eagle Headless.

A headless Roman eagle lifts weary stone wings from his centuries-old perch on a temple of Jupiter where six shattered columns shouldered an ancient sky.

Two hens picked moodily in the stone-littered forum where empire politicians once swayed a people. An Arab boys drowsed in the slave market, on the same stones where captives stood in chains and heard their freedom bartered.

A heifer wandered across the mosaic floor of the great baths in which pompous Roman rulers once rolled after a night of revelry.

From a vantage point above the bath I could see the entire skeleton of ancient Bougga, the city which remains an epitaph to Roman conquest. A soldier, Lt. Robert de Gabriele of Negaunee, Mich., found the spectacle with me.

"It looks," he said, "like Berlin in 1944."

It was during the struggle for Medjez-el-Bab, now the most shell-scarred and bomb-blasted town in Tunisia.

A German major came to the French Catholic priest and said:

"Father, we think the Americans and British will try to drive us from this town. When the attack begins, I'll see that you are warned in time to escape with your life."

"Thank you, but my work is in this town," replied the priest. "I have no wish to escape."

The German major hesitated a moment, then asked:

Nazi Asks for Burial.

"Father, in the event that I am killed, will you see that I get a decent burial?"

The attack came, the priest stayed [illegible] took the town and the German major was killed.

Allied slain were buried in the little village churchyard. In the same cemetery, but apart from these dead, rests the body of the German major. The cross above his grave says: "Rest in peace."

Jacks of all trades flourish in the Army. There is a use for every skill and it is a matter of constant surprise how many soldiers of all-around ability can be found in the ranks.

Take, for example, that extraordinary "Tommie"—Corpl. Albert McArt—An Irishman of diverse accomplishments.

For 10 francs he cut more hair off my head than a New York barber would for a half dollar and he threw in at least $5 worth of philosophy on the cuff.

"I paid $100 to learn barbering in Seattle," said the corporal, snipping off the tip of my right ear.

Barber Glazier by Trade.

"I was also second cook in a lumber camp near Tacoma, but before that I used to drive a truck in Tyrone, Ireland, where I was born. I have also driven a motorbike as a dispatch rider in the British Army, but I am really a glazier by trade."

His scissors skidded on a curve and rubbed a gash in my scalp.

"Ooops, sir, all in a day's work," he said cheerily.

A little later he held up a mirror for my inspection and said:

"Well, sir, it won't be falling into your eyes any more now."

How right he was.

"Do you follow a general plan or just cut by instinct, corporal?" I asked.

"Oh, I just scissor away until I see a white patch, sir," he replied. "Then I move on."

For long weeks Lt. Col. John Williamson of 189-15 Thirty-seventh avenue, Flushing, N. Y., waited for the Army mailman to bring him a letter or a package from home.

His vigil was finally rewarded. A neatly wrapped package arrived. Visioning food delicacies, he impatiently ripped off the wrapping.

Out tumbled a mail order catalog.

Guadalcanal Offensive Gains

U. S. Troops Win Seven Positions—Capture Kokumbona—Jap Base Wiped Out.

Washington, Jan. 25 (A. P.).—American forces on a general offensive in the Solomon Islands were reported by the Navy today to have won seven important positions from the enemy on Guadalcanal, to have killed 201 Jap soldiers and captured forty, and to have virtually wiped out an enemy island base 190 miles to the northwest by sea and air attack.

The places captured, a communique said, were six important elevations west of the American airfield on Guadalcanal and the coastal village of Kokumbona where quantities of stores and equipment were seized. This meant that the American front lines had been advanced about two to three miles beyond previously-held Point Cruz which had been the furthest known point of advance on the coast.

The front apparently is being pushed forward in an effort to bottle up and eventually wipe out dwindling Japanese forces on the northwestern end of the island. The enemy still holds about sixteen miles of coastline on the northern side of Guadalcanal.

Planes and Ships Attack.

The heavy attacks against the Japanese island base were delivered by both airplanes and warships on Saturday and Sunday, the communique said. The island attacked was Kolombangara in the Munda area of the New Georgia group.

"The operations were successfully completed," the communique said, "and fires from explosions of fuel and ammunition dumps indicated that the enemy held area was completely burned out."

Of the 201 Japanese reported killed, 110 were slain on Friday (Gaudalcanal time) when American groundd forces launched a heavy attack against enemy positions on the west front. Heavy

The enemy installations on Kolombangara apparently were extensive in view of the report of widespread fires and explosions. The nature of those instllations was not reported but there was speculation here that the Japanese may have had a small air field there to operate in co-ordination with their main central base in the Solomons at Munda. The island has some level ground which is mostly a dense mangrove swamp but might be made to serve for at least limited aerial facilities.

Importance of Kokumbuna

Kolombangara is about eighteen and a half miles in extent and is of volcanic origin, an extinct crater in its center arising to a maximum height of 5,450 feet. Around this are smaller peaks.

The capture of Kokumbuna was one of the greatest conquests of American land forces in the Solomons to date. It denies to the enemy a coastal point which was formerly used in landing supplies and reinforcements, and at the same time shows that the total area over which the enemy can maneuver and hide in his tenacious attempts to maintain at least a toe-hold on Guadalcanal has been considerably reduced.

Only last week a Marine officer recently returned from the embattled island estimated that the total number of Japanese troops now remaining on the island was less than 4,000, and he said that an all-out effort to eliminate this force probably could be accomplished in about ten days.

western Solomons and both were damaged. Japanese planes replied with an attack on Guadalcanal Saturday night but the communique made no report of th eresults of that raid.

Whether such an all out drive actually is now under way was not indicated in today's report, but was considered by authorities here to be a possibility. The Marine officer expressed the opinion that if the Japanese, long since cut off from reinforcements and supplies of any considerable quantity, were pressed close to Cape Esperance at the extreme northwestern tip of the island, they would probably surrender.

Opposition was encountered but six important elevations were captured.

Big Base at Kolombangara.

Saturday, continued aggressive tactics resulted in the capture of Kokumbona. The attack on that point, authorities here said, probably was facilitated by the previous day's capture of the important heights, which presumably commanded the Kokumbona area. Also on Saturday, American troops continued mopping up pockets of enemy resistance, captured forty Jap prisoners and killed ninety-one.

American aircraft, meanwhile, attacked a large Jap destroyer and a cargo ship in the northcanal airfield, were wiped out by bombardment from United States air and surface forces, and a large Japanese destroyer and a cargo ship were bombed by United States aircraft in the vicinity of Shortland island.

On Guadalcanal, where latest reports place the number of enemy troops at about 4,000, the action resulted in the killing of 201 Japanese and the capture of 40 prisoners.

Naval spokesmen said the air action reported today, taken with that announced yesterday from General MacArthur's headquarters, comprised the greatest air activity of the war to date in the south and southwest Pacific theater.

Fierce Opposition Overcome

The Guadalcanal action was launched Friday morning, Solomons time, when United States ground forces pushed the Japanese westward and in the face of strenuous opposition seized six important elevations which overlooked the village of Kokumbona and facilitated its capture.

The village is on the north coast of the island, 16 miles below Cape Esperance, site of the major Japanese landings and focal point of the enemy's defenses.

Enemy installations on Kolombangara island were subjected to intensive bombardment Saturday and Sunday. The success of the mission was demonstrated by fires which indicated, the Navy said, that the fuel and ammunition dumps on the enemy-held island were "completely burned out."

Kolombangara island, circular in shape and about 18 miles across, lies just northwest of New Georgia. Formed by an extinct volcano, it rises in a series of peaks, the highest of which reaches 5,450 feet.

VILLAGE CAPTURED ON GUADALCANAL BY YANKEE TROOPS

Japanese Supplies Seized Seven Miles West of Airfield.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25 — (AP) By air, by sea and by land, American fighting men going into action in the Solomons over the weekend made important territorial gains against beleaguered Japs on Guadalcanal island and inflicted heavy damage on the enemy over a widely scattered area.

The operations, a navy communique disclosed today, resulted in capture of the village of Kokumbona, seven miles west of Guadalcanal airfield, where enemy stores and equipment were seized.

Supply Dumps Destroyed

In addition, fuel and ammunition dumps on Kolombangara island, 190 miles northwest of Guadal-

MacArthur Points Possibility of Victory By Bold Air Strokes

Might Conquer Japanese Without Slow Advance From Island to Island

By the Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Jan. 25.—The prospect of an Allied victory in the Pacific achieved by "swift massive strokes" of co-ordinated air and land forces, rather than slow island-to-island advance, was held out to the United Nations today by Gen. Douglas MacArthur on the basis of new methods tested in the Papuan campaign.

These methods, Gen. MacArthur declared in a written statement, demonstrated the possibilities inherent in "continuous, calculated application of air power" and opened the way to "new and broadened strategic and tactical conceptions."

The Papuan campaign, Gen. MacArthur asserted, proved effectively not only the offensive and defensive power of the air arm when used in proper co-ordination with land forces, but also its tremendous value in transporting troops over long distances in defiance of the obstacles of terrain.

Infantry Moved by Air.

"For months on end," he said, "air transport with constant fighter coverage moved complete infantry regiments and artillery battalions across the almost impenetrable mountains of Papua and the reaches of the sea, transported field hospitals and other base installations to the front, supplied the troops and evacuated casualties."

The range of operations opened up by this co-ordination of air and land forces "will permit the application of offensive power in swift, massive strokes rather than the dilatory and costly island-to-island advance that some have assumed to be necessary in a theater where the enemy's far-flung strongholds are dispersed throughout a vast expanse of archipelagoes," he added.

"Air forces and ground forces were welded together in Papua," Gen. MacArthur concluded, "and when in sufficient strength with proper naval support, their indissoluble union points the way to victory through new and broadened strategic and tactical conceptions."

New Britain Bases Blasted.

A communique from Allied headquarters told of new aerial blows. Principal targets were airdromes at Rabaul and Gasmata, New Britain, and shore installations at Lae and Salamaua on the northeast coast of New Guinea. Heavy damage was reported.

A four-motored bomber intercepted by nine Japanese fighters over Wewak, New Guinea, fought them off in a 20-minute battle, shooting down two.

Allied heavy bombers also shot down two fighters during an attack on Dill, Timor, and a medium bomber was credited with scoring several possible hits on an enemy vessel in the Solomon Sea.

TWO U.S. GENERALS CITED AS HEROES BY MACARTHUR

Silver Star Awards Presented to Harding, Akin for Deeds in New Guinea.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Jan. 25—(AP) Two American generals were cited for gallantry in action today by General Douglas MacArthur, entitling them to wear the Silver Star decoration.

They were: Major General Edwin F. Harding of Franklin, Ohio, and Brigadier General Spencer B. Akin of Greenville, Miss.

General Harding was cited for gallantry Nov. 16 near Haroki, New Guinea.

He was aboard a small boat off New Guinea which was bombed and strafed by Japanese planes. General Harding fired upon the attackers until the boat began to sink. He then jumped overboard and, refusing to occupy space in small lifeboats which were filled with troops, including some wounded, he swam more than a mile and a half to shore despite continued strafing by the Japanese.

General Akin, chief signal officer on General MacArthur's staff, was honored for gallantry Dec. 23 near Buna, New Guinea.

On reconnaissance in an advanced zone near Buna, where a strategic bridge leading to the airfield was being repaired for American troops to advance under fire from Japanese snipers, General Akin aided in reorganizing a platoon which had been under severe enemy fire.

He then crossed the bridge in advance of the infantry and spurred them in the attack which eventually led to the capture of the airfield.

2 JAPANESE SHIPS DAMAGED IN RAID

Flying Fortresses Sweep Low, Score Direct Hits at Rabaul Harbor.

JAN 26 1943

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Tuesday, Jan. 26—(AP) A strong force of Flying Fortresses spent more than two hours over the big Japanese base of Rabaul on New Britain island around midnight Sunday and went as low as 200 feet to plant hits on one ship probably loaded with munitions and blast a large hole in the side of another.

The first vessel exploded.

Anti-aircraft fire and searchlights were intense as the big bombers came in low to assault the oft-bombed base where 20,000 tons of shipping was reported destroyed last week-end.

Other Allied bombers made smaller raids on Finschhafen and the New Guinea ports of Lae and Salamaua. The Japanese, for their part, confined their raid schedule to light night attacks on Port Moresby and Milne Bay, New Guinea.

M[illegible]S 63 TODAY

His Birthday Coincides With 155th Australian Anniversary

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 25 (AP)—By a happy coincidence, General Douglas MacArthur and Australia will celebrate their birthdays together tomorrow.

For the Commander in Chief of allied forces in the Southwest Pacific it will be his sixty-third; for Australia it will mark the 155th anniversary of the day the British flag was run up at a point where the city of Sydney now stands.

It will be a holiday for Australia, which annually observes "Foundation Day," but for the American commander it will mean only another heavy day at his headquarters, followed by an evening with his wife and young son, Arthur.

General MacArthur spent his last birthday on Corregidor, with the Battle of Bataan at its height. Tomorrow he will be able to look back on the triumphant conclusion of the campaign in Papua, which smashed an incipient Japanese attempt to invade Australia.

Returned from New Guinea only a few weeks ago, the general is in excellent health and spirits.

Counter-Attack By Japs In New Guinea Forecast

Canberra, Jan. 25 (AP)—Francis Forde, Army Minister, said today expected the Japanese to counter-attack in New Guinea despite the destruction of their pocket army of 15,000 men in Papua.

He applead for a greater air force, more men and equipment to enable the Allies to launch further offensives from the Australian base.

"The Japanese undoubtedly will counter-attack at the first opportunity they consider suitable," Forde said, "we must therefore look upon the Papuan success as a further breathing space to enable us to perfect our fighting organization."

150,000 Tons Of Shipping

An Australian Air Force spokesman said the week end destruction of 20,000 tons of shipping in an air raid on the major Japanese base of Rabaul on New Britain raised to 150,000 tons the amount destroyed or damaged since January 1. The total, he said, probably was much higher because observation often was obscured by clouds.

Forde praised the fighting forces that cleaned up Papua but warned against complacency. He said the southwest Pacific could not be considered a side show.

Five Soldiers Get Crosses

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Jan. 25 (AP).—General MacArthur awarded Distinguished Service Crosses today to five American soldiers for extraordinary heroism while repairing an important bridge near Buna under enemy fire.

They were Technician Charles H. Gray, of Petersham, Mass.; Technician Bert T. McDonoguh, Reading, Mass; Private Elmer R. Hangartner, Eau Claire, Wis.; Private Arthur Melanson, Lynn, Mass., and Private Edward G. Squires, Akron, Ohio.

Tells of Australian News Leaks

CANBERRA, Australia, Jan. 25 (AP).—Attorney General Herbert V. Evatt said today that information on military subjects still is reaching the enemy from Australia. He said this leakage possibly was due to the public's failure to realize how easily scraps of apparently insignificant gossip could be pieced together into a significant pattern.

STALIN DEMANDS EXPULSION OF FOE FROM SOVIET SOIL

Reports Capture of 200,000 Axis Troops in Two Months.

102 DIVISIONS ROUTED

11,000 Prisoners Seized as Voronezh is Occupied by Russians.

JAN 26 1943

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON, Tuesday, Jan. 26—The Red army rolling westward on a 500-mile front has expelled all the Germans from Voronezh, upper Don citadel, and reached a point 40 miles from Tikhoretsk, key Caucasian rail junction below Rostov, Moscow reported today, and Premier Josef Stalin has ordered his troops to hurl back the invaders "over the boundaries of our motherland."

Stalin's order of the day broadcast by Moscow and recorded here by the Soviet radio monitor, quoted him as saying more than 200,000 Axis captives had been taken in two months, 102 enemy divisions routed, and 13,000 guns and other equipment seized in an advance of 245 miles.

Red Offensive Continues

"The offensive of our troops continues," he said in thanking the Red troops and asking them to throw the Germans out of Russia.

A special communique heard here last night announced the complete occupation of Voronezh, which the Germans had seized partly in their summer drive. Eleven thousand more prisoners were reported taken to make the total for that front 75,000.

12-Mile Advance Reported

The midnight communique told of the capture in the Caucasus of Belaya Glina, a 12-mile advance since Sunday. It put the Russians only 40 miles from Tikhoretsk, where the Stalingrad-Novorossisk and Rostov-Baku railways meet.

Tikhoretsk's capture would draw a firmer Russian noose around the big Nazi base of Rostov toward which Soviet troops already are fighting 56 miles east of Rostov and 70 miles to the north. It also would cut off the retreat of Nazi troops based between the Tikhoretsk line and the Black sea—except by evacuation to the Crimea across the narrow Kerch straits.

Russian troops in the lower Caucasus already are menacing Kropotkin, 40 miles south of Tikhoretsk, after seizing Armavir to control the Maikop oil wells to the west.

In the Ukraine, the Russians were fighting within ten miles of Vorcshilovgrad, Donets basin industrial center. Starobelsk, 50 miles to the northwest, and Valuiki, 70 miles farther along an important north-south railway, were in Russian hands. The latter is only about 82 miles from Kharkov, Ukraine capital which was one of the Axis springboards for last summer's drive.

In taking Starobelsk Sunday the Russians said today that more than 1,000 Axis troops were killed, and 15 tanks, 16 armored cars, 150 guns, more than 200 trucks, eight locomotives, eight warehouses, and a large number of railway cars were captured. Three hundred Axis troops surrendered, the communique said.

Thousands of Axis troops were killed or captured during yesterday's fighting, and frequent Nazi counter-attacks were smashed, particularly on the middle Don and north Caucasian fronts opposite Rostov, the communique said.

Germans Call Up Reserves

Moscow dispatches emphasized that the Germans were still hurling more and more tanks into action, along with reserve troops, on the lower Don river in an effort to keep the Russians away from Rostov.

Although the Russians now are said to have broken out onto the flat plains 90 miles southeast of Rostov, these dispatches pointed out that the battle for that city apparently would be one of the heaviest of the war since the Germans have been fortifying it for months.

The swiftest Russian gains in the last week have been made on the front below Voronezh.

The Germans first announced the evacuation of Voronezh, 365 miles southeast of Moscow, early today saying the action was taken to shorten their lines. Subsequently, a DNB dispatch broadcast from Berlin said the Voronezh withdrawal was but the first of a series planned by Hitler to shorten the whole Russian front and "build up a new defense line."

Voronezh lies just east of the Don on a narrow neck of land between it and the Voronezh river. The rivers merge just south of the city.

JAN 26 1943

The announcement was the first Russian intimation that the Germans had entered the city. In July they spoke of heavy fighting "west of Voronezh" and later "in the Voronezh area."

Premier Stalin said in a speech last fall that the Germans had tried mightily to break through the Red army at Voronezh and curl northward in a vast encirclement of Moscow. The staunch Russian defense forced them to turn southward to Stalingrad and the Caucasus.

The special communique indicated that the fighting has spread considerably to the north. Columns which originated the offensive south of Voronezh already have penetrated to within 78 miles of Kharkov, ancient capital of the Ukraine, and are striking also toward Kursk, springboard of the German summer drive.

Text of Stalin's Order

"A decree of the Supreme High Command of the Red army to the troops of the north Caucasian, southwestern, southern, Don Voronezh, Kalinin, Volkhov and Leningrad fronts:

Reds Report 18-Mile Advance In Caucasus

Moscow, Jan. 25 (AP)—The Russians announced an overnight advance of eighteen to twenty-four miles in the Caucasus, enveloping several dozen villages today and declared the Red army had emerged on the plains of southern Rostov province, ninety-five miles from that key city.

Other troops standing fifty-six miles east of Rostov on the lower Don were reported massing along the Sal river with forces from the north for a drive on Rostov from the northeast. Red positions in the north were only seventy miles from Rostov and within ten miles of the important industrial center of Voroshilovgrad in the Donets basin.

Tikhoretsk Menaced

Between the Red forces in southern Rostov province and thecity there were no natural obstacles to impede their advance. They threatened the rail junction of Tikhoretsk from fifty miles up the Stalingrad Railway.

South of Voronezh the Russians were pushing toward Kharkov, seventy-eight miles from their nearest vanguards, and Kursk. The noon communique reported the liquidation of a surrounded group and the capture of 1,100 men and considerable booty. An entire division had been reported trapped previously some fifty miles behind the front.

More Villages Fall

More villages fell in that area. The news agency Tass said a cavalry squadron executed a sudden attack on a Nazi air base, killing 400 Germans and capturing several planes.

The Soviet army of the southwest front between Rostov and Voronezh claimed to have seized a fifty-mile stretch of the Moscow Donbas railway between Starobelsk and Kondrashevskaya, increasing the German discomfort by shattering their communications.

30.24-593

Starobel sk fell Sunday after a sharp battle. The Russians also announced the capture of Shulinka, ten miles south of Starobelsk, and Krasnoozerovka, twenty-eight miles northwest of Kondrashevskaya.

East Caucasus Cleared

At least five of the settlements taken in the Caucasus were described as large. Dispatches said the Russians already had cleared the Germans from all the eastern Caucasus and the general sector and that the remaining enemy was being routed from the northwest sector.

The capture of Peschanokopskoye below Salsk on the Stalingrad-Tikhoretsk railway placed the Russians in a position to strike seventy-three miles to the west to Kuschevskaya, where a network of railways meet below Rostov.

Trap Envisioned

The Reds also envisioned the trapping of thousands of Germans by seizing Tikhoretsk, thus isolating the enemy behind at Kropotkin, Maikop and Krasnodar. Kropotkin was imminently menaced by Soviet forces surging up the Rostov-Beku railway from Armavir and others only about twenty miles to the east.

Russian troops in the wooded marshes south of Lake Ladoga made slower progress fighting frequent hand-to-hand battles in a dense network of German strongpoints.

The Russians reported the siege of Leningrad was lifted last week after seventeen months of the bitterest privation ever endured by so large a city.

Reds Gain 18 Miles.

Moscow, Jan. 25 (A. P.).—The Red Army of the North Caucasus has smashed through German resistance to the rolling plains of Rostov province, capturing the railroad city of Peschanokopskoye and threatening the key German stronghold at Rostov, ninety-five miles to the northwest, from its softest flank, the Russians said today.

This important advance in the Russian drive to destroy all the German forces south of Rostov was reported a few hours after a special Russian communique announced the capture of Starobelsk, 125 miles southeast of Kharkov, the important industrial center of the Ukraine. Other Russian forces, farther north, already are within seventy-eight miles of Kharkov.

The Red Army of Caucasus struck out during the night from Peschasokopskoye and occupied several dozen more populated places, said the mid-day communique as recorded in London. Cossacks joined in this fighting and fought their way forward between eighteen and twenty-four miles, killing 800 Germans, it was said.

The entire eastern and central regions of the Caucasus have now been cleared of the Germans, and the remaining Nazi troops there are concentrated in the northwest, Russian advices said.

The terrain between the lower Don River and the Salsk-Tikhoretsk railway on which the Russians are now firmly entrenched offers few elements of natural resistance and would be difficult to hold against the powerful blows the Russians have been striking in their current offensive, observers here said. Dispatches from the front indicated the Germans fully realized the difficulty of their positions and were abandoning their last positions in the Caucasus.

The Russians forces moving northwestward from Armavir on the Rostov-Baku railway meanwhile drove northward and the midnight communique reported the capture of several places about twenty miles north of the city.

It was not certain whether the Russian forces at Peschanokopskoye would drive on Rostov immediately or push southwest to cut the Rostov-Tikhoretsk railway, thus isolating the German forces around Kropotkin, Maikop and Krasnodar.

The Russians said the southwestern Red Army has further scrambled the German lines of communication north of Rostov by occupying a fifty-mile stretch of the Moscow-Donbas railway between recaptured Starobelsk and Kondrashevskaya, where the railway joins the Millerovo-Voroshilovgrad line just northeast of Voroshilovgrad.

Starobelsk was taken only after bitter fighting. Russian dispatches reported the opposing forces fought in the streets of the city as the Germans withdrew house by house.

Nazis Admit Retreat From Don River City

JAN 26 1943

Withdrawal One Of Series To Shorten Front, Berlin Says—Russians Take 11,000 More Prisoners

(By the Associated Press)

London, Jan. 25—All the Germans were driven today from Voronezh, Don river citadel which the Nazis partially occupied early in their summer drive, and 11,000 more prisoners have been captured to swell the total on that front to 75,000, a special Russian communique recorded by the Soviet Monitor said tonight.

The Germans first announced the evacuation of Voronezh, 365 miles southeast of Moscow, early today, saying the action was taken to shorten their lines.

Nazis Plan New Line

Subsequently a DNB dispatch broadcast from Berlin said the Voronezh withdrawal was but the first of a series planned by Hitler to shorten the whole Russian front and "build up a new defense line."

Voronezh lies just east of the Don on a narrow neck of land between it and the Voronezh river. The rivers merge just south of the city.

The announcement was the first Russian intimation that the Germans had entered the city. In July they spoke of heavy fighting "west of Voronezh" and later "in the Voronezh area."

Stalin Speech Recalled

Premier Stalin said in a speech last fall that the Germans had tried mightily to break through the Red army at Voronezh and curl northward in a vast encirclement of Moscow. The Russian defense forced them to turn southward to Stalingrad and the Caucasus.

The special communique indicated that the fighting has spread considerably to the north. Columns which originated the offensive south of Voronezh already have penetrated to within seventy-eight miles of Kharkov, ancient capital of the Ukraine, and are striking also toward Kursk, springboard of the German summer drive.

Berlin Concedes Reverse.

London, Jan. 25 (A. P.).—The German High Command communique broadcast today by the Berlin radio said that Axis troops had evacuated the bridgehead of Voronezh on the Upper Don. The communique said that "in order to shorten the front the bridgehead of Voronezh was evacuated according to plan and without pressure by the enemy."

The city of Voronezh lies a short distance east of the bridgehead, the first the Germans established on the Don.

The Russians never have conceded that Axis troops were in possession of the city.

Voronezh has been the hinge between the central and southern parts of the eastern front, marking the northern limit of the Russian offensives in the south which began November 19.

South of Voronezh, the broadcast said, the Russians attacked on a wide front and "were repulsed bloodily."

[The significance of the German announcement was not immediately clear, but apparently it means that at least any territory the Germans still held east of the Don in the ... area has been abandoned. It may also be the first step there of a large scale withdrawal comparable to that from the Caucasus.]

The Germans reported the capture of Voronezh, on the Moscow-Rostov rail line, last July 7, but never repeated the claim in subsequent dispatches.

Premier Stalin has said that it was the German plan the past summer to capture Voronezh and to use it as a jump-off for a sweep toward Moscow from the south and east. Their failure to break through there, he said, defeated the plan and forced them to divert their attack toward the south.

Nazi Press Prepares People for News of Defeat in Russia

Dispatches Stress Great Difficulties in East and Appeal to Home Front

By the Associated Press.

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 25.—Dispatches from Berlin indicated today that the Nazi press is preparing the German people for news of a great defeat on the Russian front.

Articles in leading German newspapers, these dispatches said, emphasized the great difficulties confronting Hitler's armies in the East, and the Boersen Zietung went so far as to declare that "for the first time in this war Germany faces reverses of a certain importance."

Editorials warned the people that "weakness on the home front forced Germany to capitulate" in 1918, and told them they must "work more and endure more" because "a lost war is a lost future."

"Rome once was in danger of her life when threatened by Hannibal, but she triumphed," the Boersen Zietung said. "England has withstood a serious reverse, even a catastrophe. The Germans will prove they are spiritually stronger than the English."

Dispatches from Bern said the Berlin correspondent of the Swiss newspaper Die Ttat described the German communique of January 21-23 as "the most pessimistic ever issued by the Fuehrer's headquarters."

The correspondent added that "although it would be erroneous to overestimate temporary defeats today, it has been made clear to the people that overcoming the present military situation will place exceptionally hard demands on the home front."

REBELLION FLARES AGAINST GERMANS IN MARSEILLE AREA

Nazis Call Up Tanks, Artillery in Effort to Curb Revolt.

FRENCH FIRE ON FOE

Residents of Port City Dig Up Guns, Barricade Homes.

JAN 26 1943

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON, Jan. 25. — Revolting Frenchmen barricaded themselves inside their homes in the old port district of Marseille tonight and began fighting German troops who called up tanks and artillery, reports from Switzerland said.

The revolt in restless France broke out after German occupation authorities and their puppet Vichy regime headed by Pierre Laval ordered the evacuation and razing of the entire area of 40,000 persons.

40,000 Arrests Reported

DNB dispatches to Madrid and Lisbon said that 40,000 persons already had been arrested, but a few hours before the Vichy radio said only 6,000 had been rounded up.

A Reuters dispatch from Zurich said that an undetermined number of Frenchmen dug up their guns, fortified their homes as best they could, and began firing on every German soldier approaching.

The German troops then summoned artillery and tanks and began besieging the French in a house-to-house fight in the labyrinthian sector of narrow dark streets.

The Marseille fighting highlighted the increasing trouble encountered by the Germans and their Vichy regime throughout the country.

The Berlin radio broadcast a Vichy dispatch late tonight admitting that the Marseille drive was "not only against ordinary criminals, but also against various secret political organizations which have settled in the city."

Laval's regime was said to have carried out 10,000 "investigations" of Gen. Charles de Gaulle's Fighting French adherents and Communists, and the Nazi themselves have arrested "500 persons every month" since the occupation.

Nazi Fortify Coast

Trouble has flared up previously in Marseille, where the Germans are busy fortifying the coast against an expected Allied invasion from North Africa.

German dispatches reaching neutral countries said "the mass arrest of 40,000 persons" had been carried out in Marseille, a step termed "absolutely necessary because there were among them many criminals whose activities were against the security and interest of the state."

"Many Jews" were among those arrested, a DNB Paris dispatch said. Physicians, midwives, railroad clerks and other professional men were not arrested, it added.

Thousands of persons were reported being transferred to Frejus in the department of war. A town near the coast about 75 miles east of Marseille, and 20 miles southwest of Cannes.

(A Lyon radio broadcast recorded by the FCC said those arrested were being sent to the Bouches du Rhone department north and west of Marseille. German authorities ordered the evacuation by Vichy police who were told "to proceed immediately."

(Approximately 1,000 bars and restaurants were ordered closed in the move to "clear Marseille of certain elements whose activities were a serious menace to the population as a whole."

(The old port area was defined as that "between the Quai Marechal Petain, La Tourette and the Rue Chevalier Rose." In the meantime traffic into the old port sector is banned.)

Police Supervisor in Charge

Ten days ago the Berlin radio said that strong police detachments were in action against "criminals" in the Mediterranean port city, and that Rene Bousquet, Vichy secretary-general of French police, "personally has gone to Marseille to supervise the action which is to wipe out the Marseille underworld."

On Jan. 4 the Vichy radio also reporter the bombing of the German high command headquarters and another building frequented by Nazi troops. The wife of a German consular employe was said to have been wounded gravely, a French waiter was killed, and others were injured.

The Germans then clamped an 8 p. m. curfew on the city, suspending trolley service at 7:15 p. m.

Seven Plotters Executed

Since the Nazi occupation, the drive against all persons suspected of hostility toward the Axis-collaborating Laval regime has been intensified. Hundreds of persons have been rounded up, and seven persons accused of trying to assassinate Marcel Deat, another arch French collaborationist, were executed at Tours.

Marseille apparently has been tougher for the Germans to subdue than most cities. German dispatches say the reason for the intention to raze the old port section is "to substitute those districts by new up-to-date buildings."

The real German reason is twofold: The Nazis need vast sections of the waterfront to erect fortifications, and also have been stumped in their efforts to track down French patriots whose underground movement flourishes there.

Even in peacetime the old port was a rendezous and hideout for international criminals, beachcombers, and seamen of all nationalities, many without passports.

COMMANDOS RAID NORWEGIAN PORT

London, Jan. 25 (1942).—Reuters said a DNB broadcast reported today that British Commandos carried out a raid at Larvik on the Norwegian coast between Saturday night and Sunday morning.

Maps show a Larvik on the Skagerrak, the channel between Norway and Denmark, just southwest of Oslo Harbor.

DNB said seven British torpedo boats attempted to land sabotage troops under the screen of bad weather conditions but were driven off by the German defenses and reconnaissance flyers saw only five of the boats on their way back.

"The loss of two boats can therefore be assumed," it said.

British officials declined comment on the German report.

PORT IN HOLLAND RAIDED BY R. A. F.

London, Jan. 25 (A. P.).—R. A. F. Boston bombers, heavily escorted by Allied fighting planes, raided docks at Flushing in the Netherlands today and scored bursts on quays and oil storage tanks, it was announced by the Air Ministry.

One Boston was reported missing from the raid, which was carried out in good weather. Escorting fighters were from American, Canadian, R. A. F. and other Allied units.

Taking advantage of low cloud cover, a number of enemy planes bombed and machine-gunned the south coast area late this afternoon.

German raiding plane dropped bombs near a famous holiday resort in southwest England today before it was chased out to sea by British Spitfires. There was no report of casualties.

5 AXIS SHIPS SUNK IN MEDITERRANEAN

London, Jan. 25 (A. P.).—British submarines have sunk five more enemy supply ships in the Central Mediterranean, the Admiralty announced here today. Two medium-sized enemy supply ships were sunk despite a destroyer escort, the announcement said, one near Djerba, in southeastern Tunisia, and the other sixty miles west of Tripoli.

Another medium-sized, heavily loaded supply ship, escorted by two naval vessels, was attacked off the eastern coast of Sardinia. One escorting craft was sunk and the other was damaged and beached in sinking condition, the Admiralty said.

Thereafter the submarine torpedoed the supply vessel. Another torpedoed craft was escorted by four auxiliary ships, the communique said.

Nazis Plan Cargo U-Boat Fleet

LONDON, Jan. 25 (AP)—Reliable informants said tonight that Germany was building a fleet of the world's largest submarines as cargo carriers in an effort to establish shipping contact with Japan and obtain raw materials from the Far East. The first six, displacing 2,500 tons, would be completed within a few months, these sources, who may not be identified by name, said.

Admiral Of The Fleet Becomes Baron Keyes

JAN 26 1943

London, Jan. 25 (AP)—Admiral of the Fleet Sir Roger Keyes, who received a barony in the New Year honors list, has taken the title of Baron Keyes of Zeebrugge and Dover.

In 1918 Sir Roger was commander of the Dover patrol and led a British naval foray on April 23 of that year to make the Belgian port of Zeebrugge useless to the Germans.

Britain Simplifies Exchange Formula Into 3 Accounts

London, Jan. 25 (AP)—The British Treasury announced today foreign exchange freezing regulations would be simplified February 2 and three types of accounts held for American interests lumped under a single category.

The three—registered, free and sterling area accounts — would come under a "U. S. A." registered" classification at a guaranteed rate of $4.02½ to the pound.

(American bankers said this would benefit United States owners of British bank accounts under the "free" and "sterling area" categories since these funds apparently would be available to pay for exports from Britain. Only registered accounts could be used for such purposes under the rules in effect since July, 1940.)

"Arrangements have been completed to simplify the conduct of sterling accounts held by residents in the United States by amalgamating the differing types of account," the treasury's statement said.

United States registered accounts, the announcement said, may (after February 2) be opened in the names of individuals as well as of banks and companies. They will carry the guaranteed rate of $4.02½ to the pound. (This rate continued subject to bank charges, however, indicating that a buyer of British exchange would pay $4.04 for each pound and a seller would receive $4.02.)

The three types of accounts have been United States registered, maintained chiefly by American banks and usable to pay for exports from Great Britain; "free" accounts, such as deposits of American individuals, and "sterling area" accounts, which could be used only within certain parts of the British commonwealth, such as Australia and India, but excluding Canada. Neither "free" or "sterling area" funds could be used to pay for goods exported from Great Britain.

U. S. Bombers In India Hammer Rangoon Dock

New Delhi, Jan. 25 (AP)—United States Army heavy bombers in a daylight raid into Burma struck docks at Rangoon and scored two direct hits on a 6,000-ton merchant vessel yesterday, a Tenth Air Force communique said today.

At the same time fighters and fighter-bombers ranged into north Burma and set buildings afire at a Japanese storage area at Shaduzup, the announcement said.

No loss of American planes was reported.

RAF Attacks Akyab And Burma Air Base

By the Associated Press.

NEW DELHI, Jan. 25.—RAF bombers made a low-altitude attack on the Japanese airdrome at Shwebo in Central Burma last night and simultaneously raided oft-bombed Akyab Island on the west coast, a British communique reported today.

These assaults followed daylight patrols during which small shipping was attacked below Akyab and damage was done to enemy installations at Gangaw, the communique said.

All British planes were said to have returned safely.

Band Members at Marine Outpost Mix Music with Combat Training

By SGT. CHARLES R. GORDON
Marine Corps Combat Correspondent
(Distributed by The Associated Press)

ON A SOUTH PACIFIC ISLAND, Jan. 9 — (Delayed) Persons who conceive of military musicians as "stay at homes" who have nothing to with the fighting overseas would be surprised if they could visit this Marine jungle outpost.

In the Marine corps every man is a fighting man. "Field musics," as the Marines officially call the men who comprise their bands and drum and bugle corps, mix music with musketry—they carry rifles and bayonets as well as the less murderous trombones and trumpets.

They work hard along side the other men on this island, and if an emergency comes their job will be one of the most important and dangerous.

"The folks who think we have it easier than the other men don't know the facts," declared Pfc. Alexander Lepak, 67 Bonner street, Hartford, Conn., putting his drums and sticks aside to wipe the oil from his rifle. He was preparing for inspection, which bandsmen stand with the rest of the force.

Pvt. Lepak is one of the few band members attached to this unit who was a musician in civil life. Although only 22, he was drummer with a Connecticut hotel dance band prior to his enlistment.

JAN 26 1943

Most of the others followed music only as a sideline.

To all, music is definitely a sideline now. Band members here are responsible for standing guard over the headquarters area each night while the rest of the company sleeps. Then, too, they are given a rigorous schedule of combat training in this jungle country, although most of them already had such instruction back in the states.

The program includes hikes and physical drill, special training in the rifle, bayonet and hand grenade and courses in map-reading, scouting, field fortifications and tactical problems.

Master Gunnery Sgt. Carl F. Cain, of Dawsonville, Ga., is a veteran who will frankly admit his skepticism when the band was assigned to his tutelage. But he changed his mind quickly after one afternoon of watching his supposed "white elephants" pepper the bulls eye in the combat targets.

"Those boys," he said, "know how to shoot."

Rescuers Try to Reach Damaged Plane in Peru

By the Associated Press.

LIMA, Peru, Jan. 25.—Rescuers today sought to reach a damaged Pan American-Grace Airways transport which came down near the coast about 350 miles south of Lima while en route from Santiago, Chile, to Lima with 11 passengers and a crew of four.

The airliner, missing since Friday, was located yesterday by a search plane which reported the transport was "apparently badly damaged," but left in doubt the fate of the 15 aboard.

14 KILLED IN CRASH

LIMA, Peru, Jan. 25—(AP) Fourteen passengers and crewmen, including four Americans, were killed in the crash of a Pan American-Grace airliner last Friday, the National Telegraph said tonight.

The sole survivor found in the wrecked transport ship near Chaparra, about 350 miles south of here, was a 26-year-old British diplomat, John Alfred Howard. He was injured, the report said. The others had burned to death.

30.24-595

An American, Gilden Gardener, was the pilot of the plane, which was enroute from Santiago, Chile, and three other U. S. citizens had been reported aboard, two of them Navy yeomen.

Japanese Get War's Heaviest U. S. Air Raids

Flyers Ruin Foe's Dumps on Island; Guadalcanal Men Kill 201 in Village

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—By air, sea and land actions in the Solomons during the week end, American fighting men made important territorial gains against the beleagured Japanese on Guadalcanal Island and inflicted severe damage on the enemy elsewhere in a wide area.

The operations, a Navy communique disclosed today, resulted in capture of the village of Kokumbona, seven miles west of Guadalcanal airfield, and enemy stores and equipment were seized.

In addition, fuel and ammunition dumps on Kolombangara Island, 190 miles northwest of Guadalcanal airfield, were destroyed in a bombardment by American aerial and surface forces, and a large Japanese destroyer and a cargo ship were bombed by American aircraft in the vicinity of Shortland Island.

On Guadalcanal, where latest reports have placed the number of remaining enemy troops at about 4,000, the action resulted in the killing of 201 Japanese and the capture of forty prisoners.

Naval spokesmen said the air action reported today, taken with that announced yesterday from General Douglas McArthur's headquarters, comprised the greatest air activity of the war to date in the south and southwest Pacific theaters of war.

The Guadalcanal action was launched on Friday morning (Solomons time) when American ground forces pushed the Japanese westward and, in the face of strenuous opposition, seized six important elevations which overlooked the village of Kokumbona and facilitated its capture.

The village is on the north coast of the island and sixteen miles from Cape Esperance, the site of the chief Japanese landings and the focal point of the enemy's defenses.

The action on Friday resulted in the killing of 110 Japanese and mopping-up operations the next day against pockets of opposition scored ninety-one more enemy dead and forty prisoners.

The American positions on Guadalcanal were raided by enemy planes on Saturday night. Navy spokesmen said that while the origin of the attacking force was not known, it could have been Munda, in the New Georgia group.

Enemy installations on Kolombangara Island were subjected to intensive bombardment on Saturday and Sunday. The success of the mission was demonstrated by fires that indicated, the Navy said, that the fuel and ammunition dumps on the enemy-held island were "completely burned out."

Kolombangara Island, circular in shape and about eighteen miles across, is just northwest of New Georgia. Formed by an extinct volcano, it rises in a series of peaks, the highest of which is 5,450 feet.

Health of A. E. F. In North Africa Seen Excellent

JAN 26 1943

Gen. Magee Reports Men Well Despite Prevalence of 'Almost Every Disease'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25 (AP).—The health of American troops in North Africa is excellent, Major General James C. Magee said today, despite the prevalence of "almost every disease you can think of" among the native population.

The Army surgeon general, who has just returned from a flying inspection trip to North Africa, England, West Africa and South America, said the sick rate is little more than 1 per cent, though the troops have been through the worst rainy season North Africa has had in years.

General Magee told a press conference that malaria and venereal diseases were the main medical problems of the Army overseas.

The preventive methods adopted by medical officers against malaria have been almost completely successful, he said, but venereal diseases cause more trouble, because "some parts of the world just refuse to regard venereal diseases as a problem."

"For that reason," he said, "we don't get the support from the public that we do at home, and it throws a much greater burden on the medical officers. About all we can do is to instruct the soldier to the fullest possible extent and make available those facilities that we know are helpful."

Typhus is a constant threat, General Magee said, although there has been none as yet among the American troops. Every man going overseas is inoculated against typhus, he explained, but "even under the best conditions no vaccine offers 100 per cent protection."

The Quartermaster Corps has complete delousing units and steam sterilizers with the troops, General Magee said, and is now using a more effective delousing method for clothing which has recently been developed by United States government agencies, and uses methyl bromide.

"North Africa is not a well sanitated place," he said. "For instance, within one small, walled native town we found plague, leprosy, smallpox, typhoid, typhus, two or three kinds of dysentery and just about all the skin diseases known."

He said the use of blood plasma for transfusion and of sulfa drugs for prevention and treatment of infection undoubtedly would result in a much higher rate of recovery from wounds in this war than in the first world war.

OUTST ALL ALLIES IN WAR OUTPUT

Supplies $8,253,000,000 In Lend-Lease Goods And Services

Report By Stettinius Shows Russia Has Been Greatest Beneficiary

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Janfl 25 — The United States has now outstripped the war production rate of every other Allied nation and supplied nearly $8,253,000,000 worth of lend-lease goods and services to other countries from March 11, 1941, to December 31, 1942, Lend-Lease Administrator Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., reported to Congress today.

The furnishing of lend-lease aid declined from a peak of $915,000,000 in November and $757,000,000 in December, the report disclosed.

But the total for those three months was twice the total for all of 1941 and the full year's total in 1942 of $7,009,000,000 was more than five times that of 1941.

One Third Went To Allies

One tank and combat plane out of every three built in this country in 1942 was shipped to our Allies but this took account not only of lend-lease but also of outright foreign purchases from us.

JAN 26 1943

Lease-lend countries bought $6,900,000,000 worth of goods from us between March, 1941, and December, 1942, while goods exported under lease-lend in that time came to $5,959,000,000. It was in March, 1942, that lease-lend exports started to exceed other exports.

Goods transferred (but not necessarily exported) under lend-lease since March, 1941, came to $6,547,679,000 and lend-lease services to $1,705,054,000 to make the $8,252,733,000 total.

90 Per Cent. Exported

Transfers generally have been made before the goods left this country. About ninety per cent. of the goods transferred has been exported and the rest is awaiting shipment.

Some of the shipments, of course, never reach their destination because of enemy action.

In declaring that the United States now has the highest war production rate of any of the United Nations, the report did not specify when this status was reached but noted that "until last spring, Great Britain, with one third of our population and industrial capacity, was producing more armaments than we were."

"It also noted that "more Nazi soldiers have been killed by Russian-made weapons since the beginning of the war than on all the other war fronts combined."

Russia Greatest Beneficiary

Not Great Britain but Russia apparently has been the greatest beneficiary of lend-lease.

"Up to January 1, 1943, the United States had shipped to the Soviet Union under lend-lease more than 3,200 tanks, almost 2,600 planes and 81,000 trucks, Jeeps and other military motor vehicles," Stettinius reported. "This is more than we have sent to the United Kingdom or any other military theater under lend-lease since the beginning of the lend-lease program in March, 1941, although lend-lease aid to Russia did not begin until October, 1941—eight months later."

Nearly half of all lend-lease shipments to the United Kingdom have been food and other agricultural products, to the value of $1,000,000,000 up to November 30, and most lend-lease food exports in 1942 went to the United Kingdom.

Sent More Food To Soviet

"In December, however, we provided more food to the Soviet Union than to Great Britain," the report said, "and this year we expect that more than half of all lend-lease food shipments will go to the U. S. S. R.

The United States also sent to Russia machines, tools and raw materials. And Great Britain sent Russia under lend-lease "more than 2,600 tanks and more than 2,000 planes, almost all of them produced in British factories."

American munitions shipments to the British were sent not to the British Isle but to the British war fronts in Africa and elsewhere.

22 P. C. From Agriculture

Twenty-two per cent. of all lend-lease exports have been agricultural products, mostly food, but the report emphasizes that "actually, lend-lease requirements last year had little to do with the food shortages that developed in this country."

We sent under lend-lease 5 per cent. of our meat; 3.4 per cent. of our milk products (23 per cent. of dry skim milk and cheese); 13.2 per cent. of our fats and oils; 10 per cent. of our eggs; 7 per cent. of our fish, and smaller percentages of other foods.

"The lend-lease food program for 1943 will take a much bigger share of many of these products than it did in 1942," the report gave notice.

Must Meet New Demands

"In addition to the pressing requirements for the Soviet army and the Soviet people, we must be prepared to meet the new demands that will come when United Nations forces liberate areas now held by the Axis. . . .

"Our troops cannot take the offensive successfully in the midst of famine and pestilence, riots and revolution."

The report showed that President Roosevelt had declared forty-three countries eligible for lend-lease. These include thirty-one at war with one or more Axis powers, all nations of the Western Hemisphere, and Liberia, Egypt, Turkey, Iceland and Iran.

Of these, hirty actually have been receiving lend-lease assistance and four — Australia, fighting France, New Zealand and the United Kingdom—have been furnishing lend-lease aid to us under reciprocal agreements.

In addition agreements are under discussion with Belgium, China and the Netherlands for the furnishing of lend-lease to us. China, without waiting for an agreement, is furnishing supplies to the United States Air Forces, it was stated.

The report emphasized that Britain had furnished the United States material lend-lease assistance. Among other services, British transports have carried American troops abroad, "two-thirds of all the British army and civilian labor force available for military construction" has been working on facilities for our forces; and munitions, food, clothing and other supplies have been furnished.

FIRST LADY HOPES FOR DISARMAMENT

JAN 26 1943

Washington, Jan. 25 (AP).—Mrs. Roosevelt said today that she would walk wherever possible to the balls planned here Saturday in celebration of the President's birthday.

She also told a press conference that she hoped universal disarmament would come gradually after the war, following upon "a period in which there will have to be a United Nations' domination." Everybody would have to be converted to peace, she said, or "you would find yourself back in the same place" that led to the present conflict.

"I should be very sorry if we didn't disarm," she declared. "I think it has to be universal disarmament—gradually, of course. You must see that you're making progress."

In connection with the celebrations of the President's birthday for the benefit of infantile paralysis victims, Mrs. Roosevelt said that she would entertain a group of motion picture stars at a White House luncheon on Saturday. The stars are to appear at benefit balls in Washington that night.

The President's wife said that while she would walk to as many of the events as possible, she could not say whether she would miss others or would ride to them. She added that she had walked wherever she could since the ban on pleasure driving to conserve gasoline, and that she had not ridden many buses or street cars.

The First Lady said that gasoline used by a military plane which took her to Newport News to launch the new aircraft carrier Yorktown was not wasted because the pilots had to fly a certain number of hours as "practice." Flying any officials anywhere, she said, always was used as required hours for the pilots.

British Ship Torpedoed In South Atlantic

JAN 26 1943

Washington, Jan. 25 (AP).—The navy announced today that a small British merchant vessel was torpedoed and sunk by an enemy submarine early in January in the South Atlantic off the east coast of South America. Survivors have been landed at Miami, Fla.

The captain of the vessel was taken prisoner aboard the U-boat, W. H. Kell, of Carlisle, England, chief officer of the merchantman, reported. Seven of the crew of forty-four were killed when the torpedoes struck, he said.

Survivors reached shore in a damaged lifeboat twelve hourse after the attack.

The sinking raised to 602 the number of announced United Nations and neutral ship losses in the Western Atlantic since Pearl Harbor.

Van Mook Gives Plan for World Security Union

Offers Post-War Formula in Response to Hull's Call for Lasting Allied Unity

From the Herald Tribune Bureau

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—A call for unity among the United Nations in the post-war world, issued by Secretary of State Cordell Hull tonight, was answered by Dr. Hubertus J. Van Mook, Minister of the Colonies of the Netherlands, who offered a plan for a world organization democratic in form and spirit.

Dr. Van Mook delivered his formula for a post-war society of nations, differing from the old League of Nations, at the first of a series of lectures on problems of the United Nations held in Constitution Hall. Secretary Hull was not present, but his message, indorsing the United Nations discussion series, was read by Francis B. Sayre, assistant to the Secretary of State.

"Our unity of purpose must be based on two unalterable resolves," Mr. Hull declared: "To destroy utterly the forces of dictatorship, tyranny and inhumanity as exampled today in Germany and Italy and Japan; and, once that is accomplished, to press forward with the task of building human freedoms and Christian morality on firmer and broader foundations than ever before."

In addition to fighting to free countries from Axis tyrannies, Mr. Hull said, "we must likewise stand united, beyond the victory, in the performance of the tasks of peace."

Cites Examples in Formula

Dr. Van Mook admitted in his lecture that, although organized consultation among the occupied nations is impossible, the preparation of post-war decisions cannot be postponed until the war is over. He was convinced that "there are a number of general principles about which they are certain to agree." He was also convinced "the occupied countries will be ready to agree that a world organization to prevent the recurrence of world wars" is not only desirable but worth considerable sacrifice.

The European countries now occupied have learned, he said, that a League of Nations "which can be deserted by any nation in a huff or with evil intentions and which can be rendered powerless by the negative vote of a single member can never solve the problem."

As his blueprint to a peace organization, Dr. Van Mook suggested a world organization democratic in form and spirit, in which all participants will be active partners, although the greater powers may be allowed an authority in proportion to their responsibility.

Dr. Van Mook then foresaw possible "Union Now" types of organization within the larger one, that of countries "further strengthening their ties with countries of the same general structure of government, with identical or complementary economic interests, with a common sphere of defense." He cited for example that "the democratic countries surrounding the North Atlantic might be considered as an instance of this kind, a mutual agreement about collective safeguarding of the freedom of press and of speech in those countries could be an example of the further responsibilities in this direction."

Would Include Captive Nations

Among other things that Dr. Van Mook advocated was the inclusion of the members of occupied countries within the rescuing armies. He said their assistance would be valuable, but it would also aid their pride and self-esteem as re-established nations, adding, "they do not want our pity, but our recognition."

Nor do the people of the occupied territories want to be left aside in regard to post-war political and economic reconstructions, the Minister warned.

Dr. Van Mook spoke with feeling of the present plight of the 220,000,000 conquered Europeans and the 200,000,000 people tyrannized by Japan. He said he believed "that even if the Allied cause were lost, even if the Axis were triumphant, they would go on fighting." He discounted any possibility of defeat, however, and looked to a peace which the United States would help the world to organize.

Paul V. McNutt, chairman of the War Man-Power Commission, acted as moderator tonight, and Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, former United States Minister to Norway, introduced Dr. Van Mook.

CONNALLY BACKS POLICIES OF U.S. IN NORTH AFRICA

Senate Leader Places Trust in Gen. Eisenhower's Decisions as Commander.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25 — (AP) Chairman Connally (D-Tex) of the Foreign Relations committee told the Senate today in a vigorous defense of the government's policies in North Africa that he was willing to trust Lieut. Gen. Dwight Eisenhower to "treat the situation there as he finds it."

Deprecating what he said were attacks on the "realistic" policies pursued by Secretary of State Hull and Gen. Eisenhower in dealing with local French authorities, Senator Connally asserted he was not so much interested in the politics of the Frenchmen involved as he was in the fact that some of them were "bearing their breasts to the enemy."

"I regard the action of Secretary Hull throughout this whole chapter in North Africa as having been a wise one and one which now gives promise of realizing the actualities of the situation and being of great aid to our military forces there," Senator Connally said.

While the Texas senator did not name the critics of the State department to whom he was replying, he said there had been attacks made on Secretary Hull and General Eisenhower for their action in agreeing to permit the late Admiral Darlan to remain as head of the French government in North Africa, despite the charges that he previously had collaborated with the Axis.

Senator Connally said he had no doubt that the alignment made at that time, which resulted in the capitulation of the French and the subsequent joining of French troops in the fight against Axis forces, had "saved thousands of American lives."

PEACETIME UNITY DEMANDED BY HULL

Importance of Standing Together Stressed by Head of State Dept.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25 — (AP) The people of the United Nations must stand united after victory in the performance of the great tasks of peace, Secretary of State Hull said tonight.

In a message to the participants in a United Nations discussion at Constitution hall, Secretary Hull sent his greetings and said:

"The nature of the peace settlement concluded at the end of the present conflict will fundamentally depend upon the deep desires and underlying conviction of the great rank and file of peoples which make up the United Nations. It is therefore of profound importance that the peoples of each of these United Nations should understand the thoughts, the ideals and the purposes of the others.

"We are united in fighting to free and keep free our country and all countries from such tyranny and slavery as the Axis powers seek to impose. We must likewise stand united, beyond the victory, in the performance of the great tasks of peace. Our unity of purpose must be based upon two unalterable resolves: To destroy utterly the forces of dictatorship, tyranny and inhumanity as exampled today in Germany and Italy and Japan; and, once that is accomplished, to press forward with the task of building human freedom and Christian morality on firmer and broader foundations than ever before."

SEA CAPTAIN HELD CAPTIVE ON U-BOAT

British Master Taken Prisoner After Ship is Torpedoed.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 25—(AP) Capture of the captain of a torpedoed British merchantman by a German U-boat was reported here by the chief officer of the vessel on his arrival from a South American port.

Seven of the crew of 44 were killed when the torpedoes struck, early in January off the coast of South America, W. H. Kell, the officer, of Carlisle, England, said, and while the rest of the crew was clambering into the one damaged lifeboat that was successfully launched, the U-boat surfaced and ordered the captain aboard.

Bailing all the way to the coast, the crew, plus the ship's cat which had jumped from the sinking vessel onto a piece of wreckage and had been pulled into the lifeboat rowed to the South American mainland.

After 12 hours in the boat, the survivors landed at a bleak, uninhabited spot, but found their way to a primitive native village where they were given food and shelter.

Natives of the village found the sailors very engrossing, Kell reported, watching them while they ate—and even while they slept.

A native runner made his way through nine miles of jungle to the closest town, from which a messenger was dispatched for the British consul.

Jeffers Assails Army and Navy

Complains Bitterly of Interference in War Plants by Service Experts.

Baltimore, Jan. 25 (A. P.).—William M. Jeffers, rubber administrator, launched a bitter attack today on what he termed Army and Navy interference with war plants, at a session of the Council of State Governments.

War plants will reach production figures "only if we keep the Army and Navy and loafers out of these plants and let the men who know how to run these plants do it," Mr. Jeffers said. "Then we'll get production."

He declared that all production problems, including those in the rubber industry, could be solved "if we get production to the point where it ought to be, if we get less interference in the plants.

"There are too many experts in these plants, Army and Navy men . . . one day it's the Army and the next day it's the Navy. It's a battle between how many stars and how many bars."

Evokes Thunderous Applause.

Mr. Jeffers was greeted with thunderous applause when he said that the nation's economy could be sustained and the country kept on rubber if interference was removed.

"On rubber we have too many experts in Washington, just as we have too many experts on other things," he said.

Mr. Jeffers said he would have to be overruled by "a higher authority" before he would abandon his insistence on top priorities for materials needed to complete projected synthetic rubber plants. He listened in silence as M. J. Madigan, special assistant to Robert P. Patterson, Under-Secretary of War, described to the committee the conflict within Government agencies for critical materials.

Mr. Patterson has been working to get Mr. Jeffers to lower his sights to permit an increase in the flow of materials for 100-octane aviation gasoline plants as well as chemical warfare plants, including some of the latter to produce an expanded flow of poison gas in event of an emergency, Mr. Madigan said.

He disclosed the decision to prepare for poison gas expansion when Chairman Gillette, Democrat, of Iowa, asked if the War Department had "considered the possibility of the Axis nations using poison gas."

Difficulty in getting priorities for the butadiene plants using petroleum had delayed progress on their construction, the witness asserted.

Mr. Madigan said the plants had to compete for valves, heat exchangers, control instruments and other materials with the high octane gas program, the escort vessel program and other construction. He said all proposed plants would be completed this year.

Nelson Complains of Absenteeism

In an address to delegates attending the sixth annual session of the council, Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production Board, said absenteeism was one of the country's most important problems.

"If we could cut the aircraft industry's absenteeism from 10 per cent to 2 per cent, it will make assured that plane production goals will be reached," he said.

He added that many important production problems remained to be solved and the country must steel itself to sacrifices and to abandonment of anything which interferes with essential production.

Wreckage Reported At Scene of Search For Navy Transport

Finding of Big Plane North of San Francisco Not Confirmed, However

(Picture on Page A-3.)

By the Associated Press.

JAN 26 1943

SANTA ROSA, Calif., Jan. 25.—A large plane has been found, demolished, at Blue Lake, in Northern Lake County, about 100 miles north of San Francisco, Santa Rosa police said they were informed early today.

The report came from the postmaster at Blue Lake.

Information from other sources in the Blue Lake district, however, failed to confirm the report.

Postmistress Marie Partenger at nearby Middletown said she had heard nothing of a wrecked plane having been found in the area.

Civilian airplane spotters at the Blue Lake observation post said they had seen nothing to substantiate the report.

Had Civilian Reports.

This is the approximate area where earlier civilian reports had indicated a big Navy transport plane, missing with 19 persons aboard since last Thursday, might be found.

Among the 19 were Rear Admiral Robert H. English, commander of the Pacific fleet submarine force, three captains and three commanders.

The earlier reports told of a heavy plane having been sighted in apparent distress Thursday morning over the mountains of Northeastern Sonoma County, about 40 miles south of Blue Lake.

Emergency Landing Place.

This area lies between San Francisco, to which the missing Navy transport was bound from Pearl Harbor, and Clear Lake, an emergency landing place for trans-Pacific planes in pre-war days.

The civilian reports, given to police and sheriff's officers, were relayed to Army and Navy officers conducting a search for the plane.

A trapper, who lives 5 miles west of Calistoga, said that at 8 a.m. last Thursday he saw an extraordinary large plane, flying slowly northward at about 1,000 feet altitude. One of its motors seemed to be failing, he said, and a large white article, like a bed sheet, flapped from one window.

There were other reports of a large airplane in the vicinity and one ranch couple said they heard sounds like a crash and explosion.

Crew of Six on Second Missing Plane Named

By the Associated Press.

The Navy announced last night the names of six crew members aboard a missing Navy cargo transport land plane overdue at San Pedro, Calif., since last Thursday on a flight from Winslow, Ariz.

A continuing joint Army-Navy search has failed to locate the craft, the Navy Department said, adding that "reports indicate the following crew members were aboard the plane and next of kin have been notified accordingly:"

CRASH OF BOMBER IN OHIO KILLS 11

Army Craft Falls in Flames Near New Albany—10 Dead in Colorado Air Mishap

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 25 (AP)—The State Highway Patrol reported today that eleven persons were killed and one was injured in the flaming crash of a four-motored Army bomber near New Albany, fourteen miles northeast of this city.

The injured man was identified at the Grant Hospital in Columbus as Sergeant James H. Foldesi, 23 years old, of Superior, Wis.

Witnesses of the disaster said that a loud explosion preceded the crash. Debris was scattered around for about 600 yards.

The ship fell on the farm of Francis Schleppi, about three miles northeast of New Albany. Ray Schleppi, father of Francis, said he and Leroy Herb counted eleven bodies. Clarence Held, who lives half a mile from the crash scene, assisted in removing four bodies from the plane.

'Moderately Strong' Earthquake Recorded

By the Associated Press.

WESTON, Mass., Jan. 25.—The Rev. Daniel F. Linehan, S. J., seismologist at Weston College, reported today that the Weston seismograph recorded a "moderately strong" earthquake at 4:48:26 p.m. yesterday.

Father Linehan said the disturbance was approximately 2,175 miles from Boston, probably in the vicinity of San Salvador or Nicaragua.

Patterson Says Army Will Help Men Find Jobs

Proposes Selective Service System 'in Reverse' When Troops Are Mustered Out

JAN 26 1943

CHICAGO, Jan. 25 (AP).—Proposing a post-war selective-service system "in reverse" to operate as a job-placement agency, Robert P. Patterson, Under Secretary of War, promised tonight that the Army would "do its best to see no man is mustered out of military ranks into a breadline."

There will be millions of men to demobilize, he said in a speech prepared for the technological institute of Northwestern University, and although the arms alone cannot guarantee civilian jobs for all of them, it does intend to make the transfer to civilian life with as little economic dislocation as possible.

"We may be a war-weary people by the time we have shattered the Axis," he said. "There will be an urge to let down after the fast pace we maintained to win this war, to dump men willy-nilly back into civilian life; to let them find a job as best they can and where they can.

"But the Army will not take that easy way. Its responsibility is too great. As I say, we will try to maintain a selective system in reverse. It worked well in mobilization, it should work equally well when we select men for return to civil life."

Mr. Patterson explained that War Department records catalogue each man according to occupation or profession, and the demobilization plan would be to inform men about to leave the Army of job opportunities in their own field—"it would be up to them, of course, whether they cared to take advantage of it."

Fight Japs Now or Forever, Ex-Tokyo Correspondent Warns

They Are More Dangerous Than Nazis, Max Hill Declares in Hartford.

JAN 26 1943

HARTFORD, Jan. 25 — (AP) Japan is more dangerous than Germany and unless the United States carries the fight to her now we may face a war that may go on for ever and ever," said Max Hill, last Associated Press chief of bureau in Tokyo, in an address here tonight before the third annual dinner of the Connecticut development commission.

Mr. Hill, who shared the speaking program with Governor Raymond E. Baldwin, left Japan last June on a diplomatic exchange ship after having spent more than seven months in solitary confinement. He is still under a suspended 18 months' sentence for sending stories to the United States "detrimental to Japan's diplomacy."

"In Washington the other day," said Mr. Hill, who was arrested in Tokyo on the morning Pearl Harbor was bombed, "I was talking with a governmental official and I told him just what I am going to tell you about how tough an enemy I think Japan is.

Left-Handed War

"He said:

"'But we are fighting a left-handed war out there.'

"Clark Lee, another AP correspondent, was with me. He covered Bataan and Corregidor, much of the fighting at sea, saw our troops in action in the Solomons.

"'Yes,' said Lee, holding up his hand,—"'with the little finger of our left hand.'

"What Lee said was not disputed.

Critical Year

"This is the critical year in the Pacific. Every day we delay means we must fight a stronger enemy. Japan is digging in and consolidating her positions.

"Japan is strong. She won't break and in many conquered lands she is persuading the native populations to fight and work for her. We must not let China down because her help is vital to us,—if we are to win this war.

Now or Never

"In my opinion, Japan is an even more dangerous enemy than Germany. The time to fight her is now—and not a year or two from now or we may face a war that, in the words of an army officer I talked with, may go on for ever and ever."

The 38-year-old foreign correspondent gave a lively account of life in Tokyo's frigid, unsanitary, forbidding Sugamo prison, where shoeless, and protected at night by a single prison blanket spread over a rice straw matting on the floor, he lived and slept.

A single light bulb, a washbowl, and toilet were the only conveniences, and the toilet provided the cell's only seat. On Christmas eve, 1941, police brought him a set of Shakespeare from his Tokyo home. That, said Mr. Hill, "meant the difference between sanity and madness."

Memorized Othello

"I finally hit on a scheme of memory work," he said. After reading every play three or four times I decided I liked Othello best. I memorized the entire tragedy." Between times, Mr. Hill counted branches on a pine tree outside his cell window or tried to memorize the 48 states, invariably getting 47 until one night in March, as he lay on his matting, it came to him that he had been overlooking Mississippi.

Mr. Hill had some money and was able to a buy a little extra food but for most of the prisoners the meals were unvarying,—a bowl of warm water, which some of the inmates used to wash themselves, a small cup of rice, and barley and a bowl of weed and water soup.

"I am so plump and well-fed now that you may think I am a fine one to talk about shortages and hardships in Japan," continued Mr. Hill, "but that is what our rich and so-called rationed food does for a person who has been living on Japan's skimpy diet.

"One day in prison I was talking with Yamada-San, the interpreter on my case. As all hungry men do, we got on the subject of food.

Japs Thrive on Little

"'Hill -San', he said, 'you can't starve us out.' By you he meant the United States. 'A little rice, a bit of fish. That's all a Japanese needs to eat.'

"That is true. But for a foreigner used to the plenty of America it isn't. The war prisoners from Guam are at Zentsugi prison camp on an island off Kobe.

"They are losing weight, their teeth are going bad, and some of them are contracting diseases they will have the rest of their lives from the scanty food. Yet what they are eating is the field rations of the Japanese army.

"Japanese soldiers not only thrive on this diet. They fight on it."

Governor Baldwin, alluding to the present critical fuel oil shortage, declared that in an offensive war, the home front "must produce more and more and get along on less and less."

The fuel situation, he said, is "getting worse instead of better," adding that "we have practically no control over it since all our fuel comes from outside the state."

RUML OUTLINES TAX PLAN IN HARTFORD

Treasury Would Lose No Money Under Pay-as-You-Go, He Declares.

JAN 26 1943

HARTFORD, Jan. 25 (AP) The humane features of his now famous "pay-as-you-go" plan for paying income taxes were stressed tonight by Beardsley Ruml before a packed, sympathetic audience in the Colonial room at Bushnell Memorial hall.

Speaking under the auspices of the Connecticut Economic council, whose treasurer, Howell Cheney, arranged the talk, Mr. Ruml said that one of the reasons for reforming our "historic income tax" springs from the "personal and humane desirability of removing from millions of citizens the constant threat of unpaid tax debt."

The first purpose of the plan, Mr. Ruml stated, related to the financing of the war, to the reduction of "potentially inflationary purchasing power, and to the preservation of the integrity of our tax system through obtaining the highest possible level of collections and the lowest possible level of defaults."

Mr. Ruml, whose plan has been currently discussed in Congress, advocated "dropping out the year 1942 from the tax calendar forever," and "turning our tax clocks ahead one year," said there would be no loss of money to the Treasury department.

Exchange Ship Brings 188 to Philadelphia

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25.—The Serpa Pinto, a Portuguese ship which sailed from Lisbon under an agreement approved by Washington and Berlin, brought 188 passengers, including 100 war refugees, to the port of Philadelphia yesterday.

Included in the passenger list were 43 Americans, 36 children and 35 men and women without a country. Identity of the Americans was not revealed.

The ship made the trip across the Atlantic fully lighted and wired its position to Washington and Berlin each day so it would not be fired upon.

Carter Glass, Jr., Gets Commission As Major

Lynchburg, Va., Jan. 25 (AP)—It was Major Carter Glass, Jr., today.

Glass, Virginia State Senator representing Lynchburg and Campbell county, was commissioned a major in the special service division of the United States Army last week. He will report to Washington for temporary duty early this week.

AUSTRALIANS WAITING, IMPATIENT TO ATTACK

Envoy, in First Talk Here, Says This Should Not Surprise

Sir Owen Dixon, Australian Minister to the United States, in his first public address in New York, said last night it should not be a matter of surprise if Australia awaits with impatience the time when Allied strategy and Allied resources allow a major offensive against Japan.

He spoke at a dinner of the Australian Society of New York at the Biltmore Hotel in observance of the 155th anniversary of the settlement of Australia. He pointed out that Japan has not yet felt the weight of the forces of the United Nations, "for they are to be massed not against her but against Germany."

"In the meantime," he continued, "Australian and American forces have annihilated her troops in Papua; American forces have outfought her in the Solomons, and, in a series of gallant actions at sea and in the air, the United States forces have turned the enemy back again and again."

He asserted that no one can wonder if Australia waits with impatience for a major United Nations drive against Japan.

"It cannot be a matter of surprise if Australians should regard the complete destruction of Japanese power as insufficient for the future security of countries in the Pacific, if they should think that strategic provisions against future attack in any direction from Japan will still remain indispensable conditions of any plans for the peace of the world."

by the Royal Canadian Navy, the newcomer being the Athabascan from British shipbuilders.

He also announced that the Canadian corvette Ville de Quebec sank an enemy submarine in the Mediterranean, drawing first blood from the enemy, ahead of sixteen other Canadian submarine hunters which took part in the naval operations attending the Allied landings in North Africa.

Admiral Nelles Warns Canada Of Growing U-boat Menace

Hints at Submarines Larger Than Corvettes —Stresses Need of More Escort Craft —Sees Peril for North Atlantic.

JAN 26 1943

Montreal, Jan. 25 (A. P.).—Vice-Admiral Percy W. Nelles, Chief of Naval Staff, warned Canada today of the probable renewal of German submarine attacks in the St. Lawrence next spring and of generally intensified U-boat warfare.

Speaking of the submarine situation in an address prepared for delivery at the opening of the naval exhibition here, he said:

"I believe that you should all know the gravity of this situation, for it is indeed something to think about. We have reason to believe that the German submarine strength is increasing. Our considered opinion is that the net gain is something more than ten a month.

"Some of these modern submarines are larger than our corvettes. They mount guns capable of engaging us in action.

"There is reason to believe, too, that the U-boat packs are being kept at sea for longer periods. Oil, torpedoes and other supplies are often being carried and delivered by submarine freighters, the so-called 'milk cows' with which the Germans try to frighten us. They don't frighten us, but we make careful note of the development and will act accordingly."

The Admiral added: "In my opinion the secret of killing the U-boat is more escort vessels closely co-operating with more aircraft."

He announced the commissioning of the second of eight "Tribal" class destroyers being acquired

Canadian Broadcaster Killed

MONTREAL, Jan. 25 (AP)—Mrs. Eduoard Baudry has been advised of the death of her husband, 33-year-old Canadian Broadcasting Corporation correspondent, in North Africa. It was learned here today that Mr. Baudry was killed by anti-aircraft fire when the plane in which he was a pessenger flew off course and appeared over Spanish Morocco.

STEEL STRIKE ENDS WITH 30-DAY TRUCE IN CANADIAN PLANT

Workers Will Return to Jobs, Set Deadline for Action on Demands.

SYDNEY, N. S., Jan. 25—(AP) Sydney steelworkers voted today to end their two-weeks' tieup of the Dominion Steel and Coal Corp. plant here under a government-proposed settlement, but reserved the right to call a new strike in 30 days if their demands are not met fully within that deadline.

The United Steelworkers of America local, whose 5,000 members here have been idle, voted 2,178 to 734 for an immediate return to work. Operations at the plant, which turns out 25 per cent of Canada's primary steel, were to be resumed almost immediately. However, it will be at least a week before full production can be attained.

Secret Ballot Taken

Secret voting on the government's compromise plan was conducted for eight hours today at union headquarters.

The ballot was decided on yesterday at a mass meeting of the workers, who have been on strike since Jan. 12 for higher pay. It carried the proviso that in the event of a return to work under the government plan—which grants only a part of the men's wage demands—the objectives must be met fully within 30 days or another strike will be called.

The strike has tied up production at the corporation's plant, resulting in a loss of 23,300 tons of the product to date. It was called when the Barlow steel wage commission turned down an application for a basic wage rate of 55 cents an hour, plus cost-of-living bonus, which is nine cents at this plant.

A strike for a similar objective was called by another 5,000 men in the Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., mills of the Algoma Steel Corp. at Trenton, N. S., 3,500 workers in four Dosco subsidiaries walked out in quest of the same wage rate.

The Trenton workers voted last night to remain out until their plants are classified as basic steel producers, which would give them the same bargaining rights as the men at Sydney and Sault Ste. Marie.

French Prisoners' Fate.

Pursuing a campaign to effect a cleavage between French troops and their British and American Allies in North Africa, the Germans broadcast a report today that a fourth transport of French prisoners from that battle area had reached France, and all were being released by order of Adolf Hitler.

The item was transmitted for American consumption in Morse code by the Nazi Transocean News Agency, a main source of German propaganda, and was recorded in New York by Government monitors, the Associated Press announced.

The object of the Germans' present campaign to paint themselves as humanitarians is believed based on the possibility that French troops in North Africa, hearing of the good fortune of their erstwhile comrades, might be persuaded to surrender or to offer only lighthearted resistance to Axis forces.

It was pointed out by the OWI, however, that the released French soldiers actually are being swallowed up into the ranks of Nazi forced-labor. Demobilized French soldiers, they said, must register with local authorities if they wish food ration cards.

HITLER PLANS UNCERTAIN

Nazis Say Nothing About Tenth Anniversary Saturday

JAN 26 1943

Plans for a Nazi celebration of the tenth anniversary of Adolf Hitler's assumption of the German dictatorship on Jan. 30, 1933, have received little mention within Europe, according to a report yesterday from listening posts of the foreign broadcast intelligence service, according to the Office of War Information.

There were earlier reports that Herr Hitler would speak on the anniversary date but there was no Nazi mention of plans over the week-end.

A year ago Herr Hitler concluded his speech in Berlin with the following: "I don't know whether the war will end this year. But I do know one thing, it will again be a year of great victories."

The Associated Press reported last night that an important announcement of interest to the American public is expected to be made at 10 p. m., Eastern daylight time, tonight.

No indication of its nature could be given, it was said.

THREE ARE UNDER CONSTRUCTION AT STETTIN AND THREE OR MORE ARE NEARING COMPLETION AT DANZIG. THE INFORMANT SAID THEY MIGHT BE AT SEA BY EARLY APRIL.

THE INFORMANT SAID ALLIED PATROLS HAD LONG BEEN WATCHING KERGUELEN ISLAND IN THE SOUTHERNMOST PART OF THE INDIAN OCEAN, WHICH IS BELIEVED TO BE ONE MEETING PLACE OF JAPANESE AND GERMAN SHIPS.

SPECULATION AS TO THE BASIS ON WHICH ALLIED STRATEGY WAS BEING PLANNED INCLUDED THESE VIEWS ON THE POSSIBILITIES OPEN TO HITLER:

1.) FIGHT A DEFENSIVE WAR THROUGH THE WINTER AND ATTEMPT TO KNOCK OUT RUSSIA WITH A GREAT SPRING OFFENSIVE.

2.) ATTACK GIBRALTAR THROUGH SPAIN IN AN ATTEMPT TO CLOSE THE WESTERN END OF THE MEDITERRANEAN.

3.) MAKE THE LONG-AWAITED AND PERILOUS ATTEMPT TO INVADE ENGLAND.

NIGHT LEAD TUNISIAN

BY NOLAND NORGAARD

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH ADRICA, JAN.25-(AP)-FRENCH TROOPS BOLSTERED BY U.S.ARMORED FORCES HAVE STRENGTHENED THEIR POSITIONS NORTH AND NORTHEAST OF THE VITAL OUSSELTIA AREA OF CENTRAL TUNISIAWN AND IN THE MOUNTAINS TO THE EAST HAVE SMASHED BACK A DETERMINED GERMAN ATTACK, FRENCH HEADQUARTERS REPORTED TONIGHT.

THIS REPORT OF ALLIED GAINS AGAINST THE GERMAN THRUSTS TO DOMINATE THE MOUNTAINS COMMANDING THE COASTAL CORRIDOR TO THE EAST FOLLOWED AFTER AMERICAN TROOPS STRUCK TO MAKNASSY TO THE SOUTH, ONLY 33 MILES FROM THE STRATEGIC COASTAL HIGHWAY AND ROUTE FOR MARSHAL ROMMEL TO BRING HIS BATTERED AFRICA-CORPS UP FOR JUNCTION WITH THE GERMAN FORCES IN TUNISIA.

JAN 26 1943

THE GERMAN ATTACK TO THE EAST OF OUSSELTIA WAS BEATEN BACK WITH HEAVY LOSSES, THE FRENCH COMMUNIQUE REPORTED.

THE GERMAN TANK DRIVE DOWN THE OUSSELTIA VALLEY THUS HAS BEEN HALTED, AND MILITARY SOURCES SAID IT WAS OBVIOUS THAT THE NAZIS WERE CONTENT FOR A TIME TO CONSOLIDATE THEIR POSITIONS ON A STRATEGIC HILL—DJEBEL BOU DABOUS-- OVERLOOKING THE KAIROUAN PLAIN TO THE EAST.

THE HILL POSITIONS GIVE THE AXIS A STRONG BARRIER AGAINST ANY POSSIBLE ALLIED THRUST TOWARD THE SEA IN THAT AREA TO SPLIT THE ENEMY FORCES.

MEANWHILE, ALLIED AIR FORCES POUNDED AT THE GERMANS NEAR THE TUNISIA-TRIPOLITANIA BORDER, AND SHOT UP TRANSPORT AND PORT FACILITIES ALL ALONG THE ROAD OF ROMMEL'S RETREAT TOWARD THE AXIS STRONGHOLDS

AROUND TUNIS.

STRIKING FROM BOTH EAST AND WEST, ALLIED PLANES POUNDED THE AIR-FIELD NEAR MEDENINE, ABOUT 70 MILES INSIDE THE TUNISIAN BORDER FROM TRIPOLITANIA, WHERE ROMMEL WAS SAID TO HAVE CONCENTRATED MAJOR FORCES, AND HIT OTHER BATTERED SOUTHERN TUNISIAN AIR BASES TO WHICH ROMMEL'S WARPLANES HAD WITHDRAWN.

ON THE HEELS OF ROMMEL, GENERAL SIR BERNARD L.MONTGOMERY'S BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY MOVED STEADILY WESTWARD, HOPING TO CLOSE FURTHER THE VISE FORMED BY THIS FORCE AND THE BRITISH FIRST ARMY AND ITS AMERICAN AND FRENCH ALLIES FAR TO THE NORTHWEST NEAR TUNIS.

JAN 26 1943

WITH ONLY REAR GUARD ELEMENTS OF THE AXIS FORCE LEFT IN TRIPOLITANIA, ALLIED POUNDING OF THE AIRFIELDS IN SOUTHERN TUNISIA APPEARED AIMED NOT ONLY AT HARRYING ROMMEL'S HARD PRESSED FORCE BUT AT MAKING IT DIFFICULT OR IMPOSSIBLE TO HALF FOR A STAND BEHIND THE MARETH LINE OF FORTIFICATIONS, 60 MILES INSIDE THE TUNISIAN BORDER.

EIGHTY AXIS PRISONERS WERE TAKEN IN THE AMERICAN STROKE AT MAKNASSY, WHICH APPARENTLY STARTED FROM SOMEWHERE NEAR SENED, 22 MILES WEST OF MAKNASSY, AND 26 MILES NORTHWEST OF GABES. SENED WAS THE EASTERNMOST POINT AT WHICH THE ALLIED FORCES HAD PREVIOUSLY BEEN REPORTED.

THE RAID FOLLOWED AFTER GERMAN PLANES DROPPED THE CHALLENGE: "WHY DON'T THE AMERICANS COME OUT AND FIGHT?"

AS AMERICAN AND BRITISH BOMBERS POUNDED THE WHOLE COASTAL AREA FRO THE EDGE OF TRIPOLI AS FAR NORTH AS SOUSSE, 85 MILES BELOW TUNIS, FIGHTER PLANES SHOT UP TRANSPORT COLUMNS ON THE HIGHWAY EAST OF MAKNASSY.

BRITISH HURRICANE BOMBERS AND SPITFIRE FIGHTERS BOMBED AND STRAFED MOTOR CONVOYS SOUTHWEST OF PONT DU FAHS YESTERDAY, HITTING TROOPS, TRUCKS, AND A ROAD JUNCTION.

AMERICAN FLYING FORTRESSES SCORED A DIRECT HIT ON AN AXIS SHIP IN THE RAID ON SOUSSE, AN IMPORTANT SUPPLY PORT TO WHICH AXIS SHIPPING FLED AFTER THE FALL OF TRIPOLI.

IN THE MEDENINE ATTACK BETWEEN 25 AND 30 AXIS AIRCRAFT WERE BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN DESTROYED ON THE GROUND WHEN TWO WAVES OF U.S. MEDIUM BOMBERS HIT THE AIRDROME IMMEDIATELY WEST OF THE TOWN.

U.S.BOMBERS AND FIGHTER-BOMBERS STRUVK AXIS SHIPPING FLEEING FROM THE PORT OF ZUARA, 25 MILES WEST OF TRIPOLI, AND OTHER ALLIED FIGHTER-BOMBERS LATE YESTERDAY MADE A LARGE SCALE ATTACK AT THE SOUTHERN TUNISIAN AIRPORT AT BEN GARDANE, 25 MILES WEST OF THE BORDER.

JAN 26 1943

COMMUNICATIONS OF THE AXIS ACROSS THE MEDITERRANEAN WERE KEPT UNDER CONTINUED HEAVY PRESSURE. U.S. LIBERATOR HEAVY BOMBERS IN A PRE-DAWN RAID SUNDAY BOMBED SHIPPING AND HARBOR WORKS AT PALERMO AND MESSINA IN SICILY.

TORPEDO PLANES SATURDAY NIGHT SET AFIRE TWO SOUTHBOUND MERCHANT SHIPS NORTH OF SICILY AND SCORED A DIRECT BOMB HIT ON A DESTROYER. ONE OF THE MERCHANT VESSELS WAS LATER REPORTED TO HAVE EXPLODED AND BROKEN IN TWO.

JAN 26 1943

ALLIED FIGHTER BOMBERS FOLLOWED THIS BLOW WITH ANOTHER ATTACK ON RAIL LINES AND OTHER TARGETS IN SOUTHERN SICILY.

AS THE AIR WAR WAXED A U.S. AIR FORCE SPOKESMAN REVEALED AMERICAN PLANES HAD DESTROYED 28 ENEMY PLANES AND DAMAGED 17 OTHERS IN THE WEEK ENDED LAST FRIDAY, COMPARED WITH AN AMERICAN LOSS OF 17 PLANES. THE AMERICAN TOTALS INCLUDED THE RECORD OF THE FRENCH LAFAYETTE

TRIPOLI, JAN.23-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE RETREATING GERMANS DID LITTLE DEMOLITION IN THIS LAST CITY OF ITALY'S AFRICAN EMPIRE AND EVEN THE HARBOR APPEARS TO BE IN FAIRLY GOOD SHAPE, DESPITE THE HULKS OF ABOUT A DOZEN SHIPS SUNK BY BRITISH AND AMERICAN BOMBERS.

ELECTRIC POWER AND WATER SYSTEM ARE WORKING. ALTHOUGH BUSINESS IS AT A STANDSTILL TODAY, IT IS EXPECTED TO RESUME NORMALLY AS SOON AS THE OCCUPYING BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY GIVES THE INHABITANTS INSTRUCTIONS.

I CAME TO TRIPOLI WITH THE EIGHTH ARMY TODAY AFTER EIGHT DAYS IN THE DESERT WATCHING THE SPECTACULAR PUSH ACROSS THE ROCKS AND SAND. OUR COLUMN MADE THE FINAL DASH IN THE EARLY MORNING FROM NEAR CASTEL BENITO, THE LAST AND BEST AIR BASE IN LIBYA, WHERE THE GERMANS MADE THEIR LAST DESPERATE STAND LAST NIGHT.

JAN 26 1943

AFTER DAWN, WE PUSHED ON AGAIN AND THIS TIME THERE WAS NOTHING IN OUR WAY. TROOPS ALONG THE ROAD GRINNED HAPPILY BECAUSE IT WAS THEIR GOAL AFTER THREE YEARS OF SUCCESSES AND REVERSES OVER 1,300 MILES OF DESERT TO THE EAST.

NATIVES ALONG THE WAY WAVED AND CHEERED AND CIVILIANS LINED THE STREETS LEADING TO THE CENTER OF TRIPOLI. SOME STOOD DUMBLY AS THOUGH THEY COULDN'T GRASP WHAT HAD HAPPENED. LAST NIGHT THE GERMANS AND ITALIANS WERE HERE, TODAY THEY WERE GONE.

SOME LOOKED SURLY. A FEW SMILED AND WAVED, BUT NOT MANY OF THE ITALIANS SEEMED TO WELCOME THE BRITISH ENTRANCE WITH JOY.

THE EUROPEAN CENTER IN THE HARBOR AREA HAD SCARCELY BEEN DAMAGED BY BOMBS. IN FACT THERE WAS LITTLE DAMAGE EVIDENT ON OUR ENTRANCE INTO THE CITY.

HOTELS STILL WERE OPEN BUT ALL BUT A FEW SMALL SHOPS WERE CLOSED. I UNDERSTAND THE STORES WILL BE OPENED WITHIN 48 HOURS AND THAT ONLY LIRA AND SPECIAL CURRENCY ISSUED BY THE BRITISH WILL BE LEGAL TENDER.

JAN 26 1943

THE INFANTRY WAS THE FIRST TO ENTER TRIPOLI. THE ENEMY STILL IS RETREATING TOWARD TUNISIA BUT RIGHT NOW NOBODY IN TRIPOLI IS WORRYING ABOUT THE NEXT MOVE. THERE IS TOO MUCH HAPPINESS OVER REACHING THEIR GOAL.

THE COUNTRYSIDE AROUND WAS STRANGELY PEACEFUL LOOKING. THE COLLECTIVE FARMS WITH THEIR WHITE BUILDINGS WERE NEAT AND WELL KEPT. THERE WAS LITTLE EVIDENCE OF WAR ON THE ROAD TO TRIPOLI.

MEANWHILE AMERICAN MITCHELL MEDIUM BOMBERS SUPPORTING THE EIGHTH ARMY STRUCK 70 MILES INTO TUNISIA, ATTACKING A LANDING GROUND AT MEDENINE (CORRECT) ON ROMMEL'S LINE OF RETREAT AND STARTING FIRES, A U.S. ARMY COMMUNIQUE SAID.

THE COMMUNIQUE ALSO TOLD OF A PRE-DAWN RAID SUNDAY BY HEAVY LIBERATOR BOMBERS OF THE NINTH U.S. AIR FORCE ON SHIPPING AND HARBOR INSTALLATIONS AT PALERMO AND MESSINA, THE TWO PRINCIPAL CITIES OF SICILY.

"LARGE FIRES WERE OBSERVED ON THE MOLE AND IN THE HARBOR AT PALERMO," THE COMMUNIQUE SAID. "A CONVOY OUTSIDE THE HARBOR ALSO WAS ATTACKED."

THE ANNOUNCEMENT FAILED TO INDICATE THE EXACT EXTENT OF THE EIGHTH ARMY'S PROGRESS, SAYING MERELY THAT "OUR TROOPS CONTINUED THEIR ADVANCE TO THE WEST."

IN ADDITION TO BLASTING ENEMY SHIPPING AT ZUARA ALLIED FIGHTER-BOMBERS WERE REPORTED TO HAVE CARRIED OUT A LARGE SCALE ATTACK YESTERDAY ON THE AXIS AIRDROME AT BEN GARDANE, 25 MILES WEST OF THE LIBYAN-TUNISIAN FRONTIER. ONE JUNKERS--88 WAS SHOT DOWN IN COMBAT AND OTHER PLANES WERE DAMAGED ON THE FIELD, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID.

JAN 26 1943

SATURDAY NIGHT, THE BULLETIN DECLARED, ALLIED LIGHT BOMBERS SWEPT 35 MILES BEYOND BEN GARDANE TO ATTACK ANOTHER AIRDROME AT MEDININE. PALERMO, SICILY, WAS BOMBED THE SAME NIGHT.

TWO SOUTHBOUND MERCHANT SHIPS WERE SET AFIRE BY TORPEDO-CARRYING PLANES NORTH OF SICILY AND AN ESCORTING DESTROYER WAS DECLARED DIRECTLY HIT BY A BOMB, ONE OF THE MERCHANT SHIPS WAS REPORTED TO HAVE EXPLODED AND BROKEN IN TWO.

ALLIED FIGHTER-BOMBERS FOLLOWED UP WITH ANOTHER ATTACK ON RAILWAYS AND OTHER TARGETS IN SOUTHERN SICILY YESTERDAY, THE BULLETIN SAID.

DESPITE THE SCOPE OF THE ALLIED AIR OPERATIONS ONLY TWO PLANES WERE REPORTED LOST.

GUADALCANAL, JAN. 15-(DELAYED)-(AP)-GUADALCANAL-BASED PLANES SCORED THEIR GREATEST BAG OF JAPANESE PLANES OF THE WAR TODAY, SHOOTING DOWN 30 ZEROS AND MAKING DIRECT HITS ON TWO JAPANESE DESTROYERS AND TWO HITS ON A CARGO SHIP.

THESE SUCCESSES WERE ACCOMPLISHED WITH THE LOSS OF ONLY SEVEN OF OUR AIRCRAFT.

CAPT.JOE FOSS, MARINE ACE FROM SIOUX FALLS, S.D., PILED INTO ACTION AGAINST THE JAPANESE AGAIN AFTER A VACATION AND PROVED HIS ZERO-SHOOTING ABILITY HAD NOT RUSTED. HE SHOT DOWN THREE ZEROS TO BRING HIS TOTAL OF JAPANESE PLANES TO 26.

"I JUST MILLED AROUND IN A MESS OF NIPS," FOSS SAID IN REFERENCE TO A LATE AFTERNOON BATTLE IN WHICH ZEROS ATTEMPTED TO

JAN 26 1943

INTERCEPT AN ATTACK ON A CARGO SHIP OFF VELLA LAVELLA ISLAND.

FOSS' GRUMMAN FLIGHT AND BELL AIRACOBRAS CLEARED THE WAY FOR THIS ATTACK AND DIVE-BOMBERS WENT IN TO SET THE CARGO SHIP AFIRE.

THE RECORD-BREAKING DAY BEGAN WHEN DOUGLAS DIVE-BOMBERS ESCORTED BY GRUMMANS AND AIRACOBRAS ATTACKED NINE JAPANESE DESTROYERS NORTHEAST OF VELLA LAVELLA. THEY SCORED HITS, TWO OF WHICH, THE FLIERS SAID, MUST HAVE "RIPPED THEM APART."

IN THE AFTERNOON, BOEING FLYING FORTRESSES ESCORTED BY AIRACOBRAS, CURTISS WARHAWKS AND LOCKHEED LIGHTNINGS ATTACKED AGAIN BUT HAD TO BE CONTENT WITH ONLY NEAR MISSES.

THE AIRACOBRAS AND WARHAWKS, HOWEVER, SHOT DOWN 11 ZERO FIGHTERS.

FOSS' "FLYING CIRCUS," A FLIGHT WHICH NOW HAS SHOT DOWN 69 JAPANESE PLANES, WENT INTO ACTION IN THE LATE AFTERNOON.

FOSS' PERSONAL COLLECTION INCLUDED TWO ZEROS WHICH HE SHOT FROM THE TAILS OF TWO OF HIS BUDDIES.

ANOTHER ACE WAS BORN WHEN CAPT.FRANCIS E.PIERCE, JR., OF CORONADO, CALIF., SHOT DOWN THREE ZEROS TO BRING HIS TOTAL TO FIVE.

"I NEVER HAD SO MUCH FUN," CAPT.PIERCE SAID. "THE FIRST CAME HEAD ON AND I GOT HIM BEFORE HE COULD GET ME. THE SECOND DID A SNAP ROLL RIGHT OUT IN FRONT OF ME AND I JUST PICKED HIM OFF. I GOT ON THE TAIL OF THE THIRD AND SMOKED HIM INTO THE WATER."

BEFORE THESE FIGHTS, PIERCE SAW BLOOD RUNNING DOWN HIS LEGS. HE HAD BEEN HIT FOUR TIMES BY FRAGMENTS.

JAN 26 1943

AFTER THE COMBAT, HE FOUND ONE AILERON HAD BEEN SHOT AWAY. HE JUST MANAGED TO REACH THE GUADALCANAL COAST WHERE HE PARACHUTED DOWN AND WAS PICKED UP BY A DESTROYER.

THREE ZEROS ALSO WENT DOWN BEFORE THE GUNS OF LIEUT.LLOYD G.HUFF, MOUND CITY, KAS.

LIEUTENANT RICHARD RIVERS OF FORT WORTH, TEX., LIEUTENANT R.D. KENNEDY OF CHICAGO, LIEUT. M.L.SMITH OF KIDDER, MO., AND LIEUT. ALLEN S.WEBB OF EARLINGTON, KY., EACH SHOT DOWN TWO ZEROS.

THE BAG OF JAPANESE INCLUDED THREE TYPES OF ZEROS--THE NEW TYPE TWO, THE FLOAT TYPE AND THE OLD ZERO.

THE GRUMMANS AND DIVE BOMBERS WERE PILOTED BY MARINES; THE OTHER PLANES WERE FLOWN BY ARMY PILOTS.

JAN 26 1943

(EDITOR'S NOTE: AFTER TRAVELLING IN INDIA FOR SEVERAL WEEKS FOLLOWING A VISIT TO CHUNGKING, CHINA, DEWITT MACKENZIE RESUMES FROM NEW DELHI HIS REGULAR COLUMN, "THE WAR TODAY.")

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

NEW DELHI, JAN. 22-(DELAYED)-LOOKING AT THE WORLD THROUGH THE BIG END OF A TELESCOPE--THAT IS, ACROSS THE FLAMING BATTLEFIELDS OF EUROPE AND AFRICA TOWARDS THE ULTIMATE BATTLEFIELDS OF ASIA--IT SEEMS INCREASINGLY CLEAR THAT THIS INDIA FROM WHICH I AM WRITING WILL BE NEEDED AS A MAJOR BASE--PERHAPS THE MAJOR BASE--FOR DEFEAT OF THE ORIENTAL HUNS.

THAT IS A FACT WHICH WE SHOULDN'T ALLOW THE SMOKE OF THE EUROPEAN CONFLICT TO OBSCURE FOR ONE MOMENT. INDIA IS VITAL TO THE ALLIED CAUSE.

THE POINT IS THAT IN ORDER TO UPROOT AND DRIVE THE MIKADO'S FORCES FROM THE CONTINENT INTO THE SEA IT WILL BE NECESSARY TO RECAPTURE BURMA AND USE THAT BACK DOOR TO CHINA TO EQUIP CHIANG KAI-SHEK'S ARMIES. INDIA WILL BE AT ONCE THE ARSENAL AND STRATEGIC JUMPING OFF PLACE FOR THIS GRAND FINALE.

JAN 26 1943

THUS IT IS GOOD TO RECEIVE AUTHORITATIVE ASSURANCES SUCH AS HAVE BEEN GIVEN ME THAT INDIA'S SECURITY AS A BASE IS INSURED. THEY TELL ME THAT IT IS BEING HELD SAFE, BOTH AS REGARDS INTERNAL AND EXTERNAL THREATS, UNTO THE DAY WHEN THE ALLIED HIGH COMMAND IS READY TO DEAL FINALLY WITH SHOTGUN MILITARISM.

I HAVE REPORTED PREVIOUSLY IN TIS COLUMN THAT BIG MILITARY PERSONAGES HERE EXPRESS THE CONFIDENCE THAT THE DANGER OF A SUCCESSFUL JAPANESE INVASION NO LONGER EXISTS.

NOW WE HAVE FURTHER IMPORTANT INFORMATION. QUALIFIED QUARTERS ASSURE ME THAT THE AUTHORITIES ALSO HAVE THE INTERNAL SITUATION SECURELY IN HAND AFTER SIX MONTHS OF POLITICAL DISTURBANCES SINCE THE BREAKDOWN OF NEGOTIATIONS OVER SIR STAFFORD CRIPPS' PROPOSALS FOR DOMINION STATUS FOR INDIA.

SO FAR AS CONCERNS THE MILITARY POSITION THERE IS NO INDICATION, EITHER. THAT THE JAPS INTEND TO TRY INVASION OR THAT IF THEY DID THAT THEY WOULD BE SUCCESSFUL.

JAN 26 1943

INDIA HAS A RIGHT TO FEEL SECURE IN THAT RESPECT.

AS TO THE POLITICAL SITUATION, THE STATEMENT THAT THINGS ARE WHOLLY IN HAND UNDOUBTEDLY REPRESENTS A STUDIED VIEW OF AUTHORITIES. CERTAINLY THEY ARE THE ONES WHO SHOULD KNOW BETTER THAN ANY ONE ELSE WHAT THE EXACT STATE OF AFFAIRS IS AND THEIR APPARENT CONFIDENCE IS REASSURING.

STILL, EVEN THOUGH THINGS MAY INDEED BE WELL IN HAND, I AM BOUND TO SAY THAT THE POSITION WOULD BE MUCH HAPPIER IF THE POLITICAL DIFFERENCES WERE ELIMINATED.

THIS IS A CRUCIAL MOMENT WHEN GOOD WILL AND UNITY OF EFFORT ARE ESSENTIAL AND THOSE THINGS ARE LACKING AMONG VARIOUS PARTIES TO THE CONTROVERSY. IN THAT SENSE INDIA CANNOT BE THE SAME EFFECTIVE MILITARY BASE WHICH IT WOULD BE WERE POLITICAL DIFFICULTIES SOLVED.

JUST WHEN INDIA WILL BE CALLED UPON FOR ITS SUPREME WAR EFFORT IS PERHAPS SOMETHING WHICH EVEN THE ALLIED HIGH COMMAND CANNOT PREDICT WITH CERTAINTY RIGHT NOW. OF COURSE, OPERATIONS ARE BEING CONDUCTED

30-29-605

CONTINUALLY AGAINST THE JAPS IN BURMA AND NEIGHBORING TERRITORY BUT IT WOULDN'T BE SURPRISING IF A GRAND OFFENSIVE WERE NOT STAGED UNTIL HITLER HAS BEEN KNOCKED OUT.

JAN 26 1943

OUR ORIENTAL ALLIES APPARENTLY ARE BECOMING RECONCILED TO THIS VIEWPOINT ALTHOUGH DISAGREEING WITH THE POLICY OF MAKING DEFEAT OF THE AXIS IN EUROPE THE INITIAL OBJECTIVE. ANYWAY, I FIND THEY DO UNDERSTAND THE MILITARY REASONING WHICH DESIGNED HITLER AS ENEMY NUMBER ONE, AND THE RECENT ALLIED SUCCESSES IN RUSSIA AND LIBYA HAVE MADE THIS REASONING MUCH MORE ACCEPTABLE IN THE ORIENT.

IT IS NOW BECOMING APPARENT IN THIS PART OF THE WORLD THAT REESTABLISHMENT OF ALLIED CONTROL OVER THE MEDITERRANEAN WILL BE OF INCALCULABLE ASSISTANCE TO THE FINAL CAMPAIGN AGAINST JAPAN.

JAN 26 1943

A65

SUPPOSE, FOR THE SAKE OF ARGUMENT, THAT AN ALL-OUT DRIVE AGAINST THE MIKADO DOES NOT COME UNTIL NEXT FALL. WILL CHINA BE ABLE TO HOLD OUT UNTIL THEN?

I BELIEVE SO, BARRING SOME WHOLLY UNEXPECTED DEVELOPMENT IN THE MEANTIME.

IT SHOULD BE BORNE IN MIND THAT ACTUALLY THERE HAS BEEN LITTLE WARFARE ON A BIG SCALE IN CHINA FOR A LONG TIME. THINGS HAVE BEEN LARGELY AT A STANDSTILL.

EVEN IF THE JAPANESE SHOULD UNDERTAKE SOME NEW OFFENSIVE--AND THERE'S NO PRESENT INDICATION OF ANYTHING BIG--THE CHINESE HAVE LOTS OF SPACE TO SWAP FOR TIME. QUITE APART FROM THAT THE CHINESE ARE A GALLANT RACE AND HAVE FULLY DEMONSTRATED THAT THEY INTEND TO FIGHT THE WAR TO COMPLETE VICTORY.

NATURALLY, THE LONGER THE ALLIES ARE COMPELLED TO DELAY THE FINAL ASSAULT ON JAPAN THE MORE DIFFICULT IT MAY BE TO CONQUER THE BARBARIANS OF THE RISING SUN.

JAN 26 1943

WE MUST REMEMBER THAT QUITE APART FROM JAPAN PROPER THERE IS A VAST ARMY OF JAPS SWARMING CHINA AND ANOTHER BIG CONTINGENT HOLDING THAT BURMESE BACK DOOR.

NOW THE JAP SOLDIER ISN'T LIKE OTHER HUMANS. PROVIDING HE IS EQUIPPED WITH OFFENSIVE WEAPONS, HE'S MORE OR LESS SELF SUFFICIENT. TAKE HIM BY THE SCRUFF OF THE NECK AND CHUCK HIM INTO A STRANGE LAND AND HE WILL FIND FOOD AND SHELTER FOR HIMSELF. HE GOES TO GROUND LIKE A RAT AND IT'S MIGHTY HARD TO DIG HIM OUT.

SO WE UNDOUBTEDLY WILL FIND A TOUGH JOB ON OUR HANDS WHEN WE FINALLY START IN TO CLEAN HOUSE OUT HERE. STILL IT CAN BE DONE, ALL RIGHT.

AS FAR AS CHINA IS CONCERNED SHE SURELY WILL EXPECT TO PROVIDE MANPOWER FOR THE JOB, ALTHOUGH OBVIOUSLY SHE WILL NEED MUCH EQUIPMENT FROM THE ALLIES.

JAN 26 1943

A SOUTH PACIFIC BASE, JAN. 21--(DELAYED)--(AP)--TINY BUT HARD-STRIKING PT-BOATS, ONE OF THE U.S. NAVY'S NEWEST WEAPONS, WERE CREDITED TODAY WITH PLAYING A MAJOR ROLE IN THE BATTLE OF GUADALCANAL, TURNING BACK JAPANESE REINFORCEMENT ATTEMPTS TIME AND AGAIN WHEN THE POSITION OF AMERICAN LAND FORCES WAS HIGHLY CRITICAL.

THE STORY OF HOW THESE 50-TON CRAFT, ENCASED IN FRAGILE PLYWOOD, TOOK THE MEASURE OF STEEL-HULLED ENEMY CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS WAS TOLD FOR THE FIRST TIME IN AN OFFICIAL NAVY RELEASE PAYING TRIBUTE TO THE COURAGE AND SKILL OF THEIR CREWS.

THE EXACT AMOUNT OF TONNAGE FOR WHICH THE PT-BOATS ACCOUNTED WAS NOT GIVEN, BUT IT IS UNOFFICIALLY ESTIMATED THAT SINCE OCTOBER 11 THEY HAVE DESTROYED OR DAMAGED AT LEAST 250,000 TONS OF ENEMY SHIPPING.

THEY SCORED THEIR GREATEST VICTORY ON DEC. 12 WHEN THEY SANK ONE DESTROYER, SET FIRE TO ANOTHER WHICH PROBABLY SANK LATER AND DAMAGED A THIRD.

JAN 26 1943

MORE RECENTLY, ON JAN. 11, THE LITTLE CRAFT SAILED INTO A FORMATION OF JAPANESE DESTROYERS TRYING TO TOW TROOP-LADEN BARGES TO GUADALCANAL, THE FOLLOWING DAY THEY HUNTED DOWN AND SANK FLOATING DRUMS OF FOOD WHICH THE DESTROYERS HAD DROPPED WHERE CURRENTS WOULD CARRY THEM ASHORE TO THE JAPANESE GARRISON.

RIDING THE PT-BOATS IS A TOUGH JOB FOR THE CREWS, WHICH TAKE A SEVERE POUNDING AS THEIR CRAFT BOUNCE OVER THE SEA AT HIGH SPEED. ASHORE THE CREWS LIVE IN TENTS CLOSE TO THE BEACHES, READY FOR INSTANT DUTY DAY OR NIGHT.

THE PT-BOATS FIRST WENT INTO ACTION ON THE NIGHT OF OCT. 12, THE NAVY RELEASE SAID, WHEN THEY "DROVE AT A JAPANESE FORCES OF CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS AND SCORED HITS ON A CRUISER. HEAVY GUNFIRE FROM THE BIG SHIPS FAILED TO IMPRESS THE MOTOR TORPEDOBOATS."

"WITHIN TWO WEEKS," THE ANNOUNCEMENT CONTINUED, "THE PT-BOATS HIT ONE OF THREE DESTROYERS AND ESCAPED UNDAMAGED DESPITE A BLINDING ILLUMINATION OF THE ENEMY'S SEARCHLIGHTS AND SHELLING."

JAN 26 1943

COMMENTING ON THE HOLDING ACTION, THE ANNOUNCEMENT ADDED: "BY EARLY NOVEMBER THE PT'S ASSAULTS AGAINST PERSISTENT JAP SUPPLY FORCES BECAME ALMOST ROUTINE."

THESE FORCES CONSISTED GENERALLY OF DESTROYERS WITH CARGO VESSELS.

"ONCE, FROM DECEMBER 7TH TO 8TH," IT WAS STATED, "THE PT'S NARROWED THE RANGE TO ONLY A FEW HUNDRED YARDS AND UNLEASHED THEIR FULL COMPLEMENT OF TORPEDOES AND MET JAPANESE DESTROYER FIVE-INCH FIRE WITH THEIR OWN MACHINE-GUNS.

JAN 26 1943

"SPLATTERED WITH SHRAPNEL BUT OTHERWISE UNSCATHED THEY WITHDREW THROUGH A SMOKESCREEN.

"EARLIER THAT NIGHT A PT-BOAT PLAYED HIDE-AND-SEEK WITH A PAIR OF ENEMY DESTROYERS AFTER ITS ENGINES PARTIALLY FAILED. AN ACCOMPANYING PT-BOAT OFFERED ITSELF AS 'BAIT' AND LURED THE JAPANESE SHIPS INTO THE DARKNESS AS THE CRIPPLED BOAT RETIRED SHOREWARD."

AFTER ATTACKING A JAPANESE VESSEL AND "SENDING IT PACKING," THE PT'S ENCOUNTERED AN ENEMY ARMED LANDING BARGE.
